8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students

20¢ per word/day

All others

40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ANIMALS FOR SALE

Now offering reptiles, exotic small animals & large birds. Prices better than pet stores. Call for info. Pager # 481-7784

ANNOUNCEMENTS

KAI CHI Delivering Sunday thru Thursday 11pm and every Friday and Saturday from 9pm-2:30a

It's Back!! The Great Mass Mountain Bike Race April 28 & 29. Student Union Court 11-5. 545-3401

Kennedy Collegehouse presents ... Late night opening. We're seeking fresh talent including stunts, singers, comedians ... Call Mike 546-0068 or Robin 546-...

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Huge 3 Bedroom. ... bath Mill Valley ... separate entry, tons of ... all utilities included. Summer ... Fall start. Rare. Call ...

Mill Valley ... large bedroom with full ... Quiet, mountainview ... Monthly rent $565, includes heat ... minute from campus. Call 549-8...

Takeover Lease Modern 2 bedroom ... apartment, mountainview, heat and ... included, fitness center on bus ... line. Call 256-1806.

Crestview ... bedroom apt. $825 per ... Call 549-6440.

Take Over Our Lease 6/1 Pine Bedford ... apartment. Friendly vibe. Call Jen at ... 584-8064.

AUTO FOR SALE

1986 Subaru 4WD Hatchback ... 5-speed, AM-FM. All you need for a great, dependable car. Maintenance records ... $900. 584-1836.

1985 Beretta GT ... Loaded. Runs and looks great. ... Call 549-7451.

Acura Integra RS ... 89K, sport, $7K, AC ... Leave Message 546-...

EMPLOYMENT

National Parks Hiring. Positions are ... available at Yellowstone, Grand Canyon, Glacier, Yosemite, Everglades, Olympic, Rocky Mtn., Alaska & more! Excellent benefits ... $8-$15/hr. Call 206-971-3620 ext. ...

Now Hiring ... Looking for the ... Call 691-7...

Alaska Student Employment— ... parks, resorts & more. Hiring ... $7,000/summer. Airfare, room & board. Free video + program: (919) 933-1469 ext. A...

Free Room and Board — exchange for ... Light office and salesperson ... required. Call 586-...

EMPLOYMENT

Student Help Wanted ... from $55 ... before you summer even starts by learning the biggest event of the year! The Alumni Office is now accepting applications for Reunion Weekend student help. Must be available some 5-9 ... Housing accommodations available. Stop by the Alumni Relations office in Memorial Hall ... to visit us and receive application today. Questions? Talk to Ann Thompson at 545-...

Student Painters needed $6 ... and minutes summer work for hardworking people. Some hours in Amherst area ... Call Bryan 549-...

Immediate Openings ... evening part time evening telemarketers. Hours available 5pm ... 5-9 pm. Earn $6 per hour plus bonuses. Enjoy spring days while earning cash. Call Mr. Miranda 800-675-4777.

SUMMER IN MAINE

Have Fun, make an impact! Camp Androscoggin for Boys seeks staff to teach tennis, lacrosse, swim, sail, waterski, archery, photography, nature, mountain biking, hiking, dirt and radio. Excellent facilities, 115 acre lakeside campus. Camp is an ... Appel Street, Hamden, CT. (203) 288-3331.

SCruise Ships Hiring! Students needed! $$$ & Free Travel! Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii, Seasonal/Permanent. No Experience Necessary. Job (919) 929-4398 ext. C1403! Summer Painters ... ing for Boston area painters. Will train, ... competitive. Earn $6. Work. Call for ... Bridgewater Painters at (508) 697-9978.

Women needed for research project. Runners and Sedentary women 18 - 25 years of age. You will be paid $100 if interested call 549-5851 ask for Deanna.

Counselors ... Coed overnight weight loss camp. Looking for outgoing, athletic individuals who enjoy working with children. Great experience. (617) 449-6800.

FALL 1996 INTERNSHIPS with the Student Legal Services Office get hands-on experience in entry level hands-work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary - training provided. Deadline to begin the application process is April 19, 1996 - not fall! Student Legal Services today - 545-1995, 901 Campus Center.

Eastern Europe Jobs - Teach basic conversational English in Prague, Budapest or Krakow. No teaching certificate or European languages required. Inexpensive room and board and other benefits for info. call 206-971-3680 ext. K5001.

Looking for summer jobs? Openings available at Brandywine Apartments in Hadley. Full-time and p/t. Must be ... Red Cross certified. Towards Keepers/Porters full time. Must be hard working, reliable and responsible. Stop by Brandywine office, 180 Brandywine Drive, Amherst, MA or call 549-1600.

National Parks, Beach/Mt. Resorts, Facilities. Hiring. Extensive hiring! Nationwide. Will employers. Top pay, benefits. Call (919) 933-1469 ext. R1...

Alaska Student Employment— ... parks, resorts & more. Hiring! Earn $7,000/summer. Airfare, room & board. Free video + program: (919) 933-1469 ext. A...

Free Room and Board — exchange for ... Light office and salesperson ... required. Call 586-...

FOR RENT

Questions about your lease (security deposit deductions)? Questions about the ... of your new house or apartment? ... Contact the Student Legal ... Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-...

2 Bedroom Apt. Brandywine. Pond side ... Balcony. ... Available 6/1. 549-7094.

3 Bedroom Apt. in Puffton Village, start ... June 1. Gas heat, AC, water incl. ... option to lease. Call 549-8821 for more ...

2 Bedroom Apt. Brandywine. ... side w/ balcony. ... Avail. 6/1. 549-6088.

FOR SALE

BOB DYLAN TICKETS - Tuesday 4/16 Springfield - 2 Tickets. Call Matt @ 586-...

486 66 Comes Loaded ... MS Works, Office, Power Point and Much More ... Canon Color Bubble Jet Printer incl. ... Multilingual software, manuals incl. ... $ 1 line in B/O ... ining 6 1745.

Smith Corona PW990 Word Processor ... Only 1 1/2 yr. old with box & all papers. Paid $350, will take $125 OBO. Call 546-...

486DX4 100 ... ems $60 or BO. 546-20...

RCA 20" TV/VCR Combination new, unused. Asking $400. Call Lthur 549-4086.

2 1/2 Ft. Ball Python w/75 gal. tank and heater. Worth 180+ Asking $100/bo. Call 549-8636.

Pioneer VSX-453 Dolby Surround Sound Receiver. 12w Watts/Channel remote control. Free speaker wire. $168. 582-9699.

POWERMAC SUPERSTATION - (G3,80, 167MP) Color monitor mouse keyboard 4 ... graphics software $1499, call 256-0080.

Bahamas round trip for 2. $700 585-6549.

Rollerblades - size 10, men's, ... excellent condition $75. Call Shawn 549-...

Motorcycle ... 1980 Honda custom ... $150.00 firm up or for parts. 253-8740 - leave Message.

Computer Parts 486 DX Mother Board, ... SCASI Sound Card, SUGA 100MG Hard ... Mouse. Call for prices. 548-8563 2 ...

Computer 486DX 8meg 4x CDROM, Wired Proc. Soft. excl. $1000.80 Greg @ 549-8969.

Dog training made easy. Call 1-800-813-1445.

DJ Speakers— Brand new, 200 watt, sound great. 5 yr warranty, must sell $450 firm both. Call Wes 549-5728.

MAC Performa 550 All in one unit 14" ... with the ED. Mic. Heads of software, games. Great for dorm rooms. Nate 253-...

Computers cheap, laptops and desktop. All under $100. Call 8-0540.

LOST

Bueger lost at Lacrosse field on Sat. March 30. If found please call 549-0789.

MISCELLANEOUS

Person Wanted to own and operate retail vending machines in Amherst area. Low investment. For information call Mrs. Burden's Gourmet Candy Company, Dallas, TX (214) 991-8239.

MISCELLANEOUS

Landed a job in Boston? Take the work out of finding an apartment! BOSTON BROKER (617) 262-3444 UMASS Alum.

PERSONALS

Eric,
Thanks for the random act of kindness. I guess you got what I was saying. The Editorialist

Eric, You live at Cleshaw. I really hope to hear from you. You have the cleanest eyes I ever saw. I am what you thought I was. I just got goofy that day because I wanted to meet you. It would be awesome if you called. Use my folks number and ask for my new number. See ya. Mark

C MC I see your sh*t around and like your gangsta booty pistol.

ROMMATE WANTED

Female Housemates Wanted to share 5 bdrm house in N. Amherst. Great location on bus route, low rent plus utilities. Starts 6/1. Call Amy at 549-7176 for more info.

Looking for roomates to share three bedroom apartment in Townhouses. I have a dog and cat. Call Becky at 549-6398. Males or females okay.

SERVICES

Let Ms Do Your Typing. ... Papers. Resumes. Call Joe 546-5738.

Pregnant? Need Help? Call Birthright of Amherst area for free testing and caring Assistance. 549-1906.

THE MARIJUANA CONNECTION Roll-O-ING 1-900-370-HEMP (4367) thru 16+ 1T outline 8013463125.

LANDSCAPING

Spring cleanup. Shrub trimming, pruning, planting, debris removal. Call 586-1997 for a free estimate.

SUMMER SUBLET

One Bedroom Colonial Village. Bus stop at door. Available June 1st. Call 253-1728.

3 Bedroom Fulton Apt. available June 1st Call 549-6694.

Specious two bedroom apt. available June 1st Call Alf 253-1532.

3 Bedroom Apt. on Puffton Village start ing June 1. Gas heat, AC, water incl. Option to lease. Call 549-8821 for more info.

1BR Apt. - 10 minutes walk to Amherst Center. 300 per month all utilities. Bebe 256-0787.

Brandywine 2 Bedroom Apartment Option to Lease. Call 549-8520.

Summer or summer/fall sublet. Brandywine 2 bedroom, cheap. Call 549-6779.

Bedroom in Presidential Apt., walking distance, call 549-8042.

Looking For Summer Sublet in Mill Valley. $715 month. Call Kathy 253-7157.

2 Bedroom apt at Brandywine. Option to lease. Available June 1st. $120 off monthly rent. Call 549-8687.

SUBLET

Take over lease June 1. Spacious 2 bdrm apt. Heat and hot water inc. $695/Mo. 253-0864.

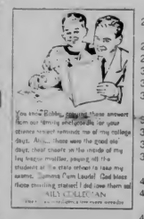
TRAVEL

Language Courses International Total immersion courses in Mexico, Ecuador, Costa Rica, Spain, France, Italy, Germany, Austria and Quebec. World renowned schools. Homestays. Short and long term programs. Call 800-597-3773, or your UMass representative. Free at 546-7082.

Come Join In The Adventure!! Come White Water Rafting with UMSC & UMOC! May 31 - June 2. Only $139! Call us @ 5-3437.

WANTED

Some friends and I are going abroad for the fall semester. We are looking for some people who are leaving after the fall semester to split an apartment (uptown preferred). You take fall, we'll take spring. Call 549-5681. Ask for Steph.



You could Dribble, Spin or Throw these around from our spinning wheel prizes. Or your chance to spin it around, top of the pyramid, and win a big bicycle, stereo, pogo, or the grand prize, a trip to Florida! Come on down to the Student Activities Office and spin the wheel today!

DAILY COLLEGIAN

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

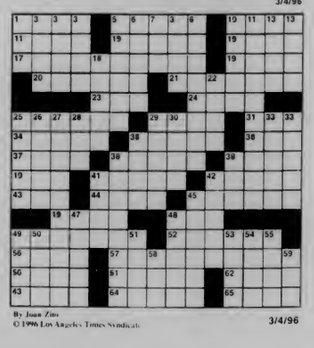
ACROSS
1 Viva voce
5 Circumvent
10 Catch
14 Bluster
15 Rockies' range
16 Leander's beloved
17 Gasping
19 Fencer's blade
20 Mission
21 Most uncanny
23 Prepare cherries for pie
24 Time of day, to Tennyson
25 Relating to life
29 Pokes
31 Draw upon
34 Typo
35 King of Hollywood
36 Form of "to be"
37 Unleash
38 Airplane seat
39 Conductor Akira
40 Bambi's aunt
41 Compound of metals
42 Part of BLT
43 Moon craft
44 Design
45 Rabbit and Sellers
46 Alleviate
48 Sprocket
49 Camper's light
52 Paths
56 Division word
57 Part of GI
60 And others, for short
61 Overact
62 A Robert
63 Merchandise
64 More current
65 Turgenev turndown

DOWN
1 Sphere
2 Not the usual
3 Testify
4 Shakespearean king
5 Like some food or dress
6 South African grassland
7 — crow recanted
8 Pomon
9 Corps de ballet
10 His and her
11 Contrition
12 Son of Zeus
13 Wait Whitman for one
18 Rhino's relative
22 American Beauty
25 Incline
26 Dunne who played Mama
27 Decorative
28 Young child
29 "Seinfeld" regular Alexander
30 With skill
32 Intensity
33 Hard workers
35 Desert "monster"
38 Bee venom is one
39 Dine
41 Church part
42 Started
45 Less adequate
47 Coral island
48 Mediterranean island
49 Falsehoods
50 Feed the kitty
51 Alaskan city
53 Treas. agents
54 Wriggling
55 Dagger
58 Oath
59 Holiday in Hue

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

S	H	E	E	P		S	L	A	P		T	R	A	M
S	E	R	V	O		P	A	G	O		A	E	R	O
T	A	M	E	S		A	R	E	S		L	A	N	E
S	T	A	R	S	A	N	D	S	T	R	I	P	E	S
			T	E	L			A	E	S
L	O	S	T		T	S		A	L	T	M	A	N	S
E	R	N	A		B	U	S	S		R	A	B	A	T
M	O	O	N	L	I	G	H	T	S	O	N	A	T	A
A	N	O	D	E		A	Y	I	N		S	T	E	R
N	O	T	E	V	E	R		R	E	L	E	S	K
			R	E	S			L	I	E
S	U	N	S	E	T	B	O	U	L	E	V	A	R	D
C	L	E	O		A	L	L	S		G	E	N	I	E
A	N	O	N		T	E	D	S		E	N	T	R	E
B	A	N	S		E	D	E	R		S	T	E	E	R

3/4/96



By Joan Zim
© 1996 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

3/4/96

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client ... Date: ... Taken By: ...

Date(s) to run: ... Headline: ...

Total Days: ... X Words: = ... X rate ... = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): ... Authorized signature: ...

ADVERTISING COPY

1 ... 1
2 ... 2
3 ... 3
4 ... 4
5 ... 5
6 ... 6
7 ... 7
8 ... 8
9 ... 9
10 ... 10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

Daily Horoscope

ARIES (March 21 – April 19) — Focus your attention on job and health matters. Good timing is more important than ever! You must be ready to move quickly when you see an unexpected financial opportunity.

TAURUS (April 20 – May 20) — You and another household member could be on a collision course. Both of you must stop rehashing old arguments. Spend some time alone gathering your thoughts.

GEMINI (May 21 – June 20) — The spotlight is on other people's resources. Joint monetary ventures are favored. Patch up a dispute with a potential ally. Group entertainment enjoys beneficial influences this evening.

CANCER (June 21 – July 22) — A project may not go as well as anticipated. Either your timing is off or you are expecting too much. Show some common sense; guard against scattering your energies too widely.

LEO (July 23 – Aug. 22) — Good news from afar raises your expectations regarding a trip or visitor. Choose traveling companions with care if hoping to combine business with pleasure.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 – Sept. 22) — A financial venture gets off to a brisk and promising start. Try to accomplish as much as possible before noon. The afternoon could drift away if you daydream on the job.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 – Oct. 22) — Unexpected developments may leave you baffled. Submerge yourself in creative activities. Nurturing a parent-child relationship will pay rich rewards.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 – Nov. 21) — Certain co-workers may be feeling rambunctious. They are liable to be stubborn, too. Steer clear of them as much as possible. A letter or phone message brings new hope.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 – Dec. 21) — You and a newcomer seem to speak the same language. What about forming a business partnership together? You will need to consult lawyers and accountants before formalizing the deal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 – Jan. 19) — Home or family related financial interests require your attention. Playing games in romance would be a mistake. You feel gung-ho about a secret plan.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 – Feb. 18) — Go ahead and throw yourself wholeheartedly into a new project. Your faith and energy will carry you to victory. The news from overseas may be disconcerting.

PISCES (Feb. 19 – March 20) — Forge ahead with an ambitious plan. Your efforts will provide a strong foundation for a wonderful organization. Influential people like your style and let you know it! A flexible approach helps you seize unexpected opportunities.

The First Day By Po-Han Wu

THE FIRST DAY I ATTENDED MY FIRST CLASS IN THIS HUGE SCHOOL...
MAN... THIS IS A REALLY BIG SCHOOL
THE ABBREVIATION OF THE CLASSROOM ON THE SCHEDULE WAS "CLASS", SO I TRIED TO FIND WHERE THOSE BUILDING IS.
IT ALMOST TOOK ME 30 MINUTES TO WALK TO "MOORE" SPEED
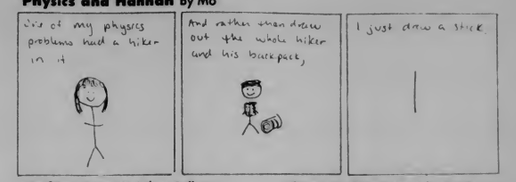
MOORE
MAP
MOORE
I ASKED WHERE THE CLASSROOM IS...
HERE IS PORTER, NOT CLASSROOM YOU WANT...
"CLASS" "MORE" "MORE" IS SERVICE CENTER!!!!

Physics and Hannah By Mo



Bastards By Matt & Greg

Loold By Roger & Salem Salloom

Sex is a big thing for most people. When they get it right... for most people it's a blast.

What about creatures who don't really have it...? Like bees.

But they can fly. All summer they cruise in and out of the gardens at 100 miles an hour.

Imagine yourself standing at the top of the roof to your house. You look at the building next to you, simply raise your arms and fly over to the trees nearby. When was the last time you looked down at the top of a tree? Absolutely lovely!

Wouldn't it be great to fly all over whenever you wanted... up into trees, over homes... just jump up into the air and soar through the blue skies... free from the shackles of an earth bound, plodding, foot existence.

Gee, what would be better than flying...?

SEX.

Close to Home By John McPherson

"That monitor can distinguish between real crying and fake crying. If it senses a fake cry, it simply filters it out."

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

EVEN IF ANYONE SEES ME, THEY'LL THINK I'M JUST DOING SOME LATE NIGHT CONSTRUCTION WORK!
NO ONE EVER BOTHERS LOOKING A THIRD-FLOOR WINDOW!
IT'S TOO EASY! NOT ENOUGH OF A CHALLENGE FOR A MAN OF MY TALENTS!

Jim's Journal By Jim

Ernie brought in a tape of his band today.
"We recorded it at our coffee-house gig," he said.
On the tape, the music was kind of muffled and there were people talking.
"That'll all come out in the mix," he said.

Kippil By Barry Deutsch

CASE, MY MOM SAYS WE SHOULD GET TO KNOW EACH OTHER BETTER
SO, AH, SO I'M FROM CONNECTICUT. WHAT ABOUT YOU?
A CARTOONIST. MAYBE ME UP.
VERY FUNNY.
I'M NOT KIDDING. THE PUNCHLINE NEVER COMES BEFORE THE FOURTH PANEL.
AND SOMETIMES NOT EVEN THEN.
DO YOU USUALLY MAKE NO SENSE AT ALL?

Dilbert By Scott Adams

TODAY WAS A BAD DAY. FIRST THE VENDING MACHINE STOLE MY MONEY...
...AND BY THE END OF THE DAY I HAD BEEN SENTENCED TO DEATH BY THE DIRECTOR OF HUMAN RESOURCES.
I'VE BECOME TOTALLY DESENSITIZED TO TRAGIC NEWS!
THE EXECUTION IS SCHEDULED FOR TOMORROW. I SHOULD CALL IN SICK.

Today's Staff

Night Editor ... Matt Audette
Copy Editor ... Tara MK Connelly
Photo Technician ... Emily Reily
Production Supervisor ... Tony Morse
Production ... Jim Ganley, Mike Troupe, Mike Krozy

Today's D.C. Menu

Berkshire

LUNCH
Hot Turkey Sandwich
Pizza
Rotini
Lentil Chili

DINNER
Glazed Chicken
Vegetable Stew
Pastabilities
Vegetable Lasagna

Franklin

LUNCH
Hamburger
Cheese Pizza
Falafel Sandwich

DINNER
Glazed Chicken
Beef Bourguignon
Bean Casserole
Grilled Ham & Cheese

Hampshire

LUNCH
Hamburger
Grilled Chicken
Barbecued Beef
Stone Willy's
Summit Subs

DINNER
Glazed Chicken
Beef Bourguignon
Stone Willy's
Summit Subs

Worcester

LUNCH
Hot Turkey Sandwich
Rotini
Lentil Chili

DINNER
Glazed Chicken
Vegetable Stew
Pastabilities
Vegetable Lasagna

Collegian Comics, so funny we forgot to laugh.

50,000 eyes will look at your ad if placed in the COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS. Now for your convenience at the Campus Center Concourse on Thursdays. Ask for our specials.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN

Top 10 By Brian Marchionni

Top 10 Signs that you've gone to a bad restaurant

10. Waiter begins to drool as you describe how you'd like your meat.
9. Large wooden troughs serve as plates.
8. All condiments freshly combed out of Matt Vautour's beard.
7. Two words: pantsless waiters.
6. Menu has many appearances of the word "scrotum."
5. You order a bottle of wine and are asked, "Chunky style or regular?"
4. Your request for the location of the restrooms is met with uncontrollable laughter.
3. Kitchen consists of one big ass microwave.
2. Sign in restroom reads, "All employees must wipe before returning to work."
1. Master chef? Poppy.

GOOD, CLEAN, WHOLESOME FUN FOR THE ENTIRE FAMILY. WHY NOT BUY A CAN TODAY!

Collegian Graphics

Where it pays to play!

Quote of the Day

"Where's my Wooooo(o)bie?

–Overheard

Sports

Tara Swartz a standout for women's gymnastics

Tara Swartz has been a standout for the women's gymnastics team throughout her three years at UMass, taking home three A-10 titles and the 1996 A-10 Gymnast of the Year honor.

By Steven Grant
Collegian Staff

Even on the most talent-laden teams, there's always at least one or two individuals who seem to stand out above the rest. Tara Swartz is a member of one of those teams, and is one of those individuals.

A junior on the Massachusetts women's gymnastics team, which is headed for the NCAA Northeast Regional Saturday, Swartz has been the University of Massachusetts' highest achieving and perhaps most consistent performer this season.

Swartz' all-around score of 39.050 against Temple is the team's season-high, and her 9.950 score on the uneven bars versus Bridgeport is a school record. Her accomplishments were recently recognized by the Atlantic 10 as it named the all-around specialist the 1996 A-10 Gymnast of the Year.

On a team that has won its first A-10 Championship and also boasts the A-10 Coach of the Year (Dave Kuzara) and an A-10 Co-Freshman of the Year (Denise Johnson), it makes it easier for Swartz to give credit to others on the squad for her receiving the award.

"I've learned over the last couple of years in gymnastics that what you do individually doesn't mean anything," Swartz said. "We all do a good job of encouraging each other, and that just makes everyone work that much harder, and makes them better. As far as the award is concerned, it's nice to know that the other coaches in the A-10 recognize you and not just the team.

"But this team almost had a full sweep. We've won every title you can win except for the floor. The coach has had a lot to do with that. Dave's really turned this team around. When you come out of club gymnastics [in high school], you're burnt out. What he's so good at is motivating his players, and making them love gymnastics again."

Like Swartz, Kuzara realizes his counterpart's feats, and maybe more importantly, why they were accomplished.

"This year Tara has really made a big jump in commitment level," he said. "And when you do that, you see the same improvements in the result level. She has been healthier, and more consistent week-in and week-out.

"She's only a junior and she already has three A-10 titles. And no one ever thought anyone would come close to Tammy Marshall's record of five."

The gymnastics career of Tara Swartz began in the third grade. Her interest was sparked after watching her brother partake in acrobatic classes. "I begged my parents until they finally let me take lessons. And they have been so supportive since."

After they realized their daughter's natural gifts, it was probably difficult not to. In sixth grade, Swartz moved to Houston for eight months where she stayed with a girl who was on her gymnastics team in the area. There she trained under the famous Bella Karolya.

Throughout junior high and high school, Swartz would go twice per day from her Leawood, Kansas home to practice which was 45 minutes away. Those eight trips for Mom added up to a total of six hours per day in the car, but Mrs. Swartz no doubt feels it was worth it.

Swartz, who has competed against such greats as Kim Zemeskal and Shannon Miller, came to UMass with teammate and fellow standout Lianne Laing.

"Lianne is definitely one of my best friends on the team," Swartz said. "We met once before we came here at a meet. And when we were both being recruited, we had a phone conversation and decided we'd come here. Everyone is friendly with one another on the team, but I've become especially close to Lianne and Denise this season."

"I think Tara has worked so hard," Laing said. "She did great in the A-10's and she picked the right meet to do so well."

"She's like my partner in crime," said Johnson of Swartz. "I'm really happy about what she's been able to do this season."

First and foremost for Swartz is for her team to win the upcoming Regionals at State College, Pa. and qualify for the NCAA Championship in Tuscaloosa, Ala. Personally though, the Regionals are nothing new to the Canada native. Last year she claimed fourth place on bars with a score of 9.750, and sixth in the all-around at 37.800.

"If we as a team win the Regionals, that would be incredible," Swartz said. "As freshmen, that was something we all kind of laughed at. But thanks to Dave, we're stronger now. And he's brought in so many talented gymnasts. Just the fact that we have a chance to go to nationals is exciting."

The Minutewomen have never won the Northeast Regional. But in a season of glorious firsts, that means absolutely nothing. This year they are seeded fifth out of seven teams in the meet. Kent St. is ranked first, although some feel the favorite is the contest's host, Penn St.

"I think we're going to win it," Kuzara said. "This is the healthiest we've been all season. No one has any idea how good we are."

"If we are to win, everyone's going to have to hit," Swartz said. "As a team we have to pull together. People have to put forth the best performances of their lives."

Unless maybe your name is Tara Swartz.

The magic is back at Friendly Fenway

Matt Vautour

BOSTON — The two huddled close to each other in the box seats along the first base-line to combat the chill of 38-degree weather. The old man picked up the fifth inning program and handed his son, teaching him to keep score. The boy held the pencil tightly in his mittened fist, listening intently to the man as he chanted each play of the 1-0 Red Sox home game.

If you aren't a sports fan, you probably wouldn't get it. "Why would anyone sit out in the cold to watch a baseball game?" the nay-sayers ask.

They don't understand the magic.

After baseball, hockey was the game of choice. Scores of little boys and girls filed excitedly out of the Green Line train that pulled up to the Fenway station every 10 minutes, skipping school much like their parents did before them.

One middle-aged man wore a homemade t-shirt to quell their fears. "Don't worry. I'm the truant officer." the magic markered letters read across the white jersey.

So, while short-sleeves and baseball caps were replaced by ski hats and down jackets, the atmosphere that had been in hibernation since October had returned to one of baseball's most historic landmarks.

From the spicy smell of the street vendor's kielbasa and sausage, to the sound of the peanut vendors rising above the mid-day traffic.

"Peeeeeanuts. Get your fresh peeeeeeanuts.."

Baseball had indeed returned to Beantown.

Nobody seems to be used to the new TV68 signs next to the NESN ones. In fact, one fan's effort to get on television was a sign that said "Go Sox. Hi TV38." (Sorry, no air time for you).

Despite the chill, several fans showed support by stripping down to their Red Sox boxers, to the delight of the rest of the bleacher bums.

Inflatable indecent dolls were banned from Fenway a few years back, but one fan smuggled one in and gave her the beach ball treatment, until a disgusted observer deflated it to the dismay of the crowd.

In-the-park food has changed considerably from hot dogs, coke and beer (don't worry, there is still

Turn to VAUTOUR, page 15

Playoffs await NBA's top teams; Bulls clear favorite

Darren Cohen on the NBA

And down the stretch they come, the Chicago Bulls are in the lead. With less than two weeks to go in the regular season, teams are starting to look at their possible first-round opponents. Led by Your Airness Michael Jordan, the Bulls are heavily favored to take this year's crown. Guess what Michael, there aren't too many teams that will disagree with you. Personally, there would be nothing better than an upset, but let's be realistic. Let's check out the probable contenders on the path to the post-season.

Eastern Conference

In: Chicago, Orlando, Indiana, New York
Will be there: Cleveland, Detroit, Atlanta
Down to the wire: Charlotte, Miami, Washington

OK, Michael & Co. are favored to conquer all but a bigger mystery will be who they will beat in the first round. Charlotte is currently holding on to the eighth and final spot by a thread. However, General Riley's Heat have been hot on their tail for the past week. Tonight, Riley's troops meet Bristow's boys in Charlotte in a game that should decide who will advance.

The Bullets, yes, the soon to be Washington Wizards, are still in the race. With seven games to go they are three games in back of the Hornets. However, the Bullets have won four in a row and seven of their last 10, so it should be interesting.

Orlando is on a roll lately, as Jon Koneack has stepped up and taken this team on his shoulders. Actually, having Shaq, Penny and Horace really hasn't hurt its chances.

Hey, what about the Knicks? As much as it hurts to say this, what about them? The Knicks have been disappointing lately as internal bickering has continued. After having shown signs of life following Don Nelson's exit, their lack of intensity is brighter than the lights of Broadway. Barring the magical return of Kiki Vandeweghe, the Knicks will still be a shooter away from a championship, or senility.

Indiana, Atlanta and Detroit round out the Eastern Conference's annual display of mediocrity. Occasionally otherwise known as the 3-6 and 4-5 games, Detroit could be fun to watch though. Indiana has been struggling and a matchup with the fiery Pistons could earn the Pacers an early exit.

Predictions

First Round: Chicago over Miami, Orlando over Atlanta, Detroit over Indiana, New York over Cleveland
Semifinals: Chicago over New York, Orlando over Detroit
Eastern Conference Champ: Chicago (unfortunately)

Western Conference

In: Seattle, San Antonio, Utah, LA Lakers and Houston
Will be there: Phoenix and Portland
Down to the wire: Sacramento and Golden State

As usual, the Western conference playoffs will be more competitive than the East. Seattle has been on a tear lately, winning nine of its last 10. But ... as most

Turn to NBA, page 15

Who's coming, going in college hoops

Casey Kane on College Basketball

Now that March Madness has come and gone, the focus of college basketball has switched to two questions. Where are the recruits going, and are the top players staying?

While close to home the debate continues over whether or not Marcus Camby will go pro or stay for his senior season at Massachusetts, reports have been coming out of Winston-Salem, N.C. that standout Tim Duncan will probably stay for his final season at Wake Forest.

Duncan and Camby provided one heck of the great matchups in the college game last season, and everyone argued as to whom would be the better player. Duncan was consistently good all season long, but Camby was stellar, rarely ever going away with almost every Player of the Year award in existence.

And now the arguments continue. Will they stay? Will they declare? Who will get drafted first?

Demon Deacons head coach Dave Odom, who recently signed a contract extension for undisclosed amounts, seems optimistic that he will be able to coach the center for another year.

"I told him of my decision [to sign the extension] and he was pleased. In my opinion he wants to stay at Wake Forest through graduation," Odom said.

Odom said that although the decision was completely up to Duncan, he offered three reasons for the junior to stay: graduation, the chance to be academically set for the rest of his life, and the opportunity to be better prepared for the NBA. Odom also stated that Duncan has asked about next year's team and recruits. Shon Coleman and Loren Woods.

Duncan is a 6-foot-11-inch center who averaged 19.1 points-per-game and 12.3 rebounds-per-game this year. His 378 career blocks puts him eighth on the NCAA all-time list.

He will probably delay his decision until May 12, the final day to declare for the draft. But regardless, he will attend one session of summer school.

• Louisville center Samaki Walker has declared eligibility for the NBA draft. The 6-foot-9 inch sophomore averaged 15.1 ppg and 7.5 rpg for the Cardinals. Louisville lost to Wake Forest in the Midwest Regional semifinals, and finished with a 22-12 record.

Russell Fishkind, a sports agent, has announced that Walker has signed to be represented by he and his partner Erik Rudolph.

• Signing his started once again in the wonderful world of recruiting. Coaches have had their one weekend of rest, and must now run around like crazy to secure the best talent in the nation in order to prepare for next year.

The nation's best blue-chipper, 6-foot-6-inch guard Kobe Bryant, is believed to be heading in one of two directions: La Salle or the pros.

Bryant seems poised to enter the draft, and could have an even bigger impact on the NBA than current rookie Kevin Garnett did. Garnett has advised Bryant to go to college for at least a year or two.

La Salle has a factor that no NBA team has, and it's name is Jellybean. Jellybean Bryant, Kobe's father, is an assistant coach for the Explorers, and has been a force behind the recruiting. Almost everyone at La Salle is hoping Bryant doesn't pull a Garnett, especially coach Speedy Morris, who could say sayonara to Philly if Bryant doesn't commit.

Bryant was involved in a small incident recently with Wake Forest recruit Coleman, although there was no wrong- doing on Bryant's part. Coleman's girlfriend apparently gave her phone number to Bryant, and Coleman punched out the window of a bus in response.

• The nation's No. 2 recruit, Tim Thomas, a 6-foot-10- inch forward, has added a sixth school to his list of possibilities. North Carolina heads a list that includes Villanova, Seton Hall, Rutgers, Kentucky and newcomer Georgia Tech. The number could go up to seven, as UMass is rumored to be back in the running for the highly-sought- after blue chipper.

• Jermaine O'Neal, a 6-foot-11-inch center/forward,

Turn to KANE, page 15

New lead-off hitter Gator carries Sox

Fred Hurlbrink Jr. on Baseball

You couldn't feel your toes. You could see your breath. Yes, it was a great day for baseball in Boston Tuesday as the Red Sox opened Fenway for the Summer of '96 with a 9-1 thrashing of the lowly Minnesota Twins.

Everything went the Olde Towne Team's way on this blustering, cold afternoon. Mike Greenwell — whose performance coaxed Dan Shaughnessy of the Boston Globe, a constant Greenwell basher, to get off his back, almost — got an outfield assist, throwing out rookie Matt Lawton at second base, playing the Monster perfectly. The Gator sparked the Sox' offense as well, going 3-for-5 accounting for five of Boston's nine runs with three RBI and two runs scored.

Greenwell has six hits in 10 trips since being moved to the lead-off spot, and yesterday showed that nobody in the league plays the wall in Fenway better. I don't care what anyone says, you gotta love Greenwell.

• In terms of unusual names, the Colorado Rockies are the Georgetown basketball team of the major leagues. While the Hoyas put names on the floor like Boubacar Aw, Jahidi White and Cheikh Ya-Ya Dia, Don Baylor also has some interesting options for his lineup card: Quentin McCracken (OF), Jayhawk Owens (C) and Trenidad Hubbard (OF). Look for the Rockies to make a trade with the Expos for Omar Daal (P), Mark Grudzielanek (SS) and F.P. Santangelo (IF), or maybe they'll try a swap for young Toronto infielders. Tilson Brito and Felipe Crespo. Holy mouthfuls.

• Brain Buchanan's 1. Name the two former outfielders known as the "Gold-dust Twins." 2. Name the last three pitchers to win the MVP award (Hint: all three in the American League). Answers later in this column.

• John Olerud, he's pretty good, right? Sure. He had one really great season while the Blue Jays were in their glory days in the early '90s. Now, he can be relied upon to hit around .300 and provide occasional power and decent defense. That's decent. That makes him worth about, oh say $6.5 million, right?

Are you serious???

You aren't suffering from spontaneous dyslexia, or anything like that. No, Olerud is in fact guaranteed $6.5 million for the '96 season, making him the ninth highest paid player in the majors. He's tied with teammate Joe Carter (not ridiculous these days) and Atlanta ace Greg Maddux (can't question his salary).

As a matter of fact, Olerud is the first baseman on my First Annual All-Overpaid Team. Here's a look: (1B) Olerud; (2B) Robby Thompson, $4.96 million; (SS) Robin Ventura, $5.98 million; (SS) Jay Bell, $4.7 million; (LF) Darren Daulton $5.25 million; (CF) Lenny Dykstra, $6.2 million; (RF) Paul O'Neill, $5.3 million; (C) Chris Hoiles, $3.35 million; (DH) Ruben Sierra, $6.2 million; (RHP) Dong Drabek, $5.05 million; (LHP) Kenny Rogers, $5 million; (RP) Todd Worrell, $4 million.

Yeah, that's a pretty good team, but are they worth over $60 million all together, without a bench?

No.

On the other hand, there actually are players around the league who don't make quite enough money to put a dent in the national debt. Here are some of the most underpaid players in the game on my Bargain Basement squad: (1B) J.T. Snow, $700,000; (2B) Bret Boone, $725,000; (3B) Chipper Jones, $750,000; (SS) Orlando Miller, $205,000; (LF) Ryan Klesko, $315,000; (CF) Jim Edmonds, $550,000; (RF) Troy O'Leary, $240,000; (C) Javier Lopez, $290,000; (DH) Harold Baines, $1.15 million; (SP) Hideo Nomo $600,000; (RP) Jose Mesa $925,000.

It's completely ridiculous how much major league baseball players make these days, obviously. There are 101 players this year making at least $3 million. You could buy

Turn to BASEBALL, page 15

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CV Issue 111 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Friday, April 12, 1996

Mr. Bulger goes to Amherst

President Bulger will come to campus today to sign his new book, While the Music Lasts. Take a look at the Collegian review. (See Arts & Living, page 6).

Minutemen on a Hen-hunt

The UMass men's lacrosse team will face Delaware, where assistant coach Chris Burdick (left) coached last year.

WORLD

Airport fire kills 16

DUESSELDORF, Germany — Fire broke out in a flower shop at the Duesseldorf airport on Thursday, killing at least 16 people and injuring 100, police said.

Most of the dead were found in a waiting lounge for Air France, but others were discovered in an elevator and a restroom, said Franz-Josef Kniola, state interior minister for North Rhine-Westphalia.

The dead included a 24-year-old police officer assigned to the terminal, but officials said few of the other victims had been identified.

Most of the deaths were caused by inhaling poisonous fumes. The fire appeared to have started in the terminal's first-floor ceiling, and police said they had not ruled out repair work at the ground-floor flower shop as a cause.

Seventy-one-year-old Guenther Marocke of Kleve said he saw flames burst through the ceiling at about 4 p.m., and pointed them out to workers.

"All of a sudden, people started calling, 'Fire! Everybody out!' Then a dark cloud shot along the ceiling," he said. Panic broke out as the fire spread through the arrivals hall, and officials evacuated the terminal and closed the airport to incoming and outgoing flights. It was not expected to reopen until midday Friday.

CAMPUS

Cost of UMass to climb only slightly

BOSTON — The cost of getting an undergraduate education at the University of Massachusetts will rise only slightly in the 1996-1997 school year.

The university trustees voted Thursday to keep tuition the same at the Amherst, Boston, and Dartmouth and Lowell campuses, while raising fees less than the inflation rate.

The total cost of attending UMass-Amherst would rise $10 to $5,524. The price of UMass-Boston would go up $54 to $4,454. UMass-Dartmouth would increase in cost by $121 to $4,243. Tuition and fees at the Lowell campus would remain $4,606.

UMass President William M. Bulger said a UMass education would continue to be affordable.

"There is universal agreement that cost should not be an insurmountable barrier for those who seek top-quality higher education," he said.

John Okray, a student trustee from UMass-Boston, cast the only dissenting vote. He called for costs to be reduced as they were at state colleges and community colleges.

"I think the University should really be going down that same path," he said.

Okray said that, while the University ranks high in cost among state universities around the country, it doesn't provide a similarly high quality of education.

"I think that students should get what they're paying for and they're not getting what they're paying for," he said.

WEEKEND FORECAST

Today	Tomorrow	Sunday
HIGH: 50 LOW: 45	HIGH: 53 LOW: 48	HIGH: 50 LOW: 40

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 8
Comics .....page 9
Crossword .....page 8
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 2
News .....page 3
Sports .....page 10

Number to be retired in Menton's honor

By Fred Hurlbrink, Jr.
Collegian Staff

It's not every day that an athlete is honored by having his/her number retired; it's even less frequent in the sport of water polo.

Then again, it's not every day that you meet a man like Greg Menton.

"He never just thought about himself; he was always there for us," UMass swimming/diving and water polo coach Russ Yarworth said. "I think this can be a positive celebration of his life."

Menton, who tragically died after collapsing at a swim meet at Dartmouth (N.H.) College, will be honored in a ceremony open to the public to retire his water polo No. 6. It will be held tomorrow at noon at Joseph R. Rogers pool in Boyden Gym.

Dan Sheridan, head water polo coach at Villanova University and Director of the U.S. Collegiate Water Polo Association will be presenting Menton's family with an honorary All-American certificate also.

Menton's parents, grandmother and other family and friends will be flown in from Oregon tonight for the ceremony that will honor one of the most successful athletes in UMass history.

"Greg was a significant and important part of UMass aquatics," Yarworth said. "He made a large commitment to the university, and the University made the same type of commitment to him. That we can do this tribute in his honor is tremendous."

Menton was, in fact, an enormous part of both the water polo and swimming/diving teams under Yartworth. In his three years at UMass, Menton helped to lead the water polo team to three straight Eastern Championships and three consecutive NCAA tournament appearances, reaching the Final Four this past season.

One of the best swimmers in Massachusetts history, Menton holds three varsity records along with various other team relay marks.

Menton, in addition to his athletic prowess which earned him the first ever full UMass aquatics scholarship, was an exceptional student. Accordingly, Menton's parents will be awarded an honorary degree in a private ceremony at the Chancellor's house. Menton was a sports management major.

On top of his contributions to UMass athletics, and his commitment to excellence in the classroom, Menton was tremendously respected by coach, players and friends alike as simply a great person.

"Greg was a sweet, sincere young man. It always felt good to be around him," Yarworth said. "He knew how to live. He died too young, but he packed a lot of living in those 20 years."

Senior swimmer and tri-captain Dave LaPorte said, "He loved what he did. Everytime he was in a race he gave it 100 percent. He was so intense."

The whole aquatics department hopes that this ceremony will serve as a positive reminder of what Greg Menton meant to the University of Massachusetts, to the athletic department, to the community and to everyone he came in contact with.

Greg Menton

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Spring Slam!
Chris Tattrie, a Junior HRTA major, skies for a jam yesterday afternoon in Southwest.

Faculty senate praises Calipari, Minutemen

By Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts 1995-1996 men's basketball team received a standing ovation as it entered the Faculty Senate meeting yesterday at Herter Hall.

The rules were suspended in order for the Secretary of the Faculty Senate John Bracey to congratulate the team and read a motion submitted by the Rules Committee and Senator Thelwell.

"This is one of the wonderful privileges of the faculty senate," said Bracey as he welcomed the team and introduced a Refuse to Lose highlight film which showcased the players and coach John Calipari during the season.

The basketball team took the stage along with the coaching staff. Bracey then read the motion.

"The Senate is pleased to record the campus community's collective joy and pleasure at the unusual combination of athletic skill, physical endurance and tactical brilliance so consistently demonstrated this season by the 1995-1996 men's basketball team."

The motion moved that the Faculty Senate extend its congratulations to the team for its outstanding performances in reaching the Final Four for the first time in the program's history, that the Senate also congratulate and express its gratitude to coach John Calipari and the entire coaching staff, and that the above sentiments be presented to the basketball program in a permanent form to be displayed.

The motion passed unanimously.

Calipari addressed the audience and his team as a whole for the first time since the "Final Four."

"I hope that everyone is prouder of these young men when they're off the floor," Calipari said. "They care for one another and the character of this team is incredible. We are just regular people trying to do special things."

Calipari thanked the University for its support.

"Our campus is about inclusion, not exclusion."

Calipari added, "I may never have an opportunity to coach another group like this ever again and it's because they are all good people."

Senior Rigoberto Nunez spoke on behalf of the team and staff.

"It is not about what I came here [UMass] with, it is about what I am leaving with," Nunez said. "Coach Cal and the staff have taught all of us life skills."

The basketball team then exited to a standing ovation.

"People across the entire commonwealth of Massachusetts are proud of the team," Chancellor David K. Scott said. "They are a very bright star here at the University."

Scott also said that the Polymer Research Center was another bright star at the University noting that one-third of all UMass athletic teams rank in the top one-third of their league while one-third of the academic departments rank in the top one-third of schools nationally.

Bracey addressed two issues concerning athletic programs.

"I will be presenting a series of recommendations with the athletic council concerning scheduling for student-athletes," Bracey said. "Because of their schedules they are unable to get into many classes, we will be making recommendations for considerations for these young, talented people who are bringing resources into the University."

Bracey also said that it is necessary to raise the number of faculty members in the athletic council in order to also raise the relationship of academics and athletics.

7-year-old girl dies in flight attempt

By Jon Sarche
Associated Press

CHEYENNE, Wyo. — A 7-year-old girl who hoped to become the youngest person to fly cross-country was killed Thursday when her small plane nose-dived to the ground "like a dart" soon after taking off in driving rain and snow. Her father and her flight instructor also died.

Jessica Dubroff, who used a red booster seat and extenders so her legs could reach the control pedals, spoke to her mother by telephone even as she revved the engine on the runway.

Lisa Blair Hathaway said she heard no word of problems as the three began to take off and ended the communication.

"I beg people to let children fly if they want to fly," a teary-eyed Hathaway said before flying from Boston to Wyoming to claim her daughter's body. She had flown ahead to Massachusetts to await the arrival of Jessica and her ex-husband.

"Clearly I would warn all my children to die in a state of joy. I mean, what more could I ask for? I would prefer it was not at age 7 but, God, she went with her joy and her passion, and her life was in her hands," Hathaway said.

Jessica, her father, Lloyd Dubroff, and flight instructor Joe Reid began their journey Wednesday morning in Half Moon Bay, Calif., and spent the night in Cheyenne. They planned to arrive Friday in Falmouth, Mass.

The Cessna 177B owned by Reid crashed about one mile north of the Cheyenne Municipal Airport, narrowly missing houses and cars. Its tail section came to a rest just 25 feet from one home's garage.

"I kept thinking, 'Please! Please get some altitude!'" said Tom Johnson, a 15-year pilot who saw the plane fall. "It just went right into the ground. I knew no one survived. It would have been impossible."

Johnson, whose office is about a half-block from the crash site, said he spotted the plane shortly after takeoff and it appeared the pilot was trying to return to the airport. He said the plane never got higher than 400 feet.

"It stalled over my building, winged over and went straight into the ground like a dart," he said.

Hours after the crash, the Federal Aviation Administration said it would review rules that govern when a pilot can allow an unlicensed passenger to fly the plane.

Youngsters have to be at least 16 to solo at the controls of an airplane. But children of any age can fly alongside a licensed pilot, who may let them operate the controls if he feels it is safe.

Shortly before takeoff, Jessica told a reporter for Cheyenne television station KKTU she thought about one thing when flying: crashing. But she said she did not worry about it.

Jessica lived with her mother, a 9-year-old brother, Joshua, and a 3-year-old sister, Jasmine, in Pescadero, a rural community about 40 miles south of San Francisco. Lloyd Dubroff lived with his second wife in San Mateo.

The children were schooled at home, learning to read, write and do arithmetic through such activities as flying, riding horses and even helping rebuild a house.

On Tuesday, Lloyd Dubroff said he was inspired by another young girl's cross-country flight several years ago, and when Jessica expressed an interest in flying a year ago, he asked her if she would like to try such a flight. She agreed. "I'm the culprit," Dubroff said.

After landing in Cheyenne late Wednesday, Jessica was excited. "It's been a long day," she said. "I enjoyed it. I can't wait until the next day. I can't wait to sleep. I had two hours of sleep last night."

The plane took off at 8:25 a.m. - just minutes after a thunderstorm hit the area, accompanied by heavy rain, snow and winds gusting to 32 mph.

Surface visibility was about five miles and the temperature was 38 degrees, "right on the edge of icing being a problem," said Cheyenne Airport Manager Jerry Olson.

Olson said he did not know whether flight controllers had given the plane clearance to take off, but he said there are apparently no regulations that would have allowed them to keep the girl on the ground.

The 4-foot-2, brown-haired Jessica was so short she needed extenders on the plane's pedals to reach them.

Unabomber suspect's past being investigated by FBI

By Michael J. Sniffen
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Within months of the first Unabomb explosion in a Chicago suburb, Theodore Kaczynski was fired by his brother for harassing a female supervisor at a factory where they worked in a different suburb, sources close to the investigation say. FBI agents followed up the story of the brief, failed relationship to help complete their picture of the reclusive former math professor who is now suspected of the Unabomber's 18 years of attacks, a law enforcement official said Thursday.

The firing followed a difficult breakup between Kaczynski and the woman, one source said.

But the breakup and dismissal came after the first Unabomber attack May 26, 1978 - elsewhere in the Chicago suburbs, according to the law enforcement official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The Kaczynski family told the FBI earlier this year about the episode at a foam-cutting factory, and federal agents interviewed the woman involved, the official said.

"This was followed up to get a complete picture of the subject and not necessarily because it went to motive, because the breakup took place after the first bombing," the official said. Such personal information, even if never introduced in court, can be useful in questioning a subject later or in anticipating his actions.

Meantime Thursday, Attorney General Janet Reno picked Robert J. Cleary, a federal prosecutor from New Jersey to lead the government's team to investigate and prosecute the Unabomber. Justice spokesman Carl Stern said Cleary would be the lead prosecutor "wherever Unabomber charges are brought." But Stern said the choice does not indicate any decision on where the first federal charges in the case will be filed. Sacramento and northern New Jersey are the leading candidates because federal death penalty cases could be brought in either place for 1995 and 1994 deaths in Unabomb blasts, Justice officials have said.

Kaczynski, 53, was arrested a week ago at his remote cabin near Lincoln, Mont., and is being held on a single count of possessing bomb components. He has not been charged with any of the 16 Unabomber attacks that killed three people and injured 23 in nine states.

The FBI began focusing on Kaczynski after his brother last year contacted an investigator about writings found in the family home that resembled anti-technology tracts written by the Unabomber. Reno also spoke out against leaks to the news media and prepared a memo to remind Justice Department employees of the rules against disclosing evidence during investigations.

Leaking "confuses issues, it creates problems. And so I think it's very important that the evidence not be discussed," she told her weekly news conference. "I have talked with the FBI about the need to ensure that... matters not be discussed in public." Late last week, FBI Director Louis Freeh sent a teletype to all bureau field offices reiterating the rules against leaks, officials said Thursday.

For Your Information

PYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Friday, April 12

[illegible] — The Alliance Christian [illegible]ship presents: "Evangelism — How to Share Your Faith With Friends and Classmates." Come at 7 p.m. for a night of songs, skits and entertainment. Room number will be posted by the elevator in the Campus Center. For more information, please contact Mark or Julia at [illegible].

[illegible] — A Community Action [illegible] entitled: "Isn't it about time [illegible] religion and spirituality are [illegible] in our understanding of [illegible] Multiculturalism?" will be held in [illegible] 162 175 of the Campus [illegible] from 3-5 p.m.

[illegible] — The Campus Crusade [illegible] Christ's weekly meeting, "Breakaway," will be off-campus this [illegible]. For directions call Cheri Lisko [illegible].

Saturday, April 13

[illegible] — There will be a free [illegible] nation workshop open to the [illegible] "Population, Health and [illegible]onment" from 9 a.m. – 2 [illegible] 162 Seelye Hall at Smith [illegible] For more information call [illegible] at 268-9212 or Claire [illegible] at 584-2190.

[illegible] — The Amherst Family [illegible] and have its 10th Annual Tag [illegible] 9 a.m. to noon at the [illegible] sale features children's [illegible] toys priced from $.50 to [illegible] and a bake sale. The sale will [illegible] rain or shine. All proceeds [illegible] Center. For more informa[illegible] 549-4969.

[illegible] — For Waterwatch [illegible] clean-up of Sylvan [illegible] at McNamara Residence [illegible] 2:45 p.m. Food and goodies [illegible] provided. For more informa[illegible] 545-0199.

[illegible] — ARISE for [illegible] will hold a spring tag [illegible] drive today and tomor[illegible] 9 a.m. – 3 p.m. at 718 [illegible] Springfield. Please bring [illegible] bottles and browse [illegible]. For more information, [illegible] 548.

Notices

[illegible] — The [illegible] Social Services and the [illegible] Volunteer Network invite [illegible] attend a citizenship prepara[illegible]ship where we will help [illegible] prepare their citizenship [illegible] Application assistance [illegible] provided free of charge on April 27 from 9 a.m. – 4 [illegible] Springfield Technical [illegible] College. Pre-registration [illegible] by April 12. For more information, call Lutheran Social Services at (413) 787-0725.

Book donation — The Amherst League of Women Voters will be accepting donations of used books until April 28, in preparation for the 49th Annual Book Sale. Trunks and boxes for donations will be placed outside Stop & Shop in Hadley and inside Victory Market in Amherst, as well as the Jones Library and North and South Amherst Libraries. Books may also be brought to the sorting and pricing site at the corner of Main and High Streets in Amherst. Books should be free from mildew, magazines are not wanted. For more information, call Harriet Shapiro at 549-5439.

Volunteer — WFCR 88.5 FM seeks volunteers to participate in its spring fundraising, to staff WFCR's pledge room during its upcoming on-air fund drive, scheduled to begin April 13. Volunteers are provided with training, refreshments, free parking and the opportunity to join fellow WFCR members and listeners in providing support for public radio. For more information call Karin Obermeier at 545-1684 or (800) 639-8850.

Financial Aid — Reminder: Summer Financial Aid Applications must be returned to Financial Aid Services by April 15. Due to limited funds, late applications cannot be considered. Federal Work-Study and Federal Direct Loans are available. Financial Aid Applications for summer are available in the Office of Financial Aid Services, 255 Whitmore.

Study Group — Spring Miracles: Join an ongoing study group focusing on the text of A Course in Miracles, every Tuesday from 7:30 – 9 p.m. Group continues until June 25. Free of charge. Call 252-2902 for more information.

Summer Opportunities — Musiker Tours and Summer Discovery are looking for counsellors for our student travel programs and our pre-college enrichment programs. Applicants must be 21 years old by June 15, 1996. We need mature, hardworking, energetic individuals who can dedicate 4-7 weeks this summer working with teenagers. One of our tour directors will be interviewing at UMass on Tuesday, April 16. For more information or an application, please call our office in New York at (516) 621-0718.

Grounds treatment — The Physical Plant Grounds Department will have licensed personnel applying a spring treatment of 15-5-5 Turf Pro fertilizer weed and feed trimec April 13-15, weather permitting. Treated areas will be posted for a period of 72 hours. This material is applied in a granular form which precludes any one or any animal from coming in contact with the herbicide portion of the formula, which is classified as Category III — a classification merely requiring caution in their use.

Course selection — The Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures would like to inform the student body that despite the Provost's ongoing Academic Program Review, courses previously offered to both majors and non-majors will still be available for the foreseeable future. All courses will be taught in English; no Russian required. For further information call the Slavic Department at 545-2052 or visit the office at 438 Herter.

Blood Drives — The American Red Cross will be holding blood drives in Hampshire County at the following locations on the dates and times listed: Robert Crown Center at Hampshire College (April 16 — 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.); Dickinson Hall at UMass (April 23 — 2 to 8 p.m.); Campus Center front room at Amherst College (April 23 — 1 to 7 p.m. and April 24 — 1 to 7 p.m.); 101 Campus Center at UMass (April 25 — 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.); and Cape Cod Lounge at UMass (April 30 — 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.)

Employment — TA positions are available at the Graduate Employee Organization. GEO is accepting applications for the following positions: Organizer/Contract Administrator, Political Advocate, Database Coordinator. You must be a graduate student and committed to organizing GEO into a stronger Union. Positions will start in Fall '96 semester and last through the academic year. Please come to the GEO office at 201 Student Union for more information about these positions or to fill out an application packet. Call 545- 0705 for more information. Deadline for applications is 5 p.m. April 19.

Running — Registration for "Run for Newman" will be available everyday in the Newman Center front office, from Tuesday through Thursday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Newman Center cafeteria and from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Campus Center. The cost is $5 for pre-registration. Free t- shirts will be awarded. For more information, call the Newman Center at 549-0300.

Southwest Week — The following are needed for Southwest Week, held from May 6 to 11: Basketball players for a 3-on-3 tournament; volleyball players for a 4-on-4 tournament; and D.J.s, M.C.s, fashion designers and amateur talents and comedians for various contests. cash prizes will be awarded. The sign-up deadline is April 18. For more information call 545-0960.

Haigis Hoopla Registration — The deadline to enter the New Balance Haigis Hoopla VI, the annual 3-on-3 basketball festival scheduled for April 20-21 on the Haigis Mall is Friday, April 12 at 4 p.m. A Haigis Hoopla registration table will be in the Campus Center from now through April 12, Monday-Friday, 10 a.m. – 4 p.m. No registrations will be accepted after April 12.

Charity — A food and clothes drive is going on now. Boxes are located in Holdsworth, Whitmore, New Africa House, Chenoweth and Goessman. For more information, call the Hunger and Homelessness campaign at MASSPIRG at 545-0199.

Volunteers — STARS, Student Alumni Relations Society needs students who are graduating in 1996, who want to plan events for the Senior Class and/or work on the Senior Campaign. If you are interested please contact Ann Thompson in Memorial Hall at 545-2317.

Workshop — The Arts Extension Service presents a free series of workshops for early career artists in all disciplines. These workshops will offer practical information and confidence building insight about promotion, legal rights, writing funding proposals and other topics. The series will take place on Wednesday April 17 from 4 - 6:30 p.m. in room 206 Bartlett. A fourth workshop, Careers in Arts Administration, on April 24 discusses job opportunities in the fields of arts administration. Seating is limited, please contact the Arts Extension Office at 545-2560 to ensure your seat.

Dance — New beginner classes in Cajun dancing and Appalachian clogging are offered Sunday evenings from 6-7 p.m. Cajun is a style of dance from Louisiana with arm movements similar to those used in the Texas two-step. Clog dancing is a traditional American folk dance that originated in the 1800's in the Appalachian Mountains. Partners are not needed and all ages are welcome. No prior dance experience is necessary. Classes are instructed by Maple Run, a non- profit dance group that performs at fairs and community functions. The classes are held at Betty Champion's Dance Studio, 132 Elm Street, Westfield. For more information, contact Jo Sarnelli at (413) 746-9067.

Prof. discusses book merging text, image

By Maureen Rozanski
Collegian Staff

Susan Jahoda, a professor in the University of Massachusetts art department, held a panel discussion entitled, Frictional Contacts and Other Stories, in the Campus Center on Wednesday.

Frictional Contacts and Other Stories is the name of Jahoda's current work in progress — a book she has been working on for six months. The book is an image and text book in which images are computer-generated and situated around the text. It consists of poems and narratives that are used as references for her images.

Jahoda has a background in photography, writing and print making, and has been practicing art for the past 20 years. Jahoda claimed that most of what she does is "interdisciplinary work," as it links conceptual knowledge from other theories, with her own work.

"My work focuses on how images produce multiple and diverse meanings and how they are resisted by female bodies," Jahoda said. Two underlying themes in her current work include descriptions of insanity and an attempt to situate Holocaust histories in context with other social processes.

Much of Jahoda's work is derived from other historical contexts, and involves "natural representation and chronologies." Jahoda said that her work ties in a "relationship between personal and political theories."

Jahoda has completed five pieces in her book and is now starting to work on the imagery aspect. Commenting on integrating images and text, Jahoda said, "I'm very interested in images and text so they can function as parallel texts."

Jahoda feels that the images she integrates with the text disrupt the narrative in a parallel way. "I'm really interested in dislocation and displacement."

"I always work form an autobiographical place," she said on her inspiration to create and produce text with artistry. She said that in producing, she has asked questions such as, "What are the conditions of existence producing the piece?"

As a visual artist though, Jahoda said she has "become increasingly frustrated for venues in showing my work," as there are "levels of complexity" with the visuals she envisions and how she can convey their message to others.

In her presentation, Jahoda used a slide presentation consisting of images and photos from her book. Later she read two pieces from "Frictional Contacts and Other Stories" entitled, "The Dancing Lesson" and "Spring Flowers."

Currently on sabbatical for the semester, Jahoda said the time has "enabled me to move ahead with my project." Jahoda will be returning to the art department in the near future.

Her discussion was sponsored by the Women's Studies program as part of their "Lunch-Time Lecture Series."

Attention! Attention!
All Collegian Staff...

Meeting for all staff members next Thursday, April 18th, at 6:00pm.

Please contact your Department Heads for details.

Joan Osborne
Pre-Concert Party
Monday April 15th

Win Free Tickets to the concert! (We've Got A lot)

TODAY'S 99.3 MODERN ROCK WHMP-FM

Prizes from Cider Jack!

5-7pm
Packards in Northampton

Cash to be required for computer lab stickers & OIT accounts

By Melanie B. Arruda
Collegian Staff

The Office of Information Technology (OIT) began collecting cash payments for the OIT computer use fee on April 8.

Anyone who gets a new account or PC Classroom sticker on or after April 8, will have to pay for the account with cash or check in Lederle lowrise A118, according to Director of OIT Computing Administration Duncan Chesley. For any client interested in obtaining a summer PC Classroom sticker, it can obtained on May 1, Chesley added.

A client who gets a new account during April must pay $20 to use the account for April and May, he said.

If the client wishes to use the account during the summer from June 3 to Sept. 3, they will pay an additional $20 at the start of their new account, Chesley said. At the time of creation, the total will be $40.

After May 1, a client can create an account to use in May and in the summer for $20, Chesley said.

Anyone who wants to use an existing account during the summer should pay the $20 fee in A118 after May 1 and before May 31, he said.

The summer policy was implemented because the Bursar did not have any way of billing students who were not paying tuition during summertime, Duncan said.

OITVMS, OITUNIX and UMAccess accounts that have not been paid for summer use by May 31 will be turned off on June 3, Chesley said. All accounts will be turned on again on Sept. 3, he said.

If your account gets turned off, you don't have to come to OIT nor will your files be lost, according to Chesley.

Although your password will not be changed, you must remember it, he added. You will be billed for the fall fee through the Bursar, he said.

In the past, accounts used to be shut off and passwords changed, an operator of OIT Help Desk Chuck Lyman said.

If you decide after May 31 to use your account you must come to Lederle A118 with your ID in order to pay the fee, Chesley said.

Chesley urges that anyone who doesn't plan to use their account for the summer, to unsubscribe from their listserves.

"If they [students] don't unsubscribe from listserves, then their mailbox will be filled up," Lyman said.

Unattended listserves also decreases performance for those clients that are still using the system during summer, Chesley said. Approximately 5,000 students, faculty and staff use the OIT system during summer versus a total of 12,000 during a semester, Duncan said.

It uses up a lot of our disk space, Lyman said.

DIANE WO / COLLEGIAN

Steven Kim (left), a Freshman Computer System Engineering major, consults Tom Mahaney on his OIT account yesterday in the LGRC.

Countdown to the '96 Presidential Primaries

ELECTION '96

WASHINGTON (AP) — And then there were two.

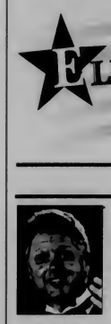
Breaking clear in a contest once crowded and tangled, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole has secured the Republican presidential nomination and won the right to engage President Clinton in the fall.

Neither man at this point has a comprehensive platform. But what they do have, after Clinton's three years in the White House and Dole's 27 years in the Senate, are records. And since January they've answered questions on a variety of subjects put to them by The Associated Press.

Here are their answers, plus summaries of their words and actions on a variety of issues. Positions may change, and Ross Perot may yet jump in again to mix everything up.

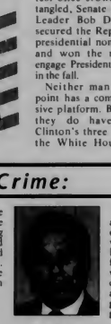
But as of now, this is where they stand and what they've said.

Crime:



Bill Clinton

Won $30 billion package providing for 100,000 more police officers, imprisoning criminals for life on third felony, building prisons and more. Stiffened gun control. Proposals for more police powers and anti-terrorism steps mired in House.



Bob Dole

Favors more spending for prisons and for juvenile boot camps, and prosecuting youths as adults when charged with murder or a third violent felony. Favors allowing evidence to be used from criminal searches conducted without warrants, but with "just cause." Favors limits on death row appeals and tougher penalties for illegal firearm possession. Opposes most gun controls.

Collegian Graphics:
We built this paper on rock & roll.

UM publication program expands

Grant allows Mass. writing project to extend to public schools

By Raghuram Vadarevu
Collegian Correspondent

The Western Massachusetts Writing Project (WMWP) based at the University of Massachusetts campus is set to expand its writing for a publication program for the public schools of Western Massachusetts.

The publication program is set to branch out from its present use in the Springfield public schools to other school systems in Western Mass. The expansion was made possible through a $15,000 grant from the Massachusetts Department of Higher Education.

According to Charles Moran of the UMass English department and co-director of WMWP, the expansion plan was proposed because a number of schools outside the Springfield system expressed interest in the publication program.

The publication program has been successful because students write better when they know their writing will appear in a publication, Moran said.

"The program is revolutionary," Moran said. "The new curriculum gives the students a purpose in their writing and gives them real world experience."

The plan will involve 15 teachers from Springfield who will be trained by the WMWP to be consultants for schools interested in applying the publication program in their system.

The consultant teachers will help to implement changes in the curriculum of the interested schools.

"The project [WMWP] will help teachers design the new curriculum and provide support because the teachers don't have enough time," Moran said.

The students have created many publications, including pamphlets on sexual harassment, a flip book on Greek gods and a student newspaper, Moran said.

The project is a joint effort between educators in the UMass English department and the Springfield public school system. The WMWP provides teacher training and advice for schools on the curriculum design, testing and assessment.

The WMWP publishes a newsletter and conducts a variety of programs with the teachers involved during the summer. In January, the Springfield public schools and WMWP conducted a ceremony to celebrate the students' publications.

The Daily Collegian, your low-calorie, high fiber news source, would like to wish you, our most excellent readers, a happy Patriot's Day.

The
Edwin M. Rossman
ALUMNI CAREER FORUM

Departments of Microbiology and Biochemistry & Molecular Biology

Date: Tuesday, April 16, 1996
Time: 7:30 PM
Location: Lederle Graduate Research Center Tower C, Room 1634

Sponsored by:
- Mather Career Center
- Alumni Association
- Departments of Microbiology and Biochemistry & Molecular Biology

Take this opportunity to meet with alumni and discuss their experiences in the working world. Don't miss this panel discussion!

OPEN TO ALL STUDENTS IN THE BIOSCIENCES

Alumni Panelists:

Maria Atkinson Microbiology '93	Technical Research Associate Brigham and Women's Hospital
Stephen Ellis Microbiology '93	Sequencing Coordinator Millennium Pharmaceuticals, Inc.
John McNamara Biochemistry & Molecular Biology '94	Peptide Synthesis Production Coordinator Quality Controlled Biochemicals

Wanted • Wanted • Wanted • Wanted • Wanted • Wanted •

Circulation Manager

wanted...

Circulation manager needed for Fall 1996.
For more information call Lee Weiner @ 545-3500 or stop by the Collegian.

Campus Activities at the University of Massachusetts Presents
A Weekly Program Series: Something Every Friday

Featuring:
Louisiana Native
Blues and R&B Singer
Mighty Sam McClain
Bluewall
April 12, 1996
"Get Shorty" Immediately Following Performance 8:00 pm Free

This series is made possible by a grant from Auxiliary Services and the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs.

DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967
113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Marni E. Heffner Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gurley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kuhn Advertising Production Manager Lisa Chiu Senior Diversity Editor

Tara Mc Connelly Arts & Living Editor Anna Lotto Co-Women's Issues Editor
Gregory Cormier Co-Black Affairs Editor Hannah Thorne Co-Women's Issues Editor
Humphrey Brown III Co-Black Affairs Editor Tony Morse Editorial Production Manager
Position Vacant Developing Nations Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Bob Dunn Editorial/Opinion Editor Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Lisa M. Olivieri Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor Lee Wetner Distribution Manager
Anna Feder Jewish Affairs Editor Position Vacant Classified Manager
Lisa Chiu Multicultural Affairs Editor Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Amy Paradyse News Editor Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Emily Rizzi Photography Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Candice Flemming Sports Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Sean Cahoon Staff Artist Cases Kane Librarian

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life became the student newspaper in 1906, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Daily Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967 and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1944. For advertising rates call our marketing staff at (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

The concrete jungle

Anybody who still has a shred of silly optimism in the human condition and an undying faith that people are all inherently good and just, needs to look no further than the Southwest Residential Area to have those dopey beliefs shattered. Since the University of Massachusetts defeat in the Final Four, a handful of idiots in George Washington Residence Hall have taken it upon themselves to tarnish the images of the 5,400 or so other students who live in the concrete eyesore.

Since its birth 29 years ago, over 90,000 people have called Southwest home at one time or another. The $36 million project was born at a time when this campus was growing at the rate of 1,500 students per year and desperately trying to solidify its position as the flagship campus of the UMass system. Today Southwest is easily the most densely populated area of college students in New England, if not the nation.

Dave Copeland

So it's no wonder that every once in awhile a few random jerks will pop up in the populace of Southwest. Given the fact that the average Southwest resident is 19 years old and in most cases living away from home for the first time, it should be expected that there will be some chaos every now and again.

That's one thing the University didn't take into account when the plans were drawn up for a residential area that, from a distance, takes on the appearance of five displaced cast members from a surreal porno movie having on their backs in a cow field. The University's only goal was to get as many rooms onto the 27 acres allotted for Southwest.

Naturally, when it first opened, students flocked to Southwest, not only because it was brand new, but because each room also had a telephone in it. The concept of a phone in your room was unique back then, so there was actually a waiting list to get housing in the new area.

Since that time, Southwest residents have fostered a reputation for their area that can only be considered "bad" at best. While doing research for this column in the library, a woman I spoke with said that her parents would only let her go to UMass if she promised not to live in Southwest. Now that she's been neutled comfortably in Orchard Hill for two years, she's glad that she took their advice/ ultimatum.

"The hill sucks, but at least nobody is pulling a fire alarm and making you walk down and up it again in the middle of the night," she said.

Indeed, middle-of-the-night fire alarms, sprinkler floods and heavy objects flying out of windows are nothing new to Southwest. But there have been, to say the least, incidents of reckless rebellion that have been far more creative than the current rash of broken glass and weights being flung from windows.

The legend of the cow, circa mid-1970's, has a characteristic much like this year's Final Four run by the basketball team. Twenty years from now, everybody who ever set foot on the Amherst campus will say he or she was there for that magical 1996 season. Twenty years removed from the legend of the cow, UMass-alums like to crow that they were living in Southwest when a few ingenious (albeit intoxicated) residents stole and led a cow to the roof of one of the towers.

In the 1980's, there were a handful of Southwest deaths attributed to "elevator surfing" — a sport made for ESPN2 that involved climbing onto the roofs of elevators and jumping from one car to the other. In either case, there was a far greater risk and hence, justification, in these activities than there is in the current wave of sophomoric behavior.

"Will the defendant please rise. Mr Copeland, you are being charged with grand theft–mammal. How do you plead?"

Throughout it's history, Southwest has held onto alcohol as the drug of choice. Pot and acid and a bag of 'shrooms are great, but make sure there is a steady flow of Liquors 44 Vodka and a case of Golden Anniversary in the fridge.

This alcohol use was accented by the fact that Southwest was the first residential area on campus that allowed students to keep refrigerators in their dorms. One article I read noted that today, Resident Assistants are bound to enforce the newer alcohol policies like police officers, but not too long ago, one of the RA's primary functions was to take a keg collection on Friday afternoons.

For the record, I lived in Southwest for three semesters. In certain UMass circles, comprised mainly of people who were able to have enough foresight to avoid a residential area that looks like five erections, admitting something like that is just as bad as saying that you lived in a leper colony (I've done that, too, but don't tell anybody).

But Southwest isn't that bad... yes, there are people like me who committed felonies while living there, but we won't get into that until certain statutes of limitation have run their course. The stereotype of Southwest residents being big- haired drunks is just that, a stereotype. For every asshole who wants to scream "IQA sucks" out his window at 3 a.m., there are dozens of normal people who went there with the sole intention of meeting as many people as they could.

If that's a crime, then at least, by being in Southwest, they're in the right place to commit it.

Dave Copeland is a Collegian Columnist.

A Day For Ryan

There are certain days that go by and no one really seems to notice. And I guess I don't expect them to, because they aren't popular holidays or long weekends. Sometimes a certain day will go by that might cause you to think. I mean really think about life, about death, about yourself.

Sometimes these days are significant due to the fact that a certain person was born or a certain person died. The day I am specifically referring to is April 8 and it is, in fact, a significant day that involves a person not many people know. He is a phenomenal person — one who changed my life immensely and I love telling his story.

Liana Melinnis

Ryan White was living in Kokomo, Ind., when at the age of 13, he contracted AIDS through a blood transfusion. He was denied the right to attend school and fought not only the fearful school district, but an ignorant community as well. After a bullet was fired into his home where he lived with his mother Jeanne and sister Amanda, the White family moved to Cicero, Ind. It was there that Ryan was welcomed with open arms by faculty and peers at his new school. This change allowed Ryan to live as a normal teenager, free of hatred, free of ignorance, free of fear.

Ryan's battle was one not only against AIDS, but against ignorance. His motto was, "fight the disease, not the people," but he did fight the people in his own unique way. With great courage he spoke out against the misconceptions about AIDS and called for AIDS sufferers to be treated with compassion.

"AIDS is not a dirty word," Ryan often said.

He appeared at schools and fundraisers all across the country and testified before the President's Commission on AIDS when he was 16. "I'm a normal happy teenager. I'm just one of the kids. I believe in myself, and I look forward to graduating from Hamilton Heights High School in 1991."

Ryan White, contrary to what he claimed was not just "one of the kids." He reached out to people in suffering, he answered questions most adults were too afraid to address. He was an extraordinary person who never gave up, who possessed the strength of a million men and the courage of a hero.

To millions of people around the country, Ryan is a hero and without any doubt he is mine. I've followed his story since I first heard it. I was very young, but remember finding in Ryan something I'd never found in another person. More than anything, the thing about him that moved me most was his love for life; it was this love that kept the White family going when life had nothing but pain to offer them.

On April 8, 1990 Ryan White passed away, and Monday was the six year anniversary of his death. You might think he lost his battle to the disease, but there is no one who can't call Ryan a winner. He opened the eyes of people all over the country, people like you and me, people like Michael Jackson and Elton John.

When news came of his death, I cried as though I had lost my best friend. I guess in a way, Ryan was my best friend. I never met him but strangely, I always felt a strong connection to him. "Ryan was a miracle of humanity," wrote Elton John in a tribute.

Ryan had a guardian angel nightlight that was beside his bed at all times; on April 8, 1990, that light went out, but even so, I'd like to think of Ryan as an angel, a guardian angel. Many people believe that one person can't make a difference, but Ryan White proved that just isn't true.

AIDS has quickly become an everyday part of our lives. It is something we talk about often, something we fear always. It has become the symbol of our generation. In the '60s, there was Vietnam and hippies. The '70s meant Watergate and disco. The '80s brought us AIDS and punk rock. Something is very wrong with this picture. When we ask our parents to tell us about the '60s, they talk of anti-war protests and flower power, but when our children ask us about the eighties, we'll mention The Material Girl, Pretty in Pink, the Smurfs and AIDS.

We are the AIDS generation. It all started while we were growing up and this scares me more than I could ever say. It should scare you too. It's because of this that I tell Ryan's story as often as I can, to open people up to a world they may not be familiar with, a world that is essential to learn about. So next year, on April 8, think of Ryan White, and pray that our children will someday ask us what AIDS was.

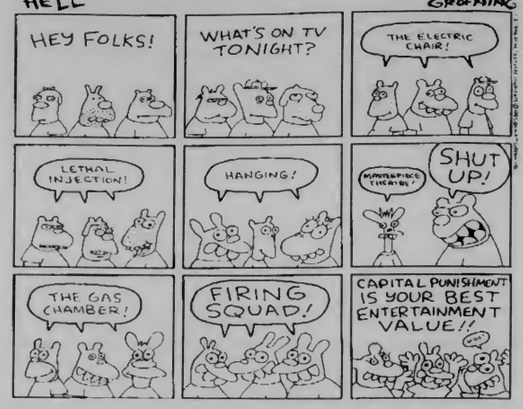
Liana Melinnis is a UMass student.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

WE'RE BACK, AND THE KOPPS IS STILL DOWNSIZING! IS THE CALLER ON THE LINE?
YEAH, MARK, I HAVE A FRIEND WHO'S BEEN TOLD BY HIS BOSS TO EITHER FIRE HIS GIRLFRIEND OR CHOOSE SOMEONE ELSE TO FIRE IN HER PLACE.
WHAT DO YOU THINK, MY FRIEND SHOULD DO?
HARD TO SAY. EITHER WAY, THE KID'S SCUM.
THAT'S WHAT I THOUGHT.
WHO YOU FIRING, DAD?

Opinion/Editorial

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian.



Who are the 'bad' men?

Why is it that every time someone points out that men objectify or commit violence against women, some man has to come out and say, "But we've got it hard, too!" Why does our pain have to compete with women's pain?

Ben Zeman

I think one reason we do this as men is because we don't want to admit we are the agents of oppression of women. We'd rather talk about how oppressed we are rather than how we oppress. I know that whenever I'm challenged on my own sexism, my first line of defense is, "I didn't mean to!" This implies that I shouldn't be blamed if my intentions were good, which ignores the experience of the target of my sexism.

Most of us "mean well" when we act out oppressive behavior, but it's experienced as oppression anyway.

There is a myth that there are "good men" and "bad men." The bad men are those who rape and beat women. The good men are us and everybody we know. It isn't our responsibility to do anything except hate these awful bad men, these monsters and threaten to kick their ass if any one of them tries anything with "our" girlfriend or sister. But we don't support sexism because we're good men.

Unfortunately, many of our well meaning actions as men support a rape culture. Many of us objectify women sexually, and in doing so often turn them into a thing, and as Catherine MacKinnon said, "When you turn a human being into a thing, violence is inevitable." Also, even in the so-called "P.C." educated '90s, many men rape women and don't call it that.

Eighty percent of those men surveyed in the Ms. report on rape who had coerced or forced a woman to have sex against her will but did not consider that rape.

For myself, when I was student at Hampshire College eight years ago, I feel that I was a perpetrator of sexual harassment, although, I did not label my behavior as such at the time. I once said "good night" to my friend by hugging her while naked, without her consent. My memory of this event was as a warm fuzzy moment, laced with some flirtatious sexuality. When she saw me five years later, she let me know that night, she felt dirty, confused and violated. I saw right away how that could be so, but if she hadn't come forth I might not have ever realized what I had done.

I also dated many women while in a non-monogamous long-term relationship, except that I was the only one in the relationship dating other people. I thought at the time that I wasn't doing anything wrong, but I think I was being very disrespectful.

I have been with a few women who never said "No" verbally, but if I had a clue about body language I would have realized that they weren't into whatever we were doing at the time. But I didn't want to see—I was much more interested in being sexual with the person in question than in hearing that she wasn't into it, or was feeling nervous. For example, one evening a friend of mine came out to me as a survivor of incest. Later on that night, I ended up kissing her. She didn't say "No," verbally. I think I should have realized that when she disclosed that information it was not an appropriate time to come on to her! Later on I found that the kissing was very distressing to her.

I am now one of the spokespeople for the National Organization for Men Against Sexism. I am also a former perpetrator of sexual harassment. Should I resign, and stop doing this work? I don't think so. There is a difference between being a man against sexism and a man without sexism. Although I have learned much, I still have a long way to go ending my own sexism. I sometimes interrupt women in conversations more than I would a man. I have an occasional temper that sometimes frightens the women I'm with. When I'm single, I tend to flirt with women more than is comfortable to them. Being a man against sexism, to me, is like being part of the Hair Club for Men — I'm not just a spokesperson, I'm also a client!

And I'm not unusual. Most "good" men I know have done things like I've done, or worse. Often they don't consider it anything "bad." What have you done?

For most men, this kind of behavior is excused as "boys will be boys" and we are not held accountable for our disrespect towards women. In my case, since I was politically active, there were (true) rumors spread about me that I was a womanizer. Since then these rumors have expanded to include many things that are not true. Most men are allowed to continue to act with disrespect, and get defensive when we are called on our behavior, just as I got defensive when called on mine.

So it falls on us to hold ourselves accountable. Women and men speaking out about how they have been victimized by sexual violence empower themselves and others with their brave words. With what John Stoltenberg calls "revolutionary honesty," it is time for perpetrators like myself to speak out, too. It is time for all men to listen without defensiveness when we are called on our behavior. It is time to stop saying, "Me, too!" when women speak about sexual violence and sexism in this society and on our campus. It was emotionally difficult for me to write this column, but I hope it inspires other "good" men to take a long, hard look at their behavior.

There are no "good men" and "bad men." There is a continuum of violence against women, and I have yet to meet a man who is not on the continuum somewhere. We are all good and we all have sexism still. Where do you need to work? What have you done? What help do you need from me to clean your behavior up?

The more we distance ourselves from those who perpetrate sexual violence, the longer it will continue. We must commit ourselves to stopping it in others and in ourselves — the one will not work without the other. The only thing that separates me from a rapist is some distance on that continuum. Where are you on that continuum? Are you willing to work with me to end it?

Ben Zeman is a UMass student.

Letters to the Editor

What's the point?

To the editor:

After reading the April 9 and April 10 editorials in the Collegian, I stumbled upon a great idea. Why not publish two versions of the Collegian? The first version will contain editorials from writers who merely wish to see their writing in print and need clips for graduate school. The second version will contain editorials from writers who actually have an interesting point of view on a pertinent contemporary topic.

It is rather depressing to read editorials on inane topics such as weekend drinking, vomiting and car accidents. With the multitude of issues that face our society, why do the editorialists at the Collegian insist on trying to amuse readers with absurd personal reflections?

Neil Grover
Southwest

Poster's message unclear

To the editor:

I find it strange that STEPEC (Social Thought and Political Economy Program) chose to advertise itself with a red, five pointed star that was prominently displayed in the middle of the poster describing the attractions of the program, among them working for unspecified "social change". (The poster I saw was affixed to the entrance to the elevators in Thompson Hall.)

In case the designer of the poster did not know, the red star used to be the symbol of movements and states calling themselves communist. These states, among them the former Soviet Union, China under Mao, Cambodia under Pol Pot, have been responsible for more mass murder than Nazi Germany. Even in their milder incarnations communist systems have been highly intolerant of free expression and the free exchange of ideas and of individuals critical of official orthodoxies.

It would be interesting to know what message STEPEC thought to convey with its choice of a symbol for the program.

Paul Hollander
Professor of Sociology

Letters to the Editor and Columns

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please type your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several concise letters in the limited space available on the page.

All letters should include a name, address and phone number (for verification purposes only). Students should also include their year and major. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length.

Send all letters to the Ed/Op page c/o the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass.

Letters to the Editor can also be sent through our e- mail account: letters@oivms.oit.umass.edu

The Ed/Op page is also always looking for columnists. If you are interested in writing columns for the Collegian, come down to the office, or call at 545-1491, and ask to speak to Bob Dunn.

Arts & Living

NYC a piece of artwork; FAC hosts cut-out theatre

By Wiebke Schweer
Collegian Staff

AVENUE A CUT-OUT THEATRE
Herter Auditorium
April 10

"This box contains the world of an artist, which might not be more interesting than the world of everybody else. The box stands for the house I in have been living in for the last 25 years of my life on the Lower East Side Street in New York and it contains the life which I saw and experienced in my street," explained artist Anton van Dalen his performance "Avenue A Cut-Out Theater" at Herter Auditorium last Wednesday afternoon.

Arriving on stage with a big carton box on his back, van Dalen soon conjured the vivid street-life out of it. Filling the stage with carefully designed stencils of animals, buildings, events and characters, the artist built up a melting-pot of different stories.

The performance showed van Dalen's detailed observations of his environment, the good and bad sides of the life in his area and in his street, its multi-cultural neighborhood, its stories, history and characters. Dogs and pigeons appeared one after another on stage and stood next to ruins of houses, images of churches and synagogues. Drug dealers hid behind trees and watched a crime and chauffeurs waited at the open door of expensive cars. Van Dalen's stencils are small images, but they impress through their detailed imitation their liveliness and their very artistic design. The artist created them either of wood or carton and sprayed, painted or draw the pictures on them.

"The main reason why I started this project in 1975 was the more and more dramatic conditions on the streets, the drugs inundating our neighborhood, the rising number of crimes. I realized that I should use my art to document these conditions, to make the people aware of them and try to evoke a change."

Even if his stencils tell little stories on their own, van Dalen initiates the spectators into the funny, sad and thoughtful stories which influenced his work. For example, a skeleton wearing a coat and a hat, which van Dalen created as a portrait of the corrupt landlords, who burned down their own houses to pocket money from the insurance. Images of churches and synagogues on the other hand, symbolize the multicultural atmosphere of the Lower East Side.

Some of van Dalen's stories date back into the past month; some relate back to his first arrival in New York. van Dalen was born in Holland, but emigrated to Canada, and then to the United States at the age of 16 because of World War II. Many of his stencils recall his discoveries in the New World and the differences to the Old World, the Netherlands.

Dimming the lights, van Dalen took the spectators into the world of shadow theater. With simple material, a big flashlight and cut-out pictures of his stencils, the artist made his images move, let his birds fly or a man plant a tree.

Van Dalen ended his performance with one of his favorite topics, his pigeons. Crowling into his big box so that his head appeared 'on top of the roof' he performed a little figure theater with stencils showing him and his pigeons.

"I have now shown you the most important views I have on life: Here I am on the street, involved in life and examining it, here I am on the top, seeing the universality of nature and the life from above," van Dalen said, as he dismissed his delighted audience.

New release brings reader close to Bulger

Politically charged book speaks about his life's experiences with Mass. politics

By Seema Gangarkar
Collegian Staff

WILLIAM M. BULGER
While the Music Lasts
Houghton Mifflin Co.

There are many sides to William M. Bulger, a man who has served as president of the Massachusetts Senate for the past 17 years and now as the new president of the University of Massachusetts system.

While the Music Lasts is the anecdotal story of Bulger's life in politics. Sometimes funny, sometimes thought- provoking, Bulger has put together an informative explanation of his colorful life.

From the very begining of his book, Bulger's feelings of pride dominate. He is proud of South Boston, where he grew up, proud of his family and proud of what he has accomplished in politics. He is also proud of taking a stand and fighting for his opinions and what he believes is right.

A prominent example of this is involvment in the forced busing issue that dominated the 1960s. In an attempt to desegregate schools in Boston, children would be bused in from Roxbury to attend schools in South Boston, which was Bulger's district, while children who lived in South Boston would be bused elsewhere for school.

Bulger was fervently opposed to this proposal and the middle portion of the book discusses why he felt the way that he did. Bulger's epiphany over the issue came down to the simple idea that the whole busing situation was not between white parents and black parents, but over the rights of parents to educate their children in the manner they wanted their children to be educated.

Bulger isn't too fond of the media either, shooting off a couple pointed barbs at The Boston Globe. Bulger details one incident which he claimed he was completely innocent of any wrong-doing, but it seemed like the Globe was out to convict him anyway. Bulger outlines what happened and from the way he writes, it is as if he is questioning the journalistic integrity of the Globe.

COURTESY ASSOCIATED PRESS
William M. Bulger

Bulger adds personal notes in the book. He talks about his courtship of his wife Mary and his relationship with his brother, Jim "Whitey" Bulger. He also explains some of his more public tribulations and how he dealt with those.

While the Music Lasts is one of those memoirs that is nice to have on the family bookshelf but isn't really that interesting for people with apolitical views.

The problem lies not in the writing itself — Bulger tells a good story — but in that there are too many incidents that fail to flow smoothly. Unless one is very well acquainted with the politics of Massachusetts, it's hard to even grasp where in time a certain event took place.

The underlying problem that While the Music Lasts faces is lack of clarity and the large cast of characters making it hard to follow. Bulger hopes to impress the reader with his wide range of contacts and acquaintances that makes for a nice paragraph in Who's Who, but leaves the rest of the readers wondering about it's relevancy.

While the Music Lasts may shed light onto Bulger's past, present and future actions, it certainly lets him speak his mind and it does detail the Massachusetts political system, but the book lacks general interest and is best left to political afficianos and those who wonder how a man can hold so much power for so long a time straight from the horse's mouth. C

COURTESY INTERSCOPE RECORDS

"Pass the pork soda, please"

Interscope recording artist's, Primus will bring their lyrically twisted and amusing tunes to the William D. Mullins Center tonight. The trio (Tim Alexander, Les Claypool and Larry Lalonde) are touring in support of their latest album, Tales From the Punchbowl. The show starts at 7:30 p.m.

KLEIN'S ALL★SPORTS
GOLF Blowout
BIGGEST GOLF SALE OF THE YEAR!
20% OFF
PUTTERS • GLOVES
LOOSE CLUBS • BAGS • CARTS
GOLF SHOES • HEADCOVERS
ACCESSORIES • CLOTHING
GOLF CLUBS
Allied 10-Piece Starter Set $99.99
Allied Tour Model Full Set $119.99
Allied 16 Pc. Set w/bag $179.99
Allied Signature Gold Graphite $249.99
Allied Jr. Set w/Bag $79.99
SPALDING Executive EZX Full Set $229.99
Wilson Power Source 13 Pc. Set $199.99
Wilson Pro Staff Graphite $289.99
DUNLOP Resolve Full Set w/Graphite Driver $149.99
DUNLOP Ultronic Full Set Graphite Woods $199.99
GOLF Balls, Gloves, Carts & Accessories
SPALDING TOP-FLITE XL Golf Balls $15.99/3
Wilson PRO STAFF Golf Balls $14.99/3
SPALDING Magna Golf Balls $19.99/6
Rawlings Wood Umbrella $6.99
DUNLOP TISI Golf Cart $39.99
MINN KOTA Golf Cart $469.99
BALI Leather Golf Glove $4.99
Hampshire Mall • Hadley

Steve Maddens.
"yup, there's a foot"
Downtown Amherst

GET READY PIONEER VALLEY!
Take it to the Hoopla with Fun, Food, Hoops, Prizes and exciting Special Events:
•SPALDING WOMEN'S CLINIC
•GATORADE SLAM DUNK CONTEST
•USAIR LONG DISTANCE SHOOTOUT
•DAILY COLLEGIAN FOUL SHOOTING CONTEST
•NEW BALANCE PRIZES AND PROMOTIONS
Experience the Excitement at the
new balance Haigis Hoopla VI
Presented by the UMass Sport Management Program
April 20-21
Haigis Mall-UMass Amherst
Bring your Family, Friends and Tell a Neighbor to catch all the action at Haigis Hoopla VI!
DAILY COLLEGIAN SPORT COURT SPALDING PEPSI
For more information call the New Balance Haigis Hoopla Office 545-5689

The Distinguished Visitor's Program Proudly Presents:
J. P. Vaswani
Hindu spiritual leader, philosopher, author and lecturer
"Never Give Up"
Previous speaking engagements
• House of Commons in London, "World without Wars"
• Inter-Faith Conference during the 50th Anniversary of the United Nations
• Keynote speaker at the Centennial Celebration of the World Parliament of Religions
Tuesday, April 16, 1996
5:00 p.m.
UMass Campus Center Auditorium
Free Admission
Call 545-0046 for more information

Actress remembers Auschwitz in play

By Anna Feder
Collegian Staff

As Massachusetts–based actress Jane Smith Bernhardt takes stage tomorrow night at the Northampton Center for the Arts, she feels a part of Etty's prayers are being answered.

The one-woman play she will be performing, "Love Etty, The Journal of Etty Hillesum" was adapted by Bernhardt from the diary of a Dutch Jew killed in a Nazi concentration camp.

The play is part of a week of events entitled "Reflections on Auschwitz" in honor of Holocaust Memorial Week and the Jewish holiday Yom Hashoa, a day of remembrance. According to Bernhardt, because of the importance of this week the audience is able to pay deeper attention to the messages conveyed in the piece.

Bernhardt was introduced to Etty six years ago within the pages of the book "An Interrupted Life: The Diaries of Etty Hillesum" sent to her by a woman she became acquainted with at a silent retreat. It was six months before she decided that she wanted to create a performance piece with the material.

"Her style of writing appealed to me, her struggle as a woman, an artist and a person of faith," Bernhardt said. "We have a similar writing style and I felt I could embody her voice."

She has been performing the play for over three years mainly at churches and schools in Massachusetts. In December of 1994, Bernhardt was asked to perform her piece at an international, inter-faith gathering at Auchwitz to mark the 50th anniversary of its liberation. She describes the experience as being "very powerful in the context of that gathering."

The message of the convocation was a positive one. "People attended to heal old wounds," Bernhardt said. This fall she is travelling to Amsterdam to perform in Etty's hometown.

With the recent bombings in Israel, Bernhardt said she believes Etty's words to be particularly timely. As Etty wrote in her journal, "God is not accountable for the senseless harm we cause one another, we are accountable to Him!"

Bernhardt quotes Etty in the play, "Out of every new outrage and fresh horror, we shall put up one more piece of love and goodness, drawing strength from within ourselves. Out of the bloody lessons of these times, new insights will be drawn from the deep well of this darkness."

The performance is tomorrow night at 7 p.m. at the Northampton Center for the Arts. Ticket prices are $10 ($8 advance) adults, $6 ($5 advance) senior citizens and children under 15 and can be purchased through the NCA box office.

Only HIV-positive models and actors need apply

By Deborah Hastings
Associated Press

COSTA MESA, Calif. — Keith Lewis certainly didn't expect 117 replies. He doubted he'd get even one.

But there they were, some from people who poured out their hearts, all from people infected with HIV, and all of them looking for work.

Lewis issued an open call for his modeling agency's newest client, a pharmaceutical company with a high-nutrition drink for sufferers of the virus that causes AIDS.

Abbott Laboratories actually wanted HIV-positive models for its Advera drink campaign. And so began Proof Positive, the country's first and only talent agency devoted solely to people with HIV and AIDS.

That was two years ago. Lewis, 33, has been stunned by the success of this new division of his Morgan Agency, based in Orange County, about 60 miles south of Los Angeles.

There are 52 men and women represented by Proof Positive, all of them healthy, many of them absolutely gorgeous, getting steady work in modeling, public service announcements and speaking engagements.

"I didn't even know if we could find someone who would want to come forward and say, 'Yeah, I have this disease,' and put their face on a national advertising campaign," Lewis said.

That's especially true in this business, where looks and image are everything and even the most uncloseted gays take great pains to hide their sexuality when doing mainstream modeling and entertainment work.

Fifteen years into the AIDS epidemic, fear, bigotry and ignorance still abound, Lewis admits his.

"I was ignorant," he said in a recent interview at his office. "I was afraid of what it would do to the agency." Sixty-five percent of the Morgan Agency's clients are child performers.

■ tennis

continued from page 10

the doubles point from."

The match was one that Lowry felt his team can use to see where it stands, and one which helps in beginning to play stronger competition.

"They know exactly where they are and what they have to work on," Lowry said. "They're even more hungry to show what they're capable of doing."

On Wednesday the Minutewomen ran into a tough match against Williams College which they dropped 4–3, a match that was locked up by Williams after five points.

UMass' No. 1 doubles team of Sitton and Steele played by far their toughest contest of the spring, which resulted in its only loss 8–6, to the hands of Williams' nationally ranked doubles team in Porter Harris and Julie Greenwood.

"We didn't capitalize on our break points," UMass assistant coach Tom Lowry said. "That team deserved to win that match. They were just more experienced and they were more of a team."

Caron and Goredetskava, who moved up from the No. 3 doubles spot to No. 2, beat up on Sabrina Oei and Tyler Lewis 8–3, but the victory was to no avail as the No. 3 group of Braunstein and Durant dropped its match 8–3, giving Williams the point for the doubles.

This was only the second doubles point that UMass had lost all year, the first coming against Rutgers, in the team's only other loss this year, 5–4 in the fall.

In No. 1 singles, Sitton won in a competitive match with Harris, 7–6, 2–6, 7–5. However, UMass dropped the next three consecutive singles matches giving Williams the victory at 4–1. Caron and Durant won their No. 5 and No. 6 singles matches respectively to finish the match off, but UMass came up on the short end, 4–3.

"Every match they [Williams] play is a quality match," Lowry said. "They're used to being in a 4–3 match, they're used to winning or losing very close.

"So when it came down to, especially at the start, they were more comfortable in that position knowing it would be close. Just because they are Division III, I think you have to look at the level of competition they play, and they're ready for it."

This was only the third loss for UMass all year, second this spring. UMass drops to 5–2, 14–3 overall this year. Williams goes to 9–2 on the year, 2–1 this spring.

The Minutewomen will next play on Monday when they travel to Rhode Island to tackle the Lady Rams. Match time is set for 3 p.m.

Errors are key as Red Sox fall to Twins

By Howard Ulman
Associated Press

BOSTON — Minnesota capitalized on three errors, then nearly gave the game back to Boston.

Tim Naehring followed two ninth-inning walks with a homer that cut the Twins lead to one run, but Dave Stevens retired the next three batters to preserve Thursday's 6-5 win over the Red Sox.

"They gave us some chances and we took advantage of some of them. Then at the end we tried to give it back to them," Minnesota manager Tom Kelly said. "It made it very exciting."

A soggy outfield, the result of snow that postponed games two of the previous three days, made the game an adventure.

Boston right fielder Kevin Mitchell strained a hamstring catching a fly ball in the seventh, and Minnesota pitcher LaTroy Hawkins hurt his groin when he slipped on the grass playing catch before the game.

"They did a great job getting the field ready," Minnesota's Paul Molitor said, "but you could see the ball taking some funny bounces."

Brad Radke (3-0) allowed two runs — none earned — in six innings, struck out seven and gave up four hits and two walks. He had allowed one run in six innings and two in seven in his previous two starts. He is the first Minnesota starter to open a season with three consecutive wins since Bill Krueger won four in 1992.

Roger Clemens, off to an 0-2 start for the second time in his career, allowed runners in each of his six innings. He struck out eight but threw 129 pitches, walked four and allowed six hits.

Boston, which had the most errors in the majors last year, committed two errors as the Twins took a 1-0 lead in the second. Three other misplays, only one scored an error, contributed to Minnesota's other five runs. Boston has made 12 errors in eight games this season.

"I felt I only made two bad pitches. That shouldn't be enough to beat me," Clemens said. The fielders "are as disappointed as I am. I know they're trying hard."

A Minnesota error led to two unearned runs in the fifth as Boston cut the lead to 3-2 on Mike Greenwell's two-run homer, his first of the season.

But Boston first baseman Mo Vaughn let Matt Lawton's two-out grounder go through his legs for an error in the eighth, allowing two runs to score.

"I didn't get good wood on it," Lawton said. "Slower balls are probably the harder ones to catch."

"When a ground ball comes to you, pick it up, throw and do what you have to do," Vaughn said. "When you start thinking about it, that's when things start compounding themselves."

Molitor's RBI double made it 6-2 before Naehring's three-run homer off Stevens, who hung on for his second save.

With two outs in the second, Pat Meares walked and took third when Naehring, the third baseman, dropped Rich Becker's popup near the mound. Meares scored when shortstop John Valentin let Chuck Knoblauch's grounder roll between his legs.

In the third, right fielder Mitchell got a bad jump on Molitor's fly, which fell for a single. Molitor stole second and scored on Roberto Kelly's two-out double.

Minnesota went ahead 3-0 in the fifth. Kelly singled and Scott Stahoviak doubled off the left-field wall. Valentin handled Greenwell's throw from left, looked to second base and couldn't get the ball home in time as Kelly scored.

Spring has sprung! Why not celebrate with a fresh copy of the Collegian?
Oh, I guess that's what your doing... carry on then!

Meeting Notice
Top of the Campus, Incorporated (TOC, Inc) will hold its Annual Meeting in Campus Center 801, May 10, 1996, 2 p.m.

Cotton Affordable Rayon
Cards Rings T-Shirts Dresses Shorts Earrings Incense Candles
Sale 20 to 50% off selected Clothing
The GreatGifts Mercantile Th.Fri.9PM Sun 12-5 Daily 10-6
Northampton-18 Center St. Amherst-Carriage Shops

UNDERGRADUATE TEACHING ASSISTANTSHIP AVAILABLE
Department of Mathematics and Statistics
$600.00 a semester for approximately 10-12 hours a week.
FURTHER INFORMATION AND APPLICATION FORMS SEE THE RECEPTIONIST.
ROOM 1622 LEDERLE GTWR

Doc Martens Sale.

ZANNA Downtown Amherst

Custom Made Banners
promote your organization or special event with a colorful, vinyl banner
WEATHER RESISTANT FLAME RETARDANT
Campus Center Print Shop
225 Campus Center, UMass
545-0371

Legal Problems?
Call UMass Student Legal Services Office!
Housing - Family - Student Rights
Civil Rights - Workers Rights
Criminal and Consumer Law and more...
Call 545-1995 for an appointment
UMASS/AMHERST STUDENTS ONLY

Free KAPLAN class!
LSAT GMAT GRE MCAT
Find out what Kaplan students learn to get a higher score! Attend a free 90-minute class:
• learn key test-taking strategies
• receive helpful hints for test day
• find out about our Targeted Training
April 20th - 25th is Free Class Week at Kaplan!
CALL TODAY TO RESERVE YOUR SEAT IN CLASS!
KAPLAN
1-800-KAP-TEST
http://www.kaplan.com

Hot, Hot, Hot.
Mia sandals

ZANNA Downtown Amherst

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
Held Over Thru April 18
Curtain Daily 7:00 & 9:15
Only Local Showing
"TWO THUMBS UP, WAY UP!" SISKEL & EBERT
"★★★★ A DAZZLING MIX OF MIRTH AND MALICE. A TERRIFIC TWISTED COMEDY." -Peter Travers, ROLLING STONE
"★★★★ HUGE ENTERTAINMENT! THE MOST SATISFYING FILM OF THIS YEAR." -Joe Morgenstern, THE WSJ
"★★★★ THE COENS GIVE BIRTH TO YET ANOTHER UTTERLY ORIGINAL MOVIE. THEIR MOST EXTRAORDINARY OF ALL!" -Gene Lansden, THE DETROIT FREE PRESS
A HOMESPUN MURDER STORY BY JOEL & ETHAN COEN
FARGO
From the team that gave you Blood Simple and Raising Arizona
ACADEMY OF MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Opera House 584-8435

~ NATIONAL/INTERNATIONAL ~

Mob storms Liberian U.N. post

By Nyenati Allison
Associated Press

MONROVIA, Liberia — Mobs broke down the gates at the U.N. headquarters and looters jumped the walls of the U.S. Embassy compound on Thursday, as even African peacekeepers reportedly joined in the widespread plunder of Liberia's warring capital. Relief workers warned that a dangerous scarcity of food, medicine and fuel, compounded by a fifth straight day of fighting in Liberia's capital, will worsen matters for a population already among the poorest in West Africa.

"The fighting and ongoing massive looting of homes, market and shops has sparked off widespread food shortages for civilians in the city," said Tarek El Guindi, director of the U.N. World Food Program in Liberia. "A serious humanitarian crisis is likely to erupt if fighting continues."

"Lord, please help us out of this madness — your children are dying," lamented one Monrovia resident, housewife Mamia Jones. Dozens of bodies, mostly those of young men, lay by the roadside in downtown Monrovia amid burned-out vehicles and shops that have been looted since the worst fighting in more than three years broke out Saturday between rebels and government troops.

U.N. officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said West African peacekeepers are believed to have joined in the looting of Monrovia, virtually paralyzing the U.N. food distribution system that feeds about 1.5 million people throughout Liberia. More than 23,000 tons of food is sitting in U.N. warehouses in Monrovia, U.N. spokesman Sylvana Foa said communications with the U.N. headquarters in Monrovia were cut after mobs stormed the gates Thursday morning. She said all staff members were reported safe and holed up at the U.S. Embassy compound.

Buildings used by UNICEF and the U.N. Development Program were also looted, along with the motor pool of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees, Foa said from New York.

Aid workers from Doctors Without Borders said they had treated dozens of people for bullet wounds and were running short of medical supplies because sniper fire prevented them from getting to the central hospital.

A senior defense official speaking from Washington said that as a result of the unrest, the number of U.S. military personnel working to evacuate Americans and other foreigners was increased from 600 to 900.

"The situation is very tenuous," U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher said.

Foa said reports from the U.N. mission in Liberia spoke of a "frenzy of looting" and that it appeared leaders of the warring factions had lost control of their own fighters.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Glyn Davies said a few looters had jumped the wall at the 27-acre American compound where up to 20,000 people have taken refuge, but were quickly run off by U.S. Special Forces.

Israeli airstrikes pound Lebanon

By Sam F. Ghattas
Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Israeli aircraft fired rockets across Lebanon on Thursday, targeting the command center of Hezbollah guerrillas in Beirut and bombarding cars suspected of carrying the guerrillas' commanders.

It was the first time since the 1982 invasion that Israeli forces have attacked the Lebanese capital.

The airstrikes were in retaliation for Hezbollah attacks on Israeli soldiers in southern Lebanon and rocket assaults on northern Israel that killed one soldier and wounded 38 other Israelis this week.

But with Israeli elections just weeks away and recent suicide bombings deep inside Israel still fresh in Israelis' minds, the nine hours of strikes went beyond the usual reprisal.

Casualty and damage reports were conflicting, with four or five people reported killed and about a dozen wounded.

Speaking not long after the airstrikes, Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres refused to rule out further attacks on the Shiite Muslim guerrilla group.

"We are not trigger-happy, (but) if someone prefers a confrontation to a dialogue we have the ability to confront them," he said.

Ahmed Younis, a 55-year-old aide to a Hezbollah commander in the south, was seriously wounded when his car was gutted by a helicopter missile on the highway near the southern port of Sidon. The commander was not in the vehicle. Lebanese security sources said. A 27-year-old woman passenger was killed and two other civilians were wounded at an adjacent highway rest stop in the fishing harbor of Tyre. A third civilian was wounded when a missile hit a car at Dirdghaya, near the southern port of Tyre, the sources said.

Israeli fighter-bombers also attacked bases of the Iranian-backed Hezbollah in eastern and southern Lebanon.

Hezbollah's top commander in southern Lebanon, Sheik Nabil Kaouk, swore to "burn (the Israelis) with their fire and blow up the ground under their feet."

Thousands of Israelis fled the border town of Kiryat Shemona, where 36 people were wounded by Katyusha attacks on Tuesday, to safety in central Israel. The army ordered all children under 16 to be evacuated from the north.

The attack on Beirut was Israel's deepest assault inside Lebanon since its troops invaded nearly 14 years ago to rout Palestinian guerrillas.

Four Apache helicopter gunships swooped in over Beirut under overcast skies from warships off the Mediterranean coast to blast Hezbollah targets in the slums with at least seven missiles. In a joint news conference with Peres, Israel's army commanders described why they selected certain structures as air raid targets. A 10-story building in a densely populated southern suburb of Beirut served as Hezbollah's command center from which attacks on Israel were being planned, said Maj. Gen. Moshe Ayalon, head of military intelligence.

Genetic discrimination feared

By Laura Myers
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Facing a legal challenge to collecting DNA samples, the Pentagon says military personnel who fear "genetic discrimination" may have their specimens destroyed once they complete their service.

The decision, outlined in a memo released Thursday, comes as two Marines face court martial for refusing to submit to DNA testing and as a study suggests nearly 50 percent of people with genes that could cause disease have experienced discrimination by insurers, employers and others.

"Our study clearly demonstrates that genetic discrimination exists," said Stanford University's Dr. Paul Billings, co-author of the survey.

Insurance groups attacked the study, saying it was based on anecdotes of people surveyed from within support groups for genetic diseases.

"We do not support policies or practices by which any person is singled out because of the results of any medical tests of genetic information," said Richard Coorsh of the Health Insurance Association of America.

Still, 11 states have passed laws making it a crime for insurers or employers to discriminate against someone because of their genetic makeup. Twenty other states and Congress also are considering such legislation as scientific breakthroughs make it easier to identify genes that can cause everything from breast cancer to Huntington's disease.

The Defense Department said its decision to give military personnel more control over their DNA samples stems from concern that such private information could be used improperly.

"Although very few concerns have been expressed regarding the (DNA) repository, misgivings have been heard from a few that the specimen samples might be used to deny employment or insurance from people or otherwise discriminate based on genetic conditions," said the April 2 memo by Dr. Stephen Joseph, assistant secretary of defense for health affairs.

The Pentagon has been collecting samples of deoxyribonucleic acid from all enlisted men and women and civil servants since 1993 for the purpose of "remains identification." The specimens were to be stored 75 years.

Under the refined policy

Samples routinely will be stored 50 years.

Individual specimens will be destroyed within 180 days upon the request of the donor after completion of their military service.

The release of DNA samples will be limited to: identification of remains; by consent of the donor or surviving next-of-kin; by judicial order; by request of the assistant secretary of defense if the Pentagon counsel approves; and if required by law, such as for investigation or prosecution of a crime.

The memo doesn't offer much comfort to Lance Cpl. John Mayfield II and Cpl. Joseph Vlacovsky, two Marines serving in Honolulu who face court martial Monday for separately refusing to submit to DNA testing last year.

They feared what might be done with the samples. Their attorney, Eric Seitz, sought an injunction against the specimen program, but it was denied and the case is pending before the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

"Every change the Department of Defense is making was suggested by us," Seitz said at a news conference. "But it's still not enough."

"Why don't we have the right to say 'No'?" Mayfield asked. Vlacovsky added, "When I enlisted in the Marines I enlisted... to defend the United States. I think I'm doing that. I don't see why the government needs to punish me for this."

The Council for Responsible Genetics, a nonprofit group based in Cambridge, Mass., that advocates controls on use of genetic information, has joined the lawsuit. It organized the news conference, where the study also was released.

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

On and on and on...
Farms in Hadley are preparing their land for spring.

Distance key to weekend meet

By Steve Clements
Collegian Correspondent

The Massachusetts women's track and field team will face Providence, UMass–Lowell and Holy Cross on Saturday at noon at Elsewlyn Derby Track.

Providence, the reigning national cross country champion, should be a tough opponent for the Minutewomen.

"They have great distance runners, but no sprinters or hurdlers," UMass coach Julie LaFreniere said.

Rebecca Donaghue, UMass' best distance runner, is coming off of a third place finish against Boston College last weekend, with a time of 212 4 in the 800m. The two top finishers in the event were All-Americans this year.

The Minutewomen will also look for a strong performance from Heather Brown, who won the javelin throw with a toss of 150.11 feet.

UMass should have a relatively easy time in gaining some points in the sprints, as well as the throwing events. Nicole Roberts, who won both the 200 and 400m last weekend and should score some points for the team again.

The 4x100m relay team of Roberts, Shelanda Irish, Emma Gardiner and Yves Amazan won the event last week with an ECAC qualifying time of 48.5. The relay team is undefeated so far and will try to keep that perfect record intact this weekend.

The Minutewomen will also face rival UMass–Lowell this weekend.

"Lowell is a Division II team that is well rounded but not strong enough," LaFreniere said.

The Minutewomen will also face Holy Cross this weekend.

"Holy Cross is not a high-quality team," LaFreniere said.

UMass will also be looking for a solid performance in the discus like last weekend when "they had their best performance in a couple of years" according to LaFreniere. They captured the first four places in this event against BC.

Providence had a good showing in the 1500 and 3000m last week at the Yale Invitational. They captured second, fifth and sixth place in the 1500m. Both Heather Couture and Gladys Ganiel qualified for New Englands.

Women's crew to race Navy, Villanova

By Stephen Reich
Collegian Correspondent

Expectations are running high as the Massachusetts women's crew looks to be one of the best in the nation this year.

Its season kicked off on the weekend of March 30–31 in the San Diego Crew Classic. The Minutewomen quickly established themselves as a powerhouse, placing fourth out of 12 of the best teams in the nation. They had the second fastest time in the preliminary, and beat last year's No. 2 team Wisconsin. This is outstanding considering the women's crew has only been a varsity sport since last year.

On April 6, UMass rowed against Boston University and won convincingly in what coach Jim Dietz described as a romp. UMass finished the regatta with a time of 6:32 as BU came in 17 seconds later, finishing at 6:49. The junior varsity lightweight crew rowed against BU's JV heavyweight crew and had a strong showing, only losing by four seconds.

The novice crew also performed well, winning handily with a time of 6:53, compared to BU's time of 7:04.

"I was extremely pleased with our team's total effort," Dietz said.

Captain Nancy LaRouque rows in the fourth seat and standout rower Jennifer Strong rows at the stroke. Both LaRouque and Strong rowed overseas last summer in the Netherlands, with Strong earning a bronze metal rowing the pair. They look to lead UMass in this Saturday's regatta against Navy and Villanova at Camden, N.J.

Saturday's race will act as a tune-up for the April 20 race at Northeastern with Columbia. After that the Minutewomen race New Hampshire at home on the Connecticut River.

UMass will compete in the Atlantic 10 Championships and are favored to win it, although Temple and George Washington could provide stellar competition.

Then it is the women's crew Intercollegiate Rowing Championship. The Minutewomen will try to dethrone the National Campion of the last five years, Princeton.

"If there is a year to do it this might be the one," said Dietz.

Lacrosse starts road trip; women face Rutgers first

By Luke Meredith
Collegian Correspondent

After being snowed out on Wednesday, the Massachusetts women's lacrosse team takes its show on the road Saturday to Piscataway, N.J. to face the Rutgers Scarlet Knights.

The Minutewomen will then continue on to battle Hofstra, St. Joseph's and Villanova in a rigorous road trip, their longest of the season.

None of the squads they're about to face are pushovers, but after last Friday's huge win over New Hampshire, the Minutewomen feel they're up to the challenge.

"We're looking forward to the next couple games, because we feel as though we have a chance to be successful," assistant coach Jill Pearsall said. "If we play our game and we execute well, we'll be alright."

The Minutewomen are on a roll, having taken their last two contests, and they see the UNH game as a game they can build a season on.

"The UNH game was huge," Pearsall said, "because it showed the team that it was capable of winning. It was a big moral victory, and you can see that the team is really starting to mature."

UMass beat UNH 11–8 behind three goals from freshman Laura Korutz and sophomore Jenn Herker, and solid goaltending from the duo of Melissa Borodinsky and Trish DiBenedetto. The Minutewomen are now 2–3, and can look for a little revenge on the upcoming road trip.

"I know that when we played these teams last year, they were tight games," Pearsall said.

Last year UMass lost a heartbreaker to Hofstra 11–10, and fell to Rutgers 6–4 in a low scoring affair. If the Minutewomen can break even on this trip, they will already have surpassed last season's win total of three with three more chances left on the schedule. UMass has been winning for a variety of reasons.

Korutz, of Media, Pa. has made an immediate impact on the club. She's already tallied 14 points on eight goals and six assists to lead the team. Sophomore Jen Bowen has added eight goals of her own, and last year's leading scorer, junior attacker Stephanie Walsh, is at it again with seven goals. She has more career points than anyone else on the club with 71, including 63 goals.

The goaltending chores have been divided up between Borodinsky and DiBenedetto, and they've been playing well all year.

"The goalie play has been solid," Pearsall said.

The Minutewomen return to Totman Field on April 24 when they take on the Vermont Catamounts. Game time is scheduled for 4 p.m.

■ polo

continued from page 6

score of 16–6, but will be seeking revenge on the Crimson Tide after losing to them 9–7 in double overtime on that same day. Harvard has proven to be a thorn in their side, being the only team UMass has set to beat.

"In the game against Harvard earlier this season there was a 10 minute break in the game where the shot clocks went down, which allowed them to regroup," coach Bob Newcomb said. "At that point we had them on the run and the chance to win the game, but they came back with the momentum to win the game. I still believe we are the better team."

Leading the attack for Massachusetts will be senior captain Vicky Barnond, who leads the team in goals (33), assists (10) and points (43). Other Minutewomen in double figures for goals include Cathy Leeburg (15), junior Barbara Hickey (16), and seniors Michelle Hannigan (13) and Mirea Martiner-Cruz (10).

Helping them to their No. 17 ranking this season has been senior Jessica Griffith with 49 saves and a goals against average of 7.33.

"Jessica is better goaltender now than she was last season. She's very athletic and gets better every game," Newcomb said. "She is a dedicated and highly motivated player."

The team will be having their final tune up of the season this weekend before the EWPA New England Playoffs, to be held next weekend in Middletown, Conn.

■ lax

continued from page 10

According to Cannella, the key to the game is tempo. While the Minutemen play a more deliberate, set offensive style, the Hens like to run and create offense in transition.

"They play a very aggressive style lacrosse. They're all over the field," Cannella said. "We're much more of a control, slow down type. We have to play smart. In the past two games with Delaware we haven't done that. I think that controlling tempo, playing smart and good defense is going to be key."

The Blue Hens were ranked No. 19 early in the season but struggles against some lesser opponents have knocked Deleware out of the top 20.

Delaware is led offensively by Pat Gately who is among the nation's scoring leaders with 24 goals and 14 assists on the season, while Brock Livingston (24 goals, five assists) and newcomer Kevin Lavey (25 goals, three assists) have also been scoring threats.

"Their attack is very good," Cannella said. "All three of their guys are right around 25 goals."

Senior defender Carey Egan anchors a Delaware defensive unit that has given up and average of 10.5 goals a game. That unit will have to deal with a Minuteman offense that has spread the wealth around lately. Brendan Glass leads UMass with 18 goals and 14 assists while Buddy Hoffman has 19 goals to go along with four assists.

The goaltending match-up will pit Hen junior Brian Cooper (10.31 goals against average) against John Kasselakis who has been hot for the Minutemen lately with a 9.77 GAA on the year.

Lax Notes: Rescheduling appears could be a problem for the UMass–New Hampshire game that was postponed due to snow on Wednesday. While UMass has space in its schedule to reschedule, the Wildcats would have to play back-to-back games to accommodate the contest.

The Delaware game can be heard live on WMUA 91.1 FM with Mike Reiss providing the play-by-play.

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ANNOUNCEMENTS

KAI CHI Beginning Sunday thru Thursday 10:00pm and every Friday and Saturday 10:30am 586-7134

It's Back!! The Great UMass Mountain Bike Sale April 24 & 25 Student Union Lawn. Info 545-3437

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Best Selection of 1-2- and 3 bedroom apartments in the center of town. Gas heat and hardwood floors. Lincoln Real Estate 253-7879

Take over our lease 6/1! Two bedroom two bath Putnam Apt. $680 per month includes heat hot water. Avail the waiting list! 549-1375

Apartments available for June and September. Summer sublets, too! Call for details. Sunrise Village 665-7203

Three bedroom condominiums, with gas heat and hardwood floors. Lincoln Real Estate 253-7879

Huge 3 Bedroom, 2 full bath Mill Valley Apt. 4 rms floor separate entry, tons of closets, all utilities included. Summer sublease or take over lease. Call now 253-4083

Mill Valley II large bedrooms with full-baths, large family room, airconditioned, summer or take-lease. Great for 3-5 $925 253-5186

2 bed 2 bath Renovated Putnam townhouse. 1250 sq. ft. heat summer sublet and or lease 549-5618

Take over our lease on June 1. Great location upstown - 1 min walk to bus, 20 min walk to campus. 2 bed, 1 bath $1100. Call anytime 549-9113

One Bedroom putnam apartment available from May 1st. Please take over my lease. Monthly rent $565, includes heat. Just steps from campus. Call 549-4927

Takeover Lease Brookins 2 bedroom, new carpeting, mountainview, heat and hot water included, fitness center, on bus route, rent is $675/month. 253-1866

Take Over Our Lease 6/1. One bedroom apartment on Brandywine. Call Jon at 549-6861

AUTO FOR SALE

1988 Chevy Nova 20,000 miles. Well maintained. 35 good condition. $1,000. Call Nora (leave msg. until 11pm) 549-3702

1996 Subaru 4WD Hatchback GL 5-speed, AC, AM-FM. All you need for a great student car w/maintenance records etc. $850. 584-0306

1989 Beretta GT 5-speed, V6, New clutch & Brakes, Well Maintained, Low Miles, 74k, 9077

Acura Integra RS 1989 5-spd 92k AC, sunroof, Blond Lond. Leave Message 546-7664

EMPLOYMENT

National Parks Hiring – Positions are now available at National Parks, Forests & Wildlife Preserves. Excellent benefits & bonuses! Call (206) 971-3620 ext. N9014

Summer Internship 20 Hrs. paid per week (4 to 6 weeks). Minorities interested in broadcasting business encouraged to apply. Resumes by 4:30 to Rick Friedman Today's 99.3, Box 268 Northampton, Ma 01061

EMPLOYMENT

Experienced Part time Housecleaner. References please. $6 hourly. 549-0413 Deborah

SMALL, COED, OVERNIGHT CAMP

Looking for outgoing male counselors who enjoy working with children ages 7-13 yrs. Incredible experience. Call Michelle at 546-6877 or Ken at 413-528-7229.

Now Hiring. Staying around for the Summer? If so, TASP Inc. seeking Summer part time evening telemarketers. Earn $6-8 hour plus bonuses. Hours Sun-Thur 6-9pm. Call Ms. Miranda 1-800-829-4777.

Student Painters needed $8-7 hour and bonuses. Summer work for hardworking people in the Hopkinton-Ashland area. Call Brian 800-922-5579.

Immediate Openings. TASP Intl seeking part time evening telemarketers. Hours available Sun - Thurs, 6-9 pm. Earn $6-8 per hour plus bonuses. Enjoy spring days while earning cash. Call Ms. Miranda 800-829-4777.

SUMMER IN MAINE

Have Fun. Have an impact! Camp Androscoggin for Boys needs staff to teach tennis, lacrosse, swim, sail, waters-ki, archery, photography, nature, mountain biking, fishing, art and radio. Excellent facilities. 125 acre lakeside campus. Write or call: 601 West Street, Hamson NY 10528 (914)835-5800

Summer Painters hiring for Boston and Hartford. Will train completely. Earn $$. $10/hr. Call N.E. Collegiate Painters at 800-569-8939.

Women needed for research project. Runners and Sedentary women 18-25 years of age. You will be paid $150. If interested call 549-5822 ask for Deanna.

Counselors: Coed overnight weight loss camp. Looking for outgoing, athletic individuals who enjoy working with children. Great experience. Call 413-232-8518.

FALL 1996 INTERNSHIPS with the Student Legal Services Office: get hands on experience in the legal field—work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary—training provided. Deadline to begin the application process is April 19, 1996—contact Student Legal Services today. 545-1995. 922 Campus Center.

Eastern Europe Jobs - Teach basic conversational English in Prague, Budapest or Krakow. No teaching certificate or European Languages required. Inexpensive room and board and other benefits for info call: 206-971-3680 ext. K50011

Looking for summer jobs? Openings available at Brandywine Apartments. Lifeguards: full time and p/t. Must be Red Cross certified. Grounds Keepers/Porters full time. Must be hard working, reliable and responsible. Stop by Brandywine office: 180 Brandywine Drive, Amherst, Ma 01002 549-0600

National Parks, Beach/Mt. Resorts, Ranches, Rafting. Co's now hiring! Nationwide! 500 employers! Top pay / benefits. Call (919) 932-1486 ext. R120.

Alaska Student Employment— fish canneries, parks, resorts now hiring!! Earn $3000 ($600/mo)! Airfare! Room/board! Free video w/ program! Call (919) 932-1489 ext. A120

EMPLOYMENT

Free Room and Board in exchange for child care. Experience and references required. Call 586-7116

FOR RENT

4/5 Bedroom Houses - Amherst Hadley, Northampton. Sept 1st, some June. $750-$1,000 plus utilities. Call 3-5 Skibski Realtors 586-1827

House For Rent. June 1. Rt. 9 Hadley. On bus route. Call 582-3951

2 Bedroom Apt. Brandywine. Pond side w/ Balcony. Available 6/1. 549-7094.

3 Bedroom Apt on Putnam Village starting June 1. Gas, heat, AC, water incl. Option to lease. Call 549-8821 for more info.

2 Bedroom Apt. Brandywine. Pond side w/balcony. Avail. 6/1. 549-6066

FOR SALE

2 Pioneer 4X10 car speakers & 2 Infinity 416 dash speakers $130 both pairs. Call Jeff 4 info. 253-4161

10 Gal. Fish Tank parts inc. $65/80 Jeff 253-4161

Hewlett Packard Deskjet 500C Printer w/ stand. Used 4 months. $210. Call Marie 549-3936

BOB DYLAN TICKETS Tuesday 4/16 Springfield - 2 Tickets. Call Mem @ 586-7063

Smith Corona PW990 Word Processor Only 1 1/2 yr old with box & all papers. Paid $750, will take $125 OBO. Call 546-0049

486DX4 100 3 volts $60 or 80. 546-7072

RCA 20" TV VCR Combination new unused. Asking $400. Call Ethan 549-9386

2 10 Ft. Ball Pythons w/ 25 gal tank and heater. Worth $180+. Asking $100 for. Call 549-9878

POWERMAC SUPERSTATION 6100/80 16/500. Color monitor mouse keyboard & 4 graphics software $1495 call 256-0080

Bahamas round trip for 2. $200. 549-6549

Rollerblades size 10 men's. Excellent condition. $75. Call Shawn 549-0261

Motorcycle 1980 CB650 custom. $150.00 for up or for parts. 253-4240. Leave Message

Computer 486DX 8meg 4x CDROM Word Proc. Soft incl. $1000.00 Greg @ 549-8969

Dog training made easy. Call 1-800-813-6465.

MAC Performa 550 All in one unit. 14" monitor, CD. Mic., loads of software, games. Great for dorm rooms. Now 253-0342

Computers cheap, laptops and desktop. All under $100. Call 6-0540

FOUND

Found gold bracelet by Berkshire Dining Commons Call 6-4851

LOST

Reward for lost at lacrosse field on Sat. March 30. If found please call 549-0289

MISCELLANEOUS

Person Wanted to own and operate retail candy shop in Amherst area. Low investment. For information call Mrs. Burden's Gourmet Candy Company Dallas, TX (214) 991-8229

Landed a job in Boston? Take the work out of finding an apartment. BOSTON BROKER (617) 262-3444 UMASS Alum

PERSONALS

Matty #66 Football
Thank you for Monday
Love
Your Sweetheart

Erin, You live at Crestview. I really hope to hear from you. You have the clearest eyes I ever saw. I am what you thought I was. I just got goofy that day because I wanted to meet you. It would be awesome if you called. Use my folks number and ask for my new number. See ya, Mark

ROMMATE WANTED

Female Housemates Wanted to share 6 bdrm house on N. Amherst. Great location, on bus route, low rent plus utilities. Starts 6/1. Call Amy at 549-7076 for more info.

Looking for roomates to share three bedroom apartment in Townhouses. I have a dog and cat. Call Becky at 549-6298. Males or females okay.

SERVICES

WORDPROCESSING SERVICE for theses, articles, papers. Written or recorded transcription. Fax transmission available (413) 243-8080

Let Me Do Your Typing. Papers. Resumes. Call Joe 546-6738

Pregnant? Need Help? Call Birthright of Amherst area for free testing and caring Assistance. 549-1906

THE MARIJUANA CONNECTION INFO LINE 1-900-370-HEMP 7-99/min. 18+ TT outline 8019436135

LANDSCAPING

Spring cleanup, shrub trimming, pruning, planting, debris removal. Call 549-1997 for a free estimate.

SUMMER SUBLET

Summer Sublet w/fall Option Spacious, sunny room in 2bdrm apt on bus line. $225/Mo. Roomkoing, female preferred. Call 665-0092

One Bedroom Colonial Village. Bus stop at door. Available June 1st. Call 253-1778.

3 Bedroom Putton Apt. available June 1st Call 549-6694

3 Bedroom Apt. in Putton Village starting June 1. Gas, heat, AC, water incl. Option to lease. Call 549-8821 for more info.

1BR Apt - 10 minutes walk to Amherst Center. 360 per month all utilities. Bede 256-0767

Brandywine 2 Bedroom Apartment Option to Lease! Call 549-8520

Summer or summer/fall sublet. Brandywine 2 bedroom, cheap. Call 549-6729

Bedroom in Presidential Apt., walking distance, call 549-4042

Looking For Summer Sublet in Mill Valley. $715 month Call Kelly 253-7157

SUMMER SUBLET

2 Bedroom apt at brandywine. Option to lease. Available June 1st. $720 off monthly rent. Call 549-8887

TO SUBLET

Take over leases June 1. Spacious 2 bdrm apt. Heat and hot water inc. $695/Mo. 253-0864

TRAVEL

Come Join In The Adventure!! Come White Water Rafting with UMSC & UMDC! May 31 - June 2. Only $159! Call us: 5-3437

WANTED

Some friends and I are going abroad for the fall semester. We are looking for some people who are leaving after the fall semester, to split an experiment (up/down preferred). You take fall, we'll take spring. Call 549-5681. Ask for Steph.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 "The — of Wakefield"
6 Hollywood's industry
10 Entranced
14 In unison
15 Fnend in need
16 Grand Ole —
17 Ruffians
18 School excursion
20 Dirt
22 Bumped into
23 Poetic form
24 Stevenson villain
26 Slandered
28 Abel
29 Literary lioness
31 More than a cold
32 — es Salaam
33 Parton or Madison
35 Sierra-Nevada resort
39 Mighty mite
41 Do, re, mi, etc.
43 Jazzman Herbie
44 Supports an ankle
46 Stiff swigs
48 "— My People Go"
49 Dispose of
51 Cabbage salad
52 At a distance
53 World
57 Mere
59 Sermon subject
60 Pianist Cliburn
61 Hex
62 When to rake leaves
65 Self-confidence
68 "Quo Vadis?" emperor
69 Troika
70 Loosen, in a way
71 Increase
72 Trickle
73 Irksome ones

DOWN
1 Sizable container
2 Somewhat Suffix
3 Medicated candy
4 Furious
5 Dwell
6 "Funny —"
7 Under the weather
8 Andean animal
9 Yours truly
10 Go bad
11 Chat's cover
12 Vanity
13 Sorted
19 Height enhancer
21 Honeydew
24 Holding a grudge against
25 Cattle catcher
26 Hammett's falcon
27 One of the Manaras
30 Litterbug
34 Raise one's voice
36 Lingerie items
37 "Paper Moon" star
38 Way in 40 Griffin
42 Postage
45 Strainer
47 Use a broom
50 Chilly breezes
53 "That's — your head!"
54 Forty—
55 Short opening speech
56 Trap
58 Solitary
61 Spill, with "over"
63 — goes it?
64 Commit perjury
66 Preside at court
67 USNA grad.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

O	R	A	L		E	V	A	D	E		T	R	A	P
R	A	V	E		T	E	T	O	N		H	E	R	O
B	R	E	A	T	H	L	E	S	S		E	P	E	E
		E	R	R	A	N	D		E	E	R	I	E	S	T
				P	I	T			M	O	R	N
B	I	O	T	I	C		G	A	S		T	A	P
E	R	R	O	R		G	A	L	E		A	M	E
V	E	N	T		A	I	S	L	E		E	N	D	O
E	N	A		A	L	L	O	Y		B	A	C	O	N
L	E	M		P	L	A	N		P	E	T	E	R	S
		E	A	S	E			C	O	G
L	A	N	T	E	R	N		R	O	U	T	E	S
I	N	T	O		G	O	V	E	R	N	M	E	N	T
E	T	A	L		E	M	O	T	E		E	L	E	E
S	E	L	L		N	E	W	E	R		N	Y	E	T

3/5/96

By Norma Steinberg
© 1996 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Daily Horoscope

ARIES (March 21 – April 19) — An unusual financial or credit arrangement could prove quite profitable. You reach a mutually beneficial agreement. A give-and-take attitude will pay off royally.

TAURUS (April 20 – May 20) — Your shrewd insights about people can be turned to financial advantage. The job scene becomes livelier when a change of personnel puts you in a more powerful position.

GEMINI (May 21 – June 20) — Showcase your special talents and skills. Concentrating on projects you can handle alone will produce the best results. An out-of-town visitor will brighten your weekend.

CANCER (June 21 – July 22) — Although your social life is rewarding, you could get some flack about the amount of money you are spending. Keep the books up-to-date if joint funds are concerned.

LEO (July 23 – Aug. 22) — Secret activities sound interesting but may not be as profitable as anticipated. Stick with practical ideas and conventional methods. Discussing your personal affairs with strangers would be a mistake.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 – Sept. 22) — You will get more mileage out of you efforts if you avoid squabbling with your co-workers. Zero in on good news. A financial breakthrough comes in the nick of time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 – Oct. 22) — The people around you today will respond favorably to a congenial approach. Loved ones may be overly demanding. Set some ground rules. This evening, dine in an out-of-the-way restaurant with your romantic partner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 – Nov. 21) — A long-held dream of success is about to come true. Be careful not to reveal too much to a new acquaintance. You will enjoy being in the limelight. Share it only with the deserving.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 – Dec. 21) — If communication skills count, you will be a winner today! Your finances will soon receive a boost from a business operation. A shopping trip will be much easier if you leave the children at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 – Jan. 19) — If a conflict between family life and outside interests arises, do everything you can to defuse the situation. Welcome suggestions from all concerned before deciding on a solution.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 – Feb. 18) — Although conditions at home have begun to improve, it still may not be smooth sailing. The romantic outlook brightens for both married couples and singles.

PISCES (Feb. 19 – March 20) — Your friendships with people in positions of influence should prove advantageous. Use these contacts judiciously. Avoid people who seek access to your resources. A flirtation could easily lead to something more. Know your heart.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

Jim's Journal By Jim

Tony came to the store today. "Feast your eyes on this," he said.
He showed me a photo he got from an actress he wrote to.
She signed the photo, but we couldn't make out what she wrote.
"But still," Tony said. He winked and made a clicking noise with his tongue.

Generation X By Chris Lehman

Kippil By Barry Deutsch

HOW DO YOU THINK YOUR PARENTS WILL TAKE YOUR EXPULSION?
THEY'LL BE FINE IF I SET IT UP RIGHT.
DAD? HI! ASK MOM TO PICK UP THE EXTENSION, OKAY?
OH, FINE... THAT YOU MOM? GREAT!
I JUST WANTED TO LET YOU BOTH KNOW- I'M A HOMOSEXUAL!
SEE, NOW THEY'LL KEEP THE EXPULSION IN PERSPECTIVE.

Loold By Roger & Salem Salloom

My mother was sitting at the kitchen table crying. She says she's on vacation all next week but she's so broke she can't afford to leave the house. She says her job is making her poor.

Mom shuts off the lights around the house, and she uses as little soap as possible to wash things. At the supermarket she's not relaxed.. she's serious.

She started to cry again when I told her I love her.

I said, "Mom we're not poor. We're too broke to be poor. We'd need another $50 bucks a week to be poor... We're free."

She said, "Yeah... free to be poor." I was confused but I felt much better. She has a way with words.

Close to Home By John McPherson

"Since it's almost certain you'll need another bypass in 10 years, we were wondering if we could implant this small time capsule in you as a gesture of good will to the surgeons who will work on you then."

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

I ONCE DID A REPAIR JOB HERE, SO I KNOW MY WAY AROUND!
AH, HERE'S THE LITTLE BEAUTY -- JUST AS I REMEMBER HER!
IS SOMETHING AMISS, HONEY?
IT'S THAT ROBIN HOOD CROCK! CAN'T GET HIM OUT OF MY MIND!

Bastards By Matt & Greg

CHECK THIS OUT, $15 MILLION IN CUTS.
THEY SHOULDN'T CUT HIGHER EDUCATION.
I FINAL Lib & L Tues. 7:30
...AND YOUR FINAL WILL BE...
PROFESSOR, ARE THERE ANY MORE TESTS AFTER THE FINAL EXAM?
OKAY, MAYBE THEY AREN'T CUTTING HIGHER EDUCATION.

Dilbert By Scott Adams

DOGBERT VERSUS CATBERT
I UNDERSTAND YOU'VE SENTENCED DILBERT TO DEATH.
IS THAT A PROBLEM?
MY ASSISTANT, BOB THE DINOSAUR, WILL NOW DEMONSTRATE HOW TO GIVE A CAT A "FUR WEDGIE."
I'VE BEEN PARDONED. SOMEHOW THEY LOST THE PAPERWORK ORDERING MY EXECUTION.
IT PROBABLY FELL INTO A CRACK.

Small Potatoes By Jon Art

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Matt Vatour
Copy Editor ..... Laura Stock
Photo Technician ..... Thang Vo
Production Supervisor ..... Dave Voldan
Production ..... Matt Audette
Noel Onital

Today's D.C. Menu

Berkshire

LUNCH	DINNER
Tacos	Breaded Chicken Tenders
Raditore/Tomato Sauce	Veggie Gumbo Casserole
Vegetable Taco	Pasta-B's

Franklin

LUNCH	DINNER
Mesquite Chicken Sand.	Breaded Chicken Tenders
Hot Beef Sand.	Stuffed Shells in Sauce
Captain's Catch/Sesame Roll	Qtr. Lb. Burger
	Qtr. Lb. Cheddar Burger

Hampshire

LUNCH	DINNER
Hamburger	Breaded Chicken Tenders
Chicken Cutlet Sand.	Stuffed Shells in Sauce
Captains Catch/Sesame	Stoned Willy's Pizza
Stoned Willy's Pizza	Summit Subs
Summit Subs

Worcester

LUNCH	DINNER
Tacos	Breaded Chicken Tenders
Raditores/Tomato Sauce	Veggie Gumbo Casserole
Vegetable Taco	Pasta-B's
Stoned Willy's Pizza	Stoned Willy's Pizza
	Half Time Deli

Attention Collegian staff members:

Mandatory all staff meeting

Thursday, April 18th, 6:00 pm

Thursday, April 18th, 6:00 pm

Thursday, April 18th, 6:00 pm

April

please contact department heads for details

Quote of the Day

"Love is the condition in which the happiness of another person is essential to your own."

–Robert Heinlein

'Stranger in a Strange Land'

Sports

UM gymnasts set for Regionals

By Steven Grant
Collegian Staff

Even though he knows tomorrow's meet is probably the biggest in the history of Massachusetts women's gymnastics, coach Dave Kuzara seems to be relaxed and confident as the big day approaches.

J. J. Tolhurst

This year's Atlantic 10 champs will have been to the NCAA Northeast Regional before, but never with as much talent and as good a chance to win as this year's squad.

The Minutewomen are 9-4, with three of the four losses to top-10 teams. They've beaten the last seven teams they've faced and they're the healthiest they've been all season. Yet they're only seeded fifth out of the seven teams involved in tomorrow's meet. That fact hardly phases Kuzara, though.

"I think we're going to win the meet," said the A-10 Coach of the Year, predicting a trip to the NCAA Championships. "No one has any idea how good we are. I think any one of the top five seeds is good enough to be seeded first.

"The pressure is not on us. We've never won the meet before. I think the pressure is on Penn St., the host of the meet, or maybe Kent St.

"The key is going to be whether or not we can stay focused," he added. "There are seven teams competing and hence a lot of distractions. Even when we're done competing we don't know if we won or lost. We have to stay focused on ourselves."

The six other teams at the Regionals will be Kent St., Penn St., Ohio St., New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Pittsburgh. The Minutewomen have already beaten Rhode Island twice, 191.775-188.250 and 191.925-188.000 and New Hampshire, 191.050-190.250, in head-to-head competition.

Junior Lianne Laing, A-10 Co-Freshman of the Year Denise Johnson and senior J.J. Tolhurst are all tied for the season best in the vault event with a 9.850. Laing, also holds the top mark in the floor exercise with a 9.900, and is tied with freshman Anita Sunyal on the balance beam with a 9.800.

Junior Tara Swartz owns not only the season best on the uneven bars with a 9.950, but that mark is also the school record. Swartz, the A-10 Gymnast of the Year, also holds this year's best score in the all-around with a 39.050.

A good sign is that the highest team point total was scored in its most recent, and most significant meet, the A-10 Championships. UMass managed a 191.925 when it needed it most.

"It's going to take a total team effort," Liang said of the Regionals. "This meet is so important. It's all or nothing."

"Coming here," Johnson added, "I didn't think I'd be in this position [having such a good chance of winning Regionals] this soon. I didn't really know what to expect. If the team really puts together a good effort, I like our chances."

Kuzara pointed out that in past years, if his club put forth its best effort at Regionals, and if other teams didn't fare as well, UMass could have won the meet. This time around, he strongly believes, all it will take is the former.

"We have to perform like we did at the A-10s," he said. "The object will be to distract the other teams [by performing well]. This meet serves as a stepping stone to Nationals. You can see it and feel it in practice. This team honestly feels it can make an impact at that meet. I'm really excited. We certainly don't feel like Saturday is the last day for us."

Lianne Laing

Men's lax out to avenge previous losses to Hens

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

On paper, Saturday's 1 p.m. men's lacrosse battle between No. 16 Massachusetts and unranked Delaware in Newark, Del. would appear to favor the visitors, but it is indeed the Minutemen who have something to prove.

While UMass leads the all-time series with the Fightin' Blue Hens 6-2, the last two outings have gone to Delaware. Former UMass coach Ted Garber pointed to the 1994 loss to Delaware as a key to the Minutemen not making the NCAA Tournament, while last year's 16-15 defeat at Richard F. Garber Field was also particularly heartbreaking.

So this year the Minutemen (4-3) are looking to repay the Blue Hens (6-4) with a loss at their home field.

"The Delaware team feels very confident in their ability to beat UMass," UMass coach Greg Cannella said.

The Minutemen will have a new ingredient in the mix this year. Assistant coach Chris Burdick, who is in his first year as a UMass assistant worked in a similar capacity at Delaware before coming to Amherst. Cannella said that Burdick's knowledge of the Delaware program will be valuable.

"Obviously he knows their personnel very well and their system very well," Cannella said. "He's put together probably the most thorough scouting report that we've ever had. The guys realize that this is an important game for him. He's a full-blooded UMass guy now."

Turn to LAX page 7

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Buddy Hoffman, who has 19 goals and four assists on the season, will lead the UMass lacrosse team into battle against Delaware this weekend.

Basit officially inks intent to attend UMass

The Massachusetts men's basketball team officially added its fifth recruit for next year's squad Wednesday.

Ahmed Basit, a 6-foot-9 center/forward from St. Anthony's High School in Jersey City, N.J. gave UMass a verbal commitment just after the early signing period in November, but had to wait until the spring signing period to make it official.

Basit averaged 16 points, 15 rebounds and four blocked shots during his senior season.

He helped lead St. Anthony's to a New Jersey state title and the No. 1 High School ranking by USA Today. St. Anthony's is coached by legendary coach Bob Hurley. The father of Sacramento Kings point guard Bobby Hurley and Seton Hall senior Danny Hurley.

Basit joins a recruiting class that includes guards Monty Mack (Boston) and Winston Smith (Elizabeth, N.J.) and forwards Mike Bahul (North Attleborough) and Chris Kirkland (Pittsburgh, Penn.).

Along with Kirkland and Mack, Basit has yet to qualify academically, but still has opportunities to do so. Bahul and Smith have already reached the NCAA's minimum eligibility standards.

— Matt Vautour

Weekend games to get softball on track

By Fred Hurlbrink, Jr.
Collegian Staff

After suffering a tie at the hands of the less-than-good Hartford Hawks, what the Massachusetts softball team needed was a quick pick-me-up.

Yesterday's game against Harvard was cancelled.

So, coach Elaine Sortino and her charges will have to wait until this weekend to get back on track as the Minutewomen host double-dips against St. Joseph's on Saturday and Temple on Sunday.

The Hawks boast an impressive 24-6 record, not having lost more than two games in a row all season. But, their competition has not been as stiff as that of the Minutewomen. Their schedule includes Saginaw Valley State, Ferris State, and Longwood College.

Of St. Joe's six losses, one came in the second game of a doubleheader against Long Island University, a team the Minutewomen pummeled in their early season meeting.

The Hawks have a spectacular offense led by junior third baseman Danielle Cavone. She leads the team in batting average (.442), home runs (4), RBI (22) and every other major offensive category. Impressive, considering the team's second-leading hitter is batting .426 with three dingers. Five Hawks' regulars are still batting at a .400 clip or better.

Reading native, junior Megan Kennedy, is also in the hit parade, batting .365 with 18 runs batted in. Kennedy logs most of her playing time in the infield.

Janielle Hoffman is the ace of a solid St. Joseph's pitching corps. The junior hurler comes into the weekend with an 11-1 mark and a 1.53 ERA. She has held opponents to a meager .223 average, allowing a mere 69 hits in 78 innings pitched.

Junior pitcher Christa Engleman (5-2, 1.24 ERA, 9 games) and sophomore Chris Sweeney (7-3, 2.49, 12 games) also spend considerable time on the hill for fifth-year coach Charlie Wiemers.

Coach Carol Kashow's Temple Owls also bring a better-than-average record into this weekend's contests. The Owls come in at 22-12, 6-1 in the Atlantic 10, having won nine of their last 11, including a 1-0, 14-inning victory over UConn.

Unlike the Hawks, Temple's offense is sputtering, with the exception of senior Coleen Beighly and sophomore Kristen Jasonides, the only two Owls with averages better than .300. Beighly leads the team with 32 hits and a .356 mark. She has scored 12 runs and driven in 11.

Beighly's counterpart, Jasonides provides most of the power behind Temple's record. She has collected a team-high 41 total bases along with 16 RBI, while batting an even .300.

The number one pitcher for the Owls is senior Desiree Wallace. Wallace, a native of San Diego, Calif., sports a 14-8 record with a stellar 1.48 ERA in 151 2/3 innings of work. In those innings, the Owls' workhorse has allowed only 141 base runners while holding opponents to a slim .198 batting average.

Jen Crabb, senior jack of all trades Temple, has an 8-4 mark as a pitcher, boasting a decent 2.42 ERA in 16 games. As a batter, Crabb is hitting .281, good for third on the Temple list, and has driven in 13 runs.

The Minutewomen look for a solid showing this weekend to get back on track after being derailed by Hartford.

UM tennis drops two; Williams, BC prevail

By Mike Corey
Collegian Staff

If there's such a thing as a good loss, the Massachusetts women's tennis team played in just that yesterday afternoon in a 5-2 defeat at the hands of Boston College.

COLLEGIAN FILE

The Massachusetts women's tennis team dropped two matches this week, falling to Boston College and Williams.

UMass assistant coach Tom Lowry felt his team responded better in this match than in the 4-3 loss to Williams on Wednesday.

"BC is a national powerhouse," Lowry said. "The difference again today was the strength of schedule. BC plays against top 25 teams in Division 1, they've been ranked in the top 50 this season, and have six players on scholarship."

The match was played on three indoor courts at BC and on a seven point system. UMass played the six singles matches first, in which they dropped the first five matches, only winning the No. 6 match. Lana Goredetskaya defeated Judith Kinasewitz 6-2, 1-6, 6-3.

No. 1 singles player Liesl Sitton lost for the first time this spring, to Shannon Byrne 6-4, 6-4. Caroline Steele lost at No. 2 singles, as did Jackie Braunstein at the No. 3 spot.

Liz Durant battled back from a 5-2 deficit in the first set only to lose 7-5, 6-2. Marie-Christine Caron gave up a 4-1 lead in the second set but also lost 7-5, 6-2 in the first.

"I was looking for the girls to play through their nerves, and I wanted to see them get to a couple more third sets. We didn't serve well and it put too much pressure on break points," Lowry said.

After the singles UMass did play impressive in the doubles winning the point as they took two out of the three matches. Sitton and Steele were victorious 8-6 over Sarah and Christine Malone. Braunstein and Durant dropped their match 8-2, but Goredetskaya and Caron won the No. 3 match 8-3 over Mary Moulton and Carey Ann Denefrio.

"This is the biggest win ever for UMass doubles," Lowry said. "It's the highest ranked team we've ever won

Turn to TENNIS, page 6

Water polo to play twinbills

By Jen Ryder
Collegian Correspondent

The Massachusetts women's water polo team heads back into action this weekend with four home games to be played at the Amherst College pool.

The No. 17 Minutewomen (8-4 overall, 3-1 EWPA) will be playing in home waters for the first time this season. They are coming off a 3-1 performance two weeks ago at the EWPA New England North Tournament, where they lost to then No. 14 Harvard. Impressive wins so far this season include then No. 12 Loyola Marymount, 13-9 and then No. 19 Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo, 7-4.

Saturday will start the first of two doubleheaders, with MIT at 4:30 p.m., followed by Dartmouth College (2-2) at 7:30 p.m. Sunday's games feature Wellesley College at 11:30 a.m. No. 13 Harvard University (4-0) rounds up the weekend at 2:30 p.m.

The Minutewomen defeated MIT on March 30 with a

Turn to POLO page 7

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Swing batta!

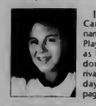
The Massachusetts baseball team will face back-to-back doubleheaders against Rhode Island this weekend. The Minutemen will get back into the swing of things after snow wreaked havoc on their schedule this week.

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CV Issue 114 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Tuesday, April 16, 1996

Primus rocks Mullins Center

Les Claypool led his trio, Primus, through a crazy night of bass orientated tunes at the Mullins Center. Check out our review (See Arts & Living, page 7).

Cardenas named Player of the Week



Junior Sam Cardenas was named A-10 Softball Player of the Week as UMass swept a doubleheader of rival Temple yesterday. (See sports, page 12).

WORLD

Russia unveils Trojan gold

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia unveiled a stunning collection of gold from ancient Troy on Monday - the most dramatic volley yet in its battle with Germany over World War II "trophy" art that had been shrouded in secrecy for a half-century.

"This show should have been opened long ago," museum director Irina Antonova told a news conference. "These are remarkable treasures of the past."

The Trojan Gold, also known as King Priam's Treasure, was excavated by a German amateur archeologist, Heinrich Schliemann, in 1873 and sent to Berlin. He was convinced at the time that it belonged to Priam, king of the city that was featured in Homer's epic, The Iliad. However, the hoard - discovered in what is now northwestern Turkey - was later determined to date to the Bronze Age and about 2500 B.C., long before Homer.

The treasure, which begins a year-long public showing on Tuesday, had lain in Moscow's Pushkin Museum vaults since the victorious Red Army scooped it up in Berlin in 1945.

NATION

Balloon crash kills one

PHOENIX (AP) — A hot air balloon carrying tourists attending a car dealers conference crashed and burned in the desert Monday, killing one woman and injuring seven other people.

Eight passengers and the balloon pilot were aboard when the craft went down while trying to land near busy Interstate 17. "It was attempting to land in the open desert when for unknown reasons it began to roll as it struck the ground," said Detective Mike McCullough, a police spokesman. A propane tank aboard the gondola caught fire, he said.

The Federal Aviation Administration was investigating.

A 38-year-old man was hospitalized in critical condition with burns over 65 percent of his body, and a 26-year-old woman was in fair condition with burns.

Two men, ages 72 and 43, were in stable condition, and three other people were being treated at a second hospital for mostly minor injuries.

One person was not injured seriously enough to require hospitalization. None of the victims' names was immediately released.

Police said the balloon was carrying a group of tourists who were in Phoenix to attend a conference of the top 100 Chevrolet dealerships.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Wed	Thurs
HIGH: 50 LOW: 35	HIGH: 55 LOW: 45	HIGH: 60 LOW: 45

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 7
Classifieds .....page 10
Comics.....page 11
Crossword .....page 10
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 2
News .....page 3
Sports .....page 12

Ceremony at Boyden honors Greg Menton

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

The most highly touted player to come into the University of Massachusetts aquatics program has now received the highest honor.

Greg Menton, a junior member of both the men's water polo and swimming and diving team who died Jan. 10 at a swim meet at Dartmouth College, had his water polo number (six) retired at a ceremony at the Joseph R. Rogers Pool at Boyden Gym Saturday.

Approximately 250 people attended the ceremony including Menton's family, friends, teammates and many former opponents and water polo referees.

After UMass Athletic Director Bob Marcuni welcomed the crowd to the ceremony, aquatics coach Russ Yarworth recounted some of his fondest memories of Menton.

"He was a special kid and a special person," Yarworth said. "We're to celebrate his life. Greg was a special and talented athlete, but his impact on the UMass community was more than athletic achievement. He was a dedicated teammate, a true friend and a tremendous representative of the University."

Yarworth then presented Stephen Menton, Greg's brother with Greg's warm-up suit.

On the far wall of the pool area hangs a chart displaying the UMass swimming and diving records. The one name that stands out is Menton's. The Dundee, Ore. native was the first full-scholarship athlete in the aquatics program. He holds two individual records (100 yard butterfly and 100 yard backstroke) and was part of a the record holding 200-yard medley relay squad.

"The name Menton immediately grabs your attention when you look at the swimming record board," Yarworth said.

Menton was also helped lead the Massachusetts water polo team to three straight Eastern Championships. To honor Menton's water polo accomplishments, Dan Sharidan, director of the U.S. Collegiate Water Polo Association was on hand to present Gary Menton, Greg's father, with an honorary All-American certificate.

Yarworth then presented Menton's mother Stephanie with two mementos — framed photos of Menton swimming and playing water polo, and his water polo hat and swim trunks.

Just prior to the unveiling of the banner displaying Menton's retired number, Justin Murphy, a member of the men's swimming and diving squad, stepped to the microphone. The art major presented to the Menton family a painting he had done that displayed an image of Menton's face between images of him swimming and playing water polo.

"I don't think it was his athletic achievements that attracted most people to Greg," Murphy said. "It was his love of what he was doing and his love of life."

The final part of the ceremony was the actual retirement of Menton's No. 6. A large red banner with Menton's name and number was unveiled by water polo captains Luis Limardo and John Luviano and swimming and diving captains Dave LaPorte and Jeff Little. The banner now hangs at the south side of the pool.

"[Seeing the banner in the future] will be inspirational," Yarworth said. "It will be bittersweet, thinking about what could have been, but we'll do what Greg wants us to do. We'll be champions."

The athletic department also announced the forming of the Greg Menton Memorial Scholarship established in his honor.

Chancellor David K. Scott presented Menton's family with an honorary degree in sport management in a private ceremony later in the afternoon.

Protest meets Bulger on book signing visit

ELIZABETH BROWN / COLLEGIAN

Protesters gathered outside of the Campus Center on Friday to ask President William Bulger for a contract.

by Jacob W. Michaels
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts President William Bulger was met by more than 70 people marching outside the Campus Center when he came to sign copies of his book last Friday.

Members of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME), which represents trade workers, janitors and service workers, and the University Staff Association (USA), which represents clerical and technical workers, were marching to protest the lack of action on their contracts.

Protestors chanted "What do we want? Contracts! When do we want them? Now!" and carried signs as various officials on campus for the dedication of the Sylvio O. Conte National Polymer Science Center filed past (see related story).

Dave Mitchell, president of AFSCME, said the union has been working for three years without a contract, and that it took five years before it got its previous raise.

"Well, we want comparable to what the professors and professionals get throughout the University," Mitchell said. "They were given twice the raises that were offered us. We want basically the same raise package and benefits that they got."

He said they've been offered a 2.5 percent bonus and raise and a three percent raise based on merit.

Frank Olbris, president of USA, said he could not talk about the specifics of what the union wants in the new contract.

"We want fair rules for workers, a lack of abuse, and also fair treatment, and more money," Olbris said.

A flyer handed out at the march listed several other issues that are being negotiated. The first is photo identification badges which the University wants union members

Turn to PROTEST page 4

Lawsuit filed against UM fraternity

By Daniel Sullivan
Collegian Staff

A University of Massachusetts student filed a lawsuit in Northampton against Sigma Phi Epsilon UMass Alumni Corporation on Thursday.

The complaint charged the fraternity with failure to provide security at a Feb. 29 party at the fraternity house.

According to the complaint, the fraternity house failed to facilitate reasonable care to maintain the house in a safe condition and protect the plaintiff from "reasonably foreseeable criminal actions of third parties."

"We are concerned about alerting the community that these things are common," said Prosecution Attorney Jeffery A. Newman said. "We want other women to come forward and to know they have a civil remedy."

The lawsuit will be brought to a jury trial within 12 to 14 months because of a fast-track program in Massachusetts, according to Newman.

The prosecution hopes to find the name of the assailant with further investigation and the lawsuit against Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity, said Newman.

"We don't know the name of the assailant," Newman said. "Rumors say that members of the fraternity will give or know the name of the person. We are seeking to recover damages and have the assailant prosecuted."

The complaint said the plaintiff was invited to the fraternity house for a party. It also said the house failed to have an individual assigned to verify the age or identify individuals entering the fraternity house.

In the early morning of March 1, the complaint said the plaintiff was forced into a bathroom within the fraternity house by a male guest of the defendant. The plaintiff alleged she "was raped and otherwise sexually assaulted" by another male guest in the basement of the fraternity house.

Due to the fraternity's negligence, the complaint alleged, the plaintiff "suffered great pain of body and mind, and severe emotional distress." The prosecution is seeking an estimated $2 million in compensation for psychiatric and physical treatment, Newman said.

"Fraternity type rapes are not drawing enough attention," Newman said.

The Greek Area is working on bringing education about violence to the fraternity and sorority houses, said Michael Wiseman, director of Greek Affairs.

"We want programs similar to the Educator Advocate program to train fraternity and sorority members about violence," Wiseman said. "Things are in the works for next year."

"There has been a series of different meetings," Wiseman said. "People have worked together to propose changes for the Greek Area."

Sigma Phi Epsilon Corporation of UMass and the principle office of Sigma Phi Epsilon Corporation in Richmond, Va. could not be reached for comment.

Greek council examines recent rapes charge

By Anastasia Kudrez
Collegian Staff

The Greek Council meeting last Thursday was sobered by the latest blow to the University of Massachusetts Greek community, a lawsuit filed against Sigma Phi Epsilon for an alleged rape in their house.

Interfraternity Council President Jason Rose said the complaint involved a Feb. 29 exchange party with eight participating chapters. A UMass woman filed a lawsuit on Thursday, alleging she was raped at the party by another guest.

Rose expressed anger and frustration at the latest incident and the lack of pro-active preventative measures. He said Greeks talk about the problems but take no action. He told the council the executive board cannot solve the problems of the entire Greek community, and individual houses must take initiative.

"The magnitude is just enormous," he said. "We need to get a lot more serious in our discussions."

Greek leaders blame alcohol abuse for the majority of the problems. GAMMA (Greeks Advocating the Mature Management of Alcohol) prepared a risk management policy to help prevent incidents. The policy is being reviewed by Jo-Anne Thomas Vanin, dean of students and associate vice chancellor for student affairs. Rose said he hopes the policy will be the first step toward a "new" Greek community, moving away from an emphasis on alcohol.

"The traditions and rituals are taking the back seat to boozing, and it's just not right," Rose said.

Both Rose and Greek Affairs Director Michael Wiseman warned the latest incident could result in the loss of UMass chapters.

"We're going to start dropping chapters soon," Rose said. "Within two to three weeks, letters are going to be coming off houses."

> "The magnitude is just enormous," he said. "We need to get a lot more serious in our discussions."
>
> Interfraternity Council President Jason Rose

Rose later explained national chapters are scrutinizing three UMass chapters, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Theta Chi, and Pi Kappa Alpha because of incidents that occurred this academic year. Depending on their findings, the nationals could decide to disband the UMass chapters.

Several sorority leaders offered to organize community service and fundraising events with other chapters in an effort to unite the Greek system. Panhellenic Advisor Sandy Baldner called community service a "way out of these problems." Additionally, the upcoming Greek Week is planned as a "dry" event to raise money for the Everywoman's Center. It is hoped a new emphasis on dry, service-based events will strengthen and refocus the Greek area. Beyond these suggestions, Greek leaders were unsure how to address the alleged rape and reforms needed.

Darren Inverso, president of Delta Chi, proposed a "vent session" where the entire Greek community could discuss the issues. Rose said later this meeting is tentatively scheduled for April 28. It will be mediated by a third party and open to the public.

Wiseman, appearing bleary-eyed and drained, closed the council meeting. He stressed the responsibility of Greek leaders to seriously push for changes.

"No one is going to step up and do this for us," he said.

Wiseman said the new social policy is just the start of many necessary changes.

"We need to be part of the solution, not part of the problem," he said. "We've been waiting for problems to happen."

New polymer center represents past and prospects of department

ELIZABETH BROWN / COLLEGIAN

President William Bulger and Chancellor David K. Scott spoke at the dedication of the Sylvio O. Conte National Polymer Research Center on Friday at Bowker Auditorium.

By Amy H. Paradysz
Collegian Staff

Editor's note: This article is the first in a two-part series.

Friday's dedication of the Sylvio O. Conte National Polymer Research Center at the University of Massachusetts was the culmination of a team effort.

"From the idea to the completion of this facility, [it was] a long journey," said Chancellor David K. Scott.

From Professor Roger S. Porter, who in his 30 years on campus brought the various aspects of polymer science into one program; to the political skill of Conte, who secured the funding for the $56 million facility, to the 400 Ph.D. recipients of the polymer science program and 160 researchers and 90 current graduate students, it was a long haul to what President William Bulger described as a "gleaming glass and granite emblem."

Major Catherine "Cady" G. Coleman, the first UMass alumna to travel to space, said, "When I was a student... I learned formulas Dr. [Walter S.] Stockmayer wrote. And Dr. Porter taught them... I represent the future."

Coleman was one of three honorary degree of science recipients, along with Porter and Stockmayer.

After 10 years with Chevron Research Company, Porter arrived at the University of Massachusetts in 1966. In those days, studying polymer science involved separate departments, including chemistry, biochemistry, chemical engineering and physics. Porter created a cross disciplinary polymer science department. "From the polymer configurations of [his] imagination," said Provost Patricia Crosson.

Stockmayer, Albert W. Smith Professor of Chemistry Emeritus at Dartmouth College, was a visiting lecturer and advisor to the polymer science program at the University from the beginning. "With the now materials your career has made possible, we will build the future," said Crosson, before he was awarded with his honorary degree.

Principal Speaker D. Allan Bromley, "father of modern heavy ion science" and the first cabinet-level assistant to the president for science and technology, said he was asked to talk about the outlook for federal funding for science. He said he didn't think funding could be found for a project like the Conte National Polymer Research Center if the effort was begun today.

"We're in for a few tough years," he said. "And in science and in technology it's even worse."

Bromley spoke of "deep trouble" in Washington. Coleman, as keynote speaker, spoke of the 20 different colors of blue between the blue horizon and the black of space. Bromley looked pained by what he saw in Washington; Coleman was incredulous of the wonders of space, where just eating is a science experiment.

When Bromley graduated in the 1950s, "Man in space — and woman in space — was pure science fiction," he said.

"There is no horizon," said Coleman, who spoke of the team spirit she has experienced both in the polymer science department and in space.

"When you go to space, you go for a lot of people," Coleman said. She brought the University of Massachusetts flag with her for 6.6 million miles.

Coleman emphasized that she, as an honorary degree recipient, represented the alumni of the program who work in laboratories across the globe.

"I just happened to go on to a laboratory that goes a little faster," she said. "It starts in a laboratory like the one we just built. It all starts with asking why?"

For Your Information

Tuesday, April 16

Service — There will be a Holocaust Memorial Service in the Cape Cod Lounge from 12–1 p.m. Guest speaker, Erwin Staub, from the psychology department and original music by Emanuel Rubin, music department.

Lecture — "Confronting Memories of the Holocaust," Mark Weitzman will speak on the Holocaust today, current genocides and racism in the U.S., 7:30 p.m. in the Campus Center, Room 163, free.

Art Gallery — The Student Union Art Gallery will be featuring a show from undergraduate artists Rebekah Wetmore and Jean Farewell through April 19. An opening reception will be held tonight from 5–7 p.m.

Wednesday, April 17

Film — Amnesty International is presenting Bill Carter, the award-winning filmmaker for a viewing of his documentary Miss Sarajevo, and a discussion with the director himself, in Thompson 104 at 7 p.m. For more information, contact Maureen at 546–3361 or Peter at 546–4821.

Music — "Music on the Edge of Life: A Concert Talk." Music of the Holocaust, with live piano playing and slides, will be presented by Caroline Stoessinger in the Campus Center Auditorium at 8 p.m. Free.

Discussion — The Bolshevik Tendency Spring Study Group presents a discussion on The Fight for Socialism entitled "How the World We Live In Operates and A World of Imperialism and War" in the Cape Cod Lounge at 7:30 p.m.

Film — The Multicultural Film Festival will hold "An Evening of Basque Cinema" at 7 p.m. at Stirn Auditorium, Amherst College. Films featured will include La Muerte de Mikel and Accion Mutante.

Giving you a reason to get up every morning,
YOUR DAILY COLLEGIAN

Edward S. Phinney

Edward S. Phinney, 60, of Amherst, died Thursday in Northampton's Mediplex Skilled Nursing & Rehabilitation Center.

Phinney was a professor of Latin, Greek, mythology and other mythology courses at the University of Massachusetts. His Greek mythology course was extremely popular, with an enrollment of 500–600 students every semester.

Born in Bryan, Texas on Dec. 15, 1935, he was the son of Marie (Wood) Phinney of Brookville, Fla. and the late E. Sterl Phinney.

At the University of Oregon, Phinney received his bachelor's and master's degrees. In 1963, he received his doctorate from the University of California at Berkeley. After teaching at the University of Southern California, Phinney came to UMass in 1969 where he taught until his recent illness.

At UMass, Phinney remained active both in the classics department and the rest of the University. From 1981 to 1992 he chaired the classics department and he has served as director of the Foreign Language Resource Center. Phinney was also a general advisor for disability services. At both UMass and USC he was awarded as a distinguished teacher.

Outside the University, Phinney founded the Pioneer Valley Classical Association and the Classical Association of Massachusetts. He is a former president of both organizations as well as the American Classics League.

David Grose, a department colleague, remembered Phinney as "extraordinarily generous with time, both for students at UMass and for his discipline and profession."

The professor leaves his mother, his wife, Mary Catherine (Davis) Phinney of Amherst; a son, E. Sterl Phinney III, of Pasadena, Calif.; and two brothers, David Phinney of Illinois and Paul Phinney of Derry, NH.

Funeral services and burial are private. A memorial service will be announced at a later date. There are no calling hours. Douglass Funeral Home of Amherst is handling arrangements.

Memorial gifts may be made to the UMass classics scholarship fund or to the Friends of the UMass Library, both in care of the University, Amherst, 01003.

Information from The Daily Hampshire Gazette was used in this report.

Items in Kaczynski cabin further FBI's investigation

By Bob Anez
Associated Press

HELENA, Mont. — FBI agents searching Unabomber suspect Theodore Kaczynski's cabin found addresses of corporate executives, maps of San Francisco, bus schedules, guns and a bottle of anti-depressant medicine, according to an inventory released yesterday.

In a filing released in federal court, the FBI also confirmed published reports of three typewriters found in the cabin, as well as several unspecified documents and notes.

However, none of the documents were identified as the original text of the Unabomber manifesto, the 35,000-word tract published in The Washington Post last year. A source told The Associated Press last week that agents found what appeared to be the original of the diatribe against modern technology.

Kaczynski, 53, was arrested at the cabin near Lincoln two weeks ago and is being held on charges of possessing bomb components. He has not been charged with any of the Unabomber attacks, which killed three people and injured 23.

In its list, the FBI did not specifically link any of the more than 600 items to the Unabomber or his crimes and did not even use the word "Unabomber."

One item simply read: "One Calumet Baking Powder' can containing soldering wire." Another specified a pair of brown and green hiking boots with a brand name, Northwest Territory. One entry said "letters"; another read simply "documents." Dozens of the entries were for chemicals. A pipe bomb was found, as was an "improvised explosive device" in a cardboard box, and five guns. Among the weapons were a .25-caliber gun, bolt-action .22-caliber rifle, Remington model 30-06, .22 caliber black-handle revolver and a hand-made gun.

A bottle of Trazadone, a prescription anti-depressant drug, was found.

The list also described a hooded jacket, a blue zippered sweatshirt and hood and two pairs of plastic glasses. A witness who saw the Unabomber plant one bomb described him as wearing a hooded sweatshirt and aviator glasses, resulting in the widely circulated composite sketch.

■ protest

continued from page 1

to wear, and the second involves procedures for lay-offs and recall bumping, which are used by the University to downsize the staff.

Mitchell said the unions are not actually negotiating with Bulger, but with the President's Office, which operates under him.

"We're here today to let him know that... the working class people on this campus are without a contract and we would like him to do something about it," Mitchell said.

Bulger said he thought the contract negotiations were near completion.

"I understand the major parts of it have been worked out," he said. "The pay raise has been taken care of. It sounds to me as though the parts that are left having to do with the name tag, that's very close to closure, and the whole matter, which is more complex, of bumping is being close to worked out. So there's reason for optimism."

However, Mitchell said negotiations between AFSCME and the University were "not very close" to being resolved.

Olbris also expressed some doubt about how close the parties were to agreement.

"While we've made progress since we went into mediation, but we're not quite there yet," he said.

The next mediation session is scheduled for April 22.

There is another rally planned for noon today outside Whitmore Administration building.

Although he arrived late because ceremonies at the Conte Center went past their expected time, Bulger had a steady flow of people wanting him to sign copies of his book, While The Music Lasts: My Life in Politics.

In an interview, Bulger also said complaints that it took him a long time to come to campus to speak with students were unfair.

"I'm talking to them all the time," he said. "We're seeing them around."

BioSci Guest Lecture Series Presents
"The Natural Superiority of Western Civilization"

A talk by . . .
Richard A. Goldsby Ph.D.
Simpson Lecturer
and Professor of Biology
at Amherst College

Today, April 16 at 4:30 p.m. in Morril Science II, room 319.
ALL ARE INVITED TO ATTEND

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK
One Way Roundtrip
LONDON $212 $399
PARIS $224 $427
SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA $235 $446
TOKYO Roundtrip $851
Scheduled flights. Fares to worldwide destinations. Eurailpasses Available.
Weekend surcharges may apply. Customs, immigration taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l student ID cards may be required.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave. NY, NY 10173
212-986-8420*
800-272-9676
*In NYC

MOVING?
DOMESTIC OR INTERNATIONAL
For Rates & Services
Toll Free
800-752-6773
http://www.trade-exhibit.com

The
Edwin M. Rossman
ALUMNI CAREER FORUM
Departments of Microbiology and Biochemistry & Molecular Biology

Date: Tuesday, April 16, 1996
Time: 7:30 PM
Location: Lederle Graduate Research Center Tower C, Room 1634

Sponsored by:
• Mather Career Center
• Alumni Association
• Departments of Microbiology and Biochemistry & Molecular Biology

Take this opportunity to meet with alumni and discuss their experiences in the working world. Don't miss this panel discussion!

OPEN TO ALL STUDENTS IN THE BIOSCIENCES

Alumni Panelists:

Maria Atkinson Microbiology '93	Technical Research Associate Brigham and Women's Hospital
Stephen Ellis Microbiology '93	Sequencing Coordinator Millennium Pharmaceuticals, Inc.
John McNamara Biochemistry & Molecular Biology '94	Peptide Synthesis Production Coordinator Quality Controlled Biochemicals

Call For Nominations For Election Of The 1996-97 Executive Committee of The Graduate Student Senate

Available Positions

PRESIDENT - serves as chief administrative officer of the Graduate Student Senate; chairs the Executive Committee, Student Affairs Subcommittee of the Graduate Council; holds regular office hours; speaker of the Senate, and other duties.
Approximately 20 hours/week; June 1, 1996 - May 31, 1997, $9,378 stipend, tuition waiver & GEO health benefits for academic year, and approximately $3,000 for summer.

VICE PRESIDENT - chairs the Election Committee, vice chair of Finance Committee, serves on other committees, and other duties in the senate.
Approximately 20 hours/week; September 1, 1996 - May 31, 1997; $9,378 stipend, tuition waiver for academic year & GEO health benefits.

TREASURER - chief financial officer of the senate; chair of Finance Committee; manages Trust Fund; overseas Line Item, Ad Hoc funding & Revenue Sharing, finances & accounting records, & development of budget; serves on committees.
Approximately 20 hours/week; June 1, 1996 - May 31, 1997, $9,378 stipend, tuition waiver & GEO health benefits for academic year, and approximately $3,000 for summer.

EXECUTIVE OFFICER - coordinates all GSS committee appointments & acts as liaison between University & the GSS; serves on committees, & other duties in the senate.
Approximately 20 hours/week; September 1, 1996 - May 31, 1997; $9,378 stipend, tuition waiver & GEO health benefits for academic year.

ELIGIBILITY: All Graduate Senate tax-paying students at the Amherst campus of the University of Massachusetts.

NOMINEES must submit their names to the Graduate Student Senate office in writing NO LATER THAN 5 PM, TUESDAY, 30th APRIL 1996.

CANDIDATES' NIGHT WILL BE HELD TUESDAY, 30th APRIL, 7:15 PM, IN CAMPUS CENTER ROOM 804-08.

Candidates are expected to present a 3-5 minute talk and answer questions.

Balloting begins at GSS General Meeting on Tuesday, 7th MAY, and continues Wednesday & Thursday, 8th & 9th, MAY 10 AM - 6PM in front of the Grad Lounge on the Campus Center Concourse.

For More Information, Contact the Grad Student Senate Office, 919 Campus Center, 545-2896.

Students clean out Sylvan Brook

By Christina Heaphy
Collegian Correspondent

An enthusiastic group of a dozen young people met over the long weekend despite the wintery chill to give Sylvan Brook a spring cleaning.

They found broken bottles, horse shoes, rusty chicken wire and mattress springs, and spent Saturday digging it up, dragging it out, and piling it up.

The cleanup was the first on the University of Massachusetts campus sponsored by MassPIRG, Americorps and WaterWatch. They chose the area after talking to students who had seen desks, chairs and beer bottles strewn on the forest floor.

Jeremy Mailloux scanned the banks of the brook and said, "Basically what you are seeing is a landfill." He explained that it was common practice around the turn of the century for local farmers to dump their garbage and old farm machinery in the nearby streams. "These old dumps were just catch-all's for trash."

Co–coordinators Dave Finks and Mailloux planned the event for about a month as part of Fink's internship and Mailloux's independent study with MassPIRG. They hoped 20 to 30 students would come out to help, but only about half that came, probably due to the holiday weekend. They expected the cleanup behind Sylvan Residence Hall would draw students living there, but none of the students who came were residents of the hall.

At the suggestion of a friend who lives on his hallway, sophomore Marc Lussier came out to help. He pulled a jagged piece of glass that read "celery compound" out of the dirt and tossed it into a white potato sack. He said, "I didn't think it was as bad as it is. I've never been back here before. [It's] interesting to see how much it's been used as a dump."

As they found larger debris, the volunteers made a pile of scrap metal by the road so Physical Plant could pick it up. After only an hour of work, the pile of rusty barrels, wire, and even a stove with four cast iron legs still attached, stood four feet tall and 15 feet wide.

Karsten Jung, a computer science graduate student from Germany, rolled a rusted tractor tire rim up the to the pile. He is a volunteer with WaterWatch, as well as Free the Planet, a politically active environmental group.

"It is a lot of fun to do this," he said. "By lobbying and writing letters you never see a result, and here you see the effort with every piece of metal you dig out."

Catherine Heins, a full–time Americorps member with a focus on WaterWatch, raked the leaves with a shovel.

"You don't think it is that big a deal, it's only one stream, and Amherst is pretty clean. But we've done three of these now and they all look like this, and they all eventually drain into the Mill River," she said. You can talk about it all you want, but once it's here [in the ground], the only way to get rid of it is to pull it out, which is why nobody has done it."

Mailloux said that there was no way to clean up the whole brook in one day, and is considering coming back for another day before the end of the semester.

ELIZABETH BROWN / COLLEGIAN

Jeremy Mailloux, a first year English major, replants a bush on Saturday during MASSPIRG's Water Watch project behind Sylvan Residential Halls.

Collegian Advertising Representative
Contest Winner
Tony Cielake
Has Won a Gift Certificate to . . .
ANTONIO'S
È SEMPRE BUONA

The Distinguished Visitor's Program Proudly Presents:
J. P. Vaswani
Hindu spiritual leader, philosopher, author and lecturer
"Never Give Up"

Previous speaking engagements
• House of Commons in London, "World without Wars"
• Inter-Faith Conference during the 50th Anniversary of the United Nations
• Keynote speaker at the Centennial Celebration of the World Parliament of Religions

Tuesday, April 16, 1996
5:00 p.m.
UMass Campus Center Auditorium
Free Admission
Call 545-0046 for more information

LOW-COST FLIGHTS TO EUROPE!
GO FOR THE SUMMER — STAY UP TO THREE MONTHS!
Convenient Mid-Week and Weekend BOSTON DEPARTURES!

LONDON	from $449
AMSTERDAM	from $499
FRANKFURT	from $579
BRUSSELS	from $639
PARIS	from $639
MILAN/ROME	from $709
ATHENS	from $779

Peak season prices higher

Mix 'n' Match — Fly Into One City and Out of Another!
Fly to 54 European cities, including
Venice • Amsterdam • Nice • Munich
Stockholm • And many more!

NON-STOP or DIRECT transatlantic flights via wide-bodied regularly scheduled jets!
FOR ALL FLIGHTS: Prices are per person, roundtrip, capacity-controlled and subject to change. Some restrictions may apply. Subject to applicable change/cancellation fees. Prices do not include applicable Government taxes currently $1.45 APHIS fee, $3.00 Passenger Facility Charge, $12.50 U.S. Customs/Immigration fee (Westbound), $5.00 Airline Security Fee each way (total $10.00) and any applicable foreign departure tax. There is a mandatory $10.50 Federal Express charge for all Europe bookings.
Seats are limited . . . call Your TRAVEL AGENT or 1-800-CALL-GWV!
GWV International
The Northeast's Leading Vacation Specialist!
GW 2240 3/96

Puffton Village – Your First Choice
1, 2 and 3 bedroom apartments.

Featuring:
Newly renovated units that include:
• New appliances
• New Carpeting
• New kitchen cabinets & counter tops
• Central air conditioners
Rents starting at $590 per month

or

Traditional units that are:
• Fully applianced
• Freshly painted
• Carpeted/Tiled Floors
• Central Air conditioned
Rents starting at $525 per month

All rents include Heat, Hot Water & Cooking Gas and use of an olympic size pool, 5 tennis courts, basketball court, laundry rooms and on-site parking.

Now accepting rental applications for summer and fall. Call today 549-0145

Puffton Village Apartments • 1040 North Pleasant St., Amherst, Mass

Casino Night 96

FRIDAY
APRIL 19, 1996
7:00PM - 2:00AM

CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM
UMASS AMHERST
ADMISSION $ 5.00
-GAMES WILL BE PLAYED FOR CASH-

THIS EVENT IS A FUNDRAISER FOR THE OFFICE OF ALANA AFFAIRS.
CO-SPONSORS: AHORA, ASIAN AMERICAN STUDENTS ASSOCIATION, BLACK STUDENT UNION, CAMPUS CENTER BLUEWALL, CAMPUS CENTER HOTH, CASA DOMINICANA, THE DAILY COLLEGIAN

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor in Chief Marni E. Hellner Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gurley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Lisa Chiu Senior Diversity Editor

Tara Mk Connelly Arts & Living Editor Sean Gibson Staff Artist
Gregory Cosmir Co-Black Affairs Editor Anna Lotto Co-Women's Issues Editor
Humphries Brown III Co-Black Affairs Editor Hannah Thorne Co-Women's Issues Editor
Samantha Ghosh Co-Developing Nations Editor Tom Morse Editorial Production Manager
Ibrahim Ali Co-Developing Nations Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Bob Dunn Editorial Cartoon Editor Eric R. Remillard Dr. Finance Manager
Lisa M. Oliver Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor Lee Werner Distribution Manager
Anna Feder Jewish Affairs Editor Position Vacant Classifieds Manager
Lisa Chiu Multicultural Affairs Editor Julie A. Henry Operations Manager
Ann Paradiso News Editor Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Emily Reis Photography Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Candice Flemming Sports Editor Thomas F. Sweeney Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the Massachusetts Collegian in 1915, the Weekly Collegian in 1934 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Kids are kids, not pilots

A 7-year-old girl died last week.

Not from disease or anything acceptable like that. She died because a lot of people were really stupid.

In case you missed it, Jessica Dubroff, a 7-year-old girl from California failed in her attempt to become the youngest person ever to complete a cross-country flight last week. She, as well as her father and flight instructor were killed.

Is there some logic that most of the rational folk are missing here. Letting a 7-year-old fly a plane?

At age 7 most kids are still enjoying the simple pleasures of the sandbox, Sesame Street and Legos. But when Jessica expressed interest in flying, her family decided to cultivate her interest by giving her flying lessons.

Matt Vautour

Yeah there's a good idea.

Most parents whose elementary schooler said he or she wanted to fly would come up with a normal response, like buying the kid a kite, a model airplane, or a book about plane.

Not Mr. Dubroff.

The Dubroffs' moronics didn't just put her in danger, but anybody that happened to live anywhere under her potential flight path. As it was, the plane crashed just 25 feet away from a house.

So, in the middle of a considerable thunder storm the child took off. She took off in the middle of a storm that caused several commercial pilots to delay for fear of safety. Less than a mile later she plunged to her doom. Even after the crash, her mother still thought that kids flying planes was a good idea.

I beg people to let children fly if they want to fly," her mother said. "Clearly I would want all my children to die in a state of joy. I mean, what more could I ask for? I would prefer it was not at age 7 but, God, she went with her joy and her passion, and her life was in her hands."

Get a clue lady. At 7-years-old, there is no need to have your own life in your hands. You shouldn't have to deal with life threatening decisions at that age. While she might have operated the plane tremendously well when things are moving smoothly, you can't expect a child to be level headed as a plane goes plummeting toward the earth.

The frightening thing is that there is no law that keeps idiots like Jessica's parents from doing this.

Let's see... you need to be 16 to drive a car and 21 to drink, but you can fly an airplane at seven? That makes sense.

Now maybe some kids are capable of it. I know Mozart was composing symphonies before he was potty-trained, but the Magic Flute never put anybody in danger.

Jessica had to make the trip before May 4 or the flight wouldn't be record setting. So after only 35 hours of flight time they decided it was time for her to take on the cross country trip.

Why? So she could break a record? That's ludicrous. Even the Guiness Book of World Records eliminated any flying records that had to do with age, fearing that the record might encourage stupidity.

Parents all over are pushing kids to do too much too fast. Take every tennis player under the age of 18.

Why?

Let a kid be a kid. There will be plenty of time to be an adult. Jessica Dubroff could have flown a plane later in life. There was plenty of time. She then could have also, grew up, had a date, fell in love, gone to a prom, and... well... lived. Everybody deserves that.

It's a shame that it takes something like this to spark change, but it's time to pass a law that forbids this kind of thing from happening. The law states that you have to be 18 or older to operate factory machinery. Most people would argue that a plane is just as dangerous.

They've been together for something like four years — it was only a matter of time. Everyone really loves Lisa and we are psyched to have another addition to the family.

I don't know if she really wants us, but it's a package deal. I remember when I was a lot younger. I didn't want to be in this family, for one reason: my brother used to beat the living pulp out of me. As a matter of fact, both of my older brothers did.

"OK Tim, you try to touch the couch, Pat and I will try to stop you."

"I don't know guys..."

"Come one loser, don't be a wimp... look we'll even get on our knees."

"Oh, OK."

After I woke up, the welts healed pretty fast.

John used to jam me into a plastic toy chest and throw me down the stairs. Then he would make me defend him in Nerf basketball — there were no technical or personal fouls in this game. Actually, thinking back, I think they now call the sport rugby.

He would also make me be his catcher when he was practicing pitching. Oh yeah, he was one of the fastest left- handed pitchers, well, that I ever caught for. I had to put a sponge in my glove to soften the blow and that didn't even help.

I also remember the time when we moved to a new house, and in a desperate attempt to make new friends, I hung out with wrong crowd. The ending result was getting bruised up and having me and my bike thrown into the bushes by those jerks.

Tim White

So John, when I came home crying, ran out of the house in his socks to go stick up for his little brother. Yeah, he had his moments. Of course, when he came back, he threw a tennis ball at me for being so stupid has to even being around those kids.

Thirteen years later, he saves my tail again in a bar. Two weekends ago, I was in the bar I work at, when a fight broke out. In the middle of the brawl, John grabbed a guy who was starting with me and threw him against the jukebox. That poor guy had no idea that both my big brothers where in the bar that night — it's a good thing for him that they were in a good mood.

Hell, John helped me get the job in that bar. Wait a minute, he helped me get a job at another bar back home. Hold on, he also just helped me land a job for after I graduate. Oh yeah, and he was one of the main reasons I came to UMass.

I guess he's not such a jerk after all.

Now he's plowing the path for us again — he's the first to get married. And no one is scared or nervous. John has been doing things first for years. I guess I've always been lucky in that way, having someone to use as a tour guide through my 22 years so far.

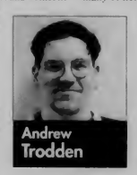
He'll probably have a kid first too. If he or she is anything like their father, they'll be the hardest hitting, fasting throwing, toughest, stand-up person around.

I'm just going to feel bad for the siblings.

Tim White is a Collegian columnist.

Here comes the sun

Her name is Vanessa. I didn't know her before this week-end and I don't know with any certainty whether or not I will ever know any more of her. But if I never see her again, I will know that for just a short while I had the pleasure of being around someone so kind that most of us can only dream of being like her.



Andrew Trodden

I met her through a friend when he and I decided to escape the weekend rituals here at UMass and practice them elsewhere. So we hopped in the car and went to visit his at her school.

At the end of the night we all returned to her apartment where the three of us sat around talking. After a couple of hours my friend passed out (passed out not fell asleep, you know the difference). I stayed awake with Vanessa to chat some more. I had a depressing evening and needed to talk.

I don't remember what it was that set me off but it wasn't long before I broke down crying (yes, crying, call me what we will but I am not afraid to cry nor to admit it). Regardless here I was, sitting with someone I had known for no more than eight hours, pouring my heart out to her. All the while she sat and listened to me clamor on about anything and everything that was troubling me. She did her best to comfort me and help in any way she could. I can only imagine that somewhere inside of me I knew that this was someone that would listen to me and be thoroughly understanding about it as well.

The amazing part is that I sensed that she may have had many of her own troubles yet was putting that out of her mind to instead listen to those of a virtual stranger. I felt guilty because of that. I felt as though I should be listening to her instead. But maybe that's the same exact thing she was thinking.

How wonderful it is to know that in today's dog eat dog society, people like Vanessa do exist. People that take the time to see that other people do hurt and take the time to do what they can to make the pain go away, even if only for a short time. It is unfortunate but true that so few of these people remain. We should all color ourselves lucky if we are fortunate enough to have someone like this in our lives.

Too much of our time today is spent in attempts to make ourselves happy, when all we need to realize is that a considerable amount of pleasure can be drawn from making others happy. Even if it is happier than we ourselves are. If we took the time to realize how enjoyable some of life's simple pleasures are, we wouldn't become so engrossed in the drive to become happier than the next guy appears to be. Someone once said "happiness isn't in getting what you want; it's in wanting what you've got." words to live by, my friends, words to live by.

Henry David Thoreau once said, "our life is frittered away by detail... simplify, simplify." Vanessa told me to do something along those lines, she called it K.I.S.S.. Keep It Simple Stupid. She's right. The more complex I allow my life to become the more things there are for my heart and mind to sift through and assimilate in any fashion they choose to do so. This is when we begin to lose control. Our hearts and minds must work as a team and the less they have to agree on the better the chances are for happiness.

After a couple of hours had passed and Vanessa, with her words of wisdom, had managed to put a smile back on my face we realized that the sun was rising. So we stood for a while staring out her window, doing what we had just talked about, enjoying one of life's simple pleasures. There could not have been a more fitting end to that night.

Despite any scientific knowledge I may have, I'd like to believe that it wasn't the sun that made the sky glow like it did, that it was really just the sky reflecting the light that emanated from a person as beautiful as Vanessa. As we stood and watched I just kept reminding myself that no matter how bad it may get "the sun'll come out tomorrow."

Andrew Trodden is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

GEE, I DUNNO ABOUT THE SOLAR COLLECTORS CONVENTION, SID. I'VE GOT SO MANY RE SPONSIBILITIES HERE...
THEY'LL PAY YOU $50 A SIGNATURE, KID.
$50 A SIGNATURE? ARE YOU SERIOUS?
WITH A $15,000 GUAR ANTEE!
HOLY MOLY... JUST THINK WHAT I COULD DO WITH THAT MONEY! I COULD HELP FUND SKIN CANCER RESEARCH!
YOU COULD INDEED! IT'D BE A MAGNIFICENT GESTURE!
OR KEEP IT! I COULD KEEP IT FOR MYSELF!
FOR A RAINY DAY! PRUDENT THINKING!

Opinion/Editorial

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian.

RAISING THE MINIMUM WAGE WOULD LOSE JOBS,
SO WE LOWERED THE MAXIMUM WAGE TO $4.25 PER HOUR AND THOUSANDS OF NEW CEO POSITIONS APPEARED AS IF BY MAGIC!
TOLES
UNIVERSAL PRESS SYND
UPSIZING!

Paving the way

It was the biggest news to hit the family since my little sister was born 11 years ago.

It was last Saturday, around dinner time and I knew my oldest brother was going to be in town. I usually try to meet up with him at some point. I hadn't been home all day to check my messages, but I know to just meet him uptown if we don't hear from each other. But this time, I had a feeling I had to give him a call.

I reached him at his girlfriend's house in Amherst.

"Did you get my message," he said.

"No. I just decided to call."

"Well, Lisa and I just got engaged."

This was the part where I blew a vital organ in my body. The whole family has been waiting for this for quite some time, but John has always been late doing everything.

They've been together for something like four years — it was only a matter of time. Everyone really loves Lisa and we are psyched to have another addition to the family.

I don't know if she really wants us, but it's a package deal. I remember when I was a lot younger. I didn't want to be in this family, for one reason: my brother used to beat the living pulp out of me. As a matter of fact, both of my older brothers did.

"OK Tim, you try to touch the couch, Pat and I will try to stop you."

"I don't know guys..."

"Come one loser, don't be a wimp... look we'll even get on our knees."

"Oh, OK."

After I woke up, the welts healed pretty fast.

John used to jam me into a plastic toy chest and throw me down the stairs. Then he would make me defend him in Nerf basketball — there were no technical or personal fouls in this game. Actually, thinking back, I think they now call the sport rugby.

He would also make me be his catcher when he was practicing pitching. Oh yeah, he was one of the fastest left- handed pitchers, well, that I ever caught for. I had to put a sponge in my glove to soften the blow and that didn't even help.

I also remember the time when we moved to a new house, and in a desperate attempt to make new friends, I hung out with wrong crowd. The ending result was getting bruised up and having me and my bike thrown into the bushes by those jerks.

Tim White

So John, when I came home crying, ran out of the house in his socks to go stick up for his little brother. Yeah, he had his moments. Of course, when he came back, he threw a tennis ball at me for being so stupid has to even being around those kids.

Thirteen years later, he saves my tail again in a bar. Two weekends ago, I was in the bar I work at, when a fight broke out. In the middle of the brawl, John grabbed a guy who was starting with me and threw him against the jukebox. That poor guy had no idea that both my big brothers where in the bar that night — it's a good thing for him that they were in a good mood.

Hell, John helped me get the job in that bar. Wait a minute, he helped me get a job at another bar back home. Hold on, he also just helped me land a job for after I graduate. Oh yeah, and he was one of the main reasons I came to UMass.

I guess he's not such a jerk after all.

Now he's plowing the path for us again — he's the first to get married. And no one is scared or nervous. John has been doing things first for years. I guess I've always been lucky in that way, having someone to use as a tour guide through my 22 years so far.

He'll probably have a kid first too. If he or she is anything like their father, they'll be the hardest hitting, fasting throwing, toughest, stand-up person around.

I'm just going to feel bad for the siblings.

Tim White is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Look around you

To the editor:

You can learn a lot just by looking around you. How many people of color live in your neighborhood? Have you ever seen gay couples on highway billboard advertisements? When you watch television, do you see Asian Americans on commercials? Can you name any Latino American or Native American local, state or national government officials? If you watch UMass basketball games, how many African Americans do you see in the audience? The answers to all of these questions are simple if you think about them. However, it is difficult for me to answer these questions because I know these people exist, so why are they not represented?

It is not enough to say that since white heterosexuals are the majority in the United States, it is common sense that these are the faces that I am more likely to encounter. Not only do non-whites and homosexuals exist, but there is a rapidly growing minority population in America. So, where is this equal representation in government, law enforcement, positive media, education, housing committees, rural and suburban areas and other public and private institutions? It is the same system in the United States which justifies unequal representation by focusing on welfare, violence, crime and drugs as a "black problem," that ignores the historical construction of these problems through a racist ideology.

According to Noel Cazenave, a sociologist, white racism is a central and enduring principle around which America and other modern societies are structured and evolve. You may ask why I connect racism with white. The most consequential, most endurable and socially dominant form of racism is perpetuated by a white ideology.

Being a white male has entitled me to a better chance at succeeding economically and to be represented politically. The greatest is that being a white male enables me to be complacent to the fact that my society has historically been dominated by white men. This is my white privilege, and it has been secured for me at the detriment of people of color through white racist means.

Just because you're white does not mean you're racist, but it doesn't necessarily protect you from white racism. If you're Jewish, Catholic, gay, lesbian or perceived as having a lesser degree of European American "whiteness," you are a target of racism in America. Look around and you'll see.

Andrew P. Susen
Northampton

Security cameras a good idea

To the editor:

During the recent government elections, students had the chance to express their feelings on the issue of security cameras being installed in dorms. While the vote shows that students, by a small margin, do not want cameras installed, I feel that this is a case of ignorance leading the way. The question was so ambiguously worded as to mislead the voters about its intentions. More over, there was absolutely no literature regarding this issue. Neither a Collegian article nor specific information regarding the proposal was available, leaving those students who are not privy to such matters uninformed. In this situation, it is no wonder the proposal failed.

Security cameras in dorms are not an issue of "big brother" as some paranoid members of the Senate have claimed. This is not some attempt by the University to monitor our actions, nor is it an invasion of our privacy. These cameras will not be in our rooms, will not be in our halls, and will not be swiveling around the lobby taking in every action. More over, there will not be some security technician watching monitors, as has been implied.

Here is what would happen. A security camera will be fixed on the entrance of each residence hall, so that only the doorway will be recorded. The tapes would only be checked if a crime was reported and the police need an accurate description. That's it. No big brother here. There is a simple and relatively cheap way of increasing security on campus, of protecting ourselves.

The bottom line is that cameras are a necessary step in promoting student security on campus. It will deter potential vandals and thieves from going into other buildings, and it will enable the police to arrest those individuals who violate our rights. Don't let the rampant paranoia of a few senators cloud the issue. Cameras are an important step in fighting crime and protecting ourselves, and it is in our own best interest to see that this happens.

Dan Backer
Governor-elect
Southwest

Jewish Affairs

Tuesday, April 16, 1996

Gallery exhibit seeks to bring about discussion

By Michael J. Nam
Collegian Correspondent

As part of a two-month long commemoration, "Reflections on Auschwitz: An Artistic Response and Community Dialogue," the Nacul Gallery in Amherst is presenting a gallery exhibition of photographs, paintings, poetry, and other mediums inspired by the Interfaith Convocation for Peace that started in Auschwitz/Birkenau in December of 1994.

The exhibit, designed by Marjorie Cohen a Florida native living in Leverett, begins with photographs on the first floor from the beginning of the convocation.

The exhibit is a powerful display of people coming to grips with the horrors that took place during the Holocaust. Whether Christian, Buddhist or Jew, the witnesses during the convocation told the story of healing in the face of such inhumanity. One of the photographs is that of a Christian member of the convocation named John Schuchardt at Auschwitz.

Next to the photograph of Schuchardt was a narrative by Eve Marko:

"I saw a man and he was cold and I did nothing. I saw Jesus hungry and I did nothing. I saw him beaten and oppressed and I did nothing. I saw him put in boxcars to be sent here and I did nothing," he broke off, his voice racked by sobs.

— Eve Marko

The narrative exemplifies the meaning behind the interfaith convocation taking into account that the Holocaust is not only an immense Jewish tragedy but a human one as well.

"It's what the convocation is about. It was not solely a Jewish event," Cohen said.

In fact the leader and early organizer of the convocation was a Buddhist monk, Rev. Sasmori Shonin of the Nipponzon Myohoojii order in Japan. The convocation itself started in Auschwitz traveling eventually to Hiroshima and Nagasaki while stopping in such places where the greatest human tragedies have taken place such as Bosnia and Vietnam.

COURTESY ROBIN JAFFIN

"Brother Sasamori," a Buddhist monk and early organizer of the Inter-faith Convocation that was the foundation for the exhibit.

"It's not just about the Holocaust. It's about healing," gallery volunteer Ange DiBenedetto said. Raised Catholic, she believes it is important to her that there is a constant reminder of the past. "It's my little way of saying that it can't happen anymore." Speaking with her for some time, one can understand just how moving the exhibit can be for someone of any background.

The exhibit is not limited to display. A video room and a meditation room allows for personal reflection after taking in the emotional images throughout the museum.

"It's told from many different arenas and the public response has been very moving to me. I'm understanding more of what the exhibit is doing," Cohen said.

Anyone who enters the gallery can view several videos on the Holocaust and the convocation and utilize the meditation room that features writing materials to put down a response. The information sheet before the meditation room states the materials are there for personal use, to tell your story, to tell someone else's story, even to draw a response with the materials presented. There is also a notebook for the names of victims, and another for survivors.

The exhibit also features an audio tape which plays throughout the gallery that was taped during the Interfaith Convocation eerily echoing prayers, sobbing and speech throughout the building.

Personal and emotional, the entire exhibit is a living display especially in a particular grouping of photographs dealing with a program titled One by One. The program would bring the children of Holocaust survivors with the children of the Third Reich.

One photograph told the story of Anna Smulowitz who was born in a concentration camp who grew up in Kentucky with her family living next door to a Klan member. When she took part in the program she met Otto Duschleit, who for years had believed his father had been a German war hero. Their account is an example of hope and healing as they cried with each other realizing as Smulowitz wrote, "that they were both victims."

One by One will be holding meetings at the Jewish Community Center Amherst on Tuesday, April 16 at 7 p.m., and at the UMass Student Union on Monday, April 29 also at 7 p.m.

"The Reflections on Auschwitz: Gallery Exhibition" is informative and elicits dialogue on the present state of humanity as well as the past. "It's not just a generic archival look," Cohen says. Many people may still be ignorant as to the extent of the brutality that people are capable of. However, the exhibit displays the extent of compassion and healing individuals are capable of as well.

The gallery display becomes doubly important in telling these stories as Pastor Martin Niemoller an early opposing voice to the Nazis wrote, "They came for the socialist — but I did not say anything for I was not a socialist. They came for the trade-unionist — but I did not say anything for I was not a trade-unionist. They came for the Jew — but I did not say anything for I was not a Jew. Then they came for me — and there was no one left to speak for me." The exhibit concerns us all.

COURTESY ROBIN JAFFIN

"Gate of Death" a photograph taken at the Birkenau concentration camp by Daniel A. Brown featured in the Holocaust exhibit at the Nacul Gallery in Amherst.

Bernhardt's play honors the life and trials of Etty

By Anna Feder
Collegian Staff

LOVE, ETTY
The Northampton Center for The Arts
April 13

When Jane Smith Bernhardt took stage last Saturday night, the audience held its breath for fear of breaking the spell she created.

The one-woman play is an adaptation created by Bernhardt from the diary of a Dutch Jew killed in Auschwitz during World War II.

The play began with Etty's experience at Westerbork, a transit camp in Holland. This first scene introduced Etty to the audience portraying her as a strong creative woman searching to find beauty and meaning in life despite her horrific situation.

In the next scene Etty flashes back to March 1941 when she made her first entry into the journal. She writes about noticing the signs of spring in Amsterdam. She begins by remarking about the tree outside her window which becomes a sort of mirror of Etty's mental state both in her writing and the piece. She also confides her desire to find a "satisfactory purpose out of [her] writing."

Throughout the play Etty speaks with God begging to give purpose to her writing by making her his "instrument." She proclaims that "words are as important as the horrible actions that are occurring."

In the middle of the play, Etty finally realizes the Nazi's plot to demoralize and destroy the Jews. The audience could clearly see her development. Bernhardt used her ability in the piece to juxtapose entries of the journal at different points in time to trace Etty's spiritual growth through all of her experiences.

She refuses to go into hiding because of her belief that "every time one hides himself another dies in their place." She discovers that all the Jews had a common destiny that they were all "marked men."

In the climax of the play, Etty recognizes that God can't save the Jews, "it's we who must save you" she exclaimed kneeling by a lit candle. She asked God that if she couldn't live to share the love that was inside her that someone would carry on where her life had been cut short.

In the final scene taken from the letters that Etty wrote at Westerbork the audience could see that in spite of accepting her own personal fate, her hope for a better society never left her.

"Life is wonderfully good. I come back to that again and again" she wrote. "God is in safe hands with us despite everything."

After the performance the audience was given a chance to ask questions and offer comments about the piece, during which, Bernhardt received well-deserved praise for her adaptation and performance of this emotionally stirring story.

One woman in the audience thanked Bernhardt for helping to understand why Etty's message had touched so many, including a friend's mother who had excerpts of her work read to her when she was ill with cancer. Bernhardt acknowledged that even today Etty's passionate words still ring true.

COURTESY ROBIN JAFFIN

Jane Smith Bernhardt kept the audience spell bound as she delicately unfolded the life of Etty Hillesum, a vicim of the Holocaust.

Stoessinger to talk on impact of music in Holocaust

By Anna Feder
Collegian Staff

As part of the Holocaust Memorial Week events world renowned speaker Caroline Stoessinger will present a talk tomorrow night on the role of music in the Holocaust.

She has produced and appeared in a numerous international events in the same format, which have been televised. They include "The Salute to Israel", "The Anniversary of The 60th Birthday of Anne Frank" and a New York City tradition, "The Annual New Year's Eve Concert for Peace", which draws an audience of over ten thousand each year.

In 1993 and 1994 Stoessinger produced and scripted the programs for the annual Congressional Club Luncheon honoring Hillary Rodham Clinton in Washington D.C. When asked to describe her feelings on Stoessinger's work the First Lady said she "appreciated such a meaningful program."

In the lecture, entitled "Music On The Edge of Life," Stoessinger will describe the distorted use of music in the Nazi camps and how some victims were able to use music to their advantage in their struggle to survive. Stoessinger is also the author of the forthcoming book with the same title that includes stories of survivors who never gave up their quest for truth and beauty.

Stoessinger will use film clips and a live music performance to illustrate the presentation. She will recount the fraud of Theresienstadt, the "model" concentration camp, the making of the Nazi propaganda film, The Fuhrer Gives A City To the Jews, and the world's acceptance of the film as truth.

The usurped German national anthem, "Deutschland, Deutschland uber Alle," the destruction of Felix Mendelssohn's reputation as the roots of the Nazi organized music in Auschwitz, Buchenwald and other camps will be explored. Music by Mendelssohn and the composers of the Theresienstadt will be performed.

Noted author and Nobel Peace Winner Elie Wiesel has been a long admirer of Stoessingers work. "She has enchanted and educated thousands and thousands of people. I know of no person worthier of trust in this sensitive and important area" he said.

The lecture will be held tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium. The lecture is sponsored by Hillel, is free and open to the public.

Weitzman will 'Confront the Memories'

By Matthew Wurtzel
Collegian Staff

Mark Weitzman, the associate director of the Simon Wiesenthal Center's task force against hate, will lecture on "Confronting the Memories of the Holocaust" as part of Holocaust Memorial Week tonight.

The Simon Wiesenthal Center is an international human rights organization that focuses on teaching about the Holocaust and fostering tolerance through education and community involvement.

Weitzman is an author on the subject of the Holocaust and anti-Semitism. He recently helped write about the subject in the book, Ethics in the '90s. He has spent the past few months working on an anthology for this year's Holocaust Memorial Week.

In addition to writing, he has appeared on various television news and talk shows such as the "McLaughlin Group" on PBS, "Rokonda," and shows on the British Broadcasting Corp. discussing the problems of intolerance towards minorities.

He is a scholar who has studied across the globe from New York University to Bar-Ilan University in Israel where he received credits toward's a masters in Jewish History. In addition to studying while abroad, he has also lectured in the United States and Europe.

Weitzman has begun dialogues between Jewish groups and the Catholic Church through his work with the Jewish- Catholic Dialogue Group of New York.

Last year he served as a judge in the category of Jewish and Christian Relations for the National Jewish Book Awards.

Weitzman will speak tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the UMass Campus Center Room 163. The lecture is free and open to the public.

Jewish Affairs needs writers!

If you have an interest in writing for and about the UMass Jewish Community,

Contact Anna Feder

113 Campus Center
545 3500

Holocaust education needed

We gather this week to remember the victims of the most vicious tragedy ever to occur in the history of mankind. We also commemorate survivors such as Sam and Sidi Nathanson, (who spoke at UMass two years ago) who seek to make our world a better place by educating people through their eye witness experiences. Having visited Yad Vashem in Jerusalem and the United States Holocaust Museum in Washington, D.C. twice, I have seen some of the horrors of the Holocaust and have felt the trauma of the events through many of the exhibits.

After seeing the medical experiments, the teeth, and the hair of the prisoners, I just cannot fathom the rest of the world turned their head to what was going on.

Alan Weinfeld

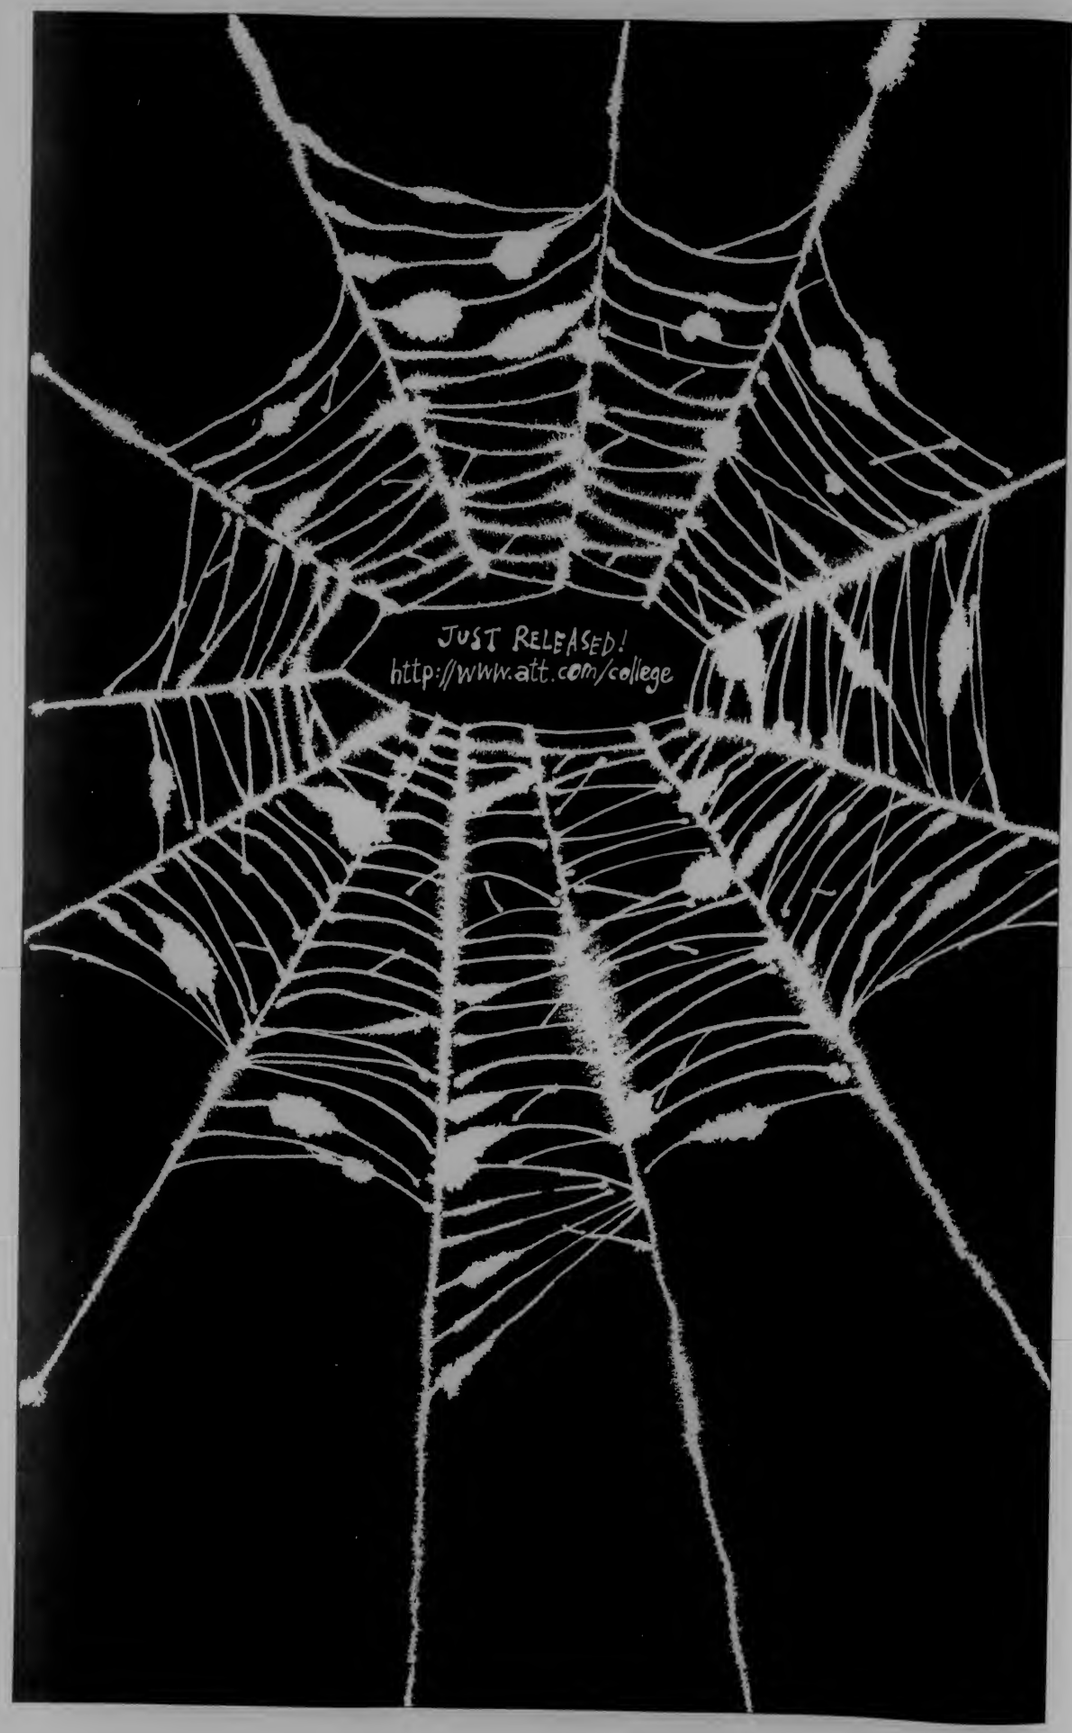
After seeing the medical experiments, the teeth, and the hair of the prisoners, I just cannot fathom the rest of the world turned their head to what was going on. It frightens me because the Holocaust happened as a result of deep hatred toward Jews taken to the worst possible extent while the world stood silent.

There is a huge lesson we must learn from the Holocaust. When we witness hatred and bigotry festering around us we must vehemently and forcefully strike it down. When we see swastikas painted on our walls and listen to the theories of history revisionists on campus, we must speak up and educate our community on the consequences of hateful words and symbols directed toward Jews and other oppressed groups. We must stress that hatred of any kind will not be tolerated a minute longer on our campus and in our community.

The need for education has never been greater than now; the number of survivors is declining and with the recent rise of Holocaust denial. Twenty-five percent of the American people have doubts if the events of the Holocaust occurred. We need stronger education and awareness programs implemented on our campus immediately.

Having read many stories written by Jews who perished, I noticed that each one stated the need for to be remembered and that is the reason we will say a prayer for them this week. To forget the six million Jews who were slaughtered, or to allow people to believe that the Holocaust never happened, would be the biggest sin we could ever commit. We must insure that future generations are taught about the Holocaust because those who do not learn from history are bound to repeat it.

Alan Weinfeld is a UMass student.



Arts & Living

Pearl St. crowd taken by Loeb's innocence

By Lisa M. Oliveri
Collegian Staff

LISA LOEB & NINE STORIES
Pearl Street
April 12

"Are there many students here?," Lisa Loeb asked zealously into the microphone. Confirmed by loud cheers, Loeb smiled and began to play.

Clad in a striped shirt and brown jeans, Loeb looked more like a college student than a superstar. With her band Nine Stories, Loeb excited the small but enthusiastic crowd.

Loeb opened her hour and a quarter set with, "It's Over," the first song from her album Tails. A moving tune about death of a friend, Loeb performed it with fierce intensity, leaving the audience breathless.

The next song, "Rose-Colored Times" was a crowd favorite and the loud cheers gave Loeb a boost of confidence, allowing her to open up to the audience, giving both cynical, yet caring responses.

"Why is there a Barbie on the speaker?" asked an eager male.

"I don't know," answered Loeb. "She bought a ticket, I guess."

As an introduction to some new songs, Loeb played her hit single, "Do You Sleep?" She then introduced, "Dance with the Angles," a bluesy song about love. During this song the many couples in attendance wrapped their arms around each other and swayed to Loeb's soothing voice.

Of course the most awaited song of the evening was the Reality Bites anthem, "Stay (I Missed You)." Seeing the crowd mouthing every word, it was evident that this song was Loeb's stepping stone to fame.

The personal stories Loeb interjected between songs stole the show.

Whether it was tales of an earthquake she experienced in Japan, or her excitement with taking new vitamins, Loeb acted like a bewildered innocent schoolgirl discovering a new treat.

To anyone that ever doubted Loeb's talent, this show proved them wrong. She was lively and enticing, a wonderful performer to watch.

COURTESY GEFFEN RECORDS

Lisa Loeb, the leading woman of the geek-core movement, brought her glasses and all to Pearl Street on Friday.

Primus nearly drowns in UM appearance

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

PRIMUS
William D. Mullins Center
April 12

Back in the day, Primus was pretty good. Their lyrics and music made for an entertaining concert. When Pork Soda came out, the group had already amassed quite a following and many a fan can remember counting down until its release date.

That was about two years ago and now they are back with Tales From the Punchbowl and have a brand new attitude. But one has to wonder what happened since their switch to a major label.

Oh yeah, it was still Primus on stage — Les Claypool on bass wearing a black hat, sunglasses and plaid shirt, Larry Lalonde on guitar and Tim Alexander safely esconed behind his drums.

Claypool offered up a few amusing antics, stomp-walking around in circles amidst the multitude of clothing that was thrown up on stage. A new generation of fans moshed below them into a feverish frenzy and the crowd still chanted the customary, "Primus sucks!" for an encore, but that was about it.

The band lacked energy and the music was too bass and percussion driven although many would have liked to have heard Lalonde display his musical prowess (he hinted at greatness for a few minutes and then disappeared behind the sound of a snare). The stand out performance actually came from Alexander who pounded, rapped and cajoled the drums into dominating the concert — driving the lackluster crowd into momentary periods of chaos while Claypool watched the floor below him bob and weave with prerequisite surfers and moshers.

During a bluesy number, Claypool two-stepped across the stage. Below him were mostly high school kids and behind them a stationary crowd of older fans who waited for something that Primus just didn't — or couldn't deliver.

"You know, you always ask us all the time to play old stuff. Here is some completely old stuff. It's called "To Defy," Claypool said.

The song lulled the audience into a state of complacency only to jolt unsuspecting listeners awake with a smash from the bass drum, a well recognized format their songs often follow.

Numbers that got special attention were "My Name is Mud," "Too Many Puppies" and "Wynona's Big Brown Beaver." However, throughout the duration of the concert one just couldn't seem to get into the show.

The stands, not even near capacity, looked lonely and those few who attended seemed to be buying into the prepackaged fun, not really knowing why. The show would have been better at a smaller venue with more enthusiasm, not only by the audience, but also by Primus who disappointed with nothing but a by the numbers performance.

COURTESY INTERSCOPE RECORDS

Primus funked up the William D. Mullins Center with their bass-heavy tunes Friday night

Prism IV performance comes through crystal clear

By Lisa M. Oliveri
Collegian Staff

PRISM IV
Fine Arts Center
April 13

As the lights dimmed, the audience sat forward on their seats, expecting the heavy curtain to open with great fanfare. What they got was a big surprise.

Prism IV, the prodigy of Malcolm W. Rowell, Jr., began in the rear mezzanine with "Hedonic Fanfare," an energetic piece by the Brass Ensemble. This loud arrangement started the evening with a bang and prepared the audience for the plethora of musical ensembles that were featured throughout the evening.

The 90 minute show seemed to last only a moment. With no breaks between the performances, the lack of applause made the show more powerful and flowing.

Many shows focus on one type of music, but the Prism show, which emphasized many different forms of music, kept the spectators entertained and thrilled.

With any show there are triumphs and disappointments and Prism IV was no different. Some of the groups were better and whether it was the choice of music or the quality of talent, it was clear which groups outshone the others.

There were three performances that were the highlight of the evening. The first was the University Opera Workshop who performed the finale from The Abduction from the Seraglio by Mozart. Clad in ethnic costumes and featuring interesting choreography, this group was far above the rest.

The central character was a heavy-set gentleman sitting in a chair with all the other singers serenading him. One solo singer performed in the middle, and the others would spin the man around before entering the spotlight themselves. The scene was pleasing to watch and the strong, alluring voices exemplified the professionalism with which it was performed.

Dressed in a simple black dress, Laura Jenkins sang another piece by Mozart, "Die Hölle Rache kocht in meinem Herzen" from Die Zauberflöte. Standing in an alcove on the right of the auditorium, her elegant soprano voice echoed far above the heads of the silent spectators. It would not be surprising to see Jenkins have a starring role in her own opera someday.

While Rowell decided to end the show with a second poetry reading by professor Ron Welburn, he would have made a better choice finishing with the University Wind Ensemble. Although they performed second to last, their performance seemed to be the finale.

Conducted by Rowell himself, the ensemble played selections from Leonard Bernstein's West Side Story. They were nothing less than fantastic. Completely together and absolutely flawless, the wind ensemble ended the evening like it started, with a bang.

Interjected between the musical pieces were two poetry readings by Welburn, a professor at the University of Massachusetts. Both poems, which were inspired by and about music seemed to find its niche within this musical splendor.

Like the three previous concerts, Prism IV was stimulating and innovative. Rowell's selections of ensembles not only gave the students an opportunity to perform, but also gave the audience a chance to be exposed to many diverse forms of music. Prism IV was a charming evening of fun.

BUCCI
HAIRCUTS $10. always

Judies
Munchie Madness
Monday - Friday 3-6
1/2 Price Munchie Menu
Fried Cheese & Onion Rings $2.98
Nachos Especial $3.63
Espanol Fried Ravolis $3.00
Watch the world go by on the Greenhouse at Judies!
51 N. Pleasant Street • Amherst • 253-3491

WOW! FAMOUS FOR 2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
Best Stand Best Burgers in the Valley
ROUTE 9
HADLEY, MA
PETE'S

STUDENT TRAVEL
The world's largest student travel organization.
800-777-0112
STA TRAVEL

INTER active
STAY AHEAD OF YOUR FUTURE
Whether the internet, animation, video sound editing or presentation graphics is your interest, The George Washington University Interactive Multimedia program is offering the Macromedia Director Specialist Summer Institute. Classes begin as early as June 17 and run for six weeks. Call now to receive a free brochure.
1-800-JOIN-GWU ext. 233
175 The George Washington University
175TH ANNIVERSARY 1821-1996

"Was I prepared to practice law right after graduation ...absolutely."
"My education at Touro Law Center provided me with just what I needed: a supportive environment where I had access to other students, faculty members, even the Dean, and a superior grounding in both the theory and practice of law.
"As Editor-in-Chief of The Touro Law Review, I was well prepared to go right to work. The demands of Law Review were commensurate with the demands of a large law firm.
Touro's unique student-centered culture offers a legal education in an atmosphere of mutual respect, cooperation, and collaboration. Faculty are committed to professional development and excellence in teaching.
Touro graduates, like Steven Schnitzer, are well prepared when they venture into the practice of law in today's competitive and ever changing legal environment.
Steven C. Schnitzer Esq.
Crowell & Moring, Washington, D.C.
Touro Law Center, Class of 1988
300 Nassau Road
Huntington, Long Island, NY 11743
516 421-2244 Ext. 317 • 516 421-2675 fax
http://www.tourolaw.edu
TDD/TTY 516 421 0476
Juris Doctor degree
LL.M. for foreign lawyers
Full/part time/day/evening programs
TOURO COLLEGE
JACOB D. FUCHSBERG LAW CENTER
Preparing students for real world practice.

UMass takes fifth at A–10s

By Michael J. Nam
Collegian Correspondent

The UMass men's tennis team continues to impress with a fifth place finish over the weekend in the Atlantic 10 tournament. Seeded sixth in the tournament, it is the best finish UMass has had in the A–10 tournament, upsetting the number four seed, Duquesne. Last year they finished in seventh place.

UMass beat the Dukes with a convincing 5–2 score. They had not beaten Duquesne since the men's tennis program's reinstatement.

"We played them four times in the last three years, and we lost to them all four times," assistant coach Doug Knuth said. "During a tournament last February they beat us pretty convincingly. We were fired up to beat them just as convincingly."

The Minutemen lost their match to the third seeded Temple Owls 5–2. The young UMass team was led by the mature and consistent play of their freshmen, Todd Cheney and Mark Huckins. Both were undefeated in singles play throughout, and in the Temple loss accounted for both points that the team received.

"Year in and year out [Temple's] been strong in the A–10 usually seeded number three or four," Knuth said. "Being freshmen they really played well and maturely showing our future's going to be strong".

Cheney went 4–0 while play number four singles, while Huckins did the same at number six. They were just as exceptional at doubles, both going 3–1 with respective partners freshmen Ryan Ginley and Jason Blind.

The Minutemen started off the tournament Friday morning defeating the University of Rhode Island Rams 5–2 in the first round of play. "We expected to win that match after beating them earlier this year," Knuth added.

The confidence showed again in the third round when the Minutemen faced the St. Bonaventure Bonnies crushing them 6–1.

"The team was fired up and came out emotionally," Knuth said in reference to the lopsided win.

The tournament was eventually won by top seeded Virginia Tech who defeated the number two seed, George Washington, cruising to a 6–1 score over the Colonials.

The men's tennis team enters the toughest stretch of the season playing Tuesday April 16 at Holy Cross, and home against Hartford on Friday April 19. The last home game of the season for the men is on Monday April 22 against the Harvard B team. On Wednesday the 24th the teams plays at Providence.

The last tournament of the season is the New England Championships hosted by UConn on the weekend of Friday April 26.

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

The Massachusetts men's tennis team took fifth place at the Atlantic 10 Championships this weekend.

Women's lax plays well but can't hold off Rutgers

By Luke Meredith
Collegian Correspondent

The cliche reads "Whatever doesn't kill you, can only make you stronger."

For the Massachusetts women's lacrosse team, a modest two–game winning streak came to an end in heartbreaking fashion Saturday as the Rutgers Scarlet Knights scored two late goals to defeat the Minutewomen 9–8 in Piscataway, N.J.

After playing perhaps their best lacrosse of the year in the first half and building a 6–4 lead, the Minutewomen let the game slip away in the second half and fall to 2–4 on the year. On the surface the loss would seem like a backbreaker, but if you listen to the coaching staff, it was more like a learning experience.

"Overall we're pleased with what we saw," assistant coach Betsy Dinger said. "But it was a frustrating loss, because we played as well as we've played all year in the first half."

UMass jumped out to the early lead by playing well balanced offense and controlling the tempo throughout the opening frame. Junior Stephanie Walsh scored two goals, and freshmen Laura Koruzo along with the sophomore trio of Jen Bowen, Michelle Warrington and Kim Weaver all added single goals to give the Minutewomen the two–goal lead at the half.

"We played offense how we like to play it," Dinger said. "By getting everyone involved and playing solid in transition."

> "Our performance in the second half shows that we're still growing."
> – Betsy Dinger

The second half turned out to be a different story for UMass. Rutgers came out of the gates on fire and grabbed a 7–6 lead on three unanswered goals. The Minutewomen were not done, however, as Bowen and Walsh came back with tallies of their own to retake the lead at 8–7.

As young teams often do, the Minutewomen let in two goals in the last four minutes of regulation, and when time ran out, the Minutewomen found themselves on the short end of their toughest loss of the year. Rutgers was lead by Brandi Bailey's three goals and two from Kirsten Arner, including the game winner with 1:42 left. In net, Trish DiBenedetto had nine saves while letting in six goals in 45 minutes of action for UMass, and Melissa Borodinsky saved three and let up three in 15 minutes. Paula Chamoun saved 12 out of 20 shots for Rutgers in going the distance.

"Our performance in the second half shows that we're still growing," Dinger said. "We have to learn how to win games like this, but this is how you learn. Hopefully we'll take what we learned from this loss and apply it next time."

That next time comes Wednesday when the Minutewomen take on Hofstra. Game time is scheduled for 4 p.m.

baseball

continued from page 12

Massachusetts 10, Providence 4

Second baseman Muchie Dagliere went 2–for–4 as UMass easily defeated the Friars, 10–4 Friday at Hendricken Field.

In the top of the eighth, leading 4–1, Dagliere drove a two– run triple off of Providence reliever Josh Cox to break the game open. The Minutemen added another run in the inning to take a 7–1 lead.

Providence (18–7–1) countered, scoring three in the bottom half of the eighth, but it wasn't enough. UMass put the game away in the ninth when Dagliere connected for another triple, to drive in two more runs.

Junior right–hander Chad Sullivan started the game for the Minutemen and worked seven–plus innings, allowing four earned runs on eight hits. Sullivan struck out two and walked only one to earn the win.

Beanpot postponed: The Minutemen play again tomorrow, in a make–up game with Central Connecticut. The game was originally scheduled for Apr. 10. They will also play Thursday against Harvard in the first game of the Beanpot Baseball Tournament. That game was originally scheduled for today, but was postponed due to poor field conditions.

ELIZABETH BROWN / COLLEGIAN

Steeerrriiiikkke!!!
The UMass softball team continued to dominate at home as it won four more this weekend at Totman Field to stay unbeaten there this year.

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Collegian Comics, so funny we forgot to laugh.

Just Released!
THE AT&T COLLEGE NETWORK
CONNECT. COMMUNICATE. GET AHEAD.

jobs station
Find a job on the Web

The Study Channel
Our best research links

AT&T presents
Services for students

game Shows
Contests! Prizes!

FREEWARE zone
Links to free software

http://www.att.com/college

AT&T
Your True Choice
© 1996 AT&T

INFORMATIAL MEETING
FOR THE 1997 UMASS PROGRAM IN SIENA, ITALY
Wednesday, April 17
7:00pm, Herter Hall, 3rd Floor Lounge

Lincoln Real Estate
Apartments In The Center Of Town
Gilreath Manor Condos
on Hobart Lane
• 3 Bedroom
• 1 1/2 Baths
• Heated Basement
• New Gas Heat & Hot water
• 1/2 mile to campus
• On Bus Route
Showings Start in April
for June or September Occupancy!
Lincoln Real Estate • 25 N. Pleasant St. • 253-7879

COMPUTER FAIR & SALE
100 HOURS FREE INTERNET
TRI-STATE FAIRS
10AM-3:30PM
I-91 North exit 19 turning right onto Rte 9 • 4 miles left at Staples onto Rte 116N, first right to right, left to Center I-91 S. take exit 20
Buy at wholesale prices right at the show from up to 70 companies (200 exhibit tables) featuring the IBM/PC compatible market. From full systems to shareware. It's all here. Adm $7 ea. with ad $6ea. after 1:00 pm $5 ea w/ad only.
MULLINS CENTER AMHERST SATU, APR 20

$$ raffle $$
ATTENTION
COMMUNICATION MAJORS
WE KNOW WHAT YOU WANT!! prizes
1. Money
2. Knowledge
3. Membership in the best club at UMass
We can do it all for you this Tuesday in E-35 Machmer at 6:00
$$ raffle $$

Free KAPLAN class!
LSAT GMAT GRE MCAT
Find out what Kaplan students learn to get a higher score! Attend a free 90-minute class:
• learn key test-taking strategies
• receive helpful hints for test day
• find out about our Targeted Training
April 20th - 25th is Free Class Week at Kaplan!
CALL TODAY TO RESERVE YOUR SEAT IN CLASS!
KAPLAN
1-800-KAP-TEST
http://www.kaplan.com

Minutewomen make waves in EWPA

By Steven Grant
Collegian Staff

Highlighted by its first ever win against Harvard, the Massachusetts women's water polo team swam away from the EWPA's New England North Tournament with a 4–0 performance.

The Minutewomen, ranked No. 17 in the nation, are now 12–4 overall and 7–1 in the EWPA after this past weekend's victories over M.I.T, Dartmouth, Wellesley and the Crimson. Harvard was ranked No. 13 before being upset by UMass.

"I still believe we are the better team," were coach Bob Newcomb's words after his squad lost 9–7 to Harvard on March 30.

At Amherst College pool yesterday, UMass showed that may be the case, thanks in part to junior Vicky Bamond's five goals and two assists.

Going into the final quarter, the Minutewomen actually led, 7–5. But the Crimson rallied, and outscored UMass, 3–1, right before the end of regulation to tie it at 8–8. Both teams connected once in the first overtime, before UMass finally prevailed in the second OT, scoring two goals for the 11–9 final.

Junior Cathy Leeburg came up big on both ends, by scoring thrice, and also registering two assists and four steals. Senior goalie Jessica Griffith continued her fine play in the weekend's final match, as she finished with eight saves and three steals.

The first match for UMass against was a 17–11 rout over M.I.T. The home team never had a difficult time with the Engineers, as the 8–2 first quarter lead proved to be no

> "I still believe we are the better team."
> – Bob Newcomb

fluke. Leeburg scored four of her five goals in that opening quarter, while Bamond shined defensively, managing five steals on the match as a whole, while also scoring a goal and adding three assists. Senior Meghan O'Connor also added a pair of goals, a pair of assists and three steals, while Griffith managed to record an impressive five saves and five steals.

The match over Dartmouth was another walk in the park...er... dip in the pool for the Minutewomen. This time, they hit the 20–goal mark, making the Big Green look small in a 20–6 blowout.

Dartmouth managed a mere one goal through the first three quarters. And Griffith had more than a little something to do with that. She made eight saves and four steals, while watching teammate Bamond earn four goals, an assist and four steals.

Wellesley (perhaps the only school in college sports without a nickname) was the only weekend opponent to score double digits against UMass' defense. Of course, UMass scored almost twice as many points as it did in a 19– 10 triumph.

In this one, Leeburg scored four times, while adding an assist and two steals. Mirca Martinez–Cruz also pitched in with three goals, two assists and two steals. In all, the Minutewomen received at least one goal from a total of eleven players, as was the case against Dartmouth. Against M.I.T., 10 players were able to contribute in the scoring department.

The Minutewomen return to action on Saturday and Sunday, April 19–20, when they travel to Middletown, Conn. to participate in the EWPA New England Playoffs.

Minutewomen Notes – UMass outscored its weekend opponents by a combined 67–36... The Minutewomen averaged 5.5 points in the first quarter...Before its first meeting with Harvard this season, the closest the Minutewomen had come to beating the Ivy Leaguer was losing by double–digits... UMass shut out its opponent in four different quarters (two against Dartmouth), while it scored in every one.

Minutemen run away from competition

By Jay Warner
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts men's track and field team posted another convincing win this past weekend at Llewelyn Derby Track, defeating Holy Cross, Providence College and Iona in Saturday's quad–meet.

Minuteman coach Ken O'Brien felt, going into the match, that his team was similar in strength to that of the Crusaders. Feeling the way he did, O'Brien must have been surprised by the fact that his squad outscored Holy Cross by 68 points, while Providence and Iona were defeated by 84 and 107 points respectively.

With a total of 12 wins from nine separate individuals and two relay victories, Massachusetts showed that it was the top team at the meet.

What may have been more impressive was the fact that the Minutemen also managed to place second in 12 events as well. O'Brien has continuously pointed out that he felt his team had extreme depth and this weekend's competition should put any doubters to rest.

Leading the way for the Minutemen was sophomore sprinter Scott Price. Competing in both of the short distance sprinting events, the 100 and 200 meters, Price showed his tremendous abilities by placing first in both events with times of 11.1 seconds and 22.3 seconds, respectively.

Following up his double–win performance last weekend, senior thrower Marc Lefebvre proved once again to be a leader and role model for this relatively young team.

By claiming the victory in the discus, Lefebvre led a clean sweep, first through fourth, in the event with a winning toss of 45.08 meters.

Beaten only by freshman teammate Ian Stevens, Lefebvre also claimed the second place position in the shot put. Stevens posted the winning throw at 14.94 meters, while Lefebvre threw the shot 14.91 meters.

In other field events, senior Robert Dalton took the blue ribbon in the hammer throw with a distance of 49.72 meters, while Stevens picked up fourth place points for the Minutemen with a throw of 37.76 meters.

Senior thrower Richard Dupuis helped the Massachusetts cause by placing second in the javelin with a distance of 53.09 meters.

Having shown a great deal of success in the 100 and 200 meter events early in the season, freshman Tom Toye showed his versatility by competing in and winning the 400 meter event.

Toye finished the race with a time of 48.2 seconds with teammate sophomore sprinter Chris Conner close behind with a time of 50.3 seconds. Conner also managed to place third in the 200 meter event with a time of 23.1 seconds.

Other notable finishes included junior sprinter Christian Abbott who placed second in both the 100 and 200 meter events with times of 11.4 and 22.9 seconds, respectively.

In addition, freshman Ben Baraldi blew away the competition in the 110 meter high hurdles with a time of 15.1 seconds, .7 stronger than his closest competitor.

Freshman Alberto Vasquez took the win in the pole vault with a height of 4.20 meters.

The Massachusetts Minutemen will be on the road for the first time this spring, competing in a tri–meet at Northeastern with Rhode Island this Saturday.

softball

continued from page 12

in the sixth with a sore back.

The bats were hardly needed though in the second game as Henderson, was her typical fireballing self. The freshman allowed just four hits in her fifth shutout of the year, striking out a career high seven. Henderson won her 12th consecutive decision, tying Holly Aprile's seven–year old school record. For all of her efforts, Henderson was named the A–10's Pitcher of the Week for April 14.

UMass jumped out to an early lead, posting a pair of runs in the first.

Sam Cardenas, named the A–10's Player of the Week, ripped Desiree Wallace's second pitch off the 225–foot sign in dead center field for a double. Cardenas came home on a Kim Gutridge sacrifice fly to center. Later in the inning Buckley smacked a double to the gap in left and came home on a solid single up the middle by Ashlie Hayes.

UMass notched its third run of the game, and final of the doubleheader, like its first run of the day, in unlikely fashion. Powell's sixth inning fly ball to right landed in for a single, and eluded the diving Katie Souder. The ball rolled to the fence, allowing Powell to score on the play, which was called a single and a three–base error.

Saturday, UMass did battle with the Hawks at Totman Field and emerged with another pair of wins.

Cardenas had a tremendous day for the Minutewomen going 5–for–8 with three RBIs in the twin–bill.

The game remained scoreless through the top of the fourth, where UMass flashed some leather with Gutridge making a tremendous diving grab of a foul pop at first base and center fielder Stephanie Marcina hauling in a deep fly ball over her shoulder.

UMass broke through in the bottom of the inning as Hayes fought off some tough 2–2 pitches to draw a bases–loaded walk, and Tracey Osier chipped in an RBI single. Martens plated Gutridge with a double in the fifth, and Cardenas and Gutridge pitched in RBI singles in the sixth.

Wagner went the distance in the first game, scattering three walks, while preventing any St. Joe's runners from advancing past second base.

Cardenas went 3–for–4 in the second game, factoring in all three UMass runs. Cardenas doubled and scored in the first, while driving in two runs with a second inning single.

Henderson was in command on the mound, holding off a late Hawk rally set up by a rapidly shrinking strike zone. Henderson allowed five hits and one earned run in the affair, striking out three.

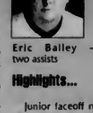
The Minutewomen will return to action this afternoon, weather permitting, when they travel to Hempsted, NY for a date with the Flying Dutchwomen of Hofstra at 3:30 p.m. UMass beat Hofstra three times last year, but lost twice, including a season–ending loss in the NCAA regionals.

Massachusetts 13, Delaware 11

at Delaware Field
Newark, Del

UMass (5–3)	2	7	0	4	13
Delaware (6–5)	2	0	3	6	11

Goals – UM: Eric Bailey 4, Brendan Glass 3, Jim Kennedy, Buddy Hoffman, Casey Costello Dennis Kelly, Mike McKeefrey. D: Kevin Lavrey 3, Brock Livingston 3, Carey Egan 2, Pat Gately, Tim O'Brien, Sean Manion.
Assists – UM: Hoffman 3, Bailey 2, P.G. Massey 2, Ken Sussi Todd Sokolowski. D – Livingston, Chris Felosky, Andy Ward.
Saves – UM John Kasselakis 5, D Brian Cooper 12. Shots UM – 30, D – 21. Faceoffs UM – 17, D – 9. Groundballs UM – 41, D – 24. EMO – UM 2–for–8, D – 1–for–5. Penalties – UM – 5–for–4:30, D – 8–for–6:00.



Player of the Game
Eric Bailey – four goals, two assists

Highlights...

Junior faceoff man Jay Robbins didn't show up in the scoring column all day but was huge for the Minutemen. Robbins won 9–of–11 faceoffs in the first half and was named MVP of Milt Robbins Day. The late Robbins was an All–American at Johns Hopkins and founded the Delaware lacrosse program.

men's lacrosse

continued from page 12

lied four goals, three of those coming in the fourth quarter providing the winning margin for the Minutemen, and also had two assists on the day. His coach had high praise for the senior attacking midfielder.

"Bailey's played attack in the fourth quarter," Cannella said. "He's a guy who can control the ball against a long pole, he's a guy who finishes very well in transition and on Saturday he does it."

"We have confidence in Eric whether he is playing midfield or attack and where ever he is on the field he's a very valuable player to us."

Minutemen netminder John Kasselakis only needed to make five saves to notch the victory, while Cooper was able to keep 12 UMass shots out of the Delaware cage and took the loss.

UMass men's lacrosse notes: Junior Jay Robbins, the Minutemen's face–off specialist, won 17 face–offs on the day, including nine of 11 in the first half to receive the Milt Robbins Day MVP award. Delaware holds one game each year in memory of Robbins, who founded the Blue hens lacrosse program and was also an All–American at Johns Hopkins University.

The Minutemen will next take on the No. 12 ranked Harvard Crimson Wednesday at Richard F. Garber field, face–off slated for 3 p.m.

Legal Problems?
Call UMass Student Legal Services Office!
Housing - Family - Student Rights
Civil Rights - Workers Rights
Criminal and Consumer Law and more...
Call 545-1995 for an appointment
UMASS/AMHERST STUDENTS ONLY

Custom Made Banners
promote your organization or special event with a colorful, vinyl banner
WEATHER RESISTANT
FLAME RETARDANT
Campus Center Print Shop
225 Campus Center, UMass
545-0371

CHECK OUT A GREAT CLASS!
GOTTA BE A PEER EDUCATOR
Peer Health Educators...
...learn about cool stuff
...teach workshops in the residence halls and Greek area.
...give out condoms and other goodies at the Campus Center and special events.
...enhance their own self-knowledge.
...make new friends
...MAKE A DIFFERENCE!
PEER HEALTH EDUCATION II & I
PUBLIC HEALTH 213/214 or EDUCATION 213/214
6 Credits - 2 Semester Commitment Required
Call the Health Education Division at 549-2671 x181 for more information.

The Sub
Sandwiches & Such
We're not only the Best Sub Shop but also the Best Pizza Shop!
Specials:
• Mediterranean Pizza • Calzones
• Hot & Cold Subs • Steak Subs
• and Salads
Right off the bus stop, in front of the Pub, next to the Spoke.
For FREE Delivery for Lunch or Dinner Call 549-5160
The Sub Sandwiches & Such
UMass Best! ★ 1996 ★ #1 Sub Shop

Ever Think of writing for Sports?
Stop by the Collegian office at 113 Campus Center

UNDERGRADUATE TEACHING ASSISTANTSHIP AVAILABLE
Department of Mathematics and Statistics
$600.00 a semester
for approximately 10-12 hours a week.
FURTHER INFORMATION AND APPLICATION FORMS SEE THE RECEPTIONIST.
ROOM 1622 LEDERLE GTWR

THE CLOTHESLINE PROJECT
BREAK THE SILENCE
Wednesday, April 17 10am-4pm
Campus Pond Area
Raindate April 18 10am-4pm
A powerful display bearing witness to the violence women have experienced in their lives.
Co-sponsored by the Every Woman's Center and the Health Education Division, University Health Service.

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals, this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students

20¢ per word/day

All others

40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ANNOUNCEMENTS

It's Back! - The Usual UMass Mountain Bike Sale April 24 & 25. Student Union Lower "I's 545-3437

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Two bedroom Putton Take over lease starting June 1 Heat/hot water included $630/month Call 549-7206

2 Bedroom Putton Apt take over our lease. Available 6/1 $685/month call 549-5876

Live in beautiful mountain view apartment! Spacious and classy! Two big bedrooms and baths Lease starts June 1 Contact 253-1809 ASAP

Excellent Huge three bedroom apt Downtown Amherst available June 1 Utilities included $1700/month 256-1986

Great Location! Amherst 2 bdrm apt North Pleasant St. Take over our lease June 1st Call 253-6758

Best Selection of 1,2, and 3 bedroom apartments in the center of town. Gas heat and hardwood floors. Lincoln Real Estate 253-7879

Take over our lease 6/1! Two bedroom twin bath Putton Apt. $680 per month includes heat/hot water. Avoid the washing rush! 549-1376

Apartments available for June and September. Summer sublets too! Call for details! Squire Village 665-7703

Three bedroom condominiums, with gas heat and hardwood floors. Lincoln Real Estate 253-7879

Mill Valley 2 large bedrooms with full baths, large family room, air conditioned summer or take lease Great for 3-5 ppl 253-3189

2 bed 2 bath Renovated Putton townhouse 75 incl heat summer sublet and or lease 549-5618

Take over our lease! Spacious two bedroom dishwasher laundry facilities on bus route 6 1/96 to 8/1/97 $645.00 including heat and hot water call Becky or Rachel at 256-3441

One bedroom in Colonial Village with option to take over lease. $470 call 253-4918

AUTO FOR SALE

1988 Chevy Nova 70/000 miles Well maintained. In good condition $1 000 Call Nancy up until 11pm 549-3782

1993 Kawasaki Ex600 bought new in 94 excellent condition 49 miles like/whore must see $2700/80 253-9030

EMPLOYMENT

LAST CHANCE - LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED - April 19 1996 is the last day to contact the legal services center about a fall 1996 internship! Get hands on experience in the legal field Work directly with attorneys and clients Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits No experience in the legal profession required training is provided Contact legal services today 545-1995 922 Campus Center

National Parks Hiring - Positions are now available at National Parks Forests & Wildlife Preserves Excellent benefits & bonuses! Call (1 206 971 3620 ext N9004

Full/Part Time - Upperware the most fun you'll have making serious money Call Danielle at 256-8883

EMPLOYMENT

Summer Internship 20 hrs paid per week 4 to 6 weeks Minorities interested in broadcasting business encouraged to apply Resumes by 4/30 to Rick Heidemann Today e 99 3 Box 268 Northampton, Ma 01061

SMALL, COED, OVERNIGHT CAMP

Looking for outgoing male counselors who enjoy working with children ages 7 13 yrs Incredible experience Call Michelle at 546-8677 or Ken at 413-528-2729

Student Painters needed $8-7 hour and bonuses Summer work for hardworking people in the Hopkinton Ashland area Call Brian 800 802 5678

SUMMER IN MAINE

Have Fun, Have an impact Camp Androscoggin for Boys needs staff to teach tennis lacrosse swim sail waters ki archery photography nature mountain biking fishing art and radio Excellent facilities 125 acre lakeside campus Write or call 801 West Street Harrison NY 10528 (914)835-5802

Summer Painters hiring for Boston and Hartford Will train completely Earn $6 $10/hr Call N E Collegiate Painters at 800-569-9939

Women needed for research project Runners and Sedentary women 18 - 25 years of age You will be paid $150 if interested call 549-5922 ask for Deanna

Counselors Coed overnight weight loss camp Looking for outgoing athletic individuals who enjoy working with children Great experience Call 413 732 8518

FALL 1996 INTERNSHIPS with the Student Legal Services Office get hands on experience in the legal field—work directly with attorneys and clients Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits No experience in the legal profession necessary—training provided Deadline to begin the application process is April 19 1996 —contact Student Legal Services today 545-1995 922 Campus Center

Eastern Europe Jobs - Teach basic conversational English in Prague Budapest or Krakow No teaching certificate or European languages required Inexpensive room and board and other benefits For info call 206-971 3680 ext K50011

Looking for summer jobs? Openings available at Brandywine Apartments Lifeguards full time and p/t Must be Red Cross certified Grounds Keepers/Painters full time Must be hard working reliable and responsible Stop by Brandywine office 142 Brandywine Drive Amherst Ma 01002 549-1600

National Parks, Beach/Mt Resorts, Ranches Rafting Co's now hiring Nationwide! 500 employees! Trip pay / benefits Call (919) 932 1489 ext A120

Alaska Student Employment — fisheries, parks, resorts now hiring! Earn $3000 $6000/mo! Airfare! Room/board! Free video w/program! Call 919 932 1489 ext A120

Free Room and Board in exchange for child care Experience and references required Call 586 7110

Student Help Wanted Earn $$$ before your summer even starts by hosting the biggest event of the year! The alumni office is now accepting applications for reunion weekend student help Must be available June 6 9 Housing accommodations available Stop by the Alumni Relations Office in Memorial Hall to fill out your application today Questions? Call Ann Thompson at 5-2317

FOR RENT

Questions about your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact the Student Legal Services Office 922 Campus Center 545-1995

4-5 Bedroom Houses - Amherst Hadley Northampton Sept 1st soma June $850 $1 000 plus utilities Call 3-6 Skilpak Realtors 586-1927

House For Rent June 1 Rt 9 Hadley Unbut route Call 582-9917

2 Bedroom Apt Brandywine Pond side w/Balcony Available 6/1 549-7094

3 Bedroom Apt on Putton Village start ing June 1 Gas heat AC water incl Option to lease Call 549-8821 for more info

2 Bedroom Apt, Brandywine Pond side w/balcony Avail 6/1 549-6066

FOR SALE

Tula Car Rack Gutter Mount $50 Call 253-0363 Leave message

486 DX66 Computer 540 MB Hard drive 8meg ram/fax modem 14" monitor $1 100 or B O Call 253 0362 Leave Message

Computer Fair Mullins Center Saturday April 20 11AM 4PM 100 Hours free internet plus bonus of 10 hours on line AOL First 500 customers buy from the experts at wholesale right at the show room up to 70 different companies 200 exhibits featuring IBM/PC compatible market Latest technology from full systems to shareware It's all here General admission $7 00 each With ad $6 00 each after 1PM $4 00 each with ad only

Stairmaster for sale. Good condition $75 00 or b o call leave a message 549-6942

2 Pioneer 4X10 car speakers & 2 Infinity 4X6 dash speakers $130 both pairs Call Jeff 4 info 253 4161

10 Gal. Fish Tank parts inc $65/80 Jeff 253 4161

Hewlett Packard DeskJet 600C) Printer w/ stand Used 4 months $210 Call Marie 549 3846

BOB DYLAN TICKETS - Tuesday 4/16 Springfield 2 Tickets Call Matt @ 586-7083

TO SUBLET

Take over lease June 1 Spacious 2 bdrm apt Heat and hot water inc $6th /Mo 253 0864

Putton 2 Bdrm / Full bath 549 0279 price neg

TRAVEL

Come Join In The Adventure!!! Come White Water Rafting with UMJC & UMUC! May 31 June 2 Only $139! Call us 5 3437

Attention All Students! Over $6 Billion in public and private sector grants & scholarship is now available All students are eligible Let us help For more info Call 1 800 263 6495 ext F50013

$25,000/yr Income Potential. Reading books Toll free 1 800 898 9778 Ext R1732 for details

FOR SALE

Smith Corona PWP96 Word Processor Only 1 1/2 yr old with box & all paperPaid $250 will take $175 OBO Call 546 0049

Bahamas round trip for 2 $300 585 6549

Rollerblades size 10 men s ccm Excellent condition $75 Call Shawn 549 6061

Motorcycle
1980 CB650 custom
$150 00 firm up or for parts
253 4240 Leave Message

FOUND

Found gold bracelet by Berkshire Dining Commons Call 6 4831

MISCELLANEOUS

Person Wanted to own and operate retail candy shop in Amherst area Low investment For information call Mrs Burden s Gourmet Candy Company Dallas TX (214) 991 8799

Landed a job in Boston? Take the work out of finding an apartment BOSTON BROKER (617) 262 3444 UMASS Alum

PERSONALS

Heh Leslie, Happy Happy un birthday to you! Hope yesterday was a Happy Birthday! What did you get from Indy? Janet

Dear Sandy, Happy 21st!!!! I Love You. Madison

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female Housemates Wanted to share 6 bdrm house in N Amherst Great location on bus route low rent plus utilities Starts 6/1 Call Amy at 549 7076 for more info

Looking for roomates to share three bedroom apartment in Townhouses I have a dog and cat Call Becky at 549 6298 Males or females okay

SERVICES

Let Me Do Your Typing. Papers, Resumes Call Joe 546 6178

Pregnant? Need Help? Call Birthright of Amherst area for free testing and caring Assistance 549 1906

LANDSCAPING

Spring cleanup, shrub trimming, pruning planting debris removal Call 589 1997 for a free estimate

SUMMER SUBLET

Summer Sublet w/Fall Option Spacious sunny room in 2bdrm apt on bus line $225/Mo Non-smoking, female preferred Call 665 0092

3 Bedroom Putton Apt. available June 1st Call 549 6694

3 Bedroom Apt. in Putton Village starting June 1 Gas heat AC water inc Option to lease Call 549 8821 for more info

1BR Apt. - 10 minutes west to Amherst Center 380 per month all utilities Beds 256 0787

Brandywine 1BR Take for summer with option for fall call Rob 549 0880

Summer Sublet with option to lease in Sept LRG 2 bedroom in center of town Heat and parking included Call 256 4361

TO SUBLET

Some friends and I are going abroad for the fall semester We are looking for some people who are leaving after the fall semester to split an apartment (uptown preferred) You take fall we'll take spring Call 549 5081 Ask for Steph

WANTED

Person Wanted to own and operate retail candy shop in Amherst area Low investment For information call Mrs Burden s Gourmet Candy Company Dallas TX (214) 991 8799

Landed a job in Boston? Take the work out of finding an apartment BOSTON BROKER (617) 262 3444 UMASS Alum

PERSONALS

Heh Leslie, Happy Happy un birthday to you! Hope yesterday was a Happy Birthday! What did you get from Indy? Janet

Dear Sandy, Happy 21st!!!! I Love You. Madison

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female Housemates Wanted to share 6 bdrm house in N Amherst Great location on bus route low rent plus utilities Starts 6/1 Call Amy at 549 7076 for more info

Looking for roomates to share three bedroom apartment in Townhouses I have a dog and cat Call Becky at 549 6298 Males or females okay

SERVICES

Let Me Do Your Typing. Papers, Resumes Call Joe 546 6178

Pregnant? Need Help? Call Birthright of Amherst area for free testing and caring Assistance 549 1906

LANDSCAPING

Spring cleanup, shrub trimming, pruning planting debris removal Call 589 1997 for a free estimate

SUMMER SUBLET

Summer Sublet w/Fall Option Spacious sunny room in 2bdrm apt on bus line $225/Mo Non-smoking, female preferred Call 665 0092

3 Bedroom Putton Apt. available June 1st Call 549 6694

3 Bedroom Apt. in Putton Village starting June 1 Gas heat AC water inc Option to lease Call 549 8821 for more info

1BR Apt. - 10 minutes west to Amherst Center 380 per month all utilities Beds 256 0787

Brandywine 1BR Take for summer with option for fall call Rob 549 0880

Summer Sublet with option to lease in Sept LRG 2 bedroom in center of town Heat and parking included Call 256 4361

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21 – April 19) — Be cautious in money matters. Avoid making loans or carrying a lot of cash. A social event could be sublime if you meet someone special. Do not come on too strong with a reserved individual.

TAURUS (April 20 – May 20) — It may be time to make a big change. Ship out if job conditions drive you bonkers. Pay attention to what the people close to you are saying. An older person B may need immediate attention.

GEMINI (May 21 – June 20) — Have a specific plan for both work an leisure hours. You will be setting a good example for someone who is inclined to drift! Dress your best for a special date this evening.

CANCER (June 21 – July 22) — Someone independent and generous wins your good will. A long–lasting and meaningful alliance could develop. Making overdue changes on the home front will reduce stress.

LEO (July 23 – Aug. 22) — Work slowly and accurately. Painstaking attention to detail is essential. Be truthful and understanding with a family memeber who is going through difficult times.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 – Sept. 22) — Avoid making business promises you may not be able to keep. If you get a chance, take time out from your busy day to phone someone who cares. Avoid discussing sensitive topics with touchy people.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 – Oct. 22) — Take well–intentioned advice with good grace. Show that you are willing to change tactics if doing so will bring better results. Be patient with offspring.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 – Nov. 21) — Your work can take a lot out of you. If married, guard against neglecting domestic responsibilities. The surprises may come thick and fast this afternoon.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 – Dec. 21) — Avoid exchanging confidence with people you cannot trust. Halt a relationship with anyone who talks out of turn about your activities. A complex task is time–consuming but will ultimately bring profit and praise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 – Jan. 19) — A financial transaction works out well. You are proud of your ability to help others, a neighbor may be a better friend than you realize. Reward someone who helps out in a family emergency.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 – Feb. 18) — Be firm if you are not interested in someone's overtures. Otherwise, this person may not get the message. Work and family obligations must come before pleasure.

PISCES (Feb. 19 – March 20) — Resist reneging on a promise to go out with someone. Meeting new people will be good for you professionally and personally. A phone call boosts your spirits.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS

1 Pillowcase
5 Moore of films
9 Ogden of verse
13 City on the Brazos
14 "— go bragh"
15 Buddhist enlightenment
16 Have — fight
17 Discover
18 Type of chair
19 Loren/Quinn film: 1959
22 Flamboyant behavior
23 Collection
24 — de France
25 Bill of fare
27 Small taste
30 Take to the brinty
33 Vex
35 Heinlein's genre
37 Nelson/Cannon film: 1980
40 Mural lead-in
41 Family or shoe
42 Slaughter of baseball
43 Formerly known as
44 Nose: Comb. form
46 River to the Rhône
48 H.H. Monro pen name
50 Rabbit ears
54 Field/Parton film: 1989
57 Aspect
58 Farm measure
59 Departed
60 Cars
61 Prevarications
62 Outside: Comb. form
63 Stair
64 March 15, e.g.
65 Connery of films

DOWN

1 Reapet's path
2 Shaping tool
3 Less friendly
4 Mediocre work of art
5 Graffiti artists
6 Clapton and Heiden
7 Soft fur
8 — -European
9 — Ark
10 Entrance fee
11 Lean-to
12 "— Girl Friday" 1940 film
15 Since
20 "— Abner"
21 After LBJ
25 Cosm or scope lead-in 26 Actress Sommer
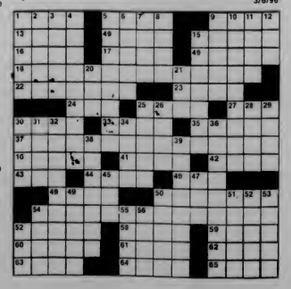
28 "—, then what?"
29 Bakery items
30 Below the knee
31 Superb
32 Without a will
34 Six per inning
36 Battlement openings
38 "Damn —" 1958 film
39 Lanky quality
45 Be under the weather
47 Judge Lance
49 Fabulous fabulist
50 Coincide
51 Brother's daughter
52 Trade pact acronym
53 Dark space name
54 Close
55 W African republic
56 Bitter
57 Dads

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

V	I	C	A	R		F	I	L	M		R	A	P	T
A	S	O	N	E		A	L	L	Y		O	P	R	Y
T	H	U	G	S		C	L	A	S	S	T	R	I	P
			G	R	I	M	E		M	E	T	E	O	D	E
M	R	H	Y	D	E		M	A	L	I	G	N	E	D
A	I	D		E	L	S	A		F	L	U
D	A	R		D	O	L	L	Y		T	A	H	O	E
A	T	O	M		N	O	T	E	S		M	A	N	N
T	A	P	E	S		B	E	L	T	S		L	E	T
			R	I	O		S	L	A	W		F	A	R
U	N	I	V	E	R	S	E		M	E	A	S	L	Y
S	I	N		V	A	N		S	P	E	L	L
I	N	T	H	E	F	A	L	L		P	O	I	S	E
N	E	R	O		T	R	I	O		U	N	P	I	N
G	R	O	W		S	E	E	D		P	E	S	T	S

3/6/96



CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1 —— 1
2 —— 2
3 —— 3
4 —— 4
5 —— 5
6 —— 6
7 —— 7
8 —— 8
9 —— 9
10 —— 10

Insert one character , space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

Jim's Journal By Jim

Tony came over tonight:
He had a People magazine.
It talked about Alex, the actress he likes, and her female lover.
"I was too late, Jim." he said.

Kippil By Barry Deutsch

YOU SAY YOU'RE SAD?
THAT'S RIGHT, POP
POP? YOU STILL THERE, POP?
SANDY, IT MAY TAKE A WHILE TO "A WHILE TO INTEGRATE THIS"
I UNDERSTAND. I JUST THINK IT OVE...
NO, WAIT. THERE IT GOES. YOU BRINGING THE BOYFRIEND HOME COME CHRISTMAS?

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

WHY WOULD ANYONE PAY A RUNDLE JUST TO RENT A CRANE FOR A COUPLA HOURS?
MAYBE HE GOT BORED SAILIN' HIS YACHT!
WISH I HAD A DOZEN MORE CUSTOMERS LIKE HIM!
LUCKILY, THERE AREN'T A DOZEN LIKE BOB GOODE!
MORE THAN $50,000! NOT BAD FOR AN HOUR'S WORK!

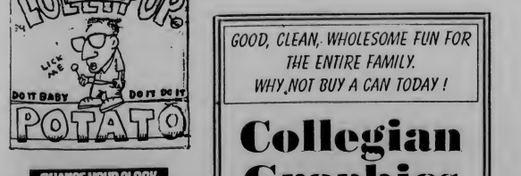
Close to Home By John McPherson

"I swear, all I did was hit the trunk release lever!"

Close to Home By John McPherson

Before allowing Becky to go on a first date, Mr. Dorfmeyer would review past episodes of "America's Most Wanted."

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee



THE OFFICE OF FENTON FORGRAVES, A VERY RICH PERSON...
MY HIDDEN CASH BOX--IT'S GONE!
FENTON, I NEED SOME CASH FOR MY TRIP TO LAS VEGAS.
CERTAINLY, DEAR.
ELSEWHERE...
THIS IS SO MUCH FASTER THAN PICKING THE LOCK!

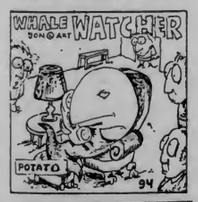
Dilbert By Scott Adams

ALICE, YOU'VE BEEN WORKING EIGHTEEN HOURS A DAY. I REALIZED I MUST ADD A PERSON TO THE EFFORT.
SO I HIRED A NIGHT SHIFT MANAGER. AFTER I GO HOME AT FIVE O'CLOCK HE'LL TAKE OVER AND ASK WHY YOU'RE BEHIND SCHEDULE.
I LIKE MY STATUS REPORTS RENDERED IN 3-D, BUT DON'T SPEND A LOT OF TIME ON IT.

Dilbert By Scott Adams

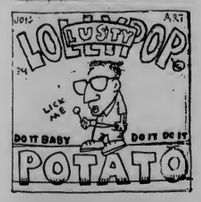
THE INTERNAL JOB POSTINGS ARE OUT. HERE'S A JOB I'D LOVE.
" EXPERIENCE REQUIRED: THE CANDIDATE MUST BE A GUY NAMED ERIC, POT-BELLIED, NEARSIGHTED, MUST DRIVE A RED FORD BRONCO."
THEY MIGHT HAVE SOMEONE IN MIND ALREADY.
IF I SQUINT... AND LEAVE MY "CONTROL TOP" PANTYHOSE AT HOME...

Small Potatoes By Jon Art



You know Bobby, copying these answers from our family encyclopedia for your science project reminds me of my college days. Ahh... those were the good ole' days, cheat sheets on the inside of my Ivy league muffler, paying off the students at the state school to take my exams. Summa Cum Laude! God bless those snivilling staties! I did love them so!

DAILY COLLEGIAN
State school intelligence free every weekday



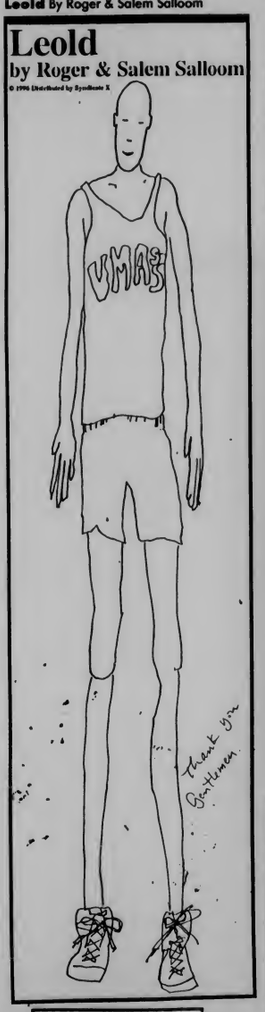
GOOD, CLEAN, WHOLESOME FUN FOR THE ENTIRE FAMILY. WHY NOT BUY A CAN TODAY!

Collegian Graphics

Where it pays to play!

Located somewhere deep in the Campus Center basement. WARNING: may not be suitable for young children

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom



50,000 EYES WILL LOOK AT YOUR AD IF PLACED IN THE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS

Now for your convenience at the Campus Center Concourse on Thursdays. Ask for our specials.

Today's Staff

Night Editor .....Hacksaw" Matt Vautour
Copy Editor ...Mike "The Macho Man" Maclean
Photo Technician ....Elizabeth"Superfly" Brown
Production Supervisor .....Marc "Hulk"Dionne
Production ."Rowdy Roddy "Candice Flemming
Rob "The Body" Snow

Today's D.C. Menu

SORRY, THERE'S NO MENU TODAY. CALL 5-2626.

The UMASS Daily Collegian

A wealth of information at your finger tips everyday.

Quote of the Day

"The way to describe it is not the way, the name to name it is not the name.

–Richard Haag on Space"

SportsWeekend

Collegian Sports • Tuesday, April 16, 1996

Inside this issue:

• The UMass men's and women's track teams won quad meets with Providence, Iona and Holy Cross this weekend. See the men's story on Page 9, check tomorrow's Collegian for the women's story.

• The women's water polo team won four games over the weekend. Please see page 9.

• The men's tennis team placed fifth in the Atlantic 10 tournament this weekend in Blacksburg, Va. See page 8.

• The women's lacrosse team lost to Rutgers Saturday in New Jersey. See page 8.

Softball extends unbeaten streak

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts softball team wore its road uniforms for yesterday's doubleheader against Atlantic 10 rival Temple at Totman Field, but unlike the team's jerseys and shorts, the results hardly changed as UMass stayed unbeaten at home, and Temple hit the road with a pair of losses.

The Minutewomen extended their unbeaten streak to 16 games overall, sweeping St. Joseph's 5-0 and 3-2 on Saturday, and the Owls with identical scores of 3-0 yesterday. The wins up UMass' season record to 24-10-1, vaulting it to the top of the A-10 standings with a perfect 6-0 conference mark.

The Minutewomen pitching corps dominated their Philadelphia-based opposition, hurling three shutouts. Liz Wagner was responsible for two of the shutouts yesterday by virtue of a stellar one-hitter. Freshman Danielle Henderson did her part by allowing just one earned run this weekend, striking out 10.

The opening game of yesterday's twin-bill saw Wagner simply dominate. The junior was just a infield butt single away from a perfect game. Except for Kim Stewart, who laid a beauty down the first base line with one out in the fourth, no Owl could reach base against Wagner, who upped her record to 12-5 and dropped her team low ERA to 1.22.

Temple appeared to have their first clean hit of the game with two outs in the seventh, when a grounder by Kristen Iasenides broke past a diving Becky George at second base, but right fielder Amy Powell alertly fired to Wagner, who was alertly covering first, for the final out.

UMass opened the scoring in the bottom of the third inning as freshman Mandy Galas scored on a rather uncommon four-base error. Third baseman Kathy Bederske charged Galas' bunt, but fired it well above the head of her first baseman and watched as the overthrow rolled all the way to the outfield fence, allowing the speedy freshman ample time to score standing up. Galas and Kelly Buckley would add RBI singles in the sixth to finish the scoring.

Bad news came to the freshman on the single though as she hurt her ankle on the play, forcing her to sit out the nightcap. Power hitting designated player Chris Martens, also had to leave the game

Turn to SOFTBALL page 9

ELIZABETH BROWN / COLLEGIAN

UMass softball pitcher Liz Wagner pitched 14 scoreless innings this weekend as she raised her record on the season to 12-5 with wins over St. Joesph's and Temple.

UMass sweeps, gets swept in double doubleheaders

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

While snow and rain wreaked havoc on sports schedules, the Massachusetts baseball team fought through the inclement weather to play five games in three days this weekend.

The Minutemen topped Providence and split a four-game series with Rhode Island to improve their record to 17-9, 7-5 Atlantic 10.

Massachusetts 9, Rhode Island 2

David Dart's complete game in the series finale gave UMass the win, 9-2.

Dart allowed only one earned run in his second straight complete game. He struck out three and walked four.

Ryan Jette had four hits and four runs scored for the Minutemen. Dagliere added to the offensive output, going 3-for-4 with a double and four RBI.

Designated hitter Doug Clark had two hits and two RBI, while Nate Murphy and Brad Gorrie each scored twice.

Massachusetts 3, Rhode Island 0

Sophomore righty Jeff Puleri threw a complete game in the first game of Sunday's doubleheader, to lead UMass to a win over URI, 3-0.

Puleri allowed only three hits, while striking out five and walking two to earn the win. The victory was Puleri's first career shutout. With the win, Puleri was named Atlantic 10 Pitcher of the Week.

The Minutemen scored two runs in the third inning on catcher Brian Samela's RBI single and an error by Ram centerfielder Steve Cote, and added an insurance run in the fifth.

Rhode Island 7, Massachusetts 5

Rhode Island did its damage early in the second game of Saturday's doubleheader, scoring its seven runs in the first two innings, to win the game 7-5.

Starting UMass pitcher Jason Bennett lasted only 1 1/3 innings, as the Rams knocked in three runs in the first inning.

Rhode Island 5, Massachusetts 4

Ram catcher Joe Murphy has a grand-slam home run in the first game of Saturday's doubleheader to lead Rhode Island past UMass, 5-4 at Bill Beck Field.

Murphy's slam in the bottom of the fourth gave the Rams a 4-2 lead. The Minutemen tied the game at four with two runs in the top of the sixth.

URI shortstop Jeff Pallota gave the Rams the win in the bottom of the eighth, with a two-out RBI single.

Junior righty Chad Paronto went the distance for UMass, striking out a career-high seven batters in the loss. Jay Krystofolski started the game for URI, but reliever Chris Pickett picked up the win.

Turn to BASEBALL page 8

Swartz leads the way as UMass women's gym takes third at NCAAs

By Steven Grant
Collegian Staff

Twin the second highest team point total in Massachusetts women's gymnastics history wasn't enough to win the NCAA Northeast Regional Championship, which would have advanced the Minutewomen to the NCAA championships, April 25-27.

Despite scoring 191.900 points, the Minutewomen managed only third place, beating just Ohio St. for that spot while Penn St. (193.650) narrowly won the meet over Kent St. (193.025) for the Regional Championship.

The seven teams involved finished as follows: 1. Penn St. 2. Kent St. 3. UMass; 4. Ohio St.; 5. New Hampshire; 6. Pittsburgh; 7. Rhode Island.

On the bright side, the Minutewomen (13-6) entered the meet seeded only fifth, a place in which coach Dave Kuzara and his squad before the meet felt (correctly) was an underestimation.

Tara Swartz put forth her team's best performance, and it may be good enough for a trip to the NCAA Championship as an individual. The junior finished in fourth place in the all-around with a score of 38.800, which, if it is one of the 12 best in the nation, will earn her a ticket to Tuscaloosa, Ala. next week.

Swartz, the Atlantic-10 Gymnast of the Year, also recorded scores of 9.675 on vault, 9.750 on the uneven bars, 9.650 on the balance beam and 9.725 on the floor exercise.

She was the team's top finisher on both the floor exercise (third place) and uneven bars (11th place), while tying with sophomore teammate Karen Maurer for seventh place on the balance beam.

Junior Lianne Laing, who completed a stellar season, had the top score for UMass on vault, placing with a 9.750.

Following Laing in the event for UMass were Swartz and Atlantic 10 Freshman of the Year Denise Johnson, who each tied for second on the team with a 9.675.

On the bars, Laing finished second on the team with a 9.675, while freshman Anita Sanyal notched a 9.625. Sanyal also finished behind Maurer and Swartz in the beam event, scoring a 9.625.

On the floor exercise, senior J.J. Tolhurst, in her final meet, earned a 9.675, good for second on the team, while Johnson finished third with a 9.525.

As for the all-around, Tolhurst (38.125) and Laing (38.075) finished second and third behind Swartz on the UMass roster.

The individual event champions went as follows: Vault, Shelly Stambaugh (KSU), 9.925; Uneven Bars, Susan Eckman (OSU), 9.950; Balance Beam, Missy Leopoldus (PSU), 9.850; Floor Exercise, Leigh Cappello (PSU), 9.825; All-Around, Leopoldus (PSU), 39.125.

As for the champions, the fact that they are such a deep team made the difference for them. But Leopoldus was no doubt the biggest contributor.

She and Carey Hoyt tied for first on the Nittany Lions with a 9.875 in the vault event. Leopoldus also tied with Bridget Foley for first on the team on the bars with a 9.875.

On the balance beam, as mentioned earlier, it was Leopoldus once again winning, this time with a score of 9.850.

Cappello's meet-high 9.825 was obviously best on the team, as well.

Minutemwomen Notes — UMass' Amy Caputo and Betsy Colucci were both named to the inaugural A-10 Commissioner's Honor Roll last week.

First half propels men's lacrosse

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Senior Eric Bailey scored four goals, three of them coming in the fourth quarter during a furious Delaware comeback to perserve the Minutmen's 13-11 win over the Bluehens.

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

After playing a near flawless game last Saturday against Duke, a 13-9 home win, the UMass lacrosse team attempted to make not only two wins in a row, but two straight complete 60 minute efforts.

The No. 16 Minutemen scored eight unanswered goals in the first half before Delaware chipped away all second half, but could get no closer than two as UMass prevailed 13-11 at Delaware field in Newark, Del.

Massachusetts	13
Delaware	11

"We were very prepared. Chris Burdick did a great job preparing us for Delaware," UMass coach Greg Cannella said of his assistant coach who played and coached for the Bluehens. "We really focused on playing settled on offense and playing six-on-six defense not giving any transition at all. Delaware is a team that loves to play scrambling, loves to play unsettled."

UMass stuck strictly to its game plan in the first half. The Minutemen got on the board first when Jim Kennedy took a gorgeous Bailey feed and ripped a shot into the Delaware cage for the early lead. The Bluehens responded with two goals by Pat Gately and Brock Livingston to give Delaware its only lead of the game at 2-1. Then UMass really got down to business.

The Minutemen scored the next eight goals as Brendan Glass led the barrage on Bluehen goal keeper Brian Cooper with three goals and an assist over that span. Bailey and fellow seniors Dennis Kelly and Buddy Hoffman, along with junior Casey Costello and freshman Mike McKeefrey also got in on the act.

"We really controlled the tempo of the game," Cannella said of his team's spectacular first half. "We shot real well and made some great decisions on offense. We played the way we did for 60 minutes against Duke and that's something we would like to put in a bottle."

Delaware came out of the half down 9-2 but looking to at least make the score respectable if not completely get back in the game, and in the end accomplished both. They held the Minutemen scoreless in the third stanza while notching three goals, two of those while the Bluehens were a man down.

"They put a little more pressure on us and it came earlier," Cannella said of Delaware's second half comeback. "They put one of their best players in the wing to help control the face-offs a little more than they did in the first half. And they were able to play in transition, more unsettled, a couple of subtle changes."

The Minutemen were led by Eric Bailey who tal-

Turn to MEN'S LACROSSE page 9

Goldman, men's gym makes noise at East Regionals

By Mike Carey
Collegian Staff

Six members of the Massachusetts men's gymnastics team competed Saturday at the NCAA regionals at Iowa's Carver-Hawkeye Arena in hopes of qualifying for the NCAA Nationals, but were unable to make it to the next level on Saturday.

Senior Steve Goldman was the highest UMass finisher in any event taking 10th place on the parallel bars with a score of 9.350, missing to qualify for the Nationals by only .025 points.

"He had one of his best performances of the year," coach Roy Johnson said. "He finished his last routine with a stuck dismount, which was a great way to go out, to end his career at UMass."

Junior Ruslan Shupak finished 12th on the still rings with a score of 9.625 and 20th on the floor exercises with a score of 9.550.

"He had his best performance on rings and missed qualifying for the Nationals by .05 of a point," Johnson said. "That was the third year in a row that he missed by that much to qualify."

Freshman Phil Lieberman tied Shupak for 20th place on the floor exercises, and also fared well on the horizontal bars, finishing in a tie for 18th place on that event with a score of 9.400.

Brad Leclair, also just a freshman finished in a tie for 22nd place on the pommel horse with a score of 9.450.

"He tried his most difficult routine of the year and hit it," Johnson said. "He had a nice set and really hit a nice routine. For a freshman to go out there with all that he did great."

Junior Gabe Columbus came in with a 30th place tie on the floor exercise with a score of 9.400.

The Minutemen concluded their season with a 9-3 overall record and some good individual performances this past weekend. "We did a pretty good job this year," Johnson said. "We could of had a little more consistency, but we have a young team, and it was a good year."

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Six men gymnasts from UMass competed at the NCAA Regionals over the weekend including Steve Goldman who took home a 10th place finish on the parallel bars.

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CV Issue 115 • New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 • Wednesday, April 17, 1996

Striking fear in the heart

Former rapper Mark Wahlberg plays a psychotic boyfriend in the film, Fear. Check out the Collegian's review (See Arts & Living, page 6).

Bailey fourth quarter hero for UMass

Eric Bailey has come up with big goals against Duke and Delaware to help the men's lacrosse team to a national ranking of 15 (See Sports, page 12).

HECC votes to cut tuition by 5 percent

By Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Staff

The Higher Education Coordinating Council (HECC) unanimously voted on Monday to cut tuition by 5 percent at Massachusetts public colleges and universities while vetoing the University of Massachusetts Trustees' vote to keep tuition at current levels.

The tuition cut is the first in UMass history, according to the Union-News.

The HECC vote cuts the $2,220 tuition for in-state students at UMass-Amherst by $111.

"The tuition cut will make the University more accessible to more students who previously couldn't afford to go to school," Student Government President Maurice Caston said.

Since UMass-Amherst is the second most expensive flagship university in the country, HECC has declared a five-year crusade to cut tuition as much as possible.

In January, HECC recommended the University Trustees cut tuition. However, new UMass president William M. Bulger and the trustees voted Thursday to keep tuition level.

Last week the finance committee voted 3-0 in favor of the cut.

According to the Union-News, Bulger argued that a tuition cut would hurt the University's credibility with the legislature as the school tries to get more money for the five campuses. Bulger and Daniel Taylor, the trustees' chairman, said that they would not challenge HECC's decision if they chose to make the cut.

However, Caston disagrees with Bulger about the University losing credibility.

"The legislation will see the University is out pricing the students," Caston said. "They will see the reality of the situation that students can't afford to go to college."

Hard lobbying work by students to gain more money is paying off, said Caston. He also expects the state senate to start bringing more aid to Massachusetts public schools.

"Maybe now President Bulger can work some of his magic," Caston said. "He can do what he was paid to do in getting money from the senate."

HECC also voted to increase dormitory fees by $10.

In order to adhere to a state law that requires non-residents to pay the full cost of their schooling, out of state undergraduates and graduates will pay 3.2 percent more at all campuses.

At Carlin's urging, HECC unanimously approved Senator Stanley Rosenberg's (D-Amherst) "fair share" plan.

Rosenberg, the chair of the Ways and Means Committee, created the plan to require that the running cost of state's public higher education be equally shared by students, the state, and the institutions themselves.

Collegian Staff member Daniel Sullivan contributed to this article

WORLD

Clinton's trip to Japan causes large protest

TOKYO (AP) — About 4,500 demonstrators shouted slogans and waved effigies in a Tokyo park yesterday to protest the U.S. military presence in Japan as President Clinton began a three-day visit. Protesters shook their fists and demanded an end to the "illegal occupation" of Okinawan land, referring to laws that require some landowners on the southern island to lease land to U.S. bases.

A cardboard effigy of Clinton was printed with the words, "Give me more land, more people, more money!" Next to it was one of a subservient Prime Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto saying, "Yes, yes. The U.S.-Japan Security Treaty is everything!"

Police said there were no clashes or arrests.

Opposition to the American bases has been running high since last September, when a 12-year-old Okinawan girl was raped by three U.S. servicemen. Bolstering the U.S.-Japan security alliance is a top priority of Clinton's visit.

NATION

Breyer, others praise Nuremberg trials

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Holocaust was remembered in the Capitol Rotunda yesterday in ceremonies that celebrated the triumph of justice over vengeance in the Nuremberg war crimes trial 50 years ago.

The 1946 trial of major war criminals "remind us that after barbarism came a call for reasoned justice," said keynote speaker Supreme Court Justice Stephen G. Breyer.

Members of Congress, Jewish leaders and five Supreme Court justices gathered for the 15th Rotunda ceremony to mark Yom HaShoah, the Day of Remembrance, and pay honor to the 6 million Jews and the many thousands of others murdered by the Nazis in World War II.

Shortly after, the House passed, 420-0, a resolution deploring individuals who deny the historical reality of the Holocaust. In Israel, people stood in silence for two minutes as part of Holocaust Remembrance Day events.

Breyer recalled the words of another justice, the late Robert Jackson, who was a prosecutor for the International Military Tribunal at Nuremberg. "That four great nations, flushed with victory and stung with injury, stay the hand of vengeance and voluntarily submit their captive enemies to the judgment of the law is one of the most significant tributes that Power ever has paid to Reason," Jackson wrote.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Thursday	Friday
HIGH: 50	HIGH: 55	HIGH: 65
LOW: 30	LOW: 40	LOW: 45

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 6
Classifieds .....page 10
Comics .....page 11
Crossword .....page 10
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 2
News .....page 3
Sports .....page 12

After trip in space, alum returns to UM

By Amy H. Paradysz
Collegian Staff

Editor's note: This article is the second in a two-part series.

Major Catherine "Cady" G. Coleman, the University's most well-traveled alumna orbited the earth 256 times and traveled 6.6 million miles in her 15 days in space in 1995.

Last week she made a shorter journey — from her home in Houston to the University of Massachusetts, where she received her doctorate in 1991 — for the celebration of the dedication of the new Sylvio O. Conte National Polymer Research Center.

Coleman, the keynote speaker at the dedication on Friday, was one of three recipients of an honorary doctorate in science — the only recipient who received her Ph.D. since the 22-year-old polymer science department was formed.

From Houston to space

At 11:45 p.m. the answering machine at Coleman's home in Houston plays her voice saying, "Leave a message or I'll break your arm, baby." The flight back to Texas took longer than expected. But at 8 a.m., she answers the phone at the Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center with an energetic "Cady Coleman speaking."

"We also," Coleman said, "went up to space to grow more perfect crystals."

Think about building a brick wall, said Coleman, and imagine one brick is crooked, causing the bricks on top of it to come down crooked, ultimately causing the wall to bend. That is what happens with crystals, she said. But not in space, where there is no gravity.

The crystals grown in space are used to design drugs eventually meant to cure diseases such as diabetes, hepatitis, viral diseases and others that affect the immune system, such as AIDS, according to Coleman.

Other crystals are being studied to create drugs which will assist in blood clotting, which is crucial to stroke victims and individuals with heart transplants.

The process where crystals in space become federally approved drugs takes years, according to Coleman.

Other crystals, such as Zeolite, are used to process the gasoline we use. Studying crystals in space in past missions has "improved the efficiency of making gasoline by 60 percent," Coleman said.

"We're not going up there to manufacture a huge batch," she said. But the crew grew some of the kinds of crystals that interest industry on earth. "It saves years of research on earth."

Just floating around

Yet, Coleman said her favorite times in space were those when she could "float around" and look out the window, and see 20 different colors of blue between the blue horizon and the black of space.

"If it weren't for velcro and duct tape, we'd be lost," she said. "It brings out the child in all of us."

When asked whether space travel is anything like the 1995 film Apollo 13, Coleman laughed because that flight was almost disastrous.

"Apollo 13 was very accurate of the historic event it represented," she said. "Now, we're concentrated a lot more on the experiments that we can't do here on earth."

According to NASA's World Wide Web page, Coleman's misston focused on "materials science, biotechnology, combustion science and the physics of fluids."

Many of the experiments Coleman has done in her military and space careers have been out of her field of chemical engineering. Due to the cross-disciplinary nature of the polymer science department at UMass, Coleman said she finds it useful to call alumni and say, "Remember when we talked about this? I need to understand how it really works now."

After receiving her doctorate from UMass, Coleman worked as a research chemist at the Materials Directorate of Wright Laboratory at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base.

While there, Coleman volunteered as a test subject, breaking several tolerance records in physiological and new equipment tests.

"It was extra money," Coleman said, "and as astronauts, we are in many ways medical subjects... I also wanted to show NASA I was a little tough."

The 5-foot-4-inch, 115-pound Coleman, one of NASA's younger astronauts, likes to explore the Earth, too, through flying and scuba diving.

Coleman said she did not talk much about her dream of space when she was a student at UMass.

"It was really the time to be working and thinking about polymers, to get the credentials for such a job."

NASA's home page at http://www.nasa.gov/NASA-homepage.html was a source for this article.

ELIZABETH BROWN / COLLEGIAN

President William Bulger awarded Major Catherine "Cady" G. Coleman with an honorary doctorate of science on Friday.

The hardest part of being in space is the tight schedule, said Coleman, who explained she had originally planned to be at work early and was still waking up. The early hour is nothing to a veteran of space travel.

During Coleman's 15-day flight, each of the seven astronauts worked 12-hour shifts during which each 3 to 5 minute increment was pre-planned. "We were always doing experiments," she said — 30 of them total. In the future we "need a little bit more time to be curious," Coleman said.

While the seven astronauts worked in the pressurized space lab module, scientists on earth watched with the assistance of six video channels which transmitted the image in digital form about 50 minutes out of every hour.

"Gravity, a lot of the time, masks what is going on," Coleman said. "[In space] you can make all these measurements about fluids and what they do that would just be impossible on earth."

In any theory there are "fudge factors," explained Coleman. In space, she said, "we're able to find out what those fudge factors are" by studying "things we always assumed were true, but haven't been able to test."

Experiments on the shuttle convinced Coleman "the basic rules, the basic way to understand," as taught by professors such as Dr. Walter S. Stockmayer at UMass, "haven't changed."

HANDS hopes for sign program

EMILY BERY / COLLEGIAN

Shoshana Reiss, left, president of the UMass Hands Club gives Jill Carroll, a freshman journalism major, lessons in sign language

By Mike MacLean
Collegian Staff

A meeting of the University of Massachusetts HANDS Club can be very quiet. In fact, sometimes no one speaks at all. It's not that no one is communicating, it's just in a different form.

The Registered Student Organization meets once a week to explore and learn various aspects of sign language, and has sparked enough interest to begin planning an independent study program.

Utilizing handouts and group instruction, members begin learning with the alphabet and move on to more conventional phrases such as the days of the week, colors and basic action verbs. Discussions focus around such topics as the logic and origin behind some of the signs.

"We go into basic signs, just like any other language," Shoshana Reiss, president of UMass HANDS said. "Some are real obvious, but some require more explanation... ones you wouldn't get if you could only see it."

The club began in the early 1980s when there was a higher demand for a program of its kind, said Reiss. In past years the club has spent semesters at a time in the inactive state, but has recently been resurrected as interest has surged.

"I had always been interested in special education, then I found out about this club," Reiss said. "Then, after my freshman year, it petered out."

Vice President Dianna Nappo, who along with Reiss handles teaching during meetings, said attendance at meetings has been sporadic in the past, but they have seen a recent increase.

"People would come and not come back," she said. "This semester it has grown tremendously."

"It's hard to get the word out, but it's working," Reiss said. "Now we have about 35 members."

The growing membership has not interfered with the teaching, Nappo said. Even though taking notes is impossible when learning sign, splitting up into smaller groups according to the different levels of knowledge has proved effective thus far.

"We try to balance the best we can with the teaching knowledge we have," Nappo added. "The growing interest is why the independent study is seen as something desirable."

The independent study program has been proposed and may begin as early as next semester if approved later this month. The program would feature teaching on various elements of American sign language.

"The independent study would offer a series of workshops with guest speakers from the community to speak on what they specialize in," Nappo said.

The UMass HANDS Club is located in Room 306 of the Student Union.

New Office of Human Relations form examines religion's role in multiculturalism

By Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Staff

The Friday Community Action Forum met on April 12 to discuss the topic question, "Isn't it about time that religion and spirituality are included in our understanding of multiculturalism?"

"Although I am rooted in my own religion," said graduate student Ededs McCray, "I would like to know of others'. Knowledge is everything."

Junior philosophy major Phillipe Copeland and senior philosophy major Jethro Heiko, interns for the Office of Human Relations, organized a weekly forum in collaboration with Director of the Office of Human Relations Grant Ingle in which different topics are discussed by students, faculty, and staff.

"This forum was kind of born out of my own grappling with my own religion," said Copeland. "I have been feeling a bit of hostility towards it."

"What drew me to this topic is that I have always been committed to learning about other cultures," said Heiko. "But religion and spirituality never come up. With a better academic background about a religion I would have more respect for those people."

"It seems that in America religion and spirituality are two different things which are not encompassed by the concept of multiculturalism; the term itself is rather narrow and undefined on this campus," said Ingle.

Biochemistry professor Anthony Gawienowski came to the forum to learn about how religion is a multicultural issue. He suggested that the group start by discussing the semantics of the three words — multiculturalism, religion and spirituality.

"This is a very hard issue to deal with," said senior Phardra Petzzullo. "If you grapple with these terms and issues you really grapple with who you are."

"While I was on the strategic planning committee for multiculturalism and diversity we looked at a wide range of definitions," said Ingle. "But in the Collegian it seems to only include Asian, Latino, African, and Native American (ALANA) students. The definition of multiculturalism risks alienating many white students because it does not include 85 percent of the student body."

Copeland said, "All of these words are about identity, identity politics and hostility; the defining process becomes complicated and frightening."

Gawienowski mentioned there is no religion department on campus. "Because we do not have a religion department, we also do not have so-called experts on religion to teach and talk about the subject," he said.

Ruth Miller, a member of UMass athletic development, asked why the University does not require comparative religion and logic courses.

"At Syracuse University, both logic and comparative religion were required," said Miller. "These courses would make sense at UMass since logic is necessary in all aspects of life, while comparative religion would be an eye-opener."

After Copeland concluded the forum, Ingle said, "I feel that we have broken a taboo today by discussing religion."

The forum will continue to work toward the goals of creating an interfaith center, finding a permanent place of worship for Muslim students, and founding a comparative religion class and an interfaith living option. The group said they hope to make students more aware of different religions through the use of the Internet and the Collegian.

There will be another forum on the Five College Campaign to End Sexual Violence on April 26, 3 to 5 p.m. in Campus Center, rooms 804-808.

"We are interested in creating an environment in which sexual violence is neither tolerated nor accepted and in which survivors are supported and validated," Copeland said.

Heiko said, "We need people to come to this forum who will be seriously committed to leading the movement."

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Wednesday, April 17

Film — Amnesty International is presenting Bill Carter, the award-winning filmmaker for a viewing of his documentary Miss Sarajevo, and a discussion with the director himself, in Thompson 104 at 7 p.m. For more information, contact Maureen at 546-3361 or Peter at 546-4821.

Music — "Music on the Edge of Life: A Concert Talk." Music of the Holocaust, with live piano playing and slides, will be presented by Caroline Stoessinger in the Campus Center Auditorium at 8 p.m. Free.

Discussion — The Bolshevik Tendency Spring Study Group presents a discussion on The Fight for Socialism entitled "How the World We Live In Operates and A World of Imperialism and War" in the Cape Cod Lounge at 7:30 p.m.

Film — The Multicultural Film Festival will hold "An Evening of Basque Cinema" at 7 p.m. at Stirn Auditorium, Amherst College. Films featured will include La Muerte de Mikel and Accion Mutante.

Thursday, April 18

Art Exhibition — The opening reception of the Annual Student Art Exhibition, sponsored by the Art, Graphic Design and Media Department of Greenfield Community College, which runs until May 9, will be held at 7 p.m. in South Gallery.

Rally — The Graduate Employee Organization (GEO) will hold a rally on the south steps of the Student Union. Campus leaders will speak on downsizing and privatization, the need for affordable on-campus child care, GEO contract negotiations and proposed new admissions standards. Live reggae featuring Loose Caboose. Bring your kids to campus — there will be jugglers, clowns, face-painting and free soda and popcorn for kids at the rally. All welcome! For more info, call GEO at 545-0705; 545-5317.

March, rally — The annual Take Back Our Rights march and rallies will begin on the Student Union Steps at 6:30 p.m. We will begin marching through downtown Amherst at Amherst Common where the second rally will be held, followed by a Coffeehouse at Amherst College. Women and men are welcome. For more information, call Everywoman's Center, 545-0883.

Meeting — Pi Sigma Alpha, the Political Science Honor Society, will be hosting an informational meeting for prospective students of the political science department at 5:30 p.m. in the sixth floor lounge of Thompson Tower. For more information, contact Bill Ramsey at 546-4278.

Film — Warsaw Ghetto, a documentary with actual footage taken by the SS about life in the ghetto, will be presented in the Campus Center, Room 165, 7:30 p.m., free.

Notices

Internships — The Daily Hampshire Gazette sponsors internships for college students during the academic year (fall: September-December; January; and spring: February- May) and the summer. Fall deadline is Sept. 15; January deadline is Dec. 1; spring deadline is Dec.; and summer deadline is April 15. Students interested in applying for an internship should send a letter and resume to Stanley Moulton, Daily Hampshire Gazette, P.O. Box 299, Northampton, 01061-0229.

Volunteers needed — The Lutheran Social Services and the Literacy Volunteer Network invite you to attend a citizenship preparation workshop where we will help applicants to prepare their citizenship applications. Application assistance will be provided free of charge on Saturday, April 27 from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. at Springfield Technical Community College. Pre-registration is required by April 12. For more information, call Lutheran Social Services at (413) 787-0725.

Book donation — The Amherst League of Women Voters will be accepting donations of used books until April 28, in preparation for the 49th Annual Book Sale. Trunks and boxes for donations will be placed outside Stop & Shop in Hadley and inside Victory Market in Amherst, as well as the Jones Library and North and South Amherst Libraries. Books may also be brought to the sorting and pricing site at the corner of Main and High Streets in Amherst. Books should be free from mildew, magazines are not wanted. For more information, call Harriet Shapiro at 549-5439.

Study Group — Spring Miracles: Join an ongoing study group focusing on the text of A Course in Miracles, every Tuesday from 7:30 - 9 p.m. Group continues until June 25. Free of charge. Call 252-2902 for more information.

Summer Opportunities — Musiker Tours and Summer Discovery are looking for counsellors for our student travel programs and our pre-college enrichment programs. Applicants must be 21 years old by June 15, 1996. We need mature, hardworking, energetic individuals who can dedicate 4-7 weeks this summer working with teenagers. For more information or an application, please call our office in New York at (516) 621-0718.

Grounds treatment — The Physical Plant Grounds Department will have licensed personnel applying a spring treatment of 15-5-5 Turf Pro fertilizer weed and feed trimec April 13-15, weather permitting. Treated areas will be posted for a period of 72 hours. This material is applied in a granular form which precludes anyone or any animal from coming in contact with the herbicide portion of the formula, which is classified as Category III — a classification merely requiring caution in their use.

Course selection — The Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures would like to inform the student body that despite the Provost's ongoing Academic Program Review, courses previously offered to both majors and non-majors will still be available for the foreseeable future. All courses will be taught in English; no Russian required. For further information call the Slavic Department at 545-2052 or visit the office at 438 Herter.

Blood Drives — The American Red Cross will be holding blood drives in Hampshire County at the following locations on the dates and times listed: Robert Crown Center at Hampshire College (April 16 — 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.); Dickinson Hall at UMass (April 23 — 2 to 8 p.m.); Campus Center front room at Amherst College (April 23 — to 7 p.m. and April 24 — 1 to 7 p.m.); 101 Campus Center at UMass (April 25 — 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.); and Cape Cod Lounge at UMass (April 30 — 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.).

Employment — TA positions are available at the Graduate Employee Organization. GEO is accepting applications for the following positions: Organizer/Contract Administrator, Political Advocate, Database Coordinator. You must be a graduate student and committed to organizing GEO into a stronger Union. Positions will start in Fall '96 semester and last through the academic year. Please come to the GEO office at 201 Student Union for more information about these positions or to fill out an application packet. Call 545- 0705 for more information. Deadline for applications is 5 p.m. April 19.

Running — Registration for "Run for Newman" will be available everyday in the Newman Center from office, from Tuesday through Thursday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Newman Center cafeteria and from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Campus Center. The cost is $5 for pre-registration. Free t-shirts will be awarded. For more information, call the Newman Center at 549-0300.

Southwest Week — The following are needed for Southwest Week, held from May 6 to 11: Basketball players for a 3-on-3 tournament; volleyball players for a 6-on-6 tournament; and D.J.s, M.C.s, fashion designers and amateur talents and comedians for various contests. cash prizes will be awarded. The sign-up deadline is April 18. For more information call 545-0960.

Campus Police Log

Accident
April 9
There was a two vehicle accident on Eastman Lane, Amherst Police were notified.
April 11
One individual was injured and taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital after an accident on Commonwealth Avenue.
A dumpster rolled into a parked vehicle on Baker Circle.

Annoying behavior
April 11
An individual in John Adams Residence Hall reported being harassed by a resident.

Assist agency
April 10
A tree fell across Mather Road. The Physical Plant cleared the debris.

Assist other PDs
April 9
University police assisted with directions to Morrill Science Building.
April 11
University police assisted Hadley police in the identification of individuals.
University police assisted Littleton police in checking the status of a warrant.

Burglary/breaking & entering
April 10
A vehicle in Parking Lot 11 was broken into. A stereo was stolen.
A vehicle in Parking Lot 49 had a stereo stolen after it was broken into.
A vehicle in Parking Lot 22 was broken into. A stereo was stolen.
April 11
A vehicle was broken into in Parking Lot 49.
A radio was stolen from a vehicle on Fearing Street.

Disturbance
April 9
There was a report of a fight near Totman Building. One individual was treated at University Health Services. It is under investigation.

Fraud
April 9
Franklin Dining Hall Staff reported they received a counterfeit $20 bill.

Health/ safety hazard
April 11
A cover was removed from an exposed manhole on Massachusetts Avenue.
A television cable and a piece of metal was found hanging from the roof of Gorman Residence Hall.

Larceny
April 9
Cash reported missing from an office at the University Store.
An individual in the W.E.B. Du Bois Library reported her pocketbook stolen.
A vehicle in Parking Lot 22 was broken into. A stereo and a radar detector was stolen.
A vehicle in Parking Lot 22 as broken into. A stereo was stolen.
April 10
A telephone was stolen from an office in Lederle Research Building.
An individual in the Campus Center reported her wallet stolen.
A license plate was stolen from a vehicle in Parking Lot 22.
An individual in Gorman Residence Hall reported his wallet stolen.
April 11
An individual in Mackimmie Residence Hall reported CDs stolen from her room.
A mountain bike was stolen from a bike rack near John Q. Adams Residence Hall.
An individual in the Campus Center reported money stolen.
An individual in Coolidge Residence Hall reported his credit card stolen from his room.
An individual reported her purse stolen from her Coolidge Residence Hall room.
April 12
A CD player was stolen from the lobby area of Washington Residence Hall.

Liquor law violations
April 12
A keg was confiscated from Van Meter Residence Hall.

Medical emergency
April 11
An individual with a knee injury in Totman Building was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.
During a baseball game at the athletic fields on Totman Road, an individual was hit on the back with a baseball bat. The individual declined medical treatment.
April 12
An intoxicated individual in the stairwell of Prince Residence Hall was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.

Noise complaint
April 11
There was loud music in Brown Residence Hall.
There was a report of loud music in Thoreau Residence Hall.
A large group in the Sylvan courtyard was being loud.
April 12
There were numerous noise complaints from the 18th floor of John Q. Adams Residence Hall.

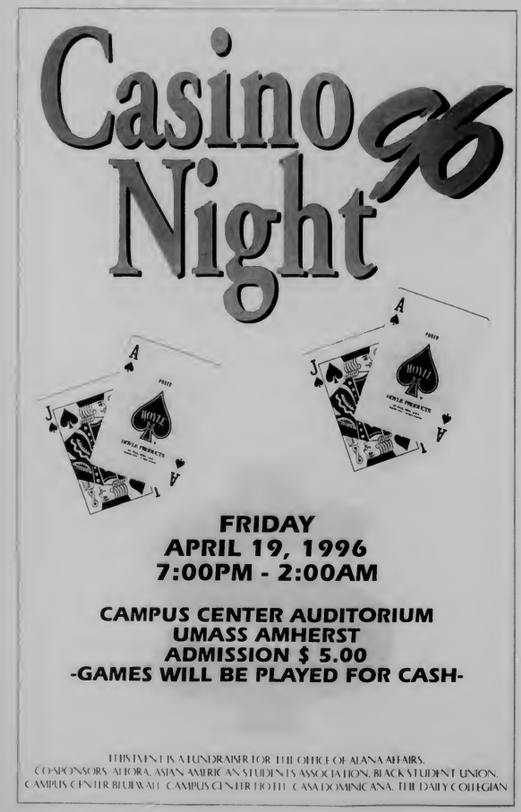
Traffic stop
April 11
Reginald A. Remy, 19, of 22 High St., Brookline, was arrested on a warrant.

Vandalism
April 9
A tire on a vehicle was damaged in Parking Lot 13.
A window was smashed on a vehicle in Parking Lot 11.
A window was smashed on a vehicle in Parking Lot 22.
April 10
There was a vehicle in Parking Lot 22 with a smashed window.
April 11
A cement block damaged the hood of a vehicle in Parking Lot 11.
There was damage to a vehicle in Parking Lot 79.

Charity — A food and clothes drive is going on now. Boxes are located in Holdsworth, Whitmore, New Africa House, Chenoweth and Goessman. For more information, call the Hunger and Homelessness campaign at MASSPIRG at 545-0199.

Volunteers — STARS, Student Alumni Relations Society needs students who are graduating in 1996, who want to plan events for the Senior Class and/or work on the Senior Campaign. If you are interested please contact Ann Thompson in Memorial Hall at 545-2317.

Workshop — The Arts Extension Service presents a free series of workshops for early career artists in all disciplines. These workshops will offer practical information and confidence building insight about promotion, legal rights, writing funding proposals and other topics. The series will take place on Wednesday April 17 from 4 - 6:30 p.m. in room 206 Bartlett. A fourth workshop, Careers in Arts Administration, on April 24 discusses job opportunities in the fields of arts administration. Seating is limited, please contact the Arts Extension Office at 545-2360 to ensure your seat.



Casino Night 96
FRIDAY
APRIL 19, 1996
7:00PM - 2:00AM
CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM
UMASS AMHERST
ADMISSION $ 5.00
-GAMES WILL BE PLAYED FOR CASH-
THIS EVENT IS A FUNDRAISER FOR THE OFFICE OF ALANA AFFAIRS.
CO-SPONSORS: AFLORA, ASIAN AMERICAN STUDENTS ASSOCIATION, BLACK STUDENT UNION, CAMPUS CENTER BUILDWAIT, CAMPUS CENTER HOTEL CASA DOMINICANA, THE DAILY COLLEGIAN

The
Edwin M. Rossman
Alumni Career Forum
PSYCHOLOGY
DATE: THURSDAY, APRIL 18, 1996
TIME: 4:00 PM
LOCATION: CAMPUS CENTER 904

SPONSORED BY:
UNIVERSITY CAREER CENTER
UNIVERSITY ALUMNI ASSOCIATION
DEPARTMENT OF PSYCHOLOGY

This is an opportunity to meet with alumni and discuss their experiences in the working world. Don't miss this important panel discussion!

ALUMNI PANELISTS:

Matthew Jorgensen, '89	Ph.D. from Univ. of California at Riverside Postdoctoral Research Fellow New England Regional Primate Research Center Harvard Medical School Southboro, MA
Kelly Michaelian, '93	Business Development Director RBL Agency Ltd. New York, NY
Terese Ng, '91	Quality Improvement Coordinator May Institute Norwood, MA
Kathleen Zumbruski, '91	MSW from Boston College Psychiatric Social Worker Brattleboro Retreat Brattleboro, VT

For more information, please contact:
University Career Center
545-2224

Prof. looks into Confucianism

Says Americans could learn from ancient Chinese philosophy

By Bryan C. Schwartzman
Collegian Staff

Having only read translations of text and possessing no previous background of Chinese literature, E. Bruce Brooks enrolled in a master's program in Seattle, Wash. Ten years later he had a Ph.D. Brooks was never granted tenure at a teaching position, so he was forced to work odd jobs, such as dishwashing and modeling, to support his research.

Brooks, a research professor in the Asian language and literature department at the University of Massachusetts, has recently been granted a $30,000 fellowship from the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) for his upcoming book presenting his theories on the Analects of Confucius.

Since the 1970s, Brooks and his wife Taeko, an expert in medieval Japanese literature, have been studying the Analects of Confucius and its interpretations in Chinese history.

The sayings of Confucius are as important a part of Chinese culture and history as the works of Homer and the Bible are in western culture, Brooks explained.

"Classical texts are terribly important documents for us," Brooks said. "If someone has a new idea about one of them, it changes who we think we are. People find justification for what they are doing in the great texts."

Brooks said China is a very classical-minded society that holds many traditions besides Confucianism, such as Taoism and a military tradition. After the warring states period, which Brooks described as China's "philosophical heyday," the Han dynasty established the Confucian tradition in China.

Although Confucianism has a cooperative and authoritarian tradition, Chinese history has magnified the authoritarian aspect while downplaying the humanistic value, Brooks said.

"You can't have simple control. People have to be human with their own energy and contribute to their own humanity," Brooks said.

According to Brooks, much of what is attributed to Confucius was said by subsequent students, which means Confucius's stature as a cultural father to China should be reexamined. Brooks has spent years examining the chronology of the classic Chinese texts and trying to place them all in order.

"My motivation was to challenge 2000 years of scholarship, get the whole chronology and try and make those pieces work, the fact that it would be important to the world did not occur to us," he said.

Brooks said his findings show "the Chinese began as a human society with a multiplicity of philosophy... and made their own civilization instead of it being imposed upon them by some all wise stage."

Traditional Confucianism teaches "people need governments, they can't exist without it and are not realized as a person until government gives you the context to live fully," Brooks said.

There is a tradition of lawlessness and anti-government in the west, and accepting government as essential is something the west can learn from Confucian philosophy, he explained.

Also, communism's distrust of economics and government is inconsistent with Chinese tradition, according to Brooks.

"The communists have borrowed the standard patterns of the empire" by emphasizing authority over the individual, he said. "The government's lack of concern for suffering is outside the traditions, there is a better tradition that can be evoked if we can find the path to it."

Brooks said the major dilemmas in China today are that the Chinese people are trying to keep their traditions alive while entering the modern world. China is not maximizing its potential because "they are not resting on their definition of how society should work," he said.

Brooks has never traveled to China because he views today's society as too different from the ancient civilization he has studied in the books.

Bruce and Taeko Brooks did this work independently for many years without receiving much recognition. Several years ago, Al Cohen, chairman of the Asian language and literature department, brought on Brooks as an adjunct professor. The grant from the NEH will help the Brooks repay the money they spent in financing their own research.

In 1993, with the help of Dean Lee Edwards, Brooks helped form the Warring States Working Group, which gives scholars of classic Chinese literature an opportunity to meet and exchange ideas. Twice a year this group meets at UMass. The next conference will be held on May 4 and 5. Brooks also teaches a seminar on Fridays and frequently speaks in the Five College area.

The joint translation of the Analects will be published by Columbia University Press later this year.

SHANE KEENAN / COLLEGIAN

Row row row your car

Rainy weather yesterday flooded roads on campus and gave some pedestrians an additional shower.

Material Girl no longer `like a virgin'

By Judie Glave
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Imagine life as Madonna's wee one. Cone-shaped baby bottles? Baby togs by Jean-Paul Gaultier? X-rated first words? We'll see, since the Material Girl has gone Maternal. Madonna is expecting her first child in November.

"She is pregnant," her publicist Liz Rosenberg said yesterday in a telephone interview from Budapest, Hungary, where Madonna, 37, is filming the movie version of the musical "Evita."

The father is Carlos Leon, Madonna's 29-year-old personal trainer-boyfriend.

Rosenberg said Madonna is "a few" months pregnant, but doesn't look it. And she hasn't really suffered from typical first-trimester symptoms, like throwing up at the sight or smell of just about anything.

She does, however, have that well-known maternal glow.

"Her eyes look very sparkly. She's very happy, very happy," Rosenberg said. "It's something she's wanted for a very long time."

The world was informed of Madonna's ticking biological clock when she joked last year that she desperately wanted to have a baby and might even take out an ad to find just the right daddy. Turns out she didn't have to look past her own home gym. Leon, who helped sculpt the Material Girl's well-toned body, has been doing double-duty as Madonna's lover the past year, according to the London tabloid The Sun.

"They are both ecstatic about this," the publicist said, although Da-donna was not traveling with Ma-donna. "He's back in the States."

Madonna, who has been single since her 1989 divorce from Sean Penn, has had several flamboyant relationships since then, dating "Dick Tracy" co-star Warren Beatty and basketball bad boy Dennis Rodman. There has also been gossip about an alleged fling with John F. Kennedy Jr.

The baby, exact due date not given, has not interfered with the filming of "Evita." "An enormous amount has already been shot," the publicist said. "They're just about finishing up in Budapest and all that's left is close-ups, so I don't think it will affect anything."

So will the "Like a Virgin" singer try natural childbirth? "She hasn't really mentioned that," Rosenberg said.

Does the woman who put out an X-rated book called "Sex" want to find out the baby's sex before it's born? "I assume she'll find out at some point in time," the publicist said.

How about marrying the man who made her baby dream come true? "I just don't know the answer to that question," Rosenberg said. Stay tuned.

Pataki to try to remove anti–abortion

By Joel Stashenko
Associated Press

ALBANY, N.Y. — Gov. George Pataki said Monday he will battle to have the anti-abortion plank removed from the Republican national platform in hopes of broadening the party's appeal. Pataki said Americans will be taking stock of where the Democratic and Republican parties are heading as they decide on who to vote for in November's presidential race.

"When they take another look at the Republican Party, I want them to see an open, inclusive party and in the aftermath of some of the primary rhetoric, the presidential primary, we have an obligation to speak out," Pataki told a news conference.

New York's Republican leaders, including Sen. Alfonse D'Amato and Pataki, committed to Kansas Sen. Bob Dole back in 1995 and they helped deliver all 93 delegates to this summer's GOP convention in San Diego to him that were at stake in New York's March 7 primary. Dole favors the anti-abortion platform plank and his campaign reiterated that position.

"Senator Dole maintains his expectation that the Republican platform will retain an anti-abortion plank and fully intends to continue to reach out to Americans of various beliefs and opinions. As he has said many times before, the Republican Party is a party of inclusion and optimism," said Dole spokeswoman Christina Martin.

Pataki said he'd immediately start working to soften the Republican's anti-abortion stand. In doing so, he'd join his fellow Northeastern Republican governors William Weld of Massachusetts and Christine Todd Whitman of New Jersey in getting the GOP to tear the anti-abortion plank out of its platform.

"I intend to take a very active role, not just at the convention, but before then, looking to have us be as inclusive and open a party that doesn't have a litmus test," he said.

The governor said he had not discussed his intentions with Dole. "I am not looking for someone's approval to take this position," Pataki said. "I'm doing it because I think it's the appropriate thing for the Republican Party and for the American political climate."

Pataki ran for governor as a supporter of abortion rights and led the successful drive to remove an anti-abortion plank from the state party's platform in 1990 when he was a state senator. Pataki will head the nation's second-largest delegation to the convention in San Diego. It will be his first national convention as governor.

Following his news conference, Pataki said he wouldn't object to the national platform mentioning abortion, but only if it makes clear that the party is open to all views.

Pataki is known to be concerned that Republican women may flee the party if its sticks with its anti-abortion platform plank. The governor's wife said she is foursquare behind her husband's move.

"I'm pro-choice," Libby Pataki said. "Frankly, I'd like people to be able to make their own personal decisions and that's why I don't think government should be dictating it, and George feels the same way."

Jump Into The Action At

new balance
Haigis Hoopla VI
APRIL 1996
new balance

Presented by the UMass Sport Management Program
APRIL 20 TO 21
HAIGIS MALL - UMASS AMHERST

Throughout the weekend, prizes will be awarded to participants and spectators through the New Balance raffle and contests. New Balance promotional events include:

New Balance, New Voices Play by Play
This is your chance to be the voice of the game and announce play by play for a Haigis Hoopla game Come and test your play by play skill, the top announcers make it to the finals to announce a Haigis Hoopla championship game and a chance to win some great New Balance prizes

New Balance Shoot Out
Come test your shooting skill against the best in the Pioneer Valley! Throughout the day you challenge the clock on the New Balance promotional courts as you shoot as many baskets as you can in 30 seconds Finalist will be chosen in both men's and women's divisions, for 18 & Under and 18 & Over to compete for the championship and New Balance prizes

Team New Balance
If you're a team competing in Haigis Hoopla, deck out in all of your New Balance gear The team checking in wearing the most New Balance apparel will be Team New Balance and receive even more gear to add to their New Balance wardrobe

Achieve New Balance Skills Area
Challenge yourself at the Achieve New Balance Skills Area Stations include obstacle courses, dribble races, defensive slides and much more!

1996
SUMMER SESSION
Division of Continuing Education
Direction for Your Life.
Call 413-545-0107 for a free course catalog. E-mail: contined@admin.umass.edu
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

Lorenz Olympic
Gold Medal Challenge
Drive To Victory
Food
Games
Fun
Tie-Dyes
(bring a T shirt)
Thursday
April 25th
11:00am-5:00pm
Umass-Pond
Sponsored by Don Lorenz, Inc. of Greenfield
http://www-unicat.umass.edu/~mtw
Prizes
Win a Weekend Getaway to Montreal
Co-sponsored by The Collegian, WHMP, Flex Sport, Superfast Estates, Taylor Rental, Blueair, Fatty Cat Print Shop, Cartoone Plaza, Media Play, Mike's Westview, MR Valley Estates, Jake's Hut, Friendly #, The University Store, Atkins Farm, Bart's Coffee, Greenough Snack Bar, Hanson Bakery, Joe Bfish, Hot Stamps, Vt. Log Homes, Amherst Express, Flower Shop, All Wave Welding & Metal

DAILY COLLEGIAN
113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief
Earl T. Martin Business Manager
James P. Ganley Production Manager
Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager
Lisa Chiu Senior Diversity Editor
Marni E. Helfner Managing Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor
Gregory Cassimi Co-Black Affairs Editor
Humphrey Brown III Co-Black Affairs Editor
Position Vacant Developing Nations Editor
Bob Dunn Editorial/Opinion Editor
Lisa M. Olivieri Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Anna Feder Jewish Affairs Editor
Lisa Chiu Multicultural Affairs Editor
Ami Paradysz News Editor
Emily Reily Photography Editor
Candace Flemming Sports Editor
Sean Cahoon Staff Artist
Anna Lotto Co-Women's Issues Editor
Hannah Thorne Co-Women's Issues Editor
Tom Morse Editorial Production Manager
Adam Chace Systems Manager
Eric R. Remillard Ps Romance Manager
Lee Weiner Distribution Manager
Position Vacant Classifieds Manager
Luke A. Herrin Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Cases Katie Finneran

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Mondays through Fridays during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the Lineup Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967 and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

More than just the Holocaust

Yesterday was Yom Ha'Shoah, the Jewish holiday which roughly translates to Day of the Holocaust.

It is a day to remember what happened to the Jews and many others at the hands of the Nazis. It is a day to remember the oppression of people everywhere, and to make sure it never happens again.

It's good the University is remembering the Holocaust by having a week of events. But this seems to be only a token gesture on the part of campus administration in an effort to fight anti-Semitism. On a campus where anti-Semitic incidents occur every single day, and a highly visible Jewish community is conspicuously absent, it is all too easy to identify Jews with only the Holocaust.

"Jews are more than the stereotypical Holocaust survivors or any of the horrible stereotypes of wealthy doctors, lawyers, or jewelers. The list of noteworthy Jews is long and diverse. From Sammy Davis Jr., to Jonas Salk, discoverer of the polio vaccine, to Sandy Koufax, famous baseball player."

Marni E. Helfner

Being a Jew in the United States is about more than just possibly being related to someone who either survived or died in the Holocaust.

For many American Jews, the Holocaust is not only a part of their lives, but a painful one at that. For some, like myself, large numbers of family members were killed in the camps, and it's not something I particularly want to talk about. But not everyone necessarily has a Holocaust memory in their families — it is not the sole thing in our lives.

My father's side of the family mostly came to the U.S. in the early 1900's, and large numbers of his family were killed by the Russians during the pogroms.

It constantly amazes me that most Christians in this country have a gaping hole when it comes to knowledge about religions and cultures other than their own, specifically in regards to Judaism. When most Americans think Jewish, they generally think Holocaust. No one mentions the establishment of the State of Israel, or the Spanish Inquisition, or any of the other major anti-Semitic incidents which have occurred throughout modern history.

Jews are more than the stereotypical Holocaust survivors or any of the horrible stereotypes of wealthy doctors, lawyers, or jewelers. The list of noteworthy Jews is long and diverse. From Sammy Davis Jr., to Jonas Salk, discoverer of the polio vaccine, to Sandy Koufax, famous baseball player.

To identify Jews solely with the Holocaust is to make a grave mistake. There is so much more to our culture and religion. Jews have fought for justice for all people throughout their history, despite being on the receiving end of 5,000 years of oppression and intentional extinction by numerous groups of peoples around the world.

As children and teenagers, most American Jews are required to take a class in comparative religion as part of their religious school education. For myself, I couldn't be confirmed without it. Having that class was a valuable experience for me because I learned about all the major religions of the world from Taoism to Catholicism to Jehovah's Witnesses. What I found in the past few years is that most Christians do not learn about other religions. Instead, they are simply told that theirs is the one true religion and any other is simply wrong.

Up until recently, the Catholic church was still claiming that Jews were responsible for the death of Jesus. I can't tell you how many times I have been told by Catholics that my people therefore killed Jesus and are going to burn in hell for it. That always makes my day so much brighter. Not because I'm going to burn in hell, but because there are still so many people that are ignorant enough to need a scapegoat for their problems.

It's great that UMass is doing so much this week, but they could be doing more. And until the administration does something substantive, the only thing I can ask of people is that they question what they have been taught to believe. To look at the stereotypes one holds about Jews and Judaism and to carefully examine where those come from. It is not until we break them down and dismantle what we have been taught that anti-Semitism, or any other oppression, for that matter, will be destroyed.

As Jews around the world remember the millions who died at the hands of the Nazis today, I ask you to remember the millions of Jews who have died at the hands of the anti-Semitism of common people like ourselves.

Marni E. Helfner is a Collegian columnist.

Alternative tradition alive and kicking

Writers and artists of the Beat Generation are about to be honored with an exhibit at the National Portrait Gallery in Washington D.C. The event will honor the work of writers such as Allen Ginsberg, who recently read here at the University of Massachusetts. Looking at the works of this post-World War II literary movement invokes more than just nostalgia, it raises some provocative questions. Are the works of the beat writers relevant to the concerns of today's youth and has the passage of time incorporated the voices of defiance into the consumer mainstream?

Bryan Schwartzman

The answer to the second question is yes, and I will provide a few quick examples. Throughout history radical voices have been turned into institution, some examples being Confucius and Jesus. After the Woodstock festival, the rock of the late '60s became big business.

As recently as a few years ago only a select few radio stations played grunge music, offering a fresh insight into a new genre. Now, the dials on the airwaves offer little alternative to alternative music. And the beat poets would never have predicted being honored by a Washington institution. This trend may hinder, but does not detract from the whole anti-establishment movement, which is alive and well today.

The beat writers, along with civil rights activists and followed by folk, rock, rap and eventually "grunge" music, possess a common thread, the belief that something has gone wrong with the mainstream values of our society. Despite all the issues that appear to divide generations, a rich "alternative" tradition has developed and has been searching for spiritual and cultural values that lie outside cold war consumerism and traditional religion. One of the dangers that face young people today is that they often feel isolated from history, turning to empty voices like Courtney Love.

It is an interesting coincidence that the upcoming exposition is falling around the same time as the two year anniversary of Kurt Cobain's suicide. Striking similarities exist between the Beat movement and the Seattle music scene. Cobain recorded a spoken word album with William S. Burroughs, an influential beat poet. Both men used their work to challenge convention and suffered from heroin addiction (although Burroughs has survived). Today's teen-agers not only should feel more in tune with history but cannot understand the voices of today without realizing their context in historical development.

One cannot grasp the "why bother" mentality without considering the beginning of the Cold War, the continuing struggle for de-segregation and equality, the protest movements, the divisive effect Vietnam had on our society and the economic developments of the last two decades.

After some examination, one may wonder how the "alternative" population went from "make love, not war" to moshing in order to release the tension that accumulates in everyday life. My guess is that the folks of the late '60s were on to something, and it wasn't LSD. Some had a realization that life did not have to be lived as fierce competition in a superficial society, that a better world could be created based on care, concern and respect. Some of today's anger and discontent may be due to growing up in the wake of the disappointment, the possibility that the world will become a reality has been steadily diminishing.

The dream has gone unfulfilled but remains alive in shopping malls, packaged and sold as blue jeans and tie-dye shirts. Of course the reality of the world is more complicated than the way I have just described.

A great deal of the movements following World War II developed in response to the Cold War. The corporation is quickly filling the void left by the end of the Cold War. Companies like Disney and Westinghouse now own a big percentage of our network television and radio, so they not only have input into what we think, but they control which issues are brought to viewers and listeners.

There is still so much to be done, there is no need to make a list of world problems. We must look to the last 45 years of "alternative tradition," not so much for their answers, but for the questions they asked. We must combine the complementary opposites of political activism and self awareness to continue what has begun.

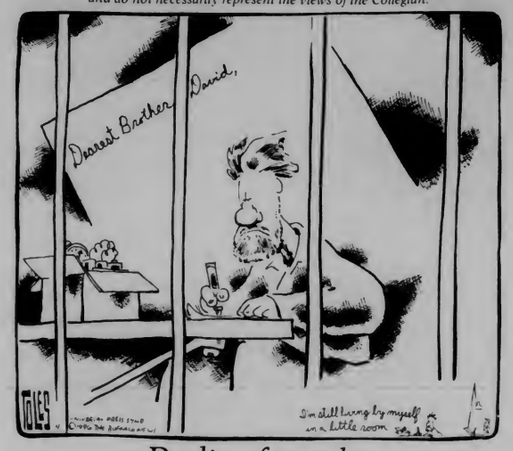
Bryan C. Schwartzman is a Collegian staff member

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

WELL, I MUST SAY, I'M QUITE TEMPTED BY THIS OFFER FROM THE TANNING CONSID.
I KNEW YOU WOULD BE, KID! THAT'S WHY I MADE YOUR DEAL!
THERE'S A DEAL?
$5,000 UP FRONT, $15,000 GUARANTEED MINIMUM, PLUS A GROSS POSITION ON THE CONVENTION GATE.
AMAZING...
WHAT?
WELL, I DIDN'T EVEN KNOW YOU REPRESENTED ME
OH, SURE, SINCE THE EARLY 80S. I SIGNED YOU AT A PARTY

Opinion/Editorial

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian.



Bodies for sale

If you saw the Oscars, you might find it interesting to note how perfect each and every actress managed to look as they smiled, waved and played the crowd like a trout in its death throes.

For me, beauty has always been an abstract thing. Having grown up with no real Asian examples of beauty, I had to yield to America's image of "the perfect woman:" white, tall, 34-24-34 and answers to the name Barbie, last name Doll.

But even Barbie dolls pay a price for perfection. In a recent article in this months Marie Claire there was a interesting article on Hollywood women and the doctors who sculpt them. Plastic surgery has become a woman's answer to ugliness — or what they perceive as being ugly. Fat thighs? Hips? Abdomen? Suck out cellulite. Crows feet? Wrinkles? Skinny lips? Small jaw? Insert cellulite. Blemishes? Scar? Tattoos? Laser beam it, baby. Snip, tuck, stretch, pull and tug for the perfect face, body and personality.

For many celebrities and the upper class echelon, plastic surgery is not only a social must, but a social addiction. Catering to the phrase "rich and beautiful," women are shelling out thousands of dollars for often painful and dangerous surgery, just so they can look like everyone else.

Women yearn for Christy's cheekbones, Nikki's smile, Cindy's mole and Elle's thighs. And when you have hundreds of women wanting these things (and getting them), you end up with hundreds of women who look beautiful and exactly alike. And when they see carbon copies of themselves walking down the street, they are horrified! All that money, pain and recovery time to look outstanding, only to find that, in fact, they are quite ordinary.

Actress Tori "I'm Worth $300 million" Spelling is by far the youngest abuser of plastic surgery and money. At 22, she has had her breasts changed twice, her nose done twice and has received chin and cheek implants. Other celebrities that believe in truly defying the laws of nature and gravity are Phyllis Diller, Joan Rivers, Demi Moore, Melanie Griffith and, of course, Anna Nicole Smith and Pamela Anderson-Lee.

Tara MK Connelly

And it isn't only women. Robert Redford is shopping around for some help. Don Johnson has had his eyes done and Paul Hogan has also had a lift. Small chest? Pectoral inserts are the new buzz word in buff. Butts, thighs and stomachs are also subjected to the knife when men realize that there has become less of an emphasis on personality and more on image.

And indeed there has been more of an emphasis on image than ever before. It is sad to open magazines and read letters from faithful subscribers who beg the magazine to portray women as real women — women with bodies that they can relate to and be proud of. Editors always say that they will try harder, but there is no market for reality in the fashion world. After seeing pages upon pages of 5-foot-10 inch Amazons, you can't help but feel overwhelmed and maybe, just maybe a tad bit envious. You can't help it because for years, this is what beautiful was and is and unfortunately will probably always be.

For every Nike ad that tells you to work harder, run faster and rejoice in your individuality there are five that tell you that who you are isn't good enough and here is exactly why. So women who can't afford to go to the doctor for "just a little off the thighs and nose, please" diet and exercise themselves to death. In fact, the word "exercise" becomes something one has to do rather than enjoy.

When do women stop believing their mothers when they are told that they are beautiful? At what age do girls abandon the notion that "it doesn't matter what is on the outside"? And when will women realize that it's OK not to be perfect and that "popularity," "beauty" and "thin" are just words used by a society that invented the very dictionary they're bound in and can't break free from.

Tara MK Connelly is a Collegian columnist.

Lost in the shuffle

I was in Hopkinton on Monday, standing by the roadside watching around 38,000 people run by me in shorts, T-shirts, sweat suits, tank tops, silly hats, clown get-ups, cardboard churches, British "Bobby" helmets and, yes, Elvis costumes.

Nicole Cournoyer

As I gazed out across a field of spandex and thousands of license plate-like number tags, I couldn't help but think about the people I know who swore they'd run in this year's marathon but didn't. My brother had planned on training over the past year but has been so preoccupied with his master's thesis that he never got around to it. A friend of mine who wanted to run (even though he hasn't trained and didn't have an official number for the race) ended up not doing it.

Now, don't get me wrong, I'm not criticizing these people. Just seriously considering running 26 miles takes more guts than I have. My point in bringing their situations up is to introduce a subject which has been on my mind often lately, unrealized dreams. Goals we hope for but never achieve. Plans we make but never carry out.

I have a great admiration for people who wish for things and then make them come true because I'm not like that at all. When I look back at my mind's unrealized creations, my birth-denied dream children, I can't help but become a tad depressed and wonder why it is that I don't carry through with half of the things I think up.

Some of the promises I make to myself are unavoidably made in vain simply because, given my limited time on this Earth, I cannot possibly do everything I want to do. I can't travel all over the planet, read every book ever written, become a millionaire, learn every language, find a cure for cancer, eliminate world hunger, walk on Mars, break every Olympic record ever set and become the world's greatest trapeze artist all in one lifetime. It's just impossible.

Reality also imposes certain restrictions on my dreams. No fighting dragons, time traveling, turning into a cat, living with Ewoks or marrying Prince Charming for me.

Seriously though, there are keepable resolutions that I haven't kept too... that many of us haven't kept. Books I still haven't gotten around to reading, letters I haven't written or sent, people I haven't called, pounds I haven't lost, muscle I haven't gained, reading assignments I haven't done, classes I haven't taken, places I haven't been, pictures I haven't drawn and stories I haven't written.

Little things missed may not amount to much (I don't think never having read Moby Dick is going to kill me), but I still wonder why I haven't taken on some of the projects formed so nicely in my mind. Once I planned on carving a chess set out of little blocks of wood, but I couldn't find enough pieces of wood so I gave up the idea — so easily dissuaded after laying out such a careful plan. I'd had the design for each piece all figured out.

Are those of us who let these little things slip by just lazy or do we genuinely not have the time? What are you doing instead of making your dreams a reality? Maybe, if you're smart and not like me at all, you're working on bigger, better, more important dreams.

As for me, I don't seem to deliver even with the big stuff, the stuff that carries more weight as far as my future is concerned. Last year, I was positive I would study abroad for at least a semester of my junior year, but as the conclusion of my fourth semester approaches, I still haven't taken any steps toward being anywhere but Amherst in the fall. Internships have been on my mind frequently, but do you think I've even visited the career center, let alone applied anywhere? The Peace Corps looks enticing, but I've missed the information meetings this semester and haven't gotten my butt down to the office. A backup teaching certificate is good for liberal arts majors, right? Have I taken any education classes? Nope.

Like many kids my age, I tell people that I have no idea what to do with my life, but what I mean by that is not that I haven't got any ideas, but that I have so many ideas that I'm afraid to commit myself to any one for fear of spoiling my chances for the others. If I intern for the summer instead of working for my dad on the farm, I gain valuable experience but don't make my money and leave the family short-handed. If I spend all my time studying one thing, I'll miss out on all the other subjects that interest me. If I commit myself to one career, I'm passing up another.

I'm well aware of life's trade-offs, but what I (and probably some of you) need to work on is actually making those trade-off decisions and not sitting on the sidelines watching the opportunities to fulfill my dreams run by.

Nicole Cournoyer is a Collegian columnist

To be a woman

Some people object to the evidence that women's lives are unequal to men's. They claim the fact that women make 72 cents for a man's dollar is a lie and that pornography is a form of free speech. They believe battered women chose to come back to abusive mates and "real" rape isn't all that common. They argue the existence of an oppressive patriarchy and the glass ceiling are a feminist farce... yada, yada...

There is, of course, ample proof that women today, and throughout history, have suffered infinite injustices simply because of their sex. However, something that is a little harder to dispute, something that is a clear example of abuse against women, and as a result less talked about, is the reality of female circumcision.

Anna Lotto

More appropriately referred to as female genital mutilation(FGM), it is the horrific practice of amputating part or all of a woman's vagina when she is young. Only recently has this practice begun to be recognized by the western world. Performed primarily in African countries, it has been inflicted on an estimated 100 million to 130 million girls and women around the world. Six thousand women are mutilated each day, 2 million females each year.

Female circumcision is not a procedure comparable to male circumcision. FGM is done not when the girl is an infant, but when she is older (usually between the ages of 5 and 8, but anytime up until she is married). The girl is conscious and no anesthetic is used. It is not an inconsequential piece of anatomy that is removed (like the male's foreskin), but the very means of female sexual pleasure and/or function.

FGM has different forms. The extent of the mutilation depends on the particular culture where it occurs. Even the least invasive form, chlioridectomy, involves a barbaric and painful "operation" which mentally and physically scars a woman for life. In a chlioridectomy, the girl's chlioris is amputated with scissors, a razor blade, broken glass or a sharp stone. It is frequently done on the ground outdoors while the girl is held down by her mother or another relative. Other forms involve removal of all of a woman's outer genitalia in the same manner, i.e. — with blunt instruments and no painkiller.

The most severe FGM is infibulation. This is when the entire outer genitalia is removed, the opening of what is left of the vagina is stitched up and a pinhole opening is left for the flow of urine. On a woman's wedding night she is opened up with a knife by her husband. In Somalia, Ethiopia, and Sudan, up to 98 percent of all women have been infibulated.

This mutilation is done solely for the sexual pleasure of men and the subjugation of women. The idea is that women's sexuality exists only for men. By stripping her of all possible enjoyment during sex, she will be less likely to be unfaithful during marriage or promiscuous before it. This "tradition" is the means of creating the "ideal" woman, an obedient sex machine.

Just think about this for a minute. Remember your most emotionally damaging childhood memory, what it's like to have your innocence tainted in any way. Remember the pain of your worst accident as a kid, how fragile your mind and your body were. Recall the tears and the hurt you still feel today. Now imagine if when you were a wide-eyed 8-year- old, this happened to you. How could you live the rest of your life?

OK, there are two points here; the first being how incredibly disturbing it is that this happens to so many women all over the world (it is a practice in the United States by immigrant families and has not yet been made illegal by our government) and is virtually ignored. This stems from the fact that it is not only a strictly female injustice, it is primarily black females who are the victims. It is considered the foreign ritual of a distant and unimportant people. That is, if it is considered at all.

Why should any comfortable American worry about what happens to some poor Third World girl? This issue encompasses sexism, racism and classism in their most extreme forms. Imagine the national outcry if it were white, American boys suffering a similar torture.

The second point is the nature of this act, the ultimate dehumanization of a woman through her sexuality. Female circumcision is the most grotesque manifestation of a very common societal attitude towards women. The portrayal of women as mere sex objects in the media and all forms of popular culture is really no different. In theory, the same rationale is used. When a woman is displayed, faceless and sexually (one need not look far; think fashion ads, think MTV close-ups), the message is she exists for a man's pleasure. The result is that she appears submissive.

No, women are not treated equally to men. Yes, there are aberrations of the most unimaginable violence happening to innocent women right now. When this, along with all the other ugly, inhumane and unjust actions committed daily against women end, then you can argue against the need for a feminist movement.

You cannot excuse female circumcision as a religious ceremony or an obscure tribal practice unrelated to our society. It is real and it is happening to thousands of girls. These girls are real and they have minds that think. They have emotions and experience fear. The fight for women to be recognized as human beings is not over. We live, we think, we feel. You need not cut us to see we bleed.

Anna Lotto is a Collegian staff member.

Israel still threatened

On March 5, 1996, President Bill Clinton said, "The United States has always stood with the people of Israel through good times and bad. And we stand with them today." Following numerous terrorist attacks on Israel, Clinton made these remarks to show U.S. support for the state of Israel and the peace process.

Alan Weinfield

I would hope in an era of peace that Israel's neighbors would drop the violent language of "jihad" and start to talk about positive issues such as peaceful coexistence and economic cooperation. The truth is that Israel continues to face grave dangers, not only from Hamas, but from Libya, Syria, Iran and Iraq.

Libya has issued statements supporting the recent wave of Palestinian terrorism. Syria continues to sponsor Palestinian terrorist organizations, including the 10 Palestinian rejectionist groups and Hamas and the Islamic Jihad. Iran is the world's foremost sponsor of extremist Islamic and Palestinian groups, providing them with funds, weapons and training. Iraq continues to provide a safe haven for several groups and individuals involved in international terrorism.

The recent bombings only highlight the serious threats Israel still faces today. In response to the bombings, Clinton said about these terrorists, "They live for a division. They live for the continuation of the violence and the hatred in the Middle East. We have to stand with the proposition that those who are responsible for this should be held accountable for it."

There are many things the United States can do to stand by Israel in the war against terrorism. First, Congress should pass the Comprehensive Anti-Terrorism Act. This bill would ban fund-raising in the United States for foreign terrorist groups, close loopholes in existing immigration laws that have enabled terrorists to use the United States as a base from which to organize and direct terrorist activities, and provide new federal jurisdiction to prosecute acts of terrorism carried out in the United States, as well as those conspiring on U.S. soil to carry out terrorism abroad. This bill is pertinent to stopping terrorism because there are many extremist and fundamentalist groups who raise money in the United States to be spent on terrorist activities.

A major accomplishment would be to enlist the United States' allies to stop commercial ties with Iran that help to fund terrorist activities. Oil revenues are Iran's principal source for funding for its nuclear development activities and support of terrorist groups. Preventing foreign and domestic companies from doing business with Iran will greatly limit Iran's ability to finance terrorism and its nuclear, chemical and biological weapons programs.

Another big step the American government could take would be to ensure that countries who support or accommodate terrorist groups, either directly or indirectly, cannot expect to have normal, friendly relations with the United States. We need to send a message to the world that you could either do business with rogue states who sponsor terrorism or you can do business with the United States. You cannot have it both ways. This would drastically reduce terrorism because it would cut down the money available for rogue states to purchase weapons.

In conclusion, the United States has a tremendous interest in stopping these terrorist groups. The Middle Eastern groups who are opposed to the United States, Israel and the peace process have already exported their violence overseas to New York City and Buenos Aires. America must dramatically increase its efforts to work with Israel and other allies in stopping international terrorism, including greater sharing of intelligence and anti-terrorism equipment.

Alan Weinfield is a Collegian staff member.

Making a case for the Unabomber

The Unabomber was completely unjustified in killing three people and maiming others. Murder is never justified. It is a perversion of values. The Unabomber took action in a negative way. If we have a problem with society we should try to make changes through love and positive forces. This may not generate as much attention as a bomb, but it will make the world a better place. And when the force of love is applied with perseverance and vision, the result is people like Ghandi and Dr. Martin Luther King.

Nonetheless, I feel compassion for the Unabomber. He cared deeply about the earth and the fate of humanity. Paradoxically, he resorted to inhumanity in order to try to help — or so he thought — the world. Actually, murder never helps the world. It only creates pain and negativity.

Jed Curtis

The Unabomber is a symptom of our society. We should try to learn as much as we can from him, rather than just passing judgement. The Unabomber is a warning to us all. If we pay attention to what can be learned from him, we can improve the world.

The Unabomber is symptomatic of our school systems, which are in shambles. Even Harvard operates on out-dated principles, which come to light in the case of the Unabomber. Our educational system is based on ancient models, which were appropriate in the past but harmful now. We stress performance and conformity rather than creativity and self-cultivation. The Unabomber was able to force himself to very successfully conform to our system, so much so that he graduated from Harvard at age 20. But by doing this, he repressed a part of himself. Later, this unnatural repression exploded.

Our educational system tortures us because it is outdated. Some people are able to operate within the system but they are the exception. In fact, most of us have to kill a part of ourselves in order to succeed in a system which does not reflect the needs of humanity at this stage of our evolution. The Unabomber warns us of the dangers of this school system.

The Unabomber represents the trans-personal force of Mother Nature. In nature, hurricanes and other calamities occur. Nature is more powerful than any of us. Even when we pave the ground, grass forces its way through the concrete. We are raping the earth. Perhaps concrete is OK in limited amounts, but are smog, pollution, and nuclear waste OK?

Nature apparently has no way of preventing us from our pillage of Earth. But is it likely that the earth appreciates what we are doing to it? The Unabomber is the spokesman for Earth. We are unwilling to consider the welfare of the planet, but the Unabomber forces us to do so. The Unabomber is telling us that we must pay more attention to this planet.

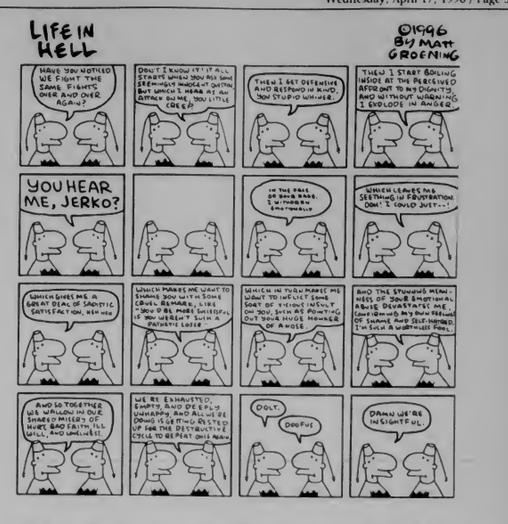
Murder is never justified. So how do we justify war?

Why is war fought in the first place? Lately, it has been for oil. The United States killed thousands and destroyed the environment in the Persian Gulf. Why was it done? It was because of our own selfish desire for oil.

The Unabomber killed three people and maimed over 20 others. Why? Because he was trying to stop the Earth from being raped. Was he justified in his actions? No. Murder is wrong. But let us consider the intention of his actions in comparison to the intention behind our murder of thousands in the Persian Gulf. When we adopt this perspective we realize that the very country that will probably execute the Unabomber is the same country that killed thousands for oil.

Death penalty advocates argue that the Unabomber needs to be killed as punishment. Why should he be killed? These people will tell you that it is because murder is unjustified. But is the death penalty not murder? The Unabomber killed people to further the cause of the Earth. The death penalty furthers nothing but murder. The Unabomber raises moral questions which will not go away when we execute him. Rather than just passing judgement on him, we should examine the issues that his case raises, and try to learn from them.

Jed Curtis is a Collegian staff member.



LIFE IN HELL
©1996 BY MATT GROENING
HAVE YOU NOTICED WE FIGHT THE SAME FIGHTS OVER AND OVER AGAIN?
DON'T I KNOW IT! IT ALL STARTS WHEN YOU ASK SOMETHING INNOCENT (WITH BUT WHICH I HEAR AT 60 DECIBELS) LIKE, "DO ME, YOU LITTLE CREEP."
THEN I GET DEFENSIVE AND RESPOND IN KIND. "YOU STUPID WHINER."
THEN I START BOILING INSIDE AT THE PERCEIVED AFFRONT TO MY DIGNITY AND WITHOUT WARNING I EXPLODE IN ANGER.
YOU HEAR ME, JERKO?
IN THE FACE OF RAW RAGE, I'M FROZEN EMOTIONALLY.
WHICH LEAVES ME SEETHING IN FRUSTRATION. DON'T I COULD JUST...
WHICH GIVES ME A GREAT DEAL OF SADISTIC SATISFACTION, HEH-HEH.
WHICH MAKES ME WANT TO SHOVE YOU WITH SOME CRUEL REMARK, LIKE "YOU'D BE MORE SUCCESSFUL IF YOU WEREN'T SUCH A PATHETIC LOSER."
WHICH IN TURN MAKES ME WANT TO INFLICT SOME SORT OF PSYCHIC INSULT ON YOU, SUCH AS POINTING OUT YOUR HUGE HUNKER OF A NOSE.
AND THE STUNNING MEANNESS OF YOUR EMOTIONAL ABUSE DEVASTATES ME. CAUSING ME TO FLOW FROM FEELINGS OF SHAME AND SELF-LOATHING TO SUCH A SUBTHUMAN POINT.
AND SO TOGETHER WE WALLOW IN OUR SHARED MISERY OF HURT AND FAITHFULL WILL, AND UNCLEANLINESS.
WE'RE EXHAUSTED, EMPTY, AND DEEPLY UNHAPPY. AND ALL OF US DOING IS GETTING DISTRACTED FOR THE DESTRUCTIVE CYCLE TO BE REPEAT ONLY AGAIN.
DOLT.
DOOFUS
DAMN! WE'RE INSIGHTFUL.

Our future memories of UMass

Over the past three years, I have enjoyed a love hate relationship with this University. Everywhere I go, I see the familiar faces of friends and acquaintances, worn-out paths in the grass, rumbling PVTA buses.

I see the crumbling buildings and overly busy state vehicles, too, and tell myself that I won't miss them when I'm gone, that I'll be glad when I don't ever have to see them again.

But I know I'm wrong. I will miss them. And since I'm going on exchange for my senior year, the missing has begun already. People I thought I really hated are coming to seem very appealing to me. Maybe it's just familiarity, but I think I've fallen in love.

I do still kind of hate them, though, so before I get too mushy, here is my personal take on some of the parts of UMass life that leave the worst taste in my mouth:

Wendy Darling

• The weather: Why is it that although I've lived in Massachusetts all my life, the weather at UMass has been about 10 times worse than it ever was back home? Freshman year, we had more snow than I'd ever seen, and then this year we beat that record by about 25 feet. It also seemed a lot colder and windier here, especially by the library. You know the only reason there's a fence around it is so you can hold on to something when those tornado winds come and try to flatten you.

My theory: top floors of the library hold a giant machine that sucks all the normal weather and leaves us only the dregs. Either that or this school's lovely steam heat system is so good that it makes everything seem cold and nasty in comparison.

• Campus architecture: Let's face it, a lot of the buildings on this campus are ugly or at least not pleasing to the eye. The Campus Center, for instance, while an admirable example of Marcel Breuer's functional concrete style, is really incredibly unappealing, especially when it's snowy, rainy, or cold on this campus (i.e. 95 percent of the time, or so it seems from October to March).

Herter and the Graduate Research Center suffer from the same problem. Bartlett and Morrill are none too pretty either, especially if you end up spending half your life there in pursuit of your major.

As we all know, however, even the buildings that are relatively nice-looking are nasty once you get inside. Goodell looks like a nice Greek Revival mansion until you walk in and discover you've walk into a big, old, dusty, empty library — and onto the fifth floor at that.

And then there are all those classrooms with the leaking ceilings and missing chairs, those buildings with the annoying, banging radiators and hallways blocked with big pieces of bulky, outdated machines.

Living in such an environment, you can't help but feel like you're not worth much. If you were, then somebody would care enough to make things look good, to give you a place to sit in the big lecture hall, to give you a building that didn't make you want to cry.

This semester I'm taking a course at Amherst College, and I swear every time I go into their Campus Center I start to salivate. Their classroom buildings are pretty incredible, too. I start to feel sort of envious, especially when the Amherst College students start complaining about them. I mean, don't they realize they are living in Disney World? But maybe that's the point of having such crummy buildings: UMass students are immunized against becoming purple-loving, preppy snots.

• People: I love the fact that there are so many colleges in this area, but it drives me up the wall that I can't find any normal people. I mean, does everybody in the whole Valley have to work for UMass or one of the other colleges? Yeah, yeah, I know it's not actually true and there is a quite a lot else going on around here, but it's awfully hard to tell that from just walking around.

It's like living in a giant academic bubble, having all these educated people around, and I think it tends to make people here develop these really twisted ideas about the way the world really works. There are plenty of people in this country who have never and will never go to college, plenty who believe everything they see on television and plenty who think being a socialist is a capital offense. But not here.

I've noticed that there's an age vacuum as well. Every time I see a little kid somewhere, I just want to run up and give the little thing a big hug. It's horrible living in this environment where there are nothing but young college students plus old professors and staff. There are no really old people around here, no little kids and a lot of times not even any teenagers. Oh, and no pets either. Just say no to age segregation!

• Sports, sports fans and the entire sports thing: I never really liked sports to start with, but at least I could listen to someone ask for a score without cringing. Not anymore. The Minutemen, ESPN and the sports cult seem to have flattened this campus like a steamroller.

People don't talk anymore, they just toss back and forth anecdotes about this and that pass, so-and-so's stats or that column that was in the sports section of the Globe the other day. They don't wear normal clothes anymore, just baseball caps and UMass T-shirts, sweatshirts, shorts, socks and underwear. This very paper is around 85 percent sports, for crying out loud.

If you're reading this thinking I'm hysterical, it's because you've been sucked in. You don't even know how wrapped up you are in this thing unless you're not in it at all. You think it's normal to have the administration axing departments left and right and paying Coach Calipari millions of bucks a year. You think it's normal to pin your whole life and dreams on a bunch of guys bouncing a ball who in point of fact have not one thing to do with you. You think it's normal to want to go to a big hall and scream and chant and witness violent acts of male aggression. What is this world coming to when just wanting to sit under a tree and read poetry is considered some kind of wacky, sissy protest act?

• The swan: I will always hate the swan, ever since I saw it try to eat a little dog that was playing on the edge of the pond.

Wendy Darling is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Zeman's not the man we need

To the editor:

As admirable as it may seem that Ben Zeman has admitted to having sexually harassed women in the past, it concerns me that he has been a student at UMass for the past four years and aside from the "rumors" circulating, no one knew anything about this man's past.

He has been very active in feminist organizations in the area while having this history and not disclosing it to anyone. For a man to join a feminist organization claiming to be sympathetic to our issues and not divulge information concerning his past sexual harassment offenses is a threat to all the women in the group.

I don't want this letter to be interpreted as male-bashing or as a plea to prohibit male involvement in the women's movement. I fully support working in coalition with men. However, sexual perpetrators are another matter entirely. Ben Zeman claims that he shouldn't stop doing the work he is doing just because of his past. I disagree.

By being as manipulative as he has been, Ben Zeman has forfeited the right to work with us. The feminist movement would benefit from the involvement of more men, but he's not the man we need. He is an anti-feminist and there is no room for him in our movement.

Tine Cincotti
Orchard Hill

Letters to the Editor and Columns

Attention all columnists: If you haven't yet, please come down this week to get your picture taken. Questions? Call Bob.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please type your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several concise letters in the limited space available on the page.

All letters should include a name, address and phone number (for verification purposes only). Students should also include their year and major. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length.

Send all letters to the Ed/Op page c/o the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass.

Letters to the Editor can also be sent through our e- mail account: letters@olivms.oit.umass.edu

The Ed/Op page is also always looking for columnists. If you are interested in writing columns for the Collegian, come down to the office, or call at 545-1491, and ask to speak to Bob Dunn.

Arts & Living

Fear low on scares, but high on laughs

Mark Wahlberg wins prize for worst boyfriend of the year in Foley's new flick

By Laura Stock
Collegian Staff

FEAR
Directed by James Foley
with Mark Wahlberg, Reese Witherspoon, Alyssa Milano
Playing at Hampshire Six

James Foley's campy new thriller might do little to invoke fear in audience members, but Fear certainly generates surprising moments and instances of pure hilarity. It is sort of an enigma — the best worst movie of the year.

Mark Wahlberg (formerly known as rapper Marky Mark) stars as David, the psychotic kind of boyfriend no girl would fantasize about. David seems innocent at first, with his neat, little boy–haircut and freckled face, but his violent nature is soon revealed as his obsession with his girlfriend becomes deadly.

In what has been dubbed as an Alicia Silverstone look–alike role, actress Reese Witherspoon plays the unlucky object of David's obsession. The 16–year–old bubbly blonde Nicole is dragged into a pool hall by her trampy friend, Margo (played by Alyssa Milano) and the foreboding eye contact is made.

As David and Nicole start dating, Nicole's father (played by William Petersen) begins to smell trouble. It's no wonder — David is quite adept at turning clocks backwards to keep Nicole out past her curfew. As the evil side of David is revealed to the audience (Marky's new Funky Bunch consists of a crew of beer–swilling, pipe–toting, sexually– perverse thugs), ignorant little Nicole smiles as she hops in to his convertible after school and takes quite an orgasmic roller coaster ride with him.

As the moronic story unfolds, Nicole eventually wakes up and realizes she's dating a nutcase, and her parents open their eyes to the problem. David steps up the terrorizing, vandalism and violence when Nicole refuses to see him, finally culminating into a siege on the architecture wonder of Nicole's family's house. David and his friends pound on the steel–reinforced doors as they attempt to rape and plunder the once happy family's household.

While the story is one that has been rehashed by many a screenwriter, director James Foley spices up Christopher Crowe's version by adding some extremely racy scenes (for 16–year old girls) and some B–movie–type violence.

Admittedly, Wahlberg has come a long way since his rapping days in the early '90s, but his acting talents still leave a lot to be desired. His facial expressions convince us that his character is sinister, but the frankly horrible lines the boy utters in his Dorchester vernacular make you wish he would shut up (those not from the Boston area may want to bring an interpreter).

Thankfully, David is not blessed with many lines, as his character (as well as all of the rest, excepting Witherspoon's Nicole) is personality–free. We never know exactly why Nicole likes this boy (it certainly can't be because he pays homage to the girl by carving "Nicole 4 Eva" on his chest).

In the suspense category, Fear fails miserably — but it is so atrocious, it is entertaining. Go figure. One thing to keep in mind as this movie plods along: it ain't over 'till Marky Mark sings. D

COURTESY ASSOCIATED PRESS
Mark Wahlberg stars in Fear

COURTESY UMASS DEPARTMENT OF THEATER

Going on a witch hunt

James Clark and Meghan Wolf star in Vinegar Tom, opening tonight at the Curtain Theater. The play focuses on the witch hunts of the 17th century. The performance begins at 8 p.m. and will run thru Saturday and next weekend.

Jazz dancers thrill crowd with dramatic movements

By Ian Simons
Collegian Correspondent

JAZZDANCE
Bowker Auditorium
Apr. 11

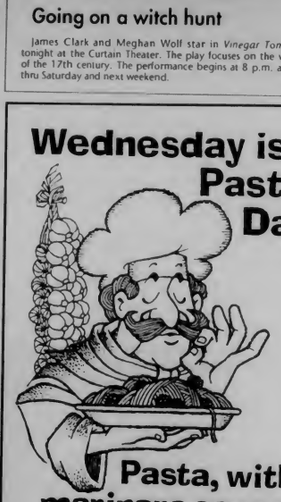
The swish of the skirt, the tap of the shoes, the stretching of limbs, the sweeps of bodies, the dramatically flexed wrists, then a lunge, or tilt, a whip of the arms; a slash then grab with the hands as they aggressively reach out into space. Such were the statements their bodies made.

Thursday night saw Bowker auditorium play host to an exciting performance of JAZZDANCE by Danny Buraczeski's dancers. From the opening Latin section to the big band swing concerto finale, the company highlighted how dance is concerned with making a statement and then communicating that idea through movement. And what expressive and efficient movement it was, as polished and powerful as a silver bullet. Skimming the floor with bursts of energy as Tito Puente was played, or whipping space with their limbs as Benny Goodman provided the tune, the artists' bodies seemed to escape gravity. It was just incredible to see.

As an art form, jazz dance, of course, relies heavily on the music. The dancers would linger with an idea, their bodies merging with a particular theme of the music. And then the rhythm section would come back in and an assertive cat–like walk would proceed, with a strut here and a dig there as their movement seemed to unlock a kinetic–sensual relationship with life and the music. Their body language was as eloquent as the instruments, giving lyrical form to the melodies.

Ultimately the nine dancers did far more than just dance to some jazz tunes in some simple yet elegant costumes. Both in position and in between positions they were expressive of the needs and dreams, desires and emotions of a human. They might collapse, or shake with delight, they could punch out powerfully or reel with the air of a sorrowful woman in mourning. Indeed, the dance was a free–flowing expression of the inner self, giving those nine individuals an opportunity to inject their personality and explore space.

Expressions of the self rippled through the body and the jazz seemed to flow through their bloodstream. The show ended much as it had begun, with the dancers moving and gyrating as the audience watched open–mouthed, astonished at the night's elusive hybrid of movement.



Pasta, with marinara sauce, garlic bread & salad for only $1.99
the hatch

The UMASS Daily Collegian
A wealth of information at your finger tips everyday.

Collegian
All Staff Meeting
THURSDAY
APRIL 18
AT 6:30PM

MOVING?
DOMESTIC OR INTERNATIONAL
For Rates & Services
Toll Free
800-752-6773
http://www.trade-exhibit.com

LONDON $215*

Paris	$275*
Frankfurt	$279*
Copenhagen	$289*
Prague	$329*
Mexico City	$257*
Guatemala	$265*
Tokyo	$459*

CALL FOR A FREE STUDENT TRAVELS MAGAZINE
Council Travel
44 Main Street
Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 256-1261
http://www.ciee.org/cts/ctshome.htm
EURAILPASSES ISSUED ON-THE-SPOT!

PAWSS
THE FIVE COLLEGE PROGRAM IN PEACE & WORLD SECURITYSTUDIES
Presents:
"ETHNIC CONFLICTS AND OTHER THREATS TO U.S. SECURITY: WHAT ROLE SHOULD THE U.S. ARMY PLAY?"
A panel discussion with:
THE CURRENT AFFAIRS PANEL,
U.S. ARMY WAR COLLEGE, CARLISLE, PENNSYLVANIA
7:30 PM
Wednesday, April 17th
Converse Hall
Amherst College
This event is free, open to the public and wheelchair accessible.
For more information call PAWSS at 582-5519.

TOC
Bar & Grill
11TH FLOOR • LINCOLN CAMPUS CENTER
(413) 545-3217

SPECIAL
Buy One Appetizer & Get One Free!
4:00pm to 7:00pm
Wednesday - Friday
Plus... Great Beer Specials
Hours: Mon. - Sat. 4:00pm - 12:30am
Positive ID Required

COURTESY TERRY RICHARDSON
Joan Osborne had a disappointing performance Monday at Smith College's John M. Greene Hall.

Osborne's performance a rip–off

By Marni E. Helfner
Collegian Staff

JOAN OSBORNE
John M. Greene Hall
April 15

NORTHAMPTON— Joan Osborne has the vocal ability of Janis Joplin, but unfortunately, everything else about her is a record company creation.

The almost sold–out house at Smith College's John M. Greene Hall Monday evening was comprised of basically two different groups. The first group were obviously teen– agers from Northampton High School, and the second group was their little 12–year–old brothers and sisters, accompanied by their 45–year–old parents.

From the stage props to the way she dressed, everything about Osborne proclaimed she was a rip–off of the other throaty, angry–chick musicians currently making the big bucks off of their actual talent.

The backdrop of the stage was two paintings of various Hindu gods and goddesses, appropriately highlighted in blacklight paint; perfect to set a quasi–religious tone, akin to Tori Amos' outright overtones in Under The Pink. Osborne also brought up these religious images in her only good song, "St. Teresa" and in her only hit, "One of Us."

Osborne continued this Amos–wannabe act by her constant flirtations and gyrations with her lead guitar player and also the main writer of her songs. The short, flowered print dress and the black tights completed this little–girl cum vamp look Osborne was striving for.

In addition to the lack of originality Osborne brought to the stage, her music and lyrics left much to be desired. The bass and volume were at such a high level that the lyrics were almost completely indistinguishable from the rest of the noise.

The exceptions for the evening were Osborne's drummer and her bassist, a self–proclaimed former Smith College student. Osborne's other stellar tune of the night was "Man In The Long Black Coat" a Bob Dylan tune, which when combined with her vocal abilities, were amazing. Of course, Osborne waited until her encore to perform the one song all the teeny–boppers in the audience wanted to hear, "One of Us."

Osborne's concert was a waste of time, money and energy. She should stick to the small venues where she has previously performed like the Iron Horse and Pearl Street. Take a night club performer like Osborne and put her in a concert hall like Greene Hall and you have a recipe for the disaster that was Monday night.

Music festival arrives in Noho

Bands performing include UMass' Knuckle Sandwich & Jiker

By Mike Burke
Collegian Staff

It is only Wednesday, but for many music fans the weekend has already arrived as the fourth annual Loud Music Festival rolls into Northampton, bringing over 200 bands to the area. For the next four days Noho will be overwhelmed with concert goers and band members all trying to catch their favorite acts.

Today's events represent just the tip of the iceberg as there are only a few "must see" bands performing. At 5:40 p.m. the University of Massachusetts' own Knuckle Sandwich will bring their ska–orientated madness to the back room at Club Metro. Later at the same venue, Loud Music Festival regular's Dieselmeat and Pajama Slave Dancers take the stage at 6 p.m. and 11:20 p.m. respectively. Matador recording artists Bunny Brains perform their psychotic freak show at 10:20 p.m. Don't be surprised if the band mutilates teddy bears on stage and throw the remains into the audience.

In the front room at Club Metro, New York City's Lunachicks make another Loud Music Festival appearance at 10:40 p.m. A few hours earlier, at 8:10 p.m., Pangloss, one of the best local bands around, strut their stuff.

The Iron Horse is hosting an Upstart Records showcase featuring Big Ass Truck (runner up for best Festival band name, behind Kathleen Turner Overdrive), Groovasaurus and Dennis Brennan. Big Ass Truck, hailing from the deep South, are known for their raunchy live show– mixing up funk, blues, rock and just about everything else.

An all–ages ska show sponsored by WOZQ takes place at the Gratto this afternoon with Jiker, Nigel 6 and The Hi– Hats. In the evening, Loud Fest alumni Miss Reed, Flycatcher and The Figgs perform.

Finally at the Bayside there is a BMI Showcase with Throat Culture, Expanding Man, Little John, David Poe and Jennifer Jackson.

For complete Loud Music Festival coverage see tomorrow's Daily Collegian. The Loud Music Festival takes place tonight at various venues in Northampton. Call the Northampton box office for more information.

New book probes roles in Holocaust

By Michael Bezdek
Associated Press

BOSTON — Even as Daniel Jonah Goldhagen's book about the role the average German played in the Holocaust was making its way to store shelves people were eager to talk about it.

He already had been booked for an international Holocaust symposium in Washington. There were interview requests from all over the country. People were leaving more than a dozen reactions a day on his voice mail at Harvard University.

That is because Hitler's Willing Executioners: Ordinary Germans and the Holocaust takes a relatively new approach on a much–covered subject by focusing on the killers rather than victims. And Goldhagen hands up an original, far–reaching and disquieting indictment.

Early reaction to Goldhagen's book has included comments that he seems unusually impassioned for an academic, even angry, as his book goes further than other major historical treatments in accusing the average German of complicity in the Holocaust. But he insists he was guided throughout the project by a professional detachment.

"People ascribe emotions to me in writing this that are really foreign to me," he said. "When you describe horrific things, you are certainly going to sound very impassioned.

There has been a good deal of fine research and writing on the Holocaust, but the attention on the killing has obscured some of the other things that need to be said," Goldhagen, a 36–year–old assistant professor of political science at Harvard, said in a recent interview.

His main points that counter prevailing opinion are that those who killed the Jews were not just special troops following orders out of blind faith and fear; that ordinary Germans knew what was going on and that the killers largely were drawn from among them; and that they killed with a special relish and initiatives of torture and humiliation, fully believing Jews were demons who needed to be exterminated.

Goldhagen contends the Holocaust was born of a virulent racism peculiar to Germany.

"Whatever the anti–Semitic traditions were in other European countries, it was only in Germany that an openly and rabidly anti–Semitic movement came to power — indeed was elected to power — that was bent upon turning anti–Semitic fantasy into state–organized genocidal slaughter," writes Goldhagen, whose father, a Holocaust survivor, recently retired from Harvard after teaching a course on the Holocaust for 25 years.

Goldhagen adds that terms such as "Nazis" and "SS men" tend to obfuscate what happened during the Holocaust: "The most appropriate, indeed the only appropriate general proper name for the Germans who perpetrated the Holocaust is 'Germans.'"

The killing was organized by Nazi zealots from the SS and its Einsatzgruppen, but much of it was carried out by the more loosely formed affiliates of the Order Police, especially its police battalions, Goldhagen says.

Ordinary Germans also were among the thousands of support groups, such as the civil servants working in occupied countries like Poland, where the Germans set up 300 ghettos and where more than 2 million Jews were killed. In addition, they worked at the more than 10,000 types of German camps such as Auschwitz, which, along with its satellite camps, had 7,000 guards.

And they took part all around Germany in Kristallnacht, the night of violence against the Jews in 1938 that turned the country from talk of ridding the country of Jews to the beginnings of a wholesale slaughter.

"How did the German people react" In small towns, the SS men were greeted by many willing locals who availed themselves of the opportunity to join the assault on the Jews," Goldhagen

Turn to GOLDHAGEN, page 8

1996 ANNOUNCEMENT OF AWARD RECIPIENTS

The Chancellor's Commission on Civility in Human Relations is pleased to announce funding of the twelve proposals in response to its recent Request for Proposals program this spring. A Review Committee selected these twelve from twenty-two proposals which were submitted.

"Asian American Lecture Series," a student-initiated collaboration with faculty and staff to produce a public lecture series for fall 1996 which also integrates a two-credit independent study course. Submitted by Anh Ly and Monica Yu, Asian American Studies Coalition.

"Multicultural Men's Group," a project to train undergraduate men to lead men's discussion groups highlighting the impact of violence in men's lives and issues which are barriers to productive action. Submitted by Tom Schiff, Men's Resource Center.

"Greek Affairs Race and Gender Forum," a program exploring issues of race and gender in the historical development of both higher education and Greek organizations. Submitted by Michael Wiseman, Office of Greek Affairs.

"Community Development for Students with Disabilities," student outreach to local schools providing information and support for other students with disabilities. Submitted by Sue Pliner, Social Justice Education Program, and Patricia Silver, Learning Disabilities Support Services.

"Employee Radio Program on Diversity and Social Justice," a collaboration between AFSCME 1776 and USA/MTA employees with WMUA to produce a campus interview and call-in radio show on diversity and social justice issues. Submitted by Joe Connolly, Labor/Management Workplace Education Program.

"New Student Diversity Awareness Program," a project to create video-based and other educational activities to raise awareness about multiple dimensions of diversity for incoming first-year students. Submitted by Sarah Hamilton, New Students Program.

"Re-Creating A Resource Network," a project developed by the Undergraduate Deans Advisory Group to bring together faculty, students and staff in regular public forums to improve the quality of advising and other campus services. Submitted by Gary Barnhard, University Without Walls.

"Community-Based Peer Mediation Training Program," a project to improve the North Village environment by teaching children and adolescents peer mediation and conflict mediation skills. Submitted by Viera Wallace-Lorencova, Department of Communication.

"Cultural Center Unity Day," a weekend educational program to increase student understanding about different cultural groups and their respective cultural centers. Submitted by Natasha Springer, Sylvan Cultural Center.

"Sexual Assault Guerilla Theater Outreach Project," collaboration between the Sexual Assault Advisory Committee and the Theater Department to develop guerilla theater to educate students about options following a sexual assault. Submitted by Saige Freechild, Everywoman's Center.

"GLBT Latino/a Theater and HIV Education," a collaborative program combining theater, art, film, and panel discussions designed to reach GLBT members of the Latino/a community. Submitted by Joshua Fontanez, New World Theater, and Sarah Pease, Stonewall Center.

"African-American and Jewish Relations Workshop/Retreat," a program to promote mutual respect between students of African-American and Jewish heritage. Submitted by Lisa Robinson and Warren Blumenfeld, Social Justice Education Program.

CAMPUS ACTIVITIES AT THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS PRESENTS
A WEEKLY PROGRAM SERIES: SOMETHING EVERY FRIDAY
Selected Hilarity

Five Improv-comics will deliver a comic experience unlike any other to the Bluewall Cafe. Stand-up, improvisation, skits and music will fill this fast-paced show.
CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM • Friday April 19, 1996
Following this performance will be the movie "Heat" shown in the Bluewall Cafe • 8pm • FREE • Popcorn & Punch Available
This series is made possible by a grant from Auxiliary Services and the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs.

Collegian Advertising Representative Contest Winner
Jason Endich
Has won a gift certificate to...
Bueno Y Sano

Germans dismayed by portrayal

By Terrence Petty
Associated Press

BONN, Germany— German historians and critics are furiously assailing an American author for arguing that the Holocaust sprang from a rabid anti-Semitism that was peculiar to Germany.

The uproar over Daniel Jonah Goldhagen's book, Hitler's Willing Executioners, is one of the loudest to ever have occurred in this country over how to explain the murder of 6 million Jews.

"We don't dispute the atrocities," Der Spiegel publisher Rudolf Augstein wrote in Monday's editions of the magazine. But to say that most Germans wanted Jews exterminated "is ignorant, if not in fact malicious," he said.

Similar reactions to Goldhagen's book have shown up in the Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung and the Suddeutsche Zeitung, two of Germany's most respected newspapers.

In years past, there have been arguments among German historians over how it happened that normal Germans let Adolf Hitler come to power and then looked the other way as Jews were sent off to extermination camps.

So far, however, the consensus among German historians is that Goldhagen's own theses are way off-base.

Norbert Frei, a Berlin historian, agrees with Goldhagen that the Third Reich was suffused with anti-Semitism. But Frei says it is wrong to assert that "nearly the whole German society wished for this genocide."

In his book, Goldhagen says as many as a half-million Germans were active participants in the Holocaust and that many of them killed with relish.

Goldhagen tells of Police Battalion 101, whose 500 members included only a few from the Nazis' elite SS force. It was one of many such units that executed Polish Jews and oversaw their deportation to extermination camps.

Goldhagen said a commander of the battalion offered to excuse anyone who didn't want to take part in killings, but that few accepted the offer. Some officers even invited their wives to witness an Aug. 25, 1942, bloodbath at Miedzyrzec, Poland, Goldhagen says.

According to Goldhagen, the wives watched as their husbands forced hundreds of Jews, including children, from their homes, made them sit in the burning sun and shot those who moved.

But Frei says hatred of Jews was not the only motive for such atrocities. Also playing a role, Frei claims, were peer pressure, emotions that had been numbed by the war, alcohol abuse and other factors.

Frei says Goldhagen's book contains virtually nothing new. He points out that American historian Christopher Browning wrote about the same police reserve battalion in a book published four years ago.

Other critics say that Goldhagen has revived a theory about the origins of the Holocaust that first was introduced by American and British historians after the Nazis' defeat and later abandoned because it assumed "collective guilt" for all Germans.

More recent theories have argued that ordinary Germans supported Hitler because of his charisma and his promises to end the country's 1930s economic crisis.

Frank Schirrmacher, cultural editor for the Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung, said Goldhagen seems to be arguing that Germans always will be anti-Semites.

"If one believes the thesis of this book, the Germans' road into the 21st century can be viewed only with skepticism and fear," Schirrmacher wrote.

Freiburg historian Manfred Messerschmidt, a Third Reich expert, said he welcomes Goldhagen's book because the discussion about guilt for the Holocaust needs to be kept alive. He said Goldhagen goes too far.

"It is wrong to say that Germany was the only anti-Semitic culture," because there were strong anti-Jewish sentiments in France and other countries, Messerschmidt said in an interview.

Other critics of Goldhagen's work are pointing out that Latvians, Lithuanians and others eagerly helped the Nazis kill Jews.

But Klaus Dede, a journalist who has researched the Third Reich, says he thinks Goldhagen has hit the nail right on the head.

When he was a youth, says Dede, boys his age sang an anti-Semitic song with gusto. One of the stanzas goes:

"Farmers, townsfolk and workers are wielding sword and hammer, fighting for Hitler, for work and for bread. As for Jews — they should be dead." Dede says he thinks many of the boys really wanted Jews to die.

■ Goldhagen

continued from page 7

writes. His indictment is underlined by a position that a peculiarly German eliminationist racism was at the root of the horrors committed under Hitler. It is a broad, arguable position that is sure to stir some of the strongest debate about his book, which comes out in Germany late this summer.

"Had the Nazis been faced with a German populace who saw Jews as ordinary human beings, and German Jews as their brothers and sisters, then it is hard to imagine that the Nazis would have proceeded, or would have been able to proceed, with the extermination of the Jews," he writes.

Among some of the supporting material Goldhagen found in his years of research, including 15 months reading German investigation reports, is a lack of evidence any German ever was put to death for failing to carry out executions. He also found that few people exercised their option, when given, to be reassigned from a killing troop. Among the longer subjects he explores to support his argument is the Helmbrechts death march, which takes its name from a women's satellite camp of Flossenburg.

It is a terrifying tale of one of the camps evacuated as liberating armies were approaching only weeks before the end of the war. The leaders of the march, which meandered all around the countryside, could have just given up, and were even told to do so by Heinrich Himmler, the head of the SS. But they kept going — kept beating, starving and shooting the emaciated women. The women guards, who averaged about 28 years old, were said to be the most vicious of all. Some of the most chilling passages are in the detached way they describe to investigators their method of operation.

Goldhagen also describes the men of Police Battalion 101. Their average age was about 36. Many had families, most worked in jobs requiring low to intermediate skills, most came from the lower tier of desired soldiers and had been recruited at a time of a manpower shortage.

Goldhagen's look at the killers' instincts includes documentation of some police who brought their wives along to view them putting Hitler's widely shared dream to work. He also writes of others who proudly wrote home and sent photographs of the killing.

Hitler's Willing Executioners, which began as Goldhagen's award-winning doctoral dissertation and was rewritten for publication, includes 33 photographs to support his points, none more powerful than that of a soldier with his rifle pointed at a woman holding her child. It is a suspended moment just before death, the woman turning her back to the gunman, cradling, protecting her child. Few photographs in history can produce more hurt, bring more reality to an event so long after it was taken.

■ NHL

continued from page 12

No. 2 Colorado Avalanche (47–25–10) vs. No. 7 Vancouver Canucks (32–25–15). Colorado should have a few of the playoff scoring leaders when this one's over. The Avalanche's 326 goals were second only to Pittsburgh, while Canucks goalie Kirk McLean has the highest GAA (3.54) of any No. 1 playoff goalie. They can get out the brooms (or shovels) in Denver. Prediction: Avalanche in four.

No. 3 Chicago Blackhawks (40–28–14) vs. No. 6 Calgary Flames (34–37–11). It sure would be nice to see Jeremy Roenick and Gary Roberts, perhaps the league's two most intense players, face each other in the post-season for the first time. Recently, it appeared Roenick would be the one absent, but now it looks like Roberts has been returned to the shelf with persistent neck pain, which dooms the Flames to a seventh straight first-round flicker. Roenick is expected to dress despite an injured ankle. Prediction: Blackhawks in five.

No. 4 Toronto Maple Leafs (34–36–12) vs. No. 5 St. Louis Blues (32–34–16). "...the Toronto defense isn't mobile, a problem if Wayne Gretzky and Brett Hull start to click," an excerpt from USA Today's predictions reads. Heck, why start now? The Blues were dismal once Gretzky was added, and the only mobility displayed by their defense is one that takes them right out of the way of opposing forwards. It seems no one but me likes Toronto, and I like them to send the Keenans home early. All the talk is about Grant Fuhr's playoff record, but Felix Potvin's post-season numbers are much stingier. Prediction: Maple Leafs in seven.

Second round: Detroit over Toronto in five, Chicago over Colorado in seven. Conference finals: Detroit over Chicago in six.

Stanley Cup Finals: Detroit over Pittsburgh in seven. I think Chris Osgood will have relieved Vernon by this time, and though the Pens can score on anyone, they can't stop the more complete Red Wings from sipping champagne for the first time in 41 years.

Now for my votes for award winners based on the regular season. Hart Trophy (MVP): Lindros. Close second: Messier. Norris Trophy: Ray Bourque, Bruins. Chris Chelios will win, but he's part of a much stronger defense. Bourque faces more pressure nightly and almost always responds. Vezina Trophy: Martin Brodeur, Devils. This for not winning the Conn Smythe Trophy (playoffs MVP) last season, and for keeping the Devils in the playoff race until the final day. Calder Trophy: Ed Jovanovski, Panthers. Chicago's Eric Daze was a front runner for most of the year, but he faded and Jovanovski made as much of an impact as any teenage defenseman since Bourque. His reputation will soon surpass Scott Stevens' as the league's hardest body checker. Conn Smythe Trophy: Osgood. After Vernon falters, he will avenge his playoff disaster of 1994.

Lastly, if the Bruins have to wait until Monday to play their second game at Miami Arena, while Garth Brooks entertains the faithful in between, will Brooks then be shuffling over to Tampa to sing his hit "Thunder Rolls" for the Thunder Dome throng?

Ted Kottler is a Collegian columnist.

■ lacrosse

continued from page 12

score some goals [to win]."

Including last year's rain soaked victory, UMass has taken the last five meetings from Harvard and 10 of the last 11. But in those most recent five wins, only one of those wins was by more than two goals and two games went to overtime.

"This game is very important because it is a long standing rivalry," UMass coach Greg Cannella said. "It's always a close game. Last year it was two goals, two years ago it's one goal. It's a very important game because they are a nationally ranked team and right now they're ranked higher than us.

"So technically we are the underdog at home, and that's a great position to be in against a really strong team. We're going to have to play really good defense to stop them on their group of attackmen."

The game with Harvard starts the Minutemen's stretch drive towards the post-season, as the Crimson are the lowest ranked team UMass may face for the remainder of the year. After today's contest UMass travels to face No. 6 Notre Dame on Saturday, then takes on sixth-ranked Syracuse at the Carrier Dome, finishing the season at home with No. 8 Brown.

Broadcast Notes: Continental Cablevision will cover today's game as Anthony Guido will have play-by-play and Patrick Sheeran on color analysis. WMUA 91.1 FM will broadcast the game will Greg Corey and Matt Sheehan on the call.

Collegian Graphics, We do it better

COMPUTER FAIR & SALE
TWO HOURS FREE INTERNET
TRI-STATE FAIRS
THUR 3:30PM
I-91 North exit 19 turning right onto Rte 9 • 4 miles left at Staples onto Rte 116N, 1 mile on left, exit 19 Center I-91 S take exit 20
Buy at wholesale prices right at the show from up to 70 companies (200 exhibit tables) featuring the IBM/PC compatible market. From full systems to shareware, it's all here. Adm $7 ea. with ad $6ea. after 1:00 pm $5 ea w/ad only
MULLINS CENTER AMHERST SATU, APR 20

30% Student Discount Mon., Tues. and Wed. at EAST HEAVEN HOT TUBS
FOR RESERVATIONS
586-6843

Get a Piece of the Peace...
ISRAEL
...Come See For Yourself
Spend this summer in Israel on the program that is right for you
Graduate to Israel- One of a kind for college graduates
Short on Time - Three weeks for those with limited time
Taste of Israel - Four week intensive tour of Israel
Odyssey '96 - Explore Eastern Europe and Israel for four weeks
Young Singles - Two week program for those 25-30
USD/WZO - The Israel Action Center and the Joint Authority for Jewish Zionist Education/Youth and Hechalutz Department
110 E 59th Street, Suite 333, New York, NY 10022
usd@netcom.com • 1(800)27-ISRAEL • (212) 339-6940/1
USD ELDYALTH

DAILY COLLEGIAN
The New England Newspaper Association's Daily College Newspaper of the Year, 1994
Free Every Day

STUDENT TRAVEL
The world's largest student travel organization.
800-777-0112
STI STA TRAVEL

Lincoln Real Estate
Has the best selection of 1, 2, & 3 bedroom
Apartments In The Center Of Town
with gas heat
Gilreath Manor Condos
on Hobart Lane
• 3 Bedroom
• 1 1/2 Baths
• Heated Basement
• New Gas Heat & Hot water
• 1/2 mile to campus
• On Bus Route
Showings Start in April
for June or September Occupancy!
Lincoln Real Estate • 25 N. Pleasant St. • 253-7879

Legal Problems?
Call UMass Student Legal Services Office!
Housing - Family - Student Rights
Civil Rights - Workers Rights
Criminal and Consumer Law
and more...
Call 545-1995
for an appointment
UMASS/AMHERST STUDENTS ONLY

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK
One Way Roundtrip
LONDON $212 $399
PARIS $224 $427
SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA $235 $446
Roundtrip
TOKYO $851
Scheduled flights.
Fares to worldwide destinations.
Eurailpasses Available.
Weekend surcharges may apply.
Customs-immigration taxes apply.
Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l student I.D. cards may be required.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave., NY NY 10173
212-986-8420*
800-272-9676
*in NYC

Lorenz Olympic
Gold Medal Challenge
Drive To Victory
Food Games Fun Tie-Dyes (bring a T-shirt)
Thursday April 25th
11:00am-5:00pm
Umass-Pond
Sponsored by Don Lorenz, Inc. of Greenfield
Prizes Win a Weekend Getaway to Montreal
Co-sponsored by The Collegian, WHMP, Flex Gym, Bueno Bef Estates, Taylor Rental, Blumwell, City Cat Print Shop, Centonze Pizza, Mesa Poly, Mike's Westville, Mill Valley Eat-in, Jake Hut, Friendly's, The University Store, Atkins Farm, Rao's Coffee, Greenough Snack Bar, Hanlon Bakery, The Edge, Hot Mama, Village Supermarket, Andrew's Flower Shop, All Weeks Welding & Tents

The Top Ten Reasons to Use the UHS Eye Care Program and Contact Lens Service
1 We have a comprehensive contact lens program.
2 Emergency eye care delivered at UHS, is a covered benefit if you are a student plan member.
3 Savings on eyeglasses from participating opticians are available if you are a student and have a complete optometry examination at UHS.
4 We can obtain almost any contact lens in the U.S.A.
5 On-site contact lens specialist.
6 Free sample start-up contact lens solutions.
7 Contact lenses can be mailed directly to you: free postage for normal delivery.
8 Same day replacement of contact lenses, in many cases, due to our large in-house inventory.
9 We take great pride in bring able to fit many people who have had difficulty in the past wearing contact lenses.
10 Convenient hours and location.
Patient feedback of those who have used the UHS Eye Program over 20 years has been consistently excellent.
"I invite you to use the Eye Services at UHS."
University Health Services • 549-2671 X244

Cubs beat Reds; Tigers down Jays; Yankees fall

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs asked Steve Trachsel to chose between Florida and the bullpen. Apparently, he picked the right one.

Trachsel won in his first appearance of the season with six shutout innings and Leo Gomez hit a two-run double in a six-run sixth inning Tuesday, leading the Chicago Cubs over the Cincinnati Reds 6-3.

Trachsel allowed two hits, walked five and struck out four. He had spent two weeks with Double-A Orlando because the Cubs started the season with a four-man rotation. The club gave him the option of sitting and pitching as a reliever or heading south for some more work.

"He handled it very well," said Cubs manager Jim Riggleman. "When we suggested what we wanted to do, we let him make the call... He did the smart thing. He knew it was the best thing for him and he made a mature decision."

Trachsel said there were some things to consider before he made up his mind.

"I called my agent," the right-hander said. "It took overnight to think about what would be the best thing for me, what would be the best thing for the team. It ended up going down would be the best thing for everybody."

Trachsel held the Cubs without a hit for the first four innings before Jeff Branson singled off leaping second baseman Ryne Sandberg's glove to open the fifth.

The Reds threatened in the sixth. Barry Larkin doubled off the left-field wall, and after an out, Hal Morris was intentionally walked. But Trachsel got Bret Boone and Mike Kelly on fly outs to avoid any damage.

"The walks weren't like I was wild — a foot and a half off the plate," Trachsel said. "I was just a couple of inches off the plate. I was throwing the pitches I wanted to throw."

Terry Adams and Doug Jones finished with four-hit relief, stopping Cincinnati's three-game winning streak.

Sammy Sosa bunted for a single with one out in the sixth off Mark Portugal (0-2). Luis Gonzalez walked and Scott Servais was hit by a pitch, loading the bases. Gomez hit a drive over right fielder Eric Anthony and Hector Carrasco walked Rey Sanchez, again loading the bases. Scott Bullett, batting for Trachsel, singled home Servais.

Brian McRae's sacrifice fly off Jeff Shaw and Sandberg's two-run double made it 6-0.

Portugal allowed four runs and seven hits in 5 1-3 innings. Pinch-hitter Lenny Harris hit a two-run homer in the ninth off Jones and Eric Davis hit a solo homer, his second in three games.

Notes: Reds outfielder Reggie Sanders missed his fifth straight game because of a lower-back strain.

Tigers 13, Blue Jays 8

TORONTO (AP) — Forget about Ken Griffey Jr., Albert Belle and Matt Williams. Now it's Cecil Fielder who's making a run at home run records.

Fielder hit three home runs in a game for the third time in his career, increasing his major league-leading total to nine as the Detroit Tigers beat the Toronto Blue Jays 13-8 yesterday.

Fielder, who had five RBIs, is two shy of the major league record for home runs in April, a mark shared by Graig Nettles, Mike Schmidt and Willie Stargell.

"I just heard about it," Fielder said. "But I can't worry about records. I feel good at the plate right now and if I keep swinging the bat the way I am, the hits will come."

Fielder hit a two-run drive off Erik Hanson (2-2) in the third inning as the Tigers got nine straight hits, one short of the AL record.

Fielder hit a two-run drive in the fourth off Giovanni Carrara and connected for a solo drive in the sixth off Bill Risley, increasing his RBIs total to 19. Just four of his hits this season haven't been homers.

"The first two were breaking balls," Fielder said. "Hanson's pitch wasn't that bad. I just reached out and got it."

Hanson allowed six runs and six hits in two-plus innings. "He's a good mistake hitter and I just threw him a mistake," Hanson said.

Fielder, who played with the Blue Jays from 1985-88, also hit three homers at the SkyDome on May 6, 1990, connecting twice off Jimmy Key and one off David Wells. He got a standing ovation from the 25,505 fans.

"I'd rather see him do that somewhere else," said Blue Jays manager Cito Gaston, Fielder's batting coach from 1986 to 1988. "As far as Cecil the person is concerned, I'm proud of him. He's become rich and successful."

Fielder's April stats have been helped by baseball's earliest-ever start, on March 31.

"We've got a lot of games to play this month," said Tigers manager Buddy Bell, whose team has 12 more games scheduled in April. "Hopefully, Cecil can break the record."

John Flaherty hit his first two homers of the season, solo shots off Risley in the fifth and Brian Bohanon in the ninth.

Detroit got 18 hits to back Greg Gohr (1-2), who gave up five runs and six hits in five innings. Richie Lewis got five outs for his first save.

Toronto turned six double plays, one short of the major league record for a nine-inning game.

Sandy Martinez's two-run triple put the Blue Jays ahead 2-0 in the second but Detroit scored seven in the bottom half. Flaherty singled, Chris Gomez doubled and Chad Curtis hit a two-run single that tied the score.

Bobby Higginson doubled, Travis Fryman hit a two-run double that made it 4-2 and Fielder hit a two-run homer, chasing Hanson. Singles by Melvin Nieves, Tim Hyers and Mark Lewis off Carrara made it 7-2. Flaherty then flied to center and Gomez grounded into a double play.

Joe Carter hit a two-run homer in the bottom half, but Fielder's homer in the fourth and Flaherty's in the fifth made it 10-4. Otis Nixon hit a solo homer in the fifth, his first home run since July 16, 1993, and just the eighth of his career. Fielder's sixth-inning homer gave Detroit an 11-5 lead.

John Olerud homered in Toronto's three-run eighth, when Tilson Brito singled in a run and Carlos Delgado hit a sacrifice fly. Flaherty homered again in the ninth and Curtis hit an RBI double.

Notes: AL teams have gotten 10 consecutive hits three times. Boston did it against Milwaukee on June 2, 1901; Detroit did it against Baltimore, Sept. 20, 1983; and Toronto did it against Minnesota on Sept. 4, 1992. The major league record is 12... The New York Yankees are the only AL team to turn seven double plays, doing it against Philadelphia on Aug. 14, 1942. It's been done three times in the AL... Only once this season have the Tigers been in a game with fewer than nine runs scored... The Tigers last had 18 hits on July 6, 1995... Olerud, who had been in a 2-for-26 slump, was 3-for-5... Blue Jays batters were hit by pitches three times, increasing their major league-leading total to 10.

Brewers 6, Yankees 3

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Kevin Seitzer, showing more surprising power, hit his fourth home run of the season yesterday night, leading the Milwaukee Brewers past the New York Yankees 6-3.

Seitzer connected for a three-run homer, capping a five-run fourth inning against ineffective Jimmy Key (1-2).

Seitzer hit only five homers in 492 at-bats last season. He started this year with a total of 59 home runs in 4,507 at-bats in the majors.

Scott Karl (2-1) held the Yankees scoreless until the seventh, when he gave up two runs. Relievers Mark Kiefer and Graeme Lloyd finished up, with the Yankees scoring in the ninth on pinch-hitter Wade Boggs' single.

Key, continuing his comeback from last year's rotator cuff surgery, was tagged for all six runs on 10 hits in 3 2-3 innings. He walked one and struck out three.

The Brewers scored a run in the first on successive singles by Jeff Cirillo, Seitzer and Greg Vaughn.

Matt Mieske doubled to open the fourth and scored on Jose Valentin's one-out triple. With two outs, Pat Listach hit an RBI single and Cirillo followed with a single.

Seitzer then hit a 1-1 pitch over the left-field wall, finishing Key.

New York scored twice in the seventh on Robert Eenhurn's sacrifice fly and Derek Jeter's RBI single.

New York had runners on first and third with none out in the fifth, but Karl escaped with the help of an inning-ending double play.

Notes: Jeter singled in the third inning. The rookie has reached base in all 11 games this season... The Brewers led the AL with 42 triples last season and were one behind Colorado for the major league lead. But the Brewers were the last AL team to hit a triple this year, finally getting one on Valentin's hit in the fourth.

Daulton Begins Rehab at Clearwater

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Darren Daulton, whose knee problems threaten to end his career, started a rehab program yesterday at the Philadelphia Phillies' spring training base.

Daulton will work six days a week with conditioning specialist Hap Hudson at Jack Russell Stadium, the Phillies said.

"I don't fully believe that my right knee is completely healed at this point but I'm back at it down here and sometime I will know when it is healed up and I'll get back to my baseball skills and get back (in the lineup) as soon as I can," he said. "I think the main thing is give it a little time."

Daulton, who has had nine knee operations over his 16 major league seasons, said his bad knees were forcing him out of the Phillies lineup.

The announcement was widely seen as an indication his playing days were over, but the three-time All-Star said yesterday he's not yet ready to quit.

"I don't feel that I want to retire," he said. "Physically, right now I'm unable to play at the level that I think need to be... If I don't get that back then I'll have a better answer for that."

■ Bailey

continued from page 12

the game.

"Coach wants us to be in great shape," Bailey said. "because he does n't want there to be any excuses for not being able to run in the fourth quarter or overtime."

Prior to the season each player stands up in front of the rest of his teammates and states his goals for the upcoming campaign Bailey set what he felt was an achievable goal for the team, and is still striving for it now.

"I think that a realistic goal is to not only make the playoffs, but to get by the first round, because nobody's ever done that here," he said. "We have the talent and if we work hard enough, that is a definite possibility."

While Bailey's goal is to help UMass move forward to uncharted waters, he has a strong sense of the tradition that has made up the program's past, which he remembers every time he steps onto Richard F. Garber Field.

"Playing on that field is special. It's really special," Bailey said. "Especially with the whole tradition with Dick Garber.

"I've talked to people, who used to come here when they were in high school to watch games at the hill," he said. "On a nice sunny day it gets crazy out there, and that's why they came here. I experienced that my freshman year when we played Syracuse. There must have been 4,000 people there. I was in awe. It took me a quarter to catch my breath."

When Bailey walks away, UMass fans will probably remember him for his skill and his offense, but what his teammates and the people who know him best will remember is his enjoyment of the game.

"I can have fun doing anything," Bailey said. "I've gotten to know so many people and made so many good friends. You gotta have fun. If you're out there running and not having fun, I gotta question that."

Varsity Cheerleading Tryouts
Today 6-9 pm
Friday April 19 6-9 pm
Saturday April 20 12-5 pm
at Curry Hicks cage

JOSEPH CURRAN ASSOCIATES
IMMIGRATION LAW OFFICES
H-1B Specialty Occupations
Labor Certification/Special Handling
212(e) J-1 Waivers
Outstanding Professor/Researcher
Relative Petitions
Free Consultation for Five-College Students/Faculty
1163 Main Street - 2nd Floor, Springfield, MA 01103, 781-6370
13 Old South Street, Northampton, MA 01060, 584-3232
Specializing in IMMIGRATION LAW for over 10 years

Kaplan prepares more students... one student at a time.
NUMBER OF PRE-GRADUATE STUDENTS PER YEAR*
21,000 Princeton Review
25,000 Other Companies (combined)
30,000 Quickie University Courses
70,000 KAPLAN
Here's Why.
Kaplan teachers are dynamic, experienced and highly effective. Using Kaplan's unique, customized prep system, they'll create an individualized study plan that focuses on your needs.
Don't risk your future with an inferior prep course. At Kaplan, we'll make sure you get a higher score.
1-800-KAP-TEST
LSAT GMAT KAPLAN GRE NCAT
*1993 estimate

THE CLOTHESLINE PROJECT
BREAK THE SILENCE
Wednesday, April 17 10am-4pm
Campus Pond Area
Raindate April 18 10am-4pm
A powerful display bearing witness to the violence women have experienced in their lives.
Co-sponsored by the Every Woman's Center and the Health Education Division, University Health Service.

Eating Disorder Programs
Spring 1996
Sponsored by University Health Services
Eating Disorder Assessment Program
For individuals - with Nutritionists, Mental Health Clinician, Physician and/or Nurse Practitioner. Mondays or Wednesdays Confidentiality Assured. Call 549-2671 x233, Clinic 4.
Friends and Family Group
Single sessions for those concerned about somebody with an eating disorder. Call 549-2671 x233, Clinic 4.
Peer Support Group
For those struggling with anorexia, bulimia, or compulsive overeating. Mondays 4:30 - 6 pm, (except holidays) at the Campus Center. Room number posted by elevator. Confidentiality Assured. Call 549-2671 x233, Clinic 4.
Peer Health Connections
A confidential phone line for help around eating disorders, yourself or someone you know. Call 549-2671, ext. 168.

Summer '96 at UMass Boston
Call 617 287-7904
or email us at dce@umbsky.cc.umb.edu
or send or fax this coupon to UMass Boston Summer Sessions, 100 Morrissey Blvd., Boston, MA 02125-3393, Fax 617 287-7922
Name
Street address
City, state, zip
See why we're one of the most popular programs in New England!
You'll benefit from
• our distinguished faculty
• morning, midday, afternoon, and evening classes
• over 400 course sections
• our convenient Boston Harbor location
• sessions starting May 28, July 1, and July 15
• mail, phone, fax, or walk-in registration
• and costs you can afford.
UMass Boston

Mexican Luncheon
TODAY 11:30am-2:00pm
Mexicalli Soup
Steamed Rice
Choice of:
Chilli
Vegetarian Burrito
Beef & Bean Burrito
Chilli Cheese Cornbread & 16oz. Fountain Soda
$4.95
...only at the BLUEWALL

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ANNOUNCEMENTS

It's Back!! The Union / Mass Mountain Ski Trip April 24 & 25. Student Union Room 174. 545-2801

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Large Four Bdrm apartment on bus line [illegible] First floor of [illegible] Must see $900/month call 549 [illegible]

TAKE OVER OUR LEASE One bedroom apartment right next to campus. Heat and water included. Call 256 [illegible]

Two bedroom Puffton Take over lease [illegible] heat/hot water included [illegible] Call 549-1791

2 Bedroom Puffton Apt take over our lease. Available 6/1. $665/month call 549-7861

Live in beautiful mountain view apartment [illegible] quiet and classy. Two big bedrooms and baths. Lease starts June 1 [illegible] 549-6CAP

Great Location! Amherst 2 bdrm apt [illegible] Take over our lease [illegible] Call 253-7758

Best Selection of 1 and 3 bedroom [illegible] in the center of town. Gas [illegible] Call 253-7479

Take over our lease 6/1! Two bedroom [illegible] Puffton Apt. $680 per [illegible] heat/hot water. Avoid the [illegible] Call [illegible]

Apartments available for June and [illegible] Various sizes, cost. Call [illegible] 665-2503

Three bedroom condominiums, with [illegible] Hatchered floors. Lincoln [illegible] 253-7479

2 bed 2 bath ventilated Puffton town [illegible] heat summer sublet and [illegible] Mallory

Take over our lease! Spacious two [illegible] Available laundry facilities [illegible] $1195 a-b-l-s 1-797 $645.00 [illegible] Heat and hot water. call Becky [illegible] 584

One bedroom in Hadley Village with [illegible] Take over lease. $420/ call 253 [illegible]

AUTO FOR SALE

1988 Chevy Nova 87,000 miles. Well [illegible] great condition. $1,000 [illegible] 549-3707

1993 Kawasaki ZX600 bought new in 94 [illegible] 6K miles [illegible] $5,000/ 253-9330

EMPLOYMENT

Earn Thousands processing mail at [illegible] Will train. Interested envelope to Conrad [illegible] Box 69, Hadley, MA 01035

LAST CHANCE LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED April 19, 1996 - is the last [illegible] Attorney-at-law services center [illegible] Hartford. Get hands [illegible] in the legal field. WDN [illegible] ATTORNEYS and intership. Earn [illegible] undergraduate credits. No experience [illegible] the legal profession required [illegible] provided. Contact legal-tac Services (716) 971-3600 ext R50011

National Parks Hiring Positions are [illegible] National Parks, Forests [illegible] Excellent benefits [illegible] Call (206) 971-3620 ext [illegible]

EMPLOYMENT

Full/Part Time Tupperware, the most fun you'll have making serious money. Call Danielle at 256-8883

Summer Internship 20 Hrs. paid per week 4 to 6 weeks. Minorities interested in broadcasting business encouraged to apply. Resumes by 4/30 to Rick Heideman Today's 99.3 Box 268 Northampton, Ma 01061

SMALL, COED, OVERNIGHT CAMP
Looking for outgoing male counselors who enjoy working with children ages 7 - 13 yrs. Incredible experience. Call Michelle at 546-6677 or Ken at 413 528-2229

Student Painters needed $6.7 hour and bonuses. Summer work for hardworking people in the Hopkinton Ashland area Call Brian 800-827-5579

Summer Painters hiring for Boston and Hartford. Will train completely. Earn $6-$10/hr. Call N.E. Collegiate Painters at 800 569 9939

Women needed for research project. Runners and Sedentary women 18 - 25 years of age. You will be paid $150. If interested call 549-5832 ask for Deanna

Counselors: Coed overnight weight loss camp. Looking for outgoing, athletic individuals who enjoy working with children. Great experience. Call 413 737 8518

FALL 1996 INTERNSHIPS with the Student Legal Services Office get hands-on experience in the legal field. work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary-training provided. Deadline to begin the application process is April 19, 1996- contact Student Legal Services today 545-1995. 922 Campus Center

Eastern Europe Jobs - Teach basic conversational English in Prague, Budapest or Krakow. No teaching certificate or European languages required. Inexpensive room and board and other benefits. For info call 206-971-3680 ext. K50011

Looking for summer jobs? Openings available at Brandywine Apartments. Lifeguards- full time and part. Must be Red Cross certified. Grounds Keepers/Painters full time. Must be hard working, reliable and responsible. Stop by Brandywine office, 180 Brandywine Drive Amherst, Ma. 01002 549-0600

National Parks, Beech/Mt. Resorts, Ranches. Rafting Co's now hiring! Nationwide! 500 employers! Top pay benefits. Call (919) 932-1488 ext. R120

Alaska Student Employment — fish, mines, parks, resorts now hiring! Earn $3000-$6000/mo! Airfare! Room/board! Free video w/program! Call 919 932-1488 ext A120

Free Room and Board in exchange for child care. Experience and references required. Call 586-7110

$40,000 /yr income potential Home typists/PC users. Toll free 1 800 898-9778 ext T-1732 for listings

Tropical Resorts Hiring Students needed! Entry level career positions available worldwide. Call Resort Employment Services (716) 971-3600 ext R50011

International Employment - Earn up to $25-$45/hour teaching basic conversational English in Japan, Taiwan or S. Korea. No teaching background or Asian languages required. For info call (206) 971-3570 ext. J50014

FOR RENT

1 Bedroom Apt available June 1st. Great, clean and spacious. Call 549-5529. Close and convenient for 1 or 2

4-5 Bedroom Houses - Amherst Hadley Northampton - Sept 1st some June. $850-$1,000 plus utilities. Call 3-6 Jabish-Realtors 586-1877

House For Rent. June 1. Rt. 9 Hadley. On bus route. Call 582-9951

3 Bedroom Apt in Puffton Village starting June 1. Gas heat AC water incl. Option to lease. Call 549-8621 for more info

FOR SALE

Moving Sale - Bed, couches, kitchen set, coffee tables, tables. Call 253-4798

Unworn $310 Asics running shoes. $80 OBO. men's size 9. 546-7738

Tele Cel Rock Guitar Mount. $50 Call 253-0362. Leave message

486 DX66 Computer 540 MB Hard drive 8meg ram/fax modem 14" monitor $1100 or B.O. Call 253-0362 Leave Message

Computer Fair Mullins Center Saturday April 20 10AM-4PM. 100 Hours free internet plus bonus of 10 hours on line AOL. First 500 customers buy from the experts at wholesale night at the show from up to 70 different companies. 200 exhibits featuring IBM/PC compatible market. Latest technology from full systems to shareware. It's all here. General admission $7.00 each. With ad $6.00 each after 1PM $4.00 each with ad only.

Steirmaster for sale. Good condition $75.00 or b.o. call leave a message 549-6982

2 Pioneer 4X10 cor speakers & 2 Infinity 4X6 dash speakers $130 both pairs. Call Jeff 4 wks 253-4161

10 Gal. Fish Tank parts inc. $65.00. Jeff 253-4161

Hewlett Packard Deskjet 600C Printer w/ stand. Used 4 months. $210. Call Marie 549-3916.

Smith Corona PW900 Word Processor. Only 1 1/2 yr. old with box & all papers. Paid $350, will take $125.OBO. Call 546-8049

Bahamas round trip for 2. $700 585-6549

MUSICIANS

Bassist Wanted to form band. Influences: Rage, Nirvana, Alice etc. Call Rich 256-1751

MISCELLANEOUS

Person Wanted to own and operate retail candy shop in Amherst area. Low investment. For information call Mrs. Borden at Gourmet Candy Company Dallas TX (214) 931-4539

Landed a job in Boston? Take the work out of finding an apartment! BOSTON BROKER (617) 267-3444 UMASS Alum

PERSONALS

Looking for Long-term Relationship with attractive, sleek, hard bodied stud. Must be able to handle rough terrain. Meet me at the pond Thursday, April 25th at the Lorenz Gold Medal Challenge.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female Housemates Wanted to share 6 bdrm house in N. Amherst. Great location on bus route. Low rent plus utilities. Starts 6/1. Call Amy at 549-7076 for more info

Looking for roomates to share three bedroom apartment on Townhouse. We have a dog and cat. Call Becky at 549-6398. Males or females okay.

SERVICES

Let Me Do Your Typing. Papers. Resumes. Call Joe 546-6718

Pregnant? Need Help? Call Birthright of Amherst area for free testing and caring Assistance. 549-1906

LANDSCAPING

Spring cleanup, shrub trimming, pruning, planting, debris removal. Call 589-1991 for a free estimate

SUMMER SUBLET

Brandywine 2 bedroom apartment. Option to lease. Call 549-8528

Amherst 1 BR — 3BR Apt. $1.65 Mo. Heat and Cable Incld. 1 Left on available 253-0211. Ask for Steve

Take over our lease June 1. 2 Bdrm on Presidential Apt. $570/month hot water incl. Call 549-0730

Room for Rent 2 min. walk to uptown. 10 min. walk to campus. On bus route. Utilities included. Available May/3 Aug 31. $75 a month 253-9330

2 Bedroom townhouse apt on Puffton Heat, hot water included. Available June 1st. $ negotiable. Call 549-1756

Summer Sublet w/Fall Option Spacious, sunny room in 3bdrm apt on bus line. $275/Mo. Nonsmoking female preferred. Call 665-0090

3 Bedroom Puffton Apt available June 1st Call 549-6894

3 Bedroom Apt on Puffton Village starting June 1. Gas heat AC water inc. Option to lease. Call 549-8621 for more info

Brandywine 1BR Lake for summer with option for fall. Call Rob 549-0880

Summer Sublet with option to lease in Sept. 1 BR, 2 bedroom in center of town. Heat and parking included. Call 256-8961

TO SUBLET

Take over lease June 1. Spacious 2 bdrm apt. Heat and hot water inc. $664/Mo. 253-7084

Puffton 2 Bdrm 2 min. walk to campus. Call 549-0279 once req.

TRAVEL

Come Join In The Adventure!! Come White Water Rafting with UMSC & UMDC May 31 - June 2. Only $199! Call us @ 5-3437

WANTED

Some friends and I are going abroad for the fall semester. We are looking for some people who are leaving after the fall semester to split an apartment (upstairs preferred). You take half, we'll take spring. Call 549-5681 - Ask for Steph

Multicultural Affairs
Needs Writers!
If you're interested in writing call
Lisa Chiu
at 545-3500

Developing Nations
Needs Writers!
If you're interested in writing call
Syed Mohammed
at 545-3500

Photo
Needs Photographers!
If you're interested in photography call
Emily Reily
at 545-3500

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

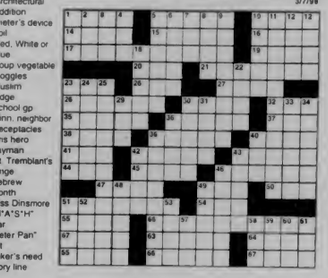
ACROSS
1 Queens' stadium
5 Sn —
10 Card game
14 "— Fiction"
15 Mistake
16 Marshal of Yugoslavia
17 New York range or chair
19 Away from the wind
20 G.I.s' hangout
21 Harassed
23 — Na Na
25 Three, Prefix
27 "Cheers" patron
28 Slips
30 Passable
32 Surprised exclamation
35 According to
36 Get lost!
37 Open fabric
38 Despot
39 Breakfast, lunch, etc
40 Partly open
41 Architectural addition
42 Dieter's device
43 Toil
44 Red, White or blue
45 Soup vegetable
46 Goggles
47 Muslim judge
49 School gp.
50 Minn. neighbor
51 Receptacles
54 Uris hero
55 Layman
56 Mt. Trembiant's range
62 Hebrew month
63 Miss Dinsmore
64 "M*A*S*H" star
65 "Peter Pan" pet
66 Baker's need
67 Story line

DOWN
1 Body shop?
2 Newman writer
3 Yale
4 Springtime abbr
5 Camera parts
6 Warmth
7 FDR program
8 Ed of Gotham
9 "Land of Opportunity
10 Ringo
11 Hemingway's height
12 Suits IO —
13 — the line obeyed
18 Exterior
22 Space
23 Lists of candidates
24 Squabble
25 Aaron Copland's "Spring" range?
29 Homily: Abbr.
30 Milan's La —
31 Helmet decor
33 Blissful place
34 Asleep
36 Parch
39 Alaska's Denali
40 Heart of Dixie Abbr
42 Pop
43 Discoloration
46 Public way
48 Capital of Ghana
49 City of Light
51 See 64 Across
52 Thompson of TV
53 Store sign
57 Dos Passos epic
58 Type of dance
59 Not well
60 Fuss
61 — King" Cole

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

S	L	I	P		D	E	M	I		N	A	S	H
W	A	C	O		E	R	I	N		B	O	D	H
A	T	T	I		F	I	N	D		E	A	M	E
T	H	E	B	L	A	C	K	C	H	R	O	M	E
H	E	R	O	I	C	S		M	A	S	S
		L	E		M	E	N	U		S	T	P
S	A	L		R	O	L	L		S	C	I	F	I
H	O	N	E	Y	S	U	C	K	L	E		R	O	S	E
I	N	T	R	A		T	H	E		E	N	O	S
N	E	E		N	A	S	C		A	I	N
		S	A	K	I			A	N	T	E	N	N	A
	S	T	E	E	L		M	A	G	N	O	L	I	A	S
P	H	A	S	E		A	C	R	E		L	E	F	T
A	U	T	O	S		L	I	E	S		E	C	T	O
S	T	E	P			D	E	S			S	E	A	N

3/7/96



Your Horoscope
By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21 – April 19) — There is more than meets the eye to a business offer. Contacts you make today will help you meet a business or romantic goal. Dealing with people on a confidential basis will prove highly helpful.

TAURUS (April 20 – May 20) — Your finances enjoy favorable influences now. Experts can help you manage your surplus funds more profitably. Avoid putting all of your eggs in one basket.

GEMINI (May 21 – June 20) — Concentrate on enjoying what the present offers you. Higher-ups are evaluating your work performance. The bottom line will improve when you find new markets for a superior product.

CANCER (June 21 – July 22) — The time is right to invest some money. You emerge a winner when you take a carefully calculated risk. A difficult job is made easier, thanks to an expert's help.

LEO (July 23 – Aug. 22) — Someone's success inspires you to reach for the stars. Use any spare time for creative pursuits. Let children know that their needs always come first with you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 – Sept. 22) — Your energy level is high and your social life stimulating! It is time to put a clever plan into operation. A change of lifestyle will bring greater comfort and financial security.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 – Oct. 22) — Discontent could tempt you to go against the wishes of others. Your failure to cooperate will surprise those close to you. Do not give in to a whim. Base decisions on logic not resentment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 – Nov. 21) — You may feel out of sync with a friend now. Focus on work for the next few days. The two of you will patch things up. Seek relaxation tonight by going to the movies.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 – Dec. 21) — Dedication to your work can bring about a miracle. You have true insight into a mysterious situation. Assume a leadership role at work. Your self-confidence will impress others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 – Jan. 19) — Distant contacts get in touch. You gain a better perspective on a travel issue. A work project is gathering momentum. Carefully husband your energies.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 – Feb. 18) — A busy work schedule is good for you, even if you find it annoying. Peace of mind comes when you finish what must be done. Your cheerful personality wins you new friends and well-wishers.

PISCES (Feb. 19 – March 20) — An unusual experience makes you wonder if you are on the right track. If you begin a new job under these conditions, you may regret it. Slow down. Meditation helps you reach the right decision.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

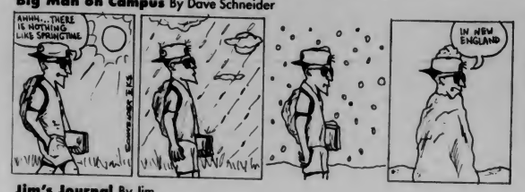
The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

THE MOOD IS GLOOMY AT CITY HOSPITAL...
WE'RE ALMOST OUT OF FUNDS.
WE CAN'T SHUT DOWN! THE PEOPLE NEED US!
LOOK! OUR PRAYERS HAVE BEEN ANSWERED!
I HOPE YOU'LL ACCEPT MY HUMBLE OFFERING.
MONEY! FROM ROBBIN THE GOOD!

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

HONEY, DID YOU SEE THIS? ROBBIN THE GOOD DONATED THOUSANDS TO THE CITY HOSPITAL!
YEAH, RIGHT! AND PENTON FORGIVES WAS ARRESTED OF THOUSANDS LAST NIGHT!
HONESTLY, PETER, CAN'T YOU GIVE ROBBIN CREDIT FOR ANY-THING?
SURE! I GIVE HIM CREDIT FOR HOOD-WINKING AN ENTIRE CITY!— INCLUDING MY WIFE!

Big Man on Campus By Dave Schneider



Jim's Journal By Jim

Ruth is really having trouble with her hair.
She wants to change it, but doesn't know how.
She could get a perm, or even be blonde, she says.
"It's hard," she said today. "I have such a long face, you know."

Dilbert By Scott Adams

OH MY! THIS IS SHOCKING!
WHAT?
40% OF ALL SICK DAYS TAKEN BY YOUR STAFF ARE FRIDAYS AND MONDAYS!
WHAT KIND OF IDIOT DO THEY THINK I AM?
NOT AN IDIOT SAVANT. THEY CAN DO MATH.

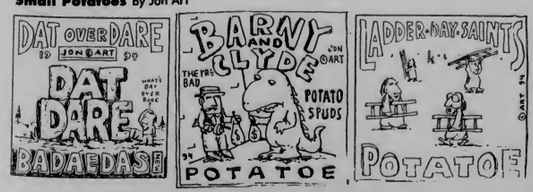
Dilbert By Scott Adams

THIS DOG IS SPECIALLY TRAINED TO DETECT WASTED RESOURCES.
HE'LL HELP ME FIND OUT WHY YOUR PROJECT IS BEHIND SCHEDULE EVEN AFTER ADDING ME AS MANAGER.
SNIFF SNIFF
WE'LL BEGIN AS SOON AS HE'S DONE PLAYING AROUND.

Life In General By Meredith

I'm SIXED to BABY in The Chancellor's house!
Yeah. Free food and just enough MSR to get Liz drunk ok her Due Baby!
Beach ski we can't wax waves all over The house!
1 LOST LATER...
I KNEW THE Chancellor WAS TIGHTY WHITIES
CHECK OUT THOSE SKID MARKS!

Small Potatoes By Jon Art



Kippil By Barry Deutsch

I THINK I CAN ACCEPT YOU BEING GAY, BUT NOT YOU BEING EXPELLED FROM COLLEGE.
BUT MOM
SANDY, I MEAN IT- I'M VERY DISAPPOINTED! IT'S TIME YOU TOOK SOME RESPONSIBILITY FOR YOUR-MOM, IT WAS YOUR CHECK THAT BOUNCED!
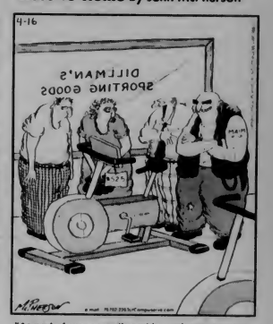
REALLY? OH, THAT'S DIFFERENT THEN.
BIG OF YOU TO SAY SO.

Close to Home By John McPherson

After acing five consecutive calculus tests, Duane was able to land a lucrative endorsement deal.

Close to Home By John McPherson



"As part of our commitment to customer service, Dominick will visit you three times a week to encourage you to use the bike regularly."

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

I got my daily routine just the way I want it.

I like the things I eat, the places I have to go to, and most of the people I talk with.

The only problem is that sometimes I lie in bed at night and I fear that something really really awfully bad is going to happen to me very soon.

And .... I suppose... that is the reason vomiting every night between 8 and 10 pm feels so right to me.

I started a 12 step program called R T V A- Refuse To Vomit Anonymous.

By mistake one night, I went to a meeting for the Rural Tennessee Valley Authority which deals with big hydroelectric dams.

It seemed to do me a lot of good.

So, now I alternate weekly between groups.

I'm very informed about dams and I vomit less.

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Jacob W. Michaels
Copy Editor ..... Lisa Oliveri
..... Mike MacLean
Photo Technician ..... Shane Keenan
Production Supervisor ..... Kathryn Gracia
Production ..... Marianne Haner
Brian Inocencio

Today's D.C. Menu

Berkshire

LUNCH
Philly Cheese Steak
Rotini/ Meat Sauce
Rotini/ Lentil Sauce

DINNER
Roast Turkey
Cauliflower Eggplant
Pastabilities
Cheese Lasagna

Franklin

LUNCH
Chicken Sandwich
Sloppy Joe
Ravioli Alfredo

DINNER
Roast Turkey
Chinese Beef
Broccoli & Cauliflower
Mesquite Chicken

Hampshire

LUNCH
Hamburger on Roll
Chicken Cutlet
Philly Cheese Steak
Stone Willy's Pizza
Summit Subs

DINNER
Roast Turkey
Fried Shrimp Dinner
Ston Willy's Pizza
Summit Subs

Worcester

LUNCH
Philly Steak Sandwich
Rotini with Meat Sauce
Rotini with Lentil Sauce
Stone Willy's Pizza

DINNER
Roast Turkey
Cauliflower Eggplant
Pastabilities
Cheese Lasagna
Stone Willy's Pizza

Do you like movies, television, music, concerts, artwork, photographs, magazines, books and just about anything in the world?

Well, it's all part of Arts & Living, something that you could be part of too. The Arts & Living desk is always looking for interested people (and interesting people for that matter) so come on down and write. Don't be shy. Arts & Living isn't just a desk, it's a way of life.

Quote of the Day

"Why does God have a sense of humor? A cruel one at that...

–Overheard"

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
The New England Newspaper Association's Daily College Newspaper of the Year, 1994
Free Every Day

Collegian Comics, so funny we forgot to laugh.

Sports

USILA Div. I Lacrosse Top 20 Poll

1 Maryland	6 Notre Dame	11 (tie) Duke	16 Towson State
2 Princeton	7 Syracuse	11 Harvard	17 Georgetown
3 Virginia	8 Brown	13 Penn State	18 (tie) Yale
4 North Carolina	9 Loyola	14 Hofstra	18 Dartmouth
5 Johns Hopkins	10 Bucknell	15 UMass	20 Army

Bailey's fourth quarter vision leads team

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

Just under five minutes remain in the men's lacrosse game between Massachusetts and Duke, and the Minutemen are clinging to a 12-8 lead.

Senior Eric Bailey cradles the ball on offense for UMass. He drives toward the goal, splitting two defenders. When Blue Devil goalie Joe Kirmser comes out to meet him, Bailey dives across the mouth of the cage. In the split second he finds himself horizontally airborne, he fires a shot past Kirmser to put the Minutemen ahead 13-8.

When I split those two defenders, I couldn't believe that this fat body," he said, grinning as he poked his midsection, "could roll between two guys that were in much better shape than I am. Kirmser took two steps toward me. I knew if I leaned that my back probably would've blown out, so I just dove."

On the Duke sideline, the Blue Devils look visibly flattened, as their comeback hopes are dashed.

While not all of Eric Bailey's goals have been of the highlight film variety, he has excelled in the fourth quarter.

In last Saturday's win over Delaware, Bailey helped shut down yet another comeback attempt. He tallied three of his four goals in the fourth quarter, to keep the Minuteman lead just out of reach from the Blue Hens. Bailey said the whole team steps up in the fourth quarter.

He looks forward to the big games and you need that," said Minuteman coach Greg Cannella. You'd like to have that in all your players. He loves when the game is on the line and someone needs to step up. He loves being in that spot. He's done it for us for the last four years."

That attitude has made Bailey a capable leader for UMass.

"His overall attitude toward the game is contagious," Cannella said. "When the game is on the line he talks to people. 'Let's go. Come on. Let's step it up...' People listen to him because he's a four-year starter for us."

The wins over Duke and Delaware may be the products of some tough times earlier in the season. After two straight weekend games that saw the Minutemen fall twice in overtime to Hofstra and Army, Bailey was admittedly embarrassed.

"Army was a very frustrating game for me because it was on our home field. We shouldn't lose on our home field," Bailey said. "I would have said the season was frustrating, after the two overtime losses. We should be 6-1 right now. We were supposed to be 6-1 right now.

"Those losses seemed to make us aware that we can't lose. It made us concentrate a little harder. Duke was a big win for us. It got us on track. It was good to see how we could play."

One thing that may have sparked his offense was a switch in position. With the Minutemen struggling to find consistency at the feeder position, Cannella has frequently turned to Bailey in the fourth quarter to move up to the attack. Bailey has been effective at both positions, amassing 12 goals and 11 assists for 23 points, and is on pace for his best season ever.

While Bailey's scoring has drawn him the most attention in recent weeks, his passing still remains his biggest asset. Bailey's field vision and smart play has made him one of the Minutemen's best distributors.

"If I could have 50 assists and no goals," Bailey said. "I'd have no goals. I really like playing unselfish. Sometimes I play too unselfish and I'll force things and it will get me in trouble, but I love standing behind the net and looking for someone to pass to.

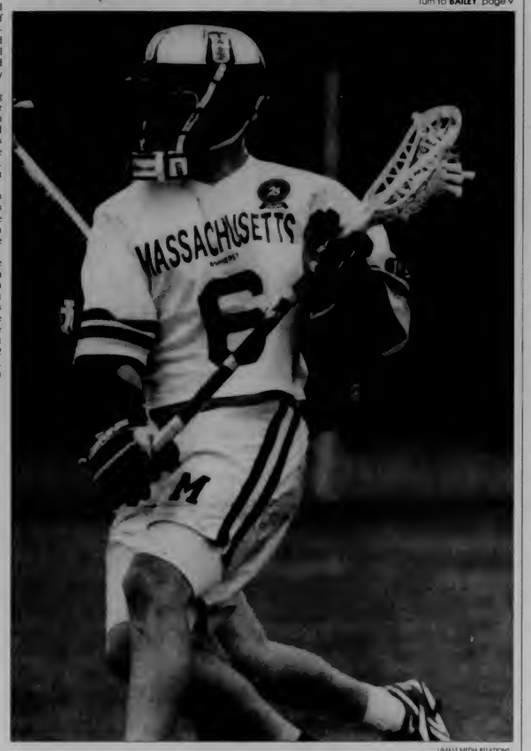
"The key for me is vision. I don't have great speed. I don't have great wrists, so I can't snap the ball. I can't run up and drop back. I can't do those things... It's just vision.

Cannella considers Bailey's field vision among the best of anyone to ever play at UMass.

"I think he fits in as one of the best at seeing the field and being knowledgeable about the game," Cannella said. "He's one of the most composed players."

When Cannella took the head coaching reins of the Minutemen prior to last season, he made conditioning a top priority for his club, to the point that one former Minuteman referred to the rigorous preseason as "Camp Cannella." Bailey is a self-admitted "pretty big guy," but the improvement in his conditioning has helped him be sharper later in

Turn to BAILEY, page 9



UMASS'S MEDIA RELATIONS

Eric Bailey has been leading the men's lacrosse team for the past four years with his unselfish play and leadership.

Minutemen face Harvard, if weather will permit

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts men's lacrosse team looks to keep the weather from washing away its two-game winning streak as the Minutemen face off at 3 p.m. against No. 11 ranked Harvard today at Richard F. Garber field.

Rain that has persisted over the last two days has turned the hill into a place one might be just as likely to see people go mudsliding as they would be watching a lacrosse match. Some Minutemen want different conditions.

The field is a swamp. I can't stand it," Brendan Glass said of the field conditions due to the recent weather in Amherst. My game is to play the running game and it really slows you down, but it can help as well as hurt you. The conditions make the back door play a little easier but the mud also gets your stick jammed."

Seventy degrees, sunny and turf would be nice," Eric Bailey added.

Coming in to muck it out with UMass (5-3) are the Crimson (4-2) who are coming off a loss to second-ranked Princeton 17-10. They are led up front by Mike Eckert who has 15 goals and 18 assists on the year up front, with Mike Ferrucci (15-8-23) and Jim Bevilacqua (11-3-14) also chipping in on the attack.

Harvard's offense is the area of most concern for the Minutemen, no matter what the conditions of the field may be.

They have a great attack," Glass said of the Crimson. They are going to score goals, rain or shine. It's not going to be 8-6 like last year. We are going have to

Turn to LACROSSE, page 8

Red Wings, Pens will meet in finals

A Western Conference team has not won the Stanley Cup since 1990, but if the Detroit Red Wings don't become the first since the Edmonton Oilers of the former Campbell Conference outlasted the Boston Bruins in the finals, it's another choke for Scotty Bowman's bunch. Though only three western teams had winning records in 1995-96, the Detroit Red Wings won more games than any team ever has (62), but without 16 more, there will still be riots in Motor City. But the riots will in fact be of a happy variety, and here's how it will happen.

Kottler on the NHL

EASTERN CONFERENCE

No. 1 Philadelphia Flyers (45-24-13) vs. No. 8 Tampa Bay Lightning (38-32-12). This series could pan out in a variety of ways. There stands to be some fantastic goaltending duels between Ron Hextall (2.17 goals-against average) and Daren Puppa (2.46), but it's more likely the series will be decided up front, where the Lightning must contain Eric Lindros. Puppa is the only good thing about Tampa's defense, so it's a good bet Lindros will have his way, meaning the Flyers will too. Prediction: Flyers in six games.

No. 2 Pittsburgh Penguins (49-29-4) vs. No. 7 Washington Capitals (39-32-11). There are only two ways to beat the Pens — match goals with them or play some amazing defense. Few teams can do the former, but the Caps are a fine club in their own zone, so they'll have a chance. If Washington can slip a few softies past Tom Barrasso, this one could go deep, but there's one key difference for Pittsburgh in these playoffs — Mario Lemieux's back. Not only that, but Lemieux's back is fine, and so are the Penguins' cup aspirations. Prediction: Penguins in seven.

No. 3 New York Rangers (41-27-14) vs. No. 6 Montreal Canadiens (40-32-10). Two of the last three champions hook up in this meeting of legendary franchises. The Blueshirts stumbled down the stretch, but no one plays through pain better than Mark Messier. Problem is, the same can't be said for goalie Mike Richter, who needs to be in top form for New York to return to glory. For Montreal, Jocelyn Thibault didn't disappoint as successor to Patrick Roy, and his playoff showing last season with Quebec against the Rangers was impressive. But the Canadiens lack a charismatic, playoff-hardened leader like Messier, who will spell the difference in the series. Prediction: Rangers in six.

No. 4 Florida Panthers (41-31-10) vs. No. 5 Boston Bruins (40-31-11). Finally, something goes right for the Bruins. Of all the teams they might have drawn in the first round, this is the one they wanted. The Panthers were lousy in the final weeks of the regular season, while Boston was brilliant (13-3-3 to close the schedule). Of course, we've seen this before. The Bruins made a comparable charge into the 1995 playoffs, only to be swept by Buffalo in the first round. But Bill Ranford, who along with Messier took Edmonton to the title in 1990, is much better than Andy Moog in the clutch. Prediction: Bruins in six.

Second round: Flyers over Bruins in seven, Pittsburgh over Rangers in seven. Conference finals: Pittsburgh over Flyers in six.

WESTERN CONFERENCE

No. 1 Detroit Red Wings (62-13-7) vs. No. 8 Winnipeg Jets (36-40-6). Bowman has elected to go with Mike Vernon in goal, which will mean a few extra scores for Keith Tkachuk (50 goals) and Co. Well, maybe. If someone else doesn't score for the Jets, Detroit will blow them straight into Phoenix. Winnipeg fared better with Detroit than any other team during the year (2-3-1), but that's out the window now. Prediction: Red Wings in five.

Turn to NHL, page 8

Women's tennis tunes up against Jeffs

By Mike Corey
Collegian Staff

Coming off two losses last week, the Massachusetts women's tennis team started this all-important week off right, with a win over Rhode Island on Monday.

The Minutewomen trounced the Lady Rams, 7-0, and improved their record to 6-2 on the spring, 15-3 overall this season.

This match was the first to begin the home stretch, as the Minutewomen will play Amherst today and begin the Atlantic 10 tournament at home on Friday.

Yesterday UMass was scheduled to play Boston University, but because of the weather, the match was cancelled. Today the Minutewomen will take on Amherst College at 3:30 p.m. at the Upper Boyden tennis courts in their first home match of the spring.

Amherst comes into this match ranked No. 7 in Division III, three places higher than Williams College, who UMass lost to last week, 4-3.

"Williams gave us a wake up call which we needed desperately," UMass coach Judy Dixon said. "This program started out where I felt lucky to beat a local school. Since that time three and a half years ago, we have turned into one of the stronger teams in New England.

"The teams we now lose to are teams with national rankings and because of that, the record of 14-1 at the time was a little misleading. We're toughening up our schedule for sure as the years go by. So when we played Williams, I think it was a good wake up call."

Amherst has a record of 5-1 this Spring and 14-1 overall this season. It finished tied for first place in New England's this past fall, and its latest match was a 8-1 victory over UConn this past week.

"I think we will be more prepared for Amherst College than we were for Williams," Dixon said. "This match will be on our home sight, which makes a difference. We've become the sort of traveling team of tennis.

"I think it's going to be great. It's going to be exciting and we expect that people will come out to watch. It's two days before the biggest event of their season — the A-10's, and I do believe that they're going to be ready to play."

This spring UMass ran out to an undefeated 5-0 record, before running into a little trouble against Williams and Boston College. Strength of schedule and the teams that UMass has been playing, is something Dixon feels is important heading into the A-10's.

"My guess it that Amherst College will be a very tightly contested match, and that it gives me the last opportunity to see who's ready for the A-10's," she said.

"My expectation for the A-10's is that we'll end up seeded either third or fourth, and that will be the highest seed of any UMass team — in the women's program, in the history of UMass tennis."

The Minutewomen have been somewhat inconsistent this spring in finding an answer to their No. 2 and 3 singles, as well as one group in the doubles. In order for UMass to come away with a victory this afternoon, it's going to need strong performances from every position, as the Minutewomen tackle a tough Amherst squad.

"I expect that they're going to be strong in the doubles, and I think the No. 1 singles will be highly contested," Dixon said. "I think the doubles will be the key to this match as it has been the key to every match all along."

In the singles matches UMass had no trouble in disposing the Lady Rams, as only No. 2 player Caroline Steele had a competitive match, coming up with the victory 6-3, 7-5.

Liesl Sitton at No. 1 beat Jill Estis 6-1, 6-3 while Noelle Orsini, playing in the No. 3 slot, beat up on Sarah Fitzpatrick 6-1, 6-0. Liz Durant, Marie-Christine Caron and Lana Goredetskaya all won their respective No. 4, 5, and 6 singles matches in straight sets, with Goredetskaya winning with two shutouts.

"This was a match that we just had to play cleanly and as quickly as we could," UMass assistant coach Tom Lowry said.

The doubles matches were the same story with the Minutewomen taking the doubles point easily. Sitton and Steele at No. 1 won 8-4, Caron and Goredetskaya won 8-2, while Braunstein and Durant in the No. 3 slot also won 8-2.

"Everybody played well, and there's really no doubts coming into this week," Lowry said. "They're all playing well, it's just a matter of finding the right spot for them."

After today's match the Minutewomen begin the Atlantic 10 Tournament on Friday at the Upper Boyden Courts.

Women's track performs well, sweeps competition

By Stephen Clements
Collegian Correspondent

The Massachusetts women's track and field team came out with a victory this weekend by outdistancing itself from the rest of the competition.

UMass scored a total of 148 points to get the win. The Minutewomen were followed by Lowell (52 points), Providence College (33 points), Holy Cross (27 points) and Iona with zero.

The Minutewomen did exceptionally well in the sprints, hurdles, mid distance and both relays. They were led by the services of Nicole Roberts who won both the 200-meter and 100-meter with respective times of 25.3 and 12.4 seconds.

Rebecca Donaghue came up big again this weekend by capturing the 800 with a time of 2:12.9. Two weeks ago, she took third in this event against two All-Americans from Boston College. She won the 800 this past weekend against a very strong Providence distance team, the defending national champions in cross-country.

As expected, Providence took the distance events on Saturday by winning both the 1,500 and 3,000-meters with times of 4:35.5 and 9:45. The Friars took the first three spots in the 3,000 and the first two spots in the 1,500.

The Minutewomen swept the hammer this past weekend. They were led by Christie Martin, who won the event with a throw of 48-48 feet. She was followed by Shana Mitchell with a toss of 46-40. Stephanie Townson's 44-44 and Erica Faginski's 41-06.

The same result also occurred in the long jump, with UMass sweeping the event. Rosie Bryan, who was a winner two weekends ago against BC, won the event with a jump of 5-72 meters. She was followed by Melanie Bell's 4-89 and Nicole Way's 4-44.

The biggest suprise of the weekend was Iona's inability to put any points on the board, though it was up against some tough competition on Saturday.

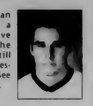
Another surprise was that Providence was only able to score 33 points for a third place finish. The Friars are very strong in the distance events so they were talented enough to sweep both the distance events. They did well, but not well enough.

UMass also scored well in the shot put. The Minutewomen took first, second, third and fifth. Martin won the event with a throw of 12-31, followed by Townson's 11-27 and Brown's 9-60.

Overall, the Minutewomen performed well in all their events and are looking forward to their next meet this coming Saturday against New Hampshire and Dartmouth.

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CV Issue 86 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Thursday, April 18, 1996

Glass' five goals not enough



Junior Brendan Glass scored a team-high five goals but the Minutemen still lost to Harvard yesterday 12-10 (See Sports, page 18).

Coming through Loud and clear

Jenny Toomey's Liquorice is one of over 200 bands to pass through Noho this weekend as a part of the annual Loud Music Festival. Check out our extensive coverage. (See Arts & Living, page 5).

WORLD

West London falls victim to IRA blast

LONDON — An explosion rocked an expensive residential district of west London Wednesday night, following a warning call attributed to the Irish Republican Army, police and fire officials said.

The blast blew out windows at an empty house and neighboring buildings in a tony street called The Boltons, but there were no injuries, police said.

An anonymous telephone call received by The Associated Press, and using a recognized code word, warned a bomb was planted about 15 minutes before the blast. Police said the explosion probably was the work of the IRA.

"There was a vast explosion that shook the house," said Carolyn Seymour, who lives nearby. "The windows almost came in." Winnie Gordon Strauss, who was walking her dog at the time of the blast, said "I've still got glass in my hair."

Some formally dressed residents, returning from dinner parties, were unable to get past police cordons to their houses in an area that is home to millionaires and diplomats, near Chelsea.

It was a small explosion, causing minimal damage, Scotland Yard police spokesman Steve Park told reporters.

NATION

Jury recommends life without parole for Menendez bros.

LOS ANGELES — Erik and Lyle Menendez were spared the death penalty Wednesday for methodically gunning down their wealthy parents 6 1/2 years ago in their Beverly Hills mansion.

The jury recommended life in prison without parole for the killings of record company executive Jose Menendez and his socialite wife, Kitty. The brothers have already spent over six years in jail.

"Lyle is relieved because he wants to live," said his lawyer, Charles Gessler. "You know life without parole is not something to be looking forward to. So you can't say he is happy, but he is relieved that it was life."

Erik's attorney, Leslie Abramson, was relieved for both brothers.

"On the good side I will say they're both such considerable human beings that they will find a way to be productive," she said.

The eight men and four women jurors deliberated for 13 hours over three days before filing into the courtroom Wednesday with grim faces. The room was gripped with tension as the foreman handed in their written decisions.

The brothers wore shirts and ties, their faces paler than ever. Neither reacted much. Erik sat forward to listen more closely, then leaned back in his chair as the verdicts were completed. There were separate verdicts for each brother for the killings of each parent.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Friday	Saturday
HIGH: 60 LOW: 40	HIGH: 55 LOW: 40	HIGH: 70 LOW: 42

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 16
Comics.....page 17
Crossword .....page 16
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 2
News .....page 3
Sports .....page 18

Local groups prepare for annual march, rally to end violence

By Anna Lotto
Collegian Staff

Redubbed "Take Back Our Rights," this year's annual march to end violence against women will begin tonight at 6:30 p.m. on the steps of the Student Union.

Previously known as "Take Back the Night," this annual march takes place around the nation to highlight the epidemic of violence against women. According to an informational handout from the Everywoman's Center, the rally is also meant "to honor and encourage women as they assume control of their lives."

In the past the march has taken place at night to emphasize the increased vulnerability of women in the dark. On a symbolic level, the night is also supposed to reflect the tendency of women to deny the reality of abuse in their daily lives through hiding it. Men are frequently not allowed to participate in the march as it is meant to be empowering for women to walk by themselves on a dark street.

The march is organized by local women's groups and focuses on both individual cases of abuse and the widespread nature of the problem. It is also meant to be a celebration of women's strength, and a show of commitment in stopping violence against women.

This year, however, the march is changing its name and also including men. The name has been changed, according to the Everywoman's Center, because "violence does not occur only at night. We need to address violence and oppression in all forms, and we want our title to reflect that." Men from Mentor's in Violence Prevention and the Men's Resource Center of Western Massachusetts have helped in coordinating campus and community men interested in participating in the march.

The recent series of assaults which have occurred in the Five-College area and the outcry they have produced throughout the community illustrate the need for a collaborative event among the five colleges, according to rally organizers. Because of these events, the flyer reads "Our march and rallies could not have occurred at a more appropriate time this year to offer support to those in need of an outlet."

The rally starts at the Student Union, where speakers and performers will address a crowd the Everywoman's Center anticipates to be between 400 and 500 people. The participants will then proceed in a candlelight march through the UMass campus, onto Fraternity Row, down North Pleasant Street into the center of Amherst, ending in the town common. Another rally will take place in the common with additional women speaking and performing. The event will conclude with a coffeehouse at Amherst College.

Speakers at the rally will include Jennifer Ire, a teaching assistant in UMass Women's Studies Department and statistical investigator at Everywoman's Center. Yoko, a local businesswoman and mother of domestic violence victim Sherry Morton and Dawn Melchionda, friend and housemate of Tara Hartnett, the UMass senior murdered by her ex-boyfriend in 1993. Also speaking will be Aisha Shahidah Simmons and Tamar Xavier, Philadelphia filmmakers who produced NO!, a video-documentary on rape of black women. There will be many other speakers from not only the colleges but also from the local community as well.

The event was organized by a steering committee made up of an extensive list of Five-College and community organizations. According to the Everywoman's Center, "We hope that the diversity of the event, while celebrating and respecting the unique experiences of all women, will also help us recognize our shared oppression as well as the many possibilities for empowerment."

Amherst prof. dissects idea of Western superiority

By Lisa Chiu
Collegian Staff

Richard A. Goldsby, professor of biology at Amherst College and member of the University of Massachusetts faculty, lectured Tuesday afternoon on "The Natural Superiority of Western Civilization."

The author of several books, Goldsby is also a member of the Board of Directors for the Institute for Global Ethics, an organization dedicated to elevating public awareness and promoting the discussion of ethics in a global context.

He began his lecture by saying, "I'm afraid that the people who are here, and are expecting some controversy, are going to be disappointed."

Goldsby defined race as a breeding population with the characteristic frequency of inherited traits. He said that it was a genetic term, and a statistical term for populations and not for individuals.

"The notion of race is more than just skin deep," he said. He added that there was certainly an associative relationship between race and culture, and suggested that the relationship may also be determinative. According to Goldsby, particular cultures are reflections of particular gene pools.

"Is there is a determinative relationship between race and behavior?" he asked. "Are some races inherently better than other races?"

He answered by saying that there were narrow instances where some characteristics are better at things than others, citing that taller individuals are better at basketball than shorter people. In broader aspects of life, however, no races have been demonstrated to be genetically or inherently superior to others, he said.

Goldsby said the question of racial differences in mental ability has focused on black and white differences in IQ, and that genes do in fact have a significant influence on IQ scores.

He cited tests on identical twins, which Goldsby said showed there were striking similarities in the IQ scores of identical twins. He said that the study certainly demonstrated a clear role for genes as well as environment for IQ scores.

Goldsby went on to pose the question, "Can all races participate equally and productively in all phases of western society?" He responded by saying that it is not a challenge that will be won by debate or discussion, and that it would only cease to matter when black achievement makes the matter moot. He said that people used to argue that blacks couldn't play baseball, but having been proven wrong, the argument today is moot.

"The day blacks achieve, the black-white question will be silly," Goldsby said.

He said he based his thesis of Western cultural superiority on three criteria: The first was the practical possibility of providing the material necessities of life; the second was the ability to exercise some control over infectious and degenerative diseases; and the third was a question of whether a culture honors and protects individual liberties. According to Goldsby, it is only when cultures protect individual liberties that everyone can expect an opportunity to achieve to their full potential.

"Do you really believe that all cultures are really equivalent on their capacity to deliver on these criteria, or might it be argued, that judged on these criteria, some cultures might be favored over another?" he asked. "I would argue that it really is apparent that the culture of the West has produced the most effective technology for providing food, shelter, clothing, mobility, information and medical interventions.

"I believe it has developed a set of strategies... that has produced and promises to produce insights into the workings of nature that can only be understated as extraordinary."

Goldsby cited elements in Western cultures that support his belief in the natural superiority of the west in various areas.

Turn to GOLDS, page 3

EMILY RILEY / COLLEGIAN

Breaking the silence

Maggie Wilkens, nine, and her mother, Kathy, both of Amherst, observe the clothesline. Each decorated shirt represents a particular woman's experience with abuse. The display was presented by the Clothesline Project Wednesday afternoon near the campus pond.

Senate approves anti-terrorist bill in lopsided vote

By Carolyn Skorneck
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate overwhelmingly approved an anti-terrorism bill Wednesday — two days before the anniversary of the Oklahoma City bombing — after turning aside Democratic attempts to expand federal law enforcement powers.

The vote was 91-8 on the House-Senate compromise bill that now moves to the House for final congressional action. The House was expected to take up the bill Thursday.

The legislation would limit federal appeals by death-row inmates and other prisoners and provide for the death penalty in certain international terrorism cases and for killing a federal employee because of the employee's work.

Republicans disagreed among themselves about whether the bill would deter terrorism.

"We have a measure that will give us a strong upper hand in the battle to prevent and punish domestic and international terrorism," said Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, the presumptive Republican presidential nominee.

But Sen. Don Nickles, R-Okla., while praising the bill, said the country remains "very open" to terrorism. "Will it stop any acts of terrorism domestic and international? No," he said, adding: "We don't want a police

Turn to TERRORISM page 2

Panel dissects military ideology

Role of U.S. armed forces the topic of PAWSS series finale

By Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Staff

The role of the United States military was the latest topic in the Peace and World Security Studies (PAWSS) series, which featured a panel discussion last night at Amherst College to discuss the issue.

The panel was comprised of five members of the Army War College including U.S. Army Cols. Rick Kuenning, Brad Beasley and Bob Caslen, U.S. Marine Col. Glen Sachtleben and Department of Army Civilians representative Cecilia Solomon.

Ron Tiersky, a professor of European History at Amherst College introduced the panel, which was the final PAWSS event of the year.

"We are here for the exchange of ideas," Kuenning said. "We are five members of the current affairs panel representing the War College who travel across the country to educate the public."

The Army War College is a senior service college with an enrollment of approximately 300 colonels and officers from all over the world.

"The college takes us away from the comfortable world in which we have lived," Kuenning said. "The college teaches us strategy in a time of changes and new challenges. We study many subjects which prepare us to deal with whatever is cast upon us."

Sachtleben gave a presentation about Liberia and the conflicts of national security.

"We need a peace keeping force comprised of the right people," he said. "A right ruling force could do what did not happen in 1992."

After stating that over 115,000 Liberians have died since 1989, Sachtleben finished his presentation by asking, "Is a humanitarian cause worth U.S. intervention?"

Caslen spoke about the failure of the U.S. to integrate military power with politics and economics.

"In September 1994 the U.S. went into Haiti to establish a secure and stable environment including a free-market system and free and fair elections," he said. "But the U.S. did not stay long enough for these processes to take place."

Caslen concluded by saying, "If we choose to commit our military power we need to go in with conditions, not with a timeline."

Beasley addressed the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

"Many people feel that there is no more need for it, but I think that NATO is still a viable security blanket," he said.

Beasley added that conditions in Western Europe have been rather peaceful over the last 45 years since NATO has been in existence, and that he would like to see the NATO concept extended to Eastern Europe over the next 45 years.

The panel opened up to answer questions from the audience. One question addressed the fact that there were no isolationists present on the panel, asking if this was a conscious decision.

"We cannot afford to be isolationists because of the political interconnectedness and economic security of the world," Sachtleben said. "We have to be involved because we are the only nation capable of exercising leadership in order to accomplish goals."

The promotion of opium production by the U.S. military in some nations, which would seem to contradict the drug prevention work within the U.S., was the focus of another question.

Sachtleben answered, "The worst thing to happen to the drug issue was Bush's War on Drugs, a war suggesting that there is a strategy and a goal. Attacking the source does not take care of the demand. Clinton came in and demand education became the key and education was the nexus."

EMILY RILEY / COLLEGIAN

Beads, beads, beads

Georgia Willmont, a junior sociology major, helps Keisha Gaillous, seven, of Amherst, as she puts together the perfect necklace Wednesday afternoon in the Craft Center.

For Your Information

PYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an PYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Thursday, April 18

Art Exhibition — The opening reception of the Annual Student Art Exhibition, sponsored by the Art, Graphic Design and Media Department of Greenfield Community College, which runs until May 9, will be held at 7 p.m. in South Gallery.

Rally — The Graduate Employee Organization (GEO) will be held on the south steps of the Student Union. Campus leaders will speak on downsizing and privatization, the need for affordable on-campus child care, GEO contract negotiations and proposed new admissions standards. Live reggae featuring Louse Caboose. Bring your kids to campus — there will be jugglers, clowns, face-painting and free soda and popcorn for kids at the rally. All welcome. For more info, cal GEO at 545-0705; 545-5317.

March — The annual Take Back Our Rights march and rallies will begin on the Student Union Steps at 6:30 p.m. We will begin marching through downtown Amherst at Amherst Commons where the second rally will be held, followed by a Coffeehouse at Amherst College. Women and men are welcome. For more information, call Everywoman's Center, 545-0883.

Meeting — Pi Sigma Alpha, the Political Science Honor Society, will be hosting an informational meeting for prospective students of the Political Science department at 5:30 p.m. in the sixth floor lounge of Thompson Tower. For more information, contact Bill Ramsey at 546-4278.

Film — Warsaw Ghetto, a documentary with actual footage taken by the SS about life in the ghetto, will be presented in the Campus Center, Room 165, 7:30 p.m. free.

Lecture — The GLBT lecture series will present "Intersections of Oppression: Racism and GLBT Oppression," featuring speaker UMass education professor Barbara Love, at noon in Campus Center Room 803.

Saturday, April 20

Day-trip — Spend the day in New York City for $20. Bus leaves from Hadley mall at 6:30 a.m. and returns at 2:30 a.m. Tickets can be purchased at Commuter Services in 428 Student Union (Above People's Market). For more information, contact Commuter Area Government at 545-2145.

Sunday, April 21

Fundraiser — "Workout for Hope," a nationwide event to raise money for AIDS research, will come to the Valley at Pearl Street Night Club in Northampton. From noon to 3 p.m., the Valley's top fitness instructors will lead a throng of fitness fans through a three-hour routine. Top fundraisers earn prizes like Reebok sneakers, T-shirts and sweatshirts. Participants can pre-register the morning of the event from 11 a.m. – noon at Pearl Street. Spectators and individual donations are also welcome.

Hike — The Pioneer Valley Group of the Sierra Club will sponsor a hike up Mt. Greylock, Massachusetts tallest mountain. Leader's choice of trail depending on conditions. Bring lunch and plenty of water. Rain cancels. Call Elisa at 256-4247.

Monday, April 22

Art gallery — An opening reception for undergraduate artists Eric Trosko and Julie Graham will be held in the Student Union Art Gallery from 5-7 p.m. The show runs through April 26.

Tuesday, April 23

Organ donors — Sign an organ and tissue donor card and/or pick up information about donating at the National Organ and Tissue Donor table in the Campus Center Concourse from 9:30 a.m. – 2 p.m. Sponsored by the Student Health Advisory Board.

Forum — The Amherst Chamber of Commerce, the Department of Hotel, Restaurant, Travel Administration and the Amherst Planning Department will hold a free town forum on tourism and development in Amherst from 7-9 p.m. in the Amherst Junior High School Cafeteria on Chestnut Street.

Wednesday, April 24

Lecture — Richard M. Lerner, Ph.D., director of Institute for Children, Youth and Families, Michigan State University will present a lecture on "America's Youth in Crisis: Challenges and Options for Programs and Policies" at 3:30 p.m. in SBA 120.

Thursday, April 25

Sale — The Granby High Sweat Shirt Sale will be held from 7-9 p.m. at Granby High School, Route 202 in Granby. Benefits the Granby High Sports Programs and other functioning clubs.

Notices

CPR certification — Sunday, April 28 is the "Massive" American Red Cross Adult CPR Certification Day at the Mullins Center. You must pre register on the Campus Center Concourse between April 15 and 19. For more information, contact American Red Cross at 548-8887, Environmental Health and Safety at 545-2682 or UMass First Aid Services at 545-1885.

Intramurals — Intramural Men's Basketball Championship played in the Curry Hicks Cage on your cable network — Housing Services Cable Network — Monday, April 22-Saturday, April 27 at 11 p.m., Sunday, April 28 at 9 p.m.

Registration correction — Peer Health Education (Public Health 213/Educ 215) a two-semester, six credit course has a new time for the fall semester. The course will be meeting Tuesday and Thursday from 9:30-10:45 a.m. Call the Health Education Office at 549-2671 x181.

Internships — The Daily Hampshire Gazette sponsors internships for college students during the academic year (fall: September-December; January, and spring: February-May) and the summer. Fall deadline is Sept. 15; January deadline is Dec. 1; spring deadline is Dec. and summer deadline is April 15. Students interested in applying for an internship should send a letter and resume to Stanley Moulton, Daily Hampshire Gazette, P.O. Box 299, Northampton, 01061-0299.

Volunteers needed — The Lutheran Social Services and the Literacy Volunteer Network invite you to attend a citizenship preparation workshop where we will help applicants to prepare their citizenship applications. Application assistance will be provided free of charge on Saturday, April 27 from 9 a.m. – 4 p.m. at Springfield Technical Community College. Pre-registration is required by April 12. For more information, call Lutheran Social Services at (413) 787-0725.

Book donation — The Amherst League of Women Voters will be accepting donations of used books until April 28, in preparation for the 49th Annual Book Sale. Trunks and boxes for donations will be placed outside Stop & Shop in Hadley and inside Victory Market in Amherst, as well as the Jones Library and North and South Amherst Libraries. Books may also be brought to the sorting and pricing site at the corner of Main and High Streets in Amherst. Books should be free from mildew, magazines are not wanted. For more information, call Harriet Shapiro at 549-5439.

Study Group — Spring Miracles: Join an ongoing study group focusing on the text of A Course in Miracles, every Tuesday from 7:30 – 9 p.m. Group continues until June 25. Free of charge. Call 252-2902 for more information.

Course selection — The Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures would like to inform the student body that despite the Provost's ongoing Academic Program Review, courses previously offered to both majors and non-majors will still be available for the foreseeable future. All courses will be taught in English, no Russian required. For further information call the Slavic Department at 545-2052 or visit the office at 438 Herter.

Blood Drives — The American Red Cross will be holding blood drives in Hampshire County at the following locations on the dates and times listed: Robert Crown Center at Dickinson Hall at UMass (April 23 — 2 to 8 p.m.); Campus Center front room at Amherst College (April 23 — 1 to 7 p.m. and April 24 — 1 to 7 p.m.); 101 Campus Center at UMass (April 25 — 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.); and Cape Cod Lounge at UMass (April 30 — 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.)

Employment — TA positions are available at the Graduate Employee Organization. GEO is accepting applications for the following positions: Organizer/Contract Administrator, Political Advocate, Database Coordinator. You must be a graduate student and committed to organizing GEO into a stronger Union. Positions will start in Fall '96 semester and last through the academic year. Please come to the GEO office at 201 Student Union for more information about these positions or to fill out an application packet. Call 545-0705 for more information. Deadline for applications is 5 p.m. April 19.

Running — Registration for "Run for Newman" will be available everyday in the Newman Center front office, from Tuesday through Thursday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Newman Center cafeteria and from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Campus Center. The cost is $5 for pre-registration. Free t- shirts will be awarded. For more information, call the Newman Center at 549-0300.

Campus Police Log

Alarm
April 12
A burning paper set off a detector in John Q. Adams Residence Hall.
April 13
A sprinkler head was activated on the 11th floor of Washington Residence Hall. It is under investigation.

Animal complaint
April 12
Environmental Health and Safety checked the well-being of a swan in the campus pond.

Annoying behavior
April 12
Two individuals took items from Hampden Snack Bar without paying. The individuals were also shouting at employees.
Kevin F. O'Malley, 23, of 57 Victory Rd., Dorchester, was arrested for disorderly conduct and a default warrant from Quincy District Court.
There were fireworks going off in Washington Residence Hall.
There was a report of individuals jumping on parked vehicles near the Campus Center.
Individuals on Mullins Way were throwing bottles from a vehicle in Parking Lot 67.
April 13
An individual in Washington Residence Hall attempted to kick in an office door.
Papers on a door in Field Residence Hall were set on fire during the night.
A threatening note was left on a vehicle near Coolidge Residence Hall.
April 14
Bottles were being thrown from Hamlin Residence Hall.
There was a report of fireworks being set off in Brooks Residence Hall.

Assault & battery
April 14
Police took a report of a past fight in John Q. Adams Residence Hall. The victim received a fractured nose which was treated at Cooley Dickinson Hospital. A hearing will be requested at court.

Assist citizen
April 12
University police assisted an individual with a flat tire on a vehicle on Commonwealth Avenue.

Assist other pds
April 13
University police assisted state police with a courtesy transport on Orchard Hill Drive.

Disturbance
April 12
There was a report of two individuals on the roof of Wheeler Residence hall. Staff was called to handle the situation.
Two individuals were involved in a fight in the Campus Center. They left before officers arrived.

Health / safety hazard
April 12
An enforcing rod was protruding from the ground in Parking Lot 40.
April 13
Gasoline was leaking from a vehicle in Parking Lot 32. The vehicle was towed.

Intoxicated person
April 12
A 17-year-old person in the Mullins Center was taken into protective custody.

Larceny
April 12
Cash was stolen from a desk in Bartlett Hall.
A telephone card was stolen from an individual in Pierpont Residence Hall. Illegal charges were made on the account.
A headlight was stolen from vehicle in the North Village Apartments.
April 13
An individual in Cashin Residence Hall reported his wallet stolen.
An individual in Cashin Residence Hall reported her wallet stolen.

Liquor law violations
April 13
There was a campfire and individuals drinking near Brown Residence Hall.
April 14
There was a large party in the basement area of Butterfield Residence Hall.

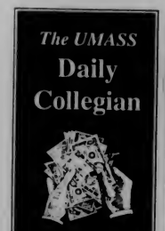
Medical emergency
April 12
An individual in the Mullins Center sprained an ankle, and refused treatment.

Noise complaint
April 12
There was a noise complaint outside Field Residence Hall.
Individuals were singing and making loud noise on Infirmary Way.
April 13
There was loud music from the playing fields near Totman Building.
April 14
There was a large party on the 22nd floor of John Adams Residence Hall.
Staff requested assistance with unruly individuals in John Q. Adams Residence Hall.
Individuals on John Adams Road were yelling obscenities from the area of Parking Lot 50.

Suspicious person/activity
April 12
Individuals in Greenough Residence Hall were throwing rocks at passing vehicles.
Individuals were throwing bottles and/or cans from the upper floors of Coolidge Residence Hall.
April 14
There was a report that a window was smashed in Pierpont Residence Hall.

Vandalism
April 12
There was a report that an individual in John Adams Residence Hall wrote on the walls. Staff will handle the incident through housing's judicial system.
There was damage to a vehicle on Parking Lot 50.
A vehicle in Parking Lot 11 was damaged.
A windshield was smashed on a vehicle in Parking Lot 11.
Graffiti was written on an elevator panel in Washington Residence Hall.
April 13
A PVTA bus shelter was knocked over on North Pleasant Street.
There was a report of windows being smashed in Patterson and Coolidge Residence Halls.
The 13th floor of Kennedy Residence Hall was "trashed." Housing was notified.
April 14
Four vehicles in Parking Lot 22 were damaged.

The UMASS Daily Collegian



A wealth of information at your finger tips everyday.

■ terrorism

continued from page 1

state."

President Clinton had asked Congress to give law enforcement agencies even broader power to combat terrorism after the April 19, 1995, Oklahoma bombing killed 168 people. Clinton, nonetheless, will likely sign the bill once it is passed by the House, one administration official said Wednesday, speaking on condition of anonymity.

White House spokeswoman Kathy McKiernan was more circumspect, saying, "The conference report is a definite improvement over the House bill, which had gutted some of the important provisions the president called for. We will review the bill when it arrives at the White House."

The bill restores some administration-backed law enforcement powers eliminated by House members, such as barring fund raising by foreign terrorist groups, but it omits others. And the Senate rejected every attempt by Democrats to restore more of them Wednesday.

"The world is turning around," said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

UPC presents

WITH OPENER · S.M.A.

APRIL 25

8:00 in the Student Union Ballroom

$8 for students and non-students!
tickets are sold at Tix Unlimited,
Northampton Box Office. For the Record. and Strawberries.
For more info call us at the UPC office
545-2892!

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
Discount Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

Featuring, "Bud Dry" bots. $9.99 cse.

S.S.P. VODKA $8.99 1.75 liter

Rolling Rock $12.99 cse bots

"The 6/PK. Bonanza "Continues

Killian's- Irish Red, Brown, & the New "Wilde Honey"!
Brewrey Hill- Raspberry, Honey Amber & Hearty Black & Tan!
Brooklyn- The Hearty Lager and the "infamous" Brown Ale!
Saranac- Amber, Chocolate, P. ale, & Black & Tan!
Pete's Wicked- Wheat, Lager, Ale, Red, & Summer Brew!

Mix/Match "two" 6/Pks . . . $9.95

Ritter "First" Pilsner (German) $3.99/6pk

Seagrams Gin $12.49 1.75 liter

Cider Jack $4.99 6/pack

All Beers Plus Deposit OPEN 9:00AM - 11:00PM VISA/MASTERCARD •Delivery Available•

Campus Center Hotel

Summer Help Wanted

The Campus Center hotel is currently accepting applications for Summer help. Applicants should be available to work from Mid-May through Labor Day Weekend. Employment at the Hotel provides work experience in the Hotel Industry as well as an opportunity to earn cash.

Positions Available Include:
- Hotel Front Desk Clerks
- Hotel Night Auditors
- Laundry Attendants
- Area Supervisors
- Housekeepers

Applicants and Information available at the Campus Center Hotel Desk, 3rd Floor, Campus Center. Application Deadline April 26th.

Salary Range: $4.75-$6.00 per hour

Part-Time Openings Available

All shifts needed including weekdays and weekends

Dinner hopes to unite gay minorities

By Lisa M. Oliveri
Collegian Staff

The Stonewall Center will host a dinner tonight for students of color who identify as Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual or Transgender. It is the first event by Pride and Heritage of Color, a new GLBT group starting on campus.

The dinner is open to undergraduates, graduate students, faculty and staff who classify themselves as a descendent of African, Asian/Pacific Islander, Latino/Latina, Native American/Alaskan or Cape Verdean heritage.

The brainchild of Sean Lawrence, the group was founded earlier this semester to provide a support group for GLBT students of color.

"As I became more out in the community I wanted to see a group on campus for GLBT students of color because of a lot of different issues we go through," Lawrence said.

Lawrence said that he does not think minority students are very well-represented within the gay community, and some feel excluded from other mostly-white groups.

"We wanted to create a community among GLBT people of color," Lawrence said.

Lawrence said that although this group is different from the other GLBT organizations on campus, it has received full support from both the Lesbian, Gay Bisexual Alliance and the Stonewall Center.

Another founding member, Rosie Castañeda, agrees with Lawrence.

"In the GLBT groups on campus, people of color have not felt represented or part of the community, in music or leadership," she said. "It has become important for our voices to be heard."

Castañeda said the whole idea of forming this group came about when the Chancellor's Task Force for GLBT concerns put forth the issue of dealing with racism within the queer community.

"We are really looking to support mulitculturalism within the GLBT community," Castañeda said.

In addition to the dinner, members would like to see regular meetings established and to become a funded Registered Student Organization next year.

According to Lawrence, having either weekly or biweekly meetings will enable students to discuss problems on a more day to day basis.

Both Pride and Heritage of Color and the dinner have the full support of the Stonewall Center, the LBGA and the Chancellor's Task Force for GLBT concerns.

According to Lawrence, a main focus of tonight's dinner will be to meet new people and exchange ideas about problems facing the GLBT community.

"We need to talk about what issues are prevalent in the GLBT community," Lawrence said.

The dinner, which is being held at the Stonewall Center, is free and will start at 7 p.m. For more information contact the Stonewall Center at 545-4824.

Countdown to the '96 Presidential Primaries

ELECTION '96

WASHINGTON (AP) — And then there were two.

Breaking clear in a contest once crowded and tangled, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole has secured the Republican presidential nomination and won the right to engage President Clinton in the fall.

Neither man at this point has a comprehensive platform. But what they do have, after Clinton's three years in the White House and Dole's 27 years in the Senate, are records. And since January they've answered questions on a variety of subjects put to them by The Associated Press.

Bill Clinton

"The current policy of 'truth in sentencing' is a good policy because it is wrong for violent criminals to get out on parole before they complete their prison sentence. The sentence given to a rapist or murderer should be the sentence they serve. Serious criminals should know that they will be held responsible for the crimes they commit."

Bob Dole

"Yes."

Do you favor "truth in sentencing" for violent criminals so they serve full sentences with no chance of parole?

■ Golds

continued from page 1

According to him, the area of science, and the scientific method, is responsible for the civilization's development.

"It is these science-based technologies that bring the notion that every one can eat within the realm of material possibility," he said. "It is science based tech that brings what we call medicine which lets all have a measure of defense against disease."

Concepts of freedom and liberty of the individual have played an central role in Western cultures, Goldsby said. He cited cases of friction between such cultures as communism versus capitalism, and Catholicism versus Protestantism. However he added that despite the costs of friction, it provides a rich dividend for the innovation essential to the development of Western culture.

Goldsby concluded by saying, "What freedom assures society, is a vast diversity of ideas, and possibly for innovative change and evolution... Science guides the design of technologies to satisfy needs. The large world beyond the west has appreciated the technology of the west."

EMILY BELT / COLLEGIAN

Read a good book lately?

Former UMass student Bob Tynan, of Springfield, browses for the ideal tome at the book sale in the Campus Center Concourse Wednesday afternoon.

Speaker tackles Holocaust mythology

By Matthew Wurtzel
Collegian Staff

Mark Weitzman, associate director of The Simon Wiesenthal Center's task force against hate, spoke Monday night about the myths surrounding the Holocaust.

The Simon Wiesenthal Center is an international human rights organization that focuses on teaching about the Holocaust and fostering tolerance through education and community involvement.

"If we look at the countries involved in the Holocaust, we see the mythology these countries have of themselves," he said.

Some of the myths were related to the Cold War, but most were designed to hide the truth, Weitzman said. Most Germans knew the Nazis were slaughtering the Jews, according to Weitzman, who cited the example of how it was common for soldiers to write to family about killing Jews.

Weitzman said France surrounded itself in a myth as well. French schools teach that every Frenchman assisted the resistance movement, but actually numerous people were willing to assist the Nazis and welcomed them, he said.

He said even Americans surrounded themselves in the myth that the war was fought for the freedom of the Jews and the Germans from Nazi repression.

The myths began to crumple in 1985 when historians finally held a conference in Berlin to discuss the Holocaust, Weitzman said. The German myth completely fell in 1988 when the German president admitted the Germans were completely responsible for the Holocaust.

Some German historians continue to support the myth by ignoring the Holocaust while studying World War II. Others go a step further by saying the Holocaust was a hoax, Weitzman said.

"If you can create doubt about Auschwitz, then we still have a long way to go," he said.

Other German historians are confronting the Holocaust by compiling Nazi records of prisoners on a database, Weitzman said. The historians are hoping to look at the camps through the eyes of the victims by following the lives of prisoners.

"Our century is one of genocide," he said.

The century began with the Turks attempting to exterminate the Armenians, Weitzman said. He said the lack of response on the part of the world powers in Armenia led Hitler to believe no one would care about the Jews.

"We have to be interested in Nazism because it has an impact upon our world and our future," he said.

Weitzman said the Holocaust changed the world's view toward genocide. The United Nations recently established war crimes trials in the former Yugoslavia and Rwanda, both countries where ethnic cleansing occurred. It also led the United States and other world powers to send troops into countries like Bosnia and Somalia.

"The Holocaust doesn't only have significance to Jews," Weitzman said.

The Holocaust not only changed the international community, it profoundly effected the United States as well, according to Weitzman. Before World War II, the Ku Klux Klan could march down Pennsylvania Avenue over a 1,000 strong with no opposition, but today people would openly protest such an event, he said.

Weitzman concluded his lecture by saying we can never forget the Holocaust, stating the Bible commands people to remember.

The
Edwin M. Rossman
Alumni Career Forum

PSYCHOLOGY

DATE: THURSDAY, APRIL 18, 1996
TIME: 4:00 PM
LOCATION: CAMPUS CENTER 904

SPONSORED BY:
UNIVERSITY CAREER CENTER
UNIVERSITY ALUMNI ASSOCIATION
DEPARTMENT OF PSYCHOLOGY

This is an opportunity to meet with alumni and discuss their experiences in the working world. Don't miss this important panel discussion!

ALUMNI PANELISTS:

Matthew Jorgensen, '89	Ph.D. from Univ. of California at Riverside Postdoctoral Research Fellow New England Regional Primate Research Center Harvard Medical School Southboro, MA
Kelly Michaelian, '93	Business Development Director RBL Agency Ltd. New York, NY
Terese Ng, '91	Quality Improvement Coordinator May Institute Norwood, MA
Kathleen Zumbruski, '91	MSW from Boston College Psychiatric Social Worker Brattleboro Retreat Brattleboro, VT

For more information, please contact:
University Career Center
545-2224

Collegian
All Staff Meeting
THURSDAY
APRIL 18
AT 6:30PM

Massachusetts International Festival of the Arts

Try Opera!

"The Coronation of Poppea"

by Claudio Monteverdi

Two Performances Only!

Wed., May 1 & Fri., May 3
Fine Arts Center,
UMass, Amherst, 7pm.

Wed., May 1 special "get-to-know-opera" price $15
Students $5
Senior Citizens $13.50

Fri., May 3 tickets $23.50 / $45

Country Bank For Savings

We'd love to show you around MASSACHUSETTS

Purchase your tickets today! Call 413-545-2511

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1582

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Marni E. Heffner Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gurley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Lisa Chiu Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor Anna Lotto Co-Women's Issues Editor
Gregory Casimir Co-Black Affairs Editor Sean Cahoon Staff Artist
Humphrey brown III Co-Black Affairs Editor Hannah Thorne Co-Women's Issues Editor
Sunanda Ghosh Co-Developing Nations Editor Tony Morse Editorial Production Manager
Ibrahim Ali Co-Developing Nations Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Bob Dunn Editorial/Opinion Editor Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Lisa M. Olivetti Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor Lee Weiner Distribution Manager
Anna Feder Jewish Affairs Editor Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Lisa Chiu Multicultural Affairs Editor Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Amy Paradysz News Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Emily Reily Photography Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Candice Flemming Sports Editor Casey Kane Librarian

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

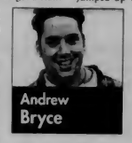
I'm a people person...

I need help. No, with my cover letter, you jerk. You know, that letter that gets tacked on the front of your resume where you throw the B.S. around about yourself and how qualified you are for the position. I'm told you want to grab their attention, to show 'em whatcha' got.

OK. I... uh ... well ... um ... I do a lot of good stuff. I'm good, I'm real good. I'm nice. Yeah, nice. And I'm a hard worker ... well, sometimes I'm a hard worker. Christ, this is harder than I thought.



Andrew Bryce

Let me take a different approach.

Well, I don't know how to file my taxes on my own. I skip classes here and there. I misplace my car keys daily. I drink on Tuesdays. I'm behind on my credit card bills. I bounce checks. I don't know how to fix my car when it's broken down.

I suck at math. I don't know any other languages besides English. I have a rip in the crotch of my jeans. I don't carry my wallet. I lose my ring more than once a day, since it doesn't fit right on any one of my fingers. I didn't know where Bosnia was until Monday. I have ring-around-the- collar on the white button-down shirt I wear with my suit.

I'll do anything for a laugh. I say, "Call it a night, Fred," every other sentence to make people laugh, though they usually don't. I'm an impatient driver, where my horn is my best friend. My SAT scores were half of yours.

I haven't seen the actual floor of my room since October. I spend money aimlessly quite well, thank you. I stalled in front of Antonio's on a Friday night, which you don't do unless you want a bunch of intoxicated and attractive girls to bust out laughing.

Which they did.

Move the decimal point over one space, and you can buy yourself five pieces of Bazooka bubble gum at the Student Union Mini-Store. I procrastinate ... basically ... to procrastinate procrastination. I have about seven chest hairs, if hair growth on my heavily masculine chest means anything at all. I have vertical eye syndrome, which in other words means if you see my cocked off my ass, that'll explain my cock eyes.

I failed Oceanography 103. I took Oceanography 103 for a second time, and pulled off a C/D. I pumped my fist, jumped up in the air, and praised the lord when the Oceanography professor told me I got the C/D. I was personally inspired by the film, "Ace Ventura — Pet Detective."

I have dirt under my fingernails. I have bad spotty facial hair. Montell Jordan's "This is How We Do It" is on one of my mixes — and I like it. I bust on everybody and everything and ... well ... look at me.

I frequently purchase $2 worth of gas for my car. I sometimes pay bartenders and convenience store clerks sometimes with a handful of change. I swear too much. I sing poorly. I drool to make someone smile ... or sick, whichever comes first. I am madly in love with Gold Bond. My feet reek like hot garbage. I say my feet smell like hot garbage to gross you out, and hope that you think that's funny.

All of my extended trips to the john must involve some source of reading material, even if it is a 500-page Muhammad Ali biography. I was the first person in the Commonwealth to purchase the new Lionel Richie CD, doing so in the first hour of the first day that the store was selling it. The only reason I wasn't there at the opening was because I was attempting to organize a field trip for all of those who wanted to go get the new Lionel CD.

I went alone.

I used to steal those little pieces of candy out of the big bins at the supermarket. I take the words of Sir Mix-Alot's "Baby Got Back" to heart. I've been to the library once this semester.

Therefore, I hope they will consider me for the job.

Andrew Bryce is a Collegian columnist.

To whom it may concern,

When I first saw you walk into the Cape Cod Lounge at about 12:20 p.m. this past Tuesday, I was enthused because I thought you were there to show your solidarity and support by attending the service in observance of Holocaust Memorial Day.

I was also pleased when I saw you sit down on one of the couches in the front row while one of the "lucky" Holocaust survivors, a psychology professor at this university, was telling of his primary experience in having survived and dealt with Nazi Germany's genocidal regime.

However, I then noticed that you obviously had no idea what was happening in that lounge because your actions while seated were so disrespectful, it became vividly clear that you were completely oblivious to what was happening right in front of you.

To me you represented the very apathy and carelessness of the inactive bystanders during the time period when the event being memorialized occurred.

Henry Brier

I was sitting directly behind you in the second row, which I do not think you noticed either. Therefore, I had no control over observing one of the most disappointing incidents I have ever seen in my life.

Shortly after you took a seat next to your friend on the couch, while the survivor's description of Germany's vile hatreds in Hungary was amplified through the booming speakers next to that couch, you began chatting, smiling and giggling.

In the context of what was being discussed and what was occurring right in front of you, I find such conduct so very difficult to understand and accept.

As if the true story being told did not evoke any sort of awareness, situated on the table no more than a yard in front of you were six burning candles.

The memorial candles were lit to represent the six million innocent people who were ruthlessly exterminated as part of a destructive plan commonly known as the "Final Solution."

Evidently, even with all of this happening right in front of you, the conversation with your friend held more interest and a higher priority.

You evidently never noticed that you and the speaker were the only ones talking at that time, and you did not accede to the loudspeaker.

Also, you probably did not notice that, in preparation for the memorial service, the other couches in the lounge were all arranged differently than they normally are.

They were formatted in rows to accommodate people who wanted to attend the service to show solidarity.

Adding insult to injury, after you were sitting silently (perhaps because you and your friend had exhausted the pressing issues you were discussing), you reached into your bookbag and pulled out a copy of the Collegian, while sitting right in the front.

You then proceeded to open wide and flip through the newspaper, and for a while you were perusing the classifieds, while sitting right in the front.

This is not an attempt to proselytize, but it is an effort to question why such events had to happen.

How could you not have noticed what was happening right in front of you?

Why was the ongoing service so irreverently ignored?

It was blatantly obvious that profound emotion was pervading the room, yet disrespect still continued to emanate from you.

In effect, not only did you disgrace the memory of the victims of this world's most concerted and systematic effort to eliminate a civilization of people, but you also, on your own, shattered your image, which was only a mirage.

To me you represented the very apathy and carelessness of the inactive bystanders during the time period when the event being memorialized occurred.

During that time, the world merely watched while neglecting to act or intervene.

At the time of the memorial service, you were surrounded by people who were also lucky to have survived this attempt to destroy people with the same ideas, culture and background.

I would have confronted you on the spot, but I was more interested in listening to the lecture. And your following actions made it impossible for me to approach you.

It came as no surprise to me when you put down the uninteresting newspaper, said goodbye to your friend, stood up and walked from the couch in the front row towards the door in the back.

This, while the survivor was still speaking.

So as you read this, I hope you think about your past actions, and I hope you make an effort to gain an increased awareness of what is happening around you.

Henry Brier is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

WELL, WELL, LOOK WHO'S UP! IS IT NOON AL READY?
I'M MAKING A PERSONAL APPEARANCE TODAY. HOPE YOU DON'T MIND LOOKING AFTER YOUR OWN CHILD.
PERSONAL APPEARANCE? WHAT'S ARE YOU TALKING ABOUT?
THE ANAHEIM SO LAR COLLECTORS EXPO. IT'S A COMIC MEMORABILIA EVENT.
GREAT. YOU BLOW OFF MY DAUGHTER FOR SOME JOKE EVENT...
JOKE? B.D., DO YOU KNOW THE BOOK VALUE OF A SIGNED, MINT 1974 GEORGE HAMILTON COLOR TV SWATCH CARD?
ZONKER, YOUR LUNCH'S HERE.
LUNCH?
$175,000! IF YOU CAN FIND ONE!

Opinion/Editorial

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian.

THEY SAY THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT HAS NO LEGITIMATE AUTHORITY OVER ANYTHING.
I DON'T THINK WE CAN GET THEM OUT BEFORE NOVEMBER AT THE EARLIEST.
The Freshmen
THEY'LL NEGOTIATE WITH YOU ONLY IF YOU ADMIT YOU HAVE NO AUTHORITY TO NEGOTIATE WITH THEM
TOLES

Examining murder

In last Friday's April 12 issue of The Boston Globe, I read a chilling Associated Press release. The headline read, "Johns Hopkins student charged in murder of former friend." It was the story of two friends, Rex and Robert. They were exceptional students. Rex broke off the friendship last year. For the past year, Robert has been harassing Rex through phone calls and e-mail. I guess suddenly Robert's bubble finally burst last Wednesday and he shot Rex, his former friend. Robert shot him in the head and then in the chest. It was first-degree murder according to police.

David Chan

It hit me hard that murderers are around me. I don't know Rex and Robert, and I don't think I personally know any murderers. It does intrigue me though to think that anyone around me could be a future murderer. In fact, two guys from my high school graduating class are in jail now for murder. I think one was playing Russian Roulette with a friend, and the other was part of a gang doing a hit.

The real essence of murder that captivates me are the repeat killers. The serial killers. There have been killers that kill, rape, skin and even eat their victims. Many victims. These serial killers perform signature crimes for the glorification. Murders similar to the ones in movies like Silence of the Lambs have been real.

Serial killing is premeditated. There are several interesting theories to a killer's mindset. First, does a killer know that the act was morally wrong and disgusting? If the killer denies doing it, then he or she knows that the act is wrong. Killers may say that they themselves didn't actually do the crime, but rather some other impulse inside them did it. Maybe it was the fulfillment of their needs for domination and power. Maybe they were what normal people call "uncivilized." So in order to do the act without feeling remorse, killers have to find a sort of substitute. It makes cold-blooded killing easier. Could it be like a soldier who is trained to kill? To be an effective soldier, you wouldn't convince yourself that killing is morally acceptable. You may allow something else inside of you to do the killing.

Another mindset is that killers may not even care what judgement is placed on them. Maybe they want to be punished with something, say, a death penalty? But is death really a fear of serial killers? Are they afraid that their lives are being taken away and that they can't live fulfilling lives? Perhaps a punishment that they want is deeper than just several seconds on the electric chair or a painless injection.

Getting back to the "uncivilized" issue mentioned earlier, there is an interesting view. Is there any difference between killers who are uncivilized or civilized? Killers can look or act as normal as anyone else. Why couldn't they, right? So the only thing that sets killers apart is that they act on their inner impulses to kill. Killing has always been part of life. Animals kill other animals but it is not wrong. Humans kill animals to eat, and that is not wrong either. The civilized oppress their feelings to kill humans. If killing humans were not "morally wrong" or punishable, would you kill? An enemy maybe? Just to make life easier?

On the flipside of killers, how about judgment of killers? One aspect of the American legal system is that there is nothing in it that deals with serial killing. An interesting question to pose would be is the killing of 14 people more morally wrong than the killing of one? In our legal system, it kind of seems that way. If I killed 14 people instead of one, I'd be more likely to get the death penalty. How should serial killing be quantified? It is obviously a quantitative problem. Is the killing of the second victim twice as bad as the killing of the first one? Or do we just add up the number of killings? Once high numbers are reached, victims are not individualized anymore.

The subject of murders and serial killers is fascinating and perplexing. It is something that could interest us all. After sitting in on a lecture at Amherst College on murder, I have found this subject to be intriguing. I think it brought out something inside of me.

David Chan is a Collegian columnist.

There's definitely a bug going around

I've been reading the polling results to see what I'm supposed to care about in the upcoming election. One thing seems to have been carefully omitted from that list of concerns. As a college-educated female I can be anxious about a lot more than those polls indicate.

Getting a job is starting to get a lot more vital for my well-being, I guess. I'll tell you what this female voter is concerned about for the upcoming elections. Though I am concerned with many social questions, as the polling statistics dictate to me, I'm really troubled over whether or not this country will take care of me if I'm sick. I'm not about to start singing "Au Canada," but my patriotism is waning a bit.

Tara Ruelle

It's hard for me to comprehend what taxes will be impacted in the next four years or how much college tuition will go up. I just don't want my presidential hopeful to fold like a deck of cards over an issue that affects all of us. Please Bill, reconsider that health care business — I need some piece of mind. Just ask Hillary.

I guess I have to start caring about those things that didn't seem to impact my life the last time a presidential election flooded my airwaves. I got a nice wake-up call yesterday.

My friend's sick, and would love to go to the doctor for a check-up, but doesn't have health insurance. He could go to a doctor, but thousands of dollars for a visit isn't really in the cards. Unless I land a job with full benefits in the next two months I better not get sick either. Suddenly I feel an anxiety attack coming on.

I suppose I should have gotten sick a lot more over these four years to utilize that precious health insurance for what it's worth. As horrible as it was to sit in the dreaded Health Services waiting room, I never thought about shelling out money to be there. I just never realized I should get sick when I could afford it. I can't even begin to worry about dental coverage — I suppose I'll get dentures and call it a day.

Speaking to gainfully employed acquaintances lately, I've realized it's not the salary that's important anymore — it's the assurance of a full benefits package. The woman I worked for this summer, while having an incredible job, had to get "catastrophe insurance" because her place of employment wouldn't pay for health insurance. I can see there's a lot to look forward to. Great!

Thus far I have been surprisingly calm during my job search. Now I feel my name peeling off the rent's health membership card and the resumes are flying out of my computer. I picked up the want ads today and considered "sandwich artiste" a viable option. The thought of getting a job in my field of interest is no longer primary, but merely a hope.

Most of the jobs I do want don't include the benefits package I need. The places I could be qualified for that do offer benefits in their alluring classifieds also offer name tags and sneeze guards. My options are limitless.

I'll continue to send out my resumes with fury. I'll also pay close attention to this presidential election, hoping to hear some good news.

For now I'll stock up on bandages and aspirin — you never know when you could have that stroke. Customer service representative is looking more and more appealing.

Tara Ruelle is a Collegian columnist.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR AND COLUMNS

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please TYPE your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several concise letters in the limited space available on the page.

All letters should include a name, address and phone number (for verification purposes only). Students should also include their year and major. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length.

Send all letters to the Ed/Op page c/o the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass.

The Ed/Op page is also always looking for columnists. If you are interested in writing columns for the Collegian, come down to the office, or call at 545-1491, and ask to speak to Bob Dunn.

Film • Music • Theatre • Lifestyles • Books • Art
The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
ARTS & LIVING
Thursday, April 18, 1996
Weekend Edition • Volume CV Issue 116

IT'S A LOUD LOUD WORLD

The cheap music alternatives

Stuck at home with not enough cash to attend the Loud Music Festival? Join the club. There is a free alternative to the Loud Fest that offers you the chance to hear lots of bands, from Helium to John Zorn, all for free. Where is this event? On the Internet of course.

Before you jump into specific band pages, check out the Baitfish Productions web page at http://www.baitfish.com/. This poorly designed web page supplies the reader with lots of information on the Loud Music Festival from a list of the bands performing to ticket and transportation information. There is even a neat map of the surrounding area for all the out-of-town folks.

Overall this page lacks originality and links to similar pages. The folks at Baitfish could have easily set up links to the band's home pages. Also, their history of the festival barely talks about the past three years and their listing of bands from the 1995 festival is incomplete.

For the real on-line fun relating to the Loud Music Festival keep searching the web for home pages for acts like John Zorn. Although there are several web sites focussing on Zorn's music, one stands out. Check out http://www.mars-superlink.net/marko/jz.html for all the information you will ever need on this noise legend. Be careful though — this graphic site may make you cringe in your seat. His complete discography reads like a large book, plus art work from many albums are included, in addition to photos of Zorn himself. There are also interviews, record reviews and sound clips for your listen

Turn to ONLINE, page 6

Sizing up the competition

Perhaps Metallica, the Ramones and the rest of those "big bands" who don't know a polka from a waltz won't be passing through town this summer, but this weekend over 200 bands will be making enough noise to disturb the locals at the fourth annual Loud Music Festival. While it may not be Lollapalooza, the Loud Fest offers fans four jam packed nights of music at nine local venues, all for about the same price as one ticket to Lollalolla-land. Not bad, but still pricey.

Often compared to the larger music festivals such as CMJ and South By Southwest, the Loud Music Festival has purposely not become a national show case. Nearly all of the bands performing are from the immediate area with a few notable exceptions. The Japanese band Sugarplant are making their second Loud Fest appearance, but even they are on the Boston label Pop Narcotic. In many ways the regional aspect of the festival serves as the event's saving grace. While many local concert goers have seen bands such as Helium, Scud Mountain Boys and Doc Hopper more times than they can remember, it is a rare occasion to witness the diverse line-up that the festival offers.

Thursday's true highlight: the Knitting Factory Showcase presents four avant garde acts at Pearl Street including a collaboration between John Zorn and Michael Patton of Faith No More (See page 10 for in-depth Knitting Factory preview). Other Thursday events worth checking out include several ace New England bands. New Radiant Storm King, one of Northampton's finest bands, performs at the Iron Horse at 11:10 p.m. They will be followed by Scarce, the Providence trio whose show was one of the high points of last year's festival.

The Grotto offers up one of Boston's quickest rising stars, the Push Kings, who will showcase their catchy Beatle-esque melodies. Their sophomore single, "Macey, Macey," is easily one of the best local singles on the past six months and clearly shows the band's less Pavement side.

The term "loud" may be an understatement at Club Metro back room as hard core/metal bands such as Aftershock and Deadguy get the headbanging. Ten hours of ear ringing music may be dangerous so pack a pair (or two) of earplugs.

Local bands will make a strong showing tonight as well. Among the highlights include Sons of the Corporate Dog, Cordelia's Dad, Star Ghost Dog, Pirate Jenny and The Mitchells.

The Loud Music Festival continues on Friday with even more top notch acts from the world of punk pop and rock. Pearl Street looks to be the place to be in the early evening as Doc Hopper (7:15 p.m.) and the Queers (8 p.m.) battle it out in an stellar double bill.

Indie rock will be in full force at the Grotto as Kittywinder, Turkish Delight, Syrup USA and Babe the Blue Ox take the stage. Last year Syrup USA was a highlight of the festival making their first local performance at The North Star (now The Grotto). Unfortunately since then the band has been merely treading water.

Fans of more traditional rock should head over to Pearl Street as Gravel Pit, The Ray Mason Band and The Gigolo Aunts perform good ol' rock music harking back to the days before alternative or modern rock. The Ray Mason Band is the real thing, while the other two acts are mere posers with the word cheese written all over them. For the past thirty years

Turn to LOUD, page 11

Northampton had never been a cultural mecca on par with New York or Boston, but that slowly changed three years ago when Loud Music Festival organizers put together a two night showcase with 30 bands. The local press largely ignored the event (The Daily Hampshire Gazette referred to the multi-band festival only in its weekly calendar section), but area concert goers didn't. Since then the event has blossomed into one of the largest music festivals in the nation.

This year over 200 bands will turn up their amps over four days, but unlike other national music showcases, the Loud Music Festival has never forgotten its roots set in local music.

March 26, 1993 marked the opening night of the first Loud Music Festival. The organizers purposely booked area- based bands to show the nation the strength of the scene in Massachusetts bringing bands such as the Swirlies, Morphine, Green Magnet School and The Dambuilders.

The two day event, featuring 36 bands, was held at the Iron Horse, Pearl Street and Hotel Northampton. As an alternative to the Loud Music Festival, New Radiant Storm King and Eve was Right performed for $1 at the Baystate Hotel.

Although the first Loud Music Festival was a great success, (over 1,000 people attended) the 1994 event easily surpassed the original in both quantity and quality. Between April 1-2, 69 bands hailing from as far away as Finland (Laika & the Cosmonauts) came to participate in Northampton's Loud Music Festival.

Unlike the first year, national acts came in abundance as Codeine, Truman's Water, Prong, Small 23, Royal Trux and Flat Duo Jets all performed. Of course the line-up was filled with local bands from the Valley and Boston including Come, Sam Black Church, Stompbox, Papas Fritas, Zeke Fiddler and Scud Mountain Boys. Half the line-up was comprised of bands from western Massachusetts.

Interestingly Papas Fritas, who headline the Iron Horse Saturday night, performed at the Baystate in 1994 in front of just a handful of fans. The same was true for the Scud Mountain Boys, who took part in the Infamous "hangover brunch" at the Iron Horse on Saturday morning.

Over 2,000 people attended the 1994 festival that was held at the Baystate, Iron Horse, Pearl Street, Vertex and Northampton Brewery.

The festival continued to grow by leaps and bounds in 1995 as more than 100 bands played over a three night stand. The line-up featured mostly up-and-coming national acts such as Blonde Redhead, Shudder to Think, Scrawl and Everclear, and established area artists like Dambuilders, Helium, Versus and Small Factory.

Local bands were still in abundance, but often were stuck with weak time slots while all the national acts received prime attention.

The 1995 Loud Music Festival was jam packed with so much talent that many music fans had to debate who to see and who to miss. The closing night at the Iron Horse featuring Karate, Spent, Roger Miller, Versus and Small Factory was a brilliant end to an excellent weekend of music. Versus fans are still talking about their near chair- throwing show that climaxed the festival.

Turn to HISTORY, Page 11

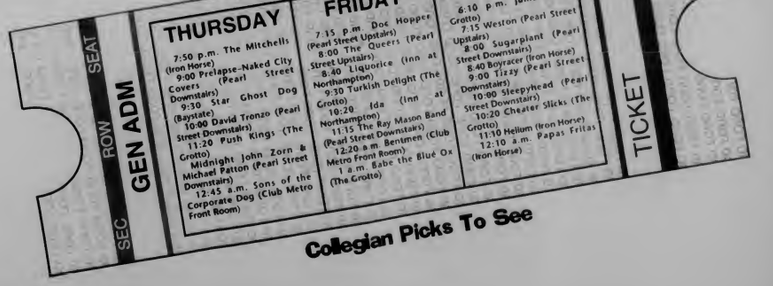
This year at the fourth annual Loud Music Festival much has changed from previous years, from booking agents to ticket prices (which are unaffordable for most college students). Boston-based Baitfish Productions has taken over and put together a four



SEC
ROW
GEN ADM
THURSDAY
7:50 p.m. The Mitchells (Iron Horse)
9:00 Prelapse-Naked City Covers (Pearl Street Downstairs)
9:30 Star Ghost Dog (Baystate)
10:00 David Tronzo (Pearl Street Downstairs)
11:20 Push Kings (The Grotto)
Midnight John Zorn & Michael Patton (Pearl Street Downstairs)
12:45 a.m. Sons of the Corporate Dog (Club Metro Front Room)
FRIDAY
7:15 p.m. Doc Hopper (Pearl Street Upstairs)
8:00 The Queers (Pearl Street Upstairs)
8:40 Liquorice (Inn at Northampton)
9:30 Turkish Delight (The Grotto)
10:20 Ida (Inn at Northampton)
11:15 The Ray Mason Band (Pearl Street Downstairs)
12:20 a.m. Bentmen (Club Metro Front Room)
1 a.m. Babe the Blue Ox (The Grotto)
SATURDAY
6:10 p.m. Jumbo (The Grotto)
7:15 Weston (Pearl Street Upstairs)
8:00 Sugarplant (Pearl Street Downstairs)
8:40 Boyracer (Iron Horse)
9:00 Tizzy (Pearl Street Downstairs)
10:00 Sleepyhead (Pearl Street Downstairs)
10:20 Cheater Slicks (The Grotto)
11:10 Hellum (Iron Horse)
12:10 a.m. Papas Fritas (Iron Horse)
998
TICKET
Collegian Picks To See

SHORT CUTS

Edited by Tara MK Connelly

Quotes of Note

"We've got an awful lot of members that don't understand that harass is one word, not two."
— Rep. Pat Schroeder

"I wanted to act and direct and I wasn't very popular in high school. I had bad skin growing up, I was a little overweight."
— Ben Stiller

"We did our own kissing. It was one quick, very pleasant kiss — but it was us. No stunt kissing."
— Nathan Lane, star of The Birdcage

People and Pop Culture in the News

Since leaving the Blackhearts, Joan Jett has decided to do more interesting things — like releasing a cover of the theme song to "The Mary Tyler Moore Show." Wow.

Willie "I'm bankrupt" Nelson described as a "notorious pot-obsessed Texan" in Entertainment Weekly magazine, has just been signed to Island records... Please tell us how nice reefer feels about the man.

Guess who just joined the ranks of the happily bankrupt? MC Hammer. The rap artists was once No. 10 on Forbes magazine's list of top entertainers. He owns a 20-room mansion — oh and now he claims that he's $ 13 million in debt. Maybe he should have stuffed the 2 Live Crew a film about the actress Halle Berry also wanted to portray the glamorous star, but was beaten out by Houston.

Did you know that linguists have devoted a large amount of time bitching about Alanis Morissette's song "Ironic" because apparently she uses the word out of context? According to them, "a black fly in your chardonay" is really a "bummer" and not "ironic." If only we could all have so much free time.

Susan Lucci just received her 16th Daytime Emmy Award nomination. One has to wonder if they'll finally give it to her or keep the suspense alive for one more year.

John Travolta has a comp. album out. K-Tel records will issue a album featuring his 1976 "hit" "Let Her In" and his 1977 follow up, "Can't Let Her Go." Maybe they should call it, Can't Make Up His Mind.

Here are some fun facts about Courtney Love that we can pick under the category: "Things We Don't Care About" for a $1,000, please. She went into therapy at age 2. She has indulged in 14 different illegal and legal drugs. She has physically assaulted someone 17 times. She has been in or started four fistfights. And she performed in eight different towns as an exotic dancer. Bet you feel more enriched already.

Material for this column has been compiled from various news and wire services by Tara MK Connelly.

Editors' Cuts

Books L is for Lawless

She • back. Sue Grafton is out with the fourteen Kinsey Millhone thriller, "L is for Lawless." Grafton is known for more action-packed, hard-boiled mysteries. In this latest novel, Kinsey — a private investigator — is hired by the wife of a wealthy businessman who is suspected of embezzling money. What starts out as a simple case for Kinsey develops into a web of deceit and murder. Grafton's ability to create a realistic picture of Kinsey's surroundings is to be commended. Her descriptions of the characters are always animated and inspire the reader to actively root for them.

— Joanna Georgallis

Lifestyles Clocks

According to recent studies, Americans get less sleep than ever before. In fact, a large number of people — myself included — are chronically sleep deprived. Most of us need eight hours of sleep a night — but most students need as much as ten hours of sleep. Unfortunately, we're usually getting four or five hours a night. A few things may help: relaxing activities, proper nutrition and improved general health. Of course, there's always the possibility of finding a longer-than-usual assignment due.

If you can't stay up with a full night's sleep, the university has introduced two alternatives. One is called the "Power Napper" and is designed for home and office use. The other one, Nightmare, is made especially for students who can be woken up without much effort. If you're a student in need of a nap, the Nightmare is the dangerous, energy-sapping and time-consuming one.

— Neema Gangadhar

Comedy Selected Hilarity

Looking for out-of-the-ordinary entertainment? Look no further than the Bluewall this Friday night. Something Events Friday presents Selected Hilarity, an outrageously funny show that has caught on at clubs, colleges and corporate events along the East coast.

The improvisational routines, musical numbers and video creation give comedy lovers a reason to laugh. The group consists of Larry Weaver, Brian Tucker, Dan Drake, Scott Brown and Andy Bagwell. This free show begins at 8 p.m., and its schedule — Dartmouth is always amusing.

Immediately following the performance, Something Events Friday will present the movie Heat, an action-drama starring Al Pacino, Robert DeNiro and Val Kilmer.

Something Events Friday is a special series of events coordinated by the Campus Activities Office. The series will continue until the first week in May, so catch one of these performances before it's too late.

— Neema Gangadhar

"EVERY DAY, A NEW COLLECTION TO READ. LIFE JUST CAN'T GET BETTER THAN THIS DAVE."
"IT SURE CAN'T MARC. IT'S EXCITEMENT IN ITS PUREST FORM."

■ Online

In this newspaper, it's a serene scene of a gazelle grazing in the brush.

In your room, it's a serene scene of a gazelle grazing in the brush suddenly caught off-guard by a 500-pound lion that chases the fleeting gazelle down and rips out its jugular. Hyenas soon follow.

Save big on a Mac.

UNIVERSITY STORE

Campus Center
545-2619

Monday - Friday 9-5
Saturday 11-3

~ MOVIES ~

Stiller & Leoni flirt with success

Disney scores big with animated insects and a giant peach

Finding fun and adventure with James & the Giant Peach.

COURTESY BO HENRY

By Tara MK Connelly
& Justin Daniel Smith
Collegian Staff

JAMES AND THE GIANT PEACH
Directed by Henry Selick featuring the voices of Simon Callow, Richard Dreyfuss, Susan Sarandon
Playing at Hampshire Six

"Once upon a time there lived a little boy named James who lived with his mother and father ..." So begins the classic Roald Dahl children's book, James and the Giant Peach, cleverly adapted to the big screen for your viewing pleasure.

And what a pleasure it is to watch indeed. In big bold and glorious colors, thanks to the help of some choice character voices and complex computer animation, the story of James and his journey to New York City will no doubt wow children and adults alike.

This is a feel good movie right from the start. We are saddened by James' loss of his parents and horrified by his having to slave away for his evil aunts, masterfully played by Joanna Lumley ("Absolutely Fabulous") and Miriam Margolyes (who also provides the voice for Glow-worm).

When the giant peach falls into the ocean we are also swept by the same feeling of adventure that James and his new found friends — Grasshopper, Centipede, Ladybug, Glow-worm, Spider and Earthworm — feel.

The transition between real life actors and animation is done smoothly with just the right touch of Tim Burton magic to make it sell. There is a definite Burton feel to the set of the Aunts' house. It has the same dark and dreary undertones and shading that plagued The Nightmare Before Christmas and Batman Returns. However on the whole, the visual effects are awesome indeed. From the interior of the peach to the icy depths of some ice covered ocean, your eyes feast on the visual bounty put before you.

The only sore spot of the film comes when dealing with the death of James' parents, who are here now and gone faster than you can say "peach." Perhaps if the "death by rhino" line had been carried out, it wouldn't have the same rushed tone to it, but still it works.

Randy Newman, who did most of the songs for Toy Story, does a decent job with this film. The songs may lack the staying quality of other Disney films, but they complement the film nicely like quietly sung lullabies and wishes on a star. The more memorable tunes include "Eating the Peach" (featured the scene where they all get drunk on peach punch), and the final song, "Good News," sung by Newman himself.

The ending for course is a happy one with James getting to New York and his aunts getting what they deserve. Extra credit should be given to Sarandon as sexy Spider and Dreyfuss as wise-cracking Brooklyn-reared Centipede. The Earthworm (David Thewlis) was also hilarious as the constant worrier. The scene where he is being used to bait a flock of sea gulls will have even the most staunch viewer smiling.

Paul Terry makes a great James. His English accent is cute without sounding pretentious or grating, and he doesn't whine once. You actually feel sympathy for James throughout the film and triumph when he finds happiness. The only bad thing about him was the fact that he was forced to wear some hideous pastel outfit in the opening scene, but thankfully that "I shopped at Gap for my spring wardrobe" look disappeared.

James and the Giant Peach is a nice break away from the more violent and stupider children's films that are out there (Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, Curly Sue). It leaves you believing in things that you've long since forgotten and actually wondering what it would be like to live in a giant peach pit in Central Park happily ever after. A (T.M.K.C.)

FLIRTING WITH DISASTER
Directed by David O. Russell with Ben Stiller, Patricia Arquette, Téa Leoni
Playing at Mt. Farms Four

In 1994, Amherst College alum David O. Russell created a disturbing film about an unwholesome mother/son relationship with Spanking the Monkey. Though it was completely unintentional, the film teetered on self-parody with subtle but unconscious humor elements. With his second feature Flirting with Disaster, Russell intended on making a comedy — and it is safe to say that he succeeded.

Disaster stars Ben Stiller as Mel, a Woody Allen-esque character, who needs to find his biological parents before he can name his newborn son and continue his life. His wife Nancy (Patricia Arquette) is patient with her neurotic husband and supports his decision to embark on the quest.

James and the Giant Peach is a nice break away from the more violent and stupider children's films that are out there (Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, Curly Sue). It leaves you believing in things that you've long since forgotten and actually wondering what it would be like to live in a giant peach pit in Central Park happily ever after.

The agency that placed Mel with his adoptive parents offers to find his biological parents and pay for his travels if he agrees to the accompaniment of a one of their counselors, Tina (überbabe Téa Leoni). So the adventures begin as Mel, Nancy, their son and Tina embark for San Diego to find Mel's mother.

San Diego is just the first stop on the travels that take them all over the country in their seemingly hopeless attempt to find Mel's real parents. Along the way they encounter people that turn out not to be Mel's parents, as well as a couple of federal agents who decide to hop on the bandwagon.

The whole adventure begins to awry. Nancy, who is constantly neglected, and Mel grow apart as one of the federal agents and Tina come between them. Mel's adoptive parents (played by Mary Tyler Moore and George Segal) think that Mel and his family are in trouble so they engage in a search for them.

Anyone with any connection to Mel and his pilgrimage ends up in New Mexico where he finally runs into his real parents who turn out to be acid-munching, out-cast hippies (Lily Tomlin and Alan Alda).

The ride is fast and often hilarious. The story, in which outrageous things continually happen to a relatively reserved man, was best adapted to the screen by Martin Scorsese in his 1985 film, After Hours. But Disaster definitely adds fresh twists and keeps the audience alert by expanding things to their utmost ridiculous ends.

Stiller, who is a relatively funny actor, is at his finest. Despite roles that can be described as mediocre at best in Reality Bites and If Lucy Fell, Stiller returns with the comic abilities that shined during his short-lived but under-rated TV show.

The rest of the cast is great as well. Leoni will eventually turn out to be more than a flavor of the month. As the leggy Tina, she has some sort of acting abilities along with her gorgeous visage.

At times it is a bit too zany, but for the most part Flirting with Disaster is an engaging comedy that serves up plenty of laughs. A– (J.D.S.)

GET READY PIONEER VALLEY!
TAKE IT TO THE HOOPLA with FUN, FOOD, HOOPS, PRIZES AND EXCITING SPECIAL EVENTS:

SPALDING WOMEN'S CLINIC
GATORADE SLAM DUNK CONTEST
USAIR LONG DISTANCE SHOOTOUT
DAILY COLLEGIAN FOUL SHOOTING CONTEST
NEW BALANCE PRIZES AND PROMOTIONS

DON'T MISS UMASS BASKETBALL PLAYERS, Ted Cottrell, Octavia Thomas, Melissa Gurile, Nicole Carter, and Trish Hopson competing on Center Court on Saturday. Cottrell's Team, "What'z You Say Huh," will tip off their first game at 11:30 am and the Minutewomen are scheduled to begin play at 1:00 pm.

EXPERIENCE THE EXCITEMENT AT THE

new balance
Haigis Hoopla VI
Haigis Mall 3

Presented by the Umass Sport Management Program
April 20 to 21 Haigis Mall - Umass Amherst

Attn: Participants Early Check-In in the Campus Center April 18 and April 19 at 10AM-5PM
For more information call the New Balance Haigis Hoopla Hotline (413) 545-5689

Bueno Y Sano "Good and Healthy." DAILY COLLEGIAN SPALDING Gatorade
HOT CATS 93 WHYN PEPSI SPORT COURT

SEE YOU THERE!

Casino Night 96

FRIDAY
APRIL 19, 1996
7:00PM - 2:00AM

CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM
UMASS AMHERST
ADMISSION $ 5.00
-GAMES WILL BE PLAYED FOR CASH-

THIS EVENT IS A FUNDRAISER FOR THE OFFICE OF ALANA AFFAIRS.
CO-SPONSORS: ALIORA, ASIAN AMERICAN STUDENTS ASSOCIATION, BLACK STUDENT UNION, CAMPUS CENTER BLUEWALL, CAMPUS CENTER HOTEL, CASA DOMINICANA, THE DAILY COLLEGIAN

Mime performance transcends boundaries in language and culture

By Matt Sinclair
Collegian Staff

The famed Swiss mask-mime troupe, Mummenschanz, will be performing its latest creation, "Parade," tomorrow evening in the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall at 8 p.m.

Having spent many years performing on Broadway, and with world tours spanning Europe, Japan, the United States, Israel and the former Soviet Union, the troupe enjoys a considerable pedigree and continues to be lauded for its unique mix of dance, mime, puppetry and magic.

Based in Zurich, Switzerland, the troupe is especially acclaimed in Europe and has performed in many of the great cities, including London, Paris, Rome, Berlin, Madrid, Prague, Amsterdam, Copenhagen and Vienna.

But what exactly is Mummenschanz? Literally translated the word means "masquerade" or "mummery." The trio, dressed in black body-suits, assume the facades of numerous fantastical elements; the "hand" is perhaps the troupe's most recognized trade-mark.

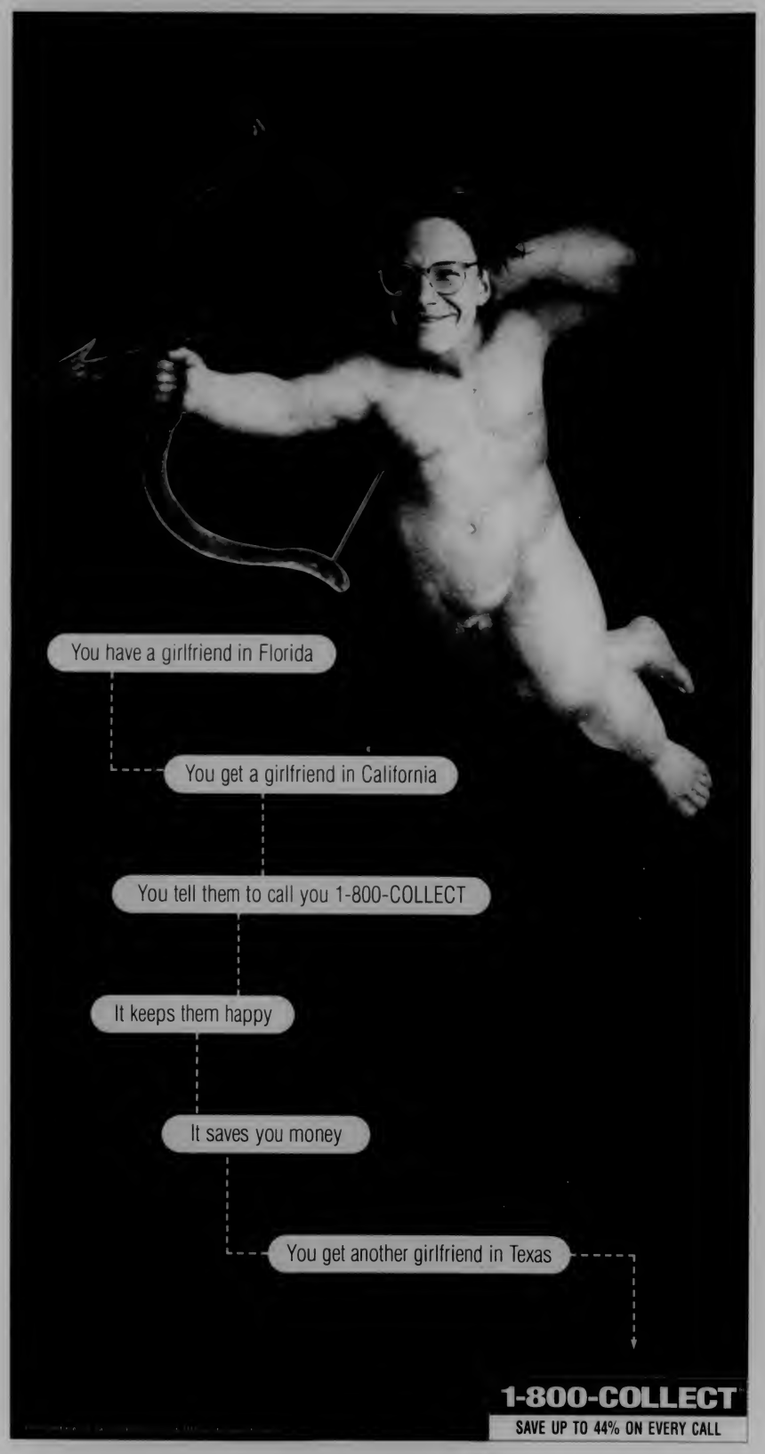
Mummenshanz performed its first program as a fringe event at the Avignon Festival in 1972, but the origins of the performance go back to 1969, when the original founders first conceived of the troupe.

Originally the Swiss mimes included spoken dialogue, but when the troupe began to tour the world, spoken items were dropped to overcome the language barrier, thus enabling their performance to be enjoyed in a medium which transcends all cultural boundaries -- one of symbolism without the need for words.

Lawrence Van Gelder, writing for The New York Times, noted that Mummenschanz "dazzles the eyes and lightens the spirit." But it is people behind the masks who are responsible for the troupes world-wide success. Swiss founder Bernie Schurch, Italian Floriana Frassetto and American John Charles Murphy. The international blend has certainly contributed to "Parade."

Dedicated to the memory of Andres Bossard, (one of the three founding members), "Parade" is a journey through life itself, a voyage of discovery in which many emotions are perceived, including love, frustration, sadness and joy.

Tickets for Mummenschanz "Parade" are $23, $18 and $13. Tickets are $10 for young people 17 & under, and $5 for Five College Students. For tickets or for more information, call the Box Office at 545-2511 or 1-800-999-UMAS. The performance will start at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall.



You have a girlfriend in Florida
You get a girlfriend in California
You tell them to call you 1-800-COLLECT
It keeps them happy
It saves you money
You get another girlfriend in Texas
1-800-COLLECT
SAVE UP TO 44% ON EVERY CALL

Go to Israel. The ticket's on us.

ISRAELBREAK

Attention New Yorkers!

Israelbreak is once again providing 300* free round-trip plane tickets for students, who participate in one of over 30 accredited Israel programs.

Eligible candidates are Jewish undergraduate college students:

1. Who have never before been to Israel.
2. Whose hometown is in one of New York City's five boroughs, Long Island or Westchester.

Simply stated: You pick the program you like, and we will pay for your ticket to get to Israel.

For an application and a listing of accredited programs, call Michael Orbuch at The Israel Department at Hillel of New York 212-496-0242 or send us an e-mail at Israel.Hillel@nyu.cs.edu.com

THE ISRAEL DEPARTMENT AT HILLEL OF NEW YORK
505 Park Avenue, Suite 1400 • NYC • 10018

*Available: Israel Level NEED BASED. Otherwise all are available. Israelbreak is under the auspices of Hillel of New York and is supported by the Israel Experience Committee of the Jewish Continuity Commission of UJC Federations of New York and UJA

Pearl Street Nightclub

THURSDAY APR 18
HI ENERGY DANCE PARTY
18 & Over Hosted by Adam Wright of Valley 99
The Area's Biggest Dance Party
$.75 BUD DRAFTS ALL NIGHT
FREE ADMISSION BEFORE 10PM
Pizza From HOT HARRY'S
Downstairs 8:30 pm
LOUD MUSIC FEST
Knitting Factory Showcase
John Zorn & Michael Patton
Billy Nathan-gm & Anthony Coleman
David Tronzo & Prelepa
FRIDAY APR 19
RETRO NIGHT
With DJ Brad D
FREE ADMISSION WITH THIS AD
Pool Tappers Concert Party
LOUD MUSIC FEST
SATURDAY APR 20
CLUB NIGHT
Dancing with DJ Dave
LOUD MUSIC FEST
SUNDAY APR 21
City Of Hope AIDS Benefit
WORK OUT FOR HOPE
12:00-2:00pm
Call 256-0080 for more details
WEDNESDAY APR 24
NORTHAMPTON'S FINEST & FINEST
GAY NIGHT
With Hartford's DJ DAVE RUSSELL
THURSDAY APR 25
HI ENERGY DANCE PARTY
(18 & Over Welcome)
FRIDAY APR 26
RETRO NIGHT
Downstairs 8:30 pm
SOUL CAFE
Talent Revue
SATURDAY APR 27
Grand Opening Gayle
LES BAINS
Downstairs 8:30 pm
POPA CHUBBY
SUN. APR. 28 - 5:00 PM
AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL BENEFIT
TUES. APR. 30 7:30 PM
CIV
H2O
COMING TO PEARL STREET...
5/2 DONNA THE BUFFALO 18+
5/3 JAMES COTTON
5/4 ZOO STATION
5/11 THE SIGHS
The Maggies
5/17 MAX CREEK
5/18 WICKED GARDEN 18+
5/25 QUETZAL
5/26 MADBALL
5/28 FISHBONE
Tickets for all shows available at Northampton Box office 586-8686, 1-800-THE TICK, Strawberries, For The Record in Amherst, About Music in Greenfield, Tix Unlimited at U. Mass, 10 Pearl Street, Northampton 413-584-7327!

~ MUSIC ~

Noho's Scud Mountain Boys return with brilliant new album

SCUD MOUNTAIN BOYS
Massachusetts
Sub Pop

Local indie favorites, the Scud Mountain Boys have moved from Northampton's Chunk Records to the more glamorous life at Sub Pop. But do not think for one minute that the recording away from the Valley has changed these good ole country boys. In fact, moving away from their beloved kitchen and four track into a studio has in no way diminished the quiet intimacy that their music carries, and Massachusetts is proof positive.

Appearing on the music scene in 1991, the band began as a rock orientated group, then realized that the heart of their material was better served sitting around a kitchen table with acoustic instruments.

In 1994 they released their first LP, Pine Box and quickly began establishing themselves as the talent to watch in the Valley. With tracks like "Helen" and "Silo," Dance The Night Away, their sophomore release (and first on CD), only served to increase their fan base and prove that they were ready for more. The group (Joe Pernice, Stephan Desaulniers, Bruce Tull and Tom Shea) signed to Sup Pop in 1995 and produced their first 7-inch, "Knievel" b/w "1/2 Way," for the label.

Massachusetts fulfilled the promise "Knievel" made. The album is laced with their heady blend of country twang, soft mandolin and honest up-front lyrics. Pernice's sad, but always oh-so-sincere voice shines on tracks like "In A Ditch" and "Holy Ghost." Many hard-core Scud fans have heard some of the 14 tracks in local concerts and will recognize songs such as "Big Hole."

The Scud's sound is incomparable, but defiantly engaging when singing about memories, lost love and places you remember only fleetingly in the back of your mind.

"Scratch Ticket" moves along like a slow two-step around a dimly lit barn. It tells the story of a person hopelessly lost yet at the same time complacent with that fact.

"Penthouse In the Woods" sounds similar to "Freight of Fire."

The song draws you in as Pernice croons, "I didn't sleep last night/ I didn't sleep the night before/ I'm pretty wound tight/ I couldn't empty out my head of the serious questions that seem to eat my time away."

Their dreamy country rock is a curious blend of old and new that fits nowhere and everywhere. They carry universal feeling for anyone who has ever wanted to spend a quiet night contemplating life or sitting around a kitchen table basking in the company of good friends and the sweet calming presence of success — Scud Mountain Boys style. A (Tara MK Connelly)

Scud Mountain Boys play at the Iron Horse on Saturday at 11:10 p.m

BOYRACER
In Full Color
Zero Hour

Just imagine if Guided By Voices grew up eating Buzzcocks and Sex Pistols instead of Beatles and Stones. Boyracer may well be the punk equivalent of America's favorite Beatles wannabe indie band. Jamming in 21 songs in less than 45 minutes, Boyracer is not one for fooling around with long, drawn-out solos or anything — their most recent single, "West Riding House," clocked in at 45 seconds, but did more than many bands do in a lifetime.

Over the past four years the band has raced through dozens of releases, from full length albums to 10" EPs to 7" singles to flexis, and don't forget the countless compilation tracks. Much like their American counterparts, Boyracer has never been lacking for songs.

Trax On Trax Off

At first listen to In Full Color, the band appears to have tamed themselves after the raucous album, More Songs About Frustration and Hate, which was filled with brief but noisy rock anthems. Take one listen to "New Punk Song," and you know the band is still in love with those lightening fast guitar pop tunes augmented with heavy usage of feedback and distortion. All this in 46 seconds!

In the middle of the album the band takes a breather from the hectic noise offerings for "D.F. (f.b. mix)" and "W.R.H. (version disco)." The first tune is an airy keyboard number set to a hip-hop drum beat, while the second is a terrific synthesized disco remix of their single "West Riding House." These two songs are examples of the band's risk taking in experimenting with their sound.

Much like Guided By Voices, Boyracer is not reinventing pop music — they don't even try. Instead they just turn up their guitars and drown their fears in feedback and distortion.

While not fully living up to previous recordings, In Full Hour is still an excellent recording. A- (Mike Burke)

Boyracer play at the Iron Horse Saturday at 8:40 p.m.

DIRT MERCHANTS
Scarified
Epic/Zero Hour

It must be the nineties. Got a distortion pedal? Got Daydream Nation on vinyl? Can you go from a skippy little dreamy sound to a really noisy feedback laden mess quickly? Dirt Merchants certainly can — and do.

To be fair, Scarified is among the better Sonic Youth sound-alike albums to come along in the past year. The guitars are always imaginative, spiralling around each other in a kind of distorted color swirl, creating just the right wall of sound to back up Maria Christopher's sometimes low and whispery, sometimes loud and powerful voice. The problem is that it's all been done before many times. The plinking sound of strings plucked beyond the guitar bridge, the sudden rush of atonal guitar noise — even the drum beats are all frighteningly common these days. There's nothing distinctive, no individual stamp placed on the album anywhere, like it's all coming out of some nineties indie rock machine. It's a good product for sure, but it leaves you wishing you'd had something custom made instead of buying it manufactured.

No doubt the Dirt Merchants are an excellent live band, and perhaps there is more to the band then this album reveals, but Scarified is only a little better than most — pleasant deja vu. C+ (Bradley Skaught)

The Dirt Merchants play at the Iron Horse Saturday at 10:20 p.m

COURTESY CHRIS TSEVAS

Scud Mountain Boy's latest album Massachusetts, is a local classic

COURTESY MARINA CHAVEZ

Boston's Dirt Merchants fall short in recreating Sonic Youth

Lincoln Real Estate
Has the best selection of 1, 2, & 3 bedroom Apartments In The Center Of Town
with gas heat
Gilreath Manor Condos
on Hobart Lane
• 3 Bedroom
• 1 1/2 Baths
• Heated Basement
• New Gas Heat & Hot water
• 1/2 mile to campus
• On Bus Route
Showings Start in April
for June or September Occupancy!
Lincoln Real Estate • 25 N. Pleasant St. • 253-7879

Puffton Village – Your First Choice
1, 2 and 3 bedroom apartments.

Featuring:
Newly renovated units that include:
• New appliances
• New Carpeting
• New kitchen cabinets & counter tops
• Central air conditioners
Rents starting at $590 per month

or

Traditional units that are:
• Fully applianced
• Freshly painted
• Carpeted/Tiled Floors
• Central Air conditioned
Rents starting at $525 per month

All rents include Heat, Hot Water & Cooking Gas and use of an olympic size pool, 5 tennis courts, basketball court, laundry rooms and on-site parking.

Now accepting rental applications for summer and fall. Call today 549-0145

Puffton Village Apartments • 1040 North Pleasant St., Amherst, Mass

CAHILLANE
AUTO AND TRUCK RENTALS

Now open in Hadley, For your convenience

Cahillane Auto and Truck Rentals, proudly announces the opening of it's third office. Located in Hadley, Ma, in the Howard Johnson's Hotel on Rt. 9, we can save you the hassle of fighting the Rt. 9 - Coolidge Bridge traffic, to get to the valley's best rental agency. Cahillane Rentals has all late model, low mileage, Chrysler Products. Featuring the Dodge Neon and Stratus all the way up to the incomparable Jeep Grand Cherokee we have the vehicles you want. For those times you really need space, we offer the Dodge 15 Passenger Van.

CHRYSLER LEASING SYSTEM
THE LEASING PROFESSIONALS

549-8099
Call NOW for reservations

Rent-a-Car

Lorenz Olympic
Gold Medal Challenge
Drive To Victory
Food Games Fun Tie-Dyes (Dress a Parent)
Thursday
April 25th
11:00am-5:00pm
Umass-Pond
Prizes Win a Hosting Getaway to Montreal
Sponsored by Don Lorenz, Inc. of Greenfield
http://www-unix.oit.umass.edu/~lorz
Co-sponsored by The Collegian, WMUF, Flex Gym, Blueprint Estates, Taylor Rental, Pulsar, Soy Cat Print Shop, Cantones Pizza, Media Play, Moe's Westview, Mill Valley Estates, Java Hut, Friendly's, The University Store, Atkins Farm, Kay's Coffee, Commonwealth Snack Bar, Herron Pecan, The Book Mill, Wamsa, Victory Supermarkets, Knowles Flower Shop, All Weave Webbing & Tape

Wanted • Wanted • Wanted • Wanted • Wanted • Wanted •
Circulation Manager
wanted...
Circulation manager needed for Fall 1996.
For more information call Lee Weiner @ 545-3500 or stop by the Collegian.

'Loud' panels at fest address indie rock industry issues

If all those 'loud' bands are hurting your ear drums, travel to The Depot at 125 Pleasant St. in Northampton for a series of conference panels discussing the music industry.

The keynote speaker, Daddy's Junky Music owner Fred Bramante, speaks on tonight at 6 p.m. The discussion is entitled, "An Educational Initiative To Put American Music In Schools." A buffet dinner is available for $13.50. Walk- up admission is $5, and is free with a pass.

Bramante will discuss the National Music Foundation's (NMF) efforts to increase musical education in public schools. NMF Chairman of the Board Dick Clark, who won't be in attendance, said in an earlier statement, "Our aim is to give students the opportunity to become life-long music makers."

Other panels discuss a variety of topics such as "Are All Radio Stations The Same?," "What Drives, Motivates and Defines the Indie Rock Lifestyle?," "The Mechanics of Putting Out Recorded Material" and "Women In Music."

All of the conferences are held at the Depot and each last an hour and a half. Interesting panelists include Chris Porter (booking agent at Mama Kin), Bill Peregoy (owner of Pop Narcotic), Natasha Stovall (writer at the Village Voice) and Albert Bouchard (musician and member of Blue Oyster Cult).

Call The Depot at 585-5058 for more information concerning any of the discussions or to make reservations for the buffet dinner during the keynote speaker.

— Mike Burke

Zorn & Patton headline Knitting Factory showcase

By Mike Burke
Collegian Staff

Pearl Street on Thursday will certainly be loud as the avant garde jazz label Knitting Factory brings four of their acts for a special showcase. Noisemongers John Zorn and Michael Patton (of Faith No More) headline the event.

For the past 20 years Zorn has been at the forefront of the free jazz noise scene breaking nearly every musical boundary (and many eardrums too). He has worked with everyone from jazz legend Ornette Coleman to death metal acts Napalm Death and Godflesh. Patton is also well schooled in the avant garde and bizarre as leader of the undescribable Mr. Bungle.

Performing at 11 p.m. is the Anthony Coleman and Roy Nathanson duo. Nathanson is the leader of the acclaimed Jazz Passengers and a former member of the Lounge Lizards. Coleman is a well accomplished keyboardist who has worked with Zorn, Marc Ribot and Elliot Sharp.

The duo describes their music as a mix between, "classical music, jazz, noise, joke and a variety of other musical styles."

Performing before Coleman & Nathanson is legendary slide guitarist David Tronzo who was recently named by Musician as one of the top 100 guitarists ever. His unique technique has opened up new sounds on the slide guitar that were previously thought impossible. Mixing blues, funk, rock, be-bop and fusion, Tronzo has refused to be limited to any one genre. He performs at 10 p.m.

Opening the Knitting Factory event at 9 p.m. is the Boston based band Prelapse. In 1994, Alex Lacamoire and Mason Wendell, two Berklee School of Music students, went out on a limb and formed a Naked City (a Zorn group) cover band. Surprisingly, Prelapse has done a brilliant job reworking Zorn's most difficult works.

COURTESY KNITTING FACTORY

David Tronzo, one of the top 100 guitarists ever, appears at Pearl Street tonight at the Knitting Factory showcase.

Love and Rockets return to rock scene

By John Pacenti
Associated Press

MIAMI — Record companies, fire and voodoo conspired against Love and Rockets to prevent the group from returning to the rock scene it helped landscape with industrial grooves in the late 1980s.

The English trio hit it big with such singles as "So Alive" and "No Big Deal" in 1989 and then called it quits after a grueling tour. "We were having too much fun," said guitarist Daniel Ash. "We needed to get away from each other."

The band's sound, at the time, was incomparable: a mix of industrial rock with an undeniable pop hook that all was done without pre-recorded tracks. "We have a very big sound for three people," Ash says.

Love and Rockets employed blowtorch guitars and soundboard steam releases long before U2's The Edge decided to imitate a subway train with the guitar on Achtung Baby! — arguably one of this decade's best rock works.

Today, the Love and Rockets' influence can be found from Elastica and Radiohead to Nine Inch Nails.

Cash poor and artistically fresh, L&R — which also includes drummer Kevin Haskins and bassist David J — was ready to return to rock radio. It was easier said than done.

First, the English trio's old record company, Beggars Banquet, wanted nothing to do with a new release after the band returned to the studio in 1994 and emerged with the spacey, instrumental disc Hot Trip to Heaven.

The experimental disc was an artistic triumph for the band, but a commercial flop, and when Love and Rockets was ready to return to the rock arena, Beggars Banquet told them it wasn't interested.

Picked up by Warner's American label, the group began recording at the home of Rick Rubin, who produced the Red Hot Chili Pepper's breakthrough Blood Sugar Sex Magik. An early morning fire destroyed all the band's tapes and equipment.

"It happened about seven in the morning when someone went downstairs and saw in the rehearsing room that the mixing desk was on fire, and then 20 minutes later we were jumping out windows for our lives," Ash said. "A burnt guitar was basically the only thing that survived. Everything was lost.... Police said another 10 minutes and we'd have been history."

Later it was learned that one of the musicians staying at Rubin's house unknowingly brought home a fan's voodoo doll from a gig the night before the blaze. Afterwards, Ash looked into the doll's meaning and found that a ribbon around the doll was a symbol of fire.

"I'm quite aware that voodoo does work because its like any other magic. It's mind over matter," Ash said.

After the fire, the three landed in a $300-a-day studio.

TV movie lets 'Wonder Years' star get savage

By Bob Thomas
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Remember Fred Savage as the wide-eyed, innocent Kevin Arnold in that slice of 1960s nostalgia "The Wonder Years"? You might not know him now.

No more the junior high school student of the 1988-93 series, Savage is now a strapping 19-year-old, a sophomore at Stanford University and about to change his television image in a startling way.

In "No One Would Tell," airing Monday on NBC, Savage plays a high school charmer and wrestling champion who romances another student, Candace Cameron, formerly of "Full House." It seems an ideal match until he grows jealous and possessive — and then abusive.

The movie's title tells the theme: Fellow students remain silent about the boy's abuse until it is too late.

Savage, visiting his family home in the San Fernando Valley during a brief break in his studies, seemed more like his "Wonder Years" self than the dark and dangerous Bobby Tennyson of "No One Would Tell."

"It was exciting to get to do something a little different," he said, over a pastrami sandwich at Jerry's Famous Deli. "It was very different from anything I'd done. It was fun to play with these emotions that I never got to touch before.

"When I first got the script, I thought, 'What made them come to me for this?' I wouldn't have been the first one I thought of. I became enthused with all the things I could do with this guy. I thought it would give people a chance to see me older and as something different."

Savage noted that we all have a dark side — though perhaps not as dark as his character's.

"We all get angry and frustrated," he said. "The difference between normal and not normal people is that most of us can harness that — we just fume or sigh or go take a walk. We deal with it in ways other than violence."

"I had to stir up that anger. It was frightening that once they said 'Cut!' and the scene was done, I still had that adrenaline coming through me. ... It was fun to unleash for a while. I got to do it in the safe environment of the set."

APRIL SHOWERS OF VALUES!
LIQUORS 44
Don't Drink and Drive
BEERS WINES LIQUORS

Miller 30 PACK HIGH LIFE $11.79 + DEP CASE OF 30-12 OZ. CANS
RED HOOK BREWERY E.S.B., BALLARD BITTER, WHEATHOOK, RYE, HEFE-WEIZEN 6 PK BOTTLES $4.99 + DEP
MOOSEHEAD 12 PK BOTTLES $6.99 + DEP
16 OZ. BUDWEISER CASE OF 24-16 OZ. LOOSE CANS $15.49 + DEP
ROLLING ROCK CASE OF 2-12 PK CANS $12.99 + DEP
1/2 KEGS BUD, BUD LT., BUD ICE, MICHELOB, MICHELOB LT., MICHELOB DARK, MILLER BEER, LITE, RED DOG, ICEHOUSE $39.99 + DEP

WINE UP THE MUNCH
C.K. MONDAVI CHARDONNAY & CABERNET SAUVIGNON 750ML $4.99
CARLO ROSSI ALL FLAVORS 4 QT. $6.99
SCARLATTA TREBBIANO & MONTEPULCIANO 1.5LT $4.49
NEW FLAVOR WHITE ZINFANDEL
TURNING LEAF FUME, PINOT NOIR, CHARDONNAY, ZINFANDEL 750ML 2 for $10.00
JEKEL CHARDONNAY 750ML $6.99
GALLO WHITE ZINFANDEL 750ML 3 for $9.99

POLAND SPRINGS VODKA 1.75L $8.49
CANADIAN MIST 1.75L SALE $12.49 MAIL IN REBATE $3.00 FINAL COST $9.49
JOSE CUERVO GOLD TEQUILA 750ML $9.99
GILBEY'S GIN 1.75L $12.49
JACK DANIELS 750ML $11.99
JOHNNIE WALKER RED 1.75L $26.99

We Accept Cans and Bottles for Redemption
AT THE STOP & SHOP PLAZA
HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
NORTHAMPTON 238 King Street 586-3007
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln Street 534-4555
SALE PRICES THURS. 4/18/96 THRU WEDS. 4/24/96
NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

NEW Soft Serve Ice Cream
NOW Available at the BLUEWALL

4 SEASONS
RTE. 9 HADLEY 584-8174
Monday- Saturday 9:00am-11:00pm
Not Responsible for typos • Visa, Mastercard & Discover accepted
DISCOUNT LIQUORS
BEER • WINE • KEGS • ICE • CIGARS

SHIPYARD Brewing Comp. 24-12 oz. bott. $18.99 + dep.
OREGON 24-12 oz. bott. $18.99 + dep.
MOLSON ICE 24-12 oz. bott. $15.69 + dep.
MOOSEHEAD 24-12 oz. bott. $14.69 + dep.
RED WOLF 24-12 oz. bott. $13.99 + dep.
BEERBALLS! BUD, BUD LT., & KILLIANS $22.99 +dep
KEGS Natural Lt. $34.99 + Dep.
KEG OF THE WEEK! Ice House $38.99 + Dep.
BUD, BUT LT., BUD ICE, RED DOG, LITE, LOWENBRAU DK., MICHELOB DK. & MICHELOB LT. $39.99 + Dep.
BUSCH & LT 30-12 oz. cans $11.99 + dep.
GENESEE ICE 30-12 oz. cans $9.49 + dep.
BUD DRY 24-12 oz. bott. $9.99 + dep.
M.G.D. & LT. 24-12 oz. bott. $9.99 + dep.
NATURAL LT/ICE 24-12 oz. cans $8.99 + dep.
CAPT. MORGAN SPICED RUM $15.69 1.75L
4 SEASONS VODKA $8.99 1.75L
GILBEY'S LONDON DRY GIN $12.99 1.75L
SEAGRAM'S GIN $10.99 1.75L
TEQUILA $6.99 1.0L
ICE! 10 Lbs. ..... $1.29 50 Lbs. ..... $5.99 100 Lbs. .... $9.99 WE DELIVER! SALE THRU 4-24-96
J.W. Dundee ..... $6.99 + Dep.
Saranac ..... $6.99 + Dep.
Sam Adams ..... $8.99 + Dep.
Killians Red ..... $6.99 + Dep.
CHATEAU ST. JEAN CHARDONNAY 90 RATED $7.99 750 ml
FRANZIA BAG IN BOX WINES $6.99 5.0L
MASCIARELLI MONTEPULCIANO $3.99 750 ML
BENZINGER CHARONNAY 89 RATED $6.99 750 ML
ROUND HILL CAB. SAUV. & CHARD. $8.99 1.5L

Developing Nations Needs Writers!
If you're interested in writing call Syed Mohammed at 545-3500

■ Loud

continued from page 5

Mason has been the backbone to the music scene and few acts can match his guitarwork or singwriting.

The Arlington, VA label Simple Machines brings five of their best acts to the Northampton Inn. Perhaps the most well known of the bands, Liquorice, featuring Jenny Toomey of Tsunami, opens up the event at 8:40 p.m. Secret Stars follow with their beautiful minimalist pop melodies. Ida, who will never, ever be described as 'loud,' will be the highlight of the Simple Machines showcase. Both Carolinas are well represented as Danielle Howle (from South Carolina) and the Raymond Brake (from North Carolina) end the evening. Fans of Polvo and similar guitar bands must see the Raymond Brake. They are young, talented and can pull off the live thing better than Polvo could ever dream of.

An alternative to the band fest takes over the Club Metro Front Room, where Women of Sodem take the stage (and supposedly their clothes off too) at 11:10 p.m. Known around Boston for their sexual progressive live show, the hour long event should provide a break from the guitar band onslaught. Sorry kids, this show is 21+. To close the evening, a classic Boston live act, the Benmen, make a rare live appearance. Bring your umbrellas and rain coats — this band has been described as an arty GWAR!

Local favorites like the Big Bad Bollocks (11:10 p.m.) and Angry Johnny & the Killbillies (12:10 a.m.) take over the Baystate, while garage legends the Lyres will rock 'n' roll the night away at Club Metro back room. (11:50 p.m.)

While Thursday and Friday are filled with exciting acts, the Loud Fest hits stride on Saturday as over 80 bands hit the clubs of Northampton. Don't even try seeing them all, but there are a few shows that stand out as must sees.

Fans of MTV punk (a la Offspring and Green Day) are ordered to check out Weston, a brilliant Pennsylvania act that flawlessly meshes punk and pop. They appear at Pearl Street Upstairs at 7:15 p.m. Headliners Tree make a rapid return (at 8 p.m.) to Pearl Street where they recently played with Sam Black Church, a Loud Fest alum.

Downstairs at Pearl Street, Pop Narcotic, the hip Boston label, presents a seven band showcase headlined by the Dambuilders, a Loud Music Festival regular. The always enticing Helium takes second billing. Last year Mary Timony led the Boston trio through a stunning 50 minute set on the opening night that set the tone for the rest of the festival. Also scheduled on the Pop Narcotic bill are Sleepyhead, Tizzy, Sugar Plant, Dan Spurgeon (from Bush League All Stars) and Estrojet. The Pop Narcotic special begins at 6 p.m.

The Grotto hosts local bands and Boston acts all day from 2:30 p.m. to 12:10 a.m. Highlights include the Lune (4:30 p.m.), Jumbo, featuring Seana Carmody of Syrup USA (6:10 p.m.) and one of Jon Spencer's favorite bands, Cheater Slicks, at 11:20 p.m.

The Iron Horse Saturday night line-up is scattered with top acts and over-hyped Boston bands. Starting at 8:30 p.m. the English quartet Boyracer will light up the stage with their frantic fast pop tunes reminiscent of early Wedding Present and the Buzzcocks. Following Boyracer are the Flying Nuns and the Dirt Merchants, two Boston bands that receive far more attention than they deserve. The night closes with a blast as the Scud Mountain Boys and Papas Fritas end the festival. The Scud Mountain Boys perform their first local show since the release of their new album, Massachusetts, one of the best local albums of the year. Boston's most talented pop band, Papas Fritas will probably be the highlight of the entire festival. Their debut self-titled album was nearly flawless and their live show is filled with fun and energy.

Bonus points will be rewarded for those who see all of the 200+ bands!

Mike Burke is a Collegian columnist.

■ history

continued from page 5

day event that brings back the original purpose of the festival.

Instead of focusing on rising national acts, this year's festival spotlights the massive amount of talent within the region, from punk legends The Queers to Boston's finest two exports in years: Helium and Papas Fritas. Nearly all of the headlining acts hail from either New England or New York.

Another shocking difference is that the title 'loud music' actually describes more than a handful of bands playing. Look no farther than Perpetual Doom and Doom Nation for all the volume the human ear can take. However, it's still ironic that an act like the Secret Stars or Ida would ever perform at a loud music festival.

Unfortunately there has been much talk about the festival moving to Boston in the near future, which would be a terrible loss for the western Massachusetts scene. What would the Pajama Slave Dancers do then? Even this year, I'll the Bear's, a satellite venue, is hosting several top bands like the Grifters, Karate and Strapping Fieldhands who are not appearing in Northampton. Boston is already slowly stealing our own festival.

Mike Burke is a Collegian columnist.

PLEASE DRINK RESPONSIBLY.
Or you could wake up handcuffed to a very large, sweaty man wearing a blonde wig and lederhosen.
CIDER JACK HARD CIDER

Editorial/ Opinion Needs Writers!
If you're interested in writing call Bob Dunn at 545-3500

Photo Needs Photographers!
If you're interested in photography call Emily Reily at 545-3500

COMPUTER FAIR & SALE
100 HOURS FREE INTERNET
TRI-STATE FAIRS
10AM-3:30PM
I-91 North exit 19 turning right onto Rte 9 + 4 miles left at Staples onto Rte 116N. first right to light, left to Center 1-91 S. take exit 20
Buy at wholesale prices right at the show from up to 70 companies (200 exhibit tables) featuring the IBM/PC compatible market from full systems to shareware. It's all here. Adm $7 ea. with ad $5ea after 1:00 pm $5 ea w/ad only
MULLINS CENTER AMHERST SATU, APR 20

Amherst Sunshine Car Wash
Automatic Wash/Wax Open Daily
Self Service Bays Open 24 Hours
VACUUM CLEANERS BILL CHANGERS
381 College Street (Rt. 9 East) Amherst

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK
Round trip
LONDON $212 $399
PARIS $224 $427
SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA $235 $446
TOKYO $851
Scheduled flights Fares to worldwide destinations Eurailpasses Available
Weekend surcharges may apply Customs-immigration taxes apply Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l student ID cards may be required.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave. NY, NY 10173
212-986-8420*
800-272-9676
*In NYC

Fifteen years later, 33–inning game still amazing

By Tim Whitmire
Associated Press

PAWTUCKET, R.I. — It was 15 years ago that a stiff April wind, a set of confused minor league umpires and guys named Boggs and Ripken conspired to bring about the longest game in pro baseball history.

It took 32 innings on the night of April 18-19, 1981, and a 33rd inning two months later for the Pawtucket Red Sox to emerge 3-2 winners.

Pawtucket's Wade Boggs had a key hit to prolong the game in the bottom of the 21st. In a sign of things to come, Rochester's Cal Ripken played all 33 innings.

Seven years before "Murgan's Magic" carried the Boston Red Sox to a division title, PawSox manager Joe Morgan had no such magic for his Triple-A team — he was ejected in the 21st inning.

"Of all the games I've played in, that's one of the few that I easily remember," Ripken said. "Has it been 15 years? It's still fresh in my mind. We've all played in marathon nine-inning games and extra-inning games, but that game was different."

The last inning, played June 23 before thousands fans and a horde of national media drawn by its novelty and the news drought during the 1981 major league baseball strike, was anticlimactic. But the first 32 were like a trip into the Twilight Zone. The Saturday night start was delayed a half-hour by a power outage in the left field lights at McCoy Stadium. Once underway, the contest quickly turned into a pitchers' duel because of a chilly wind blowing in from the outfield that turned would-be home runs into harmless fly balls.

Rochester broke a scoreless tie with a run in the seventh and the PawSox forced extra innings with a run in the bottom of the ninth.

The next 11 innings were scoreless. With the handful of remaining fans helping themselves to free food at concession stands, Rochester scored in the top of the 21st. The PawSox prolonged the marathon on Boggs' run-scoring double in the bottom of the inning.

"I think at that point nobody knew what to feel," PawSox President Mike Tamburro said. "You were just numb."

The near-catatonic players went through the motions for 11 more scoreless innings before a frantic phone call to the league president who was awakened at home to put the game on hold at 4:07 a.m. Eastern Standard.

"The International League [umpire] institution said plain as day that no inning would begin after 12:50 a.m.," Tamburro said. "It was the one paragraph that for whatever reason got cut off at the end of a page and didn't go into the manual for league umpires."

When the umpires finally suspended the game, 19 fans were left in the stands. Each received a complimentary season pass.

Ripken, who was 2-for-13, said the suspension was merciful. "It never would have ended that night," he said. "They had to [suspend it] because it had no chance of ending."

Tamburro agreed.

"It was a night that just refused to end," he said. "We probably could have played another seven or eight innings that morning and no one would have scored..."

"We walked out of the ballpark at maybe 5:15, 5:30 a.m. The sun was starting to rise over the park. It was an alarming feeling... You knew that you were never going to have one of these days again as long as you live."

The game's conclusion, played before 5,800 fans and reporters from as far away as Tokyo, was as brief as the first game was interminable.

Bob Ojeda pitched a scoreless top of the 33rd for Pawtucket. In the bottom half, Rochester reliever Steve Grilli — who was playing for Syracuse when the game started — hit second baseman Marty Barrett with his first pitch. Chico Walker followed with a hit-and-run single to center, advancing Barrett to third.

Grilli then intentionally walked Russ Laribee to load the bases. (Laribee, 0-for-11 in the first 32 innings, had joked that he had a bad month in one night).

Red Wings manager Doc Edwards brought on his fifth reliever, Cliff Speck. The first batter he faced was Dave Koza, who singled to left on a 2-2 pitch, scoring Barrett and giving the PawSox a 3-2 victory after 33 innings, played in 8 hours, 25 minutes over two days.

The game has not been forgotten at McCoy. A large display of memorabilia from the contest greets fans at the entrance to the stadium. The official scoresheet, written in a rainbow of inks, with each color signifying a different 10-inning stretch, is framed in the press box.

The plastic cups now used by the stadium concessionaires to serve beer and soft drinks carry the linescore of the game which wraps around the container.

"The game was a tremendous conversation piece," Tamburro said. "It was one or fourth or fifth year in operation... It's one that will live on. I don't know how anybody breaks this record."

Rogers' First Yankee Start Moved Up

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Kenny Rogers, who has bounced between the New York Yankees starting rotation, the bullpen and their extended spring training in Florida, will finally make his debut on Sunday at Minnesota.

Rogers was scheduled to make his first start on April 23 at Kansas City, but manager Joe Torre decided Jimmy Key needed extra rest, so he swapped their starts.

Key, continuing his comeback from last year's rotator cuff surgery, was tagged for six runs and 10 hits in 3 2-3 innings in Tuesday's loss at Milwaukee. Although it was his shortest outing since Aug. 28, 1993, he threw 89 pitches, raising caution flags with the Yankees.

"He's had three outings and this would be the only time we'll be able to get him an extra day or so," Torre said after Wednesday's 8-4 loss to the Brewers.

"He threw 89 pitches Tuesday. We just felt that we wanted to give him a couple of extra days. He had no complaints," Torre said. "Instead of sending Kenny down to Florida, we just thought it best to hold him here and do that."

Rogers, who signed a four-year $20 million contract in the off-season with the Yankees, made one start in extended spring training in Florida and was scheduled to make another on Thursday at St. Petersburg against the Cardinals.

The left-hander, 70-51 in six seasons in Texas, has had a rough start with the Yankees. He was on hit on the left shoulder by a line drive throwing batting practice during spring training, and had several subpar performances in Florida.

The Yankees announced he would begin the season in the bullpen, but he was moved back into the starting rotation when an arm injury sidelined No. 5 starter Melido Perez. Rogers' first reaction to being sent to the bullpen was to ask that his contract be torn up. After learning of the latest change in plans Wednesday, Rogers said he still didn't feel that he was in the starting rotation to stay.

"I'm not going to take that route," he said. "I'm not going to think that way. That would be the logical way. I'm not going to go that far and get that comfortable. No way."

Raiders Acquire Harlow

EL SEGUNDO, Calif. (AP) — The Oakland Raiders, seeking help at offensive tackle, acquired Pat Harlow from the New England Patriots on Wednesday for a second-round draft pick obtained hours earlier from San Francisco.

Harlow, who played at both right and left tackle during his five seasons in New England, helps the Raiders at a position they had expected to focus on in this weekend's draft.

"I've long been impressed with Pat Harlow's playing ability," said Joe Bugel, the Raiders' assistant head coach in charge of offense. "He is equally adept at playing both offensive tackle positions, which is rare in this league."

The deal came shortly after the Raiders exchanged draft picks with the San Francisco 49ers. The Raiders traded their second-round pick in this weekend's draft, the 46th selection overall, for the 49ers' second-round (57th overall) and fourth-round (124th overall) picks.

The Raiders and Harlow agreed to a multi-year contract extension, details of which were not released. Harlow was to earn about $1.4 million this year with the Patriots, and would have been eligible for unrestricted free agency at the end of the season. Harlow was limited to a reserve role last season after missing the first six games with a stress fracture of his left leg, and had made it clear he was not happy in New England.

"I think it was pretty well known that I wanted out," he said. "I think this worked out best for everybody."

Harlow missed the beginning of the 1995 season after being injured in an exhibition game against the Raiders. The 6-foot-6, 290-pound Harlow also has had two operations for a bulging disc in his back, most recently in 1992.

Harlow, 27, passed a medical examination by the Raiders before the deal was completed.

Harlow was the Patriots' first-round draft choice in 1991, the 11th pick overall. He is a native of Norco, in southern California, and attended USC.

Jets hope to make better choice with No. 1

By Dave Goldberg
Associated Press

NEW YORK — The New York Jets, who have the No. 1 pick in Saturday's draft, know how easy it is to mess up a high choice. Just mention one name: Blair Thomas, on whom the Jets used the second overall pick in 1990. That was the same year another running back — Emmitt Smith — went to Dallas with the 17th.

First round busts are the rule in the NFL — odds are that a third to a half of the 30 first-rounders Saturday won't meet expectations. Some will take teams down with them.

Thus were the Dallas Cowboys of the '80s done in by the likes of Rod Hill and Billy Cannon Jr; the New York Giants have declined in the '90s because of picks like Jarrod Bunch and Derek Brown, and Tampa Bay hasn't had a winning season since 1982 largely because of a succession of blown draft picks, most in the Top 10.

"This isn't an exact science," says Bill Polian, who built a team in Buffalo that made it to four Super Bowls and now is general manager of the Carolina Panthers. "There are a lot of excellent talent evaluators in this league who have made a lot of big mistakes."

Some examples:

• In 1989, a lot of people thought the best player in the draft was offensive tackle Tony Mandarich.

Dallas had the first pick but Jimmy Johnson bypassed Mandarich for Troy Aikman. Aikman has been the winning pitcher in three Super Bowls; Mandarich, out of the league for four years, is now attempting a comeback in Indianapolis with Lindy Infante, the coach who drafted him No. 2 overall for Green Bay.

• In 1986, Tampa Bay drafted Bo Jackson with the No. 1 pick, even though Jackson said he'd play baseball rather than play for the Bucs. Jackson did play baseball, then went to the Raiders the next year.

• In 1987, the Bucs drafted Vinny Testaverde with the top pick to replace the incumbent, 26-year-old Steve Young. Young was traded to San Francisco, Testaverde set a record for interceptions in Tampa and now, with the Baltimore Ravens, is somewhere in the middle of the NFL's quarterback pack.

• In 1981, the New Orleans Saints had the first overall pick. Bum Phillips, hoping to recreate Earl Campbell, took running back George Rogers.

Rogers had an OK career, but the second player chosen, by the Giants, was linebacker Lawrence Taylor, whom everyone BUT the Saints would have taken. The eighth pick overall? Defensive back Ronnie Lott.

Look out for draft trends.

New Orleans, for example, picks 11th overall, not a good place for them to be. The last two times the Saints picked 11th they took Shawn Knight (1987) and Russell Erxleben (1979), who make anyone's list of all-time worst No. 1s.

Kansas City has had little luck with running backs.

In 1985, the Chiefs took Ethan Horton in the first round. Horton wasn't the answer and finally became a decent tight end with the Raiders, who love to resurrect other teams' busted No. 1s. So two years later, the Chiefs drafted Paul Palmer, who was last seen trying a comeback in the World League.

More recently, they've taken Harvey Williams (1991) and Greg Hill (1994). Williams finally found his niche with the Raiders (who else?) and Hill has shown only flashes. Some teams look for insurance with saturation drafts.

The Giants, in need of a running back, used their first pick in 1982 on Butch Woolfolk, then chose Joe Morris in the second round. Woolfolk had an undistinguished career, but Morris ended up gaining over 1,516 yards and scoring 22 touchdowns for New York's 1986 Super Bowl winner.

Arts & Living
So you wanna write for arts
But you don't know what it does
So you come down to 113 Campus Center
And you talk to Tara, Mike, Seema or Laura.
They give you an assignment.
You take it and write.
You're happy.
It's a lot like Nike - you just have to do it.

Comfort-Fashion Footwear Days!

•Dr. Martens •Ecco •Naot
2 days only Fri-Sat April 19-20
Selected Comfort-Fashion footwear
ZANNA Downtown Amherst

The WEBSTER Theatre
Bringing Hartford's Music Scene To A New Level!
Check out these great All Ages Shows!
THE RADIATORS SATURDAY, APRIL 20TH Tickets $12 In Advance
And Evening With... WIDESPREAD PANIC WEDNESDAY, APRIL 24TH Tickets $15.50 In Advance
MORPHINE WEDNESDAY, MAY 8TH Tickets $15
FRIDAY, MAY 24TH FISHBONE Tickets $10 In Advance
Tickets Available at: Strawberries Music and Video Stores; ProTix Charge By Phone (860) 422-0000; The Webster Box Office 31 WEBSTER STREET HARTFORD, CT MON-FRI 12-3 525-5553

Don't Let The Marshall Catch You Going Anywhere Else!
Marshall STEINBECK
COLLISION REPAIR & AUTO BODY
53 S. Prospect St. Amherst Center
• Imports and other unibody vehicles are our speciality.
• Users of Sikkens paint products
• Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass repair.
256-8157 256-1385 Shop Reg # RS1212

great scores...
LSAT GMAT GRE MCAT
Kaplan helps you focus your test prep study where you need it most. We'll show you the proven skills and test-taking techniques that help you get a higher score.
great skills...
Kaplan has the most complete arsenal of test prep tools available. From videos to software to virtual reality practice tests with computerized analysis to great teachers who really care, nobody offers you more ways to practice.
1-800-KAP-TEST
get a higher score
KAPLAN

Getting High on Getting Thin:
The Second of Two Workshops on Eating and Body Issues
A New Focus: LIFE NOT FOOD
Understanding the obstacles andlearning the tools to change your relationship with food.
Date: Thursday, April 25, 1996
Time: 3:30 pm to 5:00 pm
Place: Campus Center, Rm 811-15
Drop-in workshops are sponsored by University Health Services. Free and open to UMass students.
CONFIDENTIALITY ASSURED
For more info, call 549-2671 ext. 233 or 545-2337

Learn French Intensively
Enroll in McGill University's highly-successful Special Intensive French Program in Montreal—the second largest French city in the world.
Dates: 4 sessions a year (next session June 25th-August 23rd) 225 hours of Instruction
Fee: $1,450 Canadian citizens and permanent residents $1,795 International students
For more information: The Department of Languages and Translation Centre for Continuing Education McGill University 770 Sherbrooke St. West Montreal, Quebec, CANADA H3A 1G1
Tel: (514) 398-6160 Fax: (514) 398-4448 E-mail: info@conted.lan.mcgill.ca
McGill Centre for CONTINUING EDUCATION

Pippig to rest before return home

By Carolyn Thompson
Associated Press

BOSTON — If it had been any race but Boston, any Boston but the 100th, Uta Pippig wouldn't have finished, the marathon champion's coach and companion said Wednesday.

Pippig, 30, of Germany was admitted to an undisclosed hospital a day after Monday's marathon, where she pulled out a last-minute win after being slowed by diarrhea and menstrual cramps. She was released Wednesday afternoon.

"She was very, very dehydrated because she lost so much fluid," said Dieter Hogen, her coach of 10 years.

He said doctors conducted a battery of blood and other tests to determine the cause of the problems, which he said were new to the veteran runner. He expected the results sometime today. Pippig, meantime, was not up to talking to reporters yesterday, he said. He said she would hold a news conference today at the Copley Plaza Hotel, where she is staying with her mother.

"Everyone is very optimistic," he said. "Uta feels very good. She's getting around. She can do what she wants.

"The doctor said the most important thing is that she has rest," he said, though Pippig, who canceled her plans to return to Germany today, has other plans.

"She says 'I won the race, now I want to celebrate,'" Hogen said. "We say, 'Hey, stay cool. Wait one more day.'"

Hogen may have been more surprised than anyone when Pippig, with less than two miles to go, ran down fading Kenyan Tegla Loroupe and blew past her, finishing in 2 hours, 27 minutes and 12 seconds. He had given up all hope of Pippig winning less than halfway through the 26.2-mile race.

Pippig had pointed to her stomach, indicating discomfort, at the 10-kilometer mark, and by 15 kilometers had told Hogen she was in pain.

"She just said 'I feel so bad right now. It hurts. It burns a lot,'" said Hogen, who rode in a television-equipped van along the route, stopping to check on her every five kilometers. "She had those kind of little cramps. She didn't know herself where they even came from... She's still trying to get a clear opinion of what happened to her."

At that point, Hogen said he told Pippig that it was up to her whether to continue.

"I thought, forget the marathon then," he said. "I told her, 'Don't think about the situation. Do what you want. Don't feel pressure.'"

Later in the race, Pippig told him the pain would come and go. "Between 20 and 25 (kilometers) she said, 'I feel good again. I should keep going. I don't give up now.'

"I thought maybe she can make it to the end... but that's certainly not for sure," he said, and he stopped watching the television. But his friends in the van continued, and grew increasingly frenzied as Pippig began the comeback. Finally, when she took the lead, Hogen looked again.

"Everyone was already crying," he said. "It was like after the unification, after the Berlin Wall came down."

Hogen said it was the emotion of the 100th Boston Marathon, with its expanded field of some 40,000 runners and 2 million spectators, that kept Pippig going.

"If it wouldn't have been Boston and it wouldn't have been the hundredth — There's no other race in the world... she would have finished."

■ NBA

continued from page 18

Magic was tossed after questioning a call on a layup where he thought he was fouled. As he walked toward Foster, he was assessed his first technical. Magic continued his protest and as Foster moved back towards the play, Johnson followed and bumped his chest into Foster's right shoulder. Foster immediately sent Magic to the showers.

Despite having denied initiating any contact with Foster, Magic was suspended by the league for three games and fined $10,000. The suspension came just five days after Johnson openly reamed into Van Exel for drawing a seven- game suspension for shoving a referee.

So for now the Lakers, Showtime is halted. The Lakers have gone 26-10 since Johnson's return and along the way have learned what it takes to win. While nothing substantial should be read into Magic's actions, the recent assault on officiating must stop. While it is easy to toss the blame directly to players ego's remember that referees have egos too (e.g. Larry Limbo). That does not excuse the players but it's about time this issue was directly addressed by Commissioner Stern

Moving on...

Butch Beard is out of a job. Well, he is not officially unemployed, but his shoes are not the ones to be in right now. Reports indicate that Beard will be ousted by Grants President Michael Rowe sometime after the Nets finish out the regular season. According to the New York Post one Nets official recently referred to Beard as a "former coach." All kidding aside it would be hard not to when several weeks ago, the still playoff-hopeful Nets gave permission for Beard to be approached by St. John's University. (Phew, thankfully that thought didn't last long)

Beard, who is 59-101 in his two seasons, coached at Howard University before taking over for Chuck Daly in 1994.

Hmm... who is going to get to coach the Nets next season? Well, there is no secret that the organization, regardless of who owns it, will attempt to woo Kentucky's Rick Pitino. Odds are, Pitino will not even consider the job while the Nets's ownership remains in a constant state of uncertainty. Other candidates include ex-Suns coach Paul Westphal, ex-Knick coach Hubie Brown and former Nets assistant Paul Silas.

Westphal has pro coaching experience on his side but doesn't offer much else. Brown has been there and back in the NBA, and was supposedly offered the job before last summer. However, negotiations were affected by the lockout. Lastly, Silas is still very popular with a lot of the Nets current players but the Nets would have to receive permission from the Phoenix Suns, his current employer.

Spanning the "Globe"

• After the impending sale of the Mavericks is completed, look for long-time Maverick Brad Davis to succeed Dick Motta as head coach.

• The FBI raided the home of Miami Heat center Alonzo Mourning early this week. No, they weren't Charlotte fans looking for a copy of Riley's playbook, this was serious.

Agents were searching for records as part of an ongoing investigation involving a cousin of Mourning's, who also lives in the Maryland residence. Apparently Zo's cousin was arrested late last week for his alleged involvement in a narcotics operation. Hmm, could Mourning's ex-teammate Robert Parish be involved here?

Where are they now?

1) John Long
2) Greg Dreiling
3) Alec Kessler
4) Pat Lever
5) Chris Gorchiani

Darren Cohen is a Collegian columnist.

Sam Cardenas, who's been on a hot hitting streak lately, leads the Minutewomen today in a doubleheader against Rhode Island at Totman Field.

Softball set to host A–10 rival Rhode Island today

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts softball team will once again put it's home unbeaten mark on the line today when it battles New England and Atlantic 10 rival Rhode Island, in a doubleheader at Totman Field at 3 p.m.

In addition to their home perfection, the Minutewomen also carry a 16-game unbeaten streak, and a perfect A-10 record at 6-0, into the games as well.

None of this bodes well for the Rams who check into the contest at 12-15.

Kathy Bailey is the top overall player for Rhode Island, both at the plate and on the mound. She boasts a team leading .324 batting average and has a 4-2 record with a 2.33 ERA as a pitcher.

Three other Rams, Heather Roiffinger, Kellie Cookus and Jeanne Ferrier are all at or over the .300 batting mark.

The two other hurlers for the Rams have struggled, however, as Correna Berlinger is 3-8 with an ERA of 2.42, while Sue Foggo checks at 5-5 with a 2.80 ERA.

UMass counters with a team that has been impressive lately.

The pitching duo of Liz Wagner and Danielle Henderson have been brilliant on the mound for coach Elaine Sortino's squad. Both pitchers are 12-5, with Wagner just edging her freshman teammate in the ERA department 1.22 to 1.26. Opponents are hitting a meager .153 against the talented tandem.

Offensively for the Minutewomen, junior Sam Cardenas has played a starring role. After wrapping up a week that saw her hit at a torrid .588 clip, she finds herself in the midst of a 13-game hitting streak. Cardenas is now hitting .316 for the season, to go along with team leads in both home runs (tied with two) and RBI (30).

After an impressive rookie campaign a year ago, sophomore first baseman Kim Guttridge has shown no signs of a second-year slump. She is second on the team in hitting (.387) and has 19 RBI.

The Minutewomen have dominated the all-time series with the Rams going 42-12 against them dating back to 1976. In three games against URI last year, UMass cruised to three easy victories.

Following today's twinbill, the Minutewomen will take to the road for weekend doubleheaders against Atlantic 10 rivals Fordham and LaSalle, before returning home next Tuesday to battle arch-rival Connecticut.

Is Your Smoke Detector Working?

More Americans have smoke detectors than ever before. But nearly half don't work.

Without a working smoke detector as an early warning device, fire can spread unnoticed through the household, blocking escape routes and filling rooms with deadly smoke.

Make sure you're protected. Start a lifesaving habit this October 29. When you change your clocks from daylight-saving time, change the batteries in your smoke detectors.

A message from your fire department.

©1995 Energizer® brand Batteries
International Association of Fire Chiefs

Set Your Sights On a Good Meal

The Biggest and Best Burritos Money Can Buy!
Bueno Y Sano
1 Boltwood Walk • Amherst • 253-4000

1996 SUMMER SESSION
Division of Continuing Education
Direction for Your Life.
Call 413-545-0107 for a free course catalog. E-mail: contined@admin.umass.edu
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Spirit Haus
Specialty Beverage Center
Specials...
Bud Dry Case Bottles $9.99
Bud 16 oz. Cans $4.99/six
Meister Brau $3.99 12-pack cans
Jack Daniels 750 ml $11.99
Castillo Silver & Gold Rum $11.99 1.75 liters
For the Connoisseur...
Harpoon I.P.A. $8.99 12 pack bottles
Shipyard (Ale, Brown Ale, Stout) $4.99/six
Magic Hat (Ale, #9, Blind Faith) $5.99/six
Skyy Vodka $11.99 750 ml
Half Keg Special Red Hook E.S.B. $79.00
Micro-Brewed Beer Kegs in Stock
Wine Coolers • Ice • Mixers • Mini Kegs • Beer Glasses
FULL REDEMPTION CENTER
Rt. 9 East College Street • 253-5384
one mile east of Amherst Center on Rt. 9E
VISA – MASTERCARD – DISCOVER Accepted
Attention Grad Students: Take 10% off Regularly Priced Fine Wines

CAMPUS ACTIVITIES AT THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS PRESENTS
A WEEKLY PROGRAM SERIES: SOMETHING EVERY FRIDAY
Selected Hilarity

Five Improv-comics will deliver a comic experience unlike any other to the Bluewall Cafe. Stand-up, improvisation, skits and music will fill this fast-paced show.
CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM • Friday April 19, 1996
Following this performance will be the movie "Heat" shown in the Bluewall Cafe • 8pm • FREE • Popcorn & Punch Available
This series is made possible by a grant from Auxiliary Services and the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs.

Sosa leads Cubs over Reds; Padres beat Rockies

By Rick Gano
Associated Press

CHICAGO — Less than 48 hours earlier, Sammy Sosa was whiffing at the wind, striking out five times in one game. On Wednesday he was taking his familiar home run trot around the bases — not once but twice — to lead the Chicago Cubs to an 8-6 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

"Monday night was tough for me but people who play every day are going to strike out. I just went out today with a different attitude," said Sosa, who hit a two-run homer in the bottom of the 10th off Johnny Ruffin (0-1) to beat the Reds on Wednesday. "I'm trying to make contact and whatever pitches he throws, that's no problem," said Sosa, who now has four homers. "I kept my head down, laid off the bad pitches and when he threw my pitch, I hit it."

Sosa's game-winner came after Mark Grace led off the 10th with a walk. His first homer came in the third off Kevin Jarvis and carried well out of Wrigley Field.

"It went a long way. Usually if they scrape the bottom of the fence, it's good enough for me. But that first one got my attention. It had a chance to hit the building," Cubs manager Jim Riggleman said. "Sammy's a heck of a player. He was just frustrated the other night in the first night game here." Turk Wendell (1-0) pitched two hitless innings of relief for the win.

Jeff Branson tripled twice for the Reds, who had three errors. "We played horrible defense," said Reds manager Ray Knight. "We missed grounders at second and short. This is a major league team and we shouldn't make those kind of errors. In the future we won't."

Cincinnati tied it 6-6 in the seventh inning when Hal Morris greeted reliever Doug Jones with a RBI double. The hit came immediately after Luis Gonzalez made a perfect one-hop throw from left field to cut down Bret Boone trying to score from second on Eddie Taubensee's single.

Chicago starter Jaime Navarro failed for the fourth straight start to get his first victory, going 6 2-3 innings.

Sosa's two-run homer in the third gave the Cubs a 5-2 lead. Cincinnati closed to 5-4 the next inning when Lenny Harris tripled in two, following an error by shortstop Rey Sanchez. Ryne Sandberg, in a 3-for-34 skid, doubled in another Chicago run in the fourth before Branson hit his second triple and scored on an infield out in the sixth to bring the Reds within 6-5.

The Cubs scored three unearned runs after two were out in the first when Cincinnati's infield had trouble catching the ball. Brian McRae walked and Sandberg reached on Boone's error at second. Two outs later, Gonzalez reached on infield single with Branson making a wild throw as the first run scored. Scott Servais hit an RBI single off Barry Larkin's chest at short and then Leo Gomez singled in another run.

The Reds had a 1-0 lead in the top half on Larkin's single and an RBI double by Taubensee.

Cincinnati cut it to 3-2 in he second on Eric Davis' single and Branson's fly ball triple that got behind Sosa.

Jarvis, just called up from the minors Tuesday, was making his first start since last June but lasted only three innings.

Notes: Sosa's two-homer game was the 17th of his career and first since last September. He now has 135 career homers... To make room for Jarvis on the roster, the Reds sent Hector Carrasco to Triple-A Indianapolis. He was 0-0 with an 8.59 ERA in six relief appearances for the Cincinnati... Reggie Sanders missed his fifth straight game with a sore lower back. An MRI taken Tuesday revealed a bruised lower back... Cubs right-hander Jose Guzman pitched six scoreless innings in a rehabilitation assignment with the team's Class A affiliate at Daytona, Fla. He had no decision with two walks and six strikeouts... Brian McRae stole his seventh base in as many tries.

Padres 11, Rockies 6

DENVER (AP) — Marc Newfield had four hits and four RBIs — both career-highs — to power the San Diego Padres past the Colorado Rockies 11-6 on Wednesday.

Newfield's three-run homer in the fourth helped the Padres jump out to an 8-2 lead.

Newfield, starting all three games of the series in left field in place of the injured Rickey Henderson, went 8-for-13 in the series with two homers and seven RBIs.

For the second straight game, the Padres got hitting production from their starting pitcher. On the heels of Andy Ashby's 4-for-4 effort Tuesday night, Sean Bergman had a two-run single.

Wally Joyner and Craig Shipley added three hits apiece for the Padres, who collected 17 hits off six Colorado pitchers. Colorado has given up 40 runs in the last four games.

Padres reliever Bryce Florie (1-0) went three innings for the win.

The Padres roughed up Marvin Freeman (1-2) for eight runs in the first four innings.

Jody Reed had RBI singles in each of the first two innings. After two singles and walk in the third inning, Bergman hit a two-run single.

San Diego sent eight batters to the plate in a four-run fourth to take an 8-2 lead. Reed walked and Ken Caminiti reached on a fielding error by first baseman Andres Galarraga. Joyner hit an RBI, and Newfield hit a 437-foot homer to center — his second in as many games.

Larry Walker's RBI double in the first produced Colorado's first run. Dante Bichette singled, stole second and scored on Galarraga's single in the third.

Colorado strung together four straight hits to open the fifth, scoring three runs to chase Bergman. Galarraga ripped a two-run double down the left-field line and Vinny Castilla followed with an RBI single.

San Diego made it 9-5 in the sixth on Shipley's run-scoring double.

Newfield had an RBI double in the eighth and Brad Ausmus drove in the 11th run on a fielder's choice grounder.

Notes: Colorado's Ellis Burks has failed to deliver in bases-loaded situations three times in two games... Rockies right-hander Bill Swift, still bothered by a sore shoulder following off-season surgery, departed for Birmingham, Ala., to be examined on Thursday by Dr. James Andrews. Swift, who had hoped to be pitching by the end of the month, took with him his last two MRIs, including one from Tuesday... Jayhawk Owens, scheduled to be the Rockies' starting catcher but recovering from a torn ligament in his left thumb, finished a stint with the club's extended spring program in Arizona. He will join Triple-A Colorado Springs on Thursday to begin his rehab assignment... San Diego's Tony Gwynn did not start the second straight game because of an inflamed right heel... Henderson missed his third consecutive game with a strained rib cage... Colorado drew 48,011, its 59th consecutive sellout and eighth this season. The Rockies' home average of 48,006 leads the majors... The Padres remained in first place for the 15th straight day, its longest stretch as a frontrunner since a 16-day run in April 1991.

Brewers 8, Yankees 4

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Jose Valentin hasn't been his reliable self in the field this season. Thankfully for the Milwaukee Brewers, he hasn't been his usual self at the plate, either.

Valentin made his seventh error Wednesday but matched his career high with four RBIs, and the Brewers chased David Cone early in an 8-4 victory over the New York Yankees for a sweep of their two-game series.

Valentin, who got three hits right-handed Tuesday night, went 2-for-4 from the left side Wednesday with a two-run double off Cone and a two-run single off Mariano Rivera. He raised his batting average to .341 — 113 points higher than his career average.

"We're getting a lot more out of him offensively than anyone expected and probably not as much defensively as everybody expected," Brewers manager Phil Garner said. "But he's still going to win ballgames for you."

"Last year when I wasn't hitting, I contributed with my glove," Valentin said. "This year, I'm having some problems in the field, so I got to do something with my bat. That's baseball." The Yankees didn't think Valentin should have been in position to drive in two runs off Cone in the Brewers' four-run first inning.

They disagreed with first base umpire Jim Joyce's safe call on John Jaha's two-out infield single that went off Cone's glove toward second baseman Mariano Duncan.

Jaha beat Duncan's throw with a headfirst slide, and then Valentin's double skipped past first baseman Tino Martinez. Valentin took third on the throw to the plate and scored on a wild pitch for a 4-0 lead.

Asked what kind of impact Jaha's hit had in rattling Cone, Yankees manager Joe Torre replied: "Aside from the fact that he was out, you mean?"

"It was a quick four runs," said Cone (2-1), who had surrendered just one earned run in his first 21 innings this year but gave up six earned runs in five innings. "It put us in a hole early. I'm in a position to have to throw a shutout the rest of the way."

Ricky Bones (1-2), who scattered seven hits in 7 1-3 innings for the win, said he wouldn't trade Valentin for any other shortstop. "He's going to make the plays. He made a throwing error today but it was an aggressive error," Bones said. "Then, the next inning, he backhands a ball off Wade Boggs in the hole that nobody else could have reached and then makes a perfect throw.

"Plus, he's getting the runs in at the plate."

Chuck Carr, starting for the first time since aggravating his left hamstring strain on April 11, had an immediate impact, leading off with a single, taking third Fernando Vina's single and scoring on Kevin Seitzer's shallow sacrifice fly to right.

Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN: Mon.-Sat. 9a.m.-11 p.m. Tel: 549-2692.
Shop Scott's & Save!!
Thank You For Your Patronage
Check The Rest - Shop The Best!
Busch & Busch Light 30 Pack $11.79 +dep
Corona 12 pack bottles $8.39 +dep
Southern Comfort 750 ml $8.99
Quantity Discounts
Dozens Of In Store Specials!
We've Got The Competition Beat!!!
Tele-Check for your personal check
Check Out Our Other Great In Store Specials
6 University Drive at Newmarket Center, Amherst

RUN FOR NEWMAN
APRIL 27, 1996
WHERE?: Boyden side of the UMass Alumni Stadium track
WHEN?: Saturday, April 27, 1996
9:30 a.m. (walkers); 10 a.m. (runners)
WHY?: To benefit the Newman center. Sponsors are appreciated.
REGISTRATION: At the Campus Center Concourse and the Newman Center Cafeteria 10 a.m. - 1 p.m., April 16-18, 24-26 and at the Newman Center Office April 1-26
PRIZES: Free T-shirts for the first 300 to register. $100 first prizes to first man and first woman . . . plus other valuable prizes.
For more information call the Newman Main Office at 549-0300.

Get the credits you need fast this summer...

...without disrupting your usual activities.
One week courses are just one of the advantages of coming to Bentley this summer.
• More scheduling flexibility than any other Boston area college
• One, two, five, six or eight week options
• Day and evening classes
• Courses that meet on five consecutive Fridays
• Bentley offers essential business courses in accounting, computer information systems, economics, finance, management and marketing.
• Business programs are AACSB accredited so credits should transfer easily.
• Better quality learning experience due to smaller class sizes
• An excellent value compared to similar offerings at Boston College, Boston University, Northeastern and Suffolk.
To learn more e-mail cenfo@bentley.edu; call 1-800-5-BENTLEY; fax 1 617-891-2729 or return the coupon
BENTLEY
WALTHAM, MA 02154-4705
Please send me your 1996 Summer Sessions Course Schedule.
NAME
ADDRESS
CITY STATE
ZIP PHONE
Mail to: Bentley College, 175 Forest St., Waltham, MA 02154-4705
Email: cenfo@bentley.edu Phone: 1-800-5-BENTLEY Fax: 617-891-2729

SPEND THE DAY IN
NEW YORK CITY
Saturday April 20th
$20.00 round trip
Leave haigus mall @ 6:30am
Get back @ 2:30am
TO NYC
For more information call: The Commuter Area Government at 545-2145
Tickets can be purchased at the Commuter Services and housing resource center (428 Student Union above People's Market.)

The Minutemen's 12-10 loss to Harvard yesterday hindered UMass' chances at capturing the New England Championship.

■ Harvard

continued from page 18

With less than four minutes to go, Massachusetts unleashed some relentless defensive pressure that prompted a Harvard time out.

However, each side was good for a goal to close out the first half. Wojcik rocketed one past Massachusetts keeper John Kasselakis off a pass from Mike Ferrucci with 27 seconds to go.

The Minutemen countered as Hoffman took it in and ripped one six yards off the top of the crease to put UMass up 4-2 at the half.

It was the Brendan Glass show in the third as he had his way with the Crimson defense netting four goals, three of which were unassisted. Glass sent the first one in from the left hand corner of the crease 1:10 into the game. Three and a half minutes later, Glass lit up the board again on an unassisted underhand turnaround through the five hole. After junior attack Ken Sussi tallied one of his own 6:08 into the third, Glass had some more acrobatic goals up his sleeve. He put his third goal in off a 360-degree underhanded bouncer at the 8:20 mark which put the Minutemen up 8-2.

The Crimson were down, but not out, as Ferrucci netted one 9:51 into the period and then scored again with 25 seconds to go off an assist from Mike Eckerd. Jim Bevilacqua charged from the top of the box and bounced his first of three period closing goals past Kasselakis, kicking off an 8-0 Harvard run. Glass was good for one more, putting one in from 10 yards out on the left side. The Crimson tide turned from here on in, chopping a five-goal deficit to two (9-7) before rolling to the win.

Wojcik was first on the board for Harvard putting one in from the right side 5:36 into the half. Ferrucci added another goal to an outstanding game as he took advantage of Kasselakis, who came way out of the crease, allowing for the equalizer, 9-9. Ferrucci followed his goal with two assists, one to each of the Crimson's Marvin brothers, Pat and Mike, for goals 10 and 11, prompting a UMass timeout with just over six minutes to play.

The Minutemen's Bailey broke the Crimson run with a left-side unassisted goal with over three minutes to play, but for UMass it was too little, too late, as Harvard left Amherst with a 12-10 win.

"You watch their attack shoot and pass the ball," UMass coach Greg Cannella said. "Those guys take advantage of their opportunities and that was the difference. They did a great job in transition, they finished the ball off and won the ball game."

■ killer instinct

continued from page 18

Harvard was only penalized twice, both for only 30 seconds and UMass was unable to take advantage.

Lack of balanced scoring — While Brendan Glass was able to lead the Minutemen with five goals in the contest, only five different Minutemen got into the scoring column.

One of those five was long-stick midfielder Dennis Kelly, who collected a rare goal for a pole-player.

The offensive midfield was essentially shut out. The only goal scored by a UMass offensive middie was by Eric Bailey, and he had moved up to play attack at the time.

Jim Kennedy, who has been huge for the Minutemen in recent weeks, along with Casey Costello, Chris Grande and Mike DelPercio, were all kept off the board.

"Anytime you can have a lot of people scoring, it's great," Cannella said. "We didn't have that today. You need production from your midfield. That doesn't happen today, and we lose."

• • •

The win puts the Crimson in the driver's seat in it's bid to capture the New England Championship. Harvard is now 3-0 against regional competition with wins over Boston College and Vermont, in addition to UMass. Considerable obstacles lie ahead still for the Cambridge-based institution, as both No. 8 Brown and No. 18 Yale still lie ahead.

Defending champion Brown dug itself a considerable hole when it was upset by Yale earlier in the season. The Bears would vault themselves back into the leader category, however, if they can defeat Massachusetts (May 4) and Harvard.

The Minutemen, who have already beaten Yale, will need some help to have a chance at the New England title. If they beat Brown, and Brown beats Harvard, then the Minutemen and Crimson would be tied, with each team only having one loss in New England.

"There are a lot of very good teams in New England, and right now it's very wide open," Anderson said.

"This was a big game for New England and the New England Champion usually goes to the tournament," Kasselakis said. "We have to come out and beat Brown, and hope Brown beats Harvard."

Rizzotti wins Naismith Award

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — University of Connecticut All America Jennifer Rizzotti has been named the outstanding women's college basketball player under 5-foot-6.

Rizzotti, a 5-foot-5 senior, will receive the Frances Pomeroy Naismith Award, named for James Naismith's daughter-in-law, at a May 4 dinner during enshrinement weekend at the Basketball Hall of Fame, Joe O'Brien, president of the Hall of Fame, announced Wednesday.

The honor is the latest in a string for Rizzotti, who was also the Associated Press Player of the Year and this year's winner of the Wade Trophy, named for Margaret Wade, one of the first women to be inducted into the Basketball Hall of Fame.

She was also the second player in Big East Conference history to be named both the conference Player and Scholar Athlete of the Year. The only other player — men's or women's — to do so was her teammate Rebecca Lobo, the center on Connecticut's undefeated 1995 national championship team.

Off the court the biology major from New Fairfield, Conn., has maintained a 3.45 grade point average.

Rizzotti was chosen for the award by a panel from the Women's Basketball Coaches Association.

DAILY COLLEGIAN
The New England Newspaper Association's Daily College Newspaper of the Year, 1994
Free Every Day

We Deliver
Kai Chi
To UMass
Chinese-American Cuisine Restaurant & Bar
Mt. Farms Mall, Rt. 9 Hadley • 586-2774
Open Sun-Thurs 11-11 pm Fri-Sat 12-3 am
Enjoy HALF PRICE APPETIZERS 9 pm - Close • 7 Days a Week
31 Selections!
Ex: Pu Pu (for 2) Reg. $11.95 Now $5.99
No other promos apply • EAT IN ONLY

• Weekly Specials on Regular Beers • Fine Wines
R&P Liquors
• Largest Selection of Micro Brews in S. America • Fridge Rentals
253-9742
505 West St. • South Amherst
Minutes from Mill Valley, The Brook, & The Boulders

RELAX?
FORGET IT!
PLAY HARD TO STAY HARD
JOIN THE BEST
HAMPSHIRE FITNESS
90 GATEHOUSE ROAD
256-6446

$5,000 Reward For Information About Rape
A reward for $5,000 is being offered for any information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person who committed an alleged rape/sexual assault upon a UMass student in the bathroom of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity on or about February 29 - March 1, 1996. Any persons with information should contact Attorney Jeffrey A. Newman at 1-800-354-7441, Fax (617) 723-3122, or write Jeffrey A. Newman, Newman & Beeler, 45 School Street, Boston, MA 02108.

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
SEE IT TONIGHT at 7 & 9:15 (NO SHOWING FRI/SAT)
FILM RESUMES SUN. thru THUR. (Same Time-Last Days)
The Only Local Showing
"THERE WON'T BE A BETTER FILM THAN THIS ALL YEAR!"
"TWO THUMBS UP, WAY UP!"
A HOMESPUN MURDER STORY BY JOEL & ETHAN COEN
FARGO
From the team that gave you Blood Simple and Raising Arizona
ACADEMY OF MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Cinema Treasures 584-8433

When Appearance Counts, Count on Jonathan Reid
for a great selection of men's suits and knowledgeable, professional service
Suit Sale, 40% Off or More!
Jonathan Reid
The Men's Store
Hampshire Mall
Hadley, MA
586-5302

Come Enjoy our all new delicious
BUFFET
Over 20 Different Items To Choose
Served 7 Days A Week Lunch & Dinner
Lunch Buffet • $5.95
Dinner Buffet • $8.95
Soups • Entrees • Appetizers
Regular Lunch and Dinner Menus Always Available • Full Liquor License
Start Planning for Graduation Day
"Bringing The Tradition To You"
CHINA DYNASTY
RESTAURANT AND LOUNGE
Delivery thru Delivery Express 549-0077
Route 9 & University Drive in Amherst
256-8800
OPEN DAILY: 11:30 AM-10 PM - FRI. & SAT. TILL 11 PM - SUN 12-10 PM

Minuteman Volkswagen
Ask For First Time College Program!
Patricia Dolan
Sales Representative
TEL. 617-275-8000
38 North Road
Bedford, Mass. 01730

Eastover Resort
P.O. Box 2160, Lenox, MA 01240 Phone (413) 637-0625
Social Director Summer Position Available
Summary Of Position:
Under the direction of the General Manager, this position is responsible for implementing new guest activities, directing the old and new activities, and maintaining guest relations through the recreational aspect of the resort. The Social director is also responsible for the training of the other members of the Recreation staff, as a team leader.
Every member of the Social staff will assist in any type of work of the proper operation of the Resort.
Benefits: • Room and board • Full use of facility • Salary
Specifications: • High school diploma and one year of college • Strong verbal and communication skills • Drivers license
Dates: June 1 to September 2 (flexible)
Interviews at UMass
Please call Rob McNinch for application, and more information:
1-800-VACA-FUN • 1-800-822-2386

Campus Center Hotel
Attention 1997 Graduates!
The Campus Center Hotel has a limited number of rooms available for:
Graduation Weekend of May 1997
Reservations will be chosen through a random drawing of written requests. Interested persons should pick up a request form from the Campus Center Hotel Reservation Office before May 3rd. Letters will be drawn at random on May 6th, '96. No requests will be accepted over the phone. All respondents will be notified by mail or you may contact the Reservation Office after June 1st at 549-6000.
Please send your request forms to:
The Campus Center Hotel
Reservations Office
Graduation '96
Amherst, MA 01003

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ANNOUNCEMENTS

KU CHI - Interviewing Sunday thru Thursday 10-11 pm and every Friday and Saturday 10-1 am 549-1774

It's Back!! The Great UMass Mountain Bike Sale April 24 & 25 Student Union Ballroom 9-5 545-3437

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Apartment available for Fall 2 bed room 2 bath Puffton Village on bus route $650 per month including heat Call 549-7731

TAKE OVER OUR LEASE! Starting June 1st 3bR Puffton Apt. $825/month 549-5405

Two Bedroom Presidential Apt Take over my lease 1 1/2 mile away Available 6/1 $575/mon 549-6675

3 BdRm Puffton Apt Ideal location Near bus stop and land Heat and hot water incl Call 549-9219

TAKE OVER OUR LEASE! Spectacular 3BDR/2bath Puffton Village Apt avail June 1st $825 per month Call before 4:30pm 549-1781

Large Four Bdrm apartment on bus line w/laundry room schools First floor of house Must see $900/month call 549-7908

TAKE OVER OUR LEASE - nice bedroom apartment great location right in town Heat and hot water included call 256-0428

Two bedroom Puffton Take over lease starting June 1 Heat/hot water included $690/month Call 549-7206

2 Bedroom Puffton Apt take over our lease Available 6/1 $665/month call 549-5875

Live in beautiful mountain view apartment! Spacious and classy. Two big bed rooms and baths. Lease starts June 1 contact 253-7579 ASAP

Great Location! Amherst 2 bdrm apt Nr/nh Pleasant St Take over our lease June 1st Call 253-0768

Best Selection of 1's and 3 bedroom apartments in the center of town Gas heat and hardwood floors Lincoln Real Estate 253-7879

Take over our lease 6/1! Two bedroom two bath Puffton Apt $680 per month includes heat/hot water Avoid the waiting list! 549-1176

Apartments available for June and September (summer sublets too! Call for details! Squire Village 665-7203

Three bedroom condominiums, with gas heat and hardwood floors Lincoln Real Estate 253-7879

AUTO FOR SALE

1981 Honda Accord 91,000 Mi Good used car Well maintained A/C AM/FM cassette stereo $1,000 Call John 549-1046

1987 Plymouth Colt 5 speed 95k $1,000 or best offer Leave message at 253-2

1994 GEO PRIZM, Black 73,000 miles Has to Sell! Call 256-8862

Purchasing a used car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your rights? Contact the Student Legal Services Office in Campus Center 545-1995

1988 Chevy Nova 91,000 miles sheet metal/engine in good condition $1,000 or best offer Nancy upstairs 1 gm 549-3707

AUTO FOR SALE

1983 Kawasaki Ltd 500 brought new in '84 in excellent condition 44 miles Michelins are must see $2700/BO 253-9330

EMPLOYMENT

START YOUR OWN CAREER in a fast growing business Sales experience or training NOT necessary Contact MATT at 413 827 4168 or e-mail matthew@student.umass.edu

ALASKA EMPLOYMENT - Fisheries Parks Resorts hiring for summer! Earn $3,000 $6,000+/Mo! Airfare Room/Board! No exp. required Ask about our VIDEO! Call (919) 932 1489 ext A192

SCERA needs a Student Coordinator Coordinate research and advocacy $8hr Experience working with student groups and knowledge of undergrad issues required Summer and Fall Resume by April 25th to Marc Kenen Room 420 Student Union Building

LAST CHANCE LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED - April 15 1996 is the last day to contact the legal services center about a Fall 1996 internship! Get hands on experience in the legal field WORK directly with attorneys and clients Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits No experience in the legal profession required training is provided Contact legal services today 545-1995, 922 Campus Center

National Parks Hiring Positions are now available at National Parks Forests & Wildlife Preserves Excellent benefits & bonuses! Call (206) 971-3620 ext N50614

Fall/Part Time Typewriters the most fun you'll have making serious money Call Danielle at 256-8883

Summer Internship 20 Hrs/week paid per week 4 to 6 weeks Minorities interested in broadcasting business encouraged to apply! Resumes by 4.30 to Rick Haldeman Today's 99.3 Box 268 Northampton, Ma 01061

SMALL, COED, OVERNIGHT CAMP

Looking for outgoing male counselors who enjoy working with children ages 7 13 yrs Incredible experience Call Michelle at 546 6677 or Ken at 413 528 3709

Student Painters needed $8/hour and bonuses Summer work for hardworking people in the Hopkinton Ashland area Call Brian 800 852 5578

Summer Painters hiring for Boston and Hartford Will train completely Earn $6 $10/hr Call N E Collegiate Painters at 800 649 9939

Woman needed for research project Runners and Sedentary women 18 25 years of age You will be paid $150 If interested call 549 9507 ask for Deanna

Counselors Coed overnight weight loss camp Looking for outgoing athletic individuals who enjoy working with children Great experience Call 413 232 8518

Eastern Europe Jobs - Teach basic conversational English in Prague Budapest or Krakow No teaching certificate or European Languages required Inexpensive room and board and other benefits For info call 206 971 3680 ext K50611

FOR RENT

3 Bedroom Puffton Apt Take over lease June 1 549-7091

2 Bedroom Apt in Colonial Village Pay $750 for one bedroom Have the other one free (July 15 Aug 31) 256-8947

1 Bedroom Apt. available June 1st Great clean and spacious Call 549-5629 Close and convenient for 1 or 2

3 Bedroom Apt in Puffton Village starting June 1 Gas, heat, AC, water incl Option to lease Call 549-8621 for more info

FOR SALE

Bass/Guitar/Amp - Gibson les Paul with case $300 b o Ibanez 5 string bass bought new hardly used $450 b o Crate 160 watt bass amp $250 b o 256 1992

Laptop Computers Cheap Great WP all under 100 Call E (758)

Moving Sale - Bed couches kitchen set coffee tables tables Call 253 4298

Tele Car Rack Guitar Mount $50 Call 253 0362 Leave message

486 DX66 Computer 540 MB Hard drive 8meg ram flex modem 14" monitor $1100 o b o Call 253 0362 Leave Message

Computer Fair Mulling Center Saturday April 20 10AM 4PM 100 Hours free Internet plus bonus of 10 hours on line 401 First 500 customers buy from the experts at wholesale right at the show from up to 70 different companies 200 exhibits featuring IBM/PC compatible market latest technology from full systems to shareware It's all here General admission $7.00 each With ad $6.00 each after 1PM $4.00 each with ad only

Stairmaster for sale. Good condition $75.00 or b.o. call leave a mesage 549 0367

2 Pioneer 4X10 car speakers & 2 infinity 4x6 dash speakers $130 both pairs Call Jeff 4 info 253 4161

10 Gal Fish Tank starts inc. $65 BO Jeff 253 4161

EMPLOYMENT

Looking for summer jobs? Openings available at Brandywine Apartments Lifeguards full time and p/t Must be Red Cross certified Grounds Keepers/Porters full time Must be hard working reliable and responsible Stop by Brandywine office 180 Brandywine Drive Amherst Ma (01002 549 0600

National Parks, Beach/Mt. Resorts, Ranches Fishing Co's now hiring! Nationwide 500 employers! Top pay benefits Call (919) 932 1489 ext A170

Alaska Student Employment— fisheries parks resorts now hiring! Earn $3000 $6000/mo! Airfare! Room/board! Free video w/program! Call 919 932 1489 ext A170

Tropical Resorts Hiring Students needed! Entry level career positions available worldwide Call Resort Employment Services (206) 971 3600 ext R50611

International Employment- Earn up to $25 $45/hour teaching basic conversational English in Japan Taiwan or S Korea No teaching background or Asian languages required For info call (206) 971 3570 ext J50614

Attention All Students! Over $6 Billion in public and private sector grants & scholarship is now available All students are eligible Let us help For more info call 1 800 263 6495 ext F50613

FOR RENT

3 Bedroom Puffton Apt Take over lease June 1 549-7091

2 Bedroom Apt in Colonial Village Pay $750 for one bedroom Have the other one free (July 15 Aug 31) 256-8947

1 Bedroom Apt. available June 1st Great clean and spacious Call 549-5629 Close and convenient for 1 or 2

3 Bedroom Apt in Puffton Village starting June 1 Gas, heat, AC, water incl Option to lease Call 549-8621 for more info

FOR SALE

PUFFTON - 2 females seeking 2 females/mates to share a room in our 3 bedroom renovated apt Available June 1 549-4614

Female Housemates Wanted to share 6 bdrm house on N Amherst Great location on bus route low rent plus utilities Starts 6/1 Call Amy at 549-7076 for more info

Looking for roomates to share three bedroom apartment in Townhouses I have a dog and cat Call Becky at 549-6398 Males or females okay

SERVICES

Pregnant? Need Help? Call Birthright of Amherst area for free testing and caring Assistance 549-1906

LANDSCAPING
Spring cleanup, shrub trimming, pruning, planting debris removal Call 589-1997 for a free estimate

SUMMER SUBLET

Bedroom in Presidential Apts. Walking distance Call 549-4047

Looking for 1-4 people to summer sublet our Mill Valley apartment $715/Month Call 253-7157

2 Bedroom Brandywine Apartment New rugs View of pond Call 549-5418

Large 2BR Apt. Main St 2 min. walk to town, on bus route Furnished! Call 256-8614

FOUND

Sunglasses found on Friday the 12th on GPC low rise ground Cas!! to identify 5-3812

MUSICIANS

Bassist Wanted to form band Influences Rage Nirvana, Alice etc Call Rich 258-1751

MISCELLANEOUS

Person Wanted to own and operate retail candy shop in Amherst area Low investment For information call Mrs Burden's Gourmet Candy Company, Dallas TX (214) 991-8239

Landed a job in Boston? Take the week out of finding an apartment BOSTON BROKER (617) 267 3444 UMASS Alum

PERSONALS

Looking for Long-term Relationship with attractive, sleek, hard bodied stud Must be able to handle rough terrain Meet me at the pond Thursday April 25th at the Lonely Gold Medal Challenge

ROOMMATE WANTED

Looking for 2 people to share a room in 3 bdr. townhouse for lease starting June 1st Also looking for someone to sublet single room for summer only I have a cat and a dog If interested call Becky 549 6398

Looking For 1 or 2 Females to share a 2 BDRM Mill Valley apartment next year Non smokers please Call Sarah at 546 6181

Looking for roomates to share three bedroom apartment in Townhouses I have a dog and cat Call Becky at 549 6398 Males or females okay

SUMMER SUBLET

Bedroom in Presidential Apts. Walking distance Call 549 4047

Looking for 1-4 people to summer sublet our Mill Valley apartment $715/Month Call 253 7157

2 Bedroom Brandywine Apartment New rugs View of pond Call 549 5418

Large 2BR Apt. Main St 2 min. walk to town, on bus route Furnished! Call 256 8614

SUMMER SUBLET

Amherst 1 BR in 3BR Apt $784/Month Heat and Cable incld! Fall opt available 253 9017 Ask for Gabe

Take over our lease June 1 2 Room on Presidential Apt $575/month hot water incl Call 549 9730

Room for Rent 2 min walk to uptown 10 min walk to campus On bus route Utilities included Available May 29 Aug 31 $775 a month 253 9330

2 Bedroom townhouse apt in Puffton Heat, hot water included Available June 1st $ off rent Call 549 7725

Summer Sublet w/Fall Option Spacious sunny room in 2bdrm apt on bus line $275/Mo Nonsmoking female preferred Call 665 0092

Brandywine 1BR Take for summer with option for fall call Rob 549 0880

Summer Sublet with option to lease in Sept 2 bedroom in center of town Heat and parking included Call 256 4981

TO SUBLET

Take over lease June 1 Spacious 2 bdrm apt Heat and hot water inc $1095/Mo 253 3964

Puffton 2 Bdrm 2 Full bath 549 0279 price neg

TRAVEL

Language Courses International Total Immersion Courses in Mexico Ecuador Costa Rica Spain France Italy Germany Austria and Quebec World renowned schools Homestays Short and Long term programs Call 1 800 581 3773 or your UMass Representative, Elinor, at 546 2083

Come Join In The Adventure!! Come White Water Rafting with UMSCC & UMDEF May 31 June 2 Only $199! Call us 5 3437

WANTED

Some friends and I are going abroad for the fall semester We are looking for some people who are leaving after the fall semester to sign an apartment sublease preferred! You take fall, we'll take spring Call 549 5681 Ask for Steph

The UMASS Daily Collegian

A wealth of information at your fingertips everyday.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

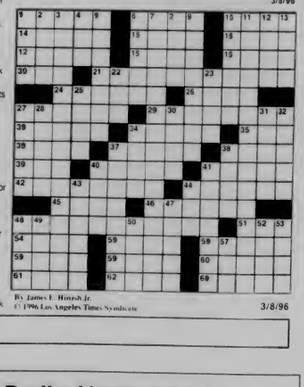
ACROSS
1 Recordkeeper
6 Agora coin
10 Skilled
14 Broadcast again
15 Another name for the mafura tree
16 Work hard
17 Allegro — very quick, in music
18 River to the Mosel
19 Aquanum
20 Wager
21 TV pilot action panels
24 Reach
26 Strong-smelling
27 Lengthy homily
29 Less clear, to a photographer
33 Old-style yearly record
34 Ohio-Mississippi port
35 Nairn negative
36 Pianist or team owner
37 Brought under control
38 Certain execs.
39 Dudgeon
40 Honors, in Hannover
41 Keep the duck moist
42 Certain tenants
44 Heater
45 Badger or hound
46 Place for 27 Across
48 Take to extremes
51 CIA predecessor
54 Jai —
55 Light
56 Wed in haste
58 Maidenhair, for one
59 — fixe
60 Loosen up
61 Vanish
62 Monster's loch
63 Actress Spacek

DOWN
1 King or Dungeness
2 — majesty
3 Atlantic coast
4 Creak
5 Political commentator Irving
6 Bean or Welles
7 Chess or checkers tournament results
8 Sanction, in a way
9 Port
10 Reach
11 Andover, Exeter and others
12 "The Swedish Nightingale"
13 B.P.O.E. members
22 Half a score
23 Potpourri
25 Yuletide, shortened
27 Bwana, in Bengal
28 Month in Madrid
30 Nothing in Nice
31 With an — the ground
32 View anew
34 Singer Vikki
37 Board —
38 Not fem. or neut
40 Ernie's wife
41 Margins
43 Arroyo's relative
44 Play about robots
47 Gabby or Helen
48 Butcher's hook
49 Olive genus
50 Tarry
52 Health resorts
53 Voluptuous
57 Maui memento

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

S	H	E	A		L	A	I	N	K	A	S	K	A	T
P	U	L	P		E	R	R	O	R		T	I	T	O
A	D	I	R	O	N	D	A	C	K		A	L	E	E
			U	S	O			H	A	R	R	I	E	D
S	M	A		T	E	R			N	O	R	M	E
L	A	P	S	E	S		S	O	S	O		A	M	A
A	S	P	E	R		S	C	R	A	M		N	E	T
T	S	A	R		M	E	A	L	S		A	J	A	R
E	L	L		S	C	A	L	E		S	L	A	Y	E
S	E	A		O	K	R	A		S	T	A	R	E	S
		C	A	O	I		P	T	A		O	N	T
A	S	H	C	A	N	S		A	R	I
L	A	I	C		L	A	U	R	E	N	T	I	A	N
A	D	A	R		E	L	S	I	E		A	L	D	A
N	A	N	A		Y	E	A	S	T		P	L	O	T

3/8/96



By James E. Hirsch Jr.
©1996 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

3/8/96

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

Daily Horoscope

ARIES (March 21 – April 19) — Your usual companions may bore you now. Find others who are more fun to be around. A book idea comes from nowhere. Originality of thought will be rewarded.

TAURUS (April 20 – May 20) — News or letters could be delayed. Resist an urge to run away from family problems. They need to be handled in a mature way. Give your partner credit for having good judgment.

GEMINI (May 21 – June 20) — You know what is best for your children. Ignore someone's remarks about what you are "supposed" to do. Keeping diary of important family events will pay off royally in the years to come.

CANCER (June 21 – July 22) — Routine could drive you nuts today. Find a more imaginative way to do something. A delay may prove to be a blessing in disguise. Avoid arguments with your loved ones.

LEO (July 23 – Aug. 22) — Let criticism slide right off your back. A romantic interlude opens your heart and mind to new ideas. Your self-sufficiency works well for you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 – Sept. 22) — Misplaced items will surface in unusual places. Send flowers if you need to be forgiven! The pieces of a puzzle begin to come together. Spice up the evening by dining out.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 – Oct. 22) — Fulfilling a pledge will keep you busy. Deadlines can be met if you act with precision and pay attention to detail. Postpone social events in favor of rest and relaxation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 – Nov. 21) — Dedication and finesse will make a project a huge success. Continue building on yesterday's momentum. Your professional aims attract the attention of someone special.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 – Dec. 21) — It is time to discard an old security blanket. Your potential is tremendous. Tenderness is the key to making a partnership last. Anchor your dreams of success in the fertile soil of hard work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 – Jan. 19) — a younger person takes pleasure in giving you pleasure! You surprise yourself by revising your policy toward former foes. Be magnanimous if someone tries to make amends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 – Feb. 18) — Most of your wishes will come true today. Take care of personal matters first. You have more talent than many people realize. Stay on the same career path; work through any problems that arise.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — March 20) — Although a financial matter has you on pins and needles, the outcome looks good. Use your influence judiciously. Good luck is yours where investments and real estate are concerned.

Life in General By Meredith

SO GUYS, LIKE, WHAT DO I DRAW?
THAT LOOKS GREAT! YOU'RE A REAL NATURAL!
OK, WHERE GUYS?
SO GUYS ARE SUPPOSED TO BE ATTRACTED TO WHAT IS GOOD, AND IS AN ARTIST
YOU GUYS, I JUST HAVE TO SAY, I'M SO IMPRESSED BY WHAT IS HAPPENING IN THE CITY, BUT I HAVE TO GET THOSE IDEAS ABOUT COME ON!!! I'VE LOVED YOU SINCE HIGH SCHOOL!! THE GREAT SAGE IS IN LOVE WITH ME!!

Kippil By Barry Deutch

WELL, JUST SEND THEM A NEW TUITION CHECK AND-
...OH, I SEE. MOM, THEY'RE KICKING ME OUT OF THE DORM — CAN YOU AT LEAST SEND ME MONEY TO LIVE ON UNTIL... WHAT?
C'MON, MOM, YOU CAN YOU NOT HAVE ANY MONEY?
FRANKLY, HON, WE'D HOPED YOU'D BE SUPPORTING US BY NOW.
SCUZE ME, MA'AM, WE NEED TO TAKE THAT PHONE NOW.

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

HOW COME YOU ALWAYS DONATE MONEY AFTER A ROBBERY?
WELL, I...
HEY, STOP PICKIN' ON ROBIN THE GOOD!
WHO'S HE HURTING?
ONLY THE RICH GET ROBBED!
ROBIN'S A SAINT!
HE GIVES TO THE POOR!

Jim's Journal By Jim

I heard a loud bang in the other room today.
I looked and saw a plant on the floor that had been high on a shelf.
Mr. Peterson was hiding.
She must have done it, but I couldn't imagine how she got up there.

Dilbert By Scott Adams

IT HAS COME TO MY ATTENTION THAT 40% OF YOUR SICK DAYS ARE ON FRIDAYS AND MONDAYS. THIS IS UNACCEPTABLE.
HA HA HA !!! THAT'S A GOOD ONE !!!
PLEASE TELL ME HE WAS KIDDING
WELCOME TO HELL, KID.

Snow By Po-Han Wu

I WAS BORN IN TAIWAN, A SUBTROPICAL PLACE, SO I HAD NEVER SEEN SNOW UNTIL I CAME TO UMASS.
I WAS VERY EXCITED WHEN I SAW SNOW THE FIRST TIME !!
HELP! HELP! POOR SNOW!
BUT, I HATE IT NOW!!!
DAMN IT! IT'S APRIL!
WHAT IS ME WHAT?

Close to Home By John McPherson

"Ironically, we were driving across the country because my husband is afraid of flying."

Collegian Comics, so funny we forgot to laugh.

Today's D.C. Menu

Berkshire

LUNCH	DINNER
Chicken Cutlet	Szechuan Beef
Sandwich	Szechuan Tofu
Bow Ties	Pastabilities
LightBurger™	Chicken Cacciatore

Franklin

LUNCH	DINNER
Hamburger	Szechuan Beef
Veal Sandwich	Baked Ziti
Chicken Stew	Chicken Tenders (breaded)

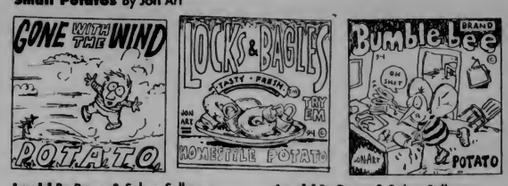
Hampshire

LUNCH	DINNER
Hamburger	Szechuan Beef
Veal Sandwich	Baked Ziti
Summit Subs	Summit Subs
Stone Willy's	Stone Willy's
Grilled Chicken

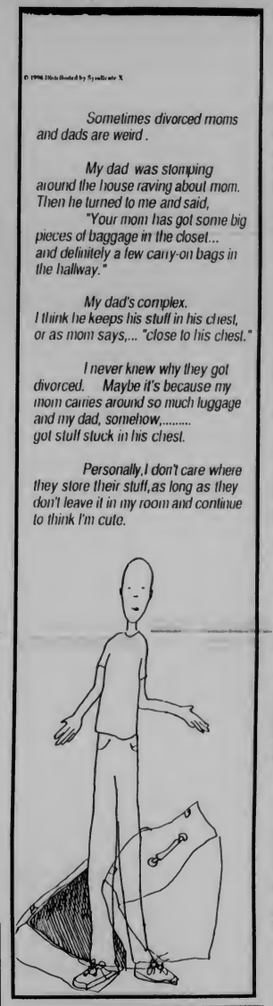
Worcester

LUNCH	DINNER
Chicken Cutlet	Szechuan Beef
Sandwich	Szechuan Tofu
Bow Ties	Pastabilities
Lightburger	Chicken Cacciatore

Small Potatos By Jon Art



Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom



Sometimes divorced moms and dads are weird.

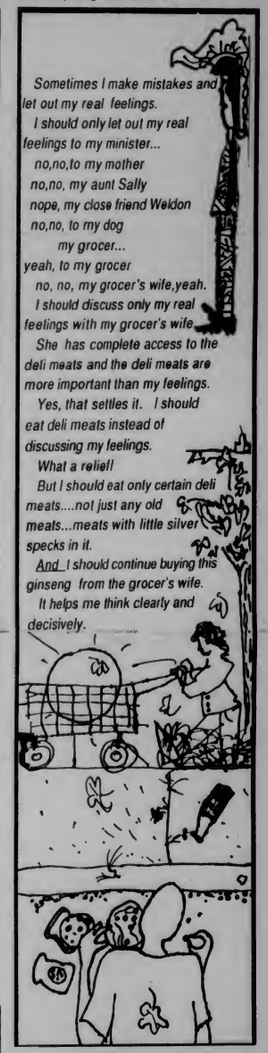
My dad was stomping around the house raving about mom. Then he turned to me and said,
"Your mom has got some big pieces of baggage in the closet... and definitely a few carry-on bags in the hallway."

My dad's complex. I think he keeps his stuff in his chest, or as mom says,... "close to his chest."

I never knew why they got divorced. Maybe it's because my mom carries around so much luggage and my dad, somehow,..... got stuff stuck in his chest.

Personally, I don't care where they store their stuff, as long as they don't leave it in my room and continue to think I'm cute.

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom



Sometimes I make mistakes and let out my real feelings.
I should only let out my real feelings to my minister...
no,no,to my mother
no,no, my aunt Sally
nope, my close friend Weldon no,no, to my dog
my grocer...
yeah, to my grocer
no, no, my grocer's wife,yeah.
I should discuss only my real feelings with my grocer's wife.
She has complete access to the deli meats and the deli meats are more important than my feelings.
Yes, that settles it. I should eat deli meats instead of discussing my feelings.
What a relief!
But I should eat only certain deli meats....not just any old meats...meats with little silver specks in it.
And I should continue buying this ginseng from the grocer's wife.
It helps me think clearly and decisively.

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Marni E. Heifner
Copy Editor ..... Chris Connor
Photo Technician ..... Emily Reily
Production Supervisor ..... Tony Morse
Production ..... Kevin C. Farrar
Michael Krozy, Mike Troupe

Quote of the Day

"I think carrots are good for you."

–Alby Reiner, UMass Biology Professor

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN

Top 10 By Brian Marchionni

Top 10 Signs that spring is here

10. Drunken college students downtown replaced by shirtless drunken college students downtown.
9. The ducks start to ... uh–huh–huh ... you know.
8. Slowly campus starts to look like a scene from Lollapalooza.
7. A winter's worth of urine deposited in the campus pond begins to decompose.
6. You often find me taking my pet ferret "Bubbles" out for a stroll.
5. Big Lick, the ever popular ska–funk band from Norfolk, plays at The Grotto in Northampton on Friday at 3 p.m.
4. Once again, the phrase "study–shmudy" becomes a UMass favorite.
3. There's a dramatic increase in sightings of "Chupacabras."
2. Chancellor Scott starts to wear his new sun dress to meetings.
1. The Red Sox embark on three months of non–stop sucking.

Sports

Massachusetts loses six goal lead, falls to Harvard

By Chris Stamm
Collegian Staff

Just as the skies above Richard F. Garber field went from sunshine to clouds, the playing of the Massachusetts men's lacrosse team did as well.

The No. 10 Minutemen (5-4) expanded the lead over No. 11 Harvard (5-2) by as much as six goals in the third, but ultimately lost 12-10 in the final minutes.

"I cannot believe the outcome of this," said UMass attack Brendan Glass. "Going 8-2, controlling the game. Their defense was one of the worst defenses I've played against. I think we all had the goalie's number in the first three quarters. I have no idea what they did."

Massachusetts	10
Harvard	12

The first period was slow going for both squads as they each closed out the opening stretch with a goal a piece. The Minutemen lit up the board first as senior attack Buddy Hoffman sent one in from senior midfielder Eric Bailey 2:48 into the game, giving UMass the early lead.

The Crimson countered when senior captain and attack Chris Wojcik put one between the pipes 4:19 into the game, knotting the score at one.

In the second, the Minutemen went on a 3-1 run as they out-shot Harvard 15-12. Senior captain Dennis Kelly took it to Harvard first 6:39 into the period. He broke up the Crimson's passing game to run the field, and then made good on an assist from P.G. Massey from eight yards out on the right side.

Glass tallied his first of five goals in the game 8:18 in, on a turning bouncer to give the Minutemen a 3-1 lead.

Turn to HARVARD page 15

The men's lacrosse team squandered a six-goal lead late in the third quarter, losing to the Harvard Crimson yesterday 12-10.

Massachusetts 10, Harvard 12

at Richard F. Garber Field

UMass (5–4)	1	3	5	1	10
Harvard (5–2)	1	1	5	5	12

Goals — UM: Brendan Glass 5, Buddy Hoffman 2, Eric Bailey, Dennis Kelly, Ken Sussi. H: Mike Ferrucci 3, Chris Wojcik 3, Lou Bevilaqua 2, Chris Bevilaqua 2, Mike Marvin, Pat Marvin.

Assists — UM: Bailey, P.G. Massey, Todd Sokolowski. H: Ferrucci 3, Mike Eckert 2.

Saves — UM: John Kasselakis 13, H: Rob Lyng 16.
Shots — UM 34, H 33.
Faceoffs — UM 17, H 8.
Groundballs — UM 34, H 19.
EMO — UM 0-for-2, H 4-for-8.

Player of the Game

Mike Ferrucci, Harvard — three goals, three assists.

Highlights...

Mike Ferrucci was tremendous for the Crimson scoring three goals and assisting on three others, to help lead a huge second half comeback for the Crimson... UMass led by as many as six, but watched Harvard seize momentum during a 10–2 run to pull of the victory... For the second year in a row, Brendan Glass netted five goals against the Crimson. He holds the team lead in the category with 26 on the season.

Lack of killer instinct, balance scoring, hurts

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

In yesterday's 12-10 loss to Harvard, the Massachusetts men's lacrosse team had several things go wrong late in the game.

Here's a breakdown of what happened:

Lack of killer instinct — The Minutemen held an 8-2 advantage late in the first half, and relaxed as the momentum was clearly in their favor.

Harvard took advantage of the lapse and went on a 10-2 run that the Minutemen were unable to recover from.

"We were up six goals and people think we're going to roll over them," Massachusetts coach Greg Cannella said. "That doesn't happen when you play a good team. That's happened before to us. We need to do a better job of continuing to control the tempo. Harvard is a quick-strike team."

The Crimson were able to dominate possession in the second half, something they were unable to do early, especially in the fourth quarter. Harvard had as many shots in the final quarter as it did in the entire first half.

"We are a good team offensively," Harvard coach Scott Anderson said. "A lot of it is momentum, and at the end we had the momentum."

"We were getting lost," UMass goaltender John Kasselakis said. "If you lose focus, a good team like that is going to beat you every time."

Extra Man Opportunities (EMOs) — The Minutemen were penalized eight times, each for one-minute infractions. The Crimson were able to capitalize on four of the EMOs, including two in the fourth quarter to come away with the victory.

"Harvard has a great team and they take advantage of their opportunities," Cannella said. "That was the difference today."

Turn to KILLER INSTINCT page 15

Chicago wins 70; Magic suspended

The Bulls accomplished something late Tuesday night that no other team ever has done. Led by Michael, Scottie and Dennis, the Bulls won their 70th game of the season beating the Bucks 86-80. In a playoff-like atmosphere in the Bradley Center, Chicago struggled to reach its destiny. Held to just 35 percent shooting by the Bucks, the Bulls relied on a key blocked shot by Michael Jordan (22 points) in the final minute to seal their fate.

So, the debate begins — are the '95-'96 Bulls the best ever? Putting my personal bias aside, the answer is still no. Granted they do have the best 2, 3, 4 combination currently, but being the "best-ever" deals with a lot more than three players. By winning 70 games, Chicago broke the 1971-'72 Lakers record for most wins in a season. The '71-'72 Lakers led by Wilt Chamberlain and Jerry West only won 69. What about the Celtics of Bill Russell, the Lakers of Showtime led by Magic, or the great Celtics of Larry Bird?

Darren Cohen on the NBA

While this debate could last forever, there are certain key elements in deciding "the best." A deep bench, team chemistry, a visible leader and solid role players are just a few of the necessary elements. Right off the bat, a statement needs to be made about Magic's Lakers and the Celtics of Bird. Those were great teams in a competitive league. Without taking away from the immense credit Chicago deserves, the NBA is in an expansion year and has been watered down over the past two years.

The Lakers of Showtime were awesome. Imagine playing against a lineup of Magic, Kareem, Worthy, A.C Green and Byron Scott. Also remember L.A's coach was Pat Riley, the master motivator, the tireless general. Anyone who can think back to the mid 80s knows that the Celtics were just as good, if not better. Parish, McHale, Bird, DJ and Danny Ainge ruled Beantown for many years and rivaled the aforementioned Lakers. Without even mentioning who resided on the pine for the respective teams, my point is clear. The Bulls of today still do not surpass either of the above.

Anyone see the Lakers/Suns matchup on Sunday? Late in the first half, Magic Johnson was ejected for bumping official Scott Foster. What? Magic Johnson? Are you sure? The same Magic who openly ridiculed teammate Nick Van Exel for shoving a referee several days ago?

Turn to NBA page 13

Fenway fantasies lie ahead for UMass

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

The perfectly groomed grass, the warning track, and of course, the vendors voices resonating through the stands.

For most boys, the dream of playing ball in a major league ballpark is just that — a dream. For the members of the Massachusetts baseball team, that dream will become a reality today when the Minutemen take to the field of Fenway Park for a first round game in the Beanpot Baseball Tournament.

UMass will square off against Harvard at 2 p.m., while Northeastern and Boston College will battle it out in the tourney's first game at 11 a.m. The two winners will advance to the Beanpot Championship next Tuesday.

The Minutemen, who will be making their first trip to the Beanpot, are replacing Boston University. BU dropped baseball from its athletics program this year.

Massachusetts comes into the game sporting a 18-9 record, 7-5 in the Atlantic 10. Harvard stands at 11-9, 5-3 Ivy League.

Massachusetts currently has six batters with more than 30 hits. Second baseman Muchie Dagliere and leftfielder Ryan Jette lead the team with 39 apiece. Dagliere has recorded seven doubles, three triples and two home runs to back his .394 batting average. Jette's numbers are similar: five doubles, two triples and two dingers for a .371 average. Dagliere has 25 RBI on the season while Jette, the lead-off man, has brought home 12.

BEANPOT PREVIEW

But the UMass line-up is not just a two-man unit. Eight Minutemen have batting averages above .300. All but two players have connected for extra-base hits, while seven have taken opposing pitchers out of the park.

On the basepaths, shortstop Brad Gorrie is near perfect in stolen base attempts. In 18 tries Gorrie has only been caught stealing once. Jette and designated hitter Doug Clark are also threats to steal. Jette has collected 15 bases in 19 steal attempts, and Clark has been successful in 10 out of 13 tries.

The Minuteman pitching staff has been a strong rotation this season. David Dart leads the team with a 2.70 ERA and a 3-1 record. Jeff Puleri (4.72 ERA, 3-2) and Jason Bennett (6.11 ERA, 3-1) have also seen a good deal of time on the mound. Puleri, the Atlantic 10 Pitcher of the Week, has given up only 14 runs, all earned, and has struck out 15. Dart has allowed 11 runs, 10 of which are earned, and has K'd 21.

Through April 14, six UMass players were ranked in the top 20 for batting in the Atlantic 10. Of the six, three (Dagliere, Gorrie, and Jette) were in the top 10. In pitching, Dart was ranked third.

As a team, Harvard is batting .261. The Crimson is led by Peter Albers, who has produced a .318 batting average. Albers has recorded 21 hits on the year, six doubles and two triples for 16 RBI.

Brett Vankoski is currently batting .296 with 16 hits. He has connected for two doubles and five RBI. David Forst and Marc Levy are the only two players who have started every game for the Crimson. Forst has tallied 11 hits, including one of Harvard's two home runs, and five RBI. Levy has 18 hits, of which four are doubles, and eight RBI.

The Harvard pitching staff is led by Quinn Schifer, who currently sports a 3.18 ERA. Schafer has started three games, going the distance in one, for a 2-1 record. He has allowed only 14 hits and six runs, all earned. He has also struck out 12 and walked only eight.

Frank Hogan sees the most work on the Crimson pitching rotation. He has played in five games this season, starting four. With a 5.00 ERA, Hogan has a 3-1 record. In 27 innings of work, Hogan has allowed 23 hits for 18 runs, 15 earned runs. He has recorded a team-high 20 strikeouts and has walked 11.

While the UMass players will have contend with both their nerves and Harvard, perhaps the most daunting assignment for the afternoon will fall to the senior Jette. He will have the seemingly unenviable task of playing the Green Monster, the wall in leftfield.

But for everyone involved, this game is more than just stats and figures. For many, it is the chance to fulfill a boyhood dream of playing in a big league ballpark.

"I can't wait," Dagliere said. "I've never even been to Fenway. It'll be my first time playing in a major league park. I can't wait to see the Green Monster."

The excitement has reached everyone, including the opposition.

"I don't think anyone is going to be more pumped [to be out there] than I am," Harvard coach Joe Walsh said. "I've been fortunate enough to have been out there before, but it's going to be exciting playing in a big game like this.

"I'm equally excited to play a top-ranked team [UMass]," he added. "It's supposed to be a nice day, and hopefully we'll have a really great ballgame."

The Minutemen played yesterday at Central Connecticut, beating the Blue Devils 18-12.

Jette and freshman catcher Brian Samela had four hits each, including a double from Jette. UMass was powered by an effort at the plate that totaled 18 hits, and the Minutemen capitalized on nine Central Connecticut errors.

Murphy and rightfielder Pete Gautreau each connected for UMass homers.

Freshman lefty Bill Cooke started the game, but sophomore righty Scott Barnsby improved to 3-0 on the season, tossing 3 2/3 innings of relief to pick up the win.

Women's tennis falls to Jeffs, third loss of season

By Mike Carey
Collegian Staff

The temperature is below 40 degrees, it's starting to rain, and the wind is blowing strong enough to fly a kite... it's a perfect day for tennis.

Actually, despite the weather and the ferocious conditions the Minutewomen needed to battle yesterday afternoon, the match started off like it was going to be a good day for the Massachusetts women's tennis team.

Their match against Amherst was the last step in preparation for the Atlantic 10 Tournament on Friday. After two losses earlier in the week to Williams and Boston College, the Minutewomen looked to pull off the victory and regain confidence heading into the weekend.

However, that bid fell just short as they dropped a 5-4 decision to the hand of the Jeffs. UMass will end the regular season at 15-4 overall and 6-3 this spring.

After slight drizzling rain that began right before the match was supposed to start, the contest got underway with all six singles matches being played first in this nine-point scored match.

UMass' No. 1 player Liesl Sitton got the ball rolling as she was the first one to complete her match in straight sets over Laura Keith of Amherst, 6-1, 6-4.

"I think that putting a lot of balls over, instead of trying to come up with a winner, and go up to the middle of the court and just waiting for her to make the mistake [was the key to victory]," Sitton said.

Lana Gorodetskaya, playing in the No. 6 slot was also quick to dispose of her opponent Sam Toerge in a straight set victory 6-2, 6-4.

"My backhand was good today and my first serve was good," Gorodetskaya said.

No. 2 singles player Caroline Steele dropped her match to Pam Diamond by the score of 6-4 in the first set, and 7-6 (7-5) in the second.

"I wasn't quite aggressive as I should of been on my approach shots coming in," Steele said.

Needing to complete the victories in the next three matches to send Amherst back to town early appeared almost in reach, but the Minutewomen fell short in some competitive matches, only winning one of them.

Noelle Orsini at No. 3 came away with the victory in a well played match on her part with a 7-6 (7-5) and 6-4 win over Ting Yu, which tied up the match heading into the doubles competition.

Before that however, No. 4 Marie Christine Caron and No. 5 Liz Durant both let their matches slip away after coming up with 6-1 and 6-2 victories in their respective first sets.

Caron lost the next two 7-6, 6-4 to Suzanne Centola, and Durant lost the next pair 7-5, 7-5 to Neely Steinberg.

"I was unfocused and she was playing better," Durant said. "The third set it was just lack of concentration and I kept thinking ahead."

The three double matches were next to get underway as the sun started to come out for a bit, with the Minutewomen needing two out of three wins for the victory.

However, it turned out to be the time for Amherst to shine, as the Jeffs pulled off victories at No. 1 and No. 3 to send UMass to its third defeat in four matches.

Caron and Gorodetskaya finished first with the 8-4 victory over Toerge and Sally Childs in the No. 3 doubles.

But Durant and Orsini at No. 2 were shutout 8-0 by the duo of Diamond and Steinberg. In the No. 1 match Sitton and Steele were unable to put it together also, as they were downed 8-4 by Keith and Yu.

After the match UMass coach Judy Dixon felt her team was not focused after the singles matches, and that they were scattered.

"We should have won that match," Dixon said. "Now it means going into the A 10s with three losses and [the team's] going in with a little hole. They need to find a way to regroup."

Yesterday UMass had to do without the services of Jackie Braunstein, who unexpectedly had to go to the hospital two days ago for a hernia operation. She will miss the next four weeks, but more importantly this weekend's tourney.

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CV Issue 115 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Friday, April 19, 1996

Skating on thin ice

Nancy Kerrigan overcame hardships to win a silver medal in Lillehammer. Now she's written a book about being a positive role model for girls (see Arts & Living, page 5).

UMass sinks Crimson tide

Junior right hander Chad Paronto picked up a win yesterday as UMass destroyed Harvard in the first round of the Beanpot Tournament (see Sports, page 10).

WORLD

Clinton calls for cease-fire in Lebanon

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Middle East peace efforts once again threatened by violence, President Clinton called for an immediate cease-fire Thursday in southern Lebanon. He dispatched Secretary of State Warren Christopher to the region to try to get negotiations back on track.

"Today's events make painfully clear the importance of bringing an end to the current violence in Lebanon," Clinton said when he arrived in Russia after a flight from Japan.

Christopher planned to fly to the Middle East from The Hague, where he meets Friday with Qian Qichen, the Chinese foreign minister. Going to the region in advance of the secretary of state was Dennis Ross, the administration's Middle East coordinator. State Department spokesman Nicholas Burns said in Amsterdam as Christopher arrived that the trip to the Middle East was

"open-ended, not simply two or three days."

"We want to get the problem resolved," he said.

Christopher, looking tired after the roundabout flight from Tokyo to Moscow to The Netherlands, said he did not know if he would leave Friday night or Saturday for the Middle East.

NATION

Four drug companies offer settlements

NEW YORK (AP) — Four drug companies accused of selling AIDS-tainted blood products to thousands of U.S. hemophiliacs will offer a $600 million settlement Friday in an attempt to end a decade of litigation.

The offer was revealed Thursday night by Bayer AG, one of the defendants. It will be made in letters to be mailed Friday to lawyers for AIDS patients and their families around the country. If accepted, it would provide compensation to every American hemophiliac who contracted the AIDS virus by taking tainted blood-clotting products manufactured by the companies in the early 1980s.

Also covered would be the families of deceased patients and spouses or children who acquired AIDS from an infected hemophiliac. In addition to Bayer, the companies offering the settlement are Baxter International Inc., Rhone-Poulenc Rorer Inc. and Alpha Therapeutic Inc.

In making the offer, the companies are not admitting legal responsibility or wrongdoing, said Thomas Kerr, assistant general counsel for Bayer.

Hemophiliacs have accused the companies of putting their profits over safety during the early years of the AIDS epidemic by selling HIV-infected blood clotting products.

Roughly 4,000 AIDS patients and their families have sued, saying the companies should have treated the clotting factors with heat to kill the AIDS virus.

WEEKEND FORECAST

Today	Saturday	Sunday
HIGH: 60 LOW: 50	HIGH: 70 LOW: 50	HIGH: 65 LOW: 45

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 8
Comics.....page 9
Crossword .....page 8
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 2
News .....page 3
Sports .....page 10

300 gather for march

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Aishah Shahidah Simmons speaks about violence against women of color at yesterday's Take Back Our Rights rally.

By Anna Lotto and Michelle Hillman
Collegian Staff

Against the fading sun of yesterday's rare spring day, about 300 people gathered on the steps of the Student Union in support of ending violence against women.

"Take Back Our Rights" held its annual march and rally last night beginning at 6:30 p.m. on the University of Massachusetts campus. A series of moving speakers spoke about both personally tragedy and community activism.

The first woman to address the crowd was Yoko Kato, who's daughter and grandson were killed by her daughter's abusive mate. She began by stating that she herself was a survivor of domestic violence who fortunately could leave her abusive husband, her daughter Sherry was not so lucky.

Yoko told the story of her daughter's repeated attempts to escape her batterer through the courts while living with her son in Northampton. Sherry's boyfriend was arrested and released several times before stabbing her and her 18-month old son to death in early 1993. Yoko said her murderer left the knife in Sherry's face "to show how much he hated her independence." There was a roar from the crowd when Yoko stated that he is now serving life in prison without parole.

The next speakers were Aishah Shahidah Simmons and Tamara L. Xavier, co-producers of 'Nor', a video documentary of rape and other feminist issues concerning black women. Simmons stated first her disappointment that there were not more women of color in the crowd. She began her speech by quoting black feminist poet Audrey Lord, saying "My silence will not protect me."

Simmons stressed the need to break the silence in the black community around sexual violence against black women by black men. "Black women are caught between the crossroads of race, gender and sexual orientation. [they must] choose between multiple identities," she said.

She also criticized the "inherently racist" aspect of anti-rape movements which often portray white women as the victims of black male rapists.

The two women ended by reading a poem by Audrey Lord, entitled "State of Rage." There was loud cheering when Simmons repeated the line "a woman's behavior, attire, and/or poor judgement do not justify rape."

Linda Hillenbrand, secretary of the UMass women's Studies Program, spoke of the connection between domestic violence and welfare.

Most people do not realize how much a woman's economic situation affects her ability to leave an abusive mate, she said. Hillenbrand herself is a single mother who had to rely on AFDC at one point in her life to help raise her child. She also spoke of the humiliation she endured at the welfare office, where recipients are expected to have no money. She ended on a positive note, extolling those women who are able to raise a child and attend school while on welfare.

The most solemn of the speakers was Kelly Paige, a 1993 graduate of UMass whose friend Tara Hartnett was murdered by her ex-boyfriend.

Paige described how she and Tara met their freshman year living together in Van Meter residence hall. She noted that neither of them attended any "Take Back the Night" rallies then because "We were selfish. We were freshmen."

She then went on to describe the relationship between Tara and her boyfriend James which ended with Tara's brutal death through stabbing and being set on fire. James first hit Tara in February of 1993 and murdered her in March of the same year. This dispels the myth that women keep coming back [to their abusive mates]," Paige said.

The rally left campus at 8 p.m., with marchers carrying candles towards Amherst center, where more speakers were scheduled before coffee at Amherst College.

Clothesline Project addresses violence

By Hannah Thorne
Collegian Staff

The Clothesline Project, a exhibition of shirts to address of sexual violence towards woman, began in 1990 with 31 shirts hung in Hyannis. Since then the project has extended to communities across the country and worldwide. The Clothesline Project came this week to the University of Massachusetts, next to the Student Union, with shirts from women of the Pioneer Valley and women from the Hampshire County Correctional Facility.

According to the Clothesline Project brochure, the purpose of the project is: To bear witness to the survivors as well as the victims of the war against women; To help with the healing process for people who have lost a loved one or are survivors of this violence; To educate, document, and raise society's awareness of the extent of the problem of violence against women; To provide national network of support, encouragement and information for other communities starting their own Clothesline Projects.

The Clothesline Project asks women to send durable shirts of different colors to represent the different types of violence against women. The color code is: White for women who have died of violence; Yellow or Beige for women who have been battered or assaulted; Red, Pink, or Orange for women who have been raped or sexually assaulted; Blue or Green for women survivors of incest or child sexual abuse; Purple or Lavender for women attacked because of their sexual orientation, according to the brochure.

About one third of the shirts came from women incarcerated in the Hampshire County Correctional Facility, Women's Prison and Women's Pre-Release. All of the shirts by these women were white as the prison would not allow them to use colored shirts according to Donna Mollo, a coordinator of the event.

Each shirt represents one woman's experience or the experience of a loved one, so many of the messages were deeply personal. One white shirt said "To three unknown men, You raped Becca, age 12, in a parking lot. You beat her when she screamed. You made her wish to die (Did you get what you wanted?) I love her. I miss her." Another pink shirt said: "You pushed me down and spread my legs, ran the knife across my neck, knocked me unconscious to make it easier, said you would protect me. I will continue to use my legs to walk, will use my slashed throat to talk, will not forget. 14-16 years old."

According to the brochure, the prevalence of sexual violence directed towards women. It reminds readers that one out of two women will be in an abusive relationship according to the National Victim Center and every minute of every single day more than one woman is raped according to the US Justice Department.

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

The Clothesline Project, a visual display that bears witness to the violence against women, stands proud on the Student Union lawn.

Rally addresses UM educational standards

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Tom Jervich stresses the importance of Graduate Students and what they mean to the University, yesterday afternoon, at the GEO rally outside the Student Union.

By Lucy Brinicombe
Collegian Correspondent

Complimented by a clear sky and the live reggae vibrations of "Loose Caboose," the Graduate Employee Organization (GEO) held a rally yesterday to remind the University administration of its original commitment to affordable high quality education, accessible to everybody in the Commonwealth.

Students' children played in the sun to highlight the need for improved University child care facilities, while students, faculty and staff spoke on the harmful effects of down-sizing University facilities and staffing.

GEO's Chief Negotiator, Tom Taafe, said the administration's plan to downsize the University would ultimately mean students "will be getting a second class education." Plans to limit classes meant the administration's claim to provide a "multi-cultural curriculum" was, in fact, a "fantasy," he said.

The administration should "get off their fat wallets" instead of accepting cuts in state funding, and "fight for the money and our education," Taafe said.

"We want more multiculturalism, we don't need less," he said. Downsizing only "downsizes our choices and diminishes our future."

John Bracey, secretary of the faculty senate, saw downsizing and privatization as "two sides of a coin." Privatization does not give students more, he said. Privatization is responsible for "taking your tax money and making a profit out of you."

"We have not streamlined the faculty, we have cut the faculty," Bracey said.

Over the past five years, 820 people have been fired, he said. As a result, class sizes have grown and, he said, it can take longer to graduate as access to classes during registration can no longer be guaranteed.

Students are not getting more, according to Bracey. "The only thing that you're getting more of is tuition bills," he told students. "You're not getting the same quality of education even though you're paying more."

Bracey pointed out what he considers to be unreasonable expenditure on campus. For example, while UMass has a beautiful library, it lacks the books to fill it. Commenting on the recent construction of the Sylvio O. Conte National Polymer Science Center, Bracey said the University is building buildings without classrooms," which are the fundamental need.

It is "absolutely obscene," said Bracey, to put students into debt for an education.

Student Trustee Dan Rivera said the original mission of the University to provide an education to working class students — was no longer being aspired to. The current SAT- and GPA requirements are an inefficient means of testing for University admissions, he said. SATs, he continued, are designed in such a way that they are "culturally and classed based."

Plans to change the admissions standards were unsatisfactory, Rivera said. Admission requirements would "continue to marginalize people of color and poor working class students in the Commonwealth, and prohibit their access to the University."

Cecilia Rio, GEO child care coordinator, spoke on how access for students with families was not secure. The situation has worsened due to state cuts in subsidies, yet the University facilities made available for child care is insufficient, she said.

Rio said there are only 78 slots available at the Day Care Center, and these slots are not flexible enough to contend with student class schedules.

Becky Woodsworth, an undergraduate psychology major and mother of two-year-old Sarahheth said the facilities are "not flexible enough and very expensive."

Woodsworth was on a waiting list for 15 months to get University child care. She currently pays $137 a week for the facilities, yet she must also pay for a babysitter when her classes go over the opening hours of the day care center. She has already taken out $5000 in loans to meet child care costs.

Rio called for action from those in Whitmore Administration Building. A drop-off center is necessary, she argued, if the University is to give students with children the same opportunities as the other students. The flexibility this would offer would enable these students to go to conferences that would enhance their education and make evening classes a more practical option.

A change in University policy is also vital, Woodsworth said. Teachers should be sympathetic if students with children can not take an exam at the scheduled time because their child is sick, she said.

While he feels there is an obvious need for reform in child care at the University, Rio said the Administration's lack of compassion in this area could be identified by the present intention to extinguish the child care coordinator position, and by the lack of funding for the upcoming conference on child care.

The spring atmosphere of the rally thus also had a potent message of the negative aspects of current University administration's policy and the need for students to protect their rights to a high quality education. Students may not think these polices will effect them, said Taafe, but it will.

For Your Information

PYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an PYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Saturday, April 20

Day–trip — Spend the day in New York City for $20. Bus leaves from Haigis mall at 6:30 a.m. and returns at 2:30 a.m. Tickets can be purchased at Commuter Services in 428 Student Union (Above People's Market). For more information, contact Commuter Area Government at 545– 2145.

Clean–up — Water Watch will be holding an Earth Day stream clean–up from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The bus leaves from the Student Union steps for the Springfield Earth Day, followed by a stop at the Amherst Common. For more information call Catherine Charles or Dave Jeremy at 545–0199.

Sunday, April 21

Fundraiser — "Workout for Hope," a nationwide event to raise money for AIDS research, will come to the Valley at Pearl Street Night Club in Northampton. From noon–3 p.m., the Valley's top fitness instructors will lead a throng of fitness fans through a three–hour routine. Top fundraisers earn prizes like Reebok sneakers, T–shirts and sweatshirts. Participants can pre–register the morning of the event from 11 a.m. – noon at Pearl Street. Spectators and individual donations are also welcome.

Hike — The Pioneer Valley Group of the Sierra Club will sponsor a hike up Mt. Greylock, Massachusetts' tallest mountain. Leader's choice of trail depending on conditions. Bring lunch and plenty of water. Rain cancels. Call Elisa at 256–4247.

Monday, April 22

Art gallery — An opening reception for undergraduate artists Eric Trosko and Julie Graham will be held in the Student Union Art Gallery from 5–7 p.m. The show runs through April 26.

Notices

Ground treatment — The Physical Plant Grounds Department will have licensed personnel applying a spring treatment of Pro–Lawn fertilizer, a weed control product, on April 27 and 28. Treated areas will be posted for 72 hours. The material is applied in a granular form which precludes anyone or any animal from coming in contact with the herbicide portion of the formulation. The herbicide is classified as Category III, merely requiring caution in its use. A materials data sheet will be available upon request. Please call Albert Potter at 545-0200 with questions.

Scholarship — Application for the University of Massachusetts Amherst Alumni Association Scholarship are now available at the Alumni Relations Office. Applications must be completed and returned as directed to the Alumni Association c/o Anne McDowell, Memorial Hall, UMass, Amherst. Preference will be given to qualified African American, Hispanic American, Native American and Asian American students. For more information about the criteria for application, call Anne McDowell at 545–2317.

CPR certification — Sunday April 28 is the "UMassive" American Red Cross Adult CPR Certification Day at the Mullins Center. You must pre–register on the Campus Center Concourse between April 15 and 19. For more information, contact American Red Cross at 548–8887, Environmental Health and Safety at 545–2682 or UMass First Aid Services at 545–1885.

Intramurals — Intramural Men's Basketball Championship played in the Curry Hicks Cage on your cable network — Housing Services Cable Network — Monday, April 22– Saturday, April 27 at 11 p.m.; Sunday, April 28 at 9 p.m.

Registration correction — Peer Health Education (Public Health 213/Educ 213) a two–semester, six credit course has a new time for the fall semester. The course will be meeting Tuesday and Thursday from 9:30–10:45 a.m. Call the Health Education Office at 549–2671 x181.

Book donation — The Amherst League of Women Voters will be accepting donations of used books until April 28, in preparation for the 49th Annual Book Sale. Trunks and boxes for donations will be placed outside Stop & Shop in Hadley and inside Victory Market in Amherst, as well as the Jones Library and North and South Amherst Libraries. Books may also be brought to the sorting and pricing site at the corner of Main and High Streets in Amherst. Books should be free from mildew, magazines are not wanted. For more information, call Harriet Shapiro at 549–5439.

Study Group — Spring Miracles: Join an ongoing study group focusing on the text of A Course in Miracles, every Tuesday from 7:30 – 9 p.m. Group continues until June 25. Free of charge. Call 252–2902 for more information.

Summer Opportunities — Musiker Tours and Summer Discovery are looking for counsellors for our student travel programs and our pre–college enrichment programs. Applicants must be 21 years old by June 15, 1996. We need mature, hardworking, energetic individuals who can dedicate 4–7 weeks this summer working with teenagers. One of our tour directors will be interviewing at UMass on Tuesday, April 16. For more information or an application, please call our office in New York at (516) 621–0718.

Course selection — The Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures would like to inform the student body that despite the Provost's ongoing Academic Program Review, courses previously offered to both majors and non–majors will still be available for the foreseeable future. All courses will be taught in English; no Russian required. For further information call the Slavic Department at 545–2052 or visit the office at 438 Herter.

Blood Drives — The American Red Cross will be holding blood drives in Hampshire County at the following locations on the dates and times listed: Robert Crown Center at Dickinson Hall at UMass (April 23 — 2 to 8 p.m.); Campus Center front room at Amherst College (April 23 — 1 to 7 p.m. and April 24 — 1 to 7 p.m.); 101 Campus Center at UMass (April 25 — 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.); and Cape Cod Lounge at UMass (April 30 — 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.)

Employment — TA positions are available at the Graduate Employee Organization. GEO is accepting applications for the following positions: Organizer/Contract Administrator, Political Advocate, Database Coordinator. You must be a graduate student and committed to organizing GEO into a stronger Union. Positions will start in Fall '96 semester and last through the academic year. Please come to the GEO office at 201 Student Union for more information about these positions or to fill out an application packet. Call 545– 0705 for more information. Deadline for applications is 5 p.m. April 19.

Running — Registration for "Run for Newman" will be available everyday in the Newman Center front office, from Tuesday through Thursday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Newman Center cafeteria and from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Campus Center. The cost is $5 for pre–registration. Free t– shirts will be awarded. For more information, call the Newman Center at 549–0300.

Charity — A food and clothes drive is going on now. Boxes are located in Holdsworth, Whitmore, New Africa House, Chenoweth and Goessman. For more information, call the Hunger and Homelessness campaign at MASSPIRG at 545–0199.

Volunteers — STARS, Student Alumni Relations Society needs students who are graduating in 1996, who want to plan events for the Senior Class and/or work on the Senior Campaign. If you are interested please contact Ann Thompson in Memorial Hall at 545–2317.

Earth Day to be celebrated on Common

By Daniel E. Levenson
Collegian Staff

There will be an Earth Day festival on the Amherst Town Commons on Saturday from 12 to 7 p.m., with a variety of entertainment and educational opportunities for all ages.

MASSPIRG is organizing and running the event, which is being sponsored by groups from the Five College and Amherst community.

"I think the bands that are playing are going to attract a lot of students," said Amy Bartlett, an environmental sciences major doing an internship with MASSPIRG.

Musical acts Synaesthesia, World Beat, Nimium Quam, Knuckle Sandwich, For Chameleon, The Figments and Bradley are expected to play. Representative Ellen Story (D–Amherst), Senator Stanley Rosenberg (D–Amherst) and Congressman John Olver will speaking.

Activities appealing to a younger crowd will include a theatrical presentation of the Dr. Seuss book The Lorax.

Several booths will be set up offering information on environmental issues and groups. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, The Waterwatch volunteers group and the Sierra Club, among others, will be represented. There will also be a raffle, with the money going to The Hitchcock Center for Environmental Education, located in Amherst.

Bill Ramsey, chairman of the SGA Finance Committee, said SGA gave MASSPIRG $500 to help cover the costs of the Earth Day celebration. "We wish we could have given more, but we're low on funds," Ramsey said.

Mark Wootton of Wootton's Book Store said he attended the first Earth Day celebration 26 years ago while in college. The book store will be contributing a raffle item. David Hammer from Commuter Area Government said they are supporting the program because it will reach commuter students.

"We allot a certain amount of money each year for sponsoring programs that affect commuters," said Hammer. "Each year Commuter Area Government has financially supported Earth Day."

Brown to speak on surviving Holocaust

By Marni E. Heifner
Collegian Staff

Dr. Eva Metzger Brown, an adjunct professor and survivor of the Holocaust, will speak this evening at Chabad House on the miracle and joy of surviving.

Brown, who survived the Holocaust along with her parents, is a psychologist in Amherst. She is also the project director of the group Intergenerational Healings in Holocaust Families, and according to Brown, "The goal of the group is to bring second and third generations together, and any other person who feels impacted by the Holocaust, to break the silence, to start dialogues, and to share common feelings."

Brown said the other goal of the group "...is to share and discuss what it was like to grow up in a family under the umbrella of this trauma."

In her work, Brown said she tries to help people examine their experiences through several different ways. "For some, this is talking, or going back to their family's country of origin or tracing their steps of immigration," she said.

Because she will be speaking on Shabbat, Brown will focus on the miracle, wonder, and joy of surviving the Holocaust. Brown added that this doesn't mean there aren't other feelings, but that people don't often focus on the miracle of surviving.

Brown said she encourages anyone who wishes to dialogue about the Holocaust, whether in groups or as individuals to contact her office in Amherst at 253–2153 or to email her at embrown@psych.umass.edu.

After shabbat services at 7:30 p.m., Brown will speak at approximately 8:15 p.m. and a free shabbat dinner will follow. Chabad House is located on North Hadley Road and is adjacent to Southwest.

Mullins hosts Tri–State Computer Fair

Log off the Internet because tomorrow William D. Mullins Center will host the Tri–State Computer Fair.

Over 75 vendors from across the East Coast will offer up to 40 percent discounts off of retail prices of software and hardware, said Wayne Cogan, fair manager. Some vendors are known to negotiate prices, he said. Most vendors will accept MasterCard and Visa.

"This is our first time in the Mullins Center," Cogan said. "We intend in the future to hold four shows during the school year."

Tri–State expects a large turn out tomorrow. There is a large demand from both students and residents in the Pioneer Valley, he said.

They have held fairs across New England for the past 20 years. Their largest fair was last weekend at the Hartford Civic Center.

"People came as far as Canada," said Cogan. "I heard French being spoken in Hartford on Saturday."

The show will be held between 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. General admission is $7 and after 1 p.m. $6. Students with valid student ID receive a $1 off.

— Matthew Wurzel

WHERE?: Boyden side of the UMass Alumni Stadium track
WHEN?: Saturday, April 27, 1996
9:30 a.m. (walkers); 10 a.m. (runners)
WHY?: To benefit the Newman center. Sponsors are appreciated.
REGISTRATION: At the Campus Center Concourse and the Newman Center Cafeteria 10 a.m. - 1 p.m., April 16-18, 24-26 and at the Newman Center Office April 1-26
PRIZES: Free T-shirts for the first 300 to register. $100 first prizes to first man and first woman . . . plus other valuable prizes.
For more information call the Newman Main Office at 549-0300.

Casino Night 96

FRIDAY
APRIL 19, 1996
7:00PM - 2:00AM

CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM
UMASS AMHERST
ADMISSION $ 5.00
-GAMES WILL BE PLAYED FOR CASH-

THIS EVENT IS A FUNDRAISER FOR THE OFFICE OF ALANA AFFAIRS.
CO-SPONSORS: AHORA: ASIAN AMERICAN STUDENTS ASSOCIATION, BLACK STUDENT UNION, CAMPUS CENTER BLUEWALL, CAMPUS CENTER HOTEL, CASA DOMINICANA, THE DAILY COLLEGIAN

"Hilarious! Audacious. An outrageous comedy. Thumbs up!" GENE SISKEL, SISKEL & EBERT

STARTS TODAY
NO PASSES
SHOWCASE CINEMAS
WEST SPRINGFIELD 11-14
RIVERDALE ROAD
733-5131

Sixth annual Haigis Hoopla tips off Saturday

By Daniel Sullivan
Collegian Staff

Basketball teams from across the Pioneer Valley are dusting off their sneakers in preparation for the sixth annual Haigis Hoopla at the University of Massachusetts.

The two–day event starts Saturday morning in front of the Fine Arts Center and culminates Sunday afternoon with championship games. Numerous skill activities are available for participants.

"This is the largest 3–on–3 basketball tournament in Western Massachusetts," said Mick Jackowski, of the public relations department of Haigis Hoopla.

Students have spent three months planning the event for a sport management class taught by Mark MacDonald and Jay Gladden.

"Thirty people in the class have worked to organize the event," Jackowski said. "We also have over 300 UMass student volunteers, doubling last year's amount. Without the volunteers, we couldn't do this."

The event has expanded to include a corporate name sponsor, a wheelchair basketball exhibition and more community involvement, Jackowski said.

"We have teams coming from as far south as New York City and as far North as Maine," Jackowski said. "Our big goal is to involve the community more."

This is the second consecutive year the tournament has filled capacity, said Jackowski. Within the 10 divisions will be 435 teams and 1,550 players competing. Haigis Hoopla has 24 basketball hoops and two Sportcourts for championship games.

"At noon, Saturday, the UMass women's basketball team will be giving a clinic on the courts," Jackowski said.

The UMass women's team is fielding a team with All– Atlantic 10 Conference selections Octavia Thomas and Melissa Gurile as well as members Nicole Carter and Trish Hopson. The Minutewomen are scheduled to top off at 1 p.m.

Ted Cottrell, a member of the men's basketball team will be a part of a squad in the hot shots division, said Jackowski. His team is scheduled to play its first game at 11:30 a.m.

Sponsors will give out "goodie bags" to each competitor, according to Jackowski. All championship teams will be awarded New Balance sneakers and other prizes depending on the division. Championship teams in the child divisions will also receive trophies.

Proceeds from the event will go toward the Erik Kjeldsen Scholarship Fund benefitting a senior sport management major. Kjeldsen is a retired professor of sport management.

In case of poor weather on Saturday, the tournament will be pushed back until Sunday, finishing up the following weekend, said Jackowski.

Haigis Hoopla VI Schedule

Saturday
7 a.m. Team New Balance Contest at Registration Tent
9:30 New Balance Hot Shot
9:45 Ground Round at the Hampshire Mall "Around the World" and "Consecutive 3–point Shootout."
10:00 Achieve New Balance Skills Area opens
10:30 New Balance "New Voices" Play–By–Play
11:00 New Balance Hot Shot
12 p.m. Spalding Women's Clinic *
12:15 "DS Air 3–point Shootout" and "The Ladder Contest"
12:45 New Balance Hot Shot
1:00 Gatorade Slam Dunk Contest *
1:45 New Balance Hot Shot
2:15 Weldon Wheelers Exhibition *
2:30 "Daily Collegian Consecutive Free Throw Contest" and "Bueno Y Sano Dribble Race"
3:30 New Balance Hot Shot Finals *

Sunday
9:45 a.m. Ground Round at the Hampshire Mall "Around the World" and "Consecutive 3–point Shootout"
10:00 Achieve New Balance Skills Area opens
11:00 Media Game *
12:30 p.m. "DS Air 3–point Shootout," and "The Ladder Contest"
1:00 New Balance "New Voices" Play–By–Play Finals* (It take place during one of the final games)
2:30 "Daily Collegian Consecutive Free Throw Contest," and "Bueno Y Sano Dribble Race"
*These promotions are located at Center Court

16th Run for Newman to kickoff on April 27

COURTESY OF NEWMAN CENTER

This is a photo of the first Run For Newman which was held in 1980.

By Anastasia Kudrez
Collegian Staff

The 16th annual road race to benefit the Newman Center is now conducting preregistration.

Run For Newman, a 10K/6.2 mile road race to benefit race, will be held April 27. The starting line is at the Boyden side of the University of Massachusetts Alumni Stadium track. Walkers start at 9:30 a.m., runners at 10 a.m.

The event began 16 years ago when Diane Rezendes, a UMass student, organized the first race. Originally called the Run For Ritter, it raised money for the Newman Center and the Covenant House, a shelter for abused teen–agers started by Father Bruce Ritter.

"It was a smash," said Father Joseph Quigley, director emeritus of the Center and honorary chairman of the race.

Quigley said the first race had over 400 runners, and in successive years the event raised $10,000 for the Covenant House.

Since 1994, all the money raised has gone to the Center. Father Quigley said the money will pay for student support services, ranging from arranging for tutors to matching lonely students in a "bona fide dating service." Quigley officially retired three years ago, but is still actively involved helping students through the Newman Center.

"I'm also the chaplain for the Amherst Police Department," he said with a grin, flashing his badge.

This year's race coordinators are Timothy Hanrahan, Scott Collney, Gus Hebert, Leigh Parker and John Tuturice. The race depends on sponsors to raise money. Tuturice said he hopes to match last years donations, about $5,000–$7,000. One hundred people have registered so far, and Father Quigley said he hopes to double the number.

"If we got 150 to 200 runners, it would be tops," he said enthusiastically. "Of course it would be nice to have more than that. We live in hope of course, in this business."

Cash prizes will be awarded to the top three men's and women's runners. Many local merchants, including North Amherst Motors, Seasons, The Lord Jeffrey Inn, and Rafters also donated prizes.

Preregistration will be held in the Campus Center Concourse and the Newman Center cafeteria April 24–26, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. The Newman Center Office also accepts registrations. The entrance fee is $5 before the race, $7 on the day of the race, and the first 300 registered receive a free T–shirt.

The race is held rain or shine, and Father Quigley said he's hoping for a great day.

"I'm beginning the prayers now," he said.

Faster computers present positives and negatives

By Melanie B. Arruda
Collegian Staff

The final presentation of the Distinguished Faculty Lecture Series on Thursday dealt with natural language processing and digitalized text in computers.

Professor of Computer Science Wendy G. Lehnert's presentation focused on some of the technical forces in action, information extraction, and the social implications of available information via Internet.

Some of the technical forces in action are due to increasing computer power. Computers are now able to do tasks that were not possible a few years ago, Lehnert said.

Another technical force in action is the Internet or "super– highway" made possible by optical fibers. Optical fibers can carry the biggest data load at the fastest speed, Lehnert said.

The slowest transmission of data occurs via phone lines. A 28.8K modem can transfer 28,800 bytes per second versus an Asynchronous Transfer Mode (ATM) optical fiber transferring 660,000,000 bytes per second, according to Lehnert. An ATM optical fiber can move over 41,000 pages of text per second, she said.

After data transmission information can be obtained through information extraction (IE) where software reads and pulls specific facts within text, Lehnert said.

The computer science department is creating a system to concentrate only on the relevant information of a topic we are researching. This process goes from unstructured text to a structured template, Lehnert said.

IMANG YO / COLLEGIAN

Chancellor David K. Scott introduces Wendy Lehnar, who gave a lecture yesterday on computer programs that will be able to understand the human language.

"Computers are at least 100 to 200 times faster than humans" but not as good as humans in text comprehension, she said.

One can measure the performance of computers versus human IE by recall and precision, Lehnert said. Recall is how much information was extracted while precision is about how much of the extracted information was correct, she said.

Lehnert said she believes the convenience of technology comes with social implications. "There are a lot of little brothers looking over us," Lehnert said in reference to the book 1984 written by George Orwell. These "little brothers" are the thousands of companies who compile and resell people's personal information for profit, she said.

Lehnert warns us to ask questions and demand answers when filling out credit card applications, since some information is unnecessary.

1996 SUMMER SESSION

Division of Continuing Education

Direction for Your Life.

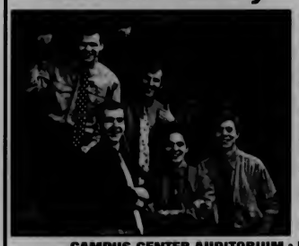
Call 413-545-0107 for a free course catalog. E-mail: contined@admin.umass.edu

University of Massachusetts at Amherst

CAMPUS ACTIVITIES AT THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS PRESENTS

A WEEKLY PROGRAM SERIES: SOMETHING EVERY FRIDAY

Selected Hilarity



Five Improv-comics will deliver a comic experience unlike any other to the Bluewall Cafe. Stand-up, improvisation, skits and music will fill this fast-paced show.

CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM • Friday April 19, 1996

Following this performance will be the movie "Heat" shown in the Bluewall Cafe • 8pm • FREE • Popcorn & Punch Available

This series is made possible by a grant from Auxiliary Services and the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs.

For the Weekend of HAIGIS
Take it to...

DELANO'S
57 North Pleasant Street
253-5161 Proper Identification A Must

new balance

HEADQUARTERS
(For those 21 years or older.)
Friday April 19 and Saturday April 20
TWO NIGHTS OF MUSIC, PRIZES, FUN AND CHEER!

See You There!

Wanted • Wanted • Wanted • Wanted • Wanted • Wanted

Circulation Manager

wanted...

Circulation manager needed for Fall 1996.
For more information call Lee Weiner @ 545-3500 or stop by the Collegian.

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Marni E. Hellner Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Ganley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kuhn Advertising Production Manager Lisa Chiu Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor
Gregory Casimir Co-Black Affairs Editor
Humphries Brown III Co-Black Affairs Editor
Sunanda Ghosh Co-Developing Nations Editor
Ibrahim Aloi Co-Developing Nations Editor
Bob Dunn Editorial/Opinion Editor
Lisa M. Olivieri Guy Tarnburn Bisexual Issues Editor
Anna Feder Jewish Affairs Editor
Lisa Chiu Multicultural Affairs Editor
Amy Paradise News Editor
Emily Reis Photography Editor
Candice Flemming Sports Editor

Sean Cahoon Staff Artist
Anna Lotto Co-Women's Issues Editor
Hannah Thorne Co-Women's Issues Editor
Tony Morse Editorial Production Manager
Adam Chace Systems Manager
Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Lee Weiner Distribution Manager
Position Vacant Classifieds Manager
Lisle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marni Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Index Life. became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1904, and then the Tri Weekly Collegian in 1950. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Go Ricki!

Right before this semester started, I was asked to appear on Deco Drive, the latest in the slew of tabloid "news" magazines that have been busy numbing the consciousness of day-time television audiences over the past few years. An article I wrote on prostitution last year for a magazine with a decent sized national circulation caught the eye of Meg Porter, who is one of the show's producers.

I suppose I shouldn't have been surprised that my piece, which was fairly mainstream, investigative reporting, also had enough sex, corruption and victimization to be considered a "good scoop" for tabloid television.

Still, at the time, Deco Drive was a new program, so despite the obvious conclusions it's name led me to draw, I decided to watch an episode before I gave Porter my final answer of "no."

Deco Drive, along with its multiple of relatives that include Hard Copy, A Current Affair and its more distant cousins, the TV talk shows, are forums for everything that is cheap and seedy in America. The fact that these shows survive on a fair bit of big-name, account advertising means that people are watching these shows. The continued existence of tabloid television "journalism" explains a lot about the mentality of this country.

Deco Drive is hosted by two women who are fighting the natural process of aging with dime-store nose jobs and hairstyles that are far too complex to be practical. They read the Hollywood gossip in a tone that tries to imply that their "news" is just as pressing as tensions in Korea, the end of the I.R.A. cease fire or welfare reform. But they also have the added dimension of sounding like two, 14-year old high school girls gawking at the senior quarterback of the football team.

The show currently airs in Boston and Miami, where it is produced. If you are fortunate enough to not be a television viewer in those two areas, don't worry — the show's producers plan to expand to a nationally syndicated market as soon as possible. When she first contacted me, Porter described the show as a "hard hitting news program with all the latest insight on lifestyles and Hollywood." After watching Deco Drive, the only thing I see getting hard hit is the integrity of any legitimate journalist. The only insight I see is into the completely stupid and vain.

What scared me most was that daytime television ratings indicate that these programs are not only being watched, but are perhaps being taken seriously by people who are quite certain that a good news desk is complete only after it has a "Corresponding Psychic" whose main function is to look into the stars for a particular celebrity each day.

Porter told me that she was working on a piece about college-aged women who were paying for school by prostituting themselves. I was told I would be interviewed as an "expert" in the field, and that it would be "great exposure" for me.

"Coming up next, we have Boston-based freelance writer and expert whore-monger Dave Copeland. But first, let's see what's in store for Roseanne and Madonna as we check in with Psychic Scott."

Journalism used to be a term that applied to a profession that relied on objectivity and ethics as a backbone. It used to be about petty things like politics, foreign affairs and sports. Now journalists, many of them hard-working and self-respecting, are portrayed as vultures. With people from shows like Deco Drive flashing press credentials like chic handbags, do we really have to stop and wonder why?

Newspaper readership is steadily declining in a time when aspiring print reporters are being told to scorn the tabloid press while sticking to the once reliable guns of thorough reporting, reliable sources and stories of public interest. Meanwhile, the vain, ignorant and star-dazed are tuning into filth and out of reality.

Hunter Thompson wrote in 1973 that "Absolute truth is a very rare and dangerous commodity in the context of professional journalism. It is seemingly even more rare and more dangerous today, as it is all but extinct in the hands of the so-called 'professional' contemporary of journalists."

Dave Copeland is a Collegian columnist

Just another manic Monday

So you think living with girls is easy huh? Well it is for the majority of the time. The girls I live with, Sarra and Dianne (I've misspelled their names to protect the innocent), are generally friendly, courteous, clean and fair. But their easy going way of life drastically changes every Monday night from 8-9 p.m. As most people know, this time slot is when the hit show "Melrose Place" is aired.

Mondays in my house seem to start out like any other day. We all wake up late, miss our first class and then scurry to play catch up. After the days events are finished we all are home by 8 p.m. Everyone assumes their position in the living room in front of the television. I sit on the right side of the couch which is parallel to the tube while Sarra sits on the left of our brown corduroy fluffy object. Dianne usually hogs out and assumes her position on the stiff and rigid chair which lies to the left side of the room.

It is now officially 8:01 and the rules are about to begin. That's right, I said the rules are about to begin. You see like I stated earlier, the girls that I live with are fair. But once the show starts, fairness is thrown out the window and there are a whole new set of rules.

RULE No. 1 — When the show starts, there has to be complete silence. Not silence for everyone, just for myself. As the girls sit there and yap away, I don't dare open my mouth in fear of getting scolded. I am also not allowed to ask any questions about the characters. I have to hold my questions until the commercials and then they will only get answered if the question is up to the girl's standards.

RULE No. 2 — I can not under any circumstances disagree with the girl's opinions of the plot, the characters, or most of all the fashion and hair styles. If Sarra says that she hates "Amanda's" hair, then I hate "Amanda's" hair. If Dianne thinks that "Michael" is wearing a great suit, then I love the same suit. Once I felt bold and decided to disagree with liking a character's footwear. Needless to say I was so verbally abused, that I have not yet recovered. I now only discuss this situation with my therapist.

RULE No. 3 — There are no phone privileges allowed during the show. If the phone rings during the show, in unison I will hear, "I'm not home!" I am the one to answer the phone in hopes that it is for me. Unfortunately it usually is not and I have to make up some dumb excuse why Sarra and Dianne cannot talk at the moment. The other night I became fed up and scolded the caller for even thinking of communicating at such a time. I told him that no calls have ever been takin' during the show and that he should try back at 9:01. If I am the one to get a call I have to leave the living room and talk in my room so the girls will not be disturbed.

RULE No. 4 — Rule No. 4 is sort of related to rule No. 2. While rule No. 2 deals with the fashion and hair styles on the show, rule No. 4 deals with fashion and hair styles for Sarra and Dianne. Either during the show or once the show ends there seems to be ongoing discussion of how the character's wardrobes and hairdos would look on Sarra and Dianne. The discussion mainly is between the girls with a few side comments by myself. Don't think for a second that I am allowed to make any comments I want.

My comments must be in compliance with RULE No. 4 Section A. Under Section A, I can only make positive remarks about clothing or hair. If they both agree that a dress would look great on one or they other, then I must fall in love with the dress as well. If they decide they are going to get a new haircut based on one of the characters, then I must approve right away, and then praise them when they get home from their royal hair chop.

I could continue to list many numerous little rules, but I think I've hit all the majors. If you don't believe this madwoman scenario, then feel free to stop by any Monday night from 8–9 p.m. — just be prepared to follow the rules!

Brad Davidson is a Collegian columnist.

Opinion/Editorial

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian.

No tears for Oklahoma city

Martin F. Jones

Wise man once said, "he who lives by the sword dies by the sword."

Indeed, as such is true not only of individuals, but heads of state, entire peoples and nations.

Today, America mourns the victims of the Oklahoma City bombing one year ago. Special attention has been paid to the innocent, young children who both survived and died in the blast.

Strangely enough, the alleged perpetrators of the bombing have been almost totally invisible from public view, in stark contrast to the O.J. Simpson trial, which was underway at the time of the bombing.

Is it because of what we see when we look at images of Timothy McVeigh and Terry Nichols? Is the truth that hard to swallow? "As we really capable of this type of violence," many of you probably ask? The television tells us daily that it is only people of color at home and abroad who are capable of such barbarism.

I must confess, that I too was shocked to see that two white men were accused of committing the worst act of terrorism in U.S. history. What could they, members of America's most privileged caste, have to be so angry about?

My mind then takes me back to my History 150 class, the Development of American Civilization. The professor, Ron Story, is fairly adept at conveying the gruesome history of the "Imperial States of America." Hearing various accounts of genocide against Native Americans by such "heroes" as Andrew Jackson and Jeffery Amherst (our town's namesake), rampant violence in the colonial period and on the frontier, the Boston Massacre and the April 19, 1775 battle of Lexington and Concord. All point to the base truth that America was founded on violence, and since colonial times, has remained the most heavily armed nation in the world.

And so we weep for the 168 deceased at Oklahoma City. Well, after counting 20 million Native Americans lost to genocide and biological warfare, 10 million Africans lost in the middle passage, six million Jews cremated throughout Europe during the '40s, two million Vietnamese killed due to Johnson's indiscretion and Nixon's insanity, and 500,000 Japanese incinerated at Hiroshima and Nagasaki, I'm sorry to say that I don't have a tear left to shed for Oklahoma City.

You see, we all must bear some responsibility for what happened at the Alfred P. Murrah federal building. Generally speaking, we support violence in defense of our way of life, so long as it is someone else who does the dying. As America conducts its covert operations throughout the Third World, we sit back without remorse and allow U.S. foreign policymakers to continue to sow their international killing fields. At home, the National Rifle Association battles vehemently against all gun-control legislation. They have nothing to fear, for they don't live in the areas most plagued by gun violence.

Here at UMass, our school mascot, depicted as a militia man brandishing a rifle, is used to sell t-shirts and other useless junk-for-profit around campus. Do we really care about the victims of Oklahoma City when we continue to rally around such outdated symbols of violence in the name of patriotism and nationalism long after the so-called American "Revolution" was won over 200 years ago?

If I sound anti-American right now, it is so because I am issuing a very strong and absolute denouncement of America's past and present violent traditions. No matter what good America has to offer on the surface, the bottom line has been and continues to be violence.

Violence against the poor. Violence against women, violence against people of color, violence for sport, violence for entertainment, violence in the name of ideology, violence for profit.

Yes, violence is our god. We stockpile nuclear weapons of mass destruction (naming a few of them after the Minuteman himself), nearly half of our gross economic output is spent on military hardware and personnel with the sole purpose of "killing people and breaking things."

Agent 007 brandishes a pistol with sheer sophistication. From Looney Toons' Wile E. Coyote and his dynamite explosions to the virtual reality bloodbath of Mortal Kombat, our children are weaned on violence, indoctrinated into the cult of killing at a tender young age. And then we tear our hair out at how they are now shooting each other dead in their classrooms.

What will it take to break this endless cycle of violence, one that has engulfed the world in a fiery inferno of death and genocide. Are we right in calling ourselves "civilized?" No doubt, generations from now, school children will writhe in their seats with nausea upon learning of the barbarism of the 20th Century. No, my friends, I have no more tears left for Oklahoma City.

And yes, the Zionists in Israel undermine their own biblical claim as "God's chosen people" as they drop their barrage of bombs on southern Lebanon. What ever happened to "Thou shalt not kill" or the other nine commandments allegedly delivered from Mount Sinai by one of their own "prophets."

And let us not forget the Christian fundamentalists and pro-life fanatics like John Salvi who kill in defense of the so-called Gospel. It is important to note that this past Sunday, Pope John Paul II denounced such religious violence, declaring that, "None can kill in the name of God." Sound words indeed for the likes of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's self-righteous executioner, Yigal Amir.

Suicide bombers, gang bangers, fraternity and heavyweight champion rapists, FBI, CIA, DOA (Dead On Arrival). Who killed Dr. King? The violence continues. Conan the Barbarian, Rambo, Terminator 3. Yes, Judgement Day is drawing near. From Saigon to Sarajevo to Beirut to Jerusalem to Baghdad to Tripoli to Johannesburg to Panama City to Philadelphia to Los Angeles to Washington D.C. to the Oval Office. The violence continues. And when will it all end? How many more political assassinations will be needed to wake us up to our senses, from our orgy of rape and murder?

Following the assassination of President Kennedy, Malcolm X called the fatal shooting "a case of the chickens coming home to roost," i.e. the seeds of violence that this country had sown for so many generations had risen up and taken the life of its own president. And while one may or may not choose to support such sentiment in the case of President Kennedy, one would find it very difficult to deny that the same does, in fact, apply 100 percent to the Oklahoma City bombing, as the April 19 anniversary of our own violent "revolutionary" birth as a nation became the chronological site upon which the bombers chose to defend America's violent, imperial, white, racist, "Christian" tradition.

No, my friends, I have no tears for Oklahoma City.

Martin F. Jones is a UMass student.

Letters to the Editor and Columns

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please type your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several concise letters in the limited space available on the page.

All letters should include a name, address and phone number (for verification purposes only). Students should also include their year and major. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length.

Send all letters to the Ed/Op page c/o the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass.

Letters to the Editor can also be sent through our e-mail account: letters@oitvms.oit.umass.edu

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

HEY, MR. HARRIS, IT'S A REAL HONOR DRIVING YOU TO THE CONVENTION!
WELL, THANKS, YOUNGSTER. I APPRECIATE THAT.
THE GUYS AT THE GARAGE WERE SO IMPRESSED WHEN I GOT THE CALL! EVERYONE REMEMBERS WHEN YOU TOOK THE SILVER AT THE GERALD FORD TANNING-GOLF COMBO!
MYSELF. I THINK YOUR GREATEST YEAR WAS '77, WHEN YOU BLEW AWAY SONNY BONO IN THE RESBO ALS! YOU WERE ON FIRE—THE TALK OF THE BOARDWALK!
YEAH, '77 WAS PRETTY BIG FOR ME, I GUESS.
I HEARD YOU EVEN HAD YOUR OWN STALKER.
HALF TRUE. I SHARED ONE WITH RYAN O'NEAL.

Letters to the Editor

Poster in questionable taste

The poster on the door by the OMBUDS Office looks like a dark human figure made of rope, extended from one arm of rope is another line of rope that leads to a head sized loop with a large knot holding the loop in place.

It looks suspiciously like a "lynch rope" with a dark figure tied up in rope and being "lynched" by it. This is a hanging in the OMBUDS office. It's like the Old South, a dark figure hanging from enough rope to kill him or her.

Historically, lynching occurred to both sexes, a fact few people know. This figure is a symbolic representation of a reality. Is this image a reminder or a "vision" of how things are or a "want-a-be?" What kind of thing is it?

After the initial shock of recognition came the "back stab" of irony. I am an African-American student here to ask these people for help. How sensitive and aware can they be if their choice of poster to represent themselves is a black figured tied up in a lynching rope? I pondered this question as I looked at the top of the poster where it was written, "untangle the knot" and beneath it, The OMBUDS Office.

After I mentioned this strange image and the message it sent to the people in the office a person questioned another person in the office: "She thinks this looks like a lynching. What do you think?" The person answered unbelievably — "Yeah, I think so too. Maybe we should think about getting a different poster?"

Images do count. They bypass the conscious mind and infiltrate the subconscious their they subtly influence our thinking and feeling. As an African-American student, messages like the poster in the OMBUDS office are a sinister reminder of a horrific history we have tried so hard to overcome.

But it also expresses the gross insensitivity of institutionalized racism. Their comfort with expressing violence towards blacks as well as people of color and their amazement at our discomfort in being confronted.

Sharon Cousin
Amherst

Arts & Living

Kerrigan signs book for kids

NANCY KERRIGAN / COLLEGIAN

Figure skater Nancy Kerrigan gives a signed copy of her book to Kim Carlyle, eleven, from Springfield. The book signing was held at the Olympia Ice Arena in West Springfield on Wednesday.

By Amy H. Paradysz
Collegian Staff

NANCY KERRIGAN WITH STEVE WOODWARD
Nancy Kerrigan: In My Own Words
Hyperion Paperbacks for Children

Since figure skater Nancy Kerrigan won the silver medal at the 1994 Winter Olympics, her career has gone on a literary tangent.

Using the motto "Anything is possible," Kerrigan, with help from Steve Woodward, constructed a simplistic message of optimism in her biography for girls, Nancy Kerrigan: In My Own Words.

The attack on Kerrigan's leg that dominated the news in January of 1994 is turned into a lesson on overcoming adversity. Poor performances become lessons to teach girls to overcome "the voice" inside that undermines self-confidence. Nancy's mother, Brenda, who is almost blind and watches her daughter skate with the assistance of a personal TV monitor, serves as an example of determination and ingenuity to overcome disadvantages. Financial difficulties are swept away as problems to be conquered by sheer hard work.

Wednesday, Nancy signed her book at Olympia Ice Arena in West Springfield a few hours before a Campbell's Tour performance at the Springfield Civic Center. Brenda Kerrigan sat nearby, seeming kind of confused by the isolation of her daughter, as lines of kids and parents waited with programs, photos, and even the book, in their hands.

"I don't think there was anything like this" when Nancy was this age, said Brenda. "I don't remember being in a place where this went on."

A television camera was turned on to capture the recently married skater, who signed numerous items for a man who put his arm around her for a photo. Kerrigan asked teenagers questions about themselves, smiled at everyone she saw and even held a baby.

"I think before the Olympics, people who knew Nancy loved her," Brenda said. "There's more people who think [they know her] now."

Few fans at the booksigning read the book before the event at the Olympia, perhaps because they bought their copies a few feet from Nancy.

"I think it's well-written for a children's book," said Mt. Holyoke sophomore Emily Hunter. She was getting the book autographed for a friend's sister.

Older readers would be put off by the book's preachy tone and the condescending defining of terms, such as choreography. But it's not an adult book.

Regardless, it seems to run out of steam towards the end. On the last page, Nancy gets married and says she's "excited about exploring those other sides of life." There's no previous mention of this mystery guy. An eight-page color photo section shows Nancy hugging, not her husband, but Brian Boitano from the Campbell's Tour. But who cares? She's a grown-up now. The sections dealing with the attack and Tonya Harding are complete, but lack conviction.

One of the most memorable scenes takes place outside the 1979's Boston Open, Kerrigan's first competition. The 10- year-old was on a swing set, and another skater had to run out to tell her she had won the silver medal. "Great," said Nancy, and kept on swinging. Going in to get the medal seemed like "bad timing" to Kerrigan, who wrote she was having fun on the swings. B–

Cowboy Junkies return to the Valley

By Lisa M. Olivieri
Collegian Staff

The Cowboy Junkies are a cult favorite. Many people rave about Margo's ephemeral voice and love to become lost in a daydream as she sings softly in the background. Others say that she has no more emotion than a corpse. But one thing is for sure, the Junkies evoke a strong response from everyone.

Led by frontwoman Margo Timmins, the group is a family affair. Her siblings, Michael and Peter, play guitar and drums respectively. The bassist, Alan Anton, is one of Michael's oldest friends.

Although the Cowboy Junkies have been around for 10 years, it was not until the release of the Velvet Underground cover, "Sweet Jane," that they began to gain notoriety. Critically acclaimed and praised for their emotional, often sensual music, the Cowboy Junkies have returned with their latest release, Lay it Down.

They got their start in a Toronto garage, recording their first album, 1986's Whites Off Earth Now! Inspired by Michael's recent trip to England, the album consisted of mostly bluesy songs. It was not until the Junkies toured the Southwest in support of the album that they discovered country music.

Recording covers from such famous country artists as Hank Williams and Patsy Cline, the band released their second and most popular album, The Trinity Sessions. Praised for its simplicity and stark beauty, it rocketed the Junkies into stardom.

The band is best known for their contribution to Oliver Stone's film Natural Born Killers.LMOLisa M. Olivieri

"Sweet Jane," a song that Michael did not even write, is the connection most people make with the Cowboy Junkies.

"Someone said to me recently, 'More people probably know your version of "Sweet Jane" than Lou Reed's,' and it's probably true," Michael said.

In their latest release Lay It Down, the songs are typical Junkies, sometimes dark, mostly emotional, and always angelic. They are structurally simpler than those on their previous albums, and the music more sparse, creating a sound very similar to their first album.

The Cowboy Junkies are often criticized for recording songs that are indistinguishable from their older ones. However, on this album they seem to have a newfound energy. They certainly will never be considered a rock band, but with the spirit and warmth they evoke, (just listen to "Musical Key") the Cowboy Junkies have seemed to have found themselves a niche in today's musical world.

The Cowboy Junkies will perform at Amherst College tomorrow evening at 8 p.m. Tickets are $20 for the public.

Coolio & Fugees prepare for rap attack

By Tara MK Connelly and Adam Dlugacz
Collegian Staff

Coolio first introduced himself to the music world with his debut album, Fantastic Voyage a rap/hip-hop album laced with funk, soul and the genre's trademark lyrics about violence, house parties and rolling with the homies.

However his sophomore effort, Coolio: Gangsta Paradise launched him to the top of the charts and into CD and cassette players around the world. The first single and title track of the album sold 1.5 million copies and became one of the biggest songs of the year.

The film Dangerous Minds may not have had audiences buying into Michelle Pfeiffer's tough as nails image, but the popularity and appeal of the heavy lidded, pig-tailed rap star could not go unnoticed. "Gangsta Paradise" scaled the charts around the world. Coolio had become a household name at home and internationally — parents in the Netherlands were even naming their kids after him.

Despite the doom and gloom lyrics of his first release, Gangsta Paradise is an album filled with the performer's love/hate relationship with the ghetto. Songs like "Sumpin' New" and "The Revolution" (based around a Sly Stone song) take the harsh pill of violence and destruction and candy coat it with the message that love and family can make the bitter pill all the easier to swallow.

Coolio wraps his songs around 70 sounding tunes, often utilizing choice samples to funk up his work. This, mixed with hip-hop dance grooves make for an infectious combination. Gangsta Paradise not only finds the rap master acting as a new voice to a somewhat stale genre, but also as a more socially aware voice as well.

"Too Hot" cautions listeners about the dangers of unprotected sex, other messages on the album include praise for African American women and concern for a new born child. This new type of self awareness and responsibility make Coolio's opening act, the Fugees, a perfect match.

The Fugees (short for refugees) are a trio consisting of Lauryn Hill, Prakazrel Michel and Wyclef Jean. The group first woke people up with Blunted on Reality which featured the single "Nappy Heads (remix)." The Score, the Fugees follow-up album quickly attained number one status as all hip-hop heads were banging to it.

The Fugees' music has been declared as some of the most ground breaking work in hip-hop since the Digable Planets and US3. However, unlike those groups, the Fugees have been able to maintain street credibility without resorting to typical gangster leanings.

The group tends to steer clear of lyrics that degrade women and promote senseless violence and destruction, but at the same time they use their talent to get the message home without beating the listener to death with it.

The Fugee's latest album is heavily influenced by Caribbean music and urban American hip-hop. The Score includes a cover of Bob Marley's "No Woman, No Cry" and a cover of Roberta Flack's "Killing Me Softly."

Wyclef Jean, Prakazrel Michel and Lauryn Hill combine consciousness with music to create a sound bold and fresh enough to compliment what is sure to be a stellar show.

Coolio and the Fugees play the John M. Greene Hall at Smith College on Saturday night. The show is sold out.

Romantic musical comes to the FAC

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

Lovers of Broadway musicals are in for a special treat as a revival of the 1963 musical, She Loves Me, comes to the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall for a one night only performance. The show, which begins at 7 p.m. Sunday night, is based on the Hungarian play, Parfumerie, and also inspired several movies.

The musical is set in Budapest, Hungary, in 1934. The two main characters, Georg and Amalia, are dull and ordinary in daily life, but become passionate through letters they write to each other. Not knowing that the other is their secret, romantic correspondent, the two who work in the same perfumic, constantly bicker at work. Meanwhile, the owner of the store, Maraczek comes to the conclusion that Georg is having an affair with his wife.

The original play, on which She Loves Me was based, was written by Miklos Laszlo. It inspired the movies The Shop Around the Corner and In the Good Old Summertime.

She Loves Me first opened on Broadway during the 1963–64 season and despite good reviews, a solid cast a sophisticated script, it ran only 300 performances in all. Even the direction of the legendary Hal Prince couldn't save the show from being trounced by the giant musicals of that era, namely Funny Girl and Hello Dolly! Fortunately for fans of musical theater, She Loves Me was revived on Broadway in June of 1993.

The book, score and lyrics were written by Joe Masteroff, Sheldon Harnick and Jerry Bock, respectively. Masteroff and Harnick had teamed up previously on the famous musicals, Fiddler on the Roof and Fiorello! set critics claimed that their work on She Loves Me outshone the previous efforts.

She Loves Me promises to be an enchanting evening for musical theater lovers of all ages.

Tickets for the show are $35, $27 and $18. Tickets are $10 for individuals 17 and under and $5 for Five College students. To order tickets, or for more information, please call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-999-UMAS.

Cowboy Junkies

COURTESY OF MAN

Comfort Fashion Footwear Days!

•Aerosoles •Dr. Martens
•Birkenstocks •Ecco
•Clarks •Naot

2 days only Fri-Sat April 19-20
Sale Savings selected Comfort Fashion footwear

ZAMA
Downtown Amherst

Meeting Notice

Top of the Campus, Incorporated (TOC, Inc) will hold its Annual Meeting in Campus Center 801, May 10, 1996, 2 p.m.

$5,000 Reward For Information About Rape

A reward for $5,000 is being offered for any information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person who committed an alleged rape/sexual assault upon a UMass student in the bathroom of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity on or about February 29 - March 1, 1996. Any persons with information should contact Attorney Jeffrey A. Newman at 1-800-354-7441, Fax (617) 723-3122, or write Jeffrey A. Newman, Newman & Beeler, 45 School Street, Boston, MA 02108.

Cotton Affordable Rayon

Cards Rings Incense Candles
T-Shirts Sale
Shorts Earrings Dresses 20 to 50% off selected Clothing

The GreatGifts Th Fri 9PM
Mercantile Sun 12-5 Daily 10-6
Northampton-18 Center St. Amherst-Carriage Shops

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

THIS FILM RESUMES SUN. thru THURS. APR. 21-25
AT 7 & 9:15 DAILY (NO SHOWING TONIGHT OR SAT.)

"THERE WON'T BE A BETTER FILM THAN THIS ALL YEAR!"

"TWO THUMBS UP, WAY UP!"

A HOMESPUN MURDER STORY BY JOEL & ETHAN COEN

FARGO
The Only Local Showing
From the team that gave you Blood Simple and Raising Arizona

ACADEMY of MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Opera House 584-8435

Sitton hoping for A-10 title

By Mike Corey
Collegian Staff

In 1992, when weeds and grass were growing out of the UMass tennis courts, Liesl Sitton set foot on the UMass campus for the first time.

"The first thing I saw was the courts and I said 'I can't believe this,'" Sitton said. "I wanted to die. I said 'Mom I'm transferring. I'm getting out of here.'"

However those thoughts would be quick to change as the next year the Upper Boyden Courts were completely renovated. Judy Dixon, former tennis professional took over the helm, and it was time to start bringing respect back to the tennis program.

Liesl Sitton would be the foundation of that rebuilding. Born and raised in Puerto Rico, Sitton began playing tennis when she was 7-years-old. In 1992 she came to UMass, and began the task of trying to put the women's tennis program on the map.

"[The first year] was more about establishing the program than really trying to do anything against any team," Sitton said. "It was being a leader on the court, being the best player out there and just showing other people what kind of tennis UMass is going to bring."

"The next two years I was trying to show the girls who knew how to play, how to have a team effort, and how to be competitive," Sitton said.

Sitton attributes many things to her success here at UMass beginning with Dixon.

"We have the honor to have the best coach in all of New England and all the East," Sitton said. "You take it for granted, but once I'm leaving I'll feel it, cause she's not only a coach, she's a friend. She wants the kids to come here, get an education, and do well."

The 21-year-old senior co-captain will take to the courts at home for the last time this weekend, playing in the Atlantic 10 Championships.

"Right now I'm very excited. My parents are coming here to watch me play for the first time in college," Sitton said. "I'm really nervous though, but I'm going to be playing at a totally different level. No one is going to be around to see me lose. That's the way I'm going to put it."

Losing has rarely been a part of Sitton's vocabulary in her career at UMass. She's compiled a 72-13 lifetime singles record including 7-1 this spring, and won her second straight No. 1 singles title at the New England Championship last fall.

Approaching the end of the season Sitton has mixed emotions.

"I've been thinking about it and I really felt depressed," Sitton said. "I felt gosh, it's my last match, I'm going to miss the team, next year I'm working, it's never going to be the same.

"Now I feel like we have this wonderful opportunity to go far in the A-10's. This is my last year and my job is not done yet. So I need to finish it off in the right way. I can't just sit back and say I've done it well, this is great and just sit back and let the A-10's go by, cause I'll never have that again. So my job hasn't been done and I'm going to go out there and prove it and do it again."

■ tennis

continued from page 10

one junior. It is coming off a 9-5 spring record and 16-6 overall. Its latest match was a 2-7 loss to Indiana State.

The top four seeded teams will have byes to the second round which begins at noon this afternoon. The semi-finals will be on Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Upper courts.

The rest of the [illegible] will all play first round games today starting at 8 a.m.

The Minutewomen are confident that they will be able to play through the first two days, and to end of the weekend.

"We want to be in the finals on Sunday, and this team deserves to be there," Dixon said. "We want to make sure people are coming out at 9 a.m. (Sunday) to see us play for second or first place."

Women's lax set for Phily weekend

By Jason Rubin
Collegian Staff

If there ever was a team of hard knocks, it would have to be the Massachusetts women's lacrosse team, which travels to Philadelphia this weekend for a pair of games against St. Joseph's and Villanova.

On Wednesday afternoon the team lost its second straight game, and dropped its record to 2-5. However, both of the last two games could of gone either way.

After spotting Hofstra a five goal lead, back to back goals by junior Stephanie Walsh, and freshman Laura Korutz brought the Minutewomen to within three by half.

The second half began the same way the first closed, with UMass netting two quick goals, but Hofstra responded with the game's next three goals, to put the contest out of reach. However, the team never gave up.

"We were real pleased with our effort," said assistant coach Betsy Dinger. "Our defense played tough, and our offense had plenty of opportunities."

The Massachusetts team is showing signs of consistency rare for a fourth year program.

Junior goalie Trish DiBenedetto continued to be solid, making 14 saves in the game. Junior Stephanie Walsh kept up her goal scoring streak, lighting up Hofstra for four more tallies. The young core of attackmen is striking aggressively.

Most importantly, the Minutewomen played up to Hofstra's level.

"It was a good back and forth game, and we played hard for 60 minutes," Dinger said.

The next game up for the Minutewomen is on Saturday when they travel to take on St. Josephs. After that, they travel to Villanova to take on the Wildcats. Both are ranked teams, that will test the strength of the UMass program.

In a season that can be considered a positive learning experience, UMass is looking impressive. It has won two big games, and have held its own against some of the top teams in the country.

"Up next for us is St. Joe's, and Villanova. Both are top teams, that compete on a higher level," Dinger said. "Their programs are examples of what we want to achieve," she added.

Water polo ready for post season play

By Jen Ryder
Collegian Correspondent

The No. 17 Massachusetts women's water polo team begins their post season play this weekend at the EWPA New England Playoffs in Middletown, Conn.

The Minutewomen (12-4, 7-1 EWPA) begin their play on Saturday against Queens College at 11:45 a.m. The winner of that game goes on to face the winner of the Brown- Dartmouth game.

"The tournament is not going to be easy for us because we have to beat Brown and Harvard again to come out on top," coach Bob Newcomb said. "Winning this weekend will give us a No. 2 seed in the East for the Eastern Championships the following weekend."

The team is coming off a perfect 4-0 performance last weekend in the EWPA New England North Tournament with victories over Harvard (2 OT), Dartmouth, MIT, and Wellesley.

"Beating Harvard was one of our goals for this season, and having accomplished that we are feeling really good and confident about ourselves. It was a good win for us last weekend," Newcomb added. "We are on a good roll now and confident going into the tournament this weekend."

On the attack for the Minutewomen will be juniors Vicky Bamond and Cathy Leeburg, who lead the team in goals with 46 and 29 respectively. Bamond and Leeburg combined for 28 of the team's 67 goals this past weekend.

"Vicky and Cathy played great last weekend. They were both outstanding on offense and defense," Newcomb said. "Their leadership is just excellent."

Other teams in this weekend's tournament include Harvard, Williams, MIT and Wesleyan. "Right now we are doing the things I had at the top of my list for this season. We are communicating well and helping each other out on defense."

This weekend's tournament will help to determine where the Minutewomen will be seeded for the Eastern Championship, to be played next weekend in Princeton, NJ.

Bruins ready for Florida's luck to change

By John Pacenti
Associated Press

MIAMI — The Boston Bruins say Florida got lucky against them in the Eastern Conference series opener and are counting on the puck bouncing their way in the second game.

The Panthers, playing in their first postseason game, defeated playoff perennial Boston 6-3 Wednesday night in front of a crazed Miami Arena crowd.

The Bruins tried to look at the good things they did against Florida after the game. They outshot the Panthers 45-30 and created havoc around the net for goaltender John Vanbiesbrouck. Their powerplay unit with Ray Bourque, Adam Oates and Rick Tocchet had two goals.

"I had three breakaways," Oates said. "You have to be doing something right to get those, but the goalie made some nice saves unfortunately. They didn't go in tonight."

Boston coach Steve Kasper said one of the Panthers' goals went off a Bruin skate and another bounced off a referee. "We will be ready to come back at them," he said.

Florida players said the only luck it knew for most of the second half of the season was bad luck and they will take any goal they can get. "We hadn't had too many of those in the last 15 games," said the Panthers' Tom Fitzgerald. "Finally, we have some things going our way."

The Bruins will have a long time to think about the loss. The next game in the best-of-seven series is Monday at the Miami Arena — which is booked until then because of three Garth Brooks concerts and an NBA game.

Boston goaltender Bill Ranford said he has to be better prepared for the Panthers' swarming offense.

"We knew they would go to the net well," Ranford said. "That's what they did and the puck bounced their way. ... That's just one game. We've just got to go out and stop the puck next time. That's my job."

Boston also was hurt by penalties. The Bruins were the least penalized team in the NHL during the season, averaging 12.7 minutes per game. They compiled 26 minutes in the box on Wednesday night.

"We've been killing penalties better than we did tonight," Bourque said. "We've got to be more disciplined and stay out of the box."

The Bruins also learned why the Panthers fought so hard for home ice. Florida refused to play the second game in Boston because the Miami Arena — where they are 26-12-4 — was booked, and opted instead to wait until Monday.

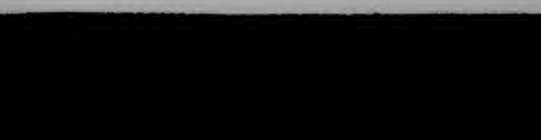
Wednesday night, fans in the sold-out arena rained down plastic rats — the team's unofficial mascot — on the Bruins after every Florida goal in a ritual begun after the season started.

"When you work all year to get home-ice advantage you want to keep it and make it work for you," MacLean said. "We saw last Tuesday night some teams lose that had home ice. There is no guarantee."

Still, the Panthers know one game does not make a series no matter how well you play.

"We know that the Bruins are made of," MacLean said. "This will be a long, hard series. We have to refocus on Monday. As you saw from the Bruins, it's going to be a battle. We have to be ready to play."

I scream, you scream, we all scream for Sports?



Yeah, that's it!

The WEBSTER Theatre — Bringing Hartford's Music Scene To A New Level!

Check out these great All Ages Shows!

THE RADIATORS — Saturday, April 20th — Tickets $12 In Advance

An Evening With... WIDESPREAD PANIC — Wednesday, April 24th — Tickets $15.50 in Advance

MORPHINE — Wednesday, May 8th — Tickets $15

Friday, May 24th FISHBONE — Tickets $10 in Advance

Tickets Available at: Strawberries (Music and Video Stores); ProTix (Charge By Phone (860) 422-6000); The Webster Box Office, 31 Webster Street, Hartford, CT, Mon-Fri 12-3, 525-5553

MOVING? DOMESTIC OR INTERNATIONAL For Rates & Services Toll Free 800-752-6773 http://www.trade-exhibit.com

AMC THEATRES — $2.50 (TWI-LITE) Show Daily Limited To Seating. Advance Special Engagement

MT. FARMS 4 — Mt Farms Mall, Route 9, Hadley — 584-9153 — Call Theatre For Showtimes

HAMPSHIRE 8 — Hampshire Mall, Route 9, Hadley — 584-5550 — Call Theatre For Showtimes

Also going on this weekend...

The women's crew hosts its only home race of the season, when it battles New Hampshire Saturday on the Connecticut River.

The men's track and field team will head east for a try meet with regional rivals Northeastern and Providence and Rhode Island.

The women's track and field team will host it's second straight home meet this weekend as Dartmouth and New Hampshire will visit Llewelyn Derby Track

GET READY PIONEER VALLEY!

Take it to the Hoopla with Fun, Food, Hoops, Prizes and exciting Special Events:
•SPALDING WOMEN'S CLINIC
•GATORADE SLAM DUNK CONTEST
•USAIR LONG DISTANCE SHOOTOUT
•DAILY COLLEGIAN FOUL SHOOTING CONTEST
•NEW BALANCE PRIZES AND PROMOTIONS

Experience the Excitement at the

new balance Haigis Hoopla VI

UMass Sport Management Program
April 20-21

Gatorade · Pepsi · Burger King · Sport Court · Spalding · Travelers 913

DAILY COLLEGIAN

For more information call the New Balance Haigis Hoopla Office 545-5689

Lorenz Olympic Gold Medal Challenge

Drive To Victory

Food — Games — Tie-Dyes (bring a T-shirt)

Thursday April 25th 11:00am-5:00pm

Umass-Pond

Sponsored by Don Lorenz, Inc. of Greenfield
http://www-unix.oit.umass.edu/~lora

Prizes — Win a Weekend Getaway to Montreal

Co-sponsored by The Collegian, WHMP, Flex Gym, Superior Estates, Taylor Rental, Stonehill, Pony Cat Print Shop, Cartoons Pizza, Mama Mia, Joseph's Westview, Mill Valley Estates, Java Hut Friendly's, The University Store, Atkins Farm, Big D Cafe, Friendly's Snack Bar, Hanlon Bakery, Top Of The Hill Marina, Victory Supermarket, Brookside Flower Shop, All Weave Wedding & Tans

■ draft

continued from page 10

free agent, there's no shame in that. Nothing's come really easy so far," Ingoglia said.

Ingoglia's diving into quite a competitive field, as the NFL is filled with a talented profession of running backs. To know Ingoglia, though, he'll do anything for you as a coach. In the NFL, he'll do everything he can to help his team.

"Anything. I'll do whatever it takes. If it's blocking kicks, or returning kicks, or blocking for kicks or being a spot back, I'll do it," Ingoglia said.

Mike Hodges, Ingoglia's coach at UMass, has watched Ingoglia develop in his college career. He know how big Ingoglia's heart is. He knows how hard Ingoglia works. He knows how talented Ingoglia is.

"I believe in the kid," Hodges said. "I've never coached in the NFL, I've never played in the NFL. But I'll tell you one thing — it's going to be very difficult for a coach to cut him. His talent, his versatility, his willingness to do whatever it takes — coaches want to coach guys like that."

As for Ingoglia, he's probably playing golf right this moment. He normally plays to relax, to take his mind off things. This weekend will contain enough excitement and suspense and anticipation and commotion that surrounds his career opportunity. Today, he's a little anxious, but nothing a round of 18 holes won't cure.

After all, Rene Ingoglia is confident in where he stands.

"People think this is corny when I say this, I want to be the best player ever. That's what keep me going," Ingoglia said. "I know its corny, and you say, well, he's never going to be this, he's never going to be that. And the challenge ... I love the challenge to get out there and play the game."

■ softball

continued from page 10

"It helps to know that you have a good defense behind you," said Wagner whose record improves to 13-5 and her ERA. It now stands at a minuscule 1.15. "It takes the pressure off me."

Here's where it gets really unfair. Freshman sensation Danielle Henderson got just two runs to work with in her outing and still guided the Minutewomen to their 18th straight game without a loss, including being unbeaten at home this season (7-0-1).

Henderson didn't even have her best stuff at her disposal in the night cap of the twin-bill. Her delivery was more than good enough for the Rams (13-17), who scratched out two non-impressive singles, while suffering seven strike-outs. Her strikeout total ties a career high.

The only time Henderson ran into any serious trouble was in the fifth inning, after she had retired nine in a row and 12-of-13.

The first batter, Kathy Bailey (who broke up a Wagner no- hitter with a one-out single in the fifth) reached first on an Amy Powell infield error. Henderson beaned the next hitter, Jennifer Klinglesmith, putting runners on first and second with no outs.

Dori Venditti then bunted both runners over, and Bailey scored on a wild pitch from Henderson. Hayes made a heads-up play on the next batter to quell the threat.

Heather Reifinger knocked a routine grounder to Hayes, who smartly looked back the runner at third and got the out at first. Consequently, shortstop Meredith Cloutier flied out to right field to end the only serious Ram rally of the afternoon.

With the win, Henderson (13-5, 1.18) has now recorded 13 consecutive victories, breaking Holly Aprile's mark of 12 set back in 1989.

All the Massachusetts scoring happened in the home half of the first inning. Powell drew a bases loaded walk plating Stephanie Marcina, and Hayes uncorked a Texas Leaguer to score Kim Gutridge with the game-clincher.

The Minutewomen are now a perfect 8-0 in the Atlantic- 10, and will be on the road for a pair of double dips with LaSalle and Fordham on Saturday and Sunday.

■ baseball

continued from page 10

Nate Murphy notched the game's only home run when he surgically placed the ball in the same direction as his triple in the second. This time, the high, hard blast found it's way into the UMass bullpen in centerfield, driving home three runs for the Minutemen.

"The first one I thought I hit pretty well," Murphy said," I started running and when it dropped in, I was pretty upset it didn't get out right there. I thought it was a one shot deal."

Much to Murphy's delight, it wasn't. "It was special hitting that home run," Murphy said of belting one out of Fenway.

If Murphy, a likely draft choice, continues to swing the bat with success (.368 avg., 58 RBI's on 33 hits) he may get another chance to hit one out of a Big League park in the future.

Stone reworked the line up in the seventh by replacing the entire infield, except for Gorrie at short, allowing for a full team outing. The Crimson tallied their lone run in the seventh, the extent of their offensive push.

UMass earned three more runs in the seventh, putting a Harvard win even further from the minds in the Crimson dugout.

The Minutemen travel to Olean, N.Y. this weekend for two double dips against St. Bonaventure, in hopes of breaking their tie for second place in the A-10 East. UMass is back at Fenway on Tuesday where it will face Northeastern in the Beanpot final at noon.

■ lax

continued from page 10

close game with Carolina as a moral victory for the Irish, Corrigan doesn't look at it that way.

"Quite honestly our team is pissed off that we lost the game," he said. "We were ahead 10-7 and we thought we should have won the game. We're not trying to send a message to anybody, we're want to win the game."

ND is led by goaltender Alex Cade, who has been impressive between the pipes with an impressive 7.26 goals against average.

Offensively sophomore James Keenan leads the Irish with 10 goals and 11 assists, while freshman Chris Dusseau has provided a considerable scoring punch with 20 goals in his rookie season.

"We knew we'd have to get our scoring from somewhere," Corrigan said. "We lost four or five of our top scorers from last year so we knew somebody had to step up."

A year ago, the Minutemen upended spoiled Irish's first trip to the Pioneer Valley, with a come-from-behind 10-9 victory. Brendan Glass was brilliant for the Minutemen collecting a career high seven goals in the game.

Corrigan doesn't have any specific plans for shutting down the junior All America candidate in this year's contest.

"We're going to try to hold him under seven this year," Corrigan said laughing. "He's a very good player. I don't know if we'll do anything special against him. If we do it will come in the locker room. He's a heck of a player. We'll just try to contain him."

Oh sure, it looks innocent. But it could be wired to a no-name company that has no qualms about overcharging broke college students. So, calling card in hand, you dial 1 800 CALL ATT and save yourself some much-needed* cash.

Live off campus?
Dial 1 800 CALL ATT for AT&T Calling Card calls.
Always get AT&T. Never get overcharged.

Know the Code. 1 800 CALL ATT. That's Your True Choice.™

AT&T
Your True Choice

© 1996 AT&T

COMPUTER FAIR & SALE — 100 HOURS FREE INTERNET

TRI-STATE FAIRS
10AM-5:30PM

I-84 North exit 18 turning right onto Rte 9 • 4 miles left at Staples onto Rte 190, first right to right, left to Center 1-91 S take exit 20

Buy at wholesale prices right at the show from up to 70 companies (200 exhibit tables) featuring the IBM/PC compatible market. From full systems to shareware, it's all here. Adm $7 ea. with ad $6ea. after 1:00 pm $5 ea w/ad only

MULLINS CENTER AMHERST SATU, APR 20

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D., number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ANNOUNCEMENTS

A Ki Ch[illegible] Friday and Saturday

h's Back! [illegible] Mass Mountain

APARTMENT FOR RENT

4 Bedroom [illegible] bus route

Take Over Lease [illegible] Brandywine

TAKE OVER OUR LEASE! [illegible] June

Take over our lease [illegible] dorm bus

Apartment available [illegible] bed

TAKE OVER OUR LEASE [illegible] Apt

Two Bedroom [illegible] Apt

Take over our lease 6/1! [illegible] bed

Apartments available [illegible] and

Three bedroom condominiums, with

AUTO FOR SALE

Jeep Cherokee 4X4 [illegible] 1985

1981 Honda Accord [illegible]

1987 Plymouth Colt [illegible]

1994 GEO PRIZM [illegible]

1988 Chevy Nova [illegible]

EMPLOYMENT

Event Staffers, an agency specializing in staffing promotions, is now recruiting MARKETING REPRESENTATIVES for Collegiate Advantage, a Boston marketing firm. The available positions for Juniors are in August and for graduates the opportunities are for August - September and possibly beyond. benefits of this program include: team valuable marketing sales promotions and management skills. Gain excellent career experience and resume builder. Earn competative salary. Expense paid travel. Be more competitive in the job market and get the experience employers want. Visit our information table on Monday, April 22nd on the Campus Center Concourse. Collegiate Advantage will also be at the Hasbro Hootie this weekend. Come see our promotions in action! Or, for more information call Christina at 1 800 783 [illegible] ext. 346.

Work at home earn $100 to $1000 weekly. 75 companies now hiring. Rush $5 to Leonard Hopkins for information. Box 598 Hadley, MA 01035.

START YOUR OWN CAREER in a fast growing business. Sales experience or training NOT necessary. Contact MATT at 413 867 4168 or e-mail matthew@State dent.umass.edu.

ALASKA EMPLOYMENT - Fisheries jobs. Resorts hiring for summer! Earn $2,000 - $3,000+/Month. Airfare, Room Board. No exp required. Apply now! Call 919 932 1489 ext A130

LAST CHANCE LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED - April 19 - This is the last day to contact the legal services center about a fall 1996 internship! Get hands on experience in the legal field. Work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession required training is provided. Contact legal services today. 545-1909, 922 Campus Center.

National Parks Hiring - Positions are now available at National Parks Forests & Wildlife Preserves. Excellent benefits & bonuses! Call 1 206 971 3620 ext N5611 4

Full/Part Time - Typewriter the most fun way to have making serious money. Call Danielle at 256 8883

SMALL, COED, OVERNIGHT CAMP

Looking for outgoing male counselors who enjoy working with children ages 7 13 yrs. Incredible experience. Call Michelle at 546 8677 or Ken at 413 529 [illegible] 2529

Summer Painters hiring for Boston and Hartford. Will train completely. Earn $6 $10/hr. Call N.E. Collegiate Painters at 800 569 8979

Women needed for research project. Runners and Sedentary women 18 25 years old age. You will be paid $150 If interested call 549 5352, ask for Deanna

Counselors. Lred overnight weight loss camp. looking for outgoing, athletic individuals who enjoy working with children Great experience. Call 413 232 8518

Eastern Europe Jobs - Teach basic conversational English in Prague Budapest or Krakow. No teaching certificate or European Languages required. Inexpensive room and board and other benefits for info call 206 971 3686 ext K5011

EMPLOYMENT

Looking for summer jobs? Openings available at Brandywine Apartments Lifeguards - full time and p/t. Must be Red Cross certified. Grounds Keepers Porters full time. Must be hard working reliable and responsible. Stop by Brandywine office 180 Brandywine Drive Amherst Ma 01002 549 0600

National Parks, Beach/Mt Resorts. Ranches Rafting Co's now hiring! Nationwide! 500 employers! Top pay benefits. Call (919) 932 1489 ext R170

Alaska Student Employment — fish erries, parks, resorts now hiring! Earn $3000 $6000/mo! Airfare! Room/board! Free video w/program! Call 919 932 1489 ext A120

Tropical Resorts Hiring Students need ed? Entry level career positions available worldwide. Call Resort Employment Services (206) 971 3600 ext R5011

International Employment - Earn up to $25 $45/hour teaching basic conversational English in Japan Taiwan or S. Korea. No teaching background or Asian languages required. For info call (206) 971 3570 ext J50014

American All Students! Over $2 Billion in public and private sector grants & scholarship is now available. All students are eligible. Let us help. For more info call 1 800 263 6489 ext F50013

FOR RENT

2 Bedroom Apt in Colonial Village. Pay $250 for one bedroom. Have the other free! July 15 Aug 31. 256 6941.

1 Bedroom Apt. available June 1st Great clean and spacious. Call 549 5529 close and convenient for 1 or 2

3 Bedroom Apt in Putton Village starting June 1. Gas heat AC, water incl. Call on to lease. Call 549 8671 for more info

FOR SALE

P100 32 megs RAM 17 inch digital monitor 28k modem 850m hard drive loaded with software. $4000 BO Call Fred 549 [illegible]

Bass/Guitar/Amp - Gibson Les Paul with case $300 b o. Ibanez 5 string bass bought new hardly used $400 b o. Crate 160 watt bass amp $250 b o. 256 1992

Laptop Computers Cheap Great WP all under 100 Call 6 0246

Tele Car Rack gutter Mount $50 Call 253 0362 Leave message

486 DX66 Computer 540 MB Hard drive 8meg ram/fax modem 14 monitor $1 100 or B O Call 253 0362 Leave Message

Computer Fair Mullins Center Saturday, April 20 10AM 4PM 100 Hours free internet plus bonus of 10 hours on line AOL First 500 customers buy from the experts at wholesale right at the show from up to 70 different companies 200 exhibits featuring IBM PC compatible market Latest technology from full systems to shareware It's all here General admission $7 00 each With ad $6 00 each after 1PM $4 00 each with ad only

2 Pioneer 4X10 car speakers & 2 Infinity 4X6 dash speakers $130 both pair. Call Jeff Leib 253 4161

10 Gal Fish Tank parts inc $65 BO Jeff 253 4161

Hewlett Packard Deskjet 600C Printer w/ stand. Used 4 months. $210 Call Marie 549 3846.

FOUND

Found leather pouch containing keys Lakes Pizza Mass area. Call 545 3747

Sunglasses found on Friday the 12th on GPC low rise ground. Could to identify. 5 3811

MUSICIANS

Bassist Wanted to form band Influences Rage Nirvana, Alice ett. Call Rich 256 1751

MISCELLANEOUS

Good home needed for sex year old spayed female Bassett Hound. Please call Robin 323 6562

Person Wanted to own and operate retail candy shop in Amherst area. Low investment. For information call Mrs. Burden's Gourmet Candy Company, Dallas TX (214) 991 8239

Landed a job in Boston? Take the rents out of finding an apartment. BOSTON BROKER (617) 267 3444 UMASS Alum

PERSONALS

Toussy - A Very Happy Birthday to the girl who always makes me smile. Rom with sauce by candlelight tonight!

"Desperately seeking Sonoma..." I saw you in Lot E last Friday around noon. How I loved your low slung and graceful climb. Can I count on meeting you by the pond at the Lorenz Olympic Gold Medal Challenge on Thursday, April 25th?

ROOM WANTED

Female student looking for room in house or apt. for next Fall. Call 549 3516

ROOMMATE WANTED

Looking for 2 people to share a room in 3 bdr townehouse 1yr lease starting June 1st. Also looking for someone to sublet single room for summer only. I have a cat and a dog. If interested call Becky 549 6796

Looking For 1 or 2 Females to share a 2 BDRM Mill Valley apartment next year. Non smokers please. Call Sarah at 546 6241

PUFFTON - 2 females soaking 2 females mates to share a room in our 3 bedroom renovated apt. Available June 1 549 6614

Female Housemates Wanted to share 6 bdrm house in N. Amherst. Great location, on bus route low rent plus utilities. Starts 6/1. Call Amy at 549 7676 for more info.

Looking for roomates to share three bedroom apartment on Townhouses. I have a dog and cat. Call Becky at 549 6796. Males or females okay.

SERVICES

Know Your Rights. Do you have questions about your rights? Do you think your civil rights have been violated? Find out! Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center 545 1995.

Pregnant? Need Help? Call Birthright of Amherst area for free testing and caring Assistance. 549 1906

LANDSCAPING

Spring cleanup shrub trimming, planting, planning, debris removal. Call 589 1997 for a free estimate

SUMMER SUBLET

2 Bedroom Apt. at Brandywine. Available 6/1. Price negotiable. Call 549 8657

One room Putton apt. for Summer sublet $790 Mo. Call Fred 549 8968

2 Bdrm Brandywine Apt. Heat hot water incl. Call 549 0530

2 Bedroom Brandywine Apartment New rugs, view of pond. Call 549 5418

Bedroom in Presidential Apts. Walking distance. Call 549 4047

Looking for 1-4 people to summer sublet our Mill Valley apartment $715/Month. Call 253 7157

2 Bedroom Brandywine Apartment New rugs, view of pond. Call 549 5418

Large 2BR Apt. Main St 2 min walk to town, on bus route. Furnished! Call 256 8514

Take over our lease June 1 2 Bdrm in Presidential Apt $570/month hot water incl Call 549 0730

Summer Sublet with option to lease in Sept. LRG 2 bedroom in center of town. Heat and parking included. Call 256 4361

TO SUBLET

Take over lease June 1. Spacious 2 bdrm apt. Heat and hot water inc $695/Mo. 253 0864

TRAVEL

Come Join In The Adventure!! Come White Water Rafting with UMSC & UMDC! May 31 June 2. Only $199! Call us. 5 3437

WANTED

Some friends and I are going abroad for the fall semester. We are looking for some people who are leaving after the fall semester to split an apartment (up/down preferred). You take fall, we'll take spring. Call 549 5681. Ask for Steph

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

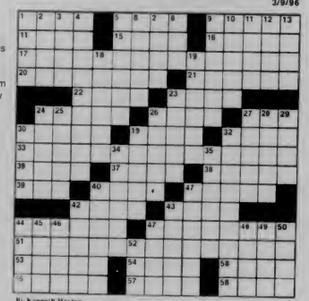
ACROSS
1 St. Louis players
5 Coalition
9 Idiom
14 In a dominant position
15 River bank
16 Geometric ratios
17 Southern constellation
20 Competitors
21 Silversmith Paul
22 Choliers
23 And
24 Laboratory dish
26 Hamburger holders
27 Advanced deg
30 Depend on
31 Secular
32 Field of study
33 Northern constellation
36 Glaciation stage
37 German admiral Maximilian
38 Eared seal
39 Bishopric
40 Direction for Child
41 "Cagney & Lacey" actress
42 Type of tournament
43 Blanc antonym
44 Gazing fixedly
47 Device for footwear
51 Southern constellation
53 Ecclesiastical plate
54 Chest sound
55 Stallion
56 Fell for confidence game
57 Bitsy's partner
58 Impetuous ardor

DOWN
1 Unusual
2 Solar disc
3 Women's rights advocate Lucretia
4 Actor's makeup glue
5 Bandar Sen Begawan is its capital
6 Rhythmic swings
7 Major work
8 Machine disk
9 Ill-fated Poe family
10 Cook's need
11 The Bard's wife
12 "The Waltons" actor Will
13 Borgia in-law
18 Library recess
19 Type of coat
23 Hotel accommodation
24 Nettle
25 Toughen
26 More contemptible
27 Indonesian boats
28 Gets the news
29 TV partner of 41 Across
30 Chops
31 Landlady of Dickens's "Blue Dragon"
32 Future
34 Venerate
35 Dawn stone
40 Type of molding
41 Giddy or foolish
42 Of a certain grain
43 Harrison and Coward
44 Egyptian snakes
45 Specialty of 49 Down
46 Nobel Peace Prize winner 1984
47 Thai coin
48 Williams's "Camino —"
49 "Queen" of 45 Down
50 Paradise
52 Cycle lead-in

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

C	L	E	R	K		O	B	O	L	A	B	L	E
R	E	A	I	R		R	O	K	A		T	O	I	L
A	S	S	A			S	A	A	R		T	A	N	K
B	E	T		S	T	O	R	Y	B	O	A	R	D	S
		E	X	T	E	N	D		O	L	I	D
S	E	R	M	O	N		G	M	A	I	N	I	E	R
A	N	N	A	L		C	A	I	R	O		N	A	E
H	E	S	S			T	A	M	E	D		M	G	R	S
I	R	E		E	H	R	E	N		B	A	S	T	E
B	O	A	R	D	E	R	S		R	O	S	C	O	E
		B	A	I	T		C	H	U	R	C	H
G	O	O	V	E	R	B	O	A	R	D		O	S	S
A	L	A	I	N		A	I	R	Y		E	L	O	P	E
F	E	R	N			I	D	E	E		R	E	L	A	X
F	A	D	E			N	E	S	S		G	I	S	S	Y

3/9/96



By Kenneth Haxton
© 1996 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Your Daily Horoscope

ARIES (March 21 – April 19) — Doing things with your hands helps you relax. Ask for any materials you need. Your concern for a parent is probably unnecessary. Do provide strong moral support, however.

TAURUS (April 20 – May 20) — Your finances may be more restricted than usual. Surround yourself with upbeat people. A patient approach is vital when dealing with the young. This evening, enjoy quiet pursuits like reading or listening to music.

GEMINI (May 21 – June 20) — A health matter requires immediate attention. Do not feel guilty about a new relationship. Remain true blue to your colleagues; you will need them in the future!

CANCER (June 21 – July 22) — Partners want you to change your mind. Don't do it! Unavoidable circumstances could affect a relationship, especially if you must travel. Cut down on your overhead.

LEO (July 23 – Aug. 22) — You are still ahead of the game. A recent financial coup contributes to your cheerful mood. More money may be needed for home repairs. Get several bids before signing contracts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 – Sept. 22) — Take advantage of an unusual opportunity that comes your way. You and a lover or friend share a beautiful experience. Family secrets are revealed. New understanding stems from better communication.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 – Oct. 22) — Finalize agreements only after reading the fine print. Refuse to let someone's dark moods destroy your confidence. Learn from the mistakes that others have made.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 – Nov. 21) — Put your financial theories into practice. Pursue unusual opportunities in education and the fine arts. Becoming more organized at work will help you triumph over a rival.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 – Dec. 21) — Emphasize independence and willpower on your way to the top. Meditation offers you a chance to discover what really means the most to you. Experiment with a new line of products.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 – Jan. 19) — A partner's accusations may be right on the money. Own up to your mistakes and vow to do better. Creative projects get the green light from financial backers.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 – Feb. 18) — Despite your confident manner, you secretly fear rejection. Work with a team instead of by yourself. Exercise helps reduce stress. New developments help you find out who your real friends are.

PISCES (Feb. 19 – March 20) — The emphasis now is on keeping your professional and private lives separate. Asking co workers for advice about a romantic situation would be a mistake. Remember, most people are simply not interested. Maintain your dignity.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Class: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capitol letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

Dilbert By Scott Adams

I CAN MAKE YOUR EMPLOYEES MORE CREATIVE AND SPIRITUALLY FULFILLED
I USE MY SPECIAL BLEND OF POETRY AND DANCE TO TOUCH THEIR SOULS
OKAY. YOU'RE HIRED.
THERE ONCE WAS A DOG WITH A HAT... WHO GOT PAID TO DANCE LIKE THAT...
HEY! MY SOUL JUST HEALED!

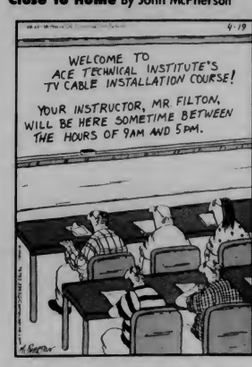
Kippil By Barry Deutsch

SANDY, RIGHT? I'M JO -- LIZ MET AT ROBIN'S PARTY?
OH, RIGHT! HELLO.
SO, WHAT'S UP?
WELL, IT SEEMS I'M HOMELESS
?
YOU'RE FRIGHTENED OF ME NOW, AREN'T YOU?
I CAN'T HELP IT. I'M FROM THE SUBURBS.

Jim's Journal By Jim

Ruth brought over some pictures of hair styles she might get.
She was thinking maybe a Jennifer Aniston look.
"Do you think?" Ruth said.

Close to Home By John McPherson



WELCOME TO ACE TECHNICAL INSTITUTE'S TV CABLE INSTALLATION COURSE!
YOUR INSTRUCTOR, MR FILTON, WILL BE HERE SOMETIME BETWEEN THE HOURS OF 9AM AND 5PM.

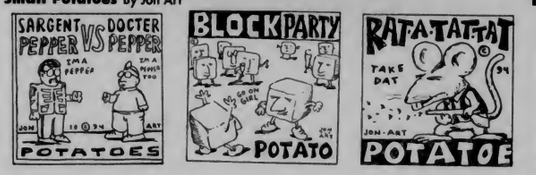
Company Cheese By Kevin Tracy

It looks like he's going to need more than T.P. to sooth his pain. Thank goodness for the new Ass-Fire Extinguisher 2000

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

SORRY, MR. GOOD, I'VE ORDERS TO BRING YOU IN FOR QUESTIONING!
HE GIVES MONEY TO HOSPITALS--
TO ORPHANS.
AND YOU WANT TO ARREST HIM?!!
FANS! THEY'RE WONDERFUL!

Small Potatoes By Jon Art



Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

I wish I had been born into a rock and roll band. Instead of putting me in my mother's arms in the delivery room, they'd hold my head in the kick drum and play three hours of very slow reggae.
That'll help me in subtle ways later on in life.
I don't need high school.
I need the Grateful Dead.
Tonight after dinner I'll sit mom down and have a heart to heart talk. I'm sure she'll let me go on tour. The Dead need me.
A few days later.....
Once again she suggested therapy. This is starting to get me down.

Big Man on Campus By Dave Schneider

GREAT... TRAPPED IN A MIND OF SNOW BUT MY WIFE'S DUMB IN MAY - APRIL... CAN IT GET ANY WORSE, THAN THIS?
TIMBER!
A CONQUER BEE
OK, OK... HOW IT CAN'T GET ANY WORSE.

Life In General By Meredith

SO WHAT'S THE PLAN?
GEE!
OR TAKE OUR SHOT IN THE DARK!
AS SIX HYPER GIRLS, WE TAKE FULL ADVANTAGE OF OUR LARGE KITCHEN.
THE CALM BEFORE THE STORM. ENERGY IS BUILDING...

HELP WANTED:

For the Fall 1996 semester in the Collegian Graphics Dept. We are currently accepting applications for Computer Graphic Artists for both Day Graphics (Advertising/Editorial & www.) and Night Graphics (Editorial & Prepress)

Collegian Graphics Since 1890

Applicants should have a good working knowledge of the Macintosh/IBM operating systems, good design and layout skills utilizing the following software: Microsoft Word, QuarkXPress, Adobe Illustrator & Adobe Photoshop.

Stop by the Graphics Dept. and fill out and Application. We are located at: 113 Campus Center, (the basement) Amherst, MA 01003

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Matt Audette
Copy Editor ..... Matt Vautour
Photo Technician ..... Thang Vo
Production Supervisor ..... David Voldan
Production ..... Leon Latino
William M. Darby

Today's D.C. Menu

Berkshire

LUNCH: Grilled Sneeze, Sloppy Tom's Pizza, Spaghetti
DINNER: Chicken Fajita, Pastabilities, Tri Bean Casserole, Italian Sweet Sausage

Franklin

LUNCH: Chicken Cutlet, Philly Cheese Steak, Cheese Pizza
DINNER: Chicken Fajita, Duchess Meat Pie, Quarter Pounders

Hampshire

LUNCH: Hamboogers, Chicken Cutlet, Sloppy Ed, Stoned Willy's Pizza
DINNER: Chicken Fajita, Duchess Meat Pie, Stoned Willy's Pizza, Summit subs

Worcester

LUNCH: Grilled Sneeze, Sloppy John, Spaghetti, Stoned Willy's Pizza
DINNER: Chicken Fajita, Tri Bean Casserole, Pastabilities, Stoned Willy's Pizza

ROW, ROW, ROW YOUR BOAT. GENTLY DOWN THE STREAM. DAILY, DAILY, DAILY COLLEGIAN. LIFE IS LIKE WHIP CREAM.

Quote of the Day

"... you know, Butterfield, it's like a concentrated Hampshire College."

–Overheard

Collegian Comics, real funny.

Sports notice

There will be a "Salute to the Men's Basketball Team" this Sunday at 2:30 p.m. at Curry Hicks Cage. The team and coaching staff will all be in attendance and admission is free. Doors will open at 2 p.m.

Sports

Sports notice

While the men's varsity lacrosse team travels to Notre Dame, the UMass lacrosse club will host Bridgton Academy tomorrow at 11 a.m. on Lower Boyden Field.

UMass crushes Harvard in Beanpot

Minutemen work their magic at Fenway park, qualify for finals in their tournament debut

By Chris Stamm
Collegian Staff

BOSTON— Believe it or not, sports fans, there is a New England baseball team that can earn a decisive win in Fenway Park. The bad news is, it's not the Red Sox. The good news is, it is the Massachusetts Minutemen.

Yesterday, UMass (19-9, 7-5 in the Atlantic 10) shalacked the Harvard Crimson (11-9, 5-3 in the Ivy League) 13-1 in the first round of the Beanpot Baseball Tournament, held in Fenway. The Minutemen got an invite to the tournament replacing Boston University who recently dropped baseball.

UMass 13
Harvard 1

The Minutemen annihilated a Harvard squad which consisted of 13 freshman, nine of which are pitchers. UMass dipped deep into the dugout, allowing a majority of players to step on to the major league diamond.

"I think that everybody was able to contribute," UMass coach Mike Stone said. "It was a good offensive effort. We put some pressure on them early and that opened things up and gave us some good pitches to hit, and we capitalized on it."

Short-stop Brad Gorrie was first to light up the board in the bottom of the first inning. Gorrie got on base on a double to shallow centerfield, and was driven home on a sacrifice fly by second baseman Muchie Dagliere.

UMass was good for two more runs in the bottom of the second. Centerfielder Nate Murphy led off with a stand-up triple, 400 yards out, just feet away from plopping down in the bullpen for the home run. This was but a preview of what was to come in future innings.

Murphy came home when Doug Clark grounded out to short to give the Minutemen a 2-0 lead. Crimson hurler Perrin Mosca walked the next four batters (Brian Samela, Pete Gautreau, Ryan Jette and Gorrie), bringing Samela around for another run.

The Minutemen tallied two more unanswered runs in the fourth. Bryan Mazzaferro took his base after being hit by a pitch to lead off the inning. Mazzaferro scored on a Gautreau double for the fourth run. Gautreau scored on a Jette single to second after taking third base on a wild pitch, to put UMass up 5-0.

UMass came out with a hitting display which major league dreams are built on in the fifth, to give them a 9-0 lead over the Crimson. Dagliere led off with a stand-up double on a blast to deep center field. Justin Kelly got on base on a single to left.

Then it happened.

PHOTO COURTESY OF MEDIA RELATIONS

Nate Murphy's three run homer in the bottom of the seventh set the tempo for the Minutemen's 13-1 win over Harvard.

Turn to BASEBALL page 7

Despite weak bats, UMass softball still dominates Rhody

By Fred Hurlbrink, Jr.
Collegian Staff

It's just not fair.

The powerful Massachusetts offense mustered a mere six runs in two games, but were able to thwart any Rhode Island rally with solid defense and continued spectacular pitching, as UMass swept an afternoon doubleheader 4-0 and 2-1, from the Rams at Totman Field yesterday.

"We played well enough to win. The bats weren't there, but some days are going to be like that," UMass coach Elaine Sortino said.

UMass 4
URI 0

Junior third sacker Sam Cardenas stayed on her hot streak in the first game, going 2-for-4 with a bases-clearing triple in the decisive sixth inning. Becky George, inserted into the lineup for the injured Chris Martens, came up with the game winning hit after popping up in her first two trips to the plate.

Umass 2
URI 1

The first three Minutewomen batters of the sixth inning reached base. Kelly Buckley singled and freshman Ashlie Hayes drew a quick walk. Amy Powell attempted to sacrifice the runners over, and beat the weak throw to first.

After Octavia Brown, making her second start of the season, tapped back to the pitcher to force pinch runner Katie Kenderski at home, Becky George lashed a single up the middle driving in Hayes and providing pitcher Liz Wagner with all the support she needed.

Wagner, a junior from Sidney, N.Y., stayed ahead of the Rhode Island hitters all day, walking none and striking out four. She allowed only one hit until the first two hitters in the seventh reached, and had to settle with the three-hit shutout as the Minutewomen (26-10-1) cruised, 4-0.

Turn to SOFTBALL page 7

Fenway Park experience special for Minutemen

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

BOSTON — Some of the greats have played on the field at Fenway Park: Ted Williams, Carl Yastrzemski and Jim Rice, to name a few.

When the members of the Massachusetts baseball team took to that same field Thursday, the experience was awe-inspiring.

The Minutemen (19-9, 7-5 Atlantic 10) easily took the first-round game in the Beanpot Baseball Tournament, overpowering a hapless Harvard squad (11-10, 5-3 Ivy) 13-1. By virtue of the win, they advance to the championship game against Northeastern on Tuesday.

For most of the UMass players, the first time playing in a big league ballpark was an almost overwhelming feeling, while one Minuteman played with the ease of a Fenway veteran.

"It was a thrill for those guys to play here," UMass coach Mike Stone said. "I tried to play it down a little bit before we started. [I told them] just to play our game."

Freshman designated hitter Doug Clark was one of the many awed by the thought of playing on the field, after watching so many games in the stands.

"It was definitely breathtaking," Clark said. "You come in and you see the place where you used to sit and watch the Red Sox when you were little. And you're out on the field just like your heroes were.

"It takes you a little while to get over the nostalgia of this whole stadium," he added. "We were all talking about all the great guys who've played here the same way we were today."

Nervousness was a key concern for the Minutemen. But after the first few pitches were thrown, the butterflies settled.

"There definitely was a lot of nerves, but after the first couple of at bats we were alright," Clark said. "Just like Earl Lorden [Field] after a while."

And just like at Lorden Field, centerfielder Nate Murphy did what he does best, knocking a three-run dinger into the UMass bullpen.

"It felt unbelievable," Murphy said. "It felt really special, just be to be out on this field playing."

One player in the UMass line-up knew going into the game the ins and outs of playing in Fenway. Ryan Jette, the Minuteman leftfielder and lead-off hitter, has played in the park twice before, in collegiate All-Star games.

"I don't really get nervous that much anymore," Jette said, with a smile.

But the feelings of the afternoon were not lost on him.

"I remember my first All-Star game here. I was real nervous," he said. "Just being at Fenway, you never know who is here, you don't want to make any mistakes."

And with the experience of playing in the park before, Jette was comfortable with his task of covering Fenway's daunting leftfield wall.

When Harvard catcher Dennis Doble stepped up to the plate to lead off the second inning, he was swinging for the Green Monster.

He quickly fouled the first pitch off, then took two quick balls. Another foul and another ball gave him a full count, before he fouled off three straight pitches. But when his pitch came, he smacked the ball to the wall.

Jette played the carom perfectly, holding Doble to only a single.

"He has played here before," Stone said. "Maybe he had gotten a ball off the wall before, but he played that into a single, and that was a good job."

Even the fans appreciated Jette's comfort around the Green Monster.

"[A fan] in left field said something like 'Oh geez, why don't you teach [Mike] Greenwell,'" Jette said. "I love the playing wall, actually."

Ingoglia awaits weekend draft

By Andrew Bryce
Collegian Staff

Rene Ingoglia is unemployed at this time. He graduated from the University of Massachusetts last May, and is now looking for a job. He's been keeping himself busy getting prepared for the workforce, and he's anxious to find work. His resume is complete and he's had several interviews. But Ingoglia, this weekend is his chance. He's certain he'll know on Sunday night at about 10 p.m. what he will be doing in the immediate future.

The problem is, there are 30 possible job opportunities.

"I'm pleased. I've done everything possible to better myself. Everything. Everything that everyone told me I had to do six months ago, I did."
—Rene Ingram

This weekend, the NFL Draft will be taking place in New York. ESPN will bring you nine hours of coverage (12-7 p.m. Saturday, 11-1 p.m. on Sunday)-, from beginning to end. The teams of the National Football League will make their selections from the pool of talent across the country. As for Ingoglia, he will be watching it for good reason.

He'll be closer to that job he's looking for.

The first three rounds will take place all day tomorrow, and the final four rounds will be on Sunday. To those who don't get drafted, there is the route of free agency. Ingoglia himself doesn't know when he'll go in the draft. Or if he'll go. But he knows he's heading somewhere in the NFL in hopes of hooking up with a team for a spot. For a job.

His preparation has involved intense training since his career as a UMass football player ended in November. His resume is filled with outstanding collegiate achievements, including a Yankee Conference record 4,624 career rushing yards and a YanCon record 50 touchdowns. He's played in the Hula Bowl, an all-star game in Hawaii he was invited to in which showcased some of the top talent in college football. He carried the ball five times for 18 times and caught a pass for 12 yards in the nationally-televised game.

And his interview process? Twenty nine of the 30 NFL teams showed up at UMass during his senior season. Ingoglia's had individual workouts with 12 teams. The 5- foot 10-inch, 204-pounder did the running, including a 4.4 in the 40 at a workout held at Williams in front of representatives from the New England Patriots, Dallas Cowboys and Atlanta Falcons. He did the bench press, which is based on 225 pounds in repetitions, for 22 times. His vertical leap was 39 inches. He broad jumped 10 feet.

"I'm pleased. I've done everything possible to better myself. Everything," Ingoglia said. "Everything that everyone told me I had to do six months ago, I did. They said graduate. I did that. They said be around 200 pounds. I'm bigger than 200 pounds. They said run in the 4.5s, just don't run in the 4.6s. Not only did I run in the 4.5s, I ran in the 4.4s for teams. Catch the ball? I caught the ball well. I jumped 39 inches. Bench press? I did 225 pounds 22 times. There's not much more I could do, so I'm at ease."

Ingoglia notes one factor that could hurt him. For some reason, despite being invited to the Hula Bowl, he was not asked to the annual NFL combine back in February. Granted several teams have seen him in the individual workouts, he notes it may have been better to be seen by all of them, rather than just a few.

"The problem is you obviously much rather have done it front of everybody, because now I have teams that are going to be right-lipped about it," Ingoglia said. "I might be on someone's draft board as a third or fourth round pick. But if they know they can get away with getting me in the seventh or not even drafting me at all as a free agent, they'll do that. That's the problem I have because I don't have the exposure. I thought I worked out excellent for a lot of teams, but if they know they can get away two or three rounds, they're gonna' do it. It's like a big game."

Knowing about Ingoglia's story, it all seems too natural that it is not easy for him. Ingoglia was supposed to play Division I-A football for the Notre Dames and the Penn States, but a knee injury before his senior year in high school abruptly ended those expectations. Ingoglia was supposed to have a tough time coming back from the reconstructive knee surgery, but he turned into one of the best running backs in Division I-AA. Ingoglia is facing the possibility he will not get drafted, one of his lifelong dreams.

Nothing new for Ingoglia.

"You just hope that someone takes the right chance with you. A lot of guys get bypassed that way. The free agent round is nothing to be ashamed of. If I get drafted, that's great. If I have to go as a

Turn to DRAFT, page 7

No. 6 Notre Dame a challenge for No. 15 UMass

PHOTO COURTESY OF MEDIA RELATIONS

The No. 15 men's lacrosse team travels to South Bend, Ind. to face the No. 6 Fighting Irish of Notre Dame this weekend.

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

For the No. 15 Massachusetts lacrosse team, three big games remain before the end of the season, and the results of those three contest will go along way in determining whether or not Minutemen will have their names called when the 12-team NCAA tournament field is announced.

The Minutemen will start those difficult games with an 11 a.m. battle against Notre Dame tomorrow at Alumni Field.

The three opponents are all top 10 teams, No. 7 Syracuse (April 28), No. 8 Brown (May 4) and Saturday's opponent No. 6 Notre Dame.

"[The games] are all big," Massachusetts coach Greg Cannella said. "They're all against ranked opponents, and when you play ranked opponents, they're all big."

The Fighting Irish have put together one of their best teams in recent time and appear to be a lock for an NCAA Tournament bid.

"They're a great team," said Massachusetts coach Greg Cannella said. "Their style is similar to ours. They beat Harvard in overtime. They play real conservative on defense and have some real strong athletes. They're No. 6 in the country and have been super so far this year."

Notre Dame coach Kevin Corrigan gave the Minutemen credit as well.

"UMass is an excellent lacrosse team," he said. "They went to the tournament last year and have a good chance at getting back there this year. That puts them in pretty elite company in the lacrosse world."

The Irish enter the contest at 7-2, with their only losses coming against No. 4 North Carolina (11-10) and No. 9 Loyola (14-7) in their season opener.

While some outsiders, look at the

Turn to LAX page 7

No. 3 seed UMass women's tennis to host A-10 tourney

By Mike Corey
Collegian Staff

Three years ago the Massachusetts women's tennis team was unheard of. Since then it has made tremendous strides, and starting today it will be hosting the Atlantic 10 Championships at the Upper and Lower Boyden tennis courts.

UMass will be seeded third out of the 12 teams, its highest ever ranking heading in. It will receive a bye to the second round to play the winner of No. 6 Temple and No. 11 Duquense, at noon on the lower courts.

Last year the Minutewomen came in fourth, but are optimistic of a higher finish this weekend.

"I think we're definitely prepared and we have a solid team all the way down the lineup," said junior co-captain Liz Durant. "I just think overall we're the most enthusiastic team and we're very confident."

This weekend UMass will do without the services of freshman Jackie Braunstein, who went into the hospital on Tuesday for a hernia operation. Her play will be much missed this weekend.

"It's a set back in the sense that you loose a teammate," senior co-captain Liesl Sitton said. "But at the same time it gives us more force to go out there and do it, one more reason to be stronger and more pumped up."

Sitton will play in her final matches of her UMass career this weekend, with hopes of closing it out with the title.

"This could be a storybook ending for Liesl Sitton, who's really been such a big part of bringing the women's tennis team to where it is today," UMass coach Judy Dixon said.

Overall this season the Minutewomen finished with a 15-4 record, 6-3 this Spring. Their latest match was a 5-4 loss to Amherst on Wednesday.

"I have this feeling that even though they lost [on Wednesday], that they're prepared for this in a way that they have never been prepared for anything else," Dixon said. "I think what we have to be careful of though in the beginning is that we're not used to being a favorite. We'll be seeded third, and we're not used to going into the A-10's with that kind of a seeding."

Virgina Tech will be ranked No. 1 in the tournament boasting a 15-3 record against some tough competition, with its only losses to Richmond, Wake Forest, and Georgia Southern. The Hokies are riding a six game winning streak and went 12-2 this spring. Juniors Daria Ivan, Jennifer Lampert, and Lisa Ryan lead a group of six freshman and one sophomore into the tourney.

George Washington will be in the No. 2 slot coming in with an 8-5 overall record this season with quality wins over Rutgers, and Temple, and losses to some highly ranked teams: Syracuse and Virginia Tech. GW has lost three of its last five for a 7-3 spring record. It has a young team of freshman and sophomores, but look for its two seniors, Petra Rydlova and Lisa Shafran to lead the way.

Xavier is seeded fourth and by far has the most experienced team seniority wise, with three seniors and

Turn to TENNIS, page 6

HELP WANTED:

For the Fall 1996 semester in the Collegian Graphics Dept. We are currently accepting applications for Computer Graphic Artists for both
Day Graphics (Advertising/Editorial & www. and Night Graphics (Editorial & Prepress)

Collegian Graphics Since 1890

Applicants should have a good working knowledge of the Macintosh/IBM operating systems, good design and layout skills utilizing the following software: Microsoft Word, QuarkXPress, Adobe Illustrator & Adobe Photoshop.

Stop by the Graphics Dept. and fill out and Application. We are located at: 113 Campus Center, (the basement) Amherst, MA 01003

Don't Miss Out On Any of These Opportunites . . . Check Them Out!!!

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Best Summer House in Amherst Fat 3 bedroom with private deck. Convenient Main St. location. Summer sublet with Fall option. Must see to believe! Call 256-0682

Live above Kinko, A great uptown location. 2 bedrooms. Call Jeff 256-0456

3 Bedroom Puffton Apt. Take over lease June1. 549-7091

2 Bedroom Brandywine. Pondside w/balcony. Avail 6/1. 549-7094

Excellent, huge, three bedroom apt. Downtown Amherst. Available June 1. Utilities included. $1200/mn. 256-1986

2BR Puffton Apt. Take over our lease. Available 6/1. $665/month. Call 549-5876

Two Bedroom Puffton - Take over our lease starting June 1. Heat/Hot Water included. $650/month. Call 549-7206

Take over our lease. Spacious two bedroom. Dishwasher, laundry facilities, on bus route. 6/1/96 to 6/1/97. $635 including heat, hot water. Call Becky or Rachel at 256-3441

Crestview - 2 bedroom apt. $625 per month - call 549-6442

Take Over Our Lease - One bedroom apartment, great location right in town. Heat and hot water included. Call 256-1837

Large 4 BDRM on busline. Minutes from campus. First floor of house. Must see! $900/month. Call 549-1838

3 Bedroom Puffton, new fridge, carpet, furnace, dishwasher, closet moved, free heat/hot water. $825/Mo starting June 1. 549-7463

2 Bedroom Brandywine. Pond side w/balcony. Available 6/1. 549-6066

3 Large BdRms, bus route. Sunderland. $700. Call now. 665-8234

FOR RENT

3 Bedroom Condo, available June 1. Have your own bedroom! Wall to wall. Fully applianced kitchen. On busline. Bath & 1/2. $800 a month. Call 549-5229

4-5 Bedroom Houses - Amherst, Hadley, Northampton. Sept 1st, some June. $850-$1,000 plus utilities. Call later this summer for Sept. occupancy. Skibiski Realtors. 586-1827

FOR SALE

Moving Sale. Bed - couches - kitchen set - coffee tables - tables. Call 253-4298

HOUSE FOR RENT

House for Rent. June 1. Rt. 9 Hadley. On bus route. Call 582-9951

Sunset St. 4 Big Rooms. Call 549-8798

ROOMMATE WANTED

Looking for 2 people to share a room in 3 bdr. townehouse, 1yr lease starting June 1st. Also looking for someone to sublet single room for summer only. I have a cat and a dog. If interested call Becky 549-6398

Female Housemates wanted to share six bedroom house in N. Amherst. On bus route, low rent, great location. Call Amy at 549-7076 for more info.

SUMMER SUBLET

Summer Sublet w/ Fall Option Spacious, Sunny room in 2bdrm apt on bus line. $225/mo. Nonsmoking, female preferred. Call 665-0092

South Hadley - 1 partially furnished bedroom in large apartment. $280 per month, utilities included. Tania@ 535-2231

Room for Rent. 2 min. walk uptown. 10 min. walk to campus. On bus route. Utilities included. Avail. May 29- Aug 31. $275 a month. 253-9330

Brandywine 1 BR Take for Summer with option for Fall. Call Rob 549-0880

SUMMER SUBLET

3 Bedroom Puffton Apt available June 1st. Call 549-6694

3 Bedroom Apt. uptown. Call ASAP 549-6442

2 Bedroom townhouse apt. in Puffton. Heat, hot water included. Available June 1st. $ off rent. Call 549-7725

Summer Sublet. Possible extension through December. Non-Smoker, cat-lover a must, no drugs. Male preferred. $280 per month, negotiable. Call 256-4539

Looking to sublet 1 bedroom in 4 bedroom house, from June 1 to August 31. $220 a month plus utilities. 5 min walk to town. For more info call Missie at 253-2908

Amherst 1 BR in 3BR apartment. Quiet country setting close to campus/Amherst Ctr. Cheap! Heat and cable included. Call Gabe 253-0217. Fall option available

One bedroom starting June 1. Heat & hot water included. On bus route. Dishwasher & AC. Call 665-3099

Take over our lease June 1. 2 Bdrm in Presidential Apt. $570/month hot water incl. Call 549-0730

TO SUBLET

Puffton 2 Bdrm 2 full bath 549-0279

SUPERIOR PIZZERIA

New! ITEMS
Real Italian Food at its BEST
Now Featuring
Cannoli & Italian Pastries and Cheesburg Grinders
Wednesday Special
Calzones $3.25
• Tortellini Dinners
• Chocolate Pizza
• Chicken Pizza
• Sicilian Pizza

$2.25 OFF Any Large 2 Item Pizza
$2.25 OFF Any Large 2 Item Pizza
$1.65 OFF Any Large Pizza
$1.65 OFF Any Large Pizza
$1.65 OFF Any Large Pizza
$1.65 OFF Any Large Pizza
$2.00 OFF Any Large 1 Item Pizza
$2.00 OFF Any Large 1 Item Pizza

one coupon per order • coupon cannot be combined with other offers

17 Montague Rd. Amherst
549-0626

Free Delivery 7 days
11:30am - 2am

CLIFFSIDE APARTMENTS

- FREE HEAT, HOT WATER & ELECTRICITY
- Free Public Transportation
- Large Pool and Sunning Area
- Tennis, Volleyball and Basketball
- Hiking Trails on 28 Wooded Acres
- 1,2 & 3 Bedroom Garden Style Apts. -
  2 Bedroom Townhouse also available
- Convenient to Amherst & Points North

248 Amherst Rd, Route 116,
Sunderland, MA
(413) 665-3958

Setting The Standard For Apartment Living

THE BOULDERS

- Large 2 Bedroom Apartments
  • *New Appliances
  • *New Counters/Cabinets
  • *New Carpets/Tile
  * Selected Units
- State of the Art Exercise Facility
  • Stairmaster • Lifecycle • Nautilus
- Free Heat & Hot Water
- Professional Maintenance Staff On Site
- Central Mailbox Facility
- Limited Access Entry System
- 5 College Bus Stop on Property
- Rent Starting At $695

Call About Our Specials*
(subject to availability)

256-8534

From Amherst center take Rt. 116 south to East Hadley

Squire Village Apartments

"A Country Setting With a Convenient Location."
- Minutes to UMass -
Spacious Bedrooms • Air Conditioning
• On Bus Line • Inground Pool
• Laundry Facilities

279 Amherst Road • Route 116
Sunderland, MA 01375

665-2203

OCMP
THE OFF CAMPUS MEAL PLAN

CURRENTLY FEATURING THESE FINE RESTAURANTS:

SUBWAY
Rafters SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT
CUTTY'S
d'angelo sandwich shops
PRUDDY'S
THE BLACK SHEEP Deli & Bakery
EL ACUÑA TEX MEX CANTINA
Bueno Y Sano
DELANO'S
DP DOUGH
ANTONIO'S E' SEMPRE BUONA
TOC RESTAURANT

FOR MORE INFO:
(617) 246-7222

Puffton Village . . .
Your First Choice
1, 2 and 3 bedroom apartments

Newly renovated units that include:
New appliances
New carpeting
New kitchen cabinets & counter tops
Central air conditioners
Rents starting at $590 per month

Featuring or

Traditional units that are:
Fully applianced
Freshly painted
Carpeted/Tiled Floors
Central Air Conditioned
Rents starting at $525 per month

All rents include Heat, Hot Water & Cooking Gas and use of an olympic size pool, 5 tennis courts, basketball court, laundry rooms and on-site parking.
Now accepting rental applications for summer and fall. Call today 549-0145

Puffton Village Apartments • 1040 North Pleasant St., Amherst, Mass

We have your reasons for living off-campus!

Come by and see our model

Monday - Friday 9 am - 5 pm

or

Saturday & Sunday 10 am - 3 pm

BRANDYWINE IN AMHERST

Spacious 1 and 2 Bedrooms •Beautiful Grounds • On the Bus Line • Swimming Pool • Private Balconies • On-site Laundry Facilities • Close to UMass • Heat, Hot Water, Gas Included • Central Air Conditioning • Private Parking • Sorry, No Pets

Brandywine Apartments

549-0600

16G Brandywine Dr., Amherst, MA 01002

Mill Valley E·S·T·A·T·E·S

Now...The lifestyle you've been waiting for...

Luxury two and three bedroom apartment in Amherst

Amenities Include:

- Central Location
- Mountain Views
- Private Entries! Select Apartments
- On PVTA Bus route
- On site daycare center
- Play areas
- Victory Gardens
- Tennis & Basketball Courts
- Laundry Room

We Offer:

- Heat & Hot Water included in your rent
- Wall to Wall Carpet
- Washer/Dryer Hookups
- Air Conditioning
- Fully Applianced Kitchens dishwashers, disposals
- Intercom (Entry) System
- Professional On Site Management
- 24 Hour Maintenance

420 Riverglade Drive, Amherst

Just off Rt. 9, Take West St. (Rt. 116s) to East Hadley Rd.

Take First Left onto Riverglade Drive.

Equal Housing Opportunity

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CV Issue 118 | New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 | Monday, April 22, 1996

A Mask-erade Ball

The Mummenchanz mime troupe wore an assortment of masks at the Fine Arts Center. \ Check out the Collegian review (See Arts & Living, page 7).

Upset in South Bend

Keeper John Kasselakis earned his season-low goals against (five) as the men's lacrosse team beat No. 6 Notre Dame (See sports page 10).

WORLD

Hard-liners lose majority in Iran's parliament

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Hard-line followers of the late Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini have lost their majority in Iran's parliament, according to election results announced Sunday.

The exact makeup of the new parliament, the fifth since the 1979 Islamic revolution led by Khomeini, remained to be determined. But supporters of liberal-leaning President Hashemi Rafsanjani made some gains. And it was clear that the emergence of his technocrat-heavy group, the Servants of Construction, has changed the face of Iranian politics less than two months after it was founded.

By Sunday night, 256 of the 270 seats in the parliament, the Majlis, had been decided in run-off elections held Friday. The conservatives, who have campaigned under the banner of the Association of Combatant Clergymen, are expected to win a maximum of 110 seats, down from 140. Rafsanjani's supporters are believed to have taken 90 to 100 seats.

Final results may not be known for weeks.

NATION

Gay activists plan campaign to 2000 and beyond

DENVER (AP) — As delegates to the United Methodist General Conference enter the convention center, gay Christians hold doors open for them — symbolic acts for the policy they want the church to adopt toward homosexuality.

When delegates return to their hotel rooms at night, some are greeted with a welcome mat with the added words: "Don't you wish everyone was?"

When they get up in the morning, the 1,000 or so delegates to the policy-making body of the nation's second-largest Protestant church are invited to hear a more traditional perspective at a free breakfast offered by the conservative Good News movement.

Homosexuality once again is at the forefront of the agenda for the 8.5 million-member church's quadrennial meeting, just as the issue will dominate the July meeting of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) in Albuquerque — and just as it's dominated nearly every national gathering in the last generation of the Episcopal Church and the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America.

When will it end? Not in this millennium.

Those looking for definitive guidance from either the United Methodists in the coming week or the Presbyterians this summer can forget it activists said.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Tues.	Wed.
HIGH: 55	HIGH: 60	HIGH: 55
LOW: 48	LOW: 50	LOW: 45

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 8
Comics .....page 9
Crossword .....page 8
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 2
News .....page 3
Sports .....page 10

Peres seeks U.S. help; Christopher is in Syria

By Barry Schweid
Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres criticized on Sunday the mushrooming number of would-be Middle East peacemakers and said only the United States was capable of working out a cease-fire in southern Lebanon.

"It cannot be done from many channels," Peres said as American, Russian and European diplomats crisscrossed the region pursuing their own proposals to end the fighting between Israel and Shiite Hezbollah extremists.

Clearly preferring American mediation over the others, Peres said, "If there will be more than one channel there will be total confusion."

The Israeli leader, the target of rising world criticism for the Israeli bombardment of southern Lebanon — but supported unwaveringly by the Clinton administration — met twice with Secretary of State Warren Christopher.

Christopher then flew to Damascus for another meeting Monday with Syrian President Hafez Assad. Five photographs of the Syrian leader's previous sessions with Christopher and with the foreign ministers of France, Italy, Russia and Iran appeared on the front pages of all the government-controlled Arabic language newspapers. A U.S. official grumbled: "Assad's meeting with everyone. He's dealing with us."

However, Christopher still has not determined what Hezbollah's terms are for a cease-fire. "We don't have a clear answer," said another U.S. official.

At a minimum, Hezbollah wants to force Israel to withdraw its troops from a security enclave in southern Lebanon and Peres is agreeable if the terms are right.

But, the official said, a pullout can be part only of an overall settlement between Israel and both Syria and Lebanon. Those talks were suspended last month and have not been resumed.

The two officials spoke to reporters traveling with Christopher on grounds they would not be identified.

Defending the assault on Hezbollah positions in southern Lebanon, Peres said, "It's a matter of self-defense." More than 100 Lebanese civilians have been killed in Israel's Operation Grapes Of Wrath.

Christopher's mediation is aimed at a cease-fire and laying the groundwork for an agreement to replace and strengthen the accord he worked out in 1993 that was supposed to spare civilians from attack.

"Lots of ideas are being handed back and forth," said Nicholas Burns, the State Department spokesman.

Earth Day is celebrated with festivities, speakers

ELIZABETH BROWN / COLLEGIAN

Rabbit Klockers, a first year fine arts major, paints Andy Pattenaude, 10, at the Earth Day festival at the Amherst Commons on Saturday.

By Mike MacLean
Collegian Staff

AMHERST — The 26th annual Earth Day celebration brought music, vendors, guest speakers and awareness organizations to the Amherst town commons on Saturday to promote education and awareness of environmental issues.

Attendees had the opportunity to learn about various environmental issues from booths operated by groups such as the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and Clean Water Action of Northampton, purchase environmentally orientated products, participate in a drum circle or just relax in the sun and enjoy music from the several bands that performed over the course of the day.

The event was sponsored by numerous local businesses and student organizations and organized by MASSPIRG to benefit the Hitchcock Center for Environmental Education in Amherst, which offers workshops and classes to the public. Featured speakers included Senator Stanley Rosenberg.

Turn to EARTH DAY page 3

A look into the scary future of 2000

It's Earth Day 1996.

But "Campus 2000" events, which will take place between the campus pond and the Student Union this afternoon, will show what the earth will look like in four years, if anti- environment legislation is passed by a "Republican-backed initiative to cut environmental funds," said Jay Rasku, a MASSPIRG staff person at the University of Massachusetts. One example Rasku mentioned is that now, one species is killed off every day, but by the year 2000, 100 species a day will become extinct.

The MASSPIRG-sponsored event will take place from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and is part of a nationwide campaign. There will be a number of setups created by MASSPIRG volunteers to "shock people a little to show [them] what's going on," and tables on the lawn where people can get more information.

MASSPIRG volunteers built a large pink pig out of chicken wire and paper mache. It represents "polluter pork," the process whereby citizens' tax money pays for government subsidies to big business that exploit the environment.

Volunteers are also dumping garbage on the lawn which they picked up on campus, to impress upon students the importance of recycling to cut down on garbage volume.

Pictures of endangered species will adorn headstones in the "endangered species graveyard." Fake stumps of trees will show the destruction of ancient forests.

Various other projects will also attempt to educate the UMass population on how the next four years could impact the "greenhouse effect," the ozone layer and water pollution.

— Christina Heaphy

Greeks cancel meeting; help take back the night

By Daniel E. Lavenson
Collegian Staff

The Greek Council decided to cancel its weekly meeting last week so members could attend the Take Back Our Rights Rally.

The rally, held last Thursday night outside the Student Union, focused on raising awareness about women's issues and domestic violence.

Greek Affairs Director Michael Wiseman said the community felt that attending the rally took precedence over the weekly meeting.

"They decided that it was more important to participate in the rally," he said.

Jennifer Boltuch, Panhellenic representative for Delta Zeta, attended the rally along with approximately 25 other members of her sorority. She said she felt it was important for the Greek community to attend the march in light of recent controversy.

"It shows that they care about the rapes that are going on," Boltuch said. As a representative she publicized the event at meetings and put up posters.

Sandra Baldner, advisor for the Panhellenic Council, said they have been involved with the rally in the past. "We participated wholeheartedly last year," Baldner said.

The Panhellenic Council decided to make attendance at the rally a "dry-event." They felt that it was a better way to engage in a social activity without alcohol, than simply having a party where no alcohol would be served, Baldner said. The expectation was that every sorority house attend the event.

Wiseman said he saw at least 11 fraternities and six sororities were represented at the rally.

Representatives from the Everywoman's Center came to the Greek Council meeting two weeks ago and asked Greeks to attend the rally, Wiseman said. There is interest in attending similar events in the future, if the council is given enough notice. Next week's meeting will focus on Greek Week, and policy revision.

Baldner said it was important for the Panhellenic Council to become involved with community service projects that involve the entire community.

"Before the year 1997 we would like to raise $10,000 for a community based organization that supports women," Baldner said. She said they might go through VIVA or another community based organization to allocate the funds raised.

Basketball team honored in ceremony at the Cage

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

They captured the hearts of the campus, community and country with their incredible season, and Sunday the people of the surrounding area got the chance to thank the members of the Massachusetts men's basketball team.

As over 400 fans watched and cheered, men's basketball announcer Jack O'Neill emceed the ceremony at Curry Hicks Cage, which included short speeches from Chancellor David K. Scott, Student Government Association President Maurice Caston and the chairmen of the Hadley and Amherst Select Boards.

The crowd went wild as each member of the team was announced and made their way across the gymnasium floor. Senior captains Donta Bright and Dana Dingle and guards Edgar Padilla and Carmelo Travieso each received huge rounds of applause, but perhaps the biggest cheer of the afternoon went to senior reserve Gidell Padilla. Player of the Year and All-American Marcus Camby was not present at the ceremony.

Bryan Harvey, chairman of the Amherst Select Board, joined with the Amherst Chamber of Commerce to present the members of the team and coaching staff with keys to the city of Amherst.

As he handed the golden trophied key to coach John Calipari, Harvey addressed the team.

"Now you have the keys to the city," he said. "But you'll never have to carry them, because the doors will always be open."

Caston, Scott and Alan Jacque, chairman of the Hadley Select Board, all offered thanks and congratulations to the Minutemen.

After the community members had spoken, Calipari took the microphone, but quickly turned it over to his players.

Bright and Dingle joined fellow seniors Rigoberto Nunez and Ted Cottrell in thanking the crowd and wishing next year's team not just a return trip to the Final Four, but also a National Championship.

"Thank you for a great four years here," Bright said. "To the guys who'll be here next year, we hope you win the National Championship."

Calipari then closed the ceremony by recalling Gidell Padilla's play during the Final Four. The crowd responded by giving the elder Padilla a standing ovation.

"We really owe this campus and community for their support," Calipari said. "We appreciate all the support from the faculty, students, cheerleaders, band and fans."

Student believes cameras could limit violence

By Daniel Sullivan
Collegian Staff

Due to recent violence plaguing Southwest Residence Area, a combined community effort has been asked to stop vandalism, malicious activations of sprinklers and the throwing of objects out of windows.

The efforts to prevent these problems are not new. Jeffrey Lee, a junior computer science student has been working to raise awareness about campus safety since Dec. 17, when he was assaulted in Washington Residence Hall.

Lee met with housing administration, staff in the chancellor's office, the Dean of Students and the Student Government Association about instillation of video cameras in residence hall lobbies. All levels of the University agree cameras are a right step in preventing violence, he said.

Senators in the SGA voted to establish a committee to look into the feasibility of placing cameras in residence halls for security purposes. The vote was not intended to be final.

"I supported the committee to look into video cameras," Senator Bill Ramsey said. "There should be an investigation about the financial aspects. People think cameras will be in the halls and the rooms — they won't. If the cameras were in the lobby, then maybe the police could find the people who attacked Lee."

A referendum question for the SGA asked for students' opinions about cameras. They voted against the installation of cameras.

"The referendum question on the SGA ballot was uneducated," Lee

Turn to SECURITY page 2

EMILY REILY / COLLEGIAN

A whole lot of hoopla!

Scores of students turned up to compete in basketball games at the Haigis Hoopla this past Saturday and Sunday.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Monday, April 22

Art gallery — An opening reception for undergraduate artists Eric Trosko and Julie Graham will be held in the Student Union Art Gallery from 5–7 p.m. The show runs through April 26.

Tuesday, April 23

Dance — Students from the Choreography II class will perform an outdoor improvisation from 9:45 to 11:15 a.m. at the William Smith Clark Memorial above the Central Residence area. Live music will be featured.

Film — A public television video titled "So You Want To Buy a President" will be shown at 7:30 p.m. in the Hawley Room at the First Congregational Church in Amherst. The showing is related to plans to pass an advisory question in several representative districts in the fall election. The public is invited.

Forum — The Amherst Chamber of Commerce, the Department of Hotel, Restaurant, Travel Administration and the Amherst Planning Department will hold a free town forum on tourism and development in Amherst from 7–9 p.m. in the Amherst Junior High School Cafeteria on Chestnut Street.

Lecture — A lecture/seminar titled, "Yoga and the Expansion of the Mind: The Emergence of Spiritual Culture" will be held at 8 p.m. on the first floor lounge of Butterfield. For more information call 549-5355.

Organ donors — Sign an organ and tissue donor card and/or pick up information about donating at the National Organ and Tissue Donor table in the Campus Center Concourse from 9:30 a.m. – 2 p.m. Sponsored by the Student Health Advisory Board.

Wednesday, April 24

Film — The UMass Film Society will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Foreign Language Resource Center in Herter Hall. For more information call Mike Bowes at 584–3717.

Lecture — Richard M. Lerner, Ph.D., director of Institute for Children, Youth and Families, Michigan State University will present a lecture on "America's Youth in Crisis: Challenges and Options for Programs and Policies" at 3:30 p.m. in SBA 120.

Lecture — Sonia Escobeto Escalante will present a lecture titled "We Must Wake Up," an analysis of current times in Guatemala, from 12:15 to 1:15 p.m. in the sixth floor lounge of Thompson Hall. She will also speak at 7:30 p.m. at the North Congregational Church in North Amherst.

Meditation — An introductory yoga class will be held at 8 p.m. in the first floor lounge of Butterfield. The class is the first in a weekly series sponsored by the Ananda Marga Yoga Club.

Notices

Internship — The office of U.S. Rep. Joseph Kennedy II will be accepting student applications for summer internships in his Charlestown and Roxbury offices. These unpaid internships are available at full or part-time hours. All interns must work a minimum of 15 hours a week. For more information call Brian O'Connor at (617) 242-0200, or to arrange an interview, send him a cover letter and resume at: U.S. Rep. Joseph P. Kennedy II, The Schrafft Center, Suite 605, 529 Main St., Boston, MA 02129.

Internship — State Sen. Stan Rosenberg will be accepting applications for student internships in his Boston office. Interested students should send a resume and cover letter to: Senator Rosenberg's Office, ATTN: Catherine Ceoil, room 212, State House, Boston, MA 01225-1053.

Brown speaks on Holocaust survivors

By Marni E. Helfner
Collegian Staff

Dr. Eva Metzger Brown, an adjunct professor and survivor of the Holocaust, spoke about her experience as a Holocaust survivor on Friday evening at Chabad House.

Shortly following Shabbat services, Brown addressed a small group of students and community members, totalling about 20. The focus of her discussion was finding the joy and miracle in surviving the Holocaust.

Brown first talked about how many are reluctant to identify themselves as survivors of the Holocaust because they weren't in concentration camps. She said she had difficulty in figuring out how she identifies because she wasn't in a camp, her parents were forced to move repeatedly during the war, trying to avoid the Nazis.

Brown was very young at the time of the Holocaust. She spoke about how she identified as a survivor only after someone said, "You know what, you're a child survivor." Brown said a child survivor is anyone who was 15 or younger at the time the Allies freed the camps.

The lecture then focussed on how families either discuss or fail to discuss how the Holocaust affects them. Some members of the family may choose to ignore the problem, others may want to discuss it. Brown discussed how she has traveled the world looking for her grandparents' graves, although her mother was against it, but she did it anyway in order to foster discussion.

Brown is also the project director of the group Intergenerational Healings in Holocaust Families, a group dedicated to bringing second and third generations together.

She said she tries to help people examine their experiences through tracing the steps of their immigration and examining their family's country of origin.

Brown finished the evening by asking each of the people present to talk about their own Holocaust stories as second or third generation family members. She then read a poem about one of the many groups she is involved with in which survivors talk about their experiences.

Frat. holds Founder's Day

Alpha Phi Omega helps out Amherst Conservation

By Liz Anderson
Collegian Staff

The co-ed fraternity Alpha Phi Omega held its annual Founder's Day on Saturday, cleaning up Amherst in the sun and celebrating the arrival of spring.

This year's community service project was orchard clearing under the direction of the Amherst Conservation Agency. The day started at 11 a.m. with tree cutting and clearing at the Sweet Alice Conservation Orchard.

"In Alpha Phi Omega we use our leadership skills to help others get things done," said Kerry Wilcox, secretary of alumni activities and chairwoman of this year's Founder's Day.

The Amherst Conservation Agency has to trim back branches of orchard trees this spring due to the inability of conservation tractors to mow around them. This lack of mowing has lead to the spread of cancerous poison ivy deteriorating the trees' health. As the conservation members cut branches Alpha Phi Omega gathered them into a large pile. The small mountain of branches will be burned in November, once the surrounding grass has dried out.

"Alpha Phi Omega hits this project like a bang," said Amherst Conservation Agency Director Pete Westover as he surveyed the orchard. "I went to go and get the group gloves and when I came back there was a huge pile of branches. This is what I would call instant project completion."

The Amherst Conservation Agency is in charge of maintaining 1700 acres of conservation land, 2000 acres of water shed and the Amherst Golf Club.

"Like most land conservation agencies, we are under- staffed, and groups like this help out a lot," said Conservation Land Manager Nick Anzuoni. "I wish more fraternities would lend us a hand. This is a really good group."

Dragging and throwing branches through the morning, Alpha Phi Omega took only a few breaks to eat Brueger's Bagels and drink spring water. Gradually the group worked its way up to the orchards at Mt. Pollux, and after two hours of work, called it a day at 1 p.m.

"I'm going to have to sharpen my saw," Anzuoni said. "They are dragging the branches away faster than I can trim the trees back. I am really hard pressed to stay ahead of them."

"It's a fun being outside playing with trees and getting work done," said Heather Engle, a math major. "Founder's Day is a great excuse to mix service and social events."

Founder's Day culminated in an alumni meeting at the restaurant Panda East.

■ security

continued from page 1

said. "Students don't know the purpose; it is there to help their safety. Once they are educated about it, they will see how it is effective."

The campaign to get video cameras started when his assailants escaped punishment, Lee said. Police officers said they could not prosecute the attackers because they did not have cameras, he said.

According to Lee, he was woken around 2:30 a.m. on Dec. 17 by five individuals looking for someone who had screamed racial slurs in an upper floor room.

"They knocked on my door after not finding any one at another room," Lee said. "They were checking to see if my screen was out because the person yelling didn't have one. They left my room once they saw it wasn't me."

Lee learned that the individuals were not associated with anyone on the floor. He watched as the men interrogated another resident about a room.

"The guy was being sarcastic to the people," he said. "He went to the room and knocked on it, showing them it was empty."

A few moments later, the individuals started to hit the resident. The resident did not fight back, but went to the floor and crouched in a ball, Leed said.

"I went over to the guys and said, 'I think you guys should leave.' They asked why and I said, 'Because you just assaulted someone on my floor.'"

The men refused to leave, so Lee went back to his room. When he turned, the men blind-sided him with punches to the face, he said.

"People in the halls were shocked about what was going on," Lee said. "They were screaming and hollering."

Lee said he initially refused to retaliate against the men. After six punches to his body, he then defended himself by pinning one individual to the floor.

"I could easily have retaliated," said Lee. "I was on the water polo team and was used to being physical, but I purposely didn't fight. There is a time to fight and a time not to. The guys knew where I lived, so I wouldn't have been safe."

Residents of the floor came to Lee's aid when they heard the noise. The five men immediately left for the stairwell and have not been heard from since, said Lee. The ordeal lasted a total of five minutes, he said.

"They easily could have shot me," Lee said, "like they did last year at the Malcolm X Center. I don't sleep at night because I'm thinking about it. I walk around campus and look behind my back to see if people are following me. It affected my academics, and I'm not playing water polo this year because of it."

No senators have officially challenged the constitutionality of the referendum question, according to Senate Speaker Dan Castellano.

"Even with the recent vote, it can be voted on again in the fall," Castellano.

Ever Think of writing for Sports?

Stop by the Collegian Office at 113 Campus Center

THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN
NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

HELP WANTED:
For the Fall 1996 semester in the Collegian Graphics Dept. We are currently accepting applications for Computer Graphic Artists for both
Day Graphics (Advertising/Editorial & www. and Night Graphics (Editorial & Prepress)

Collegian Graphics Since 1890

Applicants should have a good working knowledge of the Macintosh/IBM operating systems, good design and layout skills utilizing the following software: Microsoft Word, QuarkXPress, Adobe Illustrator & Adobe Photoshop.

Stop by the Graphics Dept. and fill out and Application. We are located at: 113 Campus Center, (the basement) Amherst, MA 01003

Hootie!
Unplugged
Tonight 10-11 pm
Simulcast On MTV!
TODAY'S 99.3 MODERN ROCK WHMP-FM
In Stereo!
Hootie and the Blowfish perform songs from their BRAND NEW CD
"Fairweather Johnson"

■ Earth Day

continued from page 1

Representative Ellen Story, Congressman John Olver and Selectboard member Hill Boss, all of whom stressed the importance of continued activism.

"Those alive today have a responsibility to leave our children a planet with clean air and clean water," said Sen. Rosenberg (D–Amherst), citing his work against chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs) in the last decade as an example of his environmental track record.

"We fought the fight and won it because citizens demanded we do something about the depletion of the ozone," Rosenberg said.

He also discussed the importance of plastics and how they are not as bad as commonly made out to be when compared with alternatives. The senator also congratulated Amherst on its recycling efforts. He said the goal of recycling over 40 percent of possible material is looking attainable, but warned that complacency could be dangerous.

"We can't stop there, we have to work with manufacturers to get them to use these recycled materials," Rosenberg said.

The crowd grew rapidly, and although most were just relaxing in the sun or playing Frisbee, they proved they were indeed paying attention when Rep. John Olver (D- Amherst) took the podium and incited cheers from the audience. He warned of the dangers of some of the new politicians in Congress represent to environmental issues.

"We need to be concerned that at some time in the future Congress may close a national park of open areas to logging," Olver said. "Action by concerned citizens against these attitudes is critical."

Olver also reiterated his dedication to environmental concerns and promised to keep fighting.

"You can count on me to continue to fight for environmental protection. I carry one of the three best environmental records according to the League of Conservation Voters," Olver said.

Earth Day co–coordinator Jesse Butterfield said that after all the work put into the event, she was pleased with the turnout.

"It's great, just what we hoped for," Butterfield, a member of MASSPIRG, said. "It has been a lot of work, especially in the last couple of weeks, but it has taken all semester between calling the groups involved and raising money."

"A lot of progress has been made in environmental legislation," said co-coordinator Amy Bartlett. "But we still have a long way to go."

Rosenberg also echoed this sentiment in his closing remarks, stressing that congratulations are in order, but that people shouldn't get lazy.

"We should take a minute to be proud but we can only afford a minute because there is still more to be done," Rosenberg said.

ELIZABETH BROWN / COLLEGIAN

Anna Ellis, part of G.A.I.A., dances at the Earth Day festival on Saturday at the Amherst Commons

ELIZABETH BROWN / COLLEGIAN

Justina Anmois builds a tree made up of twigs and a sunflower at the top, on Saturday at the Earth Day festival.

EMILY BERLY / COLLEGIAN

Orion Russell, nine, left, and Andy Patenaude, ten, both of Northampton, help Julie Johnson, a Smith College history and women's studies major, with the "Trash Monster." It is a project designed by MASSPIRG, to recycle

ELIZABETH BROWN / COLLEGIAN

Aubrey May Moulton and her mother, Leanne, work on a painting a sign to celebrate Earth Day at the festival in Amherst.

COLLEGE MOVES

Hertz PENSKE Truck Rental

- Low Rates
- Rent It Here-Leave It Here
- 24 Hr. Emergency Road Service
- Easy to Drive Trucks
- Packing Materials Available
- Air-Conditioned Trucks Featured
- Many Trucks with Auto. Trans., and Loading Ramps
- Unlimited Mileage on One-Way Rentals

AMHERST 256-8224 NORTHAMPTON 586-8391
HADLEY 549-1644 CHICOPEE 594-5186
RESERVATIONS 1-800-222-0277

COLLEGE STUDENTS
$10 OFF LOCAL TRUCK RENTAL
$20 OFF ONE-WAY TRUCK RENTAL
$5 OFF MOVING SUPPLIES (Boxes, Tapes, Ropes, Etc.)
College ID Required • With this coupon NOT VALID WITH ANY OTHER OFFER One per truck rental • Subject to availability

RUN FOR NEWMAN
APRIL 27, 1996

WHERE?: Boyden side of the UMass Alumni Stadium track
WHEN?: Saturday, April 27, 1996
9:30 a.m. (walkers); 10 a.m. (runners)
WHY?: To benefit the Newman center. Sponsors are appreciated.
REGISTRATION: At the Campus Center Concourse and the Newman Center Cafeteria 10 a.m. - 1 p.m., April 24-26 and at the Newman Center Office April 1-26
PRIZES: Free T-shirts for the first 300 to register. $100 first prizes to first man and first woman . . . plus other valuable prizes.
For more information call the Newman Main Office at 549-0300.

FREE Workshop
for UMass students, faculty and staff

Reach For Success
Careers in Arts Administration
Workshop in Bartlett 206
Wednesday April 24, 4:00 to 6:30
Settings, jobs, qualifications, opportunities!
Seating is limited!!
To sign up and ensure your seat, call AES, 545-2360
Presented by the Arts Extension Service, Division of Continuing Education
Supported by the UMass Arts Council

LOW-COST FLIGHTS TO EUROPE!
GO FOR THE SUMMER — STAY UP TO THREE MONTHS!
Convenient Mid-Week and Weekend BOSTON DEPARTURES!

LONDON	from $449
AMSTERDAM	from $499
FRANKFURT	from $579
BRUSSELS	from $639
PARIS	from $639
MILAN/ROME	from $709
ATHENS	from $779

Peak season prices higher

Mix 'n' Match — Fly Into One City and Out of Another!
Fly to 54 European cities, including
Venice • Amsterdam • Nice • Munich
Stockholm • And many more!
NON-STOP or DIRECT transatlantic flights via wide-bodied regularly scheduled jets!
FOR ALL FLIGHTS: Prices are per person roundtrip, capacity-controlled and subject to change. Some restrictions may apply. Subject to applicable change/cancellation fees. Prices do not include applicable Government taxes currently $1.45 APHIS fee, $3.00 Passenger Facility Charge, $12.50 U.S. Customs/Immigration fee (Westbound), $5.00 Airline Security Fee each way (total $10.00) and any applicable foreign departure tax. There is a mandatory $10.50 Federal Express charge for all Europe bookings.
Seats are limited . . . call Your TRAVEL AGENT or 1-800-CALL-GWV!
GWV International
The Northeast's Leading Vacation Specialist!

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Marni E. Heffner Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gurley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Lisa Chiu Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor Anna Lotto Co-Women's Issues Editor
Gregory Casimir Co-Black Affairs Editor Hannah Thorne Co-Women's Issues Editor
Humphrey Brown III Co-Black Affairs Editor Tony Morse Editorial Production Manager
Position Vacant Developing Nations Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Bob Dunn Editorial/Opinion Editor Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Lisa M. Olivieri Guy Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor Lee Weiner Distribution Manager
Anna Feder Jewish Affairs Editor Position Vacant Classifieds Manager
Lisa Chiu Multicultural Affairs Editor Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Amy Paradise News Editor Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Emily Reis Photography Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Candice Flemming Sports Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Sean Cahoon Staff Artist Casey Kane Librarian

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967 and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Education is the key

Sometimes I become frustrated and angered by the world around me, and the treatment I receive from others because I am Jewish. I feel most people lack an understanding of my faith. Although I have only encountered one incident of malevolent anti-Semitism directed towards me, I have witnessed such behavior towards my ethnicity as a whole even here on campus and within the pages of the Collegian. I have also regularly witnessed what I believe is subtle but unintentional anti-Semitism.

My frustration culminates during the Jewish holidays. Recently during Passover my friends taunted me with bread. However, if I broke Passover like in years past, then they would question me why. Last year during Yom Kippur, they mocked me with food, and questioned me as to why I celebrated the holiday even though I am not very religious. However, when the roles are reversed and I say anything bad about any form of Christianity, they get all defensive — even though most of them are non-practicing.

Matthew Wurtzel

When I came to the University of Massachusetts in 1993 as a freshman, I was stunned to realize how many people lived sheltered lives before they arrived at the University. Many students who came from rural and even urban areas such as Springfield and Lowell had never actually met a Jew.

Framingham, my hometown in eastern Massachusetts, is rich with diversity. Although many ethnicities, religions and nationalities call Framingam home — do not get me wrong; it still has problems. Framingham probably has one of the largest Jewish communities in the Commonwealth behind the likes of Brookline and Newton. Therefore it is common to meet someone of a different background, and if you have an open mind like me, then you can learn from them.

However, many people do not have open minds because they are taught at young ages to hate those who are different from them. The state of Massachusetts has an obligation to help stem this problem before it leads towards hate crimes against African Americans, Jews, Hispanics, Asians, homosexuals, etc. I have always been an ardent supporter of the principle that education can cure many of society's illnesses.

The Commonwealth should take a leading role in combating hate through restructuring the curriculum of the elementary education system. Legislators and the media are so interested in the high school curriculum that they overlook the problems in the lower grades.

When I fondly look back upon the subjects I studied in elementary school, I spent little time on social studies and even less on history. Most of my time studying in elementary school was focused on reading and math. So where did I learn my social attitudes and behaviors? My parents were influential, but so was the media.

However, my parents made sure everything I watched when I was young was appropriate — especially movies. I remember when I was in middle school my parents made my sisters and me watch War and Remembrance because there was a poignant scene in which Nazis were herding people (including some main characters) into gas chambers in the concentration camps.

My parents felt we should learn about the Holocaust and thought the movie might spark some interest. I remember talking about it with my parents, and later talking with my grandfather about World War II the next time we visited him in New York City.

When my sisters and I were younger, my parents used to force my sisters and I to watch "Sesame Street," "Mr. Rogers," and "Electric Company," and later when my younger sister and I were a little older "Square One." These shows attempted to break the media's traditional stereotypes which were commonly portrayed on television — even "Square One" (a math show) tried to dispel archetypes too. However, these shows are limited to certain stations such as PBS, and certain cable channels.

A cultural awareness program could be instituted in grades Kindergarten through 12, but emphasizing primarily upon K through six. The program would teach students about different faiths such as Judaism, Christianity, Islam, Hinduism, etc. and teach them about the different cultures across the globe. People hate what they do not understand, but such a program could provide children with an understanding of people's cultural differences, so they would be less likely to hate.

UMass could easily assist in the formation of a cultural awareness program in the elementary schools across the state. The University is home of a school of education as well as host to an acclaimed psychology and sociology departments; not to mention the numerous ethnic studies programs such as Asian Studies, Judaic Studies and African American Studies.

All these programs could collaborate to form a curriculum. The curriculum could be fine tuned through testing in the local schools in the Pioneer Valley before taking it statewide. Following its inevitable success, other states would probably mimic the program.

Such a program would lead towards the end of unfounded hate based on race, ethnicity, creed, religion, and sexual orientation. This is the final solution to an age old problem.

Matthew Wurtzel is a Collegian columnist.

Bulger bust

As I sat studying diligently in the Bluewall not so long ago, twiddling with a banana peel and overhearing a nearby conversation about the role of alfalfa sprouts in any healthy salad, I suddenly noticed a lime green table tent advertising the upcoming William Bulger booksigning. This got the wheels spinning in my head and the banana churning in my stomach. Grrr...

When Bulger was elected as President of the University of Massachusetts system in the fall, many issues surrounding his politics were raised. Many people were concerned about his dictatorial leadership style, corrupt politics, racism and anti-Semitic tendencies, and opposition to liberal issues such as abortion and gay rights.

Stacey Shackford

Bulger is renowned for his far-reaching political influence. On the other hand, there is concern about his means of acquiring such influence and power. It is argued by many that while he presided over the State Senate for 17 years, his power fed off of the fear of his colleagues and that he went behind the back of his own constituents on various occasions.

However, I did not intend to make this article a criticism about the character and past of our new president, most of which is heresay to me and definitely not something I can change. Instead, the reason I was so disturbed upon discovering the lovely lime gem strategically placed on the center of my table, was the fact that it symbolized the man's role as president since he took office in January.

Bulger has been quoted to say, "I guarantee that I have been to all the five campuses as much as possible." I don't know about any of you, but I personally have yet to have a random Bulger sighting here in Amherst. Until the book signing, the only scheduled visit to campus that I knew about was a reception for incoming freshmen who were invited to join the Honors Program upon their acceptance to the University.

Although, I suppose he was acting upon one of his goals, to raise academic standards by actively recruiting honors students, I would have preferred that the president address members of the current student body before he appeared before a group of students who may not even attend UMass next year.

He may have attended almost every UMass basketball game this season, but that does not exactly prove his dedication to the school. Thousands of New England fans tune into and/or attend the UMass games for purposes of self-interest.

Rumors tell of spring break and JanTerm campus tours and certain weekend visits when few students are around. Perhaps this is to be expected, I can't really say. The fact of the matter is, however, that Bulger has not even addressed the Student Government Association, nevermind a larger contingent of the student body.

According to Bulger, he has visited the school as much as his time and priorities allow. Therefore, I take it as a blow and an insult as a student that a book signing tour has more priority than one Student Government meeting. I was very much tempted to approach Bulger with my student handbook for a signature and say, "Hello. I'm a student here at UMass-Amherst. Nice to meet you. So glad you came to see us, students, today." Unfortunately, I had class and unlike some members of the UMass community, I know where my priorities lie.

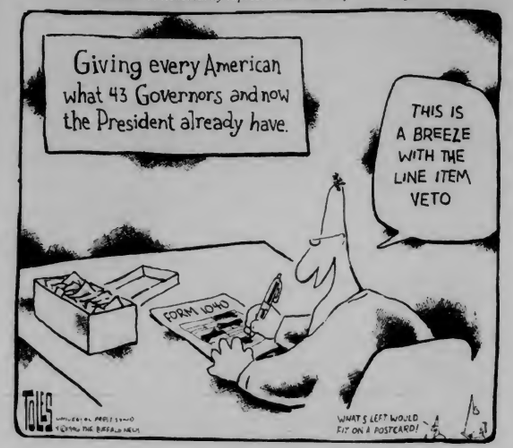
Stacey Shackford is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

I CAN'T BELIEVE I'M FINALLY MEETING YOU, MR. HARRIS...
PLEASE CALL ME JONKER.
JONK
OH, I COULDN'T. IT'D BE TOO DISRESPECTFUL. YOU HAVE TO UNDERSTAND I'VE BEEN TO EVERY MEET YOU EVER TANNED AT! AND I'VE GOT ALL YOUR TRADING CARDS!
I'VE MEMORIZED ALL YOUR STATS. I HAVE A LIFE SIZE SCULPTURE OF YOU BY MY POOL. I GO TO YOUR BIRTHPLACE AT LEAST TWICE A YEAR, AND I... I...
I NEED A LIFE, DON'T I?
SOUNDS LIKE IT, BUT I'M NOT A TRAINED MENTAL HEALTH PROFESSIONAL.

Opinion/Editorial

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian.



Giving every American what 43 Governors and now the President already have.
THIS IS A BREEZE WITH THE LINE ITEM VETO
FORM 1040
TOLLS
WHAT'S LEFT WOULD FIT ON A POSTCARD!

Singin' the summertime blues

Daniel E. Levenson

Once again the school year is winding down, as the days get longer and attention spans shorter, there is a traditional panic that spreads throughout the teenage community. And what, might you ask, is the source of this malcontent movement of otherwise sane men and women?

Jobs.

For some, it is the desire to make money, others simply don't want to sit around the house all day. Whatever the reason, as soon as it starts to get warmer, people start to worry.

I have to admit, I usually don't put a lot of consideration into my various summer schemes. Traveling is always fun. Well, actually not always. I mean, I have had more than my fair share of disastrous traveling experiences. Take for example, a little adventure I like to fondly remember as "The horrible, bad, horrendous, Cape Cod trip from Hell (part one)." That was an experience.

Three days of arguing, insults and idiocy.

It wasn't exactly "Bay Watch." Heck, it wasn't even "Flipper."

We terrorized restaurants, beaches and each other. The highlight of the misadventure was when I watched three of my friends climb onto various inflatable pool toys and float off into the middle of a Salt Marsh. It was oddly reminiscent of Jaws.

Bon Voyage.

Last summer I climbed Mount Washington. That was one of the most incredible experiences I have ever had. Unfortunately we picked one of the hottest days of the year to go, and we did it all in one day! I needed a Mountain Dew i.v. just to make the drive home.

If you ever have a chance to go to the beach when a hurricane is coming, you'll be in for one hell of a ride. If you can sneak some sort of board past those pesky life guards you can find some really kickin' waves. (I am not in any way encouraging this sort of ruffian behavior. Do not try this at home. Obey all safety rules at all times. We control the horizontal, we control the vertical. Cease and desist). And if you can avoid having the snot smacked out of you by the water, then it's loads of fun. There's nothing like having you're face slammed into the sand, drinking that smooth, salty water.

Sounds like a beer commercial.

Fishing trips have yielded various results over the past few years. I must have set a record for hitting my head the most number of times in a single day on one particular trip. I don't remember exactly what happened, but I know that I hit my head at least three or four times on objects/surfaces ranging from cars to door jams to Windsor Dam. Ouch!

I think that's when the voices started.

I considered several different possibilities for this summer. The thought of taking classes crossed my mind. And continued to pass through until it floated off into outer space, where sick freaky ideas like sitting in a classroom all summer, belong. I may do it eventually, but as this academic sentence... err... semester is ending I find myself looking for something to do outside and unconfined. I did think about going back to the place where I worked last summer, but in the end I decided not to apply. It was an awesome job, but it was stressful! And me not being the calmest individual at the moment, it probably wouldn't be in my best interest to expose myself to anything which might shake my ever-loosening, fragile grip on reality.

I hope I find something interesting to do with my time this summer. If not I could always try to break my record of number of days spent complaining about Gypsy Moth infestation.

Yippee ! That would be fun.

Daniel E. Levenson is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Security cameras are a necessity

To the editor:

Is it just me, or does it seem like the administration of UMass is unapproachable at times? No matter what channels of help I seek, it always seems like I am given the run-around.

Last semester I was involved in an incident which began as a misunderstanding and resulted in violence. Sunday, the weekend before finals, five males came up on my floor to inquire about a neighbor who supposedly had been yelling racial slurs out their window. When they found out that my neighbor was not home they took out their frustration on another resident of my floor. Without hesitation, they dropped this person to the floor and began beating him up. I quickly ran over to break up the assault. After they refused to leave, I decided to go back to bed. After all, I had tried to help the situation the best I could. As soon as I turned around, one individual struck me in the back of my head. I asked what he was doing and he responded with several more punches. Other members of the group then followed the attack. I ended up going to the hospital to get stitched up.

During the incident, I decided not to retaliate because I thought the higher authorities of UMass would take care of the problem. When I asked the police officer that evening why they were not looking for the people who did this, he simply, yet adamantly replied, because there are no video cameras in the lobby. They could not compile enough of a description from the two victims and five plus witnesses to begin a search. Upon being told that, I went forth to the administration: Housing, the Chancellor's and Vice Chancellor's Offices, Dean of Students' Affairs, the police department and over a dozen other resources to find out why video cameras are not present in the lobbies of residence Halls. I am a transfer student from California. After attending four colleges prior to UMass, I can tell you video cameras in residence hall lobbies are quite common. If anything, it acts as a deterrent for people to come in and conduct any malice.

After approaching different parties of the administration, I became overwhelmingly frustrated, not so much about the administrators responding to my plea for help but for these different parties to collaborate some type of positive and coordinated responses. Basically, I was getting the run-around. For example, the Director of Southwest Residence Area seems to suggest the problem with video cameras is not funding, but is gaining the approval of the students. In contrast to that reply, the response from the student affairs office lies with funding, not the approval of students. This type of contradicting response has become evident every time I try to get support.

There is a misconception with video cameras. The thing students have to understand is that the content of these cameras will not be used in a stereotypical big brotherhood campaign. In other words, the only time these tapes will be looked at is when a crime has been committed. No one is going to sit in front of cameras and monitor the whereabouts of each individual and what they are up to each day. I can not get over what happened to me. To bring the incident to a greater perspective, they could easily have shot me or my friend. Should they be able to get away with such acts as easily as they have?

If you are in a position of power, have been in a situation similar to mine, or are just a concerned student, I need your help. I have concluded that I can not get anything accomplished by myself. My voice is not heard on campus. Like every student at UMass, all I want is a safe place to reside and experience my collegiate life for what it has to offer. There is a petition going around for supporting video cameras in the lobbies of residence halls. Please take some time to consider this need.

Jeffrey C. Lee
UMass

In defense of the page

To the editor:

Lately, much has been made of the "inane" topics covered on the editorial page of the Collegian. Personally, I love to read the editorials for their quirky and real accounts of college life. I catch myself laughing out loud at the wit and talent of the columnists. Laughing is a nice break from reality, and I think that it's just as important as covering the issues. I suggest that members of the UMass community, instead of wasting their time complaining to the editor, become Collegian staff writers and bring the pressing issues they so deeply want to be covered to the written page.

Remember, this is our college newspaper, not the Boston Globe.

Sara Demenkoff
Southwest

Arts & Living

Fugees shine fabulously; Coolio in cruise control

By Mike Burke
Collegian Staff

THE FUGEES / COOLIO
John M. Greene Hall
April 19

NORTHAMPTON — Coolio's reign as the gangsta in paradise is over, far over. Nearly everyone in attendance knew this too and wasn't a bit surprised when the young and hip Fugees completely blew the ol' man off the stage. As soon as Mr. Dangerous Minds took the stage, the exit doors were flooded with Fugees fans seeking refuge from the monotonous, draining raps of Coolio.

Hailing from Newark, N.J., the Fugees have been the talk of the hip-hop world since the release of their stellar sophomore album, The Score, in February.

Wyclcaf Jean, one-third of the Fugee rap attack, first took the stage with DJ Leon. DJ Leon spun old school rap hits showing his skills twisting and turning around the turntable. While spinning the same record on both turntables, DJ Leon kept the jam going while dancing around the turntables — at one point he was sitting under the turntables still keeping the same beat!

Soon after, Jean took up his guitar and performed a stirring cover of the Bob Marley classic "No Woman, No Cry" while a drummer and bassist provided the rhythm section. After more jamming, rappers Prakazrel Michel and Lauryn Hill joined Jean and the show steamed up with the crowd dancing and screaming.

They plowed through several hits from The Score including their hit single "Fugee-la" and a version of the beautiful Roberta Flack tune, "Killing Me Softly" which featured Hill's multi-octave soulful voice that rivaled her ace rapping skills. Several times during the show Hill and Michel asked the crowd how many fans out there knew the band before February — each time the hall went wild. For old times sakes the band threw in ace versions of "Vocab" and "Nappyheads" both from their debut album, Blunted on Reality.

The Fugees flowed wondrously from song to song keeping the audience on the edge of their seat throwing in free style raps, old school samples and even invited a few special guests to keep the action going. Once again Hill outshined her fellow rappers with an overly impressive, completely free-style rap. Even when it was Jean's turn to take the mic, Hill kept going extending her crowd pleasing improvised poetic masterpiece.

Near the end of the set, the Fugees welcomed two talented dancehall reggae masters that just topped the night off with a near-perfect ending. Mixing the best of dancell reggae straight from Kingston, Jamaica with the Fugees cutting edge hip-hop sound, the onstage entourage created an overwhelming wall of sound that had the crowd in a party mood. Even Ruth Simmons, the president of Smith College was enjoying the show from her front row seat.

Rap music as a whole has suffered greatly as a live music form but the Fugees are one of the few examples who shine on stage. The combination of DJ Leon's spinning wonders, a trio of fabulous rappers and a tight rhythm section, makes the Fugees possibly the most talented live act in the hip-hop community. The same can not be said for Mr. Coolio.

Largely due to his international hit singles "Gangsta Paradise," "Fantastic Voyage" and "Sumpin' New," Coolio has become the posterboy for today's hip hop scene. After Friday night's performance, he deserved to be the posterboy for struggling live rap acts who haven't got a clue.

Describing Coolio's set as bad is a far too generous description. The set was as monotonous as a

turn to FUGEES, page 6

Mummenschanz mystifies UMass audience

By Matt Sinclair
Collegian Staff

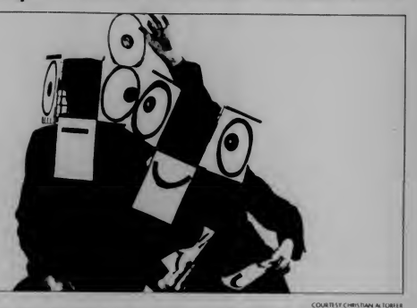
MUMMENSCHANZ
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
April 19

The Swiss mask-mime troupe, Mummenschanz enchanted its audience as it performed at the University of Massachusetts on Friday. With a fascinating assortment of acts, the troupe succeeded in mesmerizing its spectators, captivating young and old alike.

The first act opened with an apparition — a recreation of how life began; the stage was eerily lit, and fantastic undulating lights swirled in the darkness. This would set the tone for the performance, implying to the audience that everything is not what it at first appears — but that illusions are possible.

The amazing array of masks never failed to surprise. Often outrageous and rarely sensible, each was individual, comic and appealing. There were the toilet paper heads — who showed their affection for one another by rolling out reams of toilet paper; then there was the paper-pad heads whose expressions changed by ripping off the paper from their padded eyes and mouth (see photo).

Some of the characters required full costumes, like the hungry Packman, or the tied-up paper bag. There was also the enormous apparition of the two silver robots; huge ballooned costumes provided the facade in this case.



COURTESY CHRISTIAN ALTORFER

Mummenschantz mimes wore unique masks at the Fine Arts Center performance.

The second act was even more engrossing than the first, climaxing in a balloon toss which involved audience participation. A giant yellow balloon sailed into the audience and people found themselves reaching for the stars, trying to get a touch of the giant vessel.

Mummenschanz, noted for its unique and innovative style, surely stands at the cutting edge of contemporary mask mime. Having performed all over the world, the troupe manages to entertain in a way that is both comic and yet magical, and by transcending traditional barriers — such as language or culture, it endows itself with a universal appeal which is its greatest asset.

Vinegar Tom examines issues of feminism

By Mark McGrath
Collegian Staff

VINEGAR TOM
Curtain Theater
April 17–20, 23–27

Lately, there have been witch hunts going on at the University of Massachusetts campus. No, you're not going to see women on broomsticks flying over campus, but if you're lucky, you'll catch the Department of Theater's production of Caryl Churchill's play Vinegar Tom at the Curtain Theater.

Vinegar Tom is a play which explores contemporary issues through the story of 17th century England witch hunts, ranging from morality to religion, but most obviously the trials and tribulations faced by women in society, both past and present.

The witch hunts provide a perfect vehicle for the commentary, for while they were in themselves absurd, the connections between past and present are unavoidable and are accented by a series of poignant songs delivered by performers in contemporary dress.

While the play has a number of strong female roles, the action gravitates around Alice, who is played by Meghan Wolf. Because she's not a wife, widow or virgin, she is persecuted by her society as a whore and eventually a witch. Disheartened and about to be put to death at the end of the play, she wishes she had been a witch, so that she might return to society some of the pain it inflicted on her.

The other female characters all depict different forms of a seemingly universal oppression faced by the women of that time period. These range from the husband/ wife relationship of Jack and Margery (James Clark, Robyn Bruderick) to the forced marriage of the well-off, but still powerless Betty (Wendy Remington).

In the end, it seems that the entire cast is or will be hung for witchcraft unless each person is "happily" married or male. It is explained that "a greater number of witches are found in the fragile feminine sex," because the female "is more carnal than the man," and more vulnerable to the heresy."

In a play that features women in the most important roles, Sean Casey pulls off a triple play in creepiness as he tackles three separate roles: a devilish man, a doctor and Packer who is one of the better witch hunters of the time. Two of the most gripping scenes involved him as the doctor bleeding the "hysterical" Betty and as Packer pricking Alice with a pin to see whether or not she is indeed a witch.

At Packer's side throughout the latter part of the play, was his assistant, Goody (Mimian Morales), who stole the second half of the show with her portrayal as a "goody two-shoes" woman of God, who takes pride in her job because she's "doing good at the same time as earning a living." The smugness with which she delivers her monologue defending the witch hunts makes you want to hate her, but her charm leads you to want to believe she knows not what she is doing.

With the excellent acting, wonderful costumes, a sound plot and lots of meaning to carry the show along, one would think the music might be merely decorative. But in this play, it is actually the key ingredient, for through the lyrics of the songs the audience is able to make a connection between the historical events depicted to the issues of feminism.

UPC presents
the Toasters
LET'S GO BOWLING
&
WITH OPENER · S.M.A.
APRIL 25
8:00 in the Student Union Ballroom
$8 for students and non-students!
Tickets are sold at Tix Unlimited, Northampton Box Office, For the Record, and Strawberries.
For more info call us at the UPC office 545-2892.

1996
SUMMER SESSION
Division of Continuing Education
Direction for Your Life.
Call 413-545-0107 for a free course catalog. E-mail: contined@admin.umass.edu
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Lorenz Olympic
Gold Medal Challenge
Drive To Victory
Food
Games
Fun
Tie-Dyes
(Bring a T-shirt)
Prizes
Win a Weekend Getaway to Montreal
Thursday
April 25th
11:00am-5:00pm
Umass-Pond
Sponsored by Don Lorenz, Inc. of Greenfield
http://www.crocker.com/~lorenz
Co-sponsored by The Collegian, WHMP, Flex Gym, Bueschel Estates, Taylor Rental, Chumwall, Copy Cat Print Shop, Carbone Pizza, Media Play, Moore's Washtown, Mill Valley Estates, Java Hut, Friendly's, The University Store, Atkins Farm, Food Coffee, Greenough Snack Bar, Hanlon Bakery, The Spork, Hot Mamas, CVS, Supermarket, Knowles Flower Shop, All Weave Weaving & Tape

Puffton Village – Your First Choice
1, 2 and 3 bedroom apartments.
Featuring:
Newly renovated units that include:
• New appliances
• New Carpeting
• New kitchen cabinets & counter tops
• Central air conditioners
Rents starting at $590 per month
or
Traditional units that are:
• Fully applianced
• Freshly painted
• Carpeted/Tiled Floors
• Central Air conditioned
Rents starting at $525 per month
All rents include Heat, Hot Water & Cooking Gas and use of an olympic size pool, 5 tennis courts, basketball court, laundry rooms and on-site parking.
Now accepting rental applications for summer and fall. Call today 549-0145
Puffton Village Apartments • 1040 North Pleasant St., Amherst, Mass

Poor crowd response to Junkies

By Lisa M. Oliveri
Collegian Staff

THE COWBOY JUNKIES / SHAWN COLVIN
LeFrak Gymnasium
April 20

AMHERST — The show had potential — a double bill featuring two amazing acts known for their languid, but brilliant studio albums. Unfortunately, only the Cowboy Junkies could reproduce their sound without their fans falling into a deep slumber.

To make matters worse these bands are well suited at a small theatre or club, not the LeFrak Gymnasium — a horrendous venue. The acoustics were horrible, and anyone sitting further than 20 feet from the stage was hard-pressed to hear anything that was spoken into the microphone.

Boston-native Shawn Colvin received huge applause when she walked on stage, but failed to live up to the audience's expectations. With only herself and a guitar, she lacked the capabilities to make any of her songs sound as good as they do on her albums.

There is no doubt that Colvin has a beautiful voice, but without a band she looked lost on the large stage. Her hour long set had no energy whatsoever and even her big hit, "Round of Blues" fell flat.

Hopefully if Colvin has kept her Valley fanbase, she will return for an intimate show at the Iron Horse — a club better suited for her acoustic tunes.

As tiring as the first part of the show was, there was no excuse for the audience's ill treatment towards the Cowboy Junkies. If talking throughout their performance wasn't enough, barely half the audience remained for the show's entirety.

The Junkies' frontwoman Margo Timmins lacks energy not only on her recordings, but also in concert as well. She either stood at the microphone with as much movement as a statue, or sat in a chair. However it was easy to overlook this flaw because of her strong and powerful voice.

COURTESY RCA RECORDS

The Cowboy Junkies struggled in a horrible venue Saturday night.

The Cowboy Junkies were surprisingly good. They are so lifeless on their albums, yet on stage they actually seemed to enjoy themselves. With their funky lighting and quirky sounds, they were a welcome change from the acoustics of Colvin. Surprisingly the hi-tech light showcase meshed beautifully with the band's melodic sound.

Never did Margo seem so intense as on their hit, "Murder Tonight in the Trailer Park." It was loud and catchy showing how vibrant the Cowboy Junkies could be. Even Margo looked like she was having a good time.

But the highlight of the evening was, "Misguided Angel," a song off their breakthrough album The Trinity Sessions. Standing in front of a white backdrop, with a strong white spotlight on her, Margo looked much like an angel herself.

All in all the Cowboy Junkies rescued the show from being a complete four-hour flop. They are stunning musicians and although LeFrak was not the right arena for showcasing their talent, they are wonderful performers live. Despite Colvin's dull performance, it turned out to be an enjoyable evening.

■ Fugees

continued from page 5

17-inning Red Sox game against their Pawtucket pals. The rapping was dry, the bass was far too loud and the DJ paled in comparison to the master DJ Leon of the Fugees.

While the Fugees raced in the fast lane, Coolio was stuck in cruise control never getting out of first gear and always in danger of stalling. In front of over 2,000 once adoring fans, the gangsta fell flat on his face messing up his silly hair cut. It was no surprise that large portions of the crowd sought the dark streets of Northampton before this dreadful act had finished even half of his act.

Collegian staff member Hannah Thorne contributed to this article.

Northampton hosts loud fest; Zorn, Papas Fritas stand out

By Adam Dlugacz and Mike Burke
Collegian Staff

LOUD MUSIC FESTIVAL
Various venues in Northampton
April 17–20

NORTHAMPTON — They came, they saw and they were loud. The fourth annual Loud Music Festival passed through Northampton this weekend with a whopping 200 bands spread over four nights. Unfortunately over-priced tickets, a few key time changes in shows and lack of audience support hurt the festival drastically.

Problems began early on Thursday as arguably the biggest show of the festival, John Zorn & Mike Patton, began three hours before the original set time. Unfortunately this left many Zorn fans out in the cold as they arrived at the club for the midnight set. For those lucky enough to witness the bizarre 45-minute set, Zorn and Patton displayed their wacked-out sense of humor and love of random noise. With Zorn on sax and Patton on samples, the duo combined for the most interesting, weird and at times straight-out disgusting set of the festival. Imagine two grown men making puking sounds for five whole minutes — not even Beavis & Butthead could pull that off.

On Friday, many Doc Hopper fans suffered the same fate as Zorn fans as the band took the stage 40 minutes before they were scheduled. Not surprisingly they were their usual incredible selves as they played songs almost strictly from their new album Ask Your Mom. Although they disappointingly performed one song off of Aloha, they featured four new songs from their upcoming album that should live up to past expectations.

The Queers, of course, simply took the stage and blew away all of the previous bands. Opening with "This Place Sucks," which summed up the hard core/punk side of the Loud Music Festival quite well, they blazed through an excellent set. Mixing in songs off of Move Back Home and Love Songs For The Retarded, the Queers proved they are one of punk's best bands who play for their fans.

Saturday night at Pearl Street was a little bit better simply because more people showed up. Both Worlds played a tight set that was highlighted by the legendary John Joseph, of Cro-Mags fame, on vocals. Supertouch came up and proved that despite the three-year layoff, they haven't lost a thing. Mixing in new songs with tunes off of The Earth Is Flat, they quickly had the crowd moving.

Most of the concert-goers were there to see Weston. While the songs were good and they were their usual ridiculous selves, it seemed that they were brought down by the poorly planned event. Still kids danced, smiled and bopped their heads at a typical Weston show.

For many of the poppier music fans, Saturday night was the highlight of the festival as the Pop Narcotic festival took over Pearl Street downstairs with the Dambuilders and Helium, while the Iron Horse featured top acts like Scud Mountain Boys and Papas Fritas. International acts, Sugarplant from Japan and Buyracer from Leeds, put on memorable sets, but it was Papas Fritas who stole the night and, in many ways, the entire festival.

Headlining the Iron Horse, the Boston trio were brilliant, bringing the crowd to beg for an encore that never materialized. Featuring several songs off their self-titled debut as well as a bunch of new songs, Papas Fritas never lost a step transforming the Iron Horse into a pop paradise.

Unfortunately overall this weekend, the Loud Music Festival did not recreate Northampton as the musical paradise that was expected.

COURTESY SUZANNE THOMPSON

Doc Hopper was one of over 200 bands who played at the Loud Music Festival.

PHOTO COURTESY OF MEDIA RELATIONS

The women's tennis team hosted the Atlantic 10 Championships this weekend and finished in fourth place.

■ Patriots

continued from page 9

as active in the free-agent market," said Patriots' coach Bill Parcells.

The Patriots had three picks in the fourth round and selected offensive guard Heath Irwin from Colorado, defensive end Chris Sullivan from Boston College and fullback Kantroy Barber from West Virginia.

Sullivan, a 6-foot-5, 273-pounder, is from nearby North Attleboro. He was taken with the 119th choice overall.

"It's like a dream come true," said Sullivan, a four-year starter at BC and the first player from his high school to be drafted by an NFL team. "I live about 10 minutes away and I thought about having a chance to play for the Patriots, but it still hasn't set in."

Irwin, taken with the 101st pick, is the nephew of professional golfer Hale Irwin, who also played football at Colorado.

In the fifth round, the Patriots selected John Elmore, offensive guard from Texas (139th). Defensive tackle Christian Peter of Nebraska was the 149th choice overall.

Peter has had some off-the-field problems, having pleaded no contest to a misdemeanor charge of third-degree sexual assault in May 1994 and receiving 18 months of probation.

Personnel director Bobby Grier said the team extensively researched Peter's background and interviewed him twice before deciding to select him.

"Peter understands what we stand for," Grier said. "We're not going to stand for any shenanigans off the field, and that will be reiterated to him when he arrives for our minicamp."

KAREM ALI / COLLEGIAN

Sweepin'

The UMass softball team picked up four wins on the road beating Fordham (9–0, 10–1) and Lasalle (3–1, 5–0) in two double dips.

■ lax

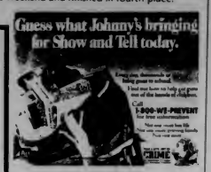
continued from page 10

trip couldn't have come at a worse time for the squad. After starting the season with three big losses, UMass rebounded strong, beating Holy Cross at home and then responding with perhaps its biggest win of the year three days later in Durham, N.H. as it beat a solid New Hampshire squad 11-8. Mother Nature cancelled its only home game in three weeks, a date with the Dartmouth Big Green, and the Minutewomen hit the road after eight days off.

Coach Francesca McClellan's squad looks forward to getting back to Amherst for the home field advantage. The Minutewomen return to Totman Field Wednesday when they battle Vermont at 4 p.m. The Minutewomen played Villanova yesterday in Pennsylvania, but results were unavailable at press time.

Eastover Resort
P.O. Box 2160, Lenox, MA 01240 Phone (413) 637-0625
Social Director Summer Position Available
Summary Of Position:
Under the direction of the General Manager, this position is responsible for implementing new guest activities, directing the old and new activities, and maintaining guest relations through the recreational aspect of the resort. The Social director is also responsible for the training of the other members of the Recreation staff, as a team leader.
Every member of the Social staff will assist in any type of work for the proper operation of the Resort.
Benefits: • Room and board • Full use of facility • Salary
Specifications: • High school diploma and one year of college • Strong verbal and communication skills • Drivers license
Dates: June 1 to September 2 (flexible)
Interviews at UMass
Please call Rob McNinch for application, and more information:
1-800-VACA-FUN • 1-800-822-2386



MOVING?
DOMESTIC OR INTERNATIONAL
For Rates & Services
Toll Free
800-752-6773
http://www.trade-exhibit.com

DAILY COLLEGIAN
The New England Newspaper Association's Daily College Newspaper of the Year, 1994
Free Every Day

FUN
FITNESS
-Always a free tester with a new bike purchase
TRANSPORTATION
Only 7:10 at a mile from the Rail Trail
GREAT BIKES
From Marin, Nishiki, Giant, Schwinn
GREAT SERVICE
From knowledgeable pros
GREAT ADVICE
From a veteran crew of bicycle enthusiasts
SALES • SERVICE • RENTALS • ACCESSORIES
VALLEY BICYCLE
319 Main St., Amherst 256-0860
Open Monday-Saturday 10-6, Sun 12-5
Since 1981

GOT THE SEMESTER'S-OVER-WHAT-AM-I-GOING-TO-DO-THIS-SUMMER BLUES?
WE'VE GOT THE CURE!
How About A Summer Job In Britain?
Call: 1-800-INTLJOB (468-5562)
Council
CIEE: Council on International Educational Exchange

Bain & Company is one of the world's leading management consulting firms specializing in strategy consulting. As a member of the Bain Information Technology team, the Data Analyst works with large databases to support Bain's client work. This is a two-year contract position, with the potential for conversion to permanent status.
Data Analyst
In this position, you will create SAS and SPSS databases from source data provided by clients, along with queries, reports and models to analyze the data. You will be responsible for converting data between multiple formats for end-user access using applications including SAS, SPSS, Excel, Paradox and Access for Windows, managing the acquisition and transfer of data on various media including 9-track tape, DAT tape, and on-line via ftp and other communication protocols, and providing training, documentation and other assistance to Bain's consulting staff to support and expand the use of data analysis tools.
To qualify, you must possess a BA or BS in Mathematics, Social Sciences, Business or other discipline with a strong quantitative focus, and a GPA of 3.5 or above. Significant experience with statistical analysis and with a database creation and query language; familiarity with at least one Windows-based spreadsheet program (preferably Excel) and one database program (preferably Paradox or Access); and the aptitude and ability to quickly learn basic functionality of PC and workstation operating systems (e.g. UNIX, Windows NT) are also required. Strong analytical, mathematical, interpersonal and communication skills are essential.
Qualified candidates please send resume and cover letter to: Bain & Company, Attn: KG, Two Copley Place, Boston, MA 02117-0897.
BAIN & COMPANY
An Equal Opportunity Employer

SELF-STORAGE
One Rate, One Payment, One Carefree Summer.

GOLDEN KEY NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY
GOLDEN KEY NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY
Sophmore Recognition
Tonight, 7:00 p.m.
Campus Center, Rm. 1009
A social, informative program to recognize sophomores' high academic achievement. Also, Introduction to Golden Key National Honor Society. Refreshments will be served.
Hope to see you there!

NEW
Soft Serve Ice Cream
NOW Available at the
BLUEWALL

GOOD, CLEAN, WHOLESOME FUN FOR THE ENTIRE FAMILY.
WHY NOT BUY A CAN TODAY!
Collegian Graphics
Where it pays to play!
Located somewhere deep in the Campus Center basement.
WARNING may not be suitable for young children

Judies
Munchie Madness
Monday Friday 3-6
1/2 Price Munchie Menu
Basket of Sweet Potato Fries ~~$4.99~~ $2.50
Fried Raviolis ~~$5.99~~ $3.00
Lite-Weigh Potato Skins ~~$6.99~~ $3.50
Shrimp Cocktail ~~$5.75~~ $2.88
Watch the world go by on the Greenhouse at Judies!
51 N. Pleasant Street • Amherst • 253-3491

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
THIS IS IT! ENDS THIS THURS. / Only Local Showing CURTAIN DAILY 7:00 & 9:15
"THERE WON'T BE A BETTER FILM THAN THIS ALL YEAR!"
"TWO THUMBS UP, WAY UP!"
A HOMESPUN MURDER STORY BY JOEL & ETHAN COEN
FARGO The Only Local Showing
From the team that gave you Blood Simple and Raising Arizona
ACADEMY OF MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Opera House 584-8435

ENGINEERING
OUR PEOPLE ARE ONE OF A KIND.
At XonTech, people are the key to our success. Over the years we have carefully attracted the best scientific and technical specialists from government, academia, and industry.
Do You Have What It Takes to Join Our Elite Team?
XonTech is a nationally recognized, progressive R&D firm specializing in the analysis of complex physical phenomena and development of advanced concepts and technologies in support of numerous defense programs. Our corporate culture is exciting, demanding and personally and professional satisfying.
We have many stimulating opportunities for individuals with a PhD, Master's or Bachelor's degree in Mathematics, Physics, Computer Science or in Electrical Engineering with an emphasis in signal processing.
If you would like more information about XonTech and discover for yourself if you would like to be part of our elite team:
We will be conducting on-campus interviews
April 26, 1996
Please see the Campus Placement Office for more information
U.S. Citizenship is required for all positions. Applicants selected will be subject to a government security investigation and must meet eligibility requirements for access to classified information.
If unable to attend the on-campus session, please submit cover letter and your resume/CV to the Corporate Human Resources Dept., 6862 Hayvenhurst Ave., Van Nuys, CA 91406.
XonTech, Inc.
"People, Science and Technology"
Northern & Southern California
D.C.; Huntsville, AL; Denver, Colorado; Dayton, OH
http://www.xtl.com
Equal Opportunity Employer M/F/D/V

243 Reasons to Return to Long Island
SUMMER
STONY BROOK SUMMER SESSION
• 243 courses in 45 subjects
• Day and evening classes
• Low NYS tuition
• Register by mail, fax, phone or in person
• Live on campus or commute
• Two terms: May 28-July 12; July 15-Aug 23
For free bulletin, call 24 hours (516) 632-7070
Please send me the 1996 Summer Session Bulletin:
Name
Street/Box No
City State Zip
Telephone Area of interest
School currently attending Anticipated year of graduation
An AA/EO educator and employer
STONY BROOK
STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK
Summer Session Office
Stony Brook, NY 11794-3730

'96 at UMass Boston
See why we're one of the most popular programs in New England!
You'll benefit from
• our distinguished faculty
• morning, midday, afternoon, and evening classes
• over 400 course sections
• our convenient Boston Harbor location
• sessions starting May 28, July 1, and July 15
• mail, phone, fax, or walk-in registration
• and costs you can afford.
Call 617 287-7904
or email us at dce@umbsky.cc.umb.edu
or send or fax this coupon to UMass Boston Summer Sessions
100 Morrissey Blvd.
Boston, MA 02125-3393
Fax 617 287-7922
Name
Street address
City, state, zip
UMass Boston

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students

20¢ per word/day

All others

40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ANNOUNCEMENTS

It's Back!! The Great UMass Mountain Bike Sale April 24 & 25, Student Union Lawn. It's 545-3437

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Best Summer House in Amherst! 2nd floor with private deck. 3 bedroom, huge 4 room family. Convenient Main Street location. Summer sublet & Fall Option. Call 256-0862.

3 Bedroom Puffton. New Fridge, Carpet, Furnace, Dishwasher. Closet moved. Free Heat/Hot Water. $825/Mo starting June 1. 549-7403

Two Bedroom Apartment on bus route. Heat, hot water included. $600 or B.O. 549-9179.

2 Bedroom Brandywine apartment. pondside including heat, water, start June 1. 549-8918.

4 Bedroom 2 bath. On bus route. Available June 1 with option to take over lease. Utilities included. $1025/month. Call 256-3589.

Take Over Lease 3Bdrm Brandywine Ave! June 1st. Newly renovated! 549-7468

Take over our lease 2 bdrm on bus route. A/C inclusive for $750. Only 3 months old. Call 253-0863.

Two Bedroom Presidential Apt. Take over our lease. 1 1/2 mile away. Available 6/1. $575/month. 549-6675.

3 Bdrm Puffton Apt. Ideal location. Near bus stop and land. Heat and hot water incl. Call 549-8279.

Best Selection of 1,2, and 3 bedroom apartments in the center of town. Gas heat and hardwood floors. Lincoln Real Estate 253-7879.

Take over our lease 6/1! Two bedroom/two bath Puffton Apt. $680 per month includes heat/hot water. Avoid the waiting list! 549-1375.

Apartments available for June and September. Summer sublets too! Call for details! Souna Village 665-7203.

Three bedroom condominiums, with gas heat and hardwood floors. Lincoln Real Estate 253-7879.

AUTO FOR SALE

1986 Chevy Nova 207,000 miles. Well maintained. In good condition. $1,000. Call Nancy up until 11 pm. 549-3702.

Chevrolet Caprice Classic 1985 with state inspection. $1800 or best offer call Andreas 545-0739.

1989 Beretta/GT 5 speed, V6, new clutch+ brakes well maintained! Asking $3799 call 256-8022.

Jeep Cherokee 4X4 5 speed 1986. Great in the snow or on the beach! Give me a call to see you can come look at this monster. Great deal. Call Paul at 549-5706.

1981 Honda Accord 71,000 Mi. Good condition. Well maintained. A/C, AM/FM cassette stereo. $2,000 Call Scott 549-0046.

1987 Plymouth Colt 5 speed, 95k. $1,000 or best offer. Leave message at 253-5311.

1994 GEO PRIZM, Black, 23,000 miles. Asking $8700. Call 256-8862.

EMPLOYMENT

Make $3-5,000 this summer. Paint exterior of homes with college students. Wortlesley, Natick, Weston area. Please page Ed Porto at 617 456 6031.

EMPLOYMENT

If you could rate your own early education how would you do it? Tutor wanted for 7yr old and 3yr commitment to project an early learning. Materials and good price with emphasis on math. Enthusiasm and enjoyment in learning are required. Expenses plus stipend apartment. Interested candidates please send letter with pertinent thoughts and qualifications to: PO Box 1627 Laurel, MD 20725.

Looking for a few energetic people to help run our office. Must have good phone skills. Full-Time when school ends. Great resume material. $7.50/HR. call 1 800 501 5043.

Truck drivers wanted for summer work. Approx. 11 days in mid June & additional 11 days in mid August. Work 1 or both sessions. Must drive standard and have experience with 18 or larger truck. $105-115/day. call 1 800 501 5043.

Windows Software Tester Graphic Software Co. Seeks part time quality assurance tester. Applicants must have experience using Software Windows 3.1 and Windows 95 on a variety of hardware configurations Macintosh 2D and 3D Graphic Experience preferred but not required. Send Cover letter and Resume to Personel Director Speculator International 7 Pomeroy Lane Amherst MA 01002. No phone calls or walk ins please.

Summer Painting Jobs. College Pro Painters up to $9/hr. In Amherst-Northampton. Make $$ in the sun!! Call Kerry 546-7423 or Charlie 549-3957.

Summer Internships 20hrs. paid per week 4 to 6 weeks. Minorities interested in broadcasting business encouraged to apply. Resumes by 4/30 to Rick Heideman. Todays 99.3 Box 768 Northampton MA 01061.

$40,000/yr income potential. Home typists/PC users. Toll free 1 800 898 9778 ext. 11732 for listings.

LEADERS NEEDED! Summer Teenage Bicycling Trips. US, Canada, Europe. Minimum 4 week time Commitment. Salary plus expenses paid. STUDENT HOSTILE PROGRAM Ashfield Rd. Conway, MA 01341 1 800 343 6172.

Event Staffers, an agency specializing in staffing promotions, is now recruiting. MARKETING REPRESENTATIVES for Collegiate Advantage, a Boston marketing firm. The available positions for January are in August, and for graduates the opportunities are for August, September, and possibly beyond. The benefits of this program include: learn valuable marketing, sales, promotions, and management skills. Gain excellent career experience and resume builder. Earn competetive salary. Expense paid travel. Be more competetive in the job market and get the experience employers want. Visit our information table on Monday, April 22nd on the Campus Center Concourse. Collegiate Advantage will also be at the Haagis Hoopla this weekend. Come see us promotions in action!! Or, for more information call Christina at 1 800 783 4237 ext 346.

START YOUR OWN CAREER in a fast growing business. Sales experience or training NOT necessary. Contact MATT at 413 827 4168 or e-mail matthewb@student.umass.edu

ALASKA EMPLOYMENT - Fisheries, Parks, Resorts hiring for summer! Earn $3,000-$6,000+/Mo! Airfare, Room/Board. No exp. required. Ask about our VIDEO! Call (919) 932 1489 ext. A170

LAST CHANCE LEGAL ASSISTANTS WANTED - April 19, 1996, is the last day to contact the legal services center about a fall 1996 internship! Get hands on experience in the legal field. WDs directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession required. training is provided. Contact legal services today 545-1995. 922 Campus Center.

National Parks Hiring - Positions are now available at National Parks Forests & Wildlife Preserves. Excellent benefits & bonuses! Call 1 206 971 3620 ext N50014

SMALL, COED, OVERNIGHT CAMP

Looking for outgoing male counselors who enjoy working with children ages 7-13 yrs. Incredible experience. Call Michelle at 546 6677 or Ken at 413 528 2729.

Summer Painters hiring for Boston and Hartford. Will train completely. Earn $8-$10/hr. Call N.E. Collegiate Painters at 800 569 9979.

Counselors: Cool overnight weight loss camp. Looking for outdoorsy, athletic individuals who enjoy working with children. Great experience. Call 413 732 8986.

Good home needed for six year old spayed Tamaner Bassett Hound. Please call Robin 323 6582.

PERSONALS

"Desperately seeking Sonoma... I saw you in Lot E last Friday around noon. How I loved your low step and graceful stride. Can I count on meeting you by the pond at the Lorenz Olympic Gold Medal Challenge on Thursday, April 25th?"

BCG R.A.T. You are the best!

ROOMMATE WANTED

Relocating to Conn? Two UMASS Alums looking for M/F to share luxury 3 bedroom, 2 bath Apt. in Enfield, 20 minutes to Hartford, 10 min to Springfield. $360 including heat, water and A/C. Health Club, pool + tennis. 860 741 6199.

Looking for 2 people to share a room in 3 bdr. townhouse. 1st lease starting June 1st. Also looking for someone to sublet single room for summer only. I have a cat and a dog. If interested call Becky 549 6398.

PUFFTON - 2 females seeking 2 females/males to share a room in our 3 bedroom renovated apt. Available June 1. 549 4814.

Looking for roomates to share three bedroom apartment in Townhouses. I have a dog and cat. Call Becky at 549 6398. Males or females okay.

SERVICES

Wordprocessing Service for theses, articles, papers. Written or recorded transcription. Fax transmission available. (413) 743 8080.

Pregnant? Need Help? Call Birthright of Amherst area for free testing and caring. Assistance 549 1906.

FOR SALE

Powermac 6/80/6 16/250 Ram Doubler installed sys 7.5.1 macos updater 4 K of graphic softwares 244 fonts, tons of control panels, extentions, games no key board or monitor 4xi cd rom $1,150 call Jimmy @ 6 0429.

Car stereo 75 inch Bazooka tubes $150 pair. 50 watt stream 6ch. Amplifier $250. Both $360 call Dave 549 8766.

Mountain Bike for sale Mongoose threshold Shimano parts. Trek system 7 with gel seat only 1 yr old $200 or B/O Megan 549 4198.

P100 32 megs RAM 17 inch digital monitor 28k modem 850m hard drive loaded with software $4000 BO Call Fred 549 8969.

Laptop Computers Cheap. Great WP at under 100. Call 6 0540.

486 DX66 Computer 540 MB Hard drive 8meg ram/fax modem 14" monitor $1,100 or B.O. Call 253 0362 Leave Message.

HOUSE FOR RENT

4 Bedrooms, oil and heat, on bus route. Shutesbury St. call 659 3832 after 5pm leave message.

MUSICIANS

Bassist Wanted to form band. Influences: Rage Nirvana, Alice etc. Call Rich 256 1751.

MISCELLANEOUS

Eastern Europe Jobs - Teach basic conversational English in Prague, Budapest or Krakow. No teaching certificate or European Languages required. Inexpensive room and board and other benefits. For info call 206 971 3680 ext K50011.

Tropical Resorts Hiring Students needed! Entry level career positions available worldwide. Call Passport Employment Services (206) 971 3600 ext P50011.

International Employment. Earn up to $75 $45/hour teaching basic conversational English in Japan, Taiwan, or S. Korea. No teaching background or Asian languages required. For info call (206) 971 3570 ext. J50014.

Attention All Students! Over $6 Billion in public and private sector grants & scholarships is now available. All students are eligible. Let us help. For more info call 1 800 263 6495 ext F50013.

FOR RENT

Need a place for fall? Secure it now and take over my lease June 1st. Puffton 1 Bedroom large! $520 Heat+Hot Water incl. 549 9180.

Spacious, Bright 3Bdr/2bath Mill Valley Apt June 1 lease, washer/dryer hookup. Patio call soon! 253 0388.

1 Bdrm Apt Available 6/1 to take over lease. Hot Water incl. On bus line call 253 1869.

2 Bedroom Apt. on Colonial Village. Pay $250 for one bedroom. Have the other one free (July 15-Aug 31). 256 6047.

1 Bedroom Apt. available June 1st. Great, clean and spacious. Call 549 5529. Close and convienient for 1 or 2.

3 Bedroom Apt on Puffton Village start ing June 1. Gas heat, AC, water incl. Option to lease. Call 549 8821 for more info.

SERVICES

LANDSCAPING

Spring cleanup shrub trimming, prun ing, planting, debris removal. Call 549 1997 for a free estimate.*

SUMMER SUBLET

2 Bedroom Apt. on Amity St. Heat, hot water included, sleeps four people $750/mo. call 549 8202.

Grad Students - Furnished 1 bedroom apartment sublet on bus route. Available June1, August 30. $795/month + 1/2 utilities call 253 0592.

1 Room 1 minute to campus. Air-conditioning, sunny, share with 1 person call 549 1744.

ONE FURNISHED room available in two bedroom apt. female non smoker. Rent negotiable 549 1235.

Condos Behind BayBank two minute walk to campus or uptown. $ 5 bath, skylights, dishwasher, wall to wall carpeting, nicest place in area. Price negotiable call Jason 549 4178.

One bedroom in three bedroom Mill Valley apartment. Partially furnished. Option to take over lease in fall. Kelly 253 1734.

2 Rooms available in 4 bedroom house in N. Amherst. $220/mo. including water. call 549 5995 anytime between 11 to 11.

Brandywine Apts. 2 Bedrooms, take over our lease with Fall option. Call 549 5747.

Boulders summer sublet two bedrooms furnished on bus line avail. June 1st call 253 7687.

2 bedroom Apt. Crestview. Before Hobart Lane. Only $675. Call 549 0868.

2 Bedroom Apt. at Brandywine. Available 6/1. Price negotiable. Call 549 8657.

One room Puffton apt. for Summer sublet. $298/Mo. Call Fred 549 8969.

2 Bdrm Brandywine Apt. Heat/hot water incl. Call 549 0530.

Bedroom to Presidential Apts. Walking distance. Call 549 4047.

Looking for 1-4 people to summer sublet our Mill Valley apartment. $715/Month. Call 253 7157.

TO SUBLET

Puffton Sublet 1 room in a 3 bdr apt for summer. $290/month, partially furnished call Bernie 549 8969.

TRAVEL

Come Join In The Adventure!! Come White Water Rafting with UMSC & UMDC! May 31 - June 2. Only $199! Call us 5 3437.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS

1 Unaccompanied
5 Troubadours
10 Coal starter?
14 Chicken —
15 Prevent
16 Healthy
17 Feudal fieldhand
18 Casa's owner
19 Amount of space
20 Gems from the deep
22 Go beyond the bounds
24 Kind of school
26 Slaughter
27 Like a box of chocolates
31 Gives light
35 Imaginary creature
36 Indian social class
38 Foolish fellow
39 Departed
40 Veranda
41 Heartland state
42 Silkworm
43 Conversation piece
44 Happening
45 Remember
47 Assembles
49 Fighter's weapon
51 Look at
52 Spent too much
56 Heart line
60 Lose pep
61 Fortune-teller's card
63 Notion
64 B and Bs
65 Obliterate
66 Humble
67 A way to pay
68 — rattling
69 Concludes

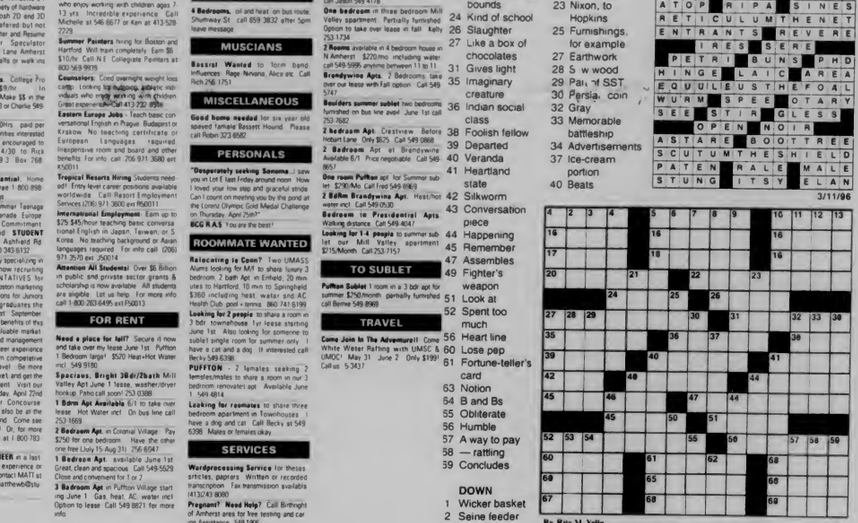
DOWN

1 Wicker basket
2 Seine feeder
3 "Stormy Weather" Horne
4 Win the battle
5 Hound
6 Street map abbr.
7 Gen. Jesse Lee
8 Took the wheel
9 Power
10 Gliding step
11 Lyricist Lorenz
12 Toward shelter
13 Harvest
21 Store of knowledge
23 Nixon, to Hopkins
25 Furnishings, for example
27 Earthwork
28 5 w wood
29 Pan. of SST
30 Persia, coin
32 Gray
33 Memorable battleship
34 Advertisements
37 Ice-cream portion
40 Beats
41 Extra working hours
43 Football penalty
44 Green beginning
46 Over again
48 Not so messy
50 Crowning glory
52 Of the ears
53 Indian stringed instrument
54 Seabirds
55 Lackluster
57 "I Dream of Jeannie" star
58 Marsh plant
59 Gases
62 Chemical suffix

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

R	A	M	S		B	L	O	C		U	S	A	G	E
A	T	O	P		R	I	P	A		S	I	N	E	S
R	E	T	I	C	U	L	U	M	T	H	E	N	E	T
E	N	T	R	A	N	T	S		R	E	V	E	R	E
		I	R	E	S		S	E	R	E
P	E	T	R	I		B	U	N	S		P	H	D
H	I	N	G	E		L	A	I	C		A	R	E	A
E	Q	U	I	L	I	E	U	S	T	H	E	F	O	A	L
W	U	R	M		S	P	E	E		M	O	T	A	R	Y
S	E	E		S	T	I	N		G	L	E	S	S	Y
		O	P	E	N		N	O	I	R
A	S	T	A	R	E		B	O	O	T	T	R	E	E
S	C	U	T	U	M	T	H	E	S	H	I	E	L	D
P	A	T	E	N		R	A	L	E		M	A	I	L
S	T	U	N	G		I	T	S	Y		E	L	A	N

3/11/96



By Rita M. Yelle
© 1996 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

3/11/96

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21 – April 19) — Be prepared to rapidly scale the ladder of success. Legal and educational matters figure prominently in your life. Remain open to new ideas. Cultivate your fine mind by doing more reading on important issues.

TAURUS (April 20 – May 20) — Joint financial affairs may need reorganization. Investment opportunities abound; the conservative route is the best way to go. Conditions affecting romance will soon improve.

GEMINI (May 21 – June 20) — Others let you know where you stand. Be decisive when making changes. Live up to your reputation as a fair-minded person. A deteriorating relationship is probably beyond saving.

CANCER (June 21 – July 22) — This is no time for self- doubt. Work at remedying your imperfections. Enrolling in high-tech courses will boost your earning power. If you know you will be in the spotlight, dress accordingly.

LEO (July 23 – Aug. 22) — Changes come fast and furiously, yet you may feel like things are standing still. Carefully evaluate your options before making far-reaching career or business decisions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 – Sept. 22) — Ignorance will only make a dilemma more difficult. Become informed; a visit to the library will get you started. Keep your emotions in check when discussing your concerns with partner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 – Oct. 22) — Be consistent and patient in word and deed. Others will be impressed by your thorough approach. Social activity and pleasure are indicated tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 – Nov. 21) — Tact and poise are essential when dealing with a spouse or business partner. Follow up on a financial tip — it could be right on the money.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 – Dec. 21) — Friends are counting on you. Help them if doing so will not jeopardize your financial reserves. Socializing should wait until your obligations at work have been satisfied.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 – Jan. 19) — A selfish person may try to start an argument. At the first sign of trouble, leave the scene. Take care of basic household responsibilities before turning to more pleasurable activities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 – Feb. 18) — Try not to worry about things over which you have no control. You need to complete pending assignments before taking on new ones. Showcase your special talents. Visit a favorite restaraunt with a new friend.

PISCES (Feb. 19 – March 20) — Your witty conversational style wins admiration. Try not to sound too critical of others. Overanalyzing your feelings could lead to gridlock. Take things nice and easy. Let a new relationship develop at its own pace.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

Kippil By Barry Deutsch

DO YOU HAVE A PLACE TO STAY?
I CAN CRASH WITH MY FRIEND SUZI.. $10/A.
WHAT'S WRONG WITH YOUR FRIEND SUZI?
OH... NOTHING. NOTHING.
SURE, SANDY, C'MON OVER! YOU CAN HELP ME DE-WORM THE KITTIES.

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

OUR CIRCULATION'S DOUBLED BECAUSE OF ROBIN THE GOOD!
CIRCULATION CHART
HE MAY BE A CROOK, BUT THE PUBLIC LOVES HIM!
SURE! HE ROBS THE RICH AND HELPS THE POOR!
IT ISN'T RIGHT TO GLAMORIZE HIM!
WHATEVER GETS US RATINGS CAN'T BE WRONG!!

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

I'VE NEVER RUN INTO A SITUATION LIKE THIS BEFORE!
ROBIN, GOOD IS A THIEF, BUT THE PUBLIC LOVES HIM BECAUSE HE GIVES MONEY TO THE POOR!
AND THAT SAVE PUBLIC HOUSE HATE ME IF I CAUGHT HIM!

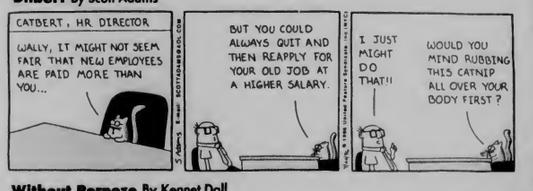
Jim's Journal By Jim

Today a customer brought back some chips.
I asked if they'd gone bad.
He said, "No, I just don't like the taste."
There was only about a third left in the bag.

Dilbert By Scott Adams

HAVE MY POEMS AND DANCES HEALED YOUR SOUL YET, ALICE? THE COMPANY CARES ABOUT YOUR TOTAL WELL BEING.
EXCUSE ME.
WE WANT MORE MONEY, NOT MORE DANCING DOGS!!! M-O-N-E-Y!!
SO YOU'RE SAYING THOSE PRIMAL SCREAMS ARE HEALTHY? CAN YOU TEACH ME TO DO IT?
HERE'S MY INVOICE - GO WILD.

Dilbert By Scott Adams



CATBERT, HR DIRECTOR
WALLY, IT MIGHT NOT SEEM FAIR THAT NEW EMPLOYEES ARE PAID MORE THAN YOU...
BUT YOU COULD ALWAYS QUIT AND THEN REAPPLY FOR YOUR OLD JOB AT A HIGHER SALARY.
I JUST MIGHT DO THAT!!
WOULD YOU MIND RUBBING THIS CATNIP ALL OVER YOUR BODY FIRST?

Without Purpose By Kennet Doll

WELL! I'M OFF TO FIND A MORE FULFILLING LIFE. I'M LEAVING YOU JACKS. TO DO SOMETHING MEANINGFUL. SEE YA, WAH LONG-EARED FREAK. BYE, JD.
HEY, WHERE'S JD GOING?
HE'S ENROLLED HIMSELF IN THE BARRYMORE SCHOOL OF BEAUTY. HE WANTS TO BE A MODEL - I JUST HOPE HE'S NOT EXPECTING TOO MUCH.
...AND AFTER SIX WEEKS OF GRUELING MODELING TRAINING, (THE KIND THAT MADE FABIO WHAT HE IS TODAY.) JD RETURNS...
THE NAME IS RATT... JD RATT.

Life In General By Meredith

Small Potatoes By Jon Art

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

When my friend Beeber was 10 yrs. old she claimed she could hear a radio station playing music in her head.

If she turned on the real radio she would hear the very same song. For years she would hear it.

Alot of people didn't believe her.

Then, when she was 15, a tv repairman told her that her teeth braces could act like a crystal radio and actually pick up radio signal waves.

I think it's amazing.

To this day,.....
.....even though her braces are off, she told us at lunch yesterday....she can hear Jimi Hendrix's "Purple Haze" when she sticks out her lower jaw.

Collegian Comics, so funny we forgot to laugh.

Close to Home By John McPherson

Although the wine lasted fine, Gary had always wanted to do this.

Close to Home By John McPherson

"Where the heck did you find this stuff?"

8 Years In Braces By Eric Petersen

Company Cheese By Kevin Tracy

Reason # 7859 not to let your parents visit:
Are these marigold seeds? I'll take them home and plant them in the garden.
OH OH.
MOM CHECKS THE SOCK DRAW, AND THOSE AREN'T MARIGOLD SEEDS.

Is Your Smoke Detector Working?

More Americans have smoke detectors than ever before. But nearly half don't work.

Without a working smoke detector as an early warning device, fire can spread unnoticed through the household, blocking escape routes and filling rooms with deadly smoke. Make sure you're protected. Start a lifesaving habit this October 29. When you change your clocks from daylight-saving time, change the batteries in your smoke detectors.

A message from your fire department.

CHANGE YOUR CLOCK
CHANGE YOUR BATTERY

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Matt Vautour
Copy Editor ..... Mike Burke
Photo Technician ..... Elizabeth Brown
Production Supervisor ..... Kathryn Gracia
Production ..... Matt Audette
Ray Keenan

Today's D.C. Menu

Sorry no menu today. Please call 545-2626.

Quote of the Day

"What lies before you and what lies behind you are tiny matters compared to what lies within you."

–Ralph Waldo Emerson

SportsWeekend

Collegian Sports • Monday, April 22, 1996

In tomorrow's Collegian:

- The women's tennis team hosted the Atlantic 10 Championships this weekend. See tomorrow's Collegian for the wrap-up.
- The softball team swept a pair of doubleheaders with Fordham and LaSalle over the weekend. See tomorrow's Collegian for the results.
- The men's and women's track teams each picked up wins this weekend. See tomorrow's Collegian for the results.
- Women's water polo defeated Queens College 15–5. See tomorrow's Collegian for the story.
- The women's crew defeated Northeastern and Columbia over the weekend. See tomorrow's Collegian for the scoop.

Men's lax upsets No. 6 Notre Dame

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

With its NCAA tournament hopes possibly hanging in the balance, the No. 15 Massachusetts lacrosse team stepped up and displayed a tremendous defensive effort en route to a 8–5 upset of No. 6 Notre Dame in South Bend, Ind. on Saturday.

Massachusetts	8
Notre Dame	5

Brilliant goaltending and defensive play defined both the Minutemen and the Irish. Sophomore John Kasselakis responded from a tough second half against Harvard to turn back 14 Notre Dame shots, while giving up a season low five goals. His counterpart Alex Cade was also tough between the pipes for the Irish, but the Minutemen were able to solve him when it counted.

Massachusetts assistant coach Chris Burdick, who works regularly with the UMass defense praised the entire unit.

"We're pleased with the performance of our defense and our goaltending," he said. "John Kasselakis was a big part in only giving up five goals and for us to play defense like that for three quarters is great."

The game was dictated by scoring streaks from both teams. The Minutemen struck first, led by Brendan Glass, who scored both of his goals to start the contest to give the Minutemen a 2–0 advantage.

That lead was extended to 4–0 as freshmen Jay Negus and junior Chris Grande each tallied first half goals as well, before the Irish cut the Minuteman lead to 4–1, when Brian Gilfilan beat UMass' Kasselakis to put the home team on the board, heading into halftime.

The Irish continued their streak in the second half, as Notre Dame got goals from Gilfilan, Tony Reid and freshman Chris Dusseau to tie the game at 4–4.

Against Harvard, the Minutemen got into trouble when their opponents cut into UMass' early lead but on Saturday the Minutemen showed plenty of poise.

With the game tied in the fourth quarter, UMass' offense responded for its second four-goal scoring run of the afternoon. Junior attackman Ken Sussi struck first breaking the tie with just over 12 minutes remaining in the game, giving the Minutemen a 5–4 lead they would never relinquish.

The senior duo of Eric Bailey and Buddy Hoffman struck next to nail Notre Dame's coffin shut at 7–4. UMass' Mike DelPercio and Notre Dame's Jim Keenan each traded goals in the final period as the Minutemen held on to win.

Junior Jay Robbins continued his faceoff mastery in the contest winning 13 of 17 faceoffs against the Irish.

The win could be huge in the minds of the NCAA tournament selection committee. UMass improves to 6–4 on the season. More importantly, the victory, coupled with the Minutemen's 13–9 win over then No. 10 Duke leaves UMass with a 2–1 record against top 10 opponents, with their only loss coming to the then No. 1 Virginia.

The Minutemen have two huge games left on their docket. Next Saturday looms large as a Carrier Dome contest pits the Minutemen against No. 7 Syracuse (1 p.m.). The season finale (May 4) will feature the Minutemen against No. 8 Brown in a game that could have huge ramifications in determining the New England Champion. If UMass can capture both of its remaining games, it will almost definitely get a tournament bid. A split of the two games would still leave the Minutemen in contention for a spot.

KABEEN AU / COLLEGIAN

The men's lacross team rebounded a tough home loss against Harvard by beating No. 6 Notre Dame 8–5.

Baseball wins, drops Bonnies

By Chris Stamm
Collegian Staff

After last week's blowout of Harvard in the first round of the Beanpot Tournament in Fenway Park, the Massachusetts baseball team took to the road for some Atlantic 10 action.

The Minutemen travelled to Olean, N.Y. to face St. Bonaventure for two double dips. UMass swept the first set winning 4–0 and 10–1.

Massachusetts	4
St. Bonaventure	0

Going into the weekend, the Bonnies and Minutemen were tied for second place on the heels of first place Temple. After splitting a pair of double headers with the Owls earlier in the season, UMass went to Olean with some added pressure on its shoulders.

Massachusetts	10
St. Bonaventure	1

Massachusetts dealt with the pressure well on Saturday shutting out the Bonnies in game one. Junior righthanders Chad Sullivan and Jason Bennett both threw complete game four hitters. Sullivan improves his record to 3–1 on the year pitching seven innings and allowing one earned run. Bennett was good for seven innings as well and did not allow an extra base hit while striking out two, improving his record to 4–1.

Massachusetts	11
St. Bonaventure	1

The first four innings of game one were scoreless, and it was St. Bonaventure who came out swinging first. The Bonnies tallied a run in both the fifth and six innings, but their offensive push stopped there, as the Minutemen came alive in the second and rallied for the win.

Massachusetts	13
St. Bonaventure	3

After a walk and two errors allowed for the first UMass run, sophomore second baseman Muchie Dagliere popped a two-run single with two outs to put the Minutemen on top 3–1. Junior centerfielder Nate Murphy was good for a double to score Dagliere and tally the final UMass run.

Massachusetts came out early in the second set, earning a run in both the first and second innings. While the Bonnies countered with a run of their own in the third, that would be their only run of the day.

The UMass offense erupted in the fifth. After senior Ryan Jette singled and junior shortstop Brad Gorrie earned a base on balls, Dagliere hit a double to drive home Jette and Gorrie putting the Minutemen up 4–1. Freshman designated hitter Doug Clark added a RBI single, while UMass benefitted from three St. Bonaventure errors to score four more runs and explode to an 8–1 lead. After earning a run in the sixth and seventh innings, the Minutemen rounded out their 10–1 run.

On Sunday, UMass rolled to two easy wins destroying the Bonnies 11–1 in the first game, and 13–3 in the third. The Minutemen are back in action on Tuesday when they return to Fenway Park for the Beanpot Tournament finals where they will face Northeastern.

UMass equestrian team wins regionals at Smith

JULIA WROBEL / COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts equestrian team continues its winning ways and seeks to earn a top spot in national competition next month.

For the Massachusetts equestrian team, this has been the year to win.

Last week the team competed in the Regionals held at Smith College. In regional competitions, members of each team compete as individuals. Only the schools that have competed all season within Region Three are eligible. Those schools are UMass, Smith, Mt. Holyoke, Becker, Worcester State, Springfield and Amherst College.

In order to continue on to the zones competition, and then on to nationals, the rider must receive a first, second, or third place in her riding category.

"The tests within each category were very difficult. The judge was really trying to pick the best riders," co-captain Karen Hancock said.

Out of the eight categories, six were won by UMass. The UMass equestrian team was named high point team for Region Three. For individual honors, the titles of high point rider in the open and flat rider in addition to the fences rider category were given to Elissa Allen. In addition to Allen's honors, the title of reserve high point rider was given to Heather Clark. With all these great achievements, the UMass Equestrian team could be gearing up for a top ranking in the national competition.

"The tests within each category were very difficult. The judge was really trying to pick the best riders."

— Karen Hancock

—Julia Wrobel

Hawks beat UMass

By Luke Meredith
Collegian Correspondent

For the Massachusetts women's lacrosse team, things are starting to get ugly.

Despite a hat trick from Stephanie Walsh and 20 saves from Trish DiBenedetto, the Minutewomen fell to St. Joseph's 11–8 on Saturday afternoon. UMass has now dropped three straight on its current four game road swing, and fall to 2–6 on the year.

St. Joseph's	11
Massachusetts	8

The Minutewomen jumped out to an early 2–1 lead behind goals from sophomore attack Kim Weaver and Laura Koruz. St. Joe's awoke midway through the second half and went on a scoring tear, netting five goals and taking a 6–4 lead into the locker room.

The two squads traded scores in the second half but the Minutewomen never could quite get the scoring run they needed, and the Hawks pulled away late to take the win. For UMass, this was its fourth road loss in five tries away from the friendly confines of Totman Field.

The young Minutewomen have had to learn on the job, so to speak, but leadership from the upperclassmen has been solid, highlighted by the play of junior attacker Stephanie Walsh.

Throughout her UMass career Walsh has been a scoring machine, playing in every game the past three seasons and scoring 72 goals in the process. Walsh has already vaulted herself into third place on the UMass all-time goals scored list, and her 40 goals in 1994 ranks as the fourth best goals scoring season ever for the Minutewomen. This year her 14 goals are a team high.

As far as the underclassmen are concerned, Koruz and Jen Bowen have been sensational all spring. Koruz, the freshman from Media, Pa., has been a welcome addition to the squad. Her 16 points leads the team, and she has been the most generous Minutewoman with six assists. Bowen has added 10 goals of her own and now has 17 goals in her young career.

The Minutewomen's current road

Turn to LAX, page 9

SHANE KEENAN / COLLEGIAN

The women's lacrosse fell to St. Joseph's 11–8 on Saturday afternoon.

Patriots' Glenn excited to catch on with N.E.

FOXBORO (AP) — When first-round draft choice Terry Glenn was introduced to reporters Sunday, New England Patriots owner Robert Kraft didn't have to give him a team jersey to put on. He brought his own.

"I got the jersey from my hometown mall," said Glenn, sporting a white Patriots shirt with quarterback Drew Bledsoe's No. 11 on it. "I went to the mall right after I got drafted to see some of my friends, I went in there and they just gave me a jersey because I didn't have one."

Glenn, the record-setting wide receiver from Ohio State, was chosen by the Patriots with the seventh pick overall in the draft Saturday. The hope is that he will team with Vincent Brisby and free-agent acquisition Shawn Jefferson to give Bledsoe the kind of receiving targets he needs to take the Patriots' struggling passing offense to the next level of success.

"I think that Terry joining us gives us an opportunity to complete the package and give us the most exciting offense in the NFL," Kraft said.

The speedy, acrobatic Glenn averaged 22 yards a catch for the Buckeyes in 1995, finally assuming the role of primary receiver with the departures of Joey Galloway and Chris Sanders. He caught 64 passes for 1,411 yards and a school-record 17 touchdowns, and his big-play capability is what the Patriots coveted most. "I'm not worried about the competition right now," Glenn said. "I think the competition is going to come within myself. When I come here, if I prepare hard and practice hard, then everything should work out all right."

Also on Saturday, the Patriots took safety Lawyer Milloy from Washington in the second round and linebacker Tedy Bruschi from Arizona in the third.

On Sunday, the Patriots continued to address their needs with multiple choices in several rounds that had been acquired through trades.

"We came in here with 62 players on our roster, and with these 13 draft picks, we obviously won't have to be

Turn to PATRIOTS, page 9

The Massachusetts

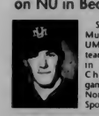
DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CV Issue 119 • New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 • Tuesday, April 23, 1996

Totally missing the net

Daniel Stern stars as the obsessive and die-hard Celtic fan in the basketball disaster Celtic Pride. Check out our review (see Arts & Living, Page 5).

UMass, Murphy take on NU in Beanpot



Senior Nate Murphy and the UMass baseball team will take part in the Beanpot Championship game today against Northeastern (see Sports, page 10).

WORLD

Israel Blasts Palestinian Base

By Greg Myre
Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Israeli warplanes turned to a new target in Lebanon yesterday, attacking the base of a second Palestinian group in hills outside Beirut after 11 days of focusing on Hezbollah guerrillas.

U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher, meanwhile, pressed ahead with efforts to broker a cease-fire, meeting again with Syrian President Hafez Assad to present a peace proposal.

But, as Lebanon's Muslims memorialized victims of last week's Israeli bombing raid on a U.N. base in south Lebanon that killed scores of refugees, peace remained elusive.

NATION

Opposition Forms to Bell-Nynex Deal

By Evan Ramstad
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Executives of Bell Atlantic and Nynex said yesterday that their $23 billion merger will benefit both customers and employees by creating more jobs than layoffs and providing better, simpler service.

But opponents fear the industry is undoing the 1984 breakup of the old Bell System, which was meant to encourage competition. Some consumer advocacy groups objected on the grounds that the deal violated the spirit of the telecommunications deregulation law passed two months ago.

"The public was told the new law would lead to new entrants in every market and instead we are seeing the same old monopolies banding together to prevent competition from developing," said Bradley Stillman, telecommunications policy director at the Consumer Federation of America.

New York State Attorney General Dennis Vacco said yesterday his office already had begun to review the deal.

"I find it somewhat ironic that several years ago there was a breakup of AT&T, Ma Bell as it was called, and now the Baby Bells are coming back together," Vacco said. "We have to take a very careful and close look at it to make sure it's not going to diminish competitiveness, especially for telephone rates." The new Bell Atlantic, serving 13 states and the District of Columbia, will have revenue of $27.8 billion, 37 million lines and 133,000 employees.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Wed	Thurs
HIGH: 60 LOW: 45	HIGH: 60 LOW: 45	HIGH: 60 LOW: 35

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 8
Comics.....page 9
Crossword .....page 8
Editorial.....page 4
FYI.....page 2
News .....page 3
Sports .....page 10

Campus Watch event raises earth awareness

RYAN PIZZI / COLLEGIAN

Freshmen School of Management major, Kate Roberts and Simeon Bittman, undeclared, take time to sign a petition in order to increase the spending of tax dollars for environmental protection.

By Lynn Budde
Collegian Correspondent

MASSPIRG and the warm spring weather brought students out from their residence halls, houses and apartments to take part in a "Free the Planet" inter-active display by the campus pond yesterday.

The University of Massachusetts was one of many universities across the nation that took part in the environmental awareness day dubbed, "Campus Watch 2000." There were several visual displays, including a replica of a chopped-down rain forest tree and giant pink pig, representing polluter pork, the term used to describe the corporations that use $39 billion of tax money to support polluting industries.

"The event was a nationwide effort to show college students what the world will be like by the year 2000 if current environmental laws continue to be repealed," said Jay Rasku, UMass graduate and MASSPIRG organizer.

The event, although sponsored by MASSPIRG, also included displays created by the Animal Rights Coalition and the Environmental Science Club.

The Animal Rights Coalition created an endangered species graveyard, a grave site of several endangered animals that are on the road to extinction including the Florida panther, the manatee and the cheetah.

"As of now, one species per day is becoming extinct," said Amy Bartlett, "Free the Planet" co-ordinator and official advisor for the annual Earth Day celebration which took place Saturday on Amherst Commons. "If legislation continues to repeal environmental and animal rights laws, 100 species of animals will be killed off per day by the year 2000."

The Environmental Science Club exhibited a "globe" of recyclable trash that was collected around campus. The mesh bag consisted of soda cans, cardboard, plastic detergent containers and other recyclable materials that students often toss in the garbage.

Sharon Wagner, a freshman MASSPIRG volunteer, was shocked at the material found in dorm trash rooms.

"It's so easy to recycle," she said. "I don't understand why people can't just do it."

"Earth Day was a celebration of the earth," Bartlett said. "Campus Watch 2000 is more of a student awareness day. We just want to get our message heard, and hopefully students will react."

Students and passer-bys were able to sign a pre-written form letter in the shape of a large pink pig, addressed to House Budget Committee Chairman John Kasich, declaring their outrage that "hard-earned tax dollars are being spent on corporate welfare for polluting industries." If federal spending needed to be cut, programs such as mining on public lands and nuclear power research and development should be the targeted ones because these issues "waste tax dollars and destroy our environment and public health," according to a pink pamphlet distributed to students.

Although the wind forced several displays back into the safe harbor of the MASSPIRG office, passing students did inquire about the giant pink papier-mache pig and the disturbing environmental statistics.

"It is sad that people don't already realize the damage that we have done to the Earth. One of these days, it's just going to fall apart," said Katie Prenda, a sophomore communications major.

"The event is really for campus education. We want to get the campus and town involved and hopefully our town and state representatives will become more aware of the damage we're causing," said Brandon Tutt, a sophomore anthropology major. "Hopefully, if we do that, we won't have to kiss our planet good-bye."

State house passes sex offender bill

By Katharine Webster
Associated Press

BOSTON — Just after Republican leaders held a news conference urging legislative action, the House yesterday passed a bill requiring anyone convicted or jailed for a sex crime in the past 15 years to register.

The measure, approved 145-0, also allows citizens to find out whether someone they know has been convicted of a sex crime. Also yesterday, the Senate Ways and Means Committee promised to send a different version of the bill to the state's highest court to see whether it passes constitutional muster.

Gov. William F. Weld, who has filed a sex offender registry bill three years in a row, said Massachusetts is one of only two states in the country that still does not have a central registry. The other is Vermont.

"We do not want Massachusetts to become known as a haven for sex offenders," he said at a news conference. "Statistics have shown over time that people who commit sex crimes are likely to offend again and again."

Debbie Savoia said she got an anonymous letter last year telling her a convicted child molester was moving to her North Andover neighborhood.

When she contacted the police department to find out what she could do to alert other parents and children, the answer was "Nothing." Police were not allowed to tell her where the child molester lived and worked, what he looked like, or his probation status, she said.

"My children and I had no rights. The convicted sex offender had all the rights," she said. "We need to have a registry to protect our children from monsters who prey upon their innocence." One reason for the delay, however, has been concern about the legality of measures allowing police to notify the community when a sex offender moves into town.

Such public notification measures are based on "Megan's Law," named after Megan Kanka, a 7-year-old New Jersey girl who allegedly was raped and murdered by a twice-convicted sex offender living in her neighborhood.

Her mother, Maureen Kanka, has become a tireless advocate for sex offender registries and community notification. She visited Massachusetts in October to promote Weld's bill.

But sex offenders have challenged the community notification provision in New Jersey and several other states, saying it punishes them twice.

The New Jersey Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of notifying neighbors last July, but also said judges — not police — should decide in each case whether an offender's presence should be made public. That decision is being appealed.

The measure passed by the Massachusetts House yesterday establishes a central registry and requires sex offenders to register with their local police department. It also allows citizens some access to information.

Sex offenders who fail to register could be punished by up to 2 1/2 years in prison and a $1,000 fine. Advocates say there are about 1,700 sex offenders currently behind bars and another 7,000 living in Massachusetts communities who would be affected by the measure. The House measure does not allow police to take the initiative in informing the public about sex offenders, however. And in an effort to prevent vigilante violence, it includes provisions to punish anyone who uses the information "to commit any crime against any sex offender or to engage in illegal discrimination or harassment of an offender."

Rep. Paul Haley, co-chairman of the Criminal Justice Committee, said the House version of the bill would avoid constitutional challenges. It also would fulfill a federal requirement that states establish sex offender registries or risk losing some crime-fighting money.

"We will revisit the notification issue," promised Haley, D-Weymouth.

The Senate version, which will be reviewed by the Supreme Judicial Court, would establish a Board of Examiners of Sex Offenders to classify offenders based on the likelihood they would repeat their crimes.

That bill would allow police to notify organizations such as schools and church groups if an offender was considered moderately likely to repeat his crimes. It also would allow police to notify individual neighbors if someone was considered a high risk for re-offending.

Students ready fuel efficient car for national mileage competition

By Melanie B. Arruda
Collegian Staff

Seven University mechanical engineering students are wrapping up their one year project of building a fuel efficient car for the Super Mileage Vehicle Competition.

"We are trying to design a car with optimized fuel economy," explained Brian Reilly, a junior mechanical engineering student.

The competition requires the group to do five to eight laps around a track for a total of 12.6 miles, according to Reilly. They will then measure the amount of fuel used, he said. The 12–foot–long and three–foot–wide car will be displayed at the Campus Center Concourse from Monday through Thursday, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. A raffle will be held to help cover expenses, Reilly said.

The car weighs about 250 pounds with the required 130 pound driver, said senior mechanical engineering student, Greg Mitchell. The car goes around 40 miles per hour, according to Reilly.

The group of students is divided into three teams: consisting of the shell team, frame team and the engine team. Mitchell said. The shell team was responsible for working in a wind tunnel, while the frame team did a computer analysis of the vehicle, he said.

Turn to STUDENTS page 3

LIZ BROWN / COLLEGIAN

Senior Engineering majors Todd Haugsjaa, Greg Mitchell and Brian Reily, display their car which will race June 1 in Michigan.

Rallies tackle domestic violence

By Jamie Sinsheimer
Collegian Correspondent

Last Thursday evening, a crowd of approximately 300 people gathered for the "Take Back Our Rights" rally and march.

In support of ending violence against women, the annual event included speakers, a candlelight march into the Amherst Commons and a coffeehouse at Amherst College.

The first rally began at 6:30 p.m. on the steps of the Student Union on the University of Massachusetts' campus and ended with a march through the campus and Amherst. The march arrived at the Commons where the second rally began at 8:30 p.m.. There, participants stood in silence while viewing a film which flashed images of domestic violence.

Holly Murray and Rebecca Graves, collaborating artists who use art as a medium for education, showed their film entitled On The Home Front, which portrayed women's direct experience with domestic violence.

"I have scars all over my body, but the most permanent scar is on my soul," "You knew it was hurting me but you would not stop," "You promised me you would never do it again," were among the phrases used by characters in the film. The only light illuminating the crowd came from the movie screen and the hundreds of candles.

The next speaker was Elizabeth Burke, a senior english and women's studies major at UMass. A published poet, and victim of domestic violence herself, Burke read the audience several of her poems.

Burke addressed such issues as social identities of women, rape, abuse and domestic violence.

KATINA PAPSON / COLLEGIAN

Marchers on the Amherst Common listen to various speakers at the "Take Back Our Rights" rally last Thursday evening.

Among the poems read was "The Fault," about rape and her own experience with her ex-boyfriend. Other poems read by Burke included "Safety In The Pioneer Valley Transit Authority," "Bitch Like You," "Paying The Toll Between Us and Them," "Why I Stayed" and "Architectural Design." The crowd responded to Burke's poetry with great support and enthusiasm.

"I was glad to have had the opportunity to read to such a welcoming audience," Hyde said.

"Unless all women are free — no women are free," said Jennifer Ire', a doctoral candidate student from Trinidad and a teacher in the Women's Studies Department at UMass.

Her speech was about the

Turn to RALLIES, page 3

For Your Information

PYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an PYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to The Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Tuesday, April 23

Dance — Students from the Choreography II class will perform an outdoor improvisation from 9:45 to 11:15 a.m. at the William Smith Clark Memorial above the Central Residence area. Live music will be featured.

Film — A public television video titled "So You Want To Buy a President" will be shown at 7:30 p.m. in the Hawley Room at the First Congregational Church in Amherst. The showing is related to plans to pass an advisory question in several representative districts in the fall election. The public is invited.

Forum — The Amherst Chamber of Commerce, the Department of Hotel, Restaurant, Travel Administration and the Amherst Planning Department will hold a free town forum on tourism and development in Amherst from 7–9 p.m. in the Amherst Junior High School Cafeteria on Chestnut Street.

Lecture — A lecture/seminar titled "Yoga and the Expansion of the Mind: The Emergence of Spiritual Culture" will be held at 8 p.m. in the first floor lounge of Butterfield. For more information call 549-5355.

Meeting — The LBGA will hold its weekly infosocial from 7 to 9 p.m. in Campus Center Room 803. There will be refreshments and games. For more information call the LBGA office at 545-0154 or call Ashavan at 546-7133.

Organ donors — Sign an organ and tissue donor card and/or pick up information about donating at the National Organ and Tissue Donor table in the Campus Center Concourse from 9:30 a.m. – 2 p.m. Sponsored by the Student Health Advisory Board.

Wednesday, April 24

Ceremony — The Faculty Club will host the Phi Alpha Theta History Society Induction from 5:15 to 7 p.m. Afro- American Studies Professor John Bracey will be speaking. If interested in attending, call Jason at 546-0415.

Film — The UMass Film Society will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Foreign Language Resource Center in Herter Hall. For more information call Mike Bowes at 584-3717.

Forum — The next forum in the Human Relations series, titled "Balancing Work and Family," will be held from noon to 1:30 p.m. in Campus Center Room 804–08.

Lecture — Richard M. Lerner, Ph.D., director of Institute for Children, Youth and Families, Michigan State University will present a lecture on "America's Youth in Crisis: Challenges and Options for Programs and Policies" at 3:30 p.m. in SBA 120.

Lecture — Sonia Escobeto Escalante will present a lecture titled "We Must Wake Up," an analysis of current times in Guatemala, from 12:15 to 1:15 p.m. in the sixth floor lounge of Thompson Hall. She will also speak at 7:30 p.m. at the North Congregational Church in North Amherst.

Meditation — An introductory yoga class will be held at 8 p.m. in the first floor lounge of Butterfield. The class is the first in a weekly series sponsored by the Ananda Marga Yoga Club.

Meeting — The UMass Poetry Society will be holding its weekly meeting at 7 p.m. in Baker Room 325. People can bring their own poetry, that of other poets or just listen. New members are welcome. For more information call Tim at 546–2792.

Sale — The UMass Ski Club will be sponsoring a new and used bike sale on the library lawn today and tomorrow. For more information call Arik at 545–3437.

Campus Police Log

Accident
April 17
There was a two vehicle accident in Parking Lot 26. Paperwork was exchanged.
April 18
On Massachusetts Avenue, two vehicles were involved in a minor accident.
A vehicle was struck on North Pleasant Street by another vehicle, it then damaged a parking sign and then the offending vehicle left the area.

Alarm
April 18
A sprinkler head was accidently activated on the 10th floor of John Q. Adams Residence Hall.

Animal complaint
April 19
There was a report of an injured duck near North Pleasant Street. University police responded and found that the duck was fine.

Annoying behavior
April 16
There was a report of a passing vehicle in which an individual threw an object at another vehicle on North Pleasant Street.
An individual in Butterfield Residence Hall reported harassing residents.
April 17
There was a report of yelling between residence halls in the Southwest Mall.
April 18
An individual reported an individual looking into her Cance Residence Hall room from a second floor window ledge.

Assist other pds
April 16
Amherst police verified a warrant on an individual in Patterson Residence Hall.

Burglary / breaking & entering
April 18
An individual reported his vehicle broken into in Parking Lot 33. His toolbox was stolen.

Health / safety hazard
April 17
Smoke in the basement of Bartlett Hall was determined to be a rag burning. It was handled by Environment, Health and Safety personnel.
There was a gas pump leaking near Governors Drive. The Physical Plant was notified.

Larceny
April 16
There was a report of food items stolen over the weekend from Stockbridge Hall.
A telephone was stolen from an office in Whitmore Administration Building.
Two individuals reported their wallets stolen from DuBois Library.
April 17
There was a report of a computer CPU stolen from the Campus Center.
There was a report of an item of clothing stolen from Baker Residence Hall. The individual returned the property to the rightful owner.
A previously stolen purse was located in the School of Management Building with items missing.
April 19
Curry Hicks Cage Staff reported a back pack vacuum cleaner stolen.

Noise complaint
April 16
A group was making noise in the Baker Residence Hall courtyard.
April 17
A noisy group was singing outside of Wheeler Residence Hall.

Robbery
April 17
A pizza delivery person was confronted in the lobby of Coolidge Residence Hall by three individuals. The individuals robbed him of a delivery bag containing pizzas.

Suspicious person / activity
April 17
There was a report of fireworks coming from Kennedy Residence Hall and Coolidge Residence Hall.
Peter A. Duffy, 25, of 1 Glenwood Ave., Northampton, was arrested for speeding, failure to stop for police and a stop sign.
April 19
Damien Y. Brooks, 22 of 22 Canal St., Lee, was arrested for disorderly conduct.
Police investigation resulted in the confiscation of two nitrous oxide tanks in Van Meter Residence Hall.

Vandalism
April 16
A sink which had been ripped from the wall caused flooding on the floor of Washington Residence Hall.
April 17
There was damage to a vending machine in the lobby of Brown Residence Hall.
Three vehicles in Parking Lot 11 had smashed windows.
April 18
There was a report of individuals causing damage to a vending machine in Gorman Residence Hall.
Graffiti in a wall of the 17th floor of Washington Residence Hall.
April 19
An individual in Prince Residence Hall reported a rock thrown through his window.
The lobby window of Coolidge Residence Hall was smashed.
A fire extinguisher was thrown form the fourth floor lounge of Thoreau Residence Hall.

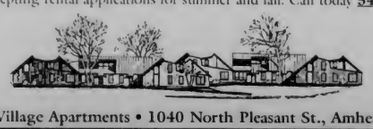
Warrant service
April 17
There was an attempt to serve a person in Patterson Residence Hall.
Austin W. Matthews, 22, of 91 Bacon St., Winchester, was arrested for a warrant on assault and battery.

Puffton Village – Your First Choice
1, 2 and 3 bedroom apartments.

Featuring:
Newly renovated units that include: or Traditional units that are:
• New appliances
• New Carpeting
• New kitchen cabinets & counter tops
• Central air conditioners
Rents starting at $590 per month
• Fully applianced
• Freshly painted
• Carpeted/Tiled Floors
• Central Air conditioned
Rents starting at $525 per month

All rents include Heat, Hot Water & Cooking Gas and use of an olympic size pool, 5 tennis courts, basketball court, laundry rooms and on-site parking.

Now accepting rental applications for summer and fall. Call today 549-0145

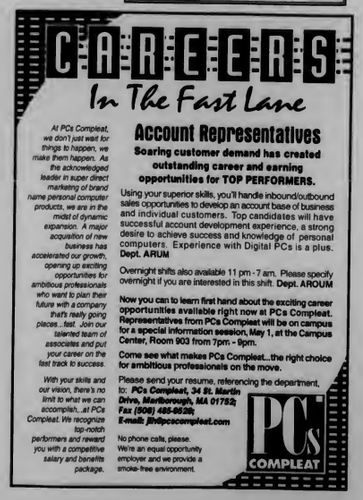


Puffton Village Apartments • 1040 North Pleasant St., Amherst, Mass

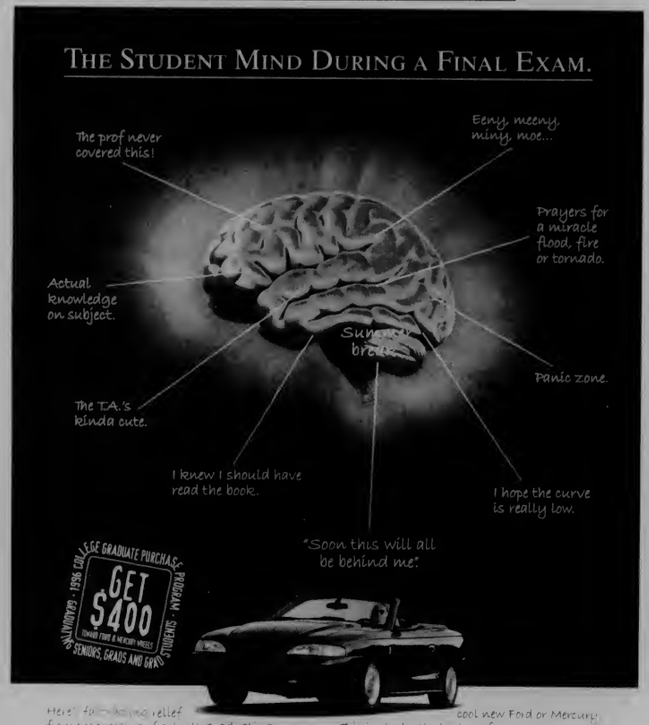
"EVERY DAY, A NEW COLLEGIAN TO READ. LIFE JUST CAN'T GET BETTER THAN THIS DAVE."
"IT SURE CAN'T MARC, IT'S EXCITEMENT IN ITS PUREST FORM."

STUDENT TRAVEL
The world's largest student travel organization.
800-777-0112
STA TRAVEL

Lincoln Real Estate
has the best selection of 1, 2, & 3 bedroom Apartments In The Center Of Town with gas heat
Gilreath Manor Condos
on Hobart Lane
• 3 Bedroom
• 1 1/2 Baths
• Heated Basement
• New Gas Heat & Hot water
• 1/2 mile to campus
• On Bus Route
Showings Start in April
for June or September Occupancy!
Lincoln Real Estate • 25 N. Pleasant St. • 253-7879



CAREERS
In The Fast Lane
At PCs Compleat, we don't just wait for things to happen, we make them happen. As the acknowledged leader in super direct marketing of brand name personal computer products, we are in the midst of dynamic expansion. A major acquisition of new business has accelerated our growth, opening up exciting opportunities for ambitious professionals who want to plan their future with a company that's really going places...fast. Join our talented team of associates and put your career on the fast track to success.
With your skills and our vision, there's no limit to what we can accomplish...at PCs Compleat. We recognize top-notch performers and reward you with a competitive salary and benefits package.
Account Representatives
Soaring customer demand has created outstanding career and earning opportunities for TOP PERFORMERS.
Using your superior skills, you'll handle inbound/outbound sales opportunities to develop an account base of business and individual customers. Top candidates will have successful account development experience, a strong desire to achieve success and knowledge of personal computers. Experience with Digital PCs is a plus. Dept. ARUM
Overnight shifts also available 11 pm - 7 am. Please specify overnight if you are interested in this shift. Dept. AROUM
Now you can to learn first hand about the exciting career opportunities available right now at PCs Compleat. Representatives from PCs Compleat will be on campus for a special information session, May 1, at the Campus Center, Room 903 from 7pm - 9pm.
Come see what makes PCs Compleat...the right choice for ambitious professionals on the move.
Please send your resume, referencing the department, to: PCs Compleat, 34 St. Martin Drive, Marlborough, MA 01752; Fax (508) 485-8528; E-mail: jlh@pccompleat.com
No phone calls, please.
We're an equal opportunity employer and we provide a smoke-free environment.
PCs COMPLEAT



THE STUDENT MIND DURING A FINAL EXAM.
The prof never covered this!
Eeny, meeny, miny, moe...
Prayers for a miracle flood, fire or tornado.
Actual knowledge on subject.
Summer break
Panic zone.
The T.A.'s kinda cute.
I knew I should have read the book.
I hope the curve is really low.
"Soon this will all be behind me."
SEE GRADUATE PURCHASE PROGRAM
GET $400
TOWARD FORD & MERCURY VEHICLES
SENIORS, GRADS AND GRAD STUDENTS
GRADUATING 1996 COLLEGE

Here's fast-acting relief from the pressure of school! Graduating seniors and grad students can get $400 cash back* on the purchase or lease of any cool new Ford or Mercury. This includes the high-performance Mustang. Call 1-800-321-1536 or visit our Web site at http://www.ford.com for the full story.

Ford BECAUSE YOUR BRAIN DOESN'T HAVE WHEELS.

Drive needs quarters to assist food bank

Last semester, a thought crossed the mind of freshman Steven Ginsburg — that if every student and faculty member at the University of Massachusetts gave one quarter, the pocket change would accumulate to over $8,000 for the Western Massachusetts Food Bank. Ginsburg is attempting to turn that thought into action.

A group of UMass students are running the quarter drive on a volunteer basis. Donors receive a bookmark with details on what the money will be used for.

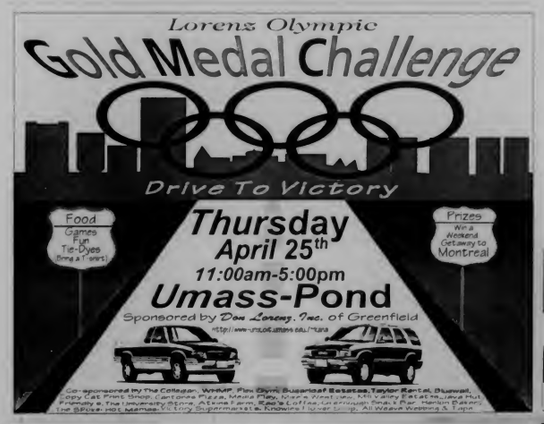
The major Quarter Drive blitz will happen this evening in the dining halls, during dinner. At every dining hall entrance, a Quarter Drive table will be manned with volunteers. They will also have donation buckets and information about the Food Bank of Western Massachusetts.

According to a Quarter Drive pamphlet, the "Food Bank has been behind the scenes of local soup kitchens, food pantries, homeless shelters and other programs throughout the four counties of our region. In 1995, The Food Bank distributed over 3 million pounds of food to 330 local charities, reaching more than 100,000 people in need, half of whom are children."

"I feel that we are not just students at UMass, I know that we have an incredible impact on this area," Ginsburg said. "I feel that we as students should assume a role in responsibility."

— Aaron Brandes

DAILY COLLEGIAN
The New England Newspaper Association's Daily College Newspaper of the Year, 1994
Free Every Day



■ student

continued from page 1

The entire vehicle was built from scratch by the engine team, except for the lawn mower engine they were required to use, according to Mitchell.

The vehicle consists of an aluminum frame, a carbon fiber shell, seven speed engine, electronic ignition engine, three bicycle wheels and other bicycle parts for shifting and breaking, Mitchell said. The welding and machining was provided by the engineering machine shop.

Although the car has an electronic ignition, it is started with a pull-starter, Mitchell said.

"We bought all the parts to build the wheels ourselves," he said, except the carbon fiber shell which was donated. "The students have put in probably $800 of their own money," Reilly said.

"The mechanical engineering department will match whatever money we raise," Mitchell said. "It provides students with hands-on experience."

"This project also counts towards engineering electives," Reilly said. "Grading for the project is based on our placement in the competition."

Ian Grosse, a mechanical engineering professor, is the supervisor for the project. "He makes sure we keep it together," Mitchell said.

The competition is also sponsored by the national Society of Automotive Engineers. "They sponsor this competition to get students interested in automotive engineering," Reilly said.

The idea really began with "one senior last year, John Baron, who really got the whole thing initiated here at the University," according to Reilly.

Last year's winning team had a fuel economy of 1,080 miles per gallon, according to Reilly. The University's team came in 10th place in last year's competition, he said.

The University's team is thinking about naming the car Mass Consumption, according to Mitchell.

"This seems to be coming together alright for us," Reilly said.

The frame team consists of senior Greg Mitchell and junior Brian Reilly. Senior Ken Tardif, junior Derek Bobowick and senior Wilson Wong make up the engine team. The shell team consists of junior Todd Haugsjaa and sophomore Steve Alles.

To raise money to cover the expenses of their project, the students are holding a raffle on the Campus Center Concourse from Monday thru Thursday. The drawing for the raffle will be held on May 17. Prizes range from $200 to $25, according to Reilly. Raffle tickets cost $2 each and $5 for three.

The competition will be held in Michigan on May 31 and June 1.

■ rallies

continued from page 1

European witch hunts and their effect on modern society. She also spoke of women of color and poor women, discussing how they do not have the power to "infiltrate through the system."

Ire' advised every woman in the crowd to read Fearless Wives and Frightened Shrews: The Construction of the Witch in Modern Germany, a book by Sigrid Brauner.

Shellie Taggart, a coordinator of volunteers and a legal advocate for Necessities/Necesidades in Northampton, spoke on the American legal system and how it fails women. She also gave statistics on women who had been victims of domestic violence and how the system neglects to address this problem from a legal perspective.

The final speaker was Elaine Hyde, a survivor of domestic violence and now the Director of UMass Boston's Women's Center. She talked of her struggles as a victim of domestic violence.

Hyde's speech began with some background on her life and her first marriage, which ended in divorce. "If it wasn't for my first husband, I would probably hate men," she said.

Hyde's second marriage resulted in a extremely abusive relationship. She told the crowd of her husband throwing her out of a car and dragging her by her hair, then demanding that she get back into the car.

Hyde also informed the crowd of an incident in which she found a body-bag in her closet which she implied as meant for her.

The level of violence escalated to such a extent that, after a prolonged fight, Hyde stabbed her husband and mortally wounding him. She was arrested on charges of murder and convicted.

According to Hyde, the judge did not take into account the long history of abuse in the relationship. Because of this, she successfully appealed the decision and was granted a retrial.

The outcome of the second trial resulted in Hyde being released from prison. She said that she is a prime example of a "survivor".

The evening ended with a coffee house and speak-out at Valentine Hall at Amherst College. Four area musicians played at the coffeehouse: Linee Perroncel, Nice Shoes, Blue Stockings and Jane Litwin.

BUCCI
HAIRCUTS $10.

1 in 4 college women has been the victim of rape or attempted rape since the age of 14.

WE URGE ALL PEOPLE TO SPEAK OUT AGAINST SEXUAL VIOLENCE IN ALL FORMS. THIS MEANS BOTH MEN AND WOMEN. IT IS EVERYONE'S RESPONSIBILITY!

1 in 12 male students surveyed had committed acts that met the definitions of rape or attempted rape.

This Message Sponsored By:

EVERYWOMAN'S CENTER
RAPE CRISIS HOTLINE
545-0800

OFFICE OF EQUAL OPPORTUNITY & DIVERSITY
545-3464

OMBUDS OFFICE
545-0867

DEAN OF STUDENTS
545-2684

STONEWALL CENTER
545-4824

• PEOPLE'S MARKET
• EVERYWOMEN'S CENTER
• POWER
• LESBIAN, GAY, BISEXUAL ALLIANCE
• STONEWALL CENTER
• CENTER FOR STUDENT BUSINESSES
• WILD INTREPID MEN PROTESTING AGAINST SEXISM
• MEN STOPPING RAPE
• MEN'S RESOURCE CENTER

Statistics Cited: Warshaw, Robin. (1988). I Never Called it Rape. NY: Harper & Row.

THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN
NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

HELP WANTED:
For the Fall 1996 semester in the Collegian Graphics Dept. We are currently accepting applications for Computer Graphic Artists for both
Day Graphics (Advertising/Editorial & www. and Night Graphics (Editorial & Prepress)

Collegian Graphics Since 1890

Applicants should have a good working knowledge of the Macintosh/IBM operating systems, good design and layout skills utilizing the following software: Microsoft Word, QuarkXPress, Adobe Illustrator & Adobe Photoshop.

Stop by the Graphics Dept. and fill out and Application. We are located at: 113 Campus Center, (the basement) Amherst, MA 01003

DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1962
113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Marni E. Helfner Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gurley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Lisa Chiu Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor Sean Cahoon Staff Artist
Gregory Cassimi Co-Black Affairs Editor Anna Lotto Co-Women's Issues Editor
Humphrey brown III Co-Black Affairs Editor Hannah Thorne Co-Women's Issues Editor
Sunanda Ghosh Co-Developing Nations Editor Tony Morse Editorial Production Manager
Ibrahim Ali Co-Developing Nations Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Bob Dunn Editorial/Opinion Editor Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Lisa M. Oliveri Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor Lee Weiner Distribution Manager
Anna Feder Jewish Affairs Editor Poochon Vacant Classifieds Manager
Lisa Chiu Multicultural Affairs Editor Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Ami Paradysz News Editor Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Emily Reily Photography Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Candice Flemming Sports Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life became the Collegian Signal in 1903, the Weekly Collegian in 1914, and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1962 and is the only broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8 a.m. to and 5 p.m.

He who dares... loses

"Excuse me sir, would you like to learn how to hang-glide?"

"You have to be kidding me."

"No sir, I'm very serious."

"So am I, go away."

There are many things in this world I would not do. After that guy in the Campus Center tried to elicit me to jump off a cliff with a bed sheet and a pole (i.e. hang-gliding), I added that to my list.

I used to get scared just looking at a merry-go-round. OK, I still get scared, shut up.

It's not because I throw up easily — I've been on boats for years, I think it's because I have a huge wimp gene in my DNA structure.

Tim White

Don't think I feel bad about it. I'm still alive and everything. I'll try something new anytime anyplace, as long as pain is not on the line. For example, if they developed a way to get a tattoo without pain, I'd have one. And no, drinking doesn't work, they won't let you do it when you've been boozing.

I might jump out a plane with a parachute... if the plane was about to crash, you hit me on the head with a hammer and throw me out.

I would never, let me say it again, never, join the Armed Forces of any kind. Basically the Army is a group of people who try and want to do everything I do not want to do. Sure, I'd fight if I ever got drafted, but I'd try to enter the "laundry" division. Someone's got to keep our soldiers clean.

A friend of mine did something I would never do, he did what we call a mat-shot. A mat-shot is when you take the schmeg-like liquid from the mat that bartenders use when they mix drinks. At the end of the night, that is quite a substantial amount of schmeg. It kind of looks like a brown-ish red liquid (depending on the popular drink that night) with bits of cottage cheese in it.

We told him that he had to do it because he was a new bouncer at the bar, and we all did it when we started, kind of an initiation. As you know, I would never do a mat-shot so I completely lied.

I almost hurled watching him do it. Which he did a few hours later.

I like sports and everything, I enjoy playing basketball, baseball, you know, the basics. But I do not understand all of those "extreme" athletes out there. The BMX bikers, the skateboarders, the bungee-jumpers.

"OK, now you jump off this huge platform with a canoe stapled to your butt and hope the string doesn't break. If it doesn't, you win!"

I watched a video of these athletes in a competition. One in-line-skater tried to jump a railing, missed and landed hard on his baby-maker. No, they don't wear cups, I added that sport to my list of "wouldn't do's" immediately.

I wouldn't do crack— both the drug and plumber's.

Mud wrestling has always intrigued me, but I saw the movie Stripes— those women can kick some hide.

Keeping with the sport theme, rugby has always been one of those events that just make you bleed. I wouldn't do rugby. I heard that if a player has the ball on the ground and doesn't pass it off, they are legally aloud to get kicked by the other team.

This sport was obviously created by Attila the Hun.

I wouldn't do accounting. Not because it will endanger my life, just because it bores me to tears. I think I just lost all my readers from the Business department.

Mountain climbing is another thing I wouldn't do. I could climb a mountain that isn't that dangerous, but I will not wear those tight Spandex things that they wear. I don't think you would want to look up scenic Mt. Tom and see my sorry ass in Spandex looking back at you. I won't mountain climb for both my sake and yours. You're welcome.

So, maybe I am a wimp. I'll leave all that painful stuff to everyone else. But at least I'm going to out-live every one else.

Actually with my luck, I'll probably be walking down the street someday when some accountant who just finished doing a mat-shot with his rugby friends lands on me while hang-gliding and kills me.

Don't worry, I'll wear a cup.

Tim White is a Collegian columnist

Defeating "–isms"

We've got problems, big problems. We've got problems so big that there may not even be solutions. We've got problems so well hidden that we may not even know they're there. The world is full of problems, and while many are willing to admit that they exist, few are willing to stand up and take measures against them. That is perhaps the biggest problem of them all.

When did passivity become the attitude of choice? How can people care so little about themselves and the world they live in? If we're not careful, the world as we know it will come crashing down around us, and there's nothing we will be able to do about it. Just take a look at some of the things that are going on in the world around you.

Mark J. McGrath

We live in a world that is dominated by the –ism family, whose members include racism, sexism, classism and anti-Semitism. Although few will argue that these –isms have negative effects on society, hardly anyone does anything to help eliminate them. What have you done to help bring down an –ism? Unless you're an exception to the general rule of apathy, the answer is probably not enough. The fact that such despicable and ugly entities still exist is sufficient proof that we are not doing our job.

We live in a world in which many children can no longer go outside and play safely. The streets of America are crawling with corrupt influences like drugs, sex and violence. In other parts of the world, like Liberia and Croatia, children are trapped in the middle of civil wars and being outside can be perilous. It's no wonder fear permanently resides in a parent's heart. It's no wonder kids these days end up the way they do.

We live in a world on the brink of war. As more and more countries arm themselves with nuclear warheads and biological weaponry, it seems the end cannot be too far away. Just a little spark is all it takes to make a powder keg go BOOM!

We live in a world that allows its richest members to acquire wealth beyond imaginative possibilities and at the same time allows the poor to go without essentials like food, water and shelter. The rich are getting richer and the poor are getting poorer. In the grand scheme of things, we're all getting poorer.

We live in a world that seems to enjoy destroying itself. Look at what is happening to the environment. Smoke stacks pour noxious gasses into the very atmosphere that we breathe. Our supply of clean, fresh water is getting smaller and smaller by the day, but what have we done about it? To assume that the Earth is somehow going to just heal itself is utter stupidity. If we keep heading in this direction, the end may come sooner than we think.

What exactly is it that we're waiting for? Do we assume that some kind of divine intervention is going to step in and solve all of our problems for us? Here's a news flash for you. There's no way out but the one that you create for yourself. Until we realize that, society will continue to be sucked into the mess that it has created for itself.

I have a hard time believing that we can truly be happy in a world which supports more problems than solutions. This is a problem not because solutions are hard to come by, but because people are too lazy to do anything about them.

If we haven't a happy life, then what is the reason for living it? I'm not suggesting mass suicide or anything like that. On the contrary, I'm stating that you should take the life that was so graciously given to you and do something with it. Yes, technically you have the right to sit around and do nothing, but don't complain to me about any of the world's problems if you're not willing to do anything about them.

Getting involved and promoting change is not a difficult thing to do. You just have to open your eyes to the myriad of possible solutions available. Whether you want to save the octopi or be a big brother or sister, whether you prefer individual cleanup projects or group participation; there is literally something for everyone.

Time is ticking away, and we're not getting any younger. Is this the way we want to live our lives? The longer you wait, the less likely you are to do anything at all, so do yourself a favor and take advantage of the life you still have and use it to start some new trends for tomorrow. That could make all the difference in the world.

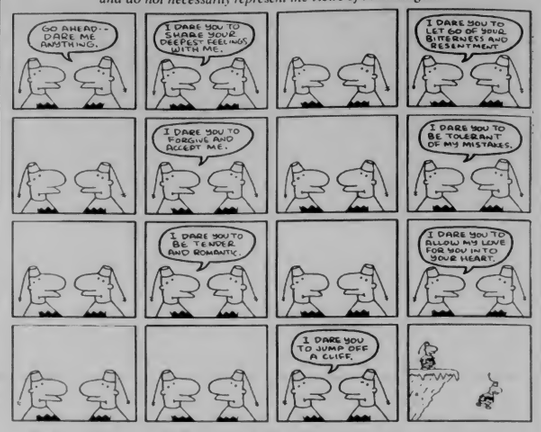
Mark J. McGrath is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

WE'RE JUST THRILLED TO HAVE YOU HERE AT THE EXPO, MR. HARRIS! THIS IS WHERE YOU'LL BE SIGNING THE MEMORABILIA.
WE'LL BE SELLING REFLECTORS, VISORS, CARDS, ETC., TO YOUR FANS FOR SIGNING! YOU CHOOSE WHICH OF THESE PENS YOU WANT TO USE! WE HAVE ALL STYLES!
YOU CAN WRITE WHATEVER YOU WANT — DATE, SIGNATURE, PLACE OR WHATEVER. ZANY GREETING OCCURS TO YOU? OF COURSE. WE ONLY PAY FOR THE ACTUAL SIGNATURE — $50 PER, AS AGREED!
SO THEORETICALLY, I COULD'VE MADE ABOUT $250 WHILE YOU WERE TALKING.
UH... RIGHT! NOW, LET ME EXPLAIN WHY...

Opinion/Editorial

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian.



GO AHEAD, DARE ME ANYTHING.
I DARE YOU TO SHARE YOUR DEEPEST FEELINGS WITH ME.
I DARE YOU TO LET GO OF YOUR BITTERNESS AND RESENTMENT
I DARE YOU TO FORGIVE AND ACCEPT ME.
I DARE YOU TO BE TOLERANT OF MY MISTAKES.
I DARE YOU TO BE TENDER AND ROMANTIC
I DARE YOU TO ALLOW MY LOVE FOR YOU INTO YOUR HEART.
I DARE YOU TO JUMP OFF A CLIFF.

Nowhere Man–ikkalingam's garage

"He's a real nowhere man
Living in his nowhere land
Making all his nowhere plans
For nobody."
—"Nowhere Man," The Beatles

Husein Ibish & Shyamala Ivatury

Spring is here and after many months of blissful hibernation, Graduate Student Senate President Shan "Nowhere" Manikkalingam has finally poked his head out. At the most recent GSS meeting on Tuesday, April 16, he ambled forth and boldly ventured where no GSS President has gone before: straight into the lap of the administration.

Under the guise of relieving the GSS of some of its fiscal constraints, our nominal "President," in a plan entitled "Proposal for Graduate Student Senate Trust Fund Relief Spread over Four Years," is proposing that the administration seize control of GSS finances and destroy its independence.

Under current structures, GSS Trust Fund revenues from the Senate Tax pay for the $41,000 salary of the GSS permanent professional "Office Manager" (currently David Lafond). The Office Manager serves as a secretary and clerical assistant to Senate and its Executive Committee.

Manikkalingam's proposal transfers power from the elected students of the GSS to this "Office Manager" clerical staff assistant, making this individual "responsible for all financial management of the Trust Fund."

But, the GSS Constitution explicitly stipulates in Article II, subsection c, that "The Senate shall have the authority to levy and administer the Graduate Senate Tax," reserving to graduate students the right to manage their own money.

Having unconstitutionally invested all this new authority in the Office Manager, Manikkalingam's proposal calls for the creation of a new and additional $24,000 GSS office staff position for "general clerical, administrative, and reception support," in other words the current duties of the Office Manager. Presumably, this is to leave the Office Manager free "for all financial management of the Trust Fund."

Let us recall that the Office Manager is not elected, is not a graduate student, and is therefore not accountable to graduate students except in the role of GSS employee.

Having removed the authority of the GSS over its revenues, Manikkalingam proposes to consolidate it all in the hands of the administration by allowing Whitmore to fund the Office Manager's salary. That way the Office Manager will not be accountable to graduate students at all, and will represent only the interests of the administration as she/he does "all financial management of the Trust Fund."

Let's get it straight once and for all. No matter what Shan thinks, the Office Manager works for the GSS. The "Office Manager," as the euphemistic title suggests, is merely a clerical-support position for office work. Management of our Trust Fund revenues is the responsibility of our elected officials: the Treasurer, Executive Committee and Senate. It is not the concern of the hired staff or the administration.

Manikkalingam's proposal to have Whitmore pay the salary of the GSS Office Manager surrenders any authority the Senate has over its own employees. It inserts an agent of the administration at the center of all our activities, over whom we would have in effect no control, and transfers key Senate responsibilities to this agent. This is why, for once, the administration, which is always hostile to productive student proposals, seems so keen to agree to Shan's plan.

Manikkalingam's proposal further violates the Constitution by calling upon the "University to increase GSS Senate tax by $3 while simultaneously reducing the Curriculum Fee by $3." This abrogates the responsibility of the GSS to set the Senate Tax, one of its main powers, and seeks a transfer of this power to the administration.

Thus President Manikkalingam once again demonstrates his contempt and disregard for the GSS Constitution and Bylaws, as has been obvious to all who have attended this year's GSS meetings. His plan negates the whole concept of student government, transferring to the administration the cornerstone of GSS autonomy: the right to levy and manage GSS tax revenues. If his proposal is adopted, we may as well dissolve the Graduate Student Senate, and indeed all student government, entirely.

Of course this insane proposal is being touted by Shan and his sidekick VP as a sensible plan to save the GSS money. The main bribe that the administration is offering through Shan to get graduate students to give up their autonomous government is a promise of extra child care money. At present the GSS already allocates $14,000 per year of our money on child care. Shan's proposes to merely triple the amount of money spent on child care by the FY 2000. Given that he is requesting a mere $31,000 from the administration it is unclear where he expects to obtain the revenues from and at what gain and at what price?

Everyone familiar with the problem of child care on campus is well aware that significant monies are required to improve child care facilities, particularly renovation of the child care building, increasing campus space allocated to the purpose, and greatly expanding the number of children who can be cared for. Even the Faculty Senate, in their recommendation to the administration last April, recognized that millions of dollars are urgently needed to meet campus child care requirements. Shan's small increase won't make a dent in this overall problem and is hardly grounds for graduate students to give up their independent government.

If Manikkalingam really cared about child care, he would have taken action to force the administration to spend the real amount needed on child care. But, he seems more interested in having the administration spend money on the Office Manager and other needless staff positions. Shan's so-called "pro-child care proposal" spends at least four times more on bureaucrats and red tape than on child care.

Wouldn't it be much simpler to demand that the administration spend all of Shan's "$167,129" funding request on child care? That way we could start to address our biggest problem and also retain our independence.

Shan "Nowhere" Manikkalingam has proven himself to be a useless hypocrite and sell-out on many occasions. Now he openly reveals himself as a lap dog of Whitmore, its bribery schemes and designs on student government.

Candidate Manikkalingam, when running for office in April 1995, complained about being called a "Clarence Thomas." Has it occurred to him that this proposal only serves to confirm the worst suspicions of his critics?

By asking graduate students to hand their government to Whitmore, Shan asks us all to join him in the Grand Sell Out. Never! Nowhere man's nowhere plan is going nowhere.

Shyamala Ivatury and Hussein Ibish are graduate students.

Letters to the Editor

Acknowledging Greek council's efforts

To the editor:

I am writing in a response to a couple of articles that have appeared recently in the Collegian, in regards to the Greek area and their efforts to confront a culture that has, in the past resulted in acts of unpunished violence against both women and men.

This has clearly been a rough semester for the Greek area. A couple of incidents have scarred the purpose of the Greek system and have thrown it into a state of emergency. I would like to call your attention to the efforts of the officers of the Greek Council, to recognize the work that they have done and to acknowledge the need for the further involvement of Greek brothers and sisters.

As Speaker of the Undergraduate Senate, I have followed the developments in the Greek area rather closely. I am very impressed with the efforts of the GAMMA committee to seriously confront and deal with issues of health and safety in the Greek area, which are issues that plague our entire university community. I have worked with Jay Rose of the Intrafraternity Council and have been thoroughly impressed with his work as a representative of the Greek area. He has gone above and beyond the call of duty to bring the Greek area back to a level of respect deserved by an organization that has traditionally been a leader in the Amherst community through community service and other areas of excellence. However, the work of the Greek Council officers will be worthless if it is not supported by the members of the Greek community.

I want to appeal for the cooperation and active participation of Greek brothers and sisters who believe that a change is needed in the community. Let it no longer be considered an attack on the Greek area when issues of health and safety are confronted. Consider it an opportunity for the Greek area to once again demonstrate to the entire campus how a community of students should live together.

Dan Castellano
Speaker of the Senate
Student Government Association

Arts & Living

A technical foul for Celtic Pride

Daniel Stern & Dan Aykroyd annoying as obsessed fans

COURTESY RICHARD CARTWRIGHT

Dan Aykroyd and Daniel Stern are an insult to Celtic fans in their latest movie Celtic Pride.

By Laura Stock
Collegian Staff

CELTIC PRIDE
Directed by Tom DeCerchio
with Damon Wayans, Daniel Stern, Dan Aykroyd
Playing at Hampshire Six

Forget nostalgia. Any fond memories you may hold dear to your Celtic-loving heart (or Red Sox, Patriot, Bruin– loving heart, for that matter) are mocked, degraded and downright insulted by this debacle, improperly named Celtic Pride.

Pretend you are forced to sit next to the two most annoying sports fans in all of New England, and you have Celtic Pride in a nutshell — sheer torture in shamrock– studded clothing.

Daniel Stern and Dan Aykroyd epitomize two extremely over-stereotyped Boston sports fans— Mike O'Hara and Jimmy Flaherty, respectively. As one fellow Celtic season ticket holder comments, these guys "must have green blood running through their veins."

O'Hara, the more violent of the two obsessed fans, is a disgruntled high school gym teacher from Charlestown who curses his life because he never made it as a basketball player. His wife is leaving him (again) because she is tired of playing second fiddle to his sports fetish.

Flaherty, O'Hara's longtime pal, is a dumpy reject of a plumber in Boston who takes care of his elderly grandmother and lives in a virtual shrine to New England sports teams. Among his collection are authentic Patriots helmets and an autographed Billy Buckner baseball.

When O'Hara and Flaherty realize that all of their cheering, jeering and superstitious game–time rituals may not be enough to help the Celts beat the Utah Jazz in the seventh game of the NBA finals, they successfully carry out their ludicrous plan of getting Utah's star player, Lewis Scott, completely incbriated at a club and kidnapping him.

Damon Wayans, the only slight stroke of talent offered in this film, plays the cocky basketball star perfectly; unfortunately the script lets this character wallow in the muck with the rest of them.

Superstar Scott is a yet another stereotype of an obnoxious ball hog, driving the head coach crazy and creating dissention in the ranks of his teammates. Being held captive by Boston's psycho–version of the "Superfans," however, will make him realize he's not God's gift to the hardwood. What a sweet little (predictable) moral of the story.

The atrocious editing and unfunny screenplay prove that this project was a disaster from the get–go. As for the acting, Stern has blown his chances at ever landing another Home Alone sequel gig, and Aykroyd should realize a comeback of John Travolta proportions just isn't in store for him. He may be doughty and consume enough Sam Adams for his character, but even the mumbled Boston accent of Mark Wahlberg in Fear was better than Aykroyd's.

When it's not shooting airballs, Celtic Pride does score a few points with local fans— being filmed in the Garden stirs up sonic misty–eyed memories. Cameos by Marv Albert, Dejon Sanders and the legend himself, Larry Bird, provide a total of about seven minutes worth of entertainment.

The sad part is that Hollywood can sort of get away with this exaggerated portrayal of diehard Boston sports fans, but it is more insulting than endearing. Let's get realistic here — when is the last time the Celtics actually made it to the NBA finals anyway? F

Pilots nearly crash on Tiny Music

By Chris Conner
Collegian Staff

STONE TEMPLE PILOTS
Tiny Music... Songs From the Vatican Gift Shop
Atlantic Records

"So we're all agreed: Stone Temple Pilots don't sound like Pearl Jam anymore," Entertainment Weekly quipped about the new STP release, Tiny Music... Songs From the Vatican Gift Shop, in a recent issue.

Truth be known, the band never really did sound like the Seattle outfit for the most part. The damning comparison was primarily drawn from the Eddie Vedder–ish mannerisms of lead singer Scott Weiland in the "Plush" video.

Unfortunately, the Pilots now seem to be having a bit of trouble even sounding like themselves on their latest collection. It's painfully evident they're trying hard to dabble in a variety of styles, but the end result is a slightly uneven album.

However Tiny Music is still undeniably interesting. Stripped for the majority of the cuts of the layered vocals that have saturated previous STP releases, Weiland's pipes are bared for all to hear in their au naturel essence — alternately nasal or breathy, rich or tinny. It's a hit–or–miss experiment.

While he deftly navigates his way through the bossa nova sway of "And So I Know," (the album's most daring track) the newly rehabbed frontman falls flat on the neo–Nirvana snarl of "Art School Girlfriend." On the whole he finds his greatest success on STP trademark tunes like "Lady Picture Show" (which features an orchestrated, yet well–executed ode to the Fab Four), "Trippin' On a Hole in a Paper Heart" and "Seven Caged Tigers."

Ironically however, Weiland, returning to the studio after his well–publicized drug arrest, is finally guilty of Vedderian poses on Tiny Music — lyrically, that is.

COURTESY JOHN ECAR

Stone Temple Pilots

After the opening track (the funky, vocal–free snippet "Press Play"), three back–to–back tunes ("Pop's Love Suicide," "Tumble in the Rough" and the album's first single "Big Bang Baby) are saddled with the familiar theme of rock 'n' roll excess and the jaded reality the lifestyle breeds.

Instrumentally, the band has reached a new plateau of maturity, with the dynamic sibling duo of guitarist Dean and bassist Robert DeLeo strutting and storming their way through their compositions. Backed by drummer Eric Kretz, they have long since ditched the post–Zeppelin roar of the group's multi–platinum debut, Core, for the vastly varying explorations on the 12 cuts that comprise this release.

Yet, the danger bands often risk in pushing the limits of artistic ambition is plunging into the trap of over–ambition — STP nobly tries to do too much. Tiny Music strikes a chord in many places, but sometimes just falls out of tune. B

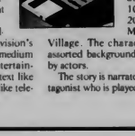
Soap operas go high tech on the Web

Like an episode of "90210," people having problems with relationships and house mates are no longer restricted to television soap operas.

Now soap operas have permeated the World Wide Web in the forms of "Marinex's The East Village" at http://www.theeastvillage.com, and "The Spot" at http://www.thespot.com.

The World Wide Web is finally beginning to challenge television's dominance as people's primary medium of entertainment. On–line entertainment is a fusion of old fashion text like novels, and pictures and sound like television.

"Like television in the 1940's, we're blazing a new path," said Katharine Keating, a Marinex spokesperson.



"The East Village" is a story about a group of 10 people in their 20s who all live in Manhattan's East Village. The characters come from assorted backgrounds, and are played by actors.

The story is narrated by Eve, the protagonist who is played by Hope Adams. Adams, 24, who is an up and coming actress, is familiar with her character because she lives a similar lifestyle.

The writers of "The East Village" are familiar with the topic they are writing about because like Adams they are in their 20s and live in Manhattan's Greenwich Village, said Keating.

"The Spot," the Web's original on–line soap opera, follows a similar plot line. There are seven characters who are similar to those in "The East Village," but is set in sunny California rather than New York City.

Turn to ONLINE, page 6

"AT&T Wants to pay my airfare?
YEAH, RIGHT!"

Announcing the AT&T "Ultimate ROAD TRIP" Sweepstakes.

Studying abroad this Fall? AT&T would like to help pay your way.

10 GRAND PRIZE WINNERS – Round-Trip Air Transportation from the U.S. to the country where you will study.

Plus thousands of other chances to win...
- Leather-bound passport folders
- High-quality currency converters

To enter, call
1 800 789-9947.

Or see your Study Abroad Counselor for more details.

AT&T

No purchase necessary. Void where prohibited. Sweepstakes ends 5/31/96. Open to citizens of the U.S. 18 years or older, attending school abroad for the Fall '96 semester through participating schools. See your Study Abroad Counselor for official rules and details.

© 1996 AT&T

Attention All Grad Students!

Graduate Student Senate
CANDIDATES' NIGHT

Tuesday, April 30
7:15 PM
Campus Center 804–08

Come meet the candidates for 1996–97 GSS Officers
(Candidates' statements, questions & answers)

Nominations are open until
*5 PM, Tuesday, April 30*th

Balloting begins on Tuesday, May 7th
At GSS General Meeting (7:15 pm)
& continues Wed. & Thurs. 8th & 9th
10am–6pm, Campus Center Concourse outside the Grad Lounge
for more information contact GSS at 545–2896

Allen says he's ready for NBA

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — UConn All-American Ray Allen, the Big East Player of the Year says he will forgo his senior season and make himself available for the NBA draft.

"I believe a lot has been learned by me here at this university and it is time to move on," Allen, who is likely to be a top draft pick, said yesterday. "Wherever I end up after this year, I will always be an ambassador of this university."

Allen, who grew teary-eyed as he explained his decision, said he wanted to be in the best possible position to take care of himself, his daughter and his family.

"Clearly, he has graduated basketball life," said Coach Jim Calhoun. "He has done everything here a coach could possibly ask."

Allen, a 6-foot-5 swingman, would become the second UConn player in two years to leave school early for the NBA. Donyell Marshall, signed by the Minnesota Timberwolves and now with the Golden State Warriors, left in 1994.

Under NCAA rules, Allen can make himself available for the draft and still retain his college eligibility as long as he does not sign a contract with a sports agent.

■ NHL

continued from page 10

since the '91 playoffs has he performed in the post-season) or Detroit will have a lot of rest time for the conference finals, which is the prescription for its advance to the finals.

• Is the east's top seed in danger of a first round folly for the second year in a row? The Lightning, backed by Whaler castoff Jeff Reese in place of team MVP Daren Puppa, exposed Ron Hextall in taking a 2–1 series lead over the Cheese Steaks. Again Hexy is in, well, a hex. He's following another strong campaign with a shoddy playoff, committing too early on shooters and growing over-flustered by goals. Since winning the Conn Smythe Trophy in 1987, despite the Flyers losing in the finals, Hextall has never been his best when the chips are down. Reese, unbelievably, has (38 saves Sunday in 5–4 OT win).

• A power play lasts two minutes. When one is given to Pittsburgh, so often it appears to keep the puck in the attacking zone for about 119 seconds before converting a dazzling goal. The Penguins did that three or four times a game against many opponents, but not the Capitals. Washington could not dress three key defensemen for either playoff game, but its tight box around the net on the penalty kill was most effective. Coach Jim Schoenfeld won't (we hope) make the mistake of starting Olaf Kolzig in goal again, a real disgrace to Jim Carey, so Carey will be back in front of the hometown fans and Washington might not even have to go back to the Igloo.

It's defense that will win the series for the Capitals, but Peter Bondra, the most prolific sniper in team history, has earned recognition as one of the game's elite wingers. Perhaps the best skater in the league, his perseverance with the puck and lethal backhand have made him the best Ukrainian of all time.

• And how about Jets goalie Nikolai Khabibulin? Russian goalies not named Tretiak have long gotten a bad rap, but this kid's here to stay. His right pad save on Keith Primeau Sunday should be packaged for the opening night highlight reel in Phoenix. Anything to keep that disgusting Coyotes logo away from our eyes. Pablo Picasso would rotate in his grave if he knew it elicited comparisons to his work.

Ted Kotler is a Collegian columnist.

■ baseball

continued from page 10

that sent the Crimson reeling.

Coming into today's championship, UMass, which regained the lead in the A-10 East standings with four wins over St. Bonaventure this weekend, has five batters ranked in the Atlantic 10's top 20.

The top spot in the rankings belongs to A-10 Player of the Week Muchie Dagliere, who sports a .442 batting average. Dagliere, the second baseman, leads the team in runs (40), hits (53), and is tied for the lead in triples (four).

Murphy sits in the seventh spot in the A-10 batting ranks with a .387 average. Murphy leads the team in home runs with four, doubles (11), RBI (37), and is tied with Dagliere in triples.

Murphy leads the Atlantic 10 in RBI, and is tied with Dagliere and Rhode Island's Steve Cote for second in triples. Brad Gorrie and Ryan Jette, ranked 11th and eighth in A-10 batting respectively, claim the top to league spots in stolen bases, with 20 apiece. David Dart leads the UMass rotation with a 4–1 record. Dart has a 2.45 ERA, and has given up 14 runs, 11 earned.

The Minutemen will have to contend with a Northeastern team that beat BC in its first round game, 9–5.

The Huskies list six batters above .300 on their roster, led by Kevin Kim. Kim is currently batting .349, with a team- high 30 hits for 13 RBI. Kim is tied in both categories with Matt Valentino, while Valentino is batting .345 and leads the team in doubles (8), homers (4) and runs (21).

Other offensive threats for Northeastern include Mike O'Donnell, who has hit 27 times for 12 RBI; Bob McLaughlin, who has connected 23 times for 10 RBI; and Justin Johnson, who has Northeastern's only triple.

Chris Zack is the ace of the Husky pitching rotation with a 3.76 ERA. Zack has surrendered 34 hits for 20 runs, of which only 11 are earned.

First pitch for the Beanpot at Fenway Park is set for noon today.

■ on-line

continued from page 5

Unlike "The East Village," "The Spot" is written from the perspective of one of the seven characters rather than the same one character. Both are highly interactive. Through out an episode, a user can click to read extraneous information that is not as important to the main text. "The East Village" prides itself on its heightened interactivity, said Keating.

On "The East Village," users can join electronic "cliques" dedicated to their favorite characters. When a viewer chooses a clique, the character sends them e-mail which reveals information not incorporated on the page, but expands the plot. New episodes of "The East Village" appear on-line every Tuesday and Thursday, while "The Spot" provides new episodes on a daily basis. Both sites are designed for Netscape Navigator 2.0 with the RealAudio plug-in because they use some Java scripting and RealAudio sound files. However, both sites have a text only version for users who do not have Netscape Navigator.

Matthew Wurtzel is a Collegian columnist.

$500 X-treme Fun College Incentive

Plus, 2 Year Free-Ride Toyota Auto Care[1]

Available to all College Students!

If you're a college student with the ambition to pursue X-treme fun, you can receive a $500 Certificate good toward the purchase or lease of any new 1996 or 1997 Toyota.[3]

Plus 2-Year Free-Ride Toyota Auto Care[1] which includes 24 hour Roadside Assistance, Oil Changes & Inspections. Eligible college graduates also get added incentives including No Money Down financing or a Lease with No Security Deposit required.[2]

But don't wait...this limited offer ends September 30, 1996!

Call our toll-free number or visit our web site today to obtain your free $500 X-treme Fun College Incentive Certificate.

Choose from a wide selection of any new 1996 or 1997 Toyota models including...

COROLLA CAMRY TERCEL

Beyond the elementary in Toyota quality. Sporty yet pragmatic performance. Dean's List for youthful function & styling.

TOYOTA

RAV4

1-800-GO-TOYOTA

ask for "College"

http://www.toyota.com/college

1 2 yr./25,000 mile Toyota Auto Care Term covers the first 5 regularly scheduled oil changes and inspections in your Owner's Manual Supplement Routine Maintenance Log.
2 To qualified customers through the Toyota Motor Credit Corporation: 1) Graduate, within the next six months, from an accredited four-year college, university, or registered nursing degree program, graduate from an accredited two-year college, or be enrolled in an accredited graduate degree program. In all cases, you have one year from receipt of your degree to take advantage of the program. 2) Acquire a verifiable job offer that will begin within 120 days of your purchase, with a salary sufficient to cover ordinary living expenses and vehicle payments. 3) Show proof of insurability 4) Have no adverse credit history. See your participating Toyota dealer for details. Similar program available in AL, FL, GA, NC & SC thru World Omni Financial Corp.. Not available in HI.
3 $500 incentive is available with any other Toyota offer. Simply call 1-800-GO-Toyota and ask for "College" to receive your certificate. Offer is valid on the purchase or lease of any new 1996-1997 Toyota vehicle and ends September 30, 1996 ©1996 Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc.

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK

	One Way	Roundtrip
LONDON	$212	$399
PARIS	$224	$427
SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA	$235	$446
TOKYO		$851

Scheduled flights.
Fares to worldwide destinations.
Eurailpasses Available.
Weekend surcharges may apply. Customs-immigration taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice. INTL student I.D. cards may be required.

PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave., NY, NY 10173
212-986-8420*
800-272-9676
*in NYC

UMass wins two, lose one at EWPAs

By Jen Ryder
Collegian Correspondent

The Massachusetts women's water polo team returned home this weekend after going 2–1 at the Eastern Water Polo Association New England Playoffs in Middletown, Connecticut.

The No. 15 Minutewomen (14–5) took third place in the tournament, defeating Queens College on Saturday and Wesleyan on Sunday while losing to Brown University in the Saturday semifinal game.

In the third place game on Sunday Massachusetts played the host school, Wesleyan. Although the game was at their school, their water polo team was nowhere to be found as it was blasted by the Minutewomen, 13–0. Massachusetts opened the game with five goals in the first quarter and scored at least two goals in the remaining three quarters.

Seven different players scored goals for UMass, with Cathy Leeburg leading the pack with four. Other scorers included Bamond (1), Hannigan (2), Hickey (2), Nancy MacNeil (1), Meghan O'Connor (2) and Heather Saunders (1).

The Wesleyan game was the first shutout in the Minutewomen's two year history at the intercollegiate level. Once again Griffith and Laughton teamed up in the goal, and again Griffith recorded three saves and Laughton one.

For the semifinal game the Minutewomen went up against No. 11 Brown. The game was close throughout all four quarters, but UMass finally bowed to the Bears 7–6. In the loss junior Vicky Bamond continued her sensational offensive play with three goals. The team was down 5–3 going into the fourth quarter. They outscored Brown in that quarter, 3–2, but still fell one goal short of the victory. Once again Griffith had a good game in the net, making four saves in the losing cause.

In the first round game, UMass defeated Queens by a score of 15–5. Queens was hit hard by the Minutewomen in the first quarter, giving up eight goals while scoring none. They never posed a threat to Massachusetts, scoring a goal in both the second and third quarters and three goals in the final quarter. Junior Barbara Hickey lead the attack with four goals, with Vicky Bamond, Jill Carroll, Michelle Hannigan and Cathy Leeburg each adding two goals apiece. Senior goaltender Jessica Griffith stopped three shots and sophomore Carrie Laughton saved one.

With their victories this weekend, the Minutewomen earned a berth in the Eastern Championships, to be held next weekend in Princeton, New Jersey.

Women's lacrosse finds no love in Philly

By Luke Meredith
Collegian Correspondent

If you translate the word Philadelphia from it's Greek origins, you'll find it means "city of brotherly love." Just don't ask the Massachusetts women's lacrosse team to verify that, because this weekend the city showed no love towards the Minutewomen.

UMass ended a two-day trip to Philadelphia on a sour note Sunday, as hat tricks from juniors Michelle Warrington and Stephanie Walsh were not enough to stop the Villanova Lady Wildcats from sending the Minutewomen to their fourth straight defeat, 15–8.

Villanova was in control of this game from the opening whistle, and by halftime they had built themselves a commanding 10–4 lead. The Wildcats were led by Christen Streaker, who exploded for four first half goals en route to a six-goal afternoon. The lead was extended to 12–4 early in the second half before UMass got back on the board. Warrington lead the Minutewomen in the second half with two goals, while Walsh, Laura Korutz and Jean Herder added single tallies.

Trish DiBenedetto recorded 15 saves in net for the Minutewomen, while the duo of Christen McNess and Brad Chancy stopped 12 shots for Villanova. UMass falls to 2–7 on the year.

The Minutewomen return to Totman Field on Wednesday when the Vermont Catamounts come to town, and should brighten UMass' spirits. The loss to Villanova was the final blow of an excruciating road trip that saw the Minutewomen go 0–4 and lose valuable momentum after a two-game winning streak that preceded the trip. The road has not been kind to UMass, as they've been able to manage only one win in six tries. A little home cooking is in order, and Vermont is the type of team that the ladies can regroup against.

Despite their 2–7 record, their have been bright spots lately for the Minutewomen. Michelle Warrington exploded Sunday, and her three goals gave her 11 on the year. Stephanie Walsh continues to score at a prolific clip, and her hat trick against Villanova put her season total at 20, tops for UMass.

LAX Notes: The Minutewomen's game with Dartmouth, snowed out on April 10, has been re-scheduled for Sunday April 28 at 1:00 p.m.

■ softball

continued from page 10

the softballers from LaSalle.

Henderson cruised allowing just two singles in the complete game, 5–0 UMass win.

Guitridge and Tracey Osier each had a pair of base knocks; Osier scored twice and Gutridge drove in a pair of runs as eight Minutewomen collected hits and every UMass starter reached base.

The Minutewomen followed up a three-error effort in the first game with a perfect game in the field highlighted by Becky George's three putouts and three assists at second base.

George started for Amy Powell who had a commitment to the UMass women's soccer team on Saturday.

The first contest against LaSalle could have been played in one inning as all four of the game's runs were scored in the fifth inning, but Liz Wagner and Henderson (relieved Wagner in the sixth) were made to duel with LaSalle's Janice McGinty for the regulation seven innings.

Henderson came on to shut down the LaSalle attack, striking out four in two innings. Wagner pitched well to earn the win, allowing one unearned run in her five innings as Massachusetts hung on for the 3–1 decision.

Today's the day. UMass hosts arch-rival UConn at Totman Field, the Minutewomen won decisively earlier this season as Henderson pitched her first shutout of the season against the Huskies in a 5–0 win.

■ women's tennis

continued from page 10

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Senior co–captain Liesl Sitton won her final collegiate match in style Sunday pounding Xavier's Meghan Caton 6– 0, 6–0.

Steele lost 6–1, 6–2 to Julie Kim, Orsini was up but lost to Helen Andrews 7–5, 6–1, and Durant was defeated 6–3, 6–3 as GW earned the rights to the finals to take on Virginia Tech.

"We had our shots, we really had our chances," Dixon said. "The double point again played a large factor. Liesl had a tough day, and Orsini couldn't close out her match. But I think, the double point, had we come out of it we could have had a shot."

On Friday to start off the tournament, UMass played Duquesne, which beat Temple earlier in the day to advance, but this time were easily defeated 6–1 to the hands of the Minutewomen. UMass took all three of the doubles matches to win the point, and five of the six singles with only Sitton falling 7–5, 4–6, 6–4 to a very tough Mariana Gundin of Duquesne.

"We are one of the top four teams in the A–10, so we're really finding where we are," Dixon said. "So when we come out against a school like Duquesne, who was in the middle group, I think that we clearly showed that were considered to be one of the top teams, and that's a huge lift, something that they have to hold on to, because it proves how far they've come."

Overall the Minutewomen had a very respective showing this past weekend in all the matches they played.

"I feel very strongly about this team," Dixon said. "This team is like a family, they love each other, they have struggled to become what they are. They really arrived on the scene as one of the better teams in the Northeast."

The Minutewomen will finish their season with a 15–4 regular season record, 6–3 this Spring. They won the New England Championship this past fall and have another fourth place finish in the A–10's this season to add to their credit.

"They played up to their ability," Dixon said. "Every one of them played as well as they could. I couldn't have asked the kids to give more or to play better. In the end I'm really pleased with their hard work, I was pleased with their hard work all year, I didn't have a moments problem with this team, not a moment. And I do believe that this team is the team that is starting something at UMass, the history makers of this school.

"I said to them afterwards, and I really mean this. They had a great year, they need to keep their heads up and realize what they did do, and not that they didn't have the finish they hoped for, but that they had this really full and success ful year."

Collegian Comics, so funny we forgot to laugh.

Ever Think of writing for Sports?

Stop by the Collegian Office at 113 Campus Center

Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Give us a break, we're trying!!

The Following Advertisers Would Like To Congratulate UMass Men's Basketball Team!

AMHERST OPTICAL SHOPPE
256-6403 • EYE EXAMS • 195 N. PLEASANT ST., AMHERST
Convenient In-Town Location

- Eyeglasses
- Contact Lenses by Bausch & Lomb
- Sunglasses by Bausch & Lomb
- Same Day Service in Most Cases (In Store Lab)
- Specialists in Thinner Leases, as well as Progressive Lenses
- Largest Selection of Frames in the Valley
- Designer Frames by Giorgio Armani, Calvin Klein, etc.

Ray-Ban Sunglasses by Bausch & Lomb

ADVOCATE ★ BEST OF THE VALLEY READERS POLL 1995

Voted Best of the Valley 7 Years in a Row!

To Coach Calipari and the Team - Congratulations on your outstanding season!
Thank you for playing your hearts out, even though it sometimes almost made ours stop - But we liked it. We look forward to your going all the way next year.
Always Refuse To Lose!
Good Luck From Your Faithful Fans at the Graduate School.

CAMPUS CENTER HOTEL
University of Massachusetts
Congratulates Coach Calipari & the 95-96 Basketball Team. Thanks for a Great Season and Reaching the Final Four!

Spirit Haus
Specialty Beverage Center
Wine Coolers • Ice
Mixers • Mini Kegs • Beer Glasses
Your Full Service Party Source
More than 450 Beers
•The Largest Selection of Micro-Brewed & Imported Beers in the Area.
•A Wide Variety of Fine Wines.
•Over 40 Single Malt Scotches.
•Special Kegs in Stock. (Cold Plates Available)
FULL REDEMPTION CENTER
Rt. 9 East College St. • 253-5384
VISA MASTERCARD - DISCOVER Accepted

Minuteman Volkswagen
Ask For First Time College Program!
Congratulations from one Minuteman to another.
You made us proud!
Patricia Dolan
Sales Representative
TEL. 617-275-8000
39 North Road
Bedford, Mass. 01730

BACKYARD BIRDS
A BIRDWATCHERS STORE
Bird Seed • Baths Feeders • Houses • Books • Gifts
586-3155
17 Strong Ave., Northampton, MA 01060

ARE YOU NUTS?
Miss Out On Our MEAL DEAL and You Must Be!
Add Chips and a Drink for Just $1 Dollar!
SUBWAY
Sunday - Thursday 10am - 12pm
Friday & Saturday 10am - 2pm
4 Main Street Amherst

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ANIMALS FOR SALE

Now offering Reptiles, Exotic Small Mammals & Large Birds. Prices better than pet stores. Call/ian for info. Page# 184

ANNOUNCEMENTS

All University Women are invited to Mount Holyoke Rush on April 25, 26, 28 and 29 at 6pm. For info. or rides call 549-6744.

It is Back!!! The Great UMass Mountain Bike Race April 24 & 25. Student Union events. 549-3437

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Spacious, newly renovated 2 bedroom apartment for rent. June 1st to Aug. 31st. Off bus route. Call 253-3646 for more info

441 Main Street 2 BDR heat incl. $1100. 256-0696

2 Bedroom Apt. First Floor $525 + gas heat. On site laundry. 5 min to UMass. Available 6/1. 549-4748.

3 Bedroom renovated Puffton. 2 bath. Heat and hot water incl. Take for summer, option for Fall. Call 549-8744.

Best Summer House in Amherst! 2nd floor with private deck. 2 bedroom for 4 people. Laundry. Convenient Main Street location. Summer sublet & Fall Option. Call 256-0082.

3 Bedroom Puffton. New Fridge Carpet, Small. Bus/water. Closet moved. Free heat/hot water. $625/Mo starting June 1st. 549-4677.

Two Bedroom Apartment on bus route. Heat, hot water included $600 or B.O. 549-8719.

2 Bedroom Brandywine apartment available now subletting heat, water start June 1. 549-6917.

4 Bedroom 2 bath On bus route Available June 1 with option to take over lease. Includes heat. $1025/month or B.O. 549-9180.

Take Over Lease 2BdRm Brandywine June 1st. Newly renovated. 549-9180.

Take over our lease! 2 bdrm on bus route. All inclusive for $750. Only 3 months left. Call 253-7867.

Two Bedroom residential Apt. Take over our lease 1 1/2 mile away from Puffton. $575/month. 549-6679.

3 BdRm Puffton Apt. Ideal location. New deck, stove and hood. Heat and hot water incl. Call 549-9219.

Best Selection of 1,2 and 3 bedroom apartments in the center of town. Gas heat and hardwood floors. Lincoln Realty 253-7879.

Take over our lease 6/1! Two bedroom/two bath Puffton Apt. $680 per month includes heat/hot water. Avail the end of May. Call 549-1170.

Apartments available for June and September. Summer sublets too! Call Dennis, Town Village 665-2703.

Three bedroom condominiums, with fireplace and hardwood floors. Lincoln Realty 253-7879.

AUTO FOR SALE

90 Mitsubishi Mirage. 76k. Manual, good condition. $2,700. Call Eric 549-5491.

1988 Chevy Nova - 207,000 miles. Well maintained - in good condition. $1,000. Call Nancy up until 10pm 549-3702.

AUTO FOR SALE

Chevrolet Caprice Classic 1985 with state inspection $1600 or best offer call Andrew 549-0128.

1989 Beretta GT 5 speed V6 new clutch+ brakes well maintained! Asking $3700 call 796-6620.

Jeep Cherokee 4X4 5 speed 1986. Great in the snow or on the beach! Give me a call so you can come look at this monster. Great deal. Call Paul at 549-5788.

1987 Plymouth Colt 5 speed 99k $1,000 or best offer. Leave message at 253-5311.

1994 GEO PRIZM. Black 73,000 miles. Asking $9700. Call 256-8862.

EMPLOYMENT

SCERA needs a Student Coordinator. Coordinate research and advocacy. $8/hr. Experience working with student groups and knowledge of Undergrad issues required. Summer and Fall. Resume by April 25th to Marc Kenen Room 420 Student Union Building.

Make $3-5,000 this summer Paint exterior of homes with college students. Wellesley, Natick, Weston area. Please page Ed Pons at 617-456-6031.

Looking for a few energetic people to help run our office. Must have good phone skills. Full-Time when school ends. Great resume material. $7.150/NR. call 1 800 501 5043.

Truck drivers wanted for summer work. Approx. 11 days in mid June & additional 11 days in mid August. Work 1 or both sessions. Must drive standard and have experience with 18 or larger truck. $105-115/day. call 1 800 501 5043.

Windows Software Tester Graphic Software Co. Seeks part-time quality assurance tester. Applicants must have experience using Softwera, Windows 3.1 and Windows 95 on a variety of hardware configurations. Macintosh 20 and 3D Graphic Experience preferred but not required. Send Cover letter and Resume to: Personel Director Spectulator International 7 Pomeroy Lane Amherst MA. 01002 No phone calls or walk-ins please.

Summer Painting Jobs. College Pro Painters up to $9/hr. In Amherst/Northampton. Make $$ in the sun!!! Call Kerry 546-2423 or Cherie 549-3854.

$40,000/yr income potential. Home typists/PC users. Toll free 1 800 898-9778 ext 1170 for listings.

LEADERS NEEDED. Summer Teenage Bicycling Trips US, Canada, Europe. Minimum 4 week trips. Commitment. Salary plus expenses paid. STUDENT HOSTILE PROGRAM. Ashland Rd Conway, MA 01341. 1 800 543-8170.

START YOUR OWN CAREER in a fast growing business. Sales experience or training NOT necessary. Contact MATT at 413 827 4188 or e-mail matthew@student.umass.edu.

ALASKA EMPLOYMENT - Fisheries, Parks, Resorts hiring for summer. Earn $3,000-$6,000+/Mo! Airfare, Room/Board. No exp. required. Ask about our VIDEO! Call (919) 932-1489 ext. A120.

National Parks Hiring - Positions are now available at National Parks, Forests & Wildlife Preserves. Excellent benefits & bonuses! Call 1 206 971 3620 ext N50014.

EMPLOYMENT

SMALL, COED, OVERNIGHT CAMP

Looking for outgoing male counselors who enjoy working with children ages 7-13 yrs. Incredible experience. Call Michelle at 540-6677 or Ken at 413-528-2229.

Summer Painters hiring for Boston and Hartford. Will train completely. Earn $6-$9/hr. Call N.E. Collegiate Painters at 800-569-9939.

Eastern Europe Jobs - Teach basic conversational English in Prague, Budapest or Krakow. No teaching certificate or European languages required. Inexpensive room and board and other benefits. For info call 206-971-3680 ext K50017.

Tropical Resorts Hiring. Students needed! Entry level career positions available worldwide. Call Resort Employment Services (206) 971-3600 ext RS0011.

International Employment - Earn up to $25-$45/hour teaching basic conversational English in Japan, Taiwan, or S. Korea. No teaching background or Asian languages required. For info call (206) 971-3570 ext. J50014.

Attention All Students! Over $6 Billion in public and private sector grants & scholarships is now available. All students are eligible. Let us help. For more info call 1 800-263-6495 ext FA0013.

FOR RENT

Take over my Lease for spacious 2 bedroom. $650. Call 549-7587.

3 Bedroom Puffton - Renovated, near bus and laundry, available June 1. Call 549-5858.

Need a place for fall? Secure it now and take over my lease June 1st. Puffton 1 Bedroom larger. $520. Heat-Hot Water incl. 549-9180.

Spacious, Bright 3Bdr/2bath Mill Valley Apt. June 1 lease, washer/dryer, hookup. Palm call soon! 253-0388.

1 Bdrm Apt Available 6/1 to take over lease. Hot Water incl. On bus line. call 253-1869.

2 Bedroom Apt. in Colonial Village. Pay $250 for one bedroom. Have the other one free! Lease 15-Aug-31. 256-0947.

3 Bedroom Apt in Puffton Village starting June 1. Gas heat, AC, water incl. Option to lease. Call 549-8871 for more info.

FOR SALE

Shoei Motorcycle Helmets One black one red - Brand New. $175.00 each. Call Sara 549-9205.

2 Full Mattresses and Boxsprings with Frames. $50 each or B.O. Call 253-9099.

Bike For Sale 10 gear almost new. $70. Call 549-7587.

Powermac 6/80/56 16/250 Ram Doubler installed. sys 7.5.1 macos updater 4 K of graphic software/ 744 fonts, tons of control panels/ extensions, games, no key board or monitor 4x1 cd-rom $1,150 call Dmitriy @ 6-0479.

Car stereo 28-inch Bazooka tubes $150 pair. 50% rms stream 6ch Amplifier $250. Both $350 call Derek 549-9256.

Mountain Bike for sale Mongoose Threshold Shimano parts Trek system 2 with gel seat only 1 yr old $700 or B.O. Megan 549-4196.

FOR SALE

P100 32 megs RAM 17 inch digital monitor 2Gb modem 28am hard drive loaded with software $2400 BO Call Fred 549-8969.

Laptop Computers Cheap. Great WP all under 100. Call 6-0940.

486 DX66. Computer 540 MB Hard drive 8meg ram fax modem 14" monitor $1,100 or B.O. Call 253-0362 Leave Message.

FOUND

Found a watch Monday night 4/15 in Reading Room Campus Center. 546-1799.

HOUSE FOR RENT

4 Bedrooms, off and heat, on bus route Shutesbury $1 call 659-3832 after 5pm leave message.

MUSICIANS

Bassist Wanted to form band. Influences: Rage, Nirvana, Alice etc. Call Rich 256-1751.

MISCELLANEOUS

The Gathering
HTTP://www.jakeme.com Scholarships, academic & career resources. Internships, sports, news, entertainment, travel, music, debates and 1,000's of links.

Good home needed for six year old spayed Tamaha Basset Hound. Please call Robin 323-6582.

PERSONALS

"Jimmy," I can't stop thinking about you. You're in my every thought. I don't want to even imagine life without you. Please reconsider and give me another chance. I'll be at The Lorenz Olympic Gold Medal Challenge at the UMass Pond on Thursday, April 25th and truly hope to see you there. -

#CGRAS You are the best!

ROOM FOR RENT

Nice Rooms in new house $275 + on Putters Pond. Call Sara 549-9205.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female UMass Student looking for any one that has and/or wants to share an apartment over the Summer in or close to Taunton, MA. Call 546-3074.

Looking for 1 or 2 females to share 3BR apartment in Alpine Commons for Summer only. On bus route. Price negotiable. Heat included. For more info call Becky at 546-4181.

3 BDR in 4 BDR Apt. on bus Rt. Sublet with option to rent in Fall. Call 253-7741.

Relocating to Conn? Two UMASS Alums looking for M/F to share luxury 3 bedroom, 2 bath Apt. in Enfield. 20 minutes to Hartford. 10 min to Springfield. $360 including heat, water and AC. Health Club, pool + tennis. 860 741-6195.

Looking for 2 people to share a room in 3 bdr. townehouse, 1yr lease starting June 1st. I have a cat and a dog. If interested call Becky 549-8298.

PUFFTON - 2 females seeking 2 females/males to share a room in our 3 bedroom renovated apt. Available June 1. 549-4814.

SERVICES

Pregnant? Need Help? Call Birthright of Amherst Area for free testing and caring assistance. 549-1906.

LANDSCAPING
Spring cleanup, shrub trimming, grub ing, planting, debris removal. Call 549-1997 for a free estimate.

SUMMER SUBLET

Looking for one to four people to sublease Mill Valley apartment. May 15 or June 1 to August 31. Call Jess ASAP 253-1797.

4 Bedroom Apt. on Meadow St. 3 bedrooms available for June 1st sublet. Very cheap on bus route 1 mile from campus. Furnished. Call Sarah Mary, Laura 549-9297.

Summer Sublet w/Fall option. Beginning 6/1. 3 Br 2 full bath. Mill Valley Apt. 3-5 people. Reasonable. Call 256-4751.

$150 Reward! 2 Bdrm Apt. Free Ac/hot Water. Pool. Available June 1st. Call 549-8552.

2 Bedroom Apt. on Amity St. Heat, hot water included. sleeps four people. $750/mo. call 549-8092.

Grad Students. Furnished 1 bedroom apartment sublet on bus route. Available June 1. August 30. $795/month + 1/2 utilities call 253-0590.

1 Room 1 minute to campus. Air conditioning, sunny, share with 1 person call 549-1744.

ONE FURNISHED room available in two bedroom apt. female non-smoker. Rent negotiable. 549-1715.

Condos Behind BayBank two minute walk to campus or uptown. 2 bath skylights, dishwasher, wall to wall carpeting, nicest place in area. Price negotiable call Jason 549-4178.

One bedroom in three bedroom Mill Valley apartment. Partially furnished. Option to take over lease in fall. Kelly 253-1734.

2 Rooms available in 4 bedroom house in N. Amherst. $270/mo. including water. call 549-5895, anytime between 11 to 11.

Brandywine Apts. 2 Bedrooms, take over our lease with Fall option. Call 549-5747.

Boulders summer sublet two bedrooms furnished on bus line avail. June 1st call 253-7682.

2 Bedroom Apt. Crestview. Before Hobart Lane. Only $625. Call 549-0868.

2 Bedroom Apt at Brandywine. Available 6/1. Price negotiable. Call 549-8657.

One room Puffton apt for Summer sublet. Call Fred 549-8963.

2 BdRm Brandywine Apts. Heat/hot water incl. Call 549-0539.

Bedroom in Presidential Apts. Walking distance. Call 549-4042.

Looking for 1-4 people to summer sublet our Mill Valley apartments. $715/Month. Call 253-7157.

TO SUBLET

Puffton Sublet 1 room in a 3 bdrm apt for summer $750/month partially furnished call Berna 549-8969.

TRAVEL

EUROPE $169 O/W
Carib Min. $189 R/T
If you can beat these prices start your own airline!
Air Tech, LTD 413 567-0001

TRAVEL

Come Join In The Adventure!!! Come White Water Rafting with UMSC & UMOC! May 31 - June 2. Only $199! Call us 5-3437.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Medieval lofer
5 Pipe part
9 Star starter
13 Mars, Comb. form
14 Cheek bone
16 Type of exam
17 Place
18 Trivial
19 Catch-22
20 Fess up
21 Wildcat's golf course?
23 Dog's bane
25 Yoko
26 Wind instruments
28 Tiresome pig?
33 Offspring
34 Late in Barcelona
35 Singer Stewart
36 Vote down
37 Spanish houses
38 In tiptop shape
39 — and outs opposites
40 Milled
41 Eucharist plate
42 Precious buck
44 Whitles
45 Years on end
46 Past due
47 Levathan's lament?
51 Fashion lines
55 — off quarantine
56 Greene who played Bern
57 Dismounted
58 Lose interest
59 Cobbler's concerns
60 Casablanca heroine
61 Bohemian
62 Holy water basin
63 Take it easy

DOWN
1 Ocean tang
2 Lake Indian
3 Careen
4 Smelly chicken?
5 Grins
6 Singer Tucker
7 Vivacity
8 Cat without a tail
9 Pal around with
10 Actor Estrada
11 — best friend Fido
12 Like dog Tray
15 Puts new tape in the VCR
22 Concerning Lat
24 Football's Dawson
26 Suppose
27 Model material
28 More vile
29 Toward the mouth
30 Sound off
31 Actor's plums
32 Place of innocence
33 Swerve
34 Gave's partner
37 Battlement spaces
38 Rabbit fur?
40 Object of devotion
41 Dick's first lady
43 Indeed!
44 Most wan
46 Sheets
47 Sport
48 Standstill
49 Canine comment
50 Singer Guthrie
52 Mademoiselle
53 — America
54 Immediately!
55 Asp anagram

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

S	O	L	O		B	A	R	D	S		C	H	A	R
K	I	E	V		A	V	E	R	T		H	A	L	E
E	S	N	E		S	E	N	O	R		A	R	E	A
P	E	S	T				O	V	E	R	L	O	O	K
		C	O	E	D		E	N	O	S
A	S	S	O	R	T	E	D		G	L	E	A	M	S
Q	N	O	M	E		C	A	S	T	E		S	A	P
G	O	N	E		P	O	R	C	H		O	H	I	O
E	R	A		S	U	R	F		C	O	N	T	E	N
R	E	C	A	L	L		C	O	N	V	E	N	E	R
			F	I	S	T			S	P	E	E	R
O	V	E	R	P	A	I	D		A	R	T	E	R	Y
T	I	R	E		T	A	R	O	T		I	D	E	A
I	N	N	E	R		R	I	B	S		M	E	E	K
C	A	S	H		S	A	B	E	R		E	N	D	S

3/12/96

Ever Think of writing for Sports?

Stop by the Collegian Office at 113 Campus Center

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

Your Daily Horoscopes

ARIES (March 21 – April 19) — You have a lot to think about today. An unsettling domestic situation could affect your career efforts. Your public image is important. Guard your reputation.

TAURUS (April 20 – May 20) — You may not be getting the moral support you need from friends. You will find it easier to maintain your emotional balance if you spend more time alone.

GEMINI (May 21 – June 20) — A creative project could hit a snag. If you want financial funding, you must first prove yourself to higher-ups. Look beyond current limitations to a bright future.

CANCER (June 21 – July 22) — A partner may accuse you of being stubborn. If you work hard enough, you can sway others over to your way of thinking. A pessimistic mood lifts — as if by magic.

LEO (July 23 – Aug. 22) — Try to be more realistic about romance. Your loved one may be looking for a commitment you are not ready to make. Call or write an ailing parent without being prompted.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 – Sept. 22) — You find yourself attracted to someone from a very different walk of life. Luckily your interests and values are very similar! The mood is right to dine out this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 – Oct. 22) — Outrageous attire will make an impression others may never forget. Dress appropriately for your age. Exercise keeps you feeling young and fit. Share health-related activities with a loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 – Nov. 21) — New energy infuses a marriage with hope. Escape from a stale environment by surrounding yourself with positive people. Give a wide berth to complainers and gossips; their negative attitude will only drag you down.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 – Dec. 21) — Do not rely on promises made by newly-met companions. Question an offer that sounds too good to be true. Relatives want favors and reassurance. Trust your intuition.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 – Jan. 19) — Test public reaction before you go out on a limb with a new idea or product. Romance could have you bewildered. Take your time when it comes to making a commitment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 – Feb. 18) — Stop trying to be everything to everyone. A dazzling romance could result when a friend plays matchmaker. Look for new ways to augment your income.

PISCES (Feb. 19 – March 20) — Someone may try to rush you. Refuse to make a decision until you have the facts and figures. A fear of being vulnerable keeps you from finding true love.

Dilbert By Scott Adams

SO I'M THINKING I'LL RESIGN, THEN I'LL REAPPLY FOR MY CURRENT JOB AT A HIGHER SALARY.
THAT'S A GOOD PLAN EXCEPT FOR THE FACT THAT YOU'RE THOROUGHLY UNQUALIFIED FOR YOUR CURRENT JOB.
I NEED TO SHARE MY UNREALISTIC PLANS WITH A FRIEND WHO ISN'T AN ENGINEER.
I'M MORE OF A CO-WORKER THAN A FRIEND, PER SE.

Kippil By Barry Deutsch

PROFESSOR, I JUST CAN'T TAKE ON A THIRD SPECIAL PROJECT.
THAT'S IT! THAT'S WHAT'S WRONG WITH YOUR GENERATION!
YOU'RE ALL LAZY! WITHOUT MOTIVATION! ZEITGEIST-MASLOW! NO GUMPTION!
YES, SIR.
POLITICAL CORRECTNESS! THE OPPRESSION TIME, THE ECONOMY, THAT! WHINERS, ALL OF YOU! WHINE, WHINE, WHINE, OH AND ONLY LIKE A BROKEN RECORD!
YES, SIR. WHAT A DITY WE CAN'T ALL BE STOIC BABY-BOOMERS. / OH AND ONLY LIKE A BROKEN RECORD!

The Amazing Spider Man By Stan Lee

DARN. THE TV JUST BLEW—AND I WANTED TO HEAR ABOUT ROBIN THE GOOD!
THEN IT COULDN'T HAVE PICKED A BETTER TIME!
DON'T BE SUCH A SOURPUSS! I'LL CALL BOB GOODE—HE CAN FIX ANYTHING!
SORRY, LADY! I JUST RETIRED!

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

Remember how your second grade teacher seemed smarter to you than your first grade teacher?

And how proud you were because you were smarter too!

And when you first sat there in your high school on opening day the teachers seemed like geniuses.

Well, I had a second grade teacher who later became my high school teacher, and she was smarter... no kidding!

How did she get smarter?

You think that's weird?

My dumb parents are getting smarter!

But this is not a Star Trek movie.... no, ... I've been watching my dog and he's not getting smarter.... he's still eating food off the floor.

I stopped that years ago!

Close to Home By John McPherson

A hideous development in air travel: karaoke flights.

Jim's Journal By Jim

We got squirt guns in the store today.
Ernie filled one up with water.
He shot it over an aisle and hit Harry.
What the hell is going on?" Harry yelled.

Company Cheese By Kevin Tracy

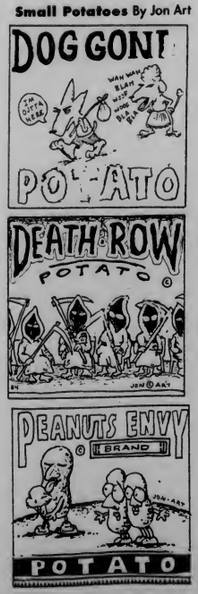
COMPANY CHEESE by Kevin TRACY
Whoa man, things are groovy. Let's spark a "J".
Whoa man, this authentic 60's outfit cost me $450.00 at the GAP Let's spark a "J".
Amherst, 1969.
Amherst, 1996.

Life In General By Meredith

Without Porpoise By Kennet Dall

C'MON JD, WE NEED TO WARM UP FOR DRUMCIRCLE.
I GOT BETTER THINGS TO DO.
JUST TRY IT, SO YOU AT LEAST KNOW WHAT IT'S LIKE.
Fine!
WHAM!
THERE I HIT IT. NOW I'M GONNA GO GET A REAL HIT.

Small Potatoes By Jon Art



Write for Arts & Living
Contact Tara MK Connelly
545-1361

Collegian Comics, so funny we forgot to laugh.

Multicultural Affairs Needs Writers!
If you're interested in writing call
Lisa Chiu at 545-3500

Random Comic By Guest Artist

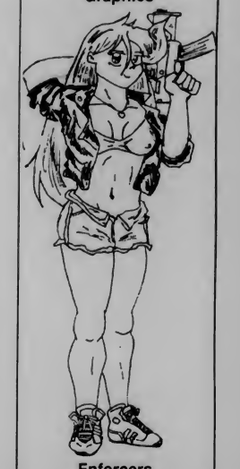
Today's Staff

Night Editor.Tara "German chocolate"Connelly
Copy Editor....Mike "Artichoke Heart" MacLean
Photo Technician.....Ryan "T-Bone" Tiezzi
Production Supervisor ....Jeff "420 Dank"Hodge
Production.....Candice "Spam" Flemming
.....Rob "Pass the Pepto" Snow

Today's D.C. Menu

Is not Available.
Don't cry!
Call 5-2626

Collegian Graphics



Enforcers of Justice

Quote of the Day

"I always say you want a man who can fix the toilet. ."

–Pamela Anderson Lee

Sports

Sports Notice

Intramural Men's Basketball Championship played in the Curry Hicks Cage on your cable network — Housing Services Cable Network — Today through Saturday, April 27 at 11 p.m.; Sunday, April 28 at 9 p.m.

Softball sweeps LaSalle, Fordham; UConn next

By Fred Hurlbrink, Jr.
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts dominance in the Atlantic-10 continued this weekend as the Minutewomen of the diamond won four games on the road, sweeping double headers against LaSalle and Fordham and extending their unbeaten streak to an awesome 22 games.

Pitching was again the story as the UMass staff allowed just two runs in the four games (not average, total!), and only one of the two was earned coming in Dani Ortega's first start of the season, game two against Fordham on Sunday.

Ortega, the Minutewomen's third pitcher, threw tremendously well in her first starting stint going six innings while giving up three hits. Two of the three Ram raps came from Fordham's number three hitter Kathy Andrade who belted a pair of doubles, one of which drove in the only Fordham (5-24) run in the bottom of the first.

UMass (30-10-1) scored early and often in their last contest of the weekend, putting three runs on the board in the first and coasting to the decisive 10-1 slaughter.

Catcher Kelly Buckley and Amy Powell (2B) led the Massachusetts attack going a combined 7-for-7, driving in seven of the 10 Minutewoman runs.

Buckley in particular has been on a hot streak, hitting .571 (12-for-21) since switching bats after a weak comebacker in the fourth inning of the St. Josephs game on Apr. 13. Buckley scored four times, knocked a pair of doubles and even stole her fifth base of the season. The converted shortstop hasn't committed an error behind the plate since March 1.

Freshman outfielder Mandy Galas, who has been out due to an injured left ankle, drew a pinch walk in the sixth inning and stole her 15th base of the season in 16 attempts.

The Minutewomen weren't any more polite to their hosts in their first game, completely annihilating the Rams 9-0 in a five-inning mercy rule victory.

Sophomore first-sacker Kim Gutridge led the onslaught with a perfect 4-for-4 effort, plating four and scoring twice herself. Gutridge had two doubles in her four trips to the dish, extending her team-leading total to 14; she also leads the Minutewomen in batting average (.388), hits (54), total bases (73) and slugging percentage (.525).

Gutridge's A-10 marks for batting average (.405) and RBI (12) in 12 games are both merely good enough for second on the Massachusetts list as Sam Cardenas's offensive tear coincided with the beginning of the conference slate.

Hitting .459 in the A-10, Cardenas has raised her average from near the Mendoza line to .326. The junior third baseman contributed a run-scoring double in the rout.

That was more than enough support for Danielle Henderson (15-5) who posted her seventh shutout of the season, lowering her earned run average to a conference best 1.04.

Henderson scattered four singles and walked just two as she completely over-matched the weak Fordham attack.

Henderson's dominance has become even more apparent in the A-10 where she is 6-0 with practically no ERA (0.18). In her six starts, she has gone the distance five times and struck out 31 in 38 innings of work. She has allowed only one earned run to cross the plate in those 38 innings.

The Commack, N.Y. native was on the mound for the second game of Saturday's twin bill between the Minutewomen and

Turn to SOFTBALL page 7

UMass gets fourth at Atlantic 10s

By Mike Corey
Collegian Staff

Finally the weather cooperated for tennis this past weekend as the Massachusetts women's tennis team hosted the Atlantic 10 Championships. There was no snow, rain or wind, like the Minutewomen have been battling all Spring, only sunburn.

The Minutewomen battled hard every contest and ended up matching last year's finish with fourth place in this past weekend's series of matches.

"If you had told me three and a half years ago when I took this job that we would of ended up fourth in the Atlantic 10's, I would said there isn't a chance," UMass coach Judy Dixon said.

"However, after finishing fourth last year, and having such a wonderful year this year, fourth is a bit disappointing to me. I think it's also kind of disappointing to the team."

Although UMass may not have been able to fight harder in any match they played this weekend, as their effort definitely did not lack heart or intensity, they were unable to improve on last year's performance. They responded to the challenges of playing some tough teams, ones that they have not faced at all this season, and they put it all out on the line.

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

Noelle Orsini and the UMass women's tennis team placed fourth in the Atlantic 10 Championships held this weekend on the Lower Boyden courts.

Highly favored Virginia Tech took their first ever title against George Washington 4-1.

The Hokies No. 1 singles player Vanessa Pardo earned outstanding performer and outstanding rookie of the year honors for the championship, while their head coach Anne Jones was named Atlantic 10 Coach of the Year.

Xavier came in third with UMass to follow, while six seeded Duquesne beat Dayton for fifth place.

From the start, UMass was hoping to make it to Sunday, the final day of the tournament and play for the title. They did make it to Sunday, but it would be to play for third place rather than first.

Against Xavier, fourth seed in the tourney, the Minutewomen played a match with the kind of effort and desire that every coach likes to see, but it just wasn't enough for the victory. They fell to the Musketeers by a count of 4-2 suspending the last singles match as the contest was already decided.

"[Sunday] they fought so hard to try to pull this out," Dixon said. "We were [coming] from behind the whole way. You could feel it, that they just didn't want to give up."

Senior co-captain Liesl Sitton at No. 1 singles ended out her career at UMass in a dominating way, crushing Meghan Caton of Xavier in straight set shutouts, 6-0, 6-0.

However, that plus the exciting match of Marie-Christine Caron's victory over Erin Grambow, 7-5, 7-5 would be the only two points that UMass would get on the day. Earlier UMass dropped all three of its doubles matches, 8-4 in each, to lose the doubles point.

For the rest of the singles Caroline Steele at No. 2 lost 6-2, 7-5, Liz Durant was beaten 6-1, 6-1, and Noelle Orsini was defeated 7-6, 7-6 before Lana Gorodetskaya's match was called as the first set was at 6-5.

"When I finally took Lana off the court, because the match had already been decided, she was visibly upset, she wanted so much to win so it would be a 4-3 score," Dixon said.

"You could look at Noelle Orsini play and you could see how much energy was going into her desire, and Caroline [Steele] the same way, and Marie-Christine [Caron]."

"We lost the match in the double point. After the doubles point was over, we never recovered."

On Saturday, the bid of the Minutewomen to reach the finals was cut short by George Washington. The Colonials ranked at No. 2 were just a stronger team and defeated UMass 5-2.

The Minutewomen lost the doubles point again, as they dropped two of the three matches with only Caron and Gorodetskaya in the No. 3 slot winning 8-6. Sitton and Steele at No. 1, and Orsini and Durant at No. 2 fell 8-2, and 8-0 respectively.

For the singles Caron and Gorodetskaya were the winners, Caron in three sets 6-7(7-0), 6-2, 6-4 and Gorodetskaya 6-1, 6-2. Sitton lost to Lisa Shafran of GW in the No. 1 contest 6-3, 6-4.

Sitton was 1-2 on the weekend in the singles matches, winning only on Sunday, but played as hard as a senior co- captain could of done, with all the pressure, as the only senior who will be closing out her UMass career.

"I think there was an awful lot of pressure on Liesl, there wasn't anything she could do about it," Dixon said. I think nerves overtook her. It wasn't about skill, it certainly wasn't about intensity or desire, it was about wanting so much, she wanted so much to be able to do this, and to be able to pull it off for herself, for the team, for the program, for everything. Sometimes wanting it so much means that you tighten up."

Turn to WOMEN'S TENNIS, page 7

UMass set for NU in Beanpot final

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

The Massachusetts baseball team, taking part in their first Beanpot Championship, take on the Northeastern Huskies in the finals today at noon in Fenway Park.

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

For over 40 years, the Beanpot Tournament has been a mainstay in Boston-area college hockey. When the idea for a baseball Beanpot was proposed, it was decided that the competition format would be the same as its highly successful hockey counterpart.

With the inaugural tournament in 1990, the same four hockey schools were invited: Harvard, Boston College, Northeastern and Boston University. Following the 1995 season BU dropped baseball from its athletic program. Its replacement in the tournament will be Massachusetts.

While some people may disagree with the idea of not having a Boston, or even a eastern Mass., school replace the Terriers, the University of Massachusetts squad is comfortable as the Beanpot rookie.

When a fan in the stands at Fenway Park (where the annual tournament is held), asked UMass centerfielder Nate Murphy why the Minutemen were invited to the event, Murphy wasted no time delivering his answer.

"Because we're good," he said.

And that they are.

In today's championship game against Northeastern (9-17, 5-7 North Atlantic), the Minutemen will get the chance to bring home a trophy from their first ever Beanpot.

In the first round of the tourney, UMass (23-9, 11-5 Atlantic 10) humiliated a hapless Harvard team, 13-2. In the game in which nearly every player got to play, Murphy had a three-run homer

Turn to BASEBALL, page 6

Men's track edges Dartmouth, finish season undefeated

By Jay Warner
Collegian Staff

In a tight finish to the end, the Massachusetts Minutemen wrapped up an undefeated season on Saturday at Northeastern University with a quad-meet win over the Huskies, Dartmouth and Rhode Island. Finishing with a total of 64 points, the Minutemen barely beat out Dartmouth, who finished with 63 points. URI and Northeastern rounded out the scoring with point totals of 47 and 31, respectively.

Massachusetts coach Ken O'Brien anticipated that the meet would come down to the wire, but the results were not what he would have expected.

"I went into the meet anticipating a close match between all four teams, certainly giving Dartmouth the nod," O'Brien said. "As things transpired, I was pleasantly surprised that we came out on top. They had beaten us indoor already this year."

Similar to past outings, the Minutemen used their depth and balance to offset seven first place finishes by Dartmouth, who appeared to have the upper hand in the field events. O'Brien, aware that Dartmouth and URI were similar in terms of depth, was thankful that his entire squad showed up with hopes of taking the win. Overall, 22 Minutemen scored points, 17 of which registered their seasonal best performances in 9 separate events.

"We had more kids, in this meet, fulfill their maximum potential in their particular events," O'Brien said. "Additionally, the teams we faced this weekend are known for their depth and breadth of coverage over all the events, as opposed to the past teams we faced who were strong in some events and weak in others. We matched up strength versus strength and came out on top."

Asked whether there was one particular event that turned the table in favor of the Minutemen, coach O'Brien was quick to point out that Massachusetts had a variety of kids who helped fuel the win.

"There were five events (100, 200, 110 hurdles, 400 hurdles, and 4 X 100 relay) spaced out through the meet that were important," said O'Brien. "With a one point win I don't think you can look back at the match and say that one particular event swung the meet."

Leading the way for the Minutemen was freshman Tom Toye who took the blue ribbon in the 100 and 200 meter sprints with times of 10.86 and 21.80 seconds, respectively. Each of these times placed him fourth all-time in UMass history in each of those events. This type of performance has come to be expected from this fabulous freshman.

"In track it is easy to make an evaluation as to how quickly a high school athlete can make a contribution on the collegiate level in comparison to other sports," O'Brien added. "100 meters in high school is 100 meters in college. However, there is the aspect of an 18-year old versus a 21- year old. With Tom, it was apparent that with his abilities in high school that he could step in and contribute immediately and he completely obliterated the experience gap."

Another freshman playing a prominent role in the victory was triple-jump specialist Andre Roach. Roach finished third in the event with a jump of 45-feet-7 1/4-inches, also qualifying him to compete in the New England Championships.

Senior co-captain Marc Lefebvre provided the Minutemen with a key points in the shot put, where he posted a second place finish with a throw of 49-feet-3-inches. Lefebvre also took third place in the discus with a toss of 154-feet-11- inches, sixth best all-time at UMass, and qualified him for the New England Championships.

Other New England qualifiers included freshman Ben Baraldi who won the 110 meter hurdles with a time of 15.03 seconds, placing him eighth on the UMass all-time list. Junior mid-distance runner Paul Blodorn qualified for the N.E. Championships in the 800 meter with a time of 1:54.09, placing second in the race. Freshman jumper Alberto Vasquez claimed second place in the pole vault with a height of 14 feet. Despite not qualifying for any future competition, Vasquez' jump placed him in a fourth place tie on UMass all-time list.

A select few members of the Massachusetts team will travel to Philadelphia this weekend to compete in the Penn Relays, the world's largest track meet.

Osgood starts for Wings; Lightning strikes Philly; Casey's return to 1990?

As the days of final exam anxiety approach, just wondering how you did on the big test of the NHL season.

The 84-game grind was your lecture hall, and the first week of the playoffs was the chance to prove your knowledge. Here's your belated study guide.

Anything Mats Sundin can do, Gino Odjick can do, too.

Only an injury can keep Chris Osgood down, while nothing can accomplish that task for Mike Vernon's goals- against average.

Kottler on the NHL

If ever a team amounted to less than the sum of its parts, it was the Toronto Maple Leafs.

The more that is made of a player's durability, the greater his chances of getting hurt.

Stopping the Penguins' power play means you can beat them with surprising ease.

Goaltending is often the difference in a series, as it has been thus far between Philadelphia and Tampa Bay. But not in the expected way.

Sometimes, when all seems for naught, the key to the future does something in the present that will always be a happy memory of the past.

• OK, let's elaborate. Sundin, whose nose for the net is like Opus the penguin's of the Bloom County comic strip, scored two goals (including the game winner) to knot Toronto's series with the Blues at one game apiece. Odjick, whose nose has been broken more times than it's sniffed out a goal, also potted a pair that gave Vancouver a split in Colorado.

The odds of that happening are roughly equal to the odds of Winnipeg winning the Stanley Cup.

No, the Jets won't even win a series, but they doused the Redhot Wings 4-1 Sunday before a near-sellout crowd of 15,393. The only reason there were 151 no-shows is that those folks couldn't get Jets jerseys, which were required attire for the faithful, or so it seemed. (Then again, it's better to wait, since they'll be in the bargain basement real soon.) The winning goal? A snappy one-timer off the stick of teen Chad Kilger, who just might make franchise fans forget Teemu Selanne.

Problem is, no one in Phoenix ever heard of Selanne in the first place. They all must think he's the lone Finnish golfer on the PGA Tour.

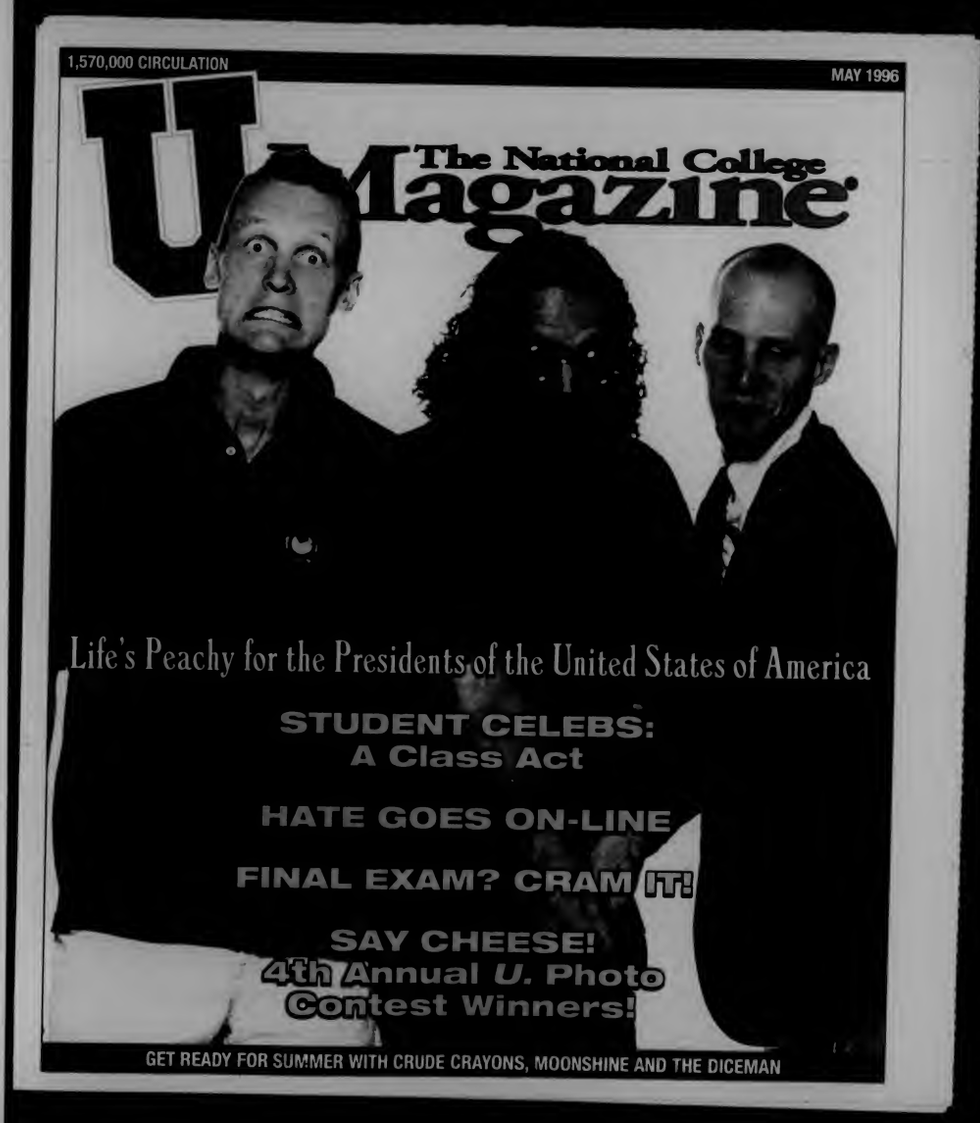
• That Scotty Bowman sure is sneaky. With Vernon expected to man the pipes for the series opener against Winnipeg, out comes Osgood and in went one puck in two games for the Jets.

Osgood couldn't play Sunday, so it was Vernon's turn, and it was Winnipeg's turn to light the lamp. Their four goals came on just 25 shots. That's a nice save percentage of .840. Osgood should be ready for game 4, sure to be the last in the good old barn in Winnipeg. Let the Rush tunes crank and enjoy the good ice. It will always be mushy in Phoenix.

• What do you suppose Maple Leafs coach Nick Beverley told goaltender Felix Potvin during the 25 seconds in which he was relieved by Don Beaupre? The move was explained as a means to calm Potvin down. Sort of like Andy Panda's dad had to do when his high blood pressure acted up and he would count to 10 (we're sticking with the cartoon theme in this space today). Well, there's nothing worse than a goalie returning to action after being pulled and getting the red- light sunburn again, which is what happened. The momentum of Glenn Anderson's overtime goal could be sufficient to push St. Louis into the second round.

And isn't that a shock considering that goalie Grant Fuhr, immovable from the nets all year, got knocked out for the duration in game 2? The Blues will probably draw Detroit in round two, at which point Jon Casey either plays like he's five years younger (not

Turn to NHL, page 6



The Chevrolet Emblem and Cavalier are registered trademarks of the GM Corp. ©1995 GM Corp. All Rights Reserved. Buckle up, America! • For more information call 1-800-950-CAV96.

USA

Proud Sponsor of the 1996 U.S. Olympic Team

It Has Lights Designed To Improve Everyone Else's Driving.

Once upon a time, all you needed was a cool car at a good price. But things change. Now you're looking for a car you can trust. You're looking for dependability, affordability and safety; all in a neat, sporty package. Think about it. That's asking a lot from a car. Enter the Cavalier. It's sensible, stylish and comes complete with one of today's latest safety features: Automatic Daytime Running Lamps. They illuminate automatically when you turn on the ignition, to help make it easier for you to be seen. So whatever the driving conditions, you can be sure that we're there to look out for you. And what else would you expect? We're Genuine Chevrolet.

Cavalier Genuine Chevrolet

SHELDON JACKSON COLLEGE ◆ SITKA, ALASKA

Nature and education combine to offer you an unparalleled learning experience.

Let Sheldon Jackson College get you pointed in the right direction!

Active participation in our smaller classes will help you to establish goals, to gain insight into who you are, and to decide what you want out of life.

Located between mountains and the Pacific Ocean, our campus is surrounded by breathtaking scenery.

The Sheldon Jackson College campus (right foreground) sits on the edge of downtown Sitka and the wilds of Southeast Alaska.

Areas of Emphasis

Natural Resource Management & Development
- Resource Management
- Outdoor Recreation

Teacher Preparation Programs:
- Elementary Education
- Secondary Education
  - Language Arts
  - Math/Science
  - Social Science

Aquatic Resources
- Aquaculture
- Fisheries
- Marine Biology

Business Administration

Interdisciplinary Studies

Liberal Arts
- Humanities
- Human Services

For more information, please call or write:

1-800-478-4556

Office of Admissions, Sheldon Jackson College, 801 Lincoln Street, Sitka, Alaska 99835
Fax: 907/ 747-6366, e-mail: tndac@acad1.alaska.edu

U Magazine

The Newsstand of a college

U (YOU) IS AUTHENTIC (a la ORIGINAL, a the most widely read alternative and entertainment magazine among 18- to 34-year-old college-educated young adults. Editorial content focuses on the diverse interests, activities, attitudes and concerns of students attending four-year colleges and universities. U's statistically reliable, editorial study each year hosts top graduating seniors, read campus newspapers, commissions original articles and photographs by the best student journalists and maximizes an ongoing dialogue via the Internet and U Voice line with students at hundreds of campuses nationwide

PUBLISHER & EDITORIAL DIRECTOR
GAYLE MORRIS SWEETLAND

EDITOR
HEINRICH HUFFMAN

ASSISTANT EDITORS
TRICIA LAPINE COLORADO STATE U. '95
ROBERT MANKER EASTERN ILLINOIS U. '95
SHAG POWERS MICHIGAN STATE U. '95
GOLDEN RUSH BUSHNELL U. '95

ART DIRECTOR
DAVE DRUM

ADVISORY COUNCIL
DR. DAVID L. ADAMS INDIANA U.
W. B. CAREY UCLA (EMP.)
DR. JAY T. CHEVERTON TEXAS TECH U.
MONA CRAVENS U. OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA
MARC GOODMAN STUDENT PRESS LAW CENTER
DR. LEE HEFFER EASTERN ILLINOIS U.
KATHY LAWRENCE U. OF TEXAS, AUSTIN
RICHARD C. LYTLE SOUTHERN METHODIST U.
LEIGH MARCHANT NICHOLLS STATE U.
DR. FRANK ROGERS OREGON STATE U.
DR. J. DAVID REED EASTERN ILLINOIS U.
TOM RUNNELS ASSOCIATED COLLEGIATE PRESS
RICHARD SCHEFF '92 PAST PRESIDENT, CMA
MARTHA SPERRY MICHIGAN STATE U.
CHUCK STONE U. OF NORTH CAROLINA
LOU WEHMER NORTHWEST MISSOURI ST. U.

ADVERTISING SALES OFFICES

Main Office
1800 CENTURY PARK EAST, SUITE 820
LOS ANGELES, CA 90067
TEL. (310) 551-1481
FAX (310) 551-1699 OR 552-0836

WEB SITE: HTTP://WWW.UMAGAZINE.COM
E-MAIL: EDITORIAL@UMAGAZINE.COM
ADVERTISING: ADSALES@UMAGAZINE.COM
CONTESTS: CONTEST@UMAGAZINE.COM
CIRCULATION: CIRC@UMAGAZINE.COM
GENERAL INQUIRIES: UMAG@UMAGAZINE.COM / UMAGAZINE@AOL.COM

PUBLISHER GAYLE MORRIS SWEETLAND
VICE PRESIDENT THOMAS J. MITCHELL
MARKETING SERVICES DIRECTOR MELISSA E. ALGATE
OPERATIONS DIRECTOR KEVAUGHN RYAN
CIRCULATION MANAGER TROY MATTHEW-HOLBERT
ENTERTAINMENT AD DIRECTOR PASTRAY GAYTHER
CLASSIFIED AD SALES MELISSA E. ALGATE
ASSISTANT TO PUBLISHER MARIETTE MERCADO
RECEPTIONIST ROSA SINGH

New York
U MAGAZINE, 170 E. 61ST ST., SUITE 400
NEW YORK, NY 10021
TEL. (212) 980-2800 FAX (212) 980-2811
CAROLE RYNSTOW, EASTERN MKTG. SERVICES MGR.

Midwest & Detroit
JOE GUNTHNER, PETER GUNTHER
TEL. (312) 335-9001 FAX (312) 335-8578

Dallas
PAT GANZ, NANCY WELCH
TEL. (214) 991-4994 FAX (214) 991-4995

San Francisco/Pacific Northwest
PATRICK DOYLE
TEL. (415) 777-4383 FAX (415) 777-4385

AMERICAN COLLEGIATE NETWORK INC.
CHAIRMAN & PRESIDENT GAYLE MORRIS SWEETLAND
CONTROLLER LYNN SCOTTO

U is published nine times a year and printed in the U.S.A. on recyclable paper. Subscriptions are $18.
Copyright© 1996 U Magazine and U The National College Magazine are registered trademarks of American Collegiate Network, Inc. All Rights Reserved.

PLEASE RECYCLE U.

ABC

QUICKIES / Our Concession to Your Attention Span

6 Lively campus anecdotes with a sparkling drop of retsin.

U. VIEWS / The Campus Dialogue

8 U. Mail, editorial cartoon and saline-enhanced poll responses.

U. NEWS / It's never gonna heal if you keep picking at it.

10 15 Minutes, The Buzz, men dressed like women and the forbidden dance. U. Lose, Byte Me and stuff that hasn't been seen in many, many moons.

U. LIFE / Stop rough-housing; you're gonna poke someone's eye out.

12 Etc. / Web of Hate
The Internet has opened up a whole new billboard for people with messages of hate. What should be done about this proliferation of hate, no one knows. Don't you hate tough decisions?

12 Offbeat / Life is But a Dream
What could be more calming than the sound of the waves crashing up against the shore? Well, some think sitting in a dark tank on a bed of salt water is right up there. It's called flotation therapy, and a lot of students are taking the plunge.

13 Pulse / Coffee, Tea... or Herbal Ecstacy?
What gives you a buzz and is perfectly legal? No, not the latest Debbie Gibson album. It's Herbal Ecstacy. The faux drug's effectiveness is still a question mark, but it's all the rave at raves.

13 In-play / The Name Game
The debate about the political correctness of college mascots is still a hot topic. Names like Seminoles, Braves and Fighting Illini are drawing some ire from the denizens of PCU.

FEATURES / Clean your plate. There are starving people in Africa, you know.

14 Star-studded Students
No, they're not researching the role of college student for their next TV movie of the week. These famous actors are actually attending classes and earning degrees. Imagine having Joey Lawrence in your study group. Whoa!

15 Know Your Enemy
What happens when she says "NO!" and he hears "NOW!"? Alcohol and drugs don't help with the deciphering. Hear some real-life encounters with the gray areas that surround date rape.

COVER STORY

17 Like 'Em or Lump It
The three members of the Presidents of the United States of America don't have famous faces like their brethren on Mount Rushmore, but just give them a couple years. Fun songs about fun things have kitty-catapulted the Presidents to the forefront of rock, where they hope to stay for at least fourscore and seven years.

16 Cram It!
The big test is tomorrow. A big textbook has been left untouched. The big pot of coffee is percolating. The big hand is inching closer to 3 a.m. A big heart attack is on the way. Argh! Calm down. Chill out. U. Magazine has cramming tips from professional procrastinators.

R+R / Rock 'n' Reel

18 Rock
You can't spell music without U., so enjoy the music reviews, plus Pocket Band, Our Picks and the U. radio chart.

19 Reel
A bewitching cauldron of reviews, plus a "very Brady" Reel Deal and a deadly Screen Saver.

20 Say Cheese!
What will starving students do for $1,000? Jump out of airplanes, climb mountains, even frolic in the mud. You name it, the winners of the 4th Annual U. Photo Contest did it!

WRAP / When the Going Gets Stuff, the Stuff Gets Going

23 A lot of junk can be acquired in a lifetime of college. Rational students become irrational packers. Coffee table? Get rid of it! Beer-stained, life-size, cardboard cut-out of Elle Macpherson? Keep it!

GUEST EXPERT / Andrew Dice Clay

You came to love him — or hate him — as the Diceman. Sure, he dropped the "Dice" and was just a man when prime-time TV came a-courtin'. But that didn't last long. Now Andrew Dice Clay is back with a new HBO comedy special, and he's dicier than ever. And we're not just saying that because of his renowned talent with Ginsu knives.

COVER PHOTO COURTESY OF COLUMBIA RECORDS

May 1996

This flotation therapy is all wet.
Page 12

For Kellie, college life goes on.
Page 14

The new Mount Rushmore.
Page 17

Campus Shots

She's used to weight gain. She adds 200 pounds with every shower.

PHOTO BY SHARON NIKEARJAN, COLUMBIA U.

QUICKIES

Illustrations by Shin Kao, U. of California, Berkeley

ANIMAL ABUSE
Northern Illinois U.

Is smacking a lovable, fuzzy cartoon socially acceptable? Apparently not, but that didn't stop an NIU student from decking Tony the Tiger during a theme night in the dining hall. The disgruntled cereal-eater popped the parading puss in the face and knocked the head sideways, according to witnesses. Fortunately, the force of the blow did not hurt the woman inside the costume, but a witness to the crime says Tony "hunted the guy down for a while" and "was swearing a lot." What's next? Wrestling Cap'n Crunch?

FIT TO BE TIED
U. of North Carolina

Both Seth Nore and Ian Walsh were running for the coveted position of president of the Carolina Athletic Association. Both were able candidates, and both stood behind strong platforms. Both had loyal followings, and both were prepared to do the best job possible. Both also ended the campaign with 1,565 votes. The unfathomable electoral gridlock had to be resolved in a runoff, which Nore won by almost 100 votes. But Walsh did walk away with a lovely runner-up gift — a necktie. Students didn't seem very interested in the outcome. In fact, they had what you might call a six of one, half dozen of the other attitude about it.

CLASSMATE
Millikin U., Ill.

Would you actually show up to class if the syllabus said "chess day" on the class schedule. Yeah, right! Who ever thought that playing chess would be a course requirement? No, this isn't a class on gaming. It's a business class. A professor of management-information systems at Millikin requires chess as a brain teaser of sorts. He says it's great for honing analytical skills and that the students really like the chess games — imagine that. In fact, he says, one student liked it so much she went out and bought herself a chessboard. Guess she's not planning to be a pawn in the corporate world.

KEEP YOUR CHIN UP
Loyola U., Ill.

Jay Leno not scholarly enough? C'mon — really! That's what students at Loyola U. said when they heard administrators had invited the late-night host to speak at the university's 125th anniversary celebration in September. A spokesperson for Loyola said the students felt the university should have someone more "cerebral" than a talk show host/comedian. Leno backed out of the engagement when he heard about the complaints and issued a statement saying he would gladly accept any speaking offers from the school in the future.

MOVE OVER, BABE
Southwest Texas U.

In 1994, Southwest Texas purchased an aquatic theme park located near campus. Now the park is being converted into a nonprofit extension of the campus. That means students must say a teary goodbye to the park's featured attraction — Ralph the swimming pig. Ralph had to put his curly tail between his legs and plod off to muddier pastures. A recent exchange between irate students and iron-fisted bureaucrats has raised new hope. "Will we ever have the aquatic park back?" cried the students. "When pigs swim," replied the higher-ups.

DOG-GONE IT
U. of New Mexico

A burglar's booty doesn't drink from the toilet. Well, OK, in this case, maybe it does. At UNM, campus police report No. 96-295 listed an unusual, but furry, theft. Type of item stolen: dog. Make: female. Model: Chihuahua. The $250 Chihuahua, along with a purse and jacket, were swiped from a car parked at the UNM hospital. There are no suspects in the canine caper. However, McGruff the Crime Dog urges anyone with information in the puppy pilferage to come forward and "take a bite out of crime."

HOT HEAD
Northeastern U., Mass.

Sounds a little urban myth-y to us, but check this out: Northeastern student goes to the grocery store on an unusually hot day. In the parking lot, student notices an older woman sitting in a car with the window up, holding her hands behind her head. After an hour of shopping, student leaves the store and sees woman still sitting in the car, still holding her head and majorly sweating. Student asks woman if she needs some help. "Yes, I have been shot in the back of the head, and I'm holding my brains in," woman says. Student calls an ambulance. When EMTs remove woman's hands, they discover that her "brains" are actually a piece of dough shot from a Pillsbury dough can that exploded in the back seat. Very hot and confusing day.

BUG PIE
U. of California, Davis

You'd send your pizza back at most restaurants if you discovered it had bugs on it, right? Well in the UC, Davis, Entomology 111 class, you'd likely send it back if it didn't. Andy McClelland's students partake of the crunchy cuisine as part of their "bug feast" while they study the effect insects have on humans. We know, we can imagine a few of the effects ourselves, but McClelland says bugs are actually on the menu in countries around the globe. In addition to pizza, the daring student-chefs are also bugging their brownies, cookies and spinach quiche. But what do you use to wash it down? Bug Light?

BIRD IS THE WORD
Georgia Institute of Technology

Each spring, college campuses are caught up in the fervor of elections for student body president. We at U. Magazine monitor all the races and choose the man or woman we think would best serve any university. Our criteria for president is onefold: You must have the weirdest name of any candidate. This year's unanimous winner hails from the Georgia Institute of Technology, and his name is: (drum roll please) BIRD BLITCH. We'll understand if you don't believe us, but that's honestly his name. Congratulations, Bird. For your efforts we will provide you with some slogans: Let's Give This Town the Bird, He's Fly Like a Bird, or the ever-popular Life's a Blitch.

POISON IVY
Princeton U.

James Hogue wants to be an Ivy Leaguer reeeally bad. So bad that even after being kicked out of Princeton five years ago for using a false identity to gain acceptance, he returned again — with a brand spanking new false name. In February 1996, a grad student who recognized Hogue blew the whistle when he saw him in the campus computer center. The 36-year-old con man had finagled $22,000 in financial aid from Princeton back in 1989 by claiming to be a self-educated orphan from the West. The jig was up when a Yale U. student spotted him running in a track meet in 1991 and remembered him from high school in California. To make matters worse, five months after he was paroled, Hogue was back in the slammer for stealing $50,000 worth of gems from a Harvard U. museum. Who needs a résumé when you've got a rap sheet?

VANDEMONIUM
U. of Kansas

Kansas senior Rob Grondahl wanted to make his Volkswagen van stick out from the rest. So, he decided to paint it like the beloved Mystery Machine driven by everyone's favorite cartoon sleuths, the Scooby Doo gang. And he would've gotten away with it, too, if a couple of meddling kids hadn't come to town. "OK, Shaggy, take off his mask and we'll see who this Grondahl character really is. Zoinks! It's Mr. Thompson, the crotchety old man who runs the abandoned mine." Scooby snacks all around.

MAIL CALL
Depraved U., USA

Internet users have been filling Anna Nicole Smith's mailbox regularly. Since her Web site (http://www.annalive.com) debuted late last year, the buxom beauty's cybercups overfloweth with several million hits per month — mainly from collegiate computer users. The top 15 colleges — by volume — sending e-mail to the former Playboy Playmate of the Year are: U. of Texas, Austin; Texas A&M U.; U. of Kentucky; U. of Massachusetts, Amherst; U. of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; Duke U.; U. of Tennessee; U. of Michigan; U. of Iowa; U. of Georgia, Athens; U. of Maryland; Florida State U.; U. of Florida; North Carolina State U.; and U. of Pittsburgh. Don't deny it guys (well, maybe girls, too). You know who you are.

get some

Yes, Sheik is a Durex condom, the world's best selling brand. No, you're not single-handedly responsible.

Every Sheik entwines universe-stomping strength with silky smooth sensitivity. So get down. Get funky. Get back up again. And then go get some.

U. VIEWS

Sold Out

I just want to say hats off to U. Magazine for saying what we've all been thinking for a long time now: MTV has gone to the dogs ["My So-Called MTV," April 1996].

Don't the people at MTV have a clue? I'm so disappointed in the execs at MTV for selling out and replacing the music with junk. If I wanted to watch shows, I'd turn to the networks. And sadly enough, even CBS is doing a better job than MTV from where my remote control and I sit.

Amy Runyan, senior, U. of Texas, Austin

Women Entitled

I was very offended by "Title What?" [April 1996]. It was so biased toward the protection of men's athletics that it misses the point of having Title IX. Women's athletics deserve the same funding that is often too generously bestowed upon the guys. This story is once again telling women athletes that they aren't as important as their male counterparts. Let's face it, if administrators had been fair in funding in the beginning, this problem would never have existed. The female athletes don't deserve to be painted as the villains. They don't get enough support as it is.

Melissa Bowman, sophomore, U. of Kansas

Kinda Rank

In response to "The Rating Game" [March 1996], I think that U.S. News and World Report rankings are fairly accurate. Universities that are usually in the lower rankings often do not have excellent facilities such as good health services and good libraries. While at the same time, they have few publications by their faculty. In addition, undergraduate students often don't graduate within the 4–6 year period allotted. It's easy to whine about the low rankings, especially if your school comes in at the bottom. What these administrators should do is spend less time making up excuses and more time trying to improve the academic conditions at their universities. I fully support the U.S. News and World Report rankings and think they should be used as incentive to improve the low-ranked institutions.

Stephen B. Ibabirye, graduate student, Northern Arizona U.

Big Headed

Thank you for your story on Calvin and Hobbes — the best comic strip of all times, ["Stripped," March 1996]. As a huge fan of Bill Watterson, I was sad to see him go. I recently bought the Calvin and Hobbes Tenth Anniversary Book [Andrews and McMeel]. After reading about Watterson's problems with his Sunday strip and his insistence that he receive more space and freedom, I must say that he seems to be quite egotistical about his strip. It's too bad that we've all lost such a great comic strip, but it's also too bad that the creator of the strip removed it for what seem to be selfish, commercial reasons.

Amy Hope Pickens, sophomore, Illinois State U.

Quick Fix

I just wanted to compliment you on what seems to be everyone's favorite section — Quickies. I personally think that you could devote a whole column to the craziness that goes on here at U. of Northern Colorado. But it's great to read up on all of the other college maniacs around the nation. Keep up the good reporting!

Ben Scherlin, junior, U. of Northern Colorado

Kudos

I think that Glenn McDonald has the best column [Wrap] in the country. Could you give me some more information on him?

Anand Shah, sophomore, Cornell U.

Glenn's last (sniff, sniff) Wrap column for U. Magazine appears on page 23 of this issue. He is currently living in San Francisco and is looking for work. Got any leads? — ed.

Outta Sight

Why is the photo contest in the very back of the magazine [March 1996]? Having the contest is a good idea, but the photos are too small. If you're going to host such a contest, you should at least reward the winners with a full page in the magazine.

Mark McKelvey, freshman, Illinois State University

A full page? How about two full pages? And more! Check out pages 20–22 for this year's winners. The photos you're referring to were the monthly winners. — ed.

Ole Mifted

I think the "Sub-Standard Subs at Ole Miss" story [March 1996] is unfair. As a senior at Ole Miss, I've been exposed to the program twice. Both times my professors announced in advance that they planned to have a guest speaker. Both times attendance was optional, and once, extra credit was offered for attendance. In addition, students who planned to attend were allowed to pick a topic that interested them. Your story was sloppy and one-sided. Our administration should be cheered for their efforts to further educate Old Miss students through a variety of topics.

Wendy Hollingsworth, senior, U. of Mississippi

Middleman

As a faithful reader of U., I can't keep quiet about the glowing error you made in "The Buzz" [March 1996]. You said that Michael Kearney is attending Tennessee State U. The fact of the matter is that he's attending Middle Tennessee State U. We are a Division I school and proud member of the Ohio Valley Conference. We take great pride in our rivalry with Tennessee State.

Sean T. Jewett, Middle Tennessee State U.

Egg on our Face

Thanks to all the concerned egg patrollers who wrote in about the 2,403-pound goose egg [Double Take, April 1996]. Specifically, The Goose's egg was actually 24 ounces — or 24 oz., which looks a lot like 2403 to an overworked assistant editor.

ILLUSTRATION BY BRIAN FARRINGTON, ARIZONA STATE U.

GOSH, WITH RISING INFLATION, BARGAIN CUTS, AND GRADE INFLATION, THINGS ARE GETTING TOUGH FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS.
JUST HOW DO YOU EXPECT US TO POSSIBLY SURVIVE?

Do you support affirmative action?

Yes: 54%
No: 46%

I think it's helped many minorities and women get to positions they couldn't get to in the past. Rashawnda Mixon, freshman, Grambling State U., La. • At one time, this country needed to be spurred into hiring minorities, but affirmative action has become self-defeating. To fill quotas, American companies are often handicapped by not being able to hire the best applicant. Chris Nichols, grad student, U. of Nevada, Las Vegas • I support affirmative action, but not in its entirety. I think it needs to be changed according to the times. Keddie Jones, sophomore, Auburn U., Ala. • Balance in everything is key, and the people who created affirmative action policies were out of balance in their quest for a good thing. Tim Smith, senior, Eastern Michigan U. • I think affirmative action is the most blatant form of racism since slavery. Jason Wright, senior, U. of Texas, San Antonio • It's a big crock. Everyone who goes to school has a chance to get an education. William Logue, sophomore, Salem State College, Mass. • The most qualified should get the job. Period. Brandon Muller, freshman, Ohio State U.

Would you ever get plastic surgery?

Yes: 44%
No: 56%

I think people who [get plastic surgery] aren't comfortable with themselves. Trying to change outward appearance does nothing for the inner person who has to deal with the outside. Michael Grantham, senior, Middle Tennessee State U. • It would depend on the circumstances. If I got in an accident and got many scars, of course. Otherwise, it would depend on how much money it would cost. Stephen Ebanks, senior, Bowling Green State U., Ohio • I like myself just the way I am. If God had intended me to look different, I would. It is sad that society is sending youth the message that in order to be accepted, everyone has to be perfect. Pamela Baldassari, State U. of New York, Albany • I've had my nose straightened once and hope to have it operated on again to make it smaller. If it makes you feel better, and you have the money, do it. Brandon Smith, freshman, Virginia Tech • I would not get plastic surgery. I believe in accepting yourself as you are. Chad Halsey, senior, Michigan State U. • I would never get plastic surgery because it's stupid. God put me here the way I am, and that's the way I should stay — unless I was in a bad car accident and didn't have a choice. De'Latra Brooks, sophomore, Grambling State U.

U. Polls

Dole or Clinton?

Vegetarian or meat-eater?

800/6U-VIEWS (888-4397)

Can't get enough poll questions?

Want to ask your own poll questions? You can. All you have to do is visit the U. Views section of our Web site at http://www.umagazine.com

VROOM, VROOM. SCREEEECH.

I used to think I had quick reflexes, but that was before two months of guerrilla car shopping numbed my senses. I should have seen him sliding toward me. I should have seen the telltale gold tooth catching in the afternoon light; the fiercely tailored suit, mauve shirt and matching tasseled loafers; the oily hair, just barely outshining the tooth.

All the indicators were there. I should have seen him coming, and I should have run like hell.

But I was trapped. I was in a weakened state. I accidentally made eye contact. He was in my blind spot.

So there I was. Stuck in the front seat of a tormented Volkswagen, listening to Ed The Used Car Salesman tell me that the tears in the seats, the bald tires and the hole in the top gave the car character.

And Ed-from-the-8-bazillionth-dealership-I-had-been-to was about to make it worse. He was on the verge of sending me over car-shopper's edge.

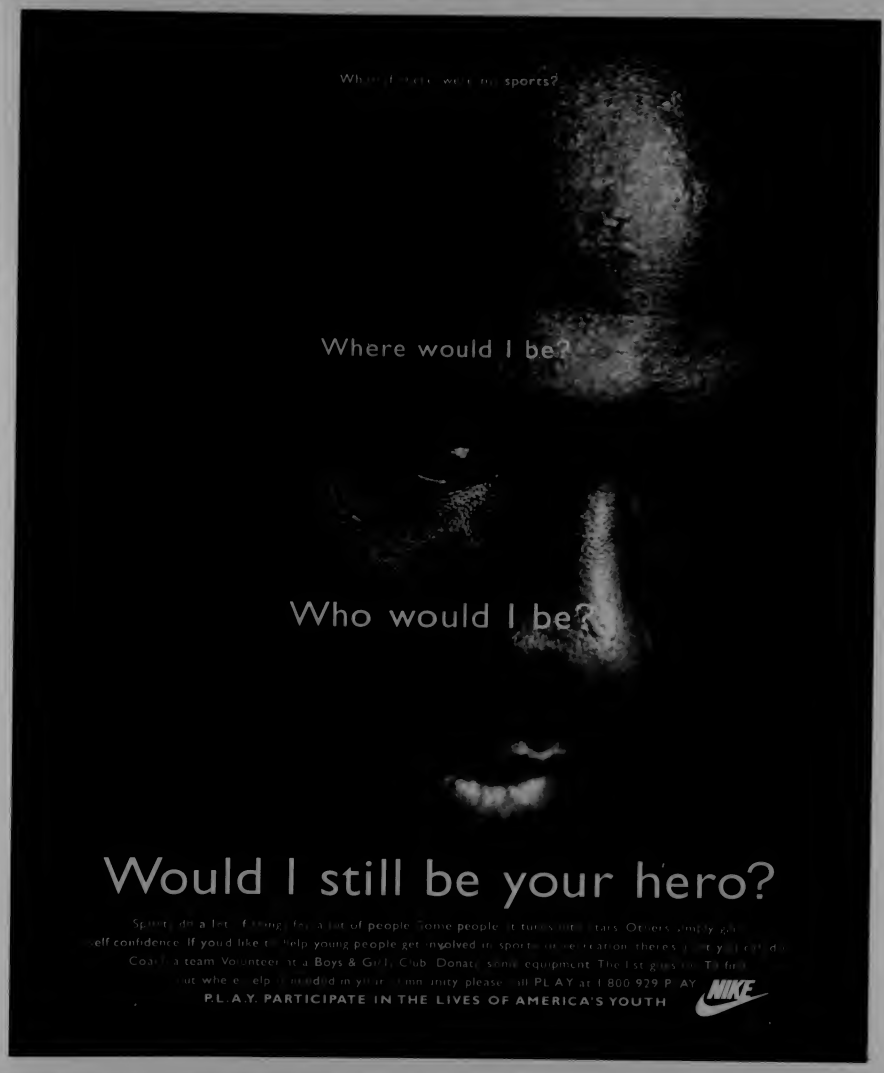
You know — the edge. The place I inched toward as I surrendered my demands and dignity. No five speeds? Um, I guess an automatic will do (inch). You're right. A cassette player is extravagant. Besides, I like AM jam (inch, inch). This car is 12 years old and it's only got 700 miles on it. Wow (inch).

"Now this is the car for you," he oozed. "A pretty young girl like you needs to have a convertible. And listen to this... (engine grinds, wheezes, starts with a hideous roar). Listen to that sporty-sounding muffler."

A sporty-sounding muffler?

I'd have settled for something with wheels and a driver's seat.

Colleen Rush, Assistant Editor



U. NEWS

Holy Rock-n-Rollers

STUDENTS AT BAYLOR U., TEXAS, KICKED OFF THEIR Sunday shoes in April for the first time in the history of the Baptist school's 150-year-old ban on dancing on campus.

And depending on what side of the fence you sir on, the day was either a Texas two-step in the right direction or a fast tango to hell's disco inferno.

"It's about time," says junior Sandra Plaza. "This is definitely going to be a part of Baylor history."

But religious conservatives across the nation, particularly Southern Baptist ministers, are blasting the decision.

Bill Merrell, a spokesman for the Southern Baptists Convention in Nashville, is one of the more outspoken opponents of the ban's reversal.

"I haven't heard anyone say [dancing] is a way ro draw closer to God," Merrell said in a Los Angeles Times story.

But Plaza says Baylor's new president, Robert Sloan, is on the right track.

"President Sloan is incredible," Plaza says. "He knows what college students are interested in, and there have been incredible improvements and changes."

The dance, held on Baylor's all-campus "playday," Diadeloso — or Day of the Bear — featured local bands representing a variety of musical tastes.

The Haskett-Burleson Big Band won the honor of playing the first notes on campus.

"We were just tickled to death that we were chosen," says the big band's Ed Burleson. "It's a great honor."

But the dance wasn't all fun and games. Planning for the first ever on-campus dance wasn't exactly an electric slide in the park.

When the president announced the decision to reverse the ban, local and national media latched onto Sloan's casual mention that "lewd gyrations" would not be allowed.

Junior Collin Cox, the student body president, insists that the hubbub about the phrase was all for naught.

"Banning lewd gyrations was never a rule," Cox says. "It was just an expression [Sloan] used, and suddenly people thought it was policy."

Ironically, the ban on dancing was never a rule either.

"The dancing rule wasn't even on the books," Cox says. "It was a tradition that administrators finally agreed to change."

Cox says the decision is likely to encourage campus interaction.

"The dances on campus will truly be all-university," he says. "It's going to be huge. We won't be able to do it every weekend, but it's good to have all-university activities three or four times a year to bring the students together."

Yeah, but how close together can they get?

Barring any disasters, the information in this story was complete and accurate at press time. — ed.

By Colleen Rush, Assistant Editor / Photos by Josh Jacquot, Baylor U., Texas

Can anyone say "Footloose"?

On the Movies

AS THE CAMERA ROLLS, THE VOICE-OVER begins, "Welcome to the Movie Show, coming to you from the University of Nevada in Las Vegas!"

Run tag line.

"Free buffet with every class."

Zoom in on two wacky college guys, Jeff Howard and David Neil, who have been dubbed the collegiate version of Siskel and Ebert.

Howard, an ex-video store owner and senior at UNLV, clowns around before settling down to review movies. Neil, also a senior and a retro hippie, plays the straight man and urges Howard to get serious.

The chemistry works. After 37 shows taped since January 1995, their Movie Show is a hit with U. Network — a satellite link of more than 100 campuses across the nation and in Europe.

"The affiliates tell us that we're the staple in all of the local programming," Howard says. "Because we're a constant — on once a week." (Check your local listing for time and channel.)

Like Siskel and Ebert, the Movie Show reviews several movies every week. But that's where the comparison ends.

"They're really boring," Howard says. "We're fun."

The show's producer, Frank Barnas, says it's the fun factor that makes the show so appealing to college students.

"Straight reviews get so boring," Barnas says. "We try to do something insanely stupid every week."

Insanely stupid includes everything from an "under the sea" episode complete with fake fish to "smell-o-vision," for which viewers were told to bring props to the screen and sniff them at the appropriate time.

In the "Movie Show from Hell" episode, the guys are condemned for a bad review and sentenced to fire, brimstone and repeated viewing of the movie Mr. Wrong.

"Hell is a Duraflame log," Barnas says. "And Mr. Wrong just sucked. It was the worst movie of the year."

Howard and Neil don't get paid for their performances, but they are hoping to take their show on the road after graduation in May. And they're enjoying their newfound fame.

"Anywhere we go we get recognized," Neil says. "People say, 'I can't believe you like that movie.'"

Barnas says he judges their popularity by the number of people who recognize Neil and Howard on the street.

"We're hoping for stalkers," Barnas says. "Stalkers would be good."

Ready to roll.

By Deidre Pike, U. of Nevada, Reno / Photo courtesy of The Movie Show.

Moon Over Reno

LOOK OUT, STANFORD U. STUDENTS AT THE U. OF Nevada, Reno, broke the Guinness record for the most simultaneous moonings in one place — and they're crack-happy about it.

Kirsten Mashinter, vice president for student programming, estimates that more than 1,000 students dropped their drawers on Feb. 7 to beat Stanford's measly 262-moon record from last June. "We were expecting about 400 people, so we were very happy and surprised when over 1,000 showed," she says.

Unlike Stanford, the UNR moon-off was no psych project. It was part of UNR's winter carnival festivities. Students shucked their skivvies and painted their buns for one reason: to boost school spirit.

"The moon-off showed that we're not as apathetic as people like to label us," Mashinter says.

But it all boils down to pride, says UNR freshman Jaime Ficco.

"I'm glad I could bare my ass for my school," he says.

The Buzz

• In March, a federal appeals court ruled against affirmative action practices at the law school of the U. of Texas, saying the school could not consider race in admitting students. The decision, in part, reads: "The law school has presented no compelling justification, under the Fourteenth Amendment or Supreme Court precendent, that allows it to continue to elevate some races over others, even for the wholesome purpose of correcting perceived racial imbalance in the student body."

• In February, a 10-person jury found the U. of Arizona Recreation Center negligent in caring for Stacy Spiegler, a 20-year-old senior who suffered a heart attack in 1990 while riding a stationary bicycle at the center. Jurors concluded that the failure by rec center employees to administer CPR led to Spiegler's permanent brain damage. They awarded Spiegler $5 million in damages.

• A federal investigation into admissions practices at the U. of California, Berkeley, cleared the school of charges that it discriminates against white students applying for undergraduate admissions. The seven-year investigation also concluded that affirmative action has not diminished academic quality at the school. The report found that in 1993, grades and test scores actually increased, as did the overall performance of students after they were admitted.

• Three weeks after eliminating the men's basketball program at Rutgers U., N.J., school officials decided to reinstate the team. In February, provost Walter K. Gordon opted to drop the Pioneer team, owners of an NCAA-record 108-game losing streak, because of its "demoralizing quality." But Gordon and other school officials later bowed to student and alumni pressure, reinstated the team and hired the first full-time men's basketball coach in the history of the nearly 50-year-old program.

• Eleven members of the U. of Southern Maine baseball team have been suspended by the NCAA for periods ranging from four games to the entire season. The players were suspended for gambling on college sports.

Byte me

Painting the Digital Cave

WITH TECHNOLOGY RACING FORWARD AT LIGHTNING speed, Rick Smolan decided it was time to take a snapshot of the information superhighway. With his ideas — and the support of thousands of people worldwide — 24 Hours in Cyberspace was born.

Twenty-four Hours (http://www.cyber24.com) relied on photojournalists from around the world. They compiled stories from all five continenrs on Feb. 8 detailing the millions of uses for computer technology today.

Students from across the 50 states helped the group document how computers are changing their lives and their communities.

Smolan, a world-renowned photojournalist, spearheaded the project. He says traveling around the world and documenting different cultures during the past dozen years made him a natural to coordinate the effort.

For students, Smolan says, the project was a chance to carve their names on the walls of the digital cave. "What people saw on Feb. 8 was simply the tip of the iceberg," he says.

Students from more than 100 colleges and high schools, including the U. of Kentucky and Bowling Green State U., Ohio, contributed to 24 Hours.

U. of Kentucky professor Robert Lodder had students put together a site with content from his school of pharmacy class on home medical testing kits. "We [had] 25 students working on the project," Lodder says. "They are learning a lot about how the Internet works behind the scenes."

Students at BGSU found different uses for the Internet on campus and in surrounding towns. BGSU journalism professor Sam Winch led a group of 18 students who spent a weekend gathering information for their stories — on such topics as the use of computers in a small hardware store to students learning how to play the guitar on the Web.

"I thought it might be a good example of how photo stories will be told in the near future," Winch says. "It seems to be the biggest growth area in photojournalism."

Smolan says the project will conclude with a permanent Web site, a book and a CD-ROM.

Ben Aloe, U. of Kentucky / Illustration by Matt Hawkins, Kansas State U.

Bits & Bytes

Don't log on without it

• Florida State U. has announced plans to use new identification cards that will allow students to transact business on the Internet. Students will be able to slide the cards through a reader on the computer to check their grades or use online services. Unfortunately, the new "smart cards" will not do the students' laundry or cook their Ramen noodles.

Ultimate pen pal

• Long hours of copying notes out of library books could become a thing of the past. Students now can scan a digital highlighter over sentences or columns of numbers and transfer the information immediately into any Macintosh or Windows application. The only drawback? The IRISPen (Image Recognition Integrated System) comes with a price tag of $298 — that's worth at least a couple hundred highlighters.

It's your move

• Now playing online: head-to-head trivia games, crossword puzzles, scavenger hunts and other contests. Interactive Imaginations Inc.'s redesigned Web site (http://www.riddler.com) allows players to compete with each other almost instantly for prizes including trips, workout machines and cars. I'll take online games for $200, Alex.

Jason Giardino, U. of Pennsylvania / Photo courtesy of the Mask and Wig Club

Merry Men

HOW DOES THE OLDEST ALL-MALE, collegiate, musical, burlesque comedy troupe in the nation still make people laugh after 108 years of performing?

"There's something inherently funny about a guy putting on a dress," says senior Tim Gloege, a chair of the Mask and Wig Club at the U. of Pennsylvania.

That may be true, but the real key to success for Mask and Wig lies in its ever-changing cast members, who are among the hardest-working men in show business. For more than a century, the long string of Mask and Wig performers has kept Penn and Philadelphia audiences guffawing with their outrageous brand of singing, dancing and cross-dressing humor.

Their skit shows are akin to the Canadian comedy quintet Kids in the Hall, but some productions are more like comedic musicals, chock full of elaborate song and dance numbers.

The troupe's 40-plus members work nearly every day all year long writing, rehearsing, building sets, performing and more. Mask and Wig produces an entirely student-run production each fall and performs a professionally directed show every weekend from the end of January through March. All this, plus a spring break tour, means that the guys don't get a lot of free time and never get time away from each other.

"It's not, 'See you tomorrow', but 'See you today,'" says senior performer and social chair Mart Rosler.

Nonetheless, the members of this prestigious club wouldn't give it up for anything in the world, Rosler says. All of the Mask and Wiggers feel a bond — much like a fraternity or family — that stays with them after graduation. A strong network of alumni has held the same regard for the troupe for 20, 50, even 75 years.

A strong fan base hasn't hurt either, as year after year students flock to see the men perform. The Mask and Wiggers are one of the featured attractions at the annual spring fling, a campuswide entertainment blowout. This allows them to strut their stuff for an audience of thousands.

"They're talented, genuinely funny guys who capture the spirit of the university," says Penn freshman Jessica Boar.

If history prevails, Mask and Wig will continue performing for another 108 years under the same motto: "Justice to the stage, credit to the university." Ben Franklin — Penn's founding father — would be proud. Even if he never wore a dress.

Jason Giardino, U. of Pennsylvania / Photo courtesy of the Mask and Wig Club

U. LOSE

Big Dan and the Big Irony

What's wrong with this picture? Magazines, newspapers and TV networks make millions of dollars every year covering college sports. But when Northwestern U. basketball player and self-described computer nerd Dan Kreft was asked to write a column for Sports Illustrated — for free — NCAA regulations forbade him because it would be helping a commercial entity sell its product.

"It's just an example of how oppressive NCAA regulations are," says Kreft, whose witty Web page and insider's view of life as a Big Ten Conference athlete caught the attention of SI editors.

"Evidently [the NCAA] would rather foster the image that jocks are illiterate," Kreft says. "God forbid we should write anything, and someone would make a dime off it."

Kreft says the regulation — Article 12.5.2.1 of the NCAA constitution — is particularly ironic because the NCAA has no qualms about allowing the media to profit from students' athletic prowess.

"Don't tell me they don't make money off featuring athletes," says Kreft, whose popular Web page is titled "Big Dan in the Big Ten" (http://www.eecs.nwu.edu/~bigdan/).

"If the NCAA is going to make an issue of college athletes having a byline, they should scrap the whole idea of covering college sports," he says.

The Northwestern boopster adds that the regulations also defeat the concept of the student-athlete by limiting academic and journalistic opportunities. "It's a real shame for students in journalism," Kreft says, citing the case of a Northwestern school of journalism graduate student and basketball player who had to curtail free-lance endeavors because of the rule. "They're hampering people's careers."

Kreft says that many students have e-mailed NCAA presidents commission chair Sam Smith (bakerd@wsu.edu) about the regulations, but he is doubtful the regulations will be changed anytime soon.

"It depends on how willing the NCAA is to admit they're wrong," Kreft says. "They seem pretty content to just sit on their haunches and say, 'This is our rule, and if you don't like it, you can....'"

*By Anonymous

Anonymous is a student-athlete who, according to NCAA regulations, would lose his/her eligibility if we printed his/her byline. — ed.

U.LIFE

Life is But a Dream

You have two exams, a job, a paper to write and your cat has the flu. Is it all too much? Just take a REST.

Restricted Environment Stimulation Therapy — or flotation — is simply floating in eight to 10 inches of warm salt water to relieve stress. Several schools — like Washington State U. and Ohio U. — are researching flotation tanks for their effects on relaxation. It's a tough job, but someone's gotta do it.

OFFBEAT

"It produces profound relaxation for most people," says Arreed Barbasz, professor of educational leadership, counseling and psychology, and director of the REST lab at Washington State U. Barbasz has done REST research for more than 10 years, including experiments on athletes.

Some participants say they haven't experienced this kind of peace since the womb, says Ernie Randolfi, assistant professor of health sciences at Ohio U. Randolfi operates OU's REST lab, where students can float in an 8 foot by 4 foot tank for a mere $15 an hour.

Betsy McCormick, a grad student at the U. of Toledo, Ohio, says floating is like being in another world.

"Your body gets into a deep relaxation state," she says. "It's like an out-of-body experience."

"It was unusual at first," says Kevin Knowlton, a junior at OU who floated as part of a stress and tension control class. He says he was tense and didn't know what to do at first, but then he fell asleep.

Researchers say floating can produce the same effects as meditation — such as low arousal and deep relaxation — but more quickly. This state of mellowness can be reached in as few as four or five sessions.

REST also spells success for stressed-out students.

Learning how to relax during final exams can improve memory, attention and performance, says Thomas Fine, associate professor of psychiatry at the Medical College of Ohio.

Barbasz researched the basketball and tennis teams in the Pacific 10 conference and found that performance improves when players use REST. The Dallas Cowboys, five-time Super Bowl champions, have also used this technique to enhance their performance on the playing field.

But not all people benefit from flotation therapy. Claustrophobics and people taking drugs should not try to float. A small percentage of floaters might get anxious while trying to relax, Barbasz says.

However, if you like small, enclosed spaces, and you're not tripping, try RESTing for awhile. It might do the body (and brain) good.

Whatever floats your boat.

By Erica Vanderheid, Ohio U. / Photo by Matt Sullivan, Ohio U.

Web of Hate

When Hector Ramirez, a junior at California State U., Northridge, opened his e-mail, what he saw was like a hand reaching through the screen and grabbing him by the throat.

A hate message glowed on his monitor.

Ramirez, program director of a lesbian, gay and bisexual resource center in Northridge, says he frequently receives hate messages, but they still enrage him.

ETC.

"You feel violated, slapped and offended," he says. "The blood rushes from your toes to your head, and you feel helpless. But then reality sets in, and you get furious."

Ramirez says the '90s cyberspace boom has created an easy outlet for "flame mail" and hate-related home pages. He considers them examples of ignorance disguised in high-tech packaging and says they often originate from the country's highest centers of learning.

Sites like Skinheads USA and Aryan Nations are among the many home pages that preach messages of hatred toward people based on race, religion and sexual orientation.

Mark Weitzman, director of New York's Simon Wiesenthal Center, a nonprofit human rights organization, says his organization has monitored cyberspace for three years and has seen the number of hate sites increase from 50 to 300. He says many extremists use university systems because of the liberal atmosphere associated with colleges.

In response to increased flame mail and hate pages, many universities are attempting to cleanse cyberhate from their systems.

"Kansas supports free speech," says U. of Kansas system support programmer Craig Paul. "However, we also support the right not to provide university facilities for it.

"In most cases, we will issue a warning to the student, but we can also take away an account or send it to judicial affairs."

David Day, a KU senior, says he is surprised by the university's policy.

"It's kind of ridiculous," he says. "As far as free speech is concerned, name-calling is protected. If it's not a threat on someone's life, I don't see the justification."

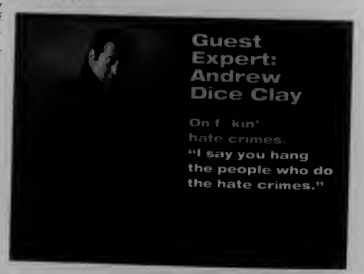
Shayna Rosen, a graduate student at the U. of Houston, says she disagrees.

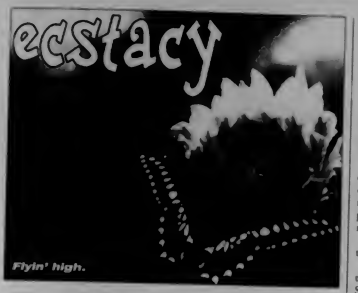
"The Internet is so accessible to so many people, and there are certain things that can be very hurtful and inflammatory that people shouldn't be subjected to," says Rosen, a member of the campus Hillel, a Jewish organization. "Anything highly extreme should be censored."

Ramirez says flame mail should not only be outlawed, but offenders should be required to take courses in 'netiquette.

"The Internet is such an indispensable tool," he says. "But when you abuse the privilege of a university account, it defeats the whole educational purpose."

Jamie Malernee, U. of Florida / Illustration by Brian Cano, U. of California, Berkeley





Flyin' high.

Coffee, Tea... or Herbal Ecstacy?

Legal herbs and herbal extracts with names like Cloud 9, The Original Herbal X and Herbal Ecstacy are advertised as safe tickets to euphoria. Promotions claim users may experience warm sensations, enhanced sensory perception and increased enetgy and sexual response. What do college students say after popping the pills?

PULSE

"I tried Herbal E once at a rave," says a student at the U. of California, Santa Cruz.* "I had lots of energy, danced for many hours and had a mild 'body high.' I was a bit more sensitive than usual." He says the herbal experience was comparable to drinking 15 cups of coffee.

Most forms of natural high contain ephedera from which the drug ephedrine is extracted. Found in expensive over-the-counter asthma medication and alertness aids, ephedrine speeds up the user's blood pressure and heart rate and can increase skin sensitivity.

"Every time I ran my fingers through my hair, it plowed a path of tingling sensations in my scalp. I liked that a lot," a user on the Cloud 9 Web site says. At 20 bucks a pop for Cloud 9, washing your hair with medicated dandruff shampoo might be more cost-effective.

"It's obvious why it's legal — the effects are negligible," says a U. of California, Davis, student. "The only time I ever really felt it was when I took twice the recommended dosage. It sort of felt like I was stoned but wide awake."

Effects aside, are there any potential dangers to taking Herbal E? "Not really," says a spokesperson at Cloud 9's manufacturer, Advanced Research 2000 in Redding, Calif. "It's not something you want to abuse, though. It is a stimulant."

"I took five tablets, almost half a gallon of water, and maybe, maybe, I got a little perkier from it," one well-hydrated Cloud 9 user says. "Mostly all I did was urinate a lot."

There's no guarantee you'll feel anything, but if you're looking for a tingly scalp or a good buzz, the choice is yours. Take an herbal combo, slap some Denorex on your head or funnel espresso down your throat.

The students quoted in this article requested anonymity.*

By Adrianne Bee, Virginia Tech U. / Illustration courtesy of Global Media Work

The Name Game

Remember the 1991 World Series? Bob Burda can't forget it.

Before the Atlanta Braves even hit the field, Native Americans launched a movement to remove such nicknames from professional and college sports nationwide.

The politically correct inquisition had begun.

Burda, assistant sports information director for the Florida State U. Seminoles, recalls how the controversy affected his school.

IN-PLAY

"A group of Seminole Indians in Oklahoma took exception to our mascot," Burda says. "But they were contacted by the Florida Seminole tribe and received assurance that everything was being done in the best possible taste."

FSU continues to work with the Seminole Indian nation of Florida to ensure that the school's mascot meets the nation's high standards of authenticity and inoffensiveness.

"There was a time when it was in vogue to look at mascots [for political correctness]," Burda says. "But no students protested our games, and there was no need for a student vote."

So far, FSU has weathered the PC storm with mascot, logo and tradition intact. But others have fallen under the barrage of protests — Marquette U., Wis., dropped the controversial Warriors moniker in favor of Golden Eagles. The Eastern Michigan Hurons also soared to new PC heights, renaming themselves the Eagles, too.

Two years ago at St. John's U., N.Y., administrators deemed the long-standing Redmen nickname insensitive to Native Americans. When they set out in search of a kinder, gentler nickname, the St. John's Red Storm was born.

"The university should be on the forefront of what's right," says Frank Recaniello, St. John's sports information director. "We represent a large, multicultural population, and it's not right to offend anybody."

Of all mascots, the U. of Illinois' Chief Illiniwek is possibly the most embattled. The dancing, mythical figure — complete with face paint, headdress and other stereotypical Indian regalia — remains under fire after years of debate.

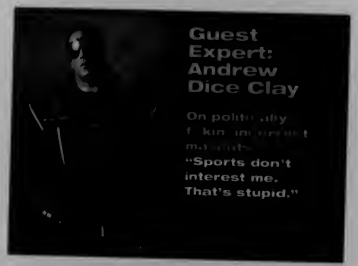
"I would be very surprised if I ever see the day that Chief Illiniwek is not the mascot of the University of Illinois," says Illinois freshman Michael David Smith. "Probably 95 percent of the students at this university support the chief."

And it's not just Native American mascots who are endangered. The U. of California, Santa Cruz, Sea Lion gave way to the Banana Slug — a nondescript mascot administrators say is more in line with the school's principles of contemplation, flexibility and nonaggressiveness. Poor beleaguered Otto, a genderless orange that roots for the Syracuse U. Orangemen, still teeters on the verge of extinction for being too nondescript.

But there are two sides to every Otto, Illiniwek and Banana Slug coin. Changes or proposed changes are often met with protest by traditionalists supporting their favorite non-PC mascots. Which just goes to show that you can offend some of the people some of the time....

Clare Homan, U. of California, Davis / Photo courtesy of U. of Illinois

PC — raining on mascot parade?



Flexing his cerebral cortex

STAR-STUDDED STUDENTS

All that and brains too

BY GERI SAHN
U. of Massachusetts, Amherst
AND COLLEEN RUSH
Assistant Editor

WHAT'S FAMOUS, USUALLY INTELligent and in college with no student loans? The luckiest person alive? No, silly, it's celebrity students! You've seen 'em on TV, but now you'll see the different, deeper side of the few, the proud, the educated mini-legion of student stars.

He's not an airhead, but he played one on TV. He's known for that trademark "Whoa!" He's Joey Lawrence, and he's more than a buff actor with a string of sitcoms like Gimme A Break and Blossom under his belt. He's a student.

No really. He is.

Lawrence, a sophomore at the U. of Southern California, is balancing his time between working on his new sitcom Brotherly Love and studying as a full-time student.

Although he hasn't declared a major yet, Lawrence is dabbling in a range of subjects, including a few film and television courses.

"I really liked my Shakespeare lit class," Lawrence says. "But my psychology class was the worst and most complicated. I'm not sure if I'm really going to use it after I graduate."

Lawrence may be a household name for the teeny-bopper crowd, but he says his fame doesn't make it difficult to be a regular student.

"Fortunately, now I'm older and that fan thing is over," he says. "The students in my class are cool. There's no competition, and sometimes they ask me questions because a lot of what we are learning is second nature to me."

But being a celebrity student has its downside. Lawrence learned a little classroom etiquette the hard way when he went on The Tonight Show and mentioned the name of a tough professor he had. During the next class session, the professor stopped the lecture and asked Lawrence — in front of the 300-plus crowd — to refrain from mentioning him on national TV in the future. Whoa.

His name might not spark recognition, but his résumé is far from blank. Appearing in Joe Pesci's The Super and Eddie Murphy's Boomerang, and currently starring in the sitcom The Parent Hood, Kenny Blank is living the dual life of celebrity and student.

As a freshman film major — and future filmmaker hopeful — Blank takes two classes a semester at USC and says that balancing work and school is quite a chore.

"I like [my classes], but going to school — I mean physically getting there — is a problem," Blank says.

Hollywood goes Yale?

Fill in the Blank

Since Blank doesn't live on campus, he spends little time there. But when he is there, Blank says he tries to make his presence low key — even though the audience that would recognize him is on the elementary — not college — level.

Blank says the general audience would think he was a geek because he enjoys spending his extra time working. Besides acting, Blank is a keyboard player, drummer, guitarist, composer and singer.

"I'm a workaholic," he says. "Instead of socializing, I like to write a piece of music or work on the computer. My social life is the show."

He may be associated with the squeaky, clumsy, dweeby kid next door on Family Matters, but if you see Jaleel White strutting around campus at UCLA, don't ask him to do an Urkel impression.

"If I'm on a date and the woman asks me to [imitate Urkel] and say, 'Did I do that?' the date is over," says the film and television major.

Although his career prevents him from taking on a full-time schedule and he's considered a freshman, White is taking two classes a quarter at UCLA and slowly but surely building on his second year at the school.

College has been the best time of his life so far, he says, but unlike Urkel, White seems to find classes an afterthought.

"I took an anthropology course — learning about the evolution of humans — which is garbage," he says. "My other class, a jazz class, well, you could get some good sleep in there."

White lives in an apartment off-campus by himself, but when he's on campus, he says people frequently recognize him.

"People usually don't approach me. They're there to study," White says. "But there was one guy who wanted to shake my hand while we were standing at the urinals."

White spends most of his extra time playing and watching basketball. As a member of the UCLA booster club, he never misses a game. And White's love for sports, particularly basketball, has influenced his career.

"I'm working on a screenplay about basketball from a dramatic standpoint," he says.

Sure. We can see it now. Urkel Meets the Globetrotters.

She's been an orphan, a brainy teen, a wrongly accused juvenile delinquent, a schoolteacher and a Polish-Catholic heroine, but Kellie Martin has decided to take on the one role she's dreamed of since freshman year in high school: that of a Yalie.

Martin, best known as Becca from the ABC series Life Goes On, is a freshman art history major at Yale U. She says her role as student is one of the toughest she's faced yet. The transition from on-the-set high school tutors to the daily classroom grind hasn't been easy.

"I don't even pretend to know what I'm doing here," she says. "I try my hardest, and I really feel like I have to struggle to keep my head above water."

Modesty runs deep in the TV veteran — she seems more amazed with her fellow Yalies than with her own résumé.

"I'm in awe of everyone I meet here. There are kids here who just blow my mind," she says.

But the actress turned collegian seems to be coping just fine. She credits her parents with keeping her down-to-earth and preparing her for life outside the Hollywood spotlight.

Martin insists that being a TV celebrity doesn't give her special privileges or attention on campus.

"I've never had a person at Yale go ballistic about meeting me," Martin says. "Here, it's really just as simple as someone saying, 'That's cool. You're on TV.'"

And life goes on....

Geri Sahn is a superstar on her mom's eyes, thank you very much. Colleen Rush's only claim to fame is standing in line behind Penelope Ann Miller at the grocery store.

Joey Lawrence photo — Courtesy of NBC Media Relations
Kellie Martin — Courtesy of Feren Communications
Kenny Blank — Courtesy of Warner Brothers Network

With Honors

Oscar Shmoscar. These celebs are packing impressive degrees beneath that glitzy exterior, so put away your cameras and get out your IQs.

Meryl Streep — M.F.A from Yale U. School of Drama

Jodie Foster — B.A. in literature from Yale U.

Glenn Close — B.A. in theater and speech from William & Mary College

Emma Thompson — Degree in literature from Cambridge U.

Tommy Lee Jones — B.A. in English from Harvard U.

Alec Baldwin — Degree in theater from New York U.; political science major at George Washington U.

Kevin Costner — B.A. in marketing from California State U., Fullerton

Arnold Schwarzenegger — B.A. in business from U. of Wisconsin, Superior

Kimberly Williams — Degree in performance studies from Northwestern U.

Mira Sorvino — B.A. in Chinese studies from Harvard U.

Chris O'Donnell — B.S. in marketing from Boston College

Know Your Enemy

When rape takes on a familiar face, women find it even tougher to be believed

BY KATHRYN PHILLIPS
U. of Iowa
Photo by Edward Maravilla, California State U., Chico

REBECCA* NEVER THOUGHT OF herself as a statistic. As a U. of Iowa sophomore, she saw the campus signs. Splashed in bright pink, they warned the largest group of potential rape victims — women between the age of 16 and 24 — that every 1.3 seconds, a woman in America is raped.

"I switched the signs around and read only 'American women,'" Rebecca, now a junior, says. "I thought it couldn't happen to me because I'm African."

But Rebecca found out race couldn't protect her. She was sexually assaulted during finals week by a man she trusted, a teaching assistant she volunteered with at the UI International Center.

"I knew I had been wronged."

"I always thought they jumped you on the street," Rebecca says. "He just invited me over at noon for lunch. Once the door closed, he totally changed. He said I knew it was coming. I didn't. It was crazy."

The man pinned her down on the floor, and Rebecca struggled and pleaded with him to stop. Before he got her skirt off, she escaped and locked herself in the bathroom. The man calmed down after 45 minutes, and they took the same bus back to campus.

"I went home and went straight to bed. I felt like I had just run a marathon, but I wasn't sweating and I wasn't breathing hard. I was just extremely tired. I knew I had been wronged."

The man warned her not to tell, but unlike the majority of victims, Rebecca filed attempted rape charges against her assailant and won.

Of the 500,000 women who report rape and attempted rape every year, only 16 percent of women report it to police, and even fewer press charges. Over 80 percent know their attackers. Many rapes occur on college campuses because students are at a prime dating age. But as reported rapes increase, the number of women prosecuting their assailants remains proportionately low.

"Most women don't press charges because they don't want to embarrass their families, or they think it's their own fault," says M. Denise Fraser-Vaselakos, a clinical psychologist and expert on women's issues. "If someone were to break into a woman's apartment and burglarize it, she wouldn't be embarrassed to file charges. But the prosecution rate is so poor [for rape trials]. It takes too much to get through it."

Most rapes are committed by someone the victim knows.

"I felt it was my fault."

As a sophomore at Ohio U., Katie was raped by a basketball player who had been reported for assaulting another woman one year before.

"It wasn't a big fight," she says. "I said no. He started to take my clothes off. I didn't struggle. I just lay there. I finally realized what he was doing to me. I said no, take it out. He didn't. I didn't fight him, and that's what makes me angry."

Katie, now a junior at the U. of Cincinnati, chose to leave OU rather than press charges. She was confused and ashamed, and she felt guilty for being raped because she had been drinking.

"I felt it was my fault because I was drunk and I should've known better. I asked myself why I didn't do anything, why I let it happen."

Alcohol influences 75 percent of male aggressors, and 55 percent of women involved in rapes are reported to have used alcohol or other drugs before the attack. Although drinking may lead to sex in some instances, Fraser-Vaselakos says using drunkenness to blame women for being raped is demeaning to men.

"Using drinking as an excuse is treating men like idiots," she says. "[Rape] isn't a reflex. It's not like hitting a knee with a rubber hammer. Saying that a woman who is drunk is responsible implies the poor guy had nothing better, no other choice, than to rape her. In fact, many men can be with a woman in that situation and they don't make the decision to rape."

"When they were finished, they threw my clothes at me."

Jamie was a freshman when she got really drunk and left a dance party at Augustana College, Ill., with two men. She was invited to go back to a smaller party at their friend's dorm.

"Since there were two of them, I felt secure," she says. "But when we got to their friend's room, they started taking my clothes off. One put me on the bed and started having sex with me. I said, 'Hold it, stop, wait...' They changed places a lot. When they were finished, they threw my clothes at me and drove me back to the [party]. I never saw them again."

Rapes that involve more than one attacker make up 16 percent of committed rapes and 10 percent of attempted rapes. Jamie, now a sophomore, talks about her experience openly and graphically.

"It is important to me that people know," she says.

"Women impose this cloak of silence on themselves, a silence that society reinforces, and it lets men do this to them. I'm not ashamed. I say I'm a victim because those people did it to me. It has nothing to do with me."

Last names have been withheld.*

Kathryn Philips, Viewpoints editor at The Daily Iowan, dedicates this story to Spencer, for giving her her muse

The Date Rape Drug

On the street, users call the little white pills "roofies." On campus, they're calling it the forgetting pill, or, quite simply, the date rape drug of choice.

The drug, Rohypnol, is described as a sedative 10 times more powerful than Valium, and reports of its use in sexual battery cases are popping up across the South. Victims reportedly ingest the pill unknowingly — usually dissolved in a drink — and experience anything from nausea and dizziness to complete memory loss.

Roofies sedate users quickly — within 15 to 30 minutes of ingestion — and last about eight hours. Perhaps the greatest danger the drug poses is the temporary amnesia for most of the sedation period. Law enforcement officers say a fuzzy or nonexistent memory of a sexual encounter is difficult, if not impossible, to prosecute.

Although it is not approved for use in the United States, Rohypnol is a legal prescription drug in parts of Europe and Latin America. Illegal use of the drug was first reported in Florida in 1994, but sexual assault cases involving the pill are springing up in southern California, as well.

By Colleen Rush, Assistant Editor

The Men's Side

Many men are confused. About women, at least. Especially when it comes to sex. "There is a huge grey area," says Eric Cox, a grad student at Indiana U. "We don't act like robots. We don't ask to hold hands. We don't ask to spend the night. Things just happen. There is no verbal communication. Women put themselves in precarious positions. They have to give clear signals."

This miscommunication can lead to date rape, or forcible sex by someone a victim knows. Some estimate that more than one college woman is raped every day.

One major contributor to rape is consumption of alcohol. When inhibitions are down and beer goggles are in full force, some men don't think they're to blame if they misinterpret what a woman wants.

"If a guy feeds drinks to a girl all night — if he's sober and she's intoxicated — her share of the blame goes down," says Eric Lawrence, a junior at West Virginia U. "But if she puts herself in that situation, she has to be aware of what could happen."

The only way these men think rape will stop is if signals are crystal clear, says Chris Pena, a senior at the U. of Houston. "There needs to be a verbal agreement," Pena says. "Even if it's just a quick 'Do you want to — yes,' or 'Do you want to — no.'"

Kathryn Phillips, U. of Iowa

CRAM IT!

Last-minute studying keeps students up all night

A sophomore at Iowa State U. stayed up all night studying — only to fall asleep during the exam.

BY RAVEN HILL
U. of Illinois
Photos by John Cox, Eastern Illinois U.

PICTURE IT: THE NIGHT BEFORE finals. The clock flashes 3:42 a.m. Three chapters left to read before your 9 a.m. test. Placing your trust in Coke and highlighters, you turn the page. Surely you can grasp in one night the concepts that eluded you all semester. After all, it's only... 3:45 a.m.

For Iowa State U. junior David Humphrey, a similar scenario became his own personal hell last semester. Humphrey dozed off at about 4 a.m. while watching the end of a Harrison Ford movie for a 7:30 a.m. English final.

Had a friend not come to wake him at 9 a.m., he would have missed the entire test. "I had roughly 30 minutes to finish a two-hour exam," he says. His professor gave him an extra half hour to write his essay, but Humphrey says he still felt rushed.

You'll pay the next day

All-nighters are often necessary during finals week. Although it's certainly not the preferred method of exam preparation, it happens. By that point, you've made your bed, but you won't be able to sleep in it with all that cramming left to do. If you do go this route, getting through the next day is vital.

Jolita Anderson, a sophomore at Iowa State U., stayed up all night studying once — only to fall asleep during the exam. She remembers getting to No. 1 and then everything went dark.

"When I woke up, the time was almost up, and I had to fill in everything," she says. Needless to say, she didn't do well on the test. But an unsympathetic professor did generously offer to wake her up if she ever fell asleep again.

Budget your time

Advance preparation is the most recommended method of avoiding all-nighters. Nonetheless, experts say students hit the same pitfall every semester — believing they will feel good enough to perform well on the exam after studying all night.

"You expect the work to pile up during finals week, but if you use your time wisely, it won't be as bad," says Peggy Gates-Wieneke, fitness coordinator for a U. of Illinois fitness center.

However, if late-night cram sessions are unavoidable, there are ways to stay alert.

Oberlin College, Ohio, junior Andrea Hargrave discovered midnight aerobics classes during finals week last year. "I saw people running around the block between 1 and 5 a.m.," she says. Guess it's never too early to get the old blood pumping during finals week.

Gates-Wieneke says exercising is an excellent stimulant. "You can feel more energized after exercising than after drinking a cup of coffee," she says.

Did somebody say "coffee?"

"Caffeine is an early-morning and late-night must for students during finals week," says Garen Smith, owner of Bagelman's, a bagel and gourmet coffee shop just a yawn away from the U. of Illinois campus. "The coffee, espresso, Pepsi and Mountain Dew disappear."

In addition, Smith says, students' days seem to start earlier and end later during finals week. "They crave caffeine to keep them going."

Gates-Wieneke doesn't fully endorse the caffeine rush. She says a habitual coffee drinker may need two to three cups for that late-night jolt.

"There are no real problems with short-term use," she says. "But if you continue to use caffeine as a stimulant, your body will adapt to that level, and you will need more and more to achieve the same effect.

Although coffee can keep you more alert, Gates-Wieneke says, you probably won't do your best on tests.

Other artificial stimulants, like Vivarin and No-Doze, often need to be counteracted with sleeping pills, she says. "It's not good for the body to be artificially pumped up." Common effects of such use include nausea, irregular heartbeat and short-term memory loss. Yeah, like that's exactly what you need at test time.

There must be an easier way. For starters, those of the studious persuasion have found that test performance increases dramatically after basic test preparation.

Late-night cramming...

...can leave you dead tired.

Just don't cram

"Don't force things into your head," says Franklin Benjamin, a sophomore at Polytechnic U. in New York.

Even self-professed crammer Mary Motley, a Lamar U., Texas, junior, is hesitant to extol the virtues of cramming. "When you cram, you pile everything you have learned for a significant amount of time into your little old brain, which can only process so much of it," Motley says. "Learning takes time. You should allow your brain a substantial amount of time to process what it takes in."

She recommends Alert for those times when fake energy seems absolutely necessary. Coke and will power are two of her other favorite aids.

Time is the key to success for Erik Brooks, a Marquette U. junior.

"I usually start studying a week before," Brooks says. "That way I can catch up on any missed readings and go through my class notes. I couldn't stay up all night. I'd probably die."

Motley says pulling all-nighters is not particularly effective or healthy. "Read on a regular basis," she says. "When the real deal comes, it won't stress you out, and you'll never have to use the word 'cram' again."

Oh, is that all there is to it? And we thought salt-water gargling was the trick.

Raven Hill, a sophomore at the U. of Illinois, says she's too tired to have a hobby. But she does like to shop.

LIKE 'EM OR LUMP IT

Waking up with the Presidents of the United States of America

BY TRICIA LAINE
Assistant Editor

CHRIS BALLEW NEEDS his beauty rest. He didn't get it on the tour bus. "I'm in one of those moods where my hands are foreign objects, and I'm knocking things over," says the lead singer and guitarist for the Presidents of the United States of America. "Gravity is my enemy."

Catching up with the Presidents on the first leg of their spring tour was easy. Keeping the singer awake wasn't. The overnight trip from San Francisco to Los Angeles was a little tough for Ballew because he didn't sleep a wink. But on this day, he was committed — shackled — to a full afternoon of media blitz.

Ballew sat at an over-dressed round table in the dining room of the Hollywood Franklin Hotel. Technically, it was high noon. But it clearly felt like 4 a.m. to Ballew. The interview stalled while the Columbia Records rep rounded up the rest of the trio.

Ballew winced when drummer Jason Finn — who slept like a baby to the hum of the diesel engine — showed up for the interview bright-eyed and bushy-haired.

And when Dave Dederer, the bass guitarist, and Craig Montgomery, the road manager, also checked in with a full night of sleep, Ballew was completely annoyed.

"I guess everyone else slept great, which makes me feel even better," Ballew says sarcastically. "I'll have Jason clock me in the face right before I go to sleep [next time]. He just has a six-pack and then wakes up feeling fine."

Un-glam rock

This mellow yet mildly peeved attitude isn't what you'd expect from a guy who makes a mint singing about animals and fruit in a super-charged stage show. But the truth is he's just a regular guy. All three of the Presidents are just regular guys with a knack for playing the most gleeful rock out there.

Known for wacky songs like "Kitty," "Lump," "Boll Weevil" and "Peaches" and lyrics that make you tongue-tied, the Presidents have taken the United States by storm with their oddly equipped band.

Ballew plays a two-string guitar, Dederer wails on a three-string bass and Jason Finn's drum kit is a little sparse with 10-inch splash cymbals instead of the traditional 16- or 18-inch rock crashes. But it's all part of their playfulness as entertainers.

This Seattle trio has broken out of the grunge mold with its off-beat frolic rock and has kicked the notion that you have to be angst-ridden to write good music.

Columbia nabbed these guys after hearing their self-titled debut album, recorded by PopLlama. Without delay, Columbia signed them, remastered the album and has since sold more than 2 million copies. At press time, they were on Billboard's top 10 list.

The name game

Primary this, State of the Union that. So it's an election year. That's not their fault. The political references when writing or talking about the Presidents are tireless. Was it on purpose? Was it a big marketing scheme? A flirtatious gesture of patriotism?

Nah. They're just regular guys.

"It doesn't have anything to do with what we think about or who we are," Ballew says. "Which is kind of stupid on our part."

Finn grimaces at talk of the parallels. "It's kind of sad that this is an election year as far as our notoriety goes," he says. "It's just this long name. It's totally stupid."

But that ridiculously clunky name played a big part in getting them a gig to play for President Clinton in 1994. And that's nothing to scoff at — unless you're like Dederer, who's scoffing.

"We do everything democratically, and there's dissent among the ranks about the merit of exploiting the name," Ballew says when Dederer's not around to defend his position.

Poorly planned, maybe. But brilliantly executed for a band that ends most of its shows with a rendition of "We're Not Going to Make It" — a song about failing as a rock band.

Star struck

"Everybody wants to be naked and famous," or so one of their songs goes. But did they really expect to reach the kind of fame they're relishing now?

Before the question is fully asked, Ballew interrupts with: "No, no, no, ah nope, no.. " as if the mere idea is absurd.

"It's kind of a double-edged sword," he says. "I always thought that a combination of people would just kind of come along, and it would work. It was like a patience thing — just waiting."

Ballew and Dederer have known each other since their junior high days in Seattle but didn't play together until after high school. And then they only paired up when they were home visiting from college — Ballew from the State University of New York at Purchase and Dederer from Brown U. in Rhode Island.

Eventually they both ended up back in Seattle, where they formed the Presidents. Finn joined them from Love Battery — a popular Seattle band he played with for seven years.

"My parents are delirious, actually — with relief, I think," Finn says of his family's support for his music career. He mimics their attitude — past and present: "Well OK, if you're sure you want to do that. We're behind you. Now it's like, 'YES!'"

Stage bright

"Like Pontiac, we build excitement," Dederer says about the band's main goal — to entertain.

"I think right now performing is my favorite," Dederer says. Although he professes a love of being holed up alone with his guitar, he's still a stage man. And he shares the stage with two other hams — even Finn can be seen grinning at the audience from behind the smaller-than-usual drum set.

The Presidents play with the crowd, sing with the crowd, do their own renditions of cover songs like the Buggles' "Video Killed the Radio Star" and even throw in some Van Halen-esque, arena-rock songs — just for fun.

"You can go up on stage and be insane," Ballew says.

A true lover of fun, Ballew is always innovating ideas for entertaining. "[My wife] is going to make me a strap-on mohawk for a couple of songs." It'll be worn like a bicycle helmet, he says. "I can't wait to get my hands on it."

If you've seen them live, you know they put on an intensely fun show. And the whole time, they're just regular guys.

Tricia Laine, an assistant editor at U. Magazine, wants her own strap-on hairdo.

Photos courtesy of Columbia Records

The Presidents are feather pluckn good.

"We're just some guys," says Chris Ballew.

Rock

BY GLENN McDONALD

Rating System

★★★★★ Lake Titicaca
★★★★ Lake Michigan
★★★ Great Salt Lake
★★ Lake Havasu
★ Rickl Lake

Pocket Band

Pain

Harmony. Humor. Horns? Surprise is the typical reaction people have to the many idiosyncrasies of the Tuscaloosa, Ala., band Pain. But what else should be expected from "music with a wang to it"?

Comprising "six dumb white males, one voluptuous white female and a drummer," Pain prefer to provide pleasure by laying down a groove and expanding horizons.

"Our name means pain in a derisive, elementary school sense, like when someone kicks you in the lunchroom and you lose your milk," bassist Mark Milewicz says.

Musically and lyrically, Pain evolved out of a love for the melodic music of '80s groups such as Oingo Boingo. The horn section just seemed a natural progression.

"It's difficult for only a guitar to carry a note pattern that a horn can," Milewicz says.

Pain cites giddiness-drenched influences such as They Might Be Giants and the Mighty Mighty Bosstones. They try to inject as much irreverence as possible into their music and their live shows.

During the past year, Pain have been recording in Montgomery's Zero Return Studios for their second CD, Midgets With Guns, which was released in April.

However, Pain wouldn't mind moving to the majors as long as no one tells them what to do. Milewicz says they could do away with "lots of stupid paperwork and high phone bills." What a Pain in the neck.

For info on Pain and tour dates: http://www.indieweb.com/pain/

Goggins Records, P.O. Box 2112, U. of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, AL 35486

Tony Ware, U. of Alabama.

Paul Westerberg
Eventually Reprise

★★★★

If Bruce Springsteen is the Boss, then Paul Westerberg is the Bard — a dusty, road-weary troubadour with a knapsack full of stories and songs for your consideration. Westerberg writes the kind of music you take personally — these are the songs you'll be singing into your beer after your 19th nervous breakdown.

Eventually opens with "These Are The Days," a sterling example of Westerberg's post-Replacements pop sensibilities. In the vein of his work for the Singles soundtrack, this and a handful of other power-pop gems on Eventually are Westerberg's trump cards. The man can still put a lump in your throat, though — check "Hide and Seekin'," a sadly beautiful ballad about growing old alone, and the oceanic closing track, "Time Flies Tomorrow."

Westerberg is less successful with the conspicuously harder rock songs — "You've Had It With You" comes across a bit forced and pretty much recycles the "Down Love" guitar riff from his last album. Even if he's lost a step on the rockers, Westerberg's voice is only getting better with age, and his wry word play has never been stronger.

Steve Earle
I Feel Alright
Warner Bros

★★★

For a few shining moments in the early '90s, Steve Earle made country dangerous again. His full frontal assault on Nashville's homogeneity peaked with the insanely great Guitar Town album, an unholy alliance of traditional country and outlaw hard rock that kicked ass like no one since Hank Williams. Sadly, booze and drugs got the best of Earle (as they did Williams), and he spiraled into irrelevance, poverty and finally rehab.

Back and purportedly clean, Earle makes a strong case for himself with I Feel Alright. Although occasionally tentative, the album proves the undeniability of Earle's raw talent. On "Valentine's Day," for example, he takes country's oldest "cheatin' heart" template and makes it interesting one last time. The back-to-back pairing of "The Unrepentant" and "CCKMP" finds Earle raging against his demons, chemical and otherwise, through hard rock and old-school country, respectively. If you've never liked country music, Steve Earle is your man. He's never liked country music, either — at least the kind of anemic "new country" that's been boring us all silly for 10 years. Check him out.

Goodie Mob
Soul Food
BMG/LaFace Records

★★★

The debut album from Atlanta's latest Big New Thing kicks off with the neo-gospel "Free" and the lyrically dense "Thought Process," two tracks so unexpected and arresting that they make you wonder if you put the right CD in the player — major label rap these days doesn't exactly inspire confidence. But sure enough, Goodie Mob are the real deal and one of the most promising voices in hip-hop to drop this year.

On "Dirty South," one of Soul Food's standout tracks, Goodie Moh spin a lengthy and unflinching tale of hustling "back in the day" on Atlanta's mean streets. While the story's nothing new, the song reveals a staunch descriptive style, one that carries through most of the album. Soul Food is packed with dexterous rhymes and engaging stories, and these four MCs can hold their own against anyone making records right now. The beats, on the other hand, are almost uniformly weak, and that's going to keep Goodie Mob from really blowing up. Still, another album, another producer, and who knows?

Butthole Surfers
Electric Larryland
Capitol

★★★

The Butthole Surfers have always walked the thin line between inspired lunacy and just plain lunacy. When inspired, they're fearless, funny and unspeakably, unknowably weird. When they're not so inspired, they tend to come off as a bunch of demented, acid-head maniacs, which they are.

Electric Larryland, the band's sophomore release for major label Capitol (and 13th overall), finds the band mostly inspired once again. Much of the Surfers' appeal depends on how far you're willing to follow them into their twisted world of drugs, weird sex, hardcore guitars, stupid in-jokes and anatomical fetishes. "L.A." is a full-bore rocker and probably the best song on the album. "Let's Talk About Cars," on the other hand, features a monotonous backing track and a six-minute conversation in French. It's testament to the Surfers' durability that they haven't run out of weird ideas yet ("The Lord is a Monkey" is deeply twisted and truly sick. You'll love it). Electric Larryland suggests they're going to be creeping us out for years to come.

RADIO, RADIO

1. Lush, Lovelife, 4AD
2. Possum Dixon, Star Maps, Interscope
3. Cibo Matto, Viva La Woman, Warner Bros.
4. Frank Black, Cult of Ray, American
5. Grifters, Ain't My Lookout, Sub Pop
6. Afghan Whigs, Honky's Ladder, Elektra
7. The Spinanes, Strand, Sub Pop
8. Cardigans, Life, Minty Fresh
9. Butterglory, Are You Building a Temple In Heaven?, Merge
10. Silkworm, Fire Water, Matador

Chart based solely on college radio air play. Contributing radio stations: KNEU, Northeast Missouri State U.; KNSU, Nicholls State U.; KRNU, U. of Nebraska, Lincoln; KTRU, Rice U.; Texas; KUOM, U. of Minnesota; KWVA, U. of Oregon; WFAL, Bowling Green State U.; WRAS, Georgia State U.; WSBU, Saint Bonaventure U.; WXIM, James Madison U.

The U. Radio Chart is sponsored by

VIBRANCE ORGANIC CARE

Our Picks

Various Artists
Youth Gone Wild: Heavy Metal Hits of the 80s
Rhino

Pour yourself into those neon leopard-skin pants. Spackle on the fuchsia eye makeup. Wag your tongue with a crudely seductive flicker. Thrash your teased-to-the-limit head of hair until it hurts. Crank up that bitchin' stereo system, and prepare yourself for the ultimate '80s metal compilation. Where else — besides the crusty used-tape bin — could you possibly find the one-hit wonder Poison and their one hit, "Talk Dirty To Me"?

Betty
Limboland
Intersound

The three lovely ladies of Betty (none actually named Betty) have put together a poppy, dance-friendly mix. They effortlessly harmonize their way through Limboland, which runs the gamut from breathy ballad to dynamic dance. From heartaches to heart attack. It's kind of like Betty ran into Wilson Phillips one day and decided to kick their ass, steal their sound, make it hip and leave the out-of-touch trio in a pile of Betty rubble.

Magnapop
Rubbing Doesn't Help
Priority

If Magnapop conjures images of punk-inspired fast guitar pop, then the name works. That's exactly what Rubbing is. Linda Hopper promises to leave her name right alongside the many other successful frontwomen of late. Hopper's huskily sung and deeply personal lyrics team with the nonstop guitar force to offer a solid effort from this two-guy, two-chick quartet.

Laika & the Cosmonauts
Zero Gravity
Upstart

Hovering somewhere between Gidget and 007, Zero Gravity is instrumental go-go juice for the retro set. Although some tracks on this fab CD sound like Muzak (read: kitschy), "Baja" and "Surfs You Right" will make you wanna smear Zinka on your nose and hit the waves on your long board. Others, like "Fugitive" and "Fear," will have you craving Octopussy for dinner.

Cindy Lee Berryhill
Straight Outta Maryaville
Cargo

Cindy Lee puts forth a charming blend of clever lyrics about life struggles and tight acoustic jams that will make anyone say, "Yeah, I've had days like that." Her sound in like Alanis unplugged, without the uptight edge. The wry sense of humor implied in the album's title is peppered into almost every track, but you have to be on the lookout for it.

Each month, asst. editors Rob, Col. Shaq and Tricia listen to lots of lousy CDs just to find you a few gems like these.

Reel

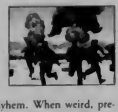
BY COLLEEN RUSH

EVERYBODY'S SO ANGRY THESE days. People are casting spells, getting revenge, stalking celebrities and stripping for a lousy buck. What's wrong with kids today? Where did we go wrong? Can't we all just get along? You know... smile on your brother? Try to love one another right now?

The Rock
Hollywood Pictures

Brigadier General Francis X. Hummel (Ed Harris) is pissed. And it's not because he has a funny name. He's a military hero, and he wants revenge for the men who died in a covert operation under his command. So he's taken control of Alcatraz, grabbed a few hostages and is threatening to bomb San Francisco with poisonous gas. Pop quiz, wise guys. Whaddya do? Call in Nicolas Cage and Sean Connery, of course.

Independence Day
20th Century Fox



Plan on more than fireworks this Fourth of July. Plan on total annihilation. We're talking mass destruction and mayhem. When weird, pre-apocalyptic stuff starts happening, an unlikely group — Will Smith (TV's The Fresh Prince of Bel-Air), Bill Pullman (While You Were Sleeping) and Jeff Goldblum (Jurassic Park) — unites to fight the freaky forces that are destroying the world.

Mission: Impossible
Paramount Pictures

Spies and international secrets. Babes and corrupt agents. It sounds like a job for 007, but hold your secret holster. This rescue mission calls for someone with a little less finesse and more muscle. Enter Tom Cruise and his impossible mission: recover a list with the names of top undercover agents in the world, nail a former Russian spy selling secret info, get the babe and, oh yeah, save the world.

The Craft
TriStar Pictures

Sarah (Robin Tunney, Empire Records) is pissed. She's the new kid in town, and she's got the usual problems: ACTs, prom traumas, a pimple — oh, and her best friends are in a witches' coven and want her to join them on the dark side. Which is, like, fine if you use your powers to give someone bad hair. But, like, it's a total downer when revenge goes the fatal route.

Multiplicity
Columbia Pictures

Doug Kinney (Michael Keaton) is pissed. He's being pulled in every direction — family, work, social, personal — so he clones himself. Now he's twice the man with twice the trouble. Andie McDowell plays the lucky wife. So, is it cheating if she sleeps with one, then...?

Phenomenon
Touchstone Pictures

George Malley (John Travolta) isn't pissed, but his neighbors are. He went and got himself all smarted up when he done got struck by a white light on his birfday. Now Mr. Smarty Pants is a world-renowned genius, but the locals don't take kindly to his newfound brain, and they turn their backs on him. Buncha meanies.

Striptease
Castle Rock

Just chalk this one up as another one of those mom-loses-daughter-to-lunatic-ex-husband-and-decides-to-strip-for-cash-to-get-her-back movies. Erin Grant (Demi Moore) will do whatever it takes to get custody of her child — even if it means stripping in front of drooling old men at a seedy little Miami dive aptly named the Eager Beaver. If you missed her shimmy on Letterman, see it again on the big screen.

The Fan
TriStar Pictures

Gil Renard (Robert De Niro) is having a bad inning in life. His super-fave baseball celebrity, Bobby Rayburn (Wesley Snipes), has taken a nose dive in the popularity charts, and Gil will have none of that. The obsessed fan will stop at nothing — including (gasp) murder — to rethine the star's reputation. De Niro a crazed lunatic stalking his idol? C'mon. Who'll believe that?

High School High
TriStar Pictures

Only the creators of the Naked Gun series could bring you this spoof on the teacher-who-cares genre. Richard C. Clark (Jon Lovitz) is the teacher-who-cares who braves the tough inner-city school. How tough is it? Man, this school is so tough, it's got its own cemetery.

Last Man Standing
New Line Cinema

John Smith wants to clean house. He's not happy with what the mob has done with Chicago's decor, and he wants to take 'em out. The renegade gun for hire (Bruce Willis) sells his services to two families of Irish mobsters in a daring attempt to restore the 'hood back to its original splendor. Can you say double-cross à la Pulp Fiction?

Kingpin
MGM

Roy Munson's bowling career is in the gutter thanks to the sleazy bowling huckster Ernie McCracken (Bill Murray). But a strike is around the corner when he latches on to Ishmael (Randy Quaid), a bowling prodigy from the backwoods of Pennsylvania. Munson (Woody Harrelson) thinks he's got his ticket back to the bowling lane, and the two con their way to Nevada for the big bowling tournament.

Last Dance
Touchstone Pictures

Stop me if you've heard this one. The cocky young lawyer (Rob Morrow, TV's Northern Exposure) tries to save the drop-dead-gorgeous death row inmate? Um, maybe not. Sharon Stone plays Cindy Liggett, the woman on death row. They fall in love (shocker) and wait for the clemency board to decide their fate.

Proof! Have you heard? U.'s web site now has movie news and gossip: http://www.umagazine.com

Screen Saver

Dead Man

If someone described a movie as an eerie, black-and-white, psychedelic "western" about a guy traveling west who's dying because he's got a bullet in his heart, what would you say?

Um, cool?

The someone is Jim Jarmusch, writer and director of movies like Night On Earth and Down By Law, and he doesn't sound enthused about answering questions about his new movie, Dead Man. So we stick to the basics.

Dead Man* stars Johnny Depp as William Blake, the doomed traveler who hooks up with an unlikely companion along the way — an outcast Native American who mistakes Blake for the late, great English poet.

Part tragic, part comic, the movie follows Blake and Nobody, the Blake (the poet)-quoting companion, through circumstances that transform their relationship with themselves, their surroundings and their world.

But for those of us used to seeing Depp in cheese mode (Don Juan DeMarco) and nut mode (Edward Scissorhands), the cross-over to pensive youth gone awry might sound like a stretch. On second thought, could it be art imitating life?

The Reel Deal

A Very Brady Sequel

It's a dog-eat-dog world, and this mutt must be wearing milkbone drawers. Tiger, that lovable mop, has been dropped from not one, but all two of the Brady Bunch movies. Oh sure, the dog house still sits on the AstroTurf lawn — right next to the almost world-famous teeter totter — but there's that not-so-subtle canine absence feel to the set.

Never mind that members of the cast joke about Tiger being in Alice's next meatloaf. What's not missing from A Very Brady Sequel is the retro-funk, tacky-ass polyester get-ups that have made the Brady era one of the most visually offensive.

"I don't like the fabric or the Buck Rogers tightness," says Christopher Daniel Barnes, the less bushy version of Greg in his open shirt/bare chest days.

It's hard not to feel a little strange sitting in a Paramount Studios restaurant with the kids from the upcoming sequel. They're still in costume, and after awhile, it's difficult — if not impossible — to remember what the original Bradys looked like. Spooky.

Anyway, this Brady sequel finally answers the question we've all been asking ourselves: How does Carol get her hair to flip like that? Oh, and who fathered the three lovely girls? The sudden reappearance of the girls' (gasp) real father, Carol's long-lost husband (Tim Matheson, Animal House), is at the center of this story about a family named Brady.

But, like the first movie, the story has that same '70s-freak-family-stuck-in-the-'90s spin on the original TV series. You can count on the movie cramming at least 10 different episodes into the main story line.

But we still wanna know... where the hell is Tiger?

SAY CHEESE!

The 4th Annual U. Photo contest!

EVER SEEN A SKYDIVER JUMP OUT OF A HOT air balloon? How about a naked guy jumping through a fire? Or a student eating an airplane? We'd never seen it either until we sifted through the more than 25,000 entries we received from students nationwide.

You traveled all over the world — from the Yukon to the Great Wall of China — and pulled some pretty crazy stunts — did we mention the naked guy in the fire? — to catch the judges' eyes, and it worked! And now... drumroll, please... we present you with this year's top cash-winning entries, including the four $1,000 Grand Prize winners. And if you can't get enough student photos, you can find more of them on our Web page (http://www.umagazine.com).

Atul Gadre, West Virginia U.
"Talk about the river wild!"

ALL AROUND SPORTS

$1,000 GRAND PRIZE WINNER: ALL AROUND SPORTS: Brent Finley, Arizona State U.
"Hey, who's the guy in the red suit?"

Kristen Poe, Sam Houston State U.
"Repairing the damage."

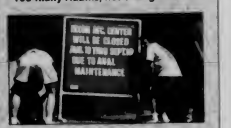
Joe Lachowski, U. of Maine
"Racing the storm."

FUNNIEST SIGHTS

$1,000 GRAND PRIZE WINNER: FUNNIEST SIGHTS: Kevin Braverman, Indiana U.
"Ari Schwartz is the man who likes to eat planes."

Vincent Hew, Ohio State U.
"So many to choose from."

Dave Pederson, U. of Minnesota, Twin Cities
"Too many Adams, not enough Eves."



Shiva Kapai, Oregon State U.
"We're here for maintenance."

CAMPUS LIFE

$1,000 GRAND PRIZE WINNER: CAMPUS LIFE: Eustacio Humphrey, Northeastern U.
"One of the hottest cheerleaders on the team. Plus she's buffed!"

Tom Helm, U. of Houston
"Needless to say, I didn't have much body hair left after this!"

Andy Schafer, Indiana U. of Pennsylvania
"Where'd my feet go? Oh, there they are."

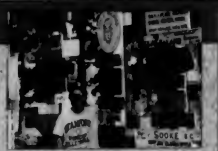
Matthew Rosier, U. of Pennsylvania
"Protesting the telecom law. Who says student activism is dead?"

Krissi Taylor, California State U., Sacramento
"Two clowns just clowning around after dinner."

Tina Krauss, Washington State U.
"Nice hair!"

TRIPPIN'

$1,000 GRAND PRIZE WINNER: TRIPPIN': Brian Adams, Michigan State U.
"In the mind's eye."



Chris Johnson, Northern Arizona U.
"Signs of the times?"

Steve Gorg, U. of Missouri, Rolla
"The drop into marshmallow land."

Kathryn Riddle, U. of Colorado
"Getting a little exercise on the Great Wall of China."

CLASSIFIEDS

CONTACT LENSES/EYEWEAR

VISION DIRECT. Best Prices in U.S. CONTACT LENSES. Designer Frames, Shades and Prescription Eyewear 800-TEL-LENS. (800-835-5367) Fax (219) 533-LOVE

EMPLOYMENT

ALASKA SUMMER JOBS

Fishing Industry. Earn up to $3,000-$6,000/mo. Free Transportation! Room and Board! Over 8,000 openings. No experience necessary. Call Student Employment Services today.

(206) 971-3510 ext. A98527

FEDERAL EMPLOYMENT 100's of Entry-Upper Level Positions No Exp. Nec. Paid Training. Benefits For App. and Info Call 1-800-549-2400 ext. 5122

CRUISE SHIPS HIRING

Earn up to $2,000+ per month working for Cruise Ships or Land Tour Companies. World Travel (Hawaii, Mexico, the Caribbean, etc.). Seasonal and Full-Time employment available. No experience necessary. For more info call

(206)971-3550 ext.C98527

$READ FOR CASH$ $200 Book, $150 Screenplay. Send $5/ SASE to: Gateway Pub. 125 Centre St., Quincy, MA 02169

FINANCIAL AID

NEED COLLEGE MONEY? Scholarships-Grants-Internships. Computerized Search, $44.95 GUARANTEED five sources. ALERT LINE 1-800-801-9767

FREE FINANCIAL AID

ATTENTION ALL COLLEGE STUDENTS!

Over $6 Billion in FREE Financial Aid is now available from private sector grants & scholarships. All students are eligible regardless of grades, income or parent's income. For more information, call Student Financial Services™

1-800-263-6495 EXTENSION F 3810

LANGUAGE TRAVEL

LANGUAGE COURSES INTERNATIONAL. Total Immersion in Mexico, Ecuador, Costa Rica, Spain, France, Germany, Austria, Italy (800)597-4775

INTERNET SITES

THE GATHERING

WWW.TAKEME.COM

IT'S THE INTERNET FOR COLLEGE!

MONEY MAKING OPPORTUNITIES

EARN BIG MONEY in 90 days with this multi-level program. Send $1.00 with SASE to Program, 4401 Scenic Drive, Nashville, TN 37204

NANNY SERVICES

BOSTON NANNIES. Experience scenic, historic New England. Excellent salary, benefits, friendship support. Year commitment. 1-800-456-2669

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT

1-800-4-SUMR-JOB! STUDENTS NEEDED!! CRUISE SHIPS-$$$+ TRAVEL! ALASKA JOBS-EARN TO $4000/MO! VACATION RESORTS /THEME PARKS – UP TO $15/HR! AIR COURIER JOBS – FLY DIRT CHEAP! CALL TODAY! ASK FOR ext. 2001 PROG.

TRAVEL

STUDY ABROAD in Southern France. Summer, Semester, Year Programs. Contact FAF 111 Roberts Court, Alexandria, VA 22314, 703-549-5087

Join Degrees of Freedom Travel in summer adventure trips. Amazon and Inca Trail Peru Trek. Bike/Hostel across Ireland. degreefdom@aol.com / (800) 421-2334

Keep in touch with U. Magazine over the summer at http://www.umagazine.com

Some people would pay anything to get into multimedia.

But for you, it's just $99.

$99 buys you Director® Academic, the special academic version of Macromedia Director, the world's #1 multimedia developer's tool. The one that uses Shockwave™ to bring multimedia to the Web.

Learn Director, and you can earn big bucks in one of the world's hottest fields: interactive multimedia.

It's the future. Your future. Now, it's just $99.

At your college bookstore now!

For Mac. (0-13-315771-7) Or Windows. (0-13-315797-0)
For info call 1-800-887-9996 or email directorinfo@prenhall.com

PTR PH

PARTING SHOTS

Merritt Brandt, California State U., Fullerton
"Balloon launch at dawn. Ready, set, goooooo!"

Bonnie Heath, Ohio U.
"North Carolina State U.'s Terry Parker — testing out her new kick-spike?"

Minh Trieu Le, U. of Virginia
"Reflection."

Barry Golob, U. of Minnesota
"Self-portrait with Wisconsin's finest."

wrap

When the Going Gets Stuff, the Stuff Gets Going

BY GLENN McDONALD
ILLUSTRATION BY BRIGI BLOOMQUIST, U. OF KANSAS

YOUR FINALS ARE OVER. Your summer job secured. It's time to move out. Now for your biggest challenge, the perennial headache of May: You have to deal with your stuff.

Dealing with your stuff in college is like dealing with 700,000 rubber duckies floating in the middle of the Indian Ocean. Simply gathering all your things is strictly impossible. Moving them anywhere is even harder.

There are few sensations as unnerving as standing in the middle of your room, neck deep in all the random junk you've acquired in the last year, and realizing you have 12 hours to get it all out. And vacuum. It makes you wish you had a little disintegrator gun like Marvin the Martian used on those old Bugs Bunny cartoons. No takers on that broken futon? ZAP! Salvation Army doesn't want that 1955 cabinet-style TV? ZAP! Earth obstructing your view of Venus? ZAP!

But alas, you are a mere terrestrial and must somehow deal. Don't kid yourself, either. Abandon any hope of clearing a profit or maintaining your environmental standards. Your carefully laid plans of reselling this and recycling that will soon crumble as you jam trash bag after trash bag into that overflowing dumpster out back.

A word of warning: If you live in a group house or a big apartment, you may feel the temptation to just sort of "leave behind" a few things here and there for your roommates to deal with. This will seem like an expedient option at the time, but trust you me — you don't want to mess with this type of thing.

See, there is an inescapable system of causality in dealing with unwanted stuff. It's called stuff-karma. By the laws of stuff-karma, if you leave some arcane, hard-to-get-rid-of items for your roommate to deal with, you will eventually come into possession of items that are even more arcane and harder-to-get-rid-of.

This is swear-to-God true. Just the other day I got a phone call from an old college roommate who claimed that some of my old stuff had glommed onto her stuff and now she couldn't get rid of it. "Like barnacles to a manatee" were her exact words. I tried to explain to her that, by the laws of stuff-karma, I'd already been punished for my transgression. If I were to reclaim my old stuff, I'd have to get rid of the stuff I'd since acquired, and hence bring upon myself a cosmic double whammy of stuff-karma. At any rate, it's too late for me — I can only hope these words of warning do not go unheeded.

Once you've finally pared down your possessions to the stuff you absolutely cannot live without, you'll need to find a place to store it until fall. I recommend Mom's place (your mom, not mine). Your parents may object to another carload of stuff bound for the attic. If they do, ask them how much of their stuff is still in Grandma's attic. This should restore their sense of perspective.

If all this hassle is getting you down, take heart in the fact that you're not alone. Right now, all across America, millions of befuddled students are trying to figure out what to do with their stuff. Books are being bartered, clothing is being pawned and couches are being clandestinely abandoned on midnight lawns from Berkeley to Boston. It's a spring tradition as natural as dandelions, and you'll be supporting the college-town dirt merchant baner sub-economy.

Best of all, you can look forward to returning in the fall and buying back all the stuff you need at a 200 percent markup.

Glenn McDonald is now accepting all unwanted stuff from college students around the nation. Call for directions.

Double Take

Remember when Crayola had a contest for renaming its popular crayon colors? Well, we thought we'd share a list of what we call the alternates. These are some suggestions that were left on the play room floor:

Earwax orange
Mean Joe Green
Pickled Pig's Feet Pink
Belly White
Pepto Pink
Carrot Top
Blackhead
Urine Sample Yellow
Bellybutton Lint Gray
Charlie Brown
Burple Purple
Bleeding Gums Red
Marge's Beehive Blue
Bruise
Red Rum
Virgin White
Bongwater Brown
Eye-booger Green
Karla Moss
Gangrene

Seth Lives*, Sebastian Conley, Harvard U. Strip Tease

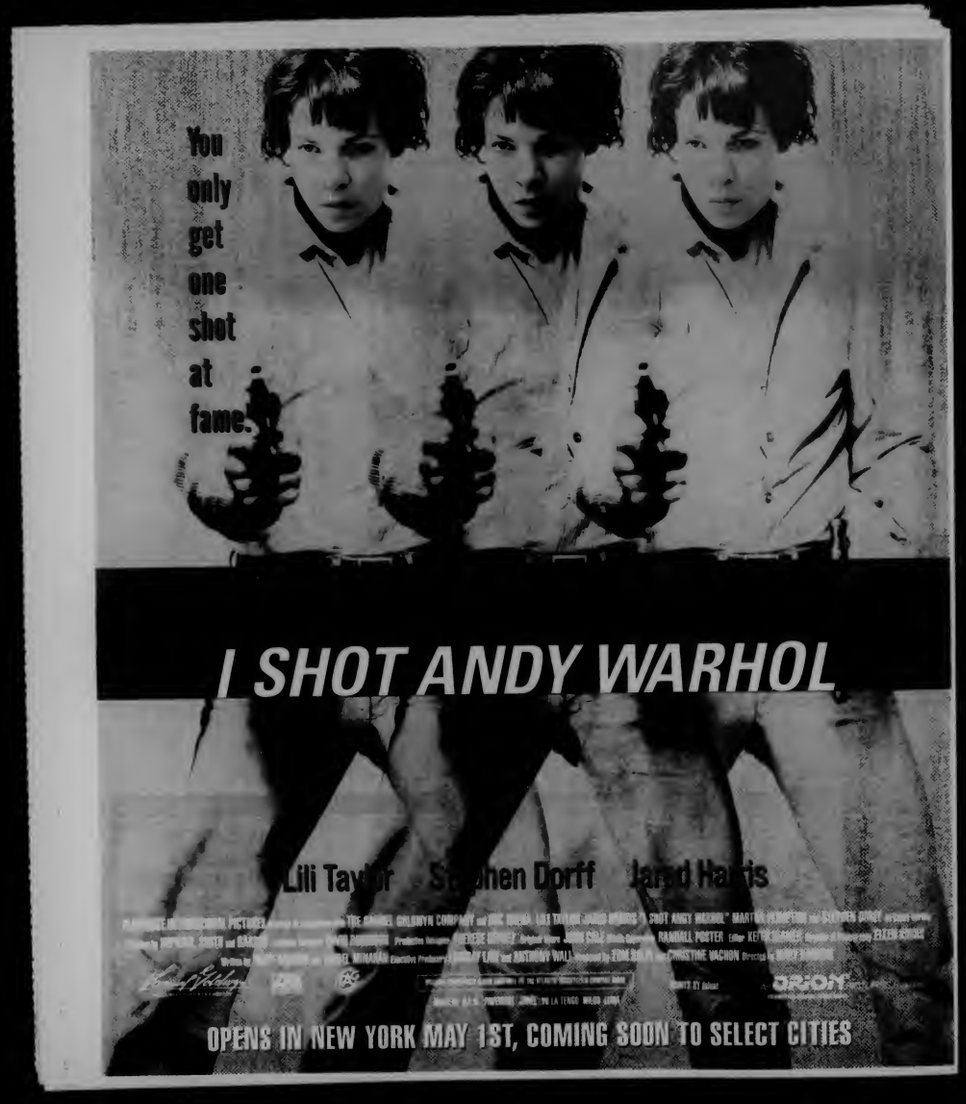
LET ME GET THIS STRAIGHT - YOU HIRED SOMEONE TO TAKE YOUR EXAM?!
NOT JUST ANYONE...
FLIP FLIP FLIP!
Salvation
A NINJA, YOU SAY.
UHH, YEE. TO AVOID DETECTION)...
DEATH TO THE TYRANNICAL INTELLIGENTSIA!!!
OKAY OKAY! YOU CAN HAVE ANOTHER BLUE BOOK!
EXAM



You only get one shot at fame.
I SHOT ANDY WARHOL
Lili Taylor
Stephen Dorff
Jared Harris
OPENS IN NEW YORK MAY 1ST, COMING SOON TO SELECT CITIES

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CV Issue 120 | New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 | Wednesday, April 24, 1996

Dancing on the ceiling

Acclaimed choreographer Marlies Yearby brings her unique brand of African-American modern dance to the Augusta Savage Gallery (See Arts & Living, page 5).

UMass, Jette capture Beanpot

Senior leftfielder Ryan Jette scored the game-winning run as the Minutemen took home their first-ever Beanpot championship yesterday at Fenway Park (See Sports, page 14).

NATION

Senate unable to stop term limit filibuster

By David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Popular with the public, a proposed constitutional amendment to place term limits on members of Congress died yesterday in a Senate Democratic filibuster.

Republicans sought political advantage in the aftermath.

On a 58-42 vote, two short of the 60 needed, lawmakers refused to stop debate on the measure. A short time later, Majority Leader Bob Dole pulled it from the floor.

"We'll bring it up again next year if need be," Sen. Fred Thompson (R-Tenn.) said shortly before the vote. Elected to the Senate in 1994, Thompson led the fight for the measure, which enjoys support in the 70 percent range in public opinion polls. All 53 Republicans and five Democrats voted to curtail debate on the proposal. All the votes against were cast by Democrats.

NATION

Bishops renew stance against homosexuality

By David Briggs
Associated Press

DENVER — Responding to a recent break in their ranks, the United Methodist bishops yesterday affirmed the church's opposition to homosexuality and the ordination of gays.

The 67-member Council of Bishops acknowledged at a meeting of the church's General Conference that there are serious differences on the issue within the 8.5 million-member denomination, the nation's second-largest Protestant denomination.

But in a statement adopted unanimously, the bishops said they are committed to following church law banning gay ordinations and declaring the practice of homosexuality to be incompatible with church teaching.

The statement on homosexuality came less than a week after 11 active and four retired bishops, declaring it was time to "break the silence," said they personally oppose church policies condemning homosexuality but would continue to obey church law.

Bishop Woodie White, council president, said the statement issued yesterday was an attempt to assure others that "as bishops of the church we will unequivocally uphold the teachings and discipline of the church."

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Thursday	Friday
HIGH: 55 LOW: 40	HIGH: 65 LOW: 45	HIGH: 65 LOW: 45

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 12
Comics .....page 13
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 2
Multicultural .....page 6
News.....page 3
Sports .....page 14

Subway killer ordered to pay

By Larry McShane
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Twelve years after he shot four black youths on a subway train, Bernhard Goetz was ordered yesterday to pay $43 million to the one left paralyzed by his final bullet, the one he told, "You don't look so bad, here's another."

The Bronx jury of four blacks and two Hispanics deliberated four and a half hours before ruling unanimously that the white subway gunman, who was portrayed as a murderous racist during the trial, had acted recklessly and without justification in shooting Darrell Cabey, now 30.

The jury awarded Cabey $18 million in compensatory damages and $25 million in punitive damages. Cabey had sought $50 million. The chances of Cabey ever collecting are slight. Goetz's notoriety and legal bills have left the 48-year-old self-employed electronics expert with little money.

But Cabey's lawyer, Ronald Kuby, said the jury's decision "sends a message to all racists with guns who think young black lives are worth nothing — they're worth a lot."

The verdict came nine years after a criminal trial in which a mostly white jury acquitted Goetz of attempted murder and convicted him of illegally possessing a gun. He served eight and a half months in jail. Neither Cabey nor Goetz was in the courtroom for the verdict; Goetz reportedly took the subway home.

Goetz's lawyer, Darnay Hoffman, said he wouldn't appeal. Goetz planned a news conference today.

Cabey's mother, Shirley, told the Associated Press in a telephone interview, "I just want people to know, the world to know, my son did not do anything to [Goetz.] He was just sitting there. It wasn't a money matter. I want the world to know my son didn't do anything to that man."

In closing arguments, Kuby cited remarks Goetz made about the four youths that he "wanted to kill them all" and "could have gouged their eyes out."

Kuby said, "It is as damning a chronicle as one could ever have... How much more proof do you need?"

His voice rising, Kuby said, "I don't care how much you award in punitive damages. Bankrupt him. Make sure he never enjoys life as a rich man. Make sure if he wins the lottery, Darrell Cabey wins the lottery."

Hoffman reminded the jury that Cabey was quoted in a 1985 newspaper interview as saying that his friends were about to rob Goetz because he "looked like easy bait."

Hoffman admitted that Goetz's own words "damned him tremendously," including his remark that Cabey's mother should have had an abortion and his reference at a community meeting in 1980 to "spics and niggers."

"He's a nerd, a geek, a peckerwood, a cracker," Hoffman said of his own client. But Goetz was "not some cool, calculating racist," just a frightened man, the lawyer said.

The subway gunman case held national attention for more than a decade, making Goetz a symbol of the nation's twin obsessions: race and crime. The National Rifle Association donated $40,000 toward Goetz's legal expenses.

Goetz shot Cabey and three other unarmed young men on Dec. 22, 1984. He later said the four were about to rob him. The young men said they were only panhandling when they asked him for $5. Goetz has said that before shooting Cabey, he told the 19-year-old, "You don't look so bad. Here's another."

Cabey was paralyzed and suffered brain damage. He uses a wheelchair, and his family says he has the mental capacity of an 8-year-old.

Earlier this month, Goetz took the witness stand for the first time and chillingly recounted the shootings. He said "that shine" in victim Troy Canty's eyes and "that smile" made him snap. Court papers show Goetz's annual income fell from $100,000 a year to about $20,000 in the years since the shooting, and he went through $60,000 in donations and $250,000 of his own money on legal costs.

Quarter drive declared a success

Students raise enough for over 1500 meals for Food Bank

By Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts quarter drive collected approximately $385 yesterday which will create about 1600 meals to assist the Food Bank of Western Massachusetts.

"The quarter drive is a grass roots movement in which the majority of people give low energy but the sum is a very large total," said sophomore quarter drive founder Steve Ginsburg.

"One quarter amounts to one pound of food which is the approximate weight of one meal," said David Sharken, executive director of the Food Bank. "It is amazing that such a small amount of money can make such a huge difference in the fight against malnutrition."

The total donations were weakest in the Southwest dining commons and strongest in Franklin.

"The students in Franklin were very generous," said Ginsburg. "Even a four-year-old child donated two huge handfuls of quarters; it seemed like he was almost giving too much."

Twenty-three volunteers worked over a total of 60 hours last night in the dining commons to collect quarters.

"The quarter drive is a wonderful concept," said freshman volunteer Kelly Hariman. "It wasn't asking too much of the students to give 25 cents; the overall effect is incredible."

Freshman volunteer Lara Hoffman said, "When I heard about how much could be done with just one quarter, it just seemed like a good thing."

Bookmarks were distributed to those who contributed to the Quarter Drive.

"I know that students have enough to read, therefore bullet-marked pieces of information are on the bookmarks in order to easily inform students."

One side of the bookmark features the Quarter Drive. It reads, "We are a group of UMass students volunteering our time to improve the lives around us, by raising funds for non-profits serving communities throughout western Massachusetts."

The Food Bank is featured on the other side. "Since 1982 The Food Bank has been behind the scenes of local soup kitchens, food pantries, homeless shelters and other programs throughout the four counties of our region."

Ginsburg said the bookmarks make this more than a community service action, it also makes the drive an exchange of information.

Ginsburg called the Food Bank with his idea of the quarter drive.

"The concept of a campus-wide drive was very appealing to us," Sharken said. "It is nice to see the community working with the University in such a positive way."

Sharken added, "At the Food Bank we need programs like this; 85 percent of our funds are from non-government programs. Also it is important that students are aware that hunger and malnutrition exist right here at home."

"I went to the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (MASSPIRG) because I wanted to do the quarter drive," Ginsburg said. "It was there that I discovered that I could also receive three credits for my work."

Ginsburg said he attended a workshop that dealt with outreach from the campus to the community; it was there that the quarter drive came into existence.

"I worked a great deal with MASSPIRG director Jay Rasku in order to organize the quarter drive," said Ginsburg.

A mission statement was created to read, "The quarter drive is a diverse committee comprised of students, faculty, administrators, non-profits, and local businesses. The committee will accomplish uniting the campus life with the community by involvement and awareness."

The quarter drive has had four meetings in April where between eight and 13 people attended.

"We have put hundreds of hours of work into the drive," Ginsburg said.

Ginsburg also met with Chancellor David K. Scott about the drive.

"[Scott] gave the drive his blessings and supported the concept," Ginsburg said. "He thought that the drive would be great for both the campus and the community."

Ginsburg said that he would like to see the program become instituttionalized at the University.

"This has been the test month for the quarter drive," Ginsburg said. "I have compiled all of the information involved for the possibility of a class being created."

He added, "If every student at UMass gave one quarter a month, it would equal about $8,000."

"Working in social action groups like City Year Boston gave me the organizing and methodizing skills that I knew I would need to make the quarter drive succeed," Ginsburg said.

"It was also very valuable for me to go and see the Food Bank. Seeing its efficiency and knowing that it is a real thing in the community that directly affects people's lives was very inspiring," Ginsburg added.

At the meetings there was a long process of decision making involved with how to best access the students.

"We decided that because the majority of on-campus students enter the dining commons between 4 to 7 p.m. that would be the best time to reach them," Ginsburg said.

Journalist raising money to aid Bosnia

By Anastasia Kudrez
Collegian Staff

A photo-journalist is raising money to help rebuild the printing industry in Bosnia.

Paul Harris, a British photo-journalist who spent 10 years in the former Yugoslavia, spoke at Food For Thought Books in Amherst on Monday night. Wearing a black sweatshirt with large white letters saying "DON'T SHOOT" on the front and "PRESS" on the back, Harris discussed his years in Bosnia, his perception of the political situation and his contact with the people.

KAREM ALI / COLLEGIAN
Paul Harris

Harris originally worked in the Bosnian printing export business. He was meeting with a group of publishers when the Slovenians declared independence in June 1991. Instead of leaving Bosnia, Harris decided to stay.

"Because I'd been in the former Yugoslavia five to seven years, I thought I'd stay on and report the war," he said.

Harris' new book, "Cry Bosnia," combines a narrative with 120 photographs of the war, refugees, and the relatives of the missing. Harris witnessed ethnic cleansing and the aftermath of massacre and rape.

"None of us really thought this thing was going to break apart in the disastrous and tragic way it did," he said.

Harris' talk marks the beginning of a fundraising campaign to finance an integrated printing facility in Mostar, Bosnia. He said 90 percent of the industrial and commercial infrastructure of the country is gone. Mostar's printing plant, which employed hundreds of people, was destroyed by the Serbs in 1992.

The campaign, called the Cry Bosnia Project, is being funded by the royalties of Harris' book and contributions. British printers donated equipment, and an organizer was hired to coordinate the new plant, which should be in operation by September.

Mostar's new plant will initially employ six local people, but Harris said he hopes the donation of a larger printing press will employ "up to a couple of dozen" people. The printing plant will produce material for schools and teachers. Because the operation must become financially self- supportive, Harris said he is encouraging commercial work as well.

"We can only guarantee overhead for six months, but commercial work would support it," he said.

RYAN TREZZI / COLLEGIAN
Fan Fest frenzy

Assistant UMass baseball coach Julie Croteau conducts a youth baseball clinic in North Amherst Monday, kicking off this Saturdays' Fan Fest activities and UMass baseball double header against St. Joe's.

Two students return from D.C. summit on Politics of Meaning

By Bryan C. Schwartzman
Collegian Staff

Two students from the University of Massachusetts recently attended the Summit on Ethics and Meaning, which was held from April 14th to 16th in Washington D.C.

The foundation on Ethics and Meaning was established in order to keep a "watchful eye on destructive social trends."

Junior Phillip Copeland and senior Jethro Heiko, both philosophy majors, represented the Office of Human Affairs, where they are interning.

The summit focused on the Politics of Meaning, which has been developed by Michael Lerner of Tikkun, a progressive bi-monthly Jewish magazine. Some of the speakers included Cornel West, Peter Gabel, Jim Wallace and Mary Edsall.

> "The movement to create the Politics of Meaning is a work in progress, the people exist who are doing good work and we need to create more structures to support these people."
> -Jethro Heiko

Copeland said, "The basic purpose was to bring together people from across the country to discuss the politics of meaning and to listen to speakers and various intellectuals and listen to how what they were doing was relevant to the Politics of Meaning.

"The basic format consisted of a series of panels followed by workshops," said Copeland.

Some of the problems addressed were the destruction of communities, race problems, economic issues, and gender differences.

The Politics of Meaning focuses on bringing spirituality into politics in a non-denominational way and transcending right-left dichotomies. Heiko described it as "bringing meaning into political life."

Copeland said, "The summit wasn't highly representative of the country; it was mostly middle class Jews. In many ways it had limitations as far as what ideas would come up."

Out of 1800 people present at the conference, 40 were students.

Heiko said, "It was racially and economically more homogenous than I would have liked to have seen."

I felt the way it was set up reproduced models of hierarchical organization that wasn't conducive to good discussion."

Copeland said, "The most amazing people weren't the people on the stage, they were the people who we met from across the country who are doing incredible things."

Heiko said, "The movement to create the Politics of Meaning is a work in progress, the people exist who are doing good work and we need to create more structures to support these people."

He said, "I really saw the power of bringing people together and allowing them to talk to each other. I felt I made friends at this summit and ultimately those are the most valuable things one could experience."

Heiko and Copeland were first introduced to each other in the fall of 1994 by philosophy professor, Gary Mathews. Heiko explained there was a great deal of tension between the black and Jewish communities on campus following a speech given by Tony Martin that semester.

"We got connected through a professor who thought we would get along amidst this tension; we began a friendship and... talked about black-Jewish issues," Heiko said.

Mathews said, "They are both splendid people concerned with important life issues."

For Your Information

PYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an PYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Wednesday, April 24

Meeting — Biracial and Multiracial Students and Community Members come to the third general meeting to be held in the Campus Center Room 802 at 8:30 p.m. Call Monica at 253-4038 for more information.

Workshop — Men Stopping Rape will hold a "Rape Workshop" with counselor/advocates from the Everywoman's Center from 6–7 p.m. in Campus Center Room 805. All men are encouraged to attend.

Ceremony — The Faculty Club will host the Phi Alpha Theta History Society Induction from 5:15 to 7 p.m. Afro– American Studies Professor John Bracey will be speaking. If interested in attending, call Jason at 546–0415.

Film — The UMass Film Society will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Foreign Language Resource Center in Herter Hall. For more information call Mike Bowes at 584–3717.

Forum — The next forum in the Human Relations series, titled "Balancing Work and Family," will be held from noon to 1:30 p.m. in Campus Center Room 804–08.

Lecture — Richard M. Lerner, Ph.D., director of Institute for Children, Youth and Families at Michigan State University will present a lecture on "America's Youth in Crisis: Challenges and Options for Programs and Policies" at 3:30 p.m. in SBA 120.

Lecture — Sonia Escobeto Escalante will present a lecture titled "We Must Wake Up," an analysis of current times in Guatemala, from 12:15 to 1:15 p.m. in the sixth floor lounge of Thompson Hall. She will also speak at 7:30 p.m. at the North Congregational Church in North Amherst.

Meditation — An introductory yoga class will be held at 8 p.m. in the first floor lounge of Butterfield. The class is the first in a weekly series sponsored by the Ananda Marga Yoga Club.

Meeting — The UMass Poetry Society will be holding its weekly meeting at 7 p.m. in Baker Room 325. People can bring their own poetry, that of other poets or just listen. New members are welcome. For more information call Tim at 546–2792.

Sale — The UMass Ski Club will be sponsoring a new and used bike sale on the library lawn today and tomorrow. For more information call Arik at 545–3437.

Thursday, April 25

Sale — The Granby High Sweat Shirt Sale will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. at Granby High School, Route 202 in Granby. Benefits the Granby High Sports Programs and other functioning clubs.

Job interviews — TransQuest Information Solutions, located in Atlanta, Georgia, is a joint venture of AT&T and Delta Air Lines, Inc. TransQuest provides open client/server systems in the travel and transportation industry. TransQuest is actively seeking 200 entry level systems professionals for various positions. For an interview today or tomorrow, contact the Mather Building, University Career Center. Contract recruiter: Andy Hanson.

Workshop — A Resume and Cover Letter Writing Workshop will be held from 3:30–4:30 p.m. in Machmer E–14, open to anyone interested. For more information, call Andrew at 586–2462.

Meeting — There will be an important meeting for all members and peopel interested in the Animal Rights Coalition at 7 p.m. in Room 306 of the Student Union. Call 545–1925 for more information.

Friday, April 26

Film — The Third Annual Student Film Festival will take place at 7 p.m. in Stirn Auditorium at Amherst College. For more information call Mike Bowes at 584–3717.

Store opening — I Used To Be A Tree, a new store in Amherst, will have a grand opening party on Arbor Day at 6 p.m., followed by a slide show by author Ellen Everett Hopman at 7:30 p.m. The store is located at 191 North Pleasant St.

Meeting — The Five College Campaign to End Sexual Violence will hold their first ever planning meeting from 3–5 p.m. in the Campus Center, Room 804–808. If you are committed to creating a community in which sexual violence is neither tolerated nor accepted and in which survivors are supported and validated, please come and share your ideas.

Saturday, April 27

Film — The Science Fiction Movie Marathon, sponsored by the UMass Science Fiction Society, will take place in the Campus Center, Room 163 from 1 p.m.– midnight. Free admission. Scheduled movies include: The Secret of NIMH, Twilight Zone — The Movie, Fahrenheit 451, Outland and Dune. All films are followed by a short break. For more information, call 545–1924.

Special event — The 5th Annual Extravaganja, Marijuana Legalization Rally, sponsored by the UMass Cannabis Reform Coalition, will take place on the Amherst Town Common from noon until dark. Music featured by yeP!, Synaesthesia, Project Flatboy, Colonel Mustard Trio, the Black Rebels and Jaia the Cat. Speakers include Professors George Phillies and Terry Franklin. For information call 545–1122 or 665–7622.

Storytelling — The "Keepers of the World" Storytelling Festival will take place from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. in the Amherst College Campus Center Frontroom. Advance tickets are available for each ensemble performance on the first floor of the Campus Center Office. For ticket prices call 542–5773 or for general information call 542–8207.

Sunday, April 28

Meeting — The UMass Ski Club will be sponsoring a Montreal white-water rafting trip from May 31 to June 2, and will discuss and take sign–ups for the trip at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center. For more information call Arik at 545–3437.

Religious — Hillel's Community Service Group is visiting Amherst Nursing Home to celebrate "Hannukah in April." We will make latkes at Hillel House at noon to bring over to the nursing home by 2 p.m. Driedel games and singing and other Hannukah festivities! Everyone is welcome!

Religious — The Muslim Student Association of UMass invites all the muslims in the Amherst area to an Eid ul Hajj picnic at the North Village Playground, beginning at 4 p.m. For more information, call Utama at 256–8482, or Laili at 253–0874.

Notices

Poetry — The UMass Poetry Society will be holding its weekly meeting every Wednesday at 7 p.m. in room 325 Baker Residence Hall. Feel free to bring and read your own poetry or that of your favorite poet, or just come to listen and guzzle coffee. New members are always welcome. For more information, call Tim at 546–2792.

Theater — The UMass Theatre Guild presents "A Winter's Tale" by William Shakespeare. The showdates are May 2–3 at 4 p.m. and May 4–5 at 2 p.m. It will be performed in the Rhododendron Garden behind Health Services. Admission is $3.

Theater — "Still Walks," a collection of dance works choreographed by Chantelle Lucier and Sarah Manya Hertzberg will be performed May 2 –3. There will be an open dress rehearsal on May 1. Presented in the Studio Theater Kendall Hall on the Mount Holyoke College Campus. General admission $3, students and seniors $2. Reservations are recommended, call (413) 538–2848.

Campus Police Log

Accident

April 20

There was a two vehicle accident by Derby track on Mullins Way. No one was injured.

Alarm

April 19

Papers affixed to a Patterson Residence Hall door were set on fire. Environment, Health and Safety responded.

Animal complaint

April 19

Environment, Health and Safety removed a hook from a dog's paw in the Campus Center.

Annoying behavior

April 19

A resident of Gorman Residence Hall complained of loud music.

April 20

Bottles were being thrown from windows in Prince Residence Hall.

There were skateboarders on Presidents Drive.

Bottles were thrown from McNamara Residence Hall.

Assist agency

April 20

There was a broken water fountain that flooded the fourth floor of Chadbourne Residence Hall.

Assist citizen

April 20

A door lock in Washington Residence Hall was "pennied." An individual was extricated from his room.

Assist other PDs

April 20

University police made a courtesy transport for two individuals on Route 9.

Assist agency

April 20

There was an open manhole near Morrill Science Center. The Physical Plant was notified.

Assault & battery

April 20

There was an investigation of a fight in Van Meter Residence Hall. One victim checked in at University Health Services. The involved parties did not wish to pursue charges.

Burglary / breaking & entering

April 19

A vending machine was broken into in Patterson Residence Hall.

A vending machine in Mackimmie Residence Hall was broken into. Money and food were stolen.

A vehicle in Parking Lot 11 was broken into. A radio and telephone was stolen.

A vehicle in Parking Lot 22 was broken into.

April 20

A top was cut and a radio stolen from a jeep in Parking Lot 29.

Family offenses, domestics

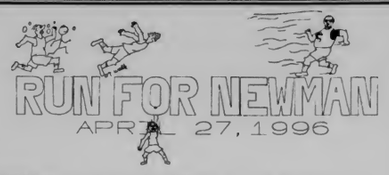
April 20

There was a verbal altercation between two individuals in John Q. Adams Residence Hall.

Hazardous materials spills, etc

April 20

Gas, leaking from a vehicle in Southwest Avenue, was removed by the owner.



WHERE?: Boyden side of the UMass Alumni Stadium track
WHEN?: Saturday, April 27, 1996
9:30 a.m. (walkers); 10 a.m. (runners)
WHY?: To benefit the Newman center. Sponsors are appreciated.
REGISTRATION: At the Campus Center Concourse and the Newman Center Cafeteria 10 a.m. - 1 p.m., April 24-26 and at the Newman Center Office April 1-26
PRIZES: Free T-shirts for the first 300 to register. $100 first prizes to first man and first woman . . . plus other valuable prizes.
For more information call the Newman Main Office at 549-0300.

the UMass Mountain Bike Sale

April 24 & 25, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Student Union Lawn
Great Deals on Used Mountain Bikes from:

GIANT SCOTT
presented by UMASS SKI CLUB
Free Bike Registration!!
430 Student Union
545-3437

DIRECTORS NEEDED
WMUA
The student-run radio station at UMass is looking for 12 motivated undergrads for the 1996-97 academic year. If you have graphic design skills, fundraising or sales experience, or a knowledge of sports or news, we want to speak with you.
PAID POSITIONS!
These are Paid Positions. For a complete job description and an application, stop by WMUA downstairs in the Campus Center 105 or call 545-2876 for more information.
Completed applications due by: Fri. April 26
Interviews will take place on: Sat. April 27.
91.1FM

University recognizes RA contributions

By Daniel E. Levenson
Collegian Staff

Housing Services kicked off residence assistant (RA) appreciation week on Sunday with an RA social in the Southside Room.

According to the Susie Mitton, residence director of the Webster–Dickinson residence hall cluster, this is the first time RA recognition will encompass a week of activities.

"They are a crucial link in building community in the residence halls. They're our front line," Mitton said.

Chris Ronkese, a second year student and engineering major, said he finds the job to be fun and rewarding.

"I did it so I would get my own room and build a strong sense of community on my floor, and to be a positive role model for my community," he said.

Ronkese has been an RA for two semesters and plans to be one again next year. He said that he would definitely recommend it to anyone interested.

"I feel that I've brought about change to the University in my own small way," he said.

An RA social on Sunday was attended by RAs from across the campus.

"It's a good idea because we're under–appreciated, and I like the buffet," said Jessica Weidig, an RA in John Adams Residence Hall.

"Of course being an RA isn't easy all the time," Ronkese said noting one significant drawback. "Those four in the morning phone calls from people who have been partying all night and forgot to take their damn keys," he said.

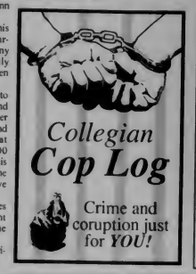
Richard Barret performed for his fellow RAs, playing guitar and harmonica. His renditions of Jimmy Buffet's "Margaritaville" and Billy Joel's "Piano Man" served to lighten the mood.

Graduating RAs were called up to the front of the room by cluster and thanked for all their hard work over the past year. Housing Services and Residential Life also reported that they had arranged for a $95,000 increase in the stipend for RAs. This will translate into an increase in the amount of money RAs will receive each week.

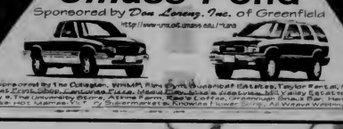
At the end of the ceremony boxes of mugs were given to the different cluster offices to distribute to the RAs in their buildings.

There are a wide variety of activities planned for RA appreciation week. Residence Directors will be putting up banners in the residence halls, as well as giving candy and pens to their RAs at the end of the week. Local restaurants and other businesses have also been asked to contribute to the week's events.

"RAs are important to the university in more ways than we can recognize," Venator said.



Slip slidin' away
April showers brought groups of frantic students mud– sliding in the Orchard Hill bowl Monday night.

Lorenz Olympic Gold Medal Challenge
Drive To Victory
Food Games Fun Tie-Dyes (bring a T-shirt)
Prizes Win a Weekend Getaway to Montreal
Thursday April 25th
11:00am-5:00pm
Umass-Pond
Sponsored by Don Lorenz, Inc. of Greenfield
http://www.crocnet.com/~lorenz


Co-sponsored by The Collegian, WHMP, Pizza Hut, Quaboag Valley Ford, Taylor Farms, Subway, Big Y, Eat Corner, Campus Pizza, Valley Produce, Coca-Cola, Yankee Candle, Friendly's, The University Store, Atkins Farm, Food Coop, Cinnamon Snail Bar, Hanlon Bakery, The Office, Hot Wheels, VCI, D. Superman's, Rooney's Super Subs, All Wave Antenna & Tape

1996 SUMMER SESSION
Division of Continuing Education
Direction for Your Life.
Call 413-545-0107 for a free course catalog. E-mail: contined@admin.umass.edu
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

In conjunction with the Chancellor's Coordinating Committee for Community Service, The Community Service Program and the Faculty Service Learning Fellows:
The
VIVA Council
and
THE TOWN OF AMHERST present:
The [illegible] Annual
"INTO AMHERST"
COMMUNITY SERVICE DAY
Saturday, April [illegible], 1996 9:00a.m. - 2:00p.m.
A [illegible] thank you [illegible] VOLUNTEER TEE
Alpha [illegible] Phi
[illegible] Stop & Shop [illegible]
Sigma [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
We are [illegible] BLACK SHEEP CA[illegible]
And [illegible]
[illegible]BWAY, BERTUCCI'S [illegible]
[illegible] their donations to th[illegible]
OUR SERVICE HOURS ARE ON THE RISE
CALL VIVA 545-3527

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN
NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY
HELP WANTED:
For the Fall 1996 semester in the Collegian Graphics Dept. We are currently accepting applications for Computer Graphic Artists for both Day Graphics (Advertising/Editorial & www. and Night Graphics (Editorial & Prepress)
Aggie Life
Collegian Graphics Since 1890
Applicants should have a good working knowledge of the Macintosh/IBM operating systems, good design and layout skills utilizing the following software: Microsoft Word, QuarkXPress, Adobe Illustrator & Adobe Photoshop.
Stop by the Graphics Dept. and fill out and Application. We are located at: 113 Campus Center, (the basement) Amherst, MA 01003

DAILY COLLEGIAN
113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Marni E. Helfner Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gurley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Lisa Chiu Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor
Gregory Cassimir Co-Black Affairs Editor
Humphrey brown III Co-Black Affairs Editor
Sunanda Ghosh Co-Developing Nations Editor
Ibrahim Ali Co-Developing Nations Editor
Bob Dunn Editorial/Opinion Editor
Lisa M. Olivieri Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor
Anna Feder Jewish Affairs Editor
Lisa Chiu Multicultural Affairs Editor
Amy Paradyza News Editor
Emily Reily Photography Editor
Candice Flemming Sports Editor

Sean Cahoon Staff Artist
Anna Lotto Co-Women's Issues Editor
Hannah Thorne Co-Women's Issues Editor
Tony Morse Editorial Production Manager
Adam Chace Systems Manager
Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Lee Weiner Distribution Manager
Position Vacant Classifieds Manager
Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914, and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967 and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

The masculine mystique

Evan Young

I am the proud owner of a penis. I have two testicles that I am very fond of, and rather attached to. I love being a man. I love being Italian-American. I love my heritage and my middle-class values and my family. I tend to think of myself as a generally nice guy, maybe a little over-opinionated, maybe a little too thin, but overall I am proud of who I am. Very proud.

Why do I feel the need to reaffirm these things? You see, this past weekend I hung out at Smith College for their Spring Weekend. Smith College is an all female school (for those who didn't know) and for their Spring Weekend, they open up their doors to all different sexes and have a weekend long, campus-wide celebration. There are pre-party cocktail hours with a cappella groups at numerous dorms around the school, followed by kegs and dancing at other dorms, closed out with a few after-hours parties here and there. Sounds like fun, right? Well, it is. Although the echoes of "I Will Survive" are still resounding through my head, I managed to have a pretty good time.

Throughout the course of the weekend, I heard some very strange things. Things like "I feel like a gay man trapped in a woman's body." Things you just don't hear every day. But I'm from Northampton, so I've learned to adjust to the oddities that one encounters there every day. No, the strange things that I heard were different. Actually, it was only one strange thing uttered by one girl that is really bothering me now.

On Friday night, I was at one of the parties. It was too crowded. The dance floor was really hot. The music wasn't the greatest. I was hanging out in the hallway when I heard a group of girls across from me talking. One of them said, "God, look at them. They all look the same." She was talking about the men there.

In a way, she had a point. Most of the guys were dressed up in a nice shirt, tie, pants, that kind of thing. But in a different way, she couldn't have said anything more ridiculous. That girl managed to reduce the entire male population to one stereotypical, drunken, dressed-up, sweaty guy.

Bravo! Encore! So, is that the way it is when you go to an all girls school? All of us guys are just a walking set of balls, looking for a place to nest? With our knuckles dragging along the ground? At the time, I wasn't bothered by what she said, but I am now. Men are not all the same. We don't all rape, we aren't all looking for sex, we aren't all going to grab girls' asses and snort and scratch ourselves as we get drunk. If one man is accused of rape in a frat, the rest of the brothers involved in the Greek system are not guilty of the same crime.

I was walking down the street the other day on my way to the bus stop. I was going to class. I had my backpack on. I also had on a green army jacket, and I suppose it made me look shady. I guess I had to look dangerous, because the girl who was walking toward me on the sidewalk on the same side of the street crossed over to the other side of the street to (as I saw it) get away from me. A few steps later I looked back at her, and she looked over her shoulder at me at the same time.

What was she thinking? Was she afraid of the guy walking toward her? Why? Men are not innately evil. Did she think I was going to jump at her? Beat her up? Christ, I was on my way to class! Give me some credit; give men some credit. Are we really all the same, like that girl at Smith said?

I don't think so. In fact, I don't think that anyone else on this Earth is just like me. I may have balls and a dick but it doesn't mean that I am just another guy. I have my own story. I have my own thoughts. And while I am a man, I am not simply any man.

Some of the things that individual men do to women are horrible and unforgivable, but individuals commit the acts, not entire sexes. A lot of what seems to be going on is the blaming of men in general for societal problems, not men in particular. No one has the right to put all men into one handy-dandy category. We are all men, yes. But we are all individuals as well.

Evan Young is a Collegian columnist

Her royal shyness

Wendy Darling

I am very familiar with sidewalks. Walking across campus, I look at them a lot. The same goes when I'm in town. The pavement is my friend — every crack, every crumbling bit of asphalt, every little dip and every pile of sand.

I am shy.

I try to look at the people coming towards me, but I can only stand so much. There are so many factors to consider. How am I supposed to look? Should I smile or should I try to be serious? And what about eye contact?

I sometimes wish that I had a preview screen so I could look at people before they go by. Then, when they actually pass, I don't even have to look at them face-to-face.

But there isn't any preview screen, so after making my decision (smile, nod or forget I haven't seen what's-his- face), I often have regrets. Perhaps I have made a mistake and someone has been offended. Why did that person look at me like that? Did I give him a funny look? It would be better to just look away.

And so I do.

Shy people know things, things nobody should know, things you only learn when you're avoiding contact with actual people by staring at the sidewalk or whatever else is handy.

Too many times in my life, I have found myself standing outside the office of a professor, administrator or boss for what seems like hours memorizing the posters on the hall bulletin board. I notice that the ceiling light is broken, a floor tile is chipped.

Still, I ask myself how to go about asking the question. What should I say? How's he going to react? He's not going to be friendly. He probably has a lot to do. Maybe I can come back later once I develop some backbone.

Meanwhile, let's reread all the comics on his door and have another drink at the water fountain. "Halsey Taylor/Warren, Ohio," reads the stamp around the drain.

Suddenly the door opens.

"Oh, hello, have you been waiting long?" asks the dreaded person. His voice is astonishingly innocent. "The door was open, you know. I hope I haven't kept you waiting."

No, not at all. I have kept myself waiting. I could have gone in, I could have asked the question, but I was too shy. Aaarrrghhh! The professor is, after all, very friendly, kind and cordial. But so passes another hour of my life, wasted by yet another pathetic episode of "The Shy Girl."

I'm even worse with the telephone, sometimes. I hate having to call on someone I can't even see and invade their time and space. Who knows what the person at the other end might be doing? She might be in a bad mood. She might be busy. She might not want to talk to me. Maybe she's not there.

Then, there are the variables that have to do with me. What should I say — exactly? How do you say her name? How do you pronounce my name? I become confused.

I write out a script: "Hello, my name is... I am calling to speak with... Yes, I am calling because... Thank you very much."

Unfortunately, it never goes the way I've planned. The person I call for isn't there. Or they are there but they're not the person I need to speak with. Or they are the person but they're too busy or too friendly or too talkative. What's a neurotic like me to do?

Fortunately for the shy person, live communication can be easily avoided. Letters are a wonderful tool. Sit down, write out everything you have to say exactly how you want to say it, any length you want, and there'll be no chance of anyone laughing at you, at least not to your face. You might get a phone call afterward, but then it's your chance to embarrass them. The ball is in their court.

There are other tools as well. At UMass, the voice mail system can leave messages for anyone who lives on campus. Dial 6-2000, enter your password, press two, press # and there you go — an instant prop for the shy person!

If you don't like the message you've recorded, you don't have to send it. And after you've sent it you can press three and listen to it. Ah, that's good, you said what you wanted to say. If not, you can send another message.

E-mail is perhaps an even greater innovation. Instead of the tedious and painful wait outside my professor's door, I can send an e-mail message. Of course, I try not to do this too often, since I want my professors to recognize my face. But it comes in handy from time to time.

Sample e-mail message: "Would it be alright if I came by your office Thursday afternoon?" Once the professor replies "Yes, I look forward to talking with you," or "No, I will be teaching," the suspense is over. No more guessing about whether or not it's OK to knock on the door. I have permission.

Shy people are not in favor of an impersonal world. They do not enjoy their condition. Being shy is a hard habit to break. And once you're friends with the sidewalk, you're friends forever.

Wendy Darling is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

I CAN'T BELIEVE HE'S ONLY CHARGING $75 FOR AN AUTOGRAPH!
THAT'S ZONKER FOR YA! THE FAN ALWAYS COMES FIRST!
IT'S INCREDIBLE THAT HE'S HERE IN ANAHEIM! IT'S LIKE A DREAM! WANT ME TO PINCH YOU?
NO, THANKS
MEET PRO AM CHAMP ZONKER HARRIS
I KNEW HIM WHEN HE WAS JUST A PUP! I HELPED HIM THROUGH HIS FIRST PEEL!
GET OUT!
SO WHAT DO YOU THINK, MAN? TRUTHFULLY.
EXCELLENT. AND KILLER TAN LINE. HAVE YOU HAD IT APPRAISED?
GB Trudeau

Opinion/Editorial

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian.

Becoming an e-mail junkie

Marni E. Helfner

Sometime last year, I wrote a long detailed column about how I didn't believe in e-mail and thought I would never get an e-mail account.

I was wrong.

A couple of weeks ago, I saw a job I wanted to apply for, and they wanted applicants to send their resumes via e-mail. I had to go out and get myself an e-mail account. My world has not been the same since.

In the 20-odd days since I got my account, I have become an e-mail junkie. I must check my account seven or eight times a day. I've tried out all the little e-mail software and found myself extremely happy using Pine (by far the most idiot-proof software to use).

The first thing I learned was how to look up other people's addresses with the "whois" command. When I don't have anything better to do, I look up and take down addresses of people I know. Of course the next logical step is to put all those addresses in one place... my Pine address book. Well, my address book is now so big that it fills multiple screens and I'm forced to have separate distribution lists for the various groups I belong to.

In the past week, I have learned how to "finger" someone (get your mind out of the gutter!). A finger is what you use to figure out if a specific person is logged on or when the last time they logged on was.

I have also learned how to create my own signature file, a message which is tagged onto the bottom of everything I send. At first, I thought I made it look pretty cool, but now I think it just looks awful.

I have learned what emotions are and what their limitations are :).

I have also learned how to talk simultaneously with someone else, which proved to be more frustrating than I ever imagined. My mind moves faster than I type, so I skip words, I don't get the chance to proofread or edit myself, and what's worse, I usually wind up arguing with the other person and they can't hear the intonations and emotion of what I'm trying to say because e-mail doesn't let you emphasize anything except with capital letters.

Last year, that was my single biggest problem with e-mail, and it still holds true. E-mail can be somewhat heartless because of its lack of ability to show emotion or feeling unless you use highly descriptive words. It can't compare to talking to someone in person, or on the phone, or even getting a hand-written letter.

Sure, it's a cheap, quick alternative to a high phone bill, but it's easy to hide emotions and only give the parts of you that you want to.

And, of course; I too have found someone with whom I am continually e-mailing back and forth. I can be as anonymous as I want, telling only what I want. I can tell people I am six feet tall, thin, with blond hair and blue eyes, and unless they have another way to contact me, that's all they'll ever know about me. If I can be that anonymous and tell people whatever I want, they can do the same and that's scary.

And before people start jumping to conclusions that I am the next Art Stapleton, forget it. It's not that kind of correspondence, and love doesn't happen over a group of telephone wires and a couple of CPUs.

Marni E. Helfner is a Collegian columnist.

It's all in the name

C. Taylor Conner

My parents could have just forgone the Eli Whitney ingenuity and named me Christian, Christopher, Christophe or just plain Chris. But they had to go for the ultimate borderline sissy-boy prenom instead.

Christen.

No matter how vaguely (and I do mean vaguely) masculine the name may look on paper, it is and always will be a homonym of Kristen and Kristin. There's no use in hiding anymore — it's out there and it's mine for life.

My grandmother is at fault for this travesty. She somehow convinced my parents, who had adopted me three months after my birth, to also adopt the variation on "Chris."

It seems a cousin of mine had previously been cursed with the burden. If I'd had any say, I would have preferred being "Baby X" or "Adopto." These days I'm prone to believe the title is just a cruel Conner family joke played on every 25th child born, thus damning them to the wuss throne.

My other theory, based upon the fact I've never seen, met or heard from the other Christen, is that he's probably in some Texas insane asylum alternately denying his fate and singing, "You Make Me Feel Like a Natural Woman" in his favorite teal baby-doll nightie.

I'm not exaggerating in the least — the name is enough to drive you nuts. Imagine kindergarten. The coolest (and usually cruelest) kids are coming up with those clever new names for their peers. "Billy" becomes "Silly." "Pat" is redubbed "Splat." "Delores" is reborn as... well, I guess that's a little over the heads of five-year-olds and non- Seinfeld viewers.

And Christen, paradoxically, is the rainiest day and greatest carnival these kids have ever known. There's a brief moment of genuine despair in not being able to indulge in the renaming game before they realize they've hit the goldmine. Before you know it, you're cornered by a horde of frothing, drooling Ritalin candidates waiting to pounce on the girliest girl name this side of Percival.

Fast-forward a few years later with me. You're 12 or 13 and just discovering the ladies. You don't know much, but what you do know is that any pre-teen or barely-teen you're pining for will inevitably find out the truth.

According to a study I did during my eighth grade year, 40 percent of the girls laughed in my face when they found out my name (accompanied by the secondary data that there was a 100 percent chance they called their friends less than five seconds after I left); 37 percent laughed in my face, leaned in to kiss me and then proceeded to laugh like a stoned hyena; and 22 percent said, "That's my sister's name — kissing you would be like kissing my sister!"

There was also that slight 1 percent chance I lost my lid and cried, "Babywomanchild, one day you might have been proud to say you kissed a boy named Christen. But it's too late now 'cause I'm going with another girl to see Action Jackson, starring Carl Weathers and Prince protegé and budding actress, Vanity. How you like that, sunshine? Oh yeah, and can your mom please give me a ride home?"

Hit the fast-forward button again and arrive with me at a college track meet last year. Unbeknownst to me, my coach entered me in the meet under — no surprises here — my full name. Just before my race the announcer blares:

"...In Lane Four, Michael Johnson. In Lane Five, Quincy Watts. In Lane Six... OK, who did the seedings today? There's a woman's entry in Lane Six. Christen Conner, please report to the women's 400 meter official. I repeat... wait a second. What do you mean it's a guy? Son, is it true? Don't you parents love you? I mean, I know guys named Terry and Cory, but Christen? You're disqualified! Get out of my sight, you panty-waisted fop! In Lane Seven, Butch Reynolds."

And so I read the perilous sea of insults and injuries bearing this moniker, hoping that "Christen" might someday attain the status of androgyny. As I see it, I have two options: Go for the Marion Morrison approach and reinvent myself with a John Wayne-ish macho replacement name, or I could stick it out and make good on it like Alice Cooper.

Yet, John Wayne would have been leather-tough even as Marion Morisson, and Alice Cooper chose to be an Alice as a stage gimmick.

You know, upon reflection, those guys really have some complexes.

C. Taylor Conner is a Collegian Columnist.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR AND COLUMNS

Attention all columnists: If at all possible, please come down Sunday afternoon to get your picture taken. Questions? Call Geri.

The Editorial/Opinion page apologizes for not printing the letters that have been sent via e-mail. We are still learning how to "work the system."

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please TYPE your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several concise letters in the limited space available on the page.

All letters should include a name, address and phone number (for verification purposes only). Students should also include their year and major. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length.

Send all letters to the Ed/Op page c/o the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass.

Arts & Living

COURTESY TAHOE AGENCY

Let's Go Bowling will play with the Toasters Thursday night.

Cliches no Substitute for strong script

Hudson and Berenger cannot save absurd and banal movie

By Justin Daniel Smith
Collegian Staff

THE SUBSTITUTE
Directed by Robert Mandel
with Tom Berenger, Ernie Hudson
Playing at Hampshire Six

Last year's hit Dangerous Minds grossed enough money for Hollywood executives to throw together another white- teacher-leads-inner-city-high-students-to-better-things movie. That can be the only reason why a movie like The Substitute would be made.

Tom Berenger plays Shale, a hardened mercenary that ends up unemployed in Miami after a mishap in Cuba. His high school teacher girlfriend finds herself on the wrong end of gang violence when she is beaten with a metal pipe — and ends up hospitalized with a broken leg.

Columbus High, the school where she teaches, is run by a gang known as the K.O.D. (Kings of Destruction). Shale wants vengeance on the student that did this to her, so he works his inside connections and becomes her substitute, unbeknownst to her.

Shale begins to "clean up the school" — taking care of the gang members and preaching the right ways to the troubled students. Shale quickly learns that the reason the school has been plagued with gangs for so long is because the principal (Ernie Hudson) is part of the problem.

So Shale recruits his mercenary commando pals to rid the school of the K.O.D. and the school's corrupt principal. What then transpires is what easily ranks amongst the worst movies of the year.

Had it not been for Dangerous Minds, this film would have headed straight to video and rightfully so. The plot is completely absurd. The film cannot even rest on its rap music laurels like Minds did. The music is banal and sounds like different rappers uttering expletives over the same beat for the entire movie.

Tom Berenger is no longer a first-rate talent. His days of Platoon, Someone to Watch Over Me and even Major League have been years expired. Ernie Hudson who starred in last year's exceptionally terrible Congo keeps beating his dead career into the ground.

The Substitute even fulfills cliches that having nothing to do with the narrative (e.g. Shale getting shot in the chest but lo and behold his bullet-proof vest saves the day). It's safe to say that there is nothing good about this movie. F

Leading ska bands to hit UMass

Christina Poletto
Collegian Correspondent

You don't have to be a "Rudie" to know that the Toasters show on Thursday night is a University Productions and Concerts event you cannot miss. The Toasters, one of the leading ska bands in America, with Moon record affiliates, Let's Go Bowling, are bound to put on a most enthusiastic and memorable show that this campus won't soon forget.

Credit is due to the Toasters for taking the country by storm with its upbeat reggae influenced ska tunes. Hits such as, "Mona, Dub 56" and "New York Fever" have skyrocketed the band to greater heights than ever projected. With their punchy off-beat guitar strokes and melee of horns, bands such as Rancid and The Mighty Mighty Bosstones have adopted Toaster-like characteristics into their own hit songs.

The ska movement is said to have stemmed from early Jamaican greats like the Skatalites and Prince Buster around the early '60s. Yet ska has seen many transformations since then. What started as rock-steady/skinhead reggae in the '60s metamorphisized into 2-Tone in the late '70s into its current '90s form — modern ska-punk.

Bucket, the guitarist and vocalist for the Toasters, was the founder of Moon Records — America's premiere all-ska record label. Moon's against-the-norm style and optimistic approach gave ska bands the chance to record — an offer that major record companies may not have given.

Let's Go Bowling will open the show with a plethora of tunes from their highly acclaimed second album, Mr. Twist. The band, sometimes referred to as the "Cali Ska Kings," are notorious for their amazing horn lines and exceptional lyrics. Their first release, Music to Bowl By, not only put them on the charts, but immediately situated them to be one of the best all-around ska bands. Let's Go Bowling will surely provide music that demands attention and praise.

In concert the Toasters and Let's Go Bowling will provide a blend of music that ranges from pop to hardcore and jazz to reggae. All you have to do is allow yourself to be submerged into the music, and start skankin' along.

The Toasters and Let's Go Bowling perform tomorrow night at the Student Union Ballroom at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $8. The show is all ages.

Choreographer shows unique dance styles

By Tara MK Connelly
Collegian Staff

Dance is one of those art forms that mirrors soul, conveys emotions and moves the human spirit.

These are the principals that renowned choreographer, Marlies Yearby, tries to incorporate in her dances. Founder of her own company, Movin' Spirits Dance Company, Yearby will bring her expressive dance form to the University of Massachusetts' Augusta Savage Gallery to close their year-long 25th Anniversary celebration.

This internationally known dancer has been commissioned by such prestigious organizations as the American Dance Festival, Lincoln Center Out-Of-Doors Summer Festival and Tribeca Performing Arts Center. Her most recent works include acting in Shu Lee's and Jessica Hagedorn's film, Fresh Kill.

Yearby has created her own form of dance that she calls contemporary modern dance with a voice. This unique form utilizes the dance and vocal traditions from Africa and mixes it with modern dance foundations (Haitian, hip-hop, Latin and jazz). Based in Harlem, Yearby's work has been accredited as a tribute to African-American culture and its role in American society.

The choreographer will be performing with Carl Hancock Rux — a poet, playwright and performer. Rux has worked with the famous Alvin Ailey Dance Company and has received the 1994 Fresh Poet's Award. The two have collaborated on several works over the years and will demonstrate this melding of talent on Thursday night. Marlies Yearby and Carl Hancock Rux will perform at the Augusta Savage Gallery Thurs. night at 7 p.m. The performance is free and open to the public. For more information call the gallery at 545-5177

COURTESY AUGUSTA SAVAGE GALLERY

Marlies Yearby will perform at the Augusta Savage Gallery tomorrow night.

edge
EDGE SALUTES INTRAMURAL EXCELLENCE

Basketball Champions

Men's: DA Bad Boyz II
Paulo Barros, Kareem Bartlett, Alton Byrd, Joel Connor, Phyllip Farquharson, Kenneth Hickman, Daniel Maguire, Jesse Suglia, Shayshahn MacPherson, James Callahan, Manny Owens

Women's: Floor Play III
Sharon Hughes, Courtney MacLean, Katherine McClellan, Amy Ott, Laura Phelan, Ainslee Press, Amy Robertson, Kyle Rothenberger, Kerry Metelski

Co-rec: 41st Side of Queens
Shayna Adelson, Chad Busone, Kimberly Frost, Shannan Hoff, Patrick Hurley, Thomas Laba, Elizabeth Moulton, James Moulton, Dana O'Brien, Jason Buckley, Amanda King

Grad-Fac-Staff: Dream Team IV
Christian Carlson, Sean Clark, Edward Debold, Timothy Derrick, Bryan Heiderscheit, Stephen Jungbluth, Christopher Knight, Andrew Mahar, Kirk Ornstein, Scott Roy, Eric Olsen

WallyballChampions

Champions: Sideout
Everett Moss, Michael Chase, James Blanchette, Todd Ouelette, Matthew Anavy, Michelle Nevil, Melissa McCormack, Kelly Clyburn

Spring Ice Hockey

Champions: Night & Day
Joe Albano, Chris Barry, Chis Connely, Brian Conz, Christian Fitzpatrick, Mike Montessi, Chris Smith, Tom Strike, Matt Trinceri, Dan Wassung, Ryan Lavangie, Rob Stalb, Bart Moylan, Joe Flaherty

In the spirit of
RA/CDA Appreciation Week,
Housing Services and Residence Life would like to recognize the contributions made to the university by all of the Resident Assistants and Community Development Assistants.
Thank You for all your good work!

Multicultural Affairs

Wednesday, April 24, 1996

Campus perspectives: If you could make any demands to the adminstration concerning students of color on campus, what would they be?

"Stop discriminating against all minorities, because they think that black people are just niggers in the ghetto. I gotta move off campus because they're harassing me."

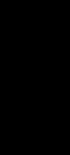
–Dominique Bell

"I think that there should be more faculty members who are minorities and there should also be some thing done to increase the number of ALANA students."

–Tayren Araujo

"Increase the percentage of minorities on campus and increase financial aid so that more people can obtain the knowledge."

–Rivard Pierre



"I think they would hire Ren and Stimpy and Homer Simpson to work on enrollment because I'm sure they'd do a better job."

–Richa Kaul

'92 agreements still in question

By Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Staff

Twenty percent minority student representation in the first– year class by the fall of 1995 is only one of the agreements created by the 1992 Asian, Latino, African, and Native American (ALANA) Agreements that has not been brought to fruition.

"We've never achieved the 20 percent, but we are creeping up," the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Tom Robinson said.

For the fall of 1995, students of color were 16.5 percent of first–year students who were United States citizens; 4.6 percent African–American (including Cape Verdean), 5.1 percent Hispanic, 6.7 percent Asian, and 0.2 percent Native American. This is compared to 15.1 percent in the fall of 1993, making it a difference of 1.4 percent.

In a Student Government Association (SGA) meeting last semester Chancellor David K. Scott said that the present first–year student body represents the demographics of graduating minority seniors from high schools in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

"I think Scott is very committed to diversity," said Associate of the Office of Student Affairs Sara Boyd. "He feels that our student body should represent the state demographics of graduating seniors."

"The admissions staff is working very hard to recruit students of color, but because the competition is so keen, it is a very difficult process," said Robinson. "That is why it seems more appropriate to go with demographics rather than arbitrary numbers."

Robinson added, "As the state demographics are changing, so are our chances of reaching the goal. The 20 percent commitment is still there."

Another ruling of the 1992 ALANA agreements was to improve the percent of minority faculty on campus although quotas and targets may not legally be set.

As of the fall of 1993, 21 new faculty of color were hired, bringing the total of tenure track and tenured faculty of color on the campus to 145 of 1153 total faculty, or 12.6 percent compared to the 11.1 percent of fall 1990.

The restoration of the classified staff apprentice program was agreed upon in 1992. In 1994 budget constraints kept the plan on hold, but due to recent negotiations, the program is in effect.

Upward Bound was a program created to increase the number of ALANA students at the University by creating programs between UMass and inner–city high schools.

"The grant proposal for Upward Bound was finished, but because of the lack of participation by high schools, the proposal never went forward," Robinson said.

Robinson added that many high schools already had Upward Bound affiliations with other colleges or they were already connected to UMass through other programs.

Item 4b of the 1992 ALANA agreements said that a task force would discuss the Office of ALANA Affairs.

"We still need to resolve the ALANA affairs issue," Robinson said. "We are in the mediation process; we have to figure out exactly what we mean when we say ALANA affairs."

"We need to find some sense of closure involving this issue; it was never defined, so what do we do with it," Boyd said.

Robinson said that he hopes discussion will begin in the fall of 1996.

Also, because of the lack of discussion about an Office of ALANA Affairs there has been no institution created for it. Yet, both Office of Jewish Affairs and the Stonewall Center have been created to serve their special interest groups.

Columbus Day was also addressed in the 1992 ALANA agreements. Teach-ins were to be arranged and the day was to be re–named appropriately in order to serve the campus best.

The Office of Human Relations coordinated a teach–in related to Columbus Day on Oct. 13, 1993. No discussions concerning this issue have taken place since. Grant Ingle, the director of the Office of Human Relations, is in the process of organizing more discussions.

Safety and security were addressed by the agreements. It was demanded that more diversity training be given to officers and that more minority officers be recruited.

Chief of Police John W. Luippold said, "In the past four years since the ALANA agreement, Public Safety has hired eight minority and six female security and police officers. In addition, since that time, we have promoted two female police officers and one African–American security officer to supervisory positions within Public Safety."

Officers are also given eight hours of diversity training.

Also included in the 1992 ALANA agreements was the subject of undergraduate and graduate recruitment, housing, communication and training and development.

"I think what we need to do is bring students, administration and faculty together in order to come to terms with what ALANA students need," said Robinson. "From the fall of '92, we've come a long way."

Top Five Anti–Multicultural UMass Administrators

Attitudes resisting multiculturalism are plainly evident in certain administrators. We have compiled a list of the top 5 offenders after an informal survey of ALANA students.

1. Associate Chancellor Jim Leheny, Chancellor's Staff.

Leheny is well known for his strong desire never to see or interact with undergraduates, especially ALANA students.

2. Grant Ingle, director of Office of Human Relations.

Noted for his inefficiency, Ingle displays this quality best when put in charge of projects designed to advance multiculturalism on campus, for example the ALANA agreements, Civility Commission, Harassment Policy, etc.

3. Tom Robinson, Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs.

Robinson has proven himself to be an expert at long winded dialogues that are designed to divert attention and exhaust energy so that students seeking to advance multiculturalism will be permanently frustrated.

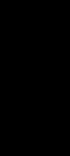
4. Barbara Burn, Associate Provost, International Programs.

Burn has given her undivided loyalty to German and other European students at the expense of those from Asia, Africa and Latin America, setting the standard for Eurocentrism on campus.

5. Carol Wallace, Director of the Everywoman's Center

Better known as the director of the Whitewoman's Center.

Compiled by Lisa Chiu, Sunanda Ghosh, Hussein Ibish, Shyamala Ivatury and Christine Soh.



They need to offer better financial and packages for African Americans and more programs to help them when they get here."

–Omar Gayle

No more useless dialogue from stalling administrators

It was four years and one generation of students ago, on November 7, 1992, when an important part of UMass history was made. It was on this date that the 1992 ALANA agreements were, after a lengthy process, signed, sealed and presented to the campus community as fact, as proof, and as evidence that if students demanded something, and fought hard enough, they could play a role in improving the campus.

Thus were born the ALANA agreements which focused on increasing diversity on campus. Four years later, we students find that most of the agreements have not been honored by the UMass administration.

As recently as last week, administrator Grant Ingle, director of the Office of Human Resources, said, "The definition of multiculturalism risks alienating many white students because it does not include 85 percent of the student body."

Also last week, administrator Thomas B. Robinson, vice chancellor for Student Activities, said he and Chancellor David K. Scott both agreed that the 20 percent ALANA freshman representation by fall 1995, which was promised in the agreements, is "unrealistic." They claim that due to the demographics of the state of Massachusetts, there are not enough available ALANA students to make 20 percent mark.

In addition, the Higher Education Coordinating Council has passed a proposal, with the approval of the Board of Trustees, to tighten academic admission standards, so that starting in the fall of 1997, the minimum admission requirements for students at UMass will demand a minimum GPA of 2.75 for Fall 1997 and 3.0 for Fall 1998.

In addition, only 15 percent of students will be admitted through special enrollment by 1997. By 1998 it will be 12 percent and by 1999, 10 percent. As of 1995, 59 percent of ALANA students fall into the special enrollment aspect of admissions. This has been seen as a push to send "less qualified," as well as students of color, to the area community colleges.

Meanwhile, students of color are still feeling the brunt of this institutional racism in all aspects of UMass life, from housing, to campus security, to the dining commons and the classroom.

The beauty of the 1992 ALANA agreements was that the administration knew, just as they always know, that the moment these agreements were signed, they would be largely forgotten about. The few concerned students would be suckered into coming to meeting after meeting, where the administration would pretend there were complicated bureaucratic reasons why the agreements had not been implemented and imply it was the role of the students to provide detailed administrative answers to these phony obstacles. In other words, the moment the meetings had begun the administration was already patting itself on the back.

What they have done, in effect, is to blame the unfulfilled aspects of the ALANA agreements on somebody else, something else, anything except where the real blame lies — namely themselves.

Lisa Chiu

Fact: The administration has blamed the failure to rename Columbus Day on the students.

According to Robinson, Ingle was in charge of planning teach–ins, which were supposed to be one aspect of the demands, but because students were not interested in attending, it did not continue. Robinson went on to claim that the students couldn't propose an alternative name for Columbus Day.

At no point in time did Robinson acknowledge that Ingle did not follow through on continuing the teach–ins during Columbus Day, or that he was to blame for not seriously attempting to find a name for Columbus Day other than one honoring a person celebrated for committing genocide.

Fact: Robinson blamed area schools for the University's failure to establish the UMass Upward Bound Program.

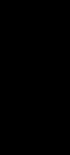
Robinson said area schools were not interested in participating in the Upward Bound Program. Therefore, the Upward Bound grant proposal was not continued. Robinson said there was no support from the school districts, there was no need for the program, and no high schools would sign up for it.

Four years after the agreement was signed Robinson continues to stress the need for dialogue between the administration and students. The typical administrative response: meetings, meetings and more meetings... like the Energizer bunny their talk keeps on going and going...

Students want real institutional change. Students want real commitment to increasing the number of ALANA students on campus. ALANA students are sick of the financial aid packages that disappear after their first year. Students of color are sick of being stopped by police just because they seem "suspicious." Students want more money to fund their cultural RSOs. Students want change.

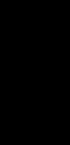
The UMass administration should stop making excuses for their support of institutional racism and incompetence. It is time the ALANA agreements are honored. To continue to ignore them is to continue to ignore the issues of race and ethnicity.

Lisa Chiu is a Collegian Columnist.



"They should give students from the ALANA community more money, allow more minority students to enter the school, and prevent those who want to backtrack from the past and take away all our opportunities."

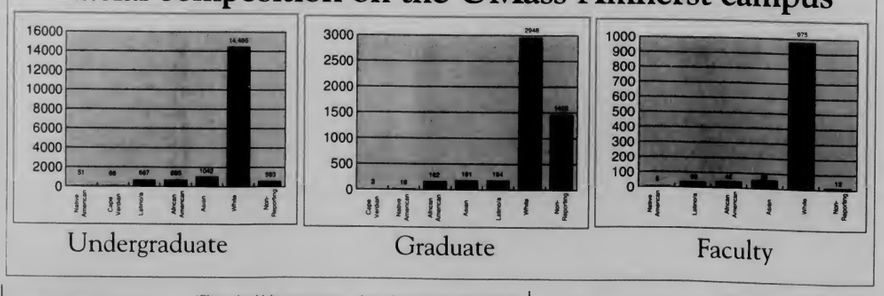
–Bannet Endale



"Financial aid is a hassle and a problem. there should be more help with the multicultural outlets on campus instead of having individual organizations. There should be a conscious effort to raise the number of students of color at UMass. They should send recruiters out."

–Tyrone Tugwell

Racial composition on the UMass Amherst campus



"There should be more money so we could fund our activities. More resources should be available to fund CEEBS because CEEBS is lacking in fundamental things here. The New Africa House needs help, the library is sad, it discourages kids from going there, everything is low on funding, they don't have the administration give us funding and then take it all away. Whitmore needs to meet a quota for minorities. The first year here, students get lots of financial aid, but in the next few years, it gets cut, and then everyone blames it on the students' grades when its really cost. There should be more [financial aid] attention given to the sophomores and juniors."

–Magdalene Moise, Carole Louissaint, Moselye Pierre, Sherly Jean–Baptiste, Natasha Belizaire, and Marie Duplessy

"When students of color apply to the university, they never get a feel of what a massive place it is here, in terms of the numbers of white students on campus. They should make us more aware about what's happening with students of color on campus."

–Aamir Khan

What ever happened to the 1992 ALANA agreements? What needs to be done for 1996?

Photos by Ryan Tiezzi, Sunanda Ghosh, and Kariem Ali.

"I think in the curriculum there is not much, especially in Asian issues. For example — history — there are only two courses, Chinese, and Japanese, everything else is European or Caucasian, there is nothing to do with Asians. I'm Cambodian and there's nothing about Cambodia on campus except the Cambodian Students Association, my suggestion is in the education or history departments, to bring more issues about minorities, there are not many courses about the African or Asian countries."

–Heap Sin

"That the university not only recruit students of color, but also have retention programs ensuring that we stay and graduate and also the university should make an effort to recruit ALANA students in the nursing program. Furthermore, train staff and faculty members to understand the complex issues we are faced with everyday."

–Magalie Lamour

"The first step is more or better faculty and administrative representation, from the top down, from the top of the pyramid to the lower levels of the administration, so that we don't see an imbalance where all the administrators of color are at the lower levels. There should be less bureaucracy and less confrontational [attitudes] for students of color who don't speak English as a first language."

–Bill Bailey Eisenhauer

Having some knowledge about the 1992 ALANA Agreements, how would you respond, or what reactions do you have, as to what has happened to them?

"The agreements were unfulfilled. They found ways to sneak around some of the items, the biggest one would be admissions. Now HECC's [The Higher Education Coordinating Council] proposal which was approved by the Board of Trustees shows that there will be less minority students on campus.

"When students stay quiet, they smooth things over and smooth them over until it's forgotten. I feel there has been a lapse in student leadership, we used to be feared and now they treat us like puppy dogs. Tom Robinson and the Chancellor used to never be allowed to veto a motion from senate. We've gotten too nice to the administration, they work for us. In 1990, recruitment was up, prices were level, but now prices are steadily increasing, and now with HECC's proposal, there will be less students of color on campus."

–David Nunez

"In 1992, the Justice Department came in, because it was a crisis situation. No one paid attention, nobody came from outside of the university in response to Arlene Barosy, the administration tried to hush it up. It all culminated together and that's when the state came in. They came at the request of the university, at that point the university didn't know what to do.

"As far as the upward bound program, It was one of the most popular programs here, there was never any shortage of students."

–Sandra Roe

"The way they [the administration] get around agreements is that they call the students to meet, and have meeting after meeting, so that eventually, the students will bet tired and bogged down so that can't commit to the demands because of academic pressure, it's a way of burning them out. The students definitely want the demands to be recognized, but they can only spend so much time pursuing the demands, meeting after meeting, that the case with the 92 demands and the demands that happened in 94."

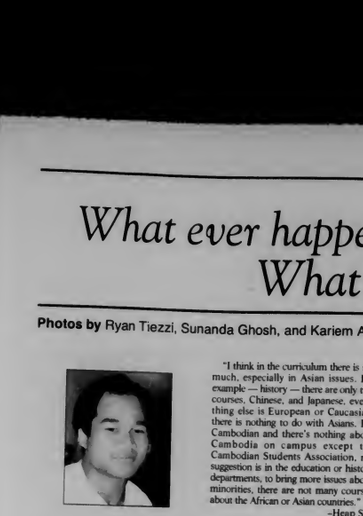
–Dan Lizana

"As long as the administration couldn't come up something about Columbus Day, my opinion is if they weren't going to do anything at all, they would be better off changing the name to something more appropriately representative of what Columbus did, which was nothing. He didn't discover America, he came over and murdered people.

"What sums up my whole view of this university, is the sign outside of Chadbourne, they had a cement slab outside of the Cultural Center, they asked us what we wanted on the sign, and we repeatedly said, "The Josephine White Eagle Cultural Center." Two months later, they asked us again, four years later there is still no sign, and they still don't know what's going on the sign, and the concern is their liability aways."

"When people say that white students feel left out of cultural things on campus, I respond, what's the problem? Left out of what? All the big things on campus? The media? Well, what the hell are they left out of?

–Kahonwes



Graham, Aptheker and Malcolm X

Ibrahim Ali
Sunanda Ghosh
Christine Soh

In the March 6th edition of the Multicultural Affairs Page, we challenged the University and its community to take a step towards the realization of the unfulfilled 1992 ALANA agreements. By enhancing the W.E.B. Du Bois Library with the papers of Shirley Graham Du Bois, Herbert Aptheker and Malcolm X, a major research center for the study of African American history and intellectual history in general could be established. A library collection including these three extraordinary leaders would surely attract students and scholars from all over the world and enhance the reputation and academic atmosphere of our campus. What follows are the biographies of these three significant individuals.

• A well known journalist and writer, activist and professor in the W.E.B. Du Bois Department of African American Studies, Shirley Graham Du Bois was born in Indianapolis, Ind., and raised in the Northwest and New Orleans.

When she was of age, Shirley Graham attended the Oberlin Conservatory of Music where she wrote a full–scale opera for her Master's Thesis called Tom Tom. Tom Tom traced African–American music from the jungles of West Africa, to the transfer in the South, to churches, and then to music halls and jazz centers.

It was performed by the Cleveland Lyric Opera Co. in 1930 in their Summer Opera Program and was considered to be her first major accomplishment for she was the first African–American woman to write and have performed a full scale opera.

She later taught music courses, wrote plays for stage and radio and attended Yale Drama School, where she authored a play entitled It's Morning.

In the late '40s, Shirley Graham became a part of the Third Party Movement. It was during this time of intense political activity that she and W.E.B. Du Bois were married. From this point on, Shirley Graham Du Bois focused on working with Dr. Du Bois in the struggle for civil rights. She worked as a freelance writer all over the globe, concentrating on the conditions of African–Americans and the struggle for equal opportunity.

In 1961, they moved to Ghana in order to accept the offer for Dr. Du Bois to write the "Encyclopedia Africana," and after becoming citizens of Ghana, Shirley Graham Du Bois renounced her US citizenship. After Dr. Du Bois' death in 1963, Shirley Graham Du Bois took the responsibility of organizing Ghana Television. She set up a factory for the production of TV sets in Ghana, joining with the Sanyo Corporation of Japan, and organized the sending of Ghana technicians abroad for training.

The Ghana coup forced Shirley Graham Du Bois to flee Ghana, at which point she went to China and worked with the Afro–Asian Writer's Association in producing their magazine. She then moved to Cairo and travelled around Africa while creating a photographic autobiography of Dr. Du Bois. Graham later wrote another novel based in South Africa, and taught at the University of Massachusetts. She was also the author of a book on the women of China, which unfortunately would never reach completion. She is buried with Dr. Du Bois in Ghana. Their burial site represents a place for pilgrimage mainly for African Americans. (Christine Soh)

• The editor of "The Correspondence W.E.B. Du Bois" (3 volumes, 1973–76), published by the University of Massachusetts Press, Herbert Aptheker also edited "The Education of Black People" (1973) and "Prayers for Dark People" (1980), both also published by the University of Massachusetts Press.

Currently, Aptheker is editing "The Complete Published Work of Du Bois," a 40–volume project of which six volumes have been completed.

He was born in New York in 1915, and holds a B.S., M.A., and Ph.D. from Columbia University. His books include "The Negro in the Civil War," "Negro Slave Revolts in the United States, 1526–1860," "The Negro in the American Revolution," and "To Be Free: Studies in American Negro History," among others. He also has many books and articles and has written numerous monographs and articles.

In 1946, Du Bois asked Aptheker to edit his correspondence and personal papers. Aptheker agreed and when Du Bois left for Ghana in 1961, two years before his death, he gave Aptheker his correspondence (about 100,000 letters) and other papers.

Aptheker has received awards from the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History, the Guggenheim Foundation, the Fund for Social Analysis, the Social Science Research Council, the Rabinowitz Foundation, the Martin Luther University (Germany), and the American Council of Learned Societies. (Reprinted from The Campus Chronicle, February 16, 1996.)

• During the early 1960s, a leader emerged from the Black community, one of the great Americans of the 20th century.

Malcolm Little was born in Omaha, Neb. Despite a childhood that was marked by high achievement in school, Malcolm's adult education was in the streets of Boston and Harlem, eventually leading to his incarceration for robbery in Boston.

In prison, Malcolm was exposed to the teachings of Elijah Muhammed of the Nation of Islam. Malcolm was exposed to Elijah's interpretation of Islam and joined the Nation, transforming himself from petty criminal to upstanding citizen.

Upon his release from prison, Malcolm became Minister of the important Harlem Nation of Islam Mosque in New York City. It was here that Malcolm's ability to critique the racist American political, economic and social institutions led to many converts and followers for the Nation of Islam.

His success may have contributed to jealousy within the upper echelons of the Nation of Islam, but it was his comment concerning the death of JFK that led to a formal separation from the Nation of Islam.

Malcolm became disillusioned not just because of his "banishment' from the Nation of Islam, but also because of various women indicting Elijah Muhammed for adultery. It was amidst this turmoil that the second and arguably most important phase of Malcolm's development began.

Under Elijah, Malcolm was taught a version of Islam that was rooted in Nationalistic mysticism, differing from orthodox forms of Islam. Malcolm made the Haj (Pilgrimage to Mecca) required of all Muslims, inspiring him to alter the direction of his political ideology. He gave himself his third and final name, a Muslim name, Malik El–Shabazz.

Malcolm's visits to Africa and the Middle East gave him a world view of the plight of Afro–Americans in the United States.

Malcolm founded the Organization of African–American Unity in hopes of pursuing his crusade against racism and imperialism, and began to gain support and admiration for his cause.

In 1965, this hero, father and revolutionary was cut down by members of the Nation at a theater in Harlem. The circumstances surrounding the assassination have strongly suggested substantial FBI involvement in Malcolm's death. It has been revealed that Malcolm was a target of the COINTELPRO programs the FBI used to dismantle the Black Panther Party, American Indian Movement, and other revolutionary groups.

Malcolm's brief life was a testament to the revolutionary spirit of man, and should be revered as such. (Ibrahim Ali)

Sunanda Ghosh contributed to these biographies.

"Increase the number of ALANA students as well as the faculty and administration, and increase the funding for all cultural RSOs, as well have the university show support for cultural programs such as the Asian American Special Interest Residential Program."

–Marchella Ming

"To have a more interactive part with the organizations of color on thh campus. They have Greek Affairs or Hillel House, but they don't have direct interaction with multicultural organizations like BMCP, Zeta Psi Theta, South Asian Club, or the Office of ALANA Affairs."

–Muhammad Yousef

"There's so much stuff we need. Just do what you agreed to do with the over 120 something demands over the years. Live up to the agreements and do what you said you would do on paper."

–Maurice Caston

"They should make the dorms more diverse, because the majority of students tend to stay in one area. They should make students of color feel comfortable living in the dorms on campus."

–Dimitry Frederique (above)

"Have the administration get involved with the activities in school, to be involved as much as possible in the different cultural groups on campus."

–Thien Tran (left)

Students demand commitment from administration concerning Asian–American studies

Students of color have been demanding ethnic studies at UMass–Amherst and across the country for decades. Last semester, in an attempt to unify the movement on campus and in the Five–Colleges, the Asian–American Studies Coalition was formed by a collective of student activists.

Though we were and continue to be fueled by energy and commitment to the goal of gaining an inclusive curriculum at the University, we constantly struggle with the fact that we are taking responsibility for changes in the curriculum which the University, not just the students, should be undertaking.

The University continues to fail to meet the needs of the entire student body, therefore students must continue to sacrifice their time and energy for a political movement that at times feels futile. The University has a history of feeding the students empty words of its commitment to "diversity."

Chancellor David K. Scott's Thinking Document (1995) stated: "A truly just society would be transcultural where differences are valued and explored... [we must] move boldly in achieving a diverse University of students, faculty, staff, and administrators... [It is] through the curriculum... that we will make progress."

The Asian–American Studies Coalition uses grassroots organizing to work toward institutionaltzing ethnic studies because the University has not truly fulfilled "diversity... through the curriculum." We need your support. Our membership includes administrators, staff, faculty, graduate students, and undergraduates across ethnicities, departments, and offices. We challenge you to demand more of your education and more of your college experience. Please get involved by attending our next general meeting on April 30, at 7 pm, in the Campus Center. If you cannot attend, call us at 253–4038.

The Asian–American Studies Coalition has compiled a fact sheet in an attempt to inform the campus community about the genuine need for Asian–American studies at UMass– Amherst. We encourage you to read the following information which was drawn from the fact sheet as an introduction to a part of this political movement. The movement for Asian–American studies has a history of struggle that spans over three decades in the five–colleges. The time for the University to acknowledge our needs and to take action is long overdue.

• Asian–American studies is the interdisciplinary study of the historical and contemporary experiences of Asians and people of Asian descent in the United States. Asian Studies is the study of cultures in Asia, predominately the study of Chinese and Japanese languages and literature at UMass– Amherst. The two fields are not one in the same.

• There is presently neither an existing Asian–American studies Bachelor's Degree program nor an Asian–American studies certificate program at UMass–Amherst or in the Five–Colleges.

• Asian and Asian–American students are the largest student group of color at UMass Amherst (1300+), comprising 6 percent of the student body among undergraduates alone.

• There is a lack of faculty who have expertise in, and are hired specifically to teach, Asian–American studies at UMass–Amherst.

• The University and the Chancellor's commitment to "diversity" will be fully realized when Asian–American studies is formalized in the UMass–Amherst curriculum, and more tenure–track Asian and Asian–American faculty well– versed in the field are hired.

• Asian and Asian–American students at UMass–Amherst have organized independent study classes in Asian–American studies with generous support from faculty sponsors (Sally Habana–Hafner, Ernie Allen, Theresa Austin) and graduate student facilitators (Lucy Burns, Amy Guerrara, Monica Lin, Don Operario, Tracey Tsugawa) over the past two semesters.

• Over 100 Asian and Asian–American students have enrolled and actively participated in the independent study classes in Asian–American studies.

• The Asian–American Studies Coalition is expanding and continuing to do grassroots mobilizing toward a more inclusive and representative public higher education curriculum, one that at minimum requires an Asian– American studies certificate program at UMass–Amherst.

Anh Ly and Monica Yu are UMass Students.

"There should be more programs aimed at the ALANA Community, more sensitivity to the issues that effect us on campus."

–Dana Salmon

"There should be more classes that have to deal with different cultures, more diversity, and Spring Concert should be more diverse."

–Nicole Mata and Jan'ann Aponte

Dance group to present annual show

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

Alive with Dance will present their annual spring concert this week, starting Thursday evening. A variety of dance styles ranging from ballet to jazz to modern will be presented. All performances will take place at Bowker Auditorium at 8 p.m.

According to Hillary Knowlton, president of Alive with Dance, the 10 dances were all choreographed by seniors. Knowlton said the dances presented represent a wide variety of styles. Examples include the modern "Celebration," choreographed by Mia Cucinotte and the comedic "Oh Mother Be Still," choreographed by Gretel Schatz. Also included is a jazz piece, set to medley of Broadway tunes, composed by Jennifer Scanlon. The dancers also tackle serious subjects. Shaun Curtain's "Broken" tells of child abuse.

The dances are set to diverse musical accompaniments. Dances are performed to the tunes of well-known artists like Aretha Franklin, Bobby McFerrin, Tori Amos, Mick Hart and U2. The dancers will also be sharing the stage with some musicians from the department of music. "Imprimis," a piece choreographed by Katherine Hooper, features live music composed by guitarist Jon Slate.

Knowlton said, "each person has their own idea" about the way the dances should be performed and it's this creativity that put together such a diverse program.

Knowlton said the dancers have been working on this program since November, when they held auditions. Alive With Dance, a registered student organization, is advised by Andrew Watkins, but the group choreographed, performed and organized the concert. In addition to exhausting rehearsals, the group also works hard at fund-raising and publicity.

Alive With Dance will present three performances on Thurs., Fri. and Sat. evenings at Bowker Auditorium in Stockbridge Hall. Tickets are $3 for students, seniors and children and $5 general admission For tickets, call the Fine Arts Center Box Office at 545-2511.

Johnny Cash has burning passion

By Jim Patterson
Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Johnny Cash just wouldn't stay put on the scrap heap of country music.

Thirteen years after CBS Records sent him to pasture, Cash spends little time dwelling on past glories. This day, he takes a call in a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., hotel room.

He was in Florida for a show in which he performed his signature songs, such as "I Walk the Line," "Folsom Prison Blues" and "Man in Black."

But like any other vital artist, he'll try the new stuff, too. He almost has completed an ambitious double CD in collaboration with rap-rock producer Rick Rubin and Tom Petty & The Heartbreakers.

Thirty songs have been recorded for release this August or September. Cash says it is a "burning desire and passion" that drives him to keep recording and performing at the age of 64. A memorable recent show at the House of Blues in Los Angeles featured backing by Petty and company.

"It was the first time I'd ever experienced the really hard rock 'n' roll feel on stage, " Cash said. "I've done a little heavy rockabilly from time to time, but all those musicians playing together at full volume and trying to blow the roof off really felt kind of good.

"Felt like I was 50 again."

So is Johnny Cash cooking up a rock record? No, he's making a Johnny Cash record, some of it more country than anything he's ever recorded. And there are some surprising song selections thrown in, most brought to the table by Rubin.

Cash has cut songs by Jimmie Rodgers, Bob Wills, Roy Clark, The Carter Family, Molly O'Day ("Don't Sell Daddy Any More Whiskey"), Charlie Louvin and Hank Snow. He also has put his stamp on "Addicted to Love" — by that English hillbilly Robert Palmer.

"I hope it came off, it felt pretty good," Cash said. "I did it as kind of a nasty low-voice kind of thing.

"We may have a double CD, or we may have a single CD with an extra pocket to place volume two."

From the rock world, Cash recorded songs by Petty ("Southern Accent"), Neil Young, Soundgarden, and a remake of a tune he recorded at his very first session for Sun Records in Memphis, "Mean Eyed Cat." Rubin's freewheeling approach in the recording studio reminded Cash of two producers from earlier in his career: Sam Phillips at Sun, and Nashville maverick Cowboy Jack Clement.

"But Sam had more tendency to go heavy rock, on which I might have embarrassed myself," Cash said. "And in this album I know I did not embarrass myself. I'm proud of every track."

Johnny Cash has released scores of albums in his storied career, embracing gospel songs, as well as tunes that spoke of truck driving, railroads, and others that were middle-of-the-road country.

He was a contemporary of Elvis Presley and present during the rise of rock 'n' roll at Sun in the 1950s. He explored the ties shared by folk and rock and country along with Bob Dylan in the 1960s. By the 1970s, he was a living country music icon. In the 1980s, he was dropped from CBS, and a two-album stint with Mercury failed to reinvigorate his career. He did not take well to people thinking he was through. He felt the same way about the careers of his peers.

"The fans are getting cheated out of the great country tradition," Cash said. "Ask them who are the Louvin Brothers and they don't know. Ask them for some of Don Gibson's hits, and they don't know any. They don't get them played for them. Hank Snow, Faron Young, Carl Smith — they don't hear 'em anymore.

"I don't know how I could have made it without those songs. All through the Air Force I was so lonely for three years. If I couldn't have sung all those old country songs I don't think I could of made it."

Cash's first album with Rubin, "American Recordings," was a stark, guitar-and-voice affair. In a backhanded compliment, unreleased material from those sessions has surfaced on bootlegs. He says those songs will eventually come out officially, but he seems too excited by the future to sort through the past.

"I think any artist would be wise if he's got the burning desire and the passion that I have to continue to perform my work to find the people to work with who appreciate them and want to do it," Cash said.

"They're out there, y'know? There are all kinds of deals going around, things happening now with different record companies that are recording the older artists."

Musical enchants Concert Hall

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

SHE LOVES ME
Fine Arts Center
Apr. 21

Broadway's best kept secret tiptoed quietly into the Fine Arts Center Sunday night and captured the hearts of the audience. She Loves Me, a charming love story, featured an enthusiastic cast and songs that set off the romantic mood.

The story is set in Budapest in 1934. The musical opened with the cheery, "Good Morning, Good Day," and featured the entire ensemble outside the main setting, Maraczek's Parfumerie. The main character, Georg, is a bachelor in love with, "Dear Friend," a woman he has been corresponding with but doesn't know what she looks like or her name.

The story picks up when Amalia, a perky saleswoman, begs for a job. In "No More Candy," Amalia successfully sells off a musical cigar box, much to Georg's amazement. Amalia snags the job, but unfortunately she and Georg cannot get along.

Georg is set to meet his secret correspondent one evening just before Christmas, and in "Tonight at Eight," Georg sings of his anticipation at meeting the mystery woman. In a twist of events, Amalia confesses to her co-worker Ilona that she too has a rendezvous that night in "I Don't Know His Name." What follows is a virtual comedy, as Georg discovers that Amalia is his "Dear Friend," and is unwilling to reveal himself to her.

She Loves Me is one of those rare gems of a musical. In the past, it was overlooked by critics and has just now begun to enjoy the notice it deserves, following a 1993 revival. The story is delightful and the individual attention on the characters was a treat. An added plus was that there were no elaborately choreographed dance scenes to clutter up this show, such as the dance extravaganzas of Crazy For You and Will Rogers' Follies. Every character was given a chance to shine and the mixture of a well-written book, catchy music and lyrics made up a recipe for the perfect little romantic comedy.

Opera devotees have chance to hear songs & arias

COURTESY OF THE DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC & DANCE
Karen Smith Emerson

Opera spans all languages and tonight, in Bezanson Recital Hall, opera and music lovers will have the opportunity to hear not only the popular Italian songs and arias, but also American and French songs. The program, which begins at 8:15 p.m. will feature soprano Karen Smith Emerson, tenor Steven Grillo and pianist Nadine Shank. They will include in their selections Donizetti's "Elixir of Love" and Gonoud's "Romeo and Juliet."

Smith and Shank will perform a group of French songs set to the poetry of famous romantic novelist, Victor Hugo, by a variety of composers, including Liszt, Saint-Saens and Faure. Grillo will sing works by Rimsky-Korsakov and Barber. The program will conclude with duets from the popular musical, Showboat. This program is free and open to the public.

— Seema Gangatirkar

How does the world begin to heal from a genocide?

One by One

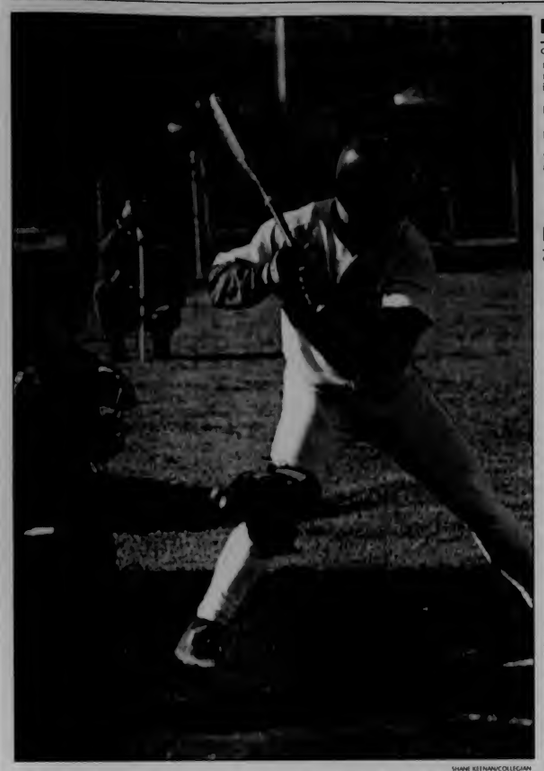
Descendants of the Third Reich and the Holocaust in Dialogue

Monday, April 29, 7:00pm
Student Union Ballroom
University of Massachusetts

Free and open to the public. This event is made possible in part through the generous support of the Five College Lecture Fund, the Office of Jewish Affairs, the Student Affairs Cultural Enrichment Fund, Campus Activities, Hillel, and the Commuter Area Government. For more information call 545-9642.

CAMPUS ACTIVITIES AT THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS PRESENTS
A WEEKLY PROGRAM SERIES: SOMETHING EVERY FRIDAY
Ventriloquist Lynn Trefzger

Bluewall Cafe • April 26th 1996 • 8pm • FREE
The Movie "Toy Story" Immediately Following Performance
"Corn Pops", "Trident" Gum, & Punch available
This series is made possible by a grant from Auxiliary Services and the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs.



SHANE KEENAN/COLLEGIAN
Ryan Jette, shown batting earlier in the season, scored the game-winning run in the Minutemen's win yesterday in the Beanpot Championship.

American League starts Albert Belle investigation

NEW YORK (AP) — American League president Gene Budig will investigate the April 6 incident in which Cleveland outfielder Albert Belle allegedly threw a baseball that hit a Sports Illustrated photographer.

"No official complaint has been lodged," Budig said yesterday. "We feel, however, that the incident is serious enough to warrant further investigation. We will work closely with all parties to determine whether further action by the league should be taken."

Belle is alleged to have thrown a ball at Tony Tomsic at Jacobs Field after becoming angry that the photographer took his picture. Tomsic has refused to file a complaint with the league.

"I'm catching a lot of heat because I'm not doing anything," he told USA Today. "But that's my decision. I suppose if it had hit me in the head... oh, well."

Baseball officials are reluctant to take disciplinary action against Belle unless they have evidence they think would withstand legal challenge from the players' association.

"The players were on the ground in front of the tarp, maybe on the edge of the grass, stretching," Tomsic was quoted as saying. "I popped a couple of head shots of Albert, and he shook his finger at me and said, 'No, no, no' and I backed off.

"Then they started warming up playing catch. He was in short left field. I was on the track near the tarp. At no time was I ever in this guy's face — before then or since then.

"I started shooting pictures as they were warming up because they were in these bright-red windbreakers. I heard some yelling from the players, and then I heard a ball hit behind me in the seats. I don't know whether it went over my head, next to me or what.

"Right after that, I was shooting Belle throwing, and it looked like something was coming at me and I put my hand up. I heard a player yell, 'What the hell are you doing?'" at Belle.

Then, Tomsic said, he heard Belle shout an obscenity, and the ball struck him.

"I guess I saw it coming, and caught it on the knuckle," Tomsic said. "I yelled back at Belle, 'Would you repeat that?' And he said, 'I told you not to take my picture.'"

Belle, Tomsic added, then repeated the obscenity.

■ baseball

continued from page 12

recorded a career-high 11 strikeouts, shattering his former career mark of four. Barnsby also had an equally impressive walk-free afternoon.

With the complete game effort, Barnsby was rewarded by being named Beanpot Most Valuable Player.

"Barnsby pitched a great game," Stone said. "Their pitcher pitched a heckuva game, too."

"Scott pitched an unbelievable game," Jette said. "It was just great that he could keep us in the game without allowing a run."

The starter appreciated the defensive effort behind him.

"Jette's play off the wall was the game," Barnsby said.

Northeastern hurler Paul Houser, a senior righty, took the loss in the outing. He threw for six strikeouts and gave up four walks.

The Minutemen's other scoring opportunity came in the bottom of the fifth. Freshman designated hitter Doug Clark led off the inning with a single past the third baseman into left field. Clark advanced to second on a sacrifice bunt by third baseman Bryan Mazzaferro, and to third when catcher Andy Kiah grounded out to the short stop.

With Clark standing on third, rightfielder Pete Gautreau struck out to end the inning.

The Minutemen play today in a doubleheader at Maine. First pitch of the opening game is set for 3 p.m.

■ Beanpot

continued from page 12

program this year to meet Title IX requirements. While tournament organizers were reluctant to include a team from outside of Beantown, UMass proved that it is a New England baseball powerhouse.

Tournament MVP, sophomore right-handed hurler Scott Barnsby, did his part in boosting the image of the Minuteman pitching staff going the full nine innings and striking out 11 batters.

"Scotty pitched well against UConn," UMass coach Mike Stone said, "and today he rose to the occasion here at Fenway against Northeastern."

In fact, some of the Minutemen feel their Fenway debut should have come sooner, and that solid Division I baseball should be stressed over location.

"We're the best team in New England right now. We're the best team in Massachusetts," center fielder Nate Murphy said. "I think we should have been invited to this before. This is a Division I tournament more than anything else."

"I think we deserved to be here just as much as the other teams out there," senior leftfielder Ryan Jette said. "Just because the school isn't located in Boston doesn't mean that we don't deserve to be here."

While the team was ecstatic with the tourney win, Stone kept things in perspective looking at the big picture.

"It's great, as an end result, that we won the tournament," Stone said. "But the tournament that means the most to us, and that we really want to win is the Atlantic 10 Tournament. So we have to get there first, and then do something about winning it."

University President William Bulger accepted the trophy with Stone and the team, and felt that the victory was indicative of the university as a whole.

"This is such a great day for this team, to find themselves in the Beanpot, so newly arrived, and to walk away with the prize," Bulger said. "But that is the way things are going for the University of Massachusetts academically, on the basketball court, and on the baseball field now.

■ track

continued from page 12

the best in school history, and UMass wants to finish the season strong.

The Minutewomen only have one more dual-meet left, against Temple, St. Joseph's and Fordham, at LaSalle. Judging by the way the Minutewomen have performed throughout the season so far, they could be able to win the meet quite easily.

UMass' next big meet is the Penn Relays in Philadelphia, where only a few select members will be able to compete. The Penn Relays are considered the biggest track and field event in the world.

The Minutewomen also have the New England Championships coming up on May 10-11. UMass should also be able to perform well at this championship. The Minutewomen have already proved that they are the best team in New England throughout their dual-meets.

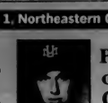
Then it is off to the ECAC championships on May 18-19 at Fairfax, Va. The Minutewomen already have several qualifiers for this event.

They include Rebecca Donaghue, the team's best distance runner, who qualified during the first couple of meets of the season. She will be joined by Heather Brown, who is also an Olympic qualifier and NCAA qualifier in the javelin.

Although the Minutewomen will be without the services of Anya Forrest "who is someone who will score points at the ECACs" according to UMass coach Julie LaFreniere, overall they should do pretty well.

Massachusetts 1, Northeastern 0

Innings	123456789
UMass	000000001
Northeastern	000000000



Player of the Game

Scott Barnsby CG – 11 Ks, four hits

Highlights...

The game displayed tough defenses for both teams as both UMass' Scott Barnsby and Northeastern's Paul Houser gave up four and three hits respectively. The Minutemen's Doug Clark was the first of either team to get into scoring position in the bottom of the fifth after singling to left, but was stranded on third. UMass would score in the final half inning. Ryan Jette led off with a double bit high and hard off the Green Monster and was misplayed by the Huskies outfield. Brad Gorrie walked and was followed by a sacrifice bunt by Muchie Dagliere to advance the runners. Justin Kelly was walked, and with bases loaded, Nate Murphy blasted one out to left, allowing Jette to tag up and score the game winning run.

UMass games today

The women's lacrosse team hosts Vermont at 4 p.m. today at Totman Field while the men's tennis team is at Providence today for a 3 p.m. matchup.

INTRODUCING...
BANANA SPLITS

ONLY $2.25
BLUEWALL

ENGINEERING
OUR PEOPLE ARE ONE OF A KIND.

At XonTech, people are the key to our success. Over the years we have carefully attracted the best scientific and technical specialists from government, academia, and industry.

Do You Have What It Takes to Join Our Elite Team?

XonTech is a nationally recognized, progressive R&D firm specializing in the analysis of complex physical phenomena and development of advanced concepts and technologies in support of numerous defense programs. Our corporate culture is exciting, demanding and personally and professional satisfying.

We have many stimulating opportunities for individuals with a PhD, Master's or Bachelor's degree in Mathematics, Physics, Computer Science or in Electrical Engineering with an emphasis in signal processing.

If you would like more information about XonTech and discover for yourself if you would like to be part of our elite team:

We will be conducting on-campus interviews
April 26, 1996
Please see the Campus Placement Office for more information

U.S. Citizenship is required for all positions. Applicants selected will be subject to a government security investigation and must meet eligibility requirements for access to classified information.

If unable to attend the on-campus session, please submit cover letter and your resume/CV to the Corporate Human Resources Dept., 6862 Hayvenhurst Ave., Van Nuys, CA 91406.

XonTech, Inc.
"People, Science and Technology"
Northern & Southern California
Washington, D.C.; Huntsville, AL; Denver, Colorado; Dayton, OH
http://www.xti.com

Equal Opportunity Employer M/F/D/V

Lincoln Real Estate
Apartments
In The Center Of Town
with gas heat

Gilreath Manor Condos
on Hobart Lane
• 3 Bedroom
• 1 1/2 Baths
• Heated Basement
• New Gas Heat & Hot water
• 1/2 mile to campus
• On Bus Route

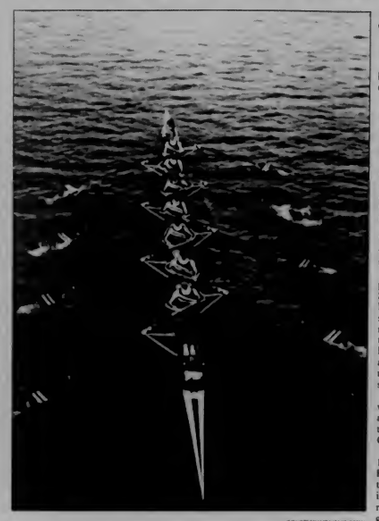
Showings Start in April
for June or September Occupancy!

Lincoln Real Estate • 25 N. Pleasant St. • 253-7879

TOC
Bar & Grill
11TH FLOOR • LINCOLN CAMPUS CENTER
(413) 545-3217

SPECIAL
Buy One Appetizer & Get One Free!
4:00pm to 7:00pm
Wednesday - Friday
Plus... Great Beer Specials
Hours: Mon. - Sat. 4:00pm - 12:30am
Positive ID Required

Women's crew drills competition



COURTESY WOMEN'S CREW

The women's crew had a successful weekend, breezing past Northeastern, Columbia and New Hampshire.

Squad defeats Northeastern, Columbia and New Hampshire over weekend

By Stephen Reich
Collegian Correspondent

Massachusetts women's crew breezed through its competition last weekend with decisive wins against Northeastern, Columbia and New Hampshire.

On Saturday the Minutewomen came in first with a time of 6:33 while Northeastern finished second at 6:39, and Columbia was third at 6:41.

Star rower Wendy Wilber was pleased with the victory.

"We really pushed hard on Saturday verses Northeastern," she said. "We raced against them in San Diego and won by a second. This race sent a message."

The message was heard loud and clear throughout the Atlantic 10 Conference.

This upcoming Saturday the A-10 championships take place in Philadelphia, with UMass favored to win. The Minutewomen look to improve upon their No. 5 national ranking and build momentum going into the national championships.

The women's lightweight crew was equally impressive, beating highly-ranked Northeastern by three seconds. This victory will most likely bolster the Minutewomen into the top 10 of lightweight teams in the nation.

"The lightweight team is really starting to come along and will contend for the national title," UMass coach Jim Dietz said.

The novice crew dominated their race, winning by a whopping 15 seconds over Northeastern, and 30 seconds over Columbia.

> "We really pushed hard on Saturday verses Northeastern. We raced against them in San Diego and won by a second. This race sent a message."
> — Wendy Wilber

On Sunday UMass was supposed to race at home on the Connecticut River against New Hampshire. However, due to weather conditions, the regatta was switched to New Hampshire for the same day. Battling the adversity, UMass still ended up beating a tough UNH crew.

"Sunday's race was chaotic. We put all the distractions aside and did well," varsity crew member Deanna Groark said.

Coming off a great weekend, the team will turn their focus to the Atlantic 10 Championships. If all bodes well, UMass crew could have its first A-10 championship.

Bruins need to solve the Beezer in game three

BOSTON (AP) — Boston has been outscored 12-5 and probably will be without goalie Bill Ranford for the second straight game as it tries to rebound from a 2-0 playoff deficit against the Florida Panthers.

Yet the Bruins are hopeful they can win Game 3 tomorrow night in Boston if they can start capitalizing on their chances against goaltender John Vanbiesbrouck.

The Panthers lead the best-of-seven Eastern Conference quarterfinal despite being outshot 84-58 in the two games in Miami.

"You have to give Beezer some credit. He made some big saves," Bruins center Adam Oates said after Monday night's 6-2 loss. "We had a lot of chances, but we didn't capitalize on them."

Boston coach Steve Kasper put it more succinctly: "We have to solve Vanbiesbrouck at the other end. When you get that many opportunities you've got to score some goals."

Vanbiesbrouck refuses to take credit for the Panthers' playoff success, even though he has been criticized in the past for his post-season play.

"It's going to be a big roller coaster ride," Vanbiesbrouck said. "The mood in the locker room is that we know we haven't won anything yet. The good quality about this team is that we are very humble."

The Bruins have to break their trend of losing all 27 playoff series in which they dropped the first two games. And their goaltending situation is troublesome.

Bill Ranford, who picked up the struggling Bruins after being obtained from Edmonton in January, missed Game 2 with a sore right ankle that he aggravated last week in practice.

Ranford was to be examined yesterday, and Kasper said his status was the same as it was for Monday night's game. The Bruins are 21-12-4 with Ranford in goal.

Craig Billington replaced him in Game 2 and was victimized by a Florida offensive attack that has seen seven different players score goals. He is 0-3-1 against the Panthers in his career, and the Bruins know they have to rally behind him.

"Don't point the finger there," said defenseman Don Sweeney. "We have to limit and shut down their opportunities. You have to protect your own net."

"Ranford missing is a big loss for them," Florida coach Doug MacLean said.

The Bruins have pointed to reasons other than Florida's talent for their 2-0 deficit. After Game 1, they said Florida was lucky. After Game 2, it was the officiating.

"They're calling a lot of stuff," Ray Bourque complained. "Usually, in the playoffs they let you play a little more."

"You see guys on the other side doing the same thing and not getting a call," Oates said.

Florida's clutch-and-grab play may have taken Boston out of its game.

"Obviously, we are a team that's pressing right now," said wing Rick Tocchet.

Red Sox slide continues, Hollins homer lifts Twins

By Dade Hayes
Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Dave Hollins didn't achieve his goal. Instead, he won the game.

Intending to advance a runner, he ended up hitting a two-run homer in the seventh inning — the seventh home run of the game yesterday — that gave the Minnesota Twins an 8-6 win over the Boston Red Sox.

"I was just trying to get the runner over, just trying to hit a ground ball," Hollins said. "Sometimes those things just happen."

They happened a lot for two of the AL's least powerful teams. The Twins' 10 homers were the second-fewest in the league, and Boston had only 13. Minnesota's four homers were its most since Aug. 6, 1994.

"Our philosophy on this team isn't to play for the long ball," said Chuck Knoblauch, who hit his sixth career leadoff homer. "Just fill 'em up with hits. That's the best way."

Marty Cordova and Ron Coomer also homered for the Twins. Mo Vaughn, Bill Selby and Troy O'Leary homered for Boston.

Dan Naulty (1-0) earned his first major league win, pitching 2 1-3 perfect innings. He relieved Greg Hansell with one out in the sixth, two batters after O'Leary's solo home run gave Boston a 6-5 lead. Naulty struck out three of the seven batters he faced, and the Twins rallied with three runs in the seventh.

Joe Hudson (0-1) relieved Mike Maddux to start the seventh. Paul Molitor led off with a single and scored on Cordova's double. Hollins then drove a 3-2 pitch 426 feet for his third homer of the season.

Hollins spent the last two months of the 1995 season with the Red Sox. Boston did not re-sign him, and the Twins got him as a free agent.

Hollins was on an 0-for-18 skid before getting hits in his two final at-bats Monday. He was hitless in his first three at-bats Tuesday, and also made an error that helped Boston take a 5-4 lead in the fifth.

"I finally did something," Hollins said. "I was having a rough day out there. I let in a big run at third and I didn't drive in a few guys out there when I had the chance."

Vaughn hit a three-run homer in the first inning, his fourth. Red Sox pitchers, however, could not hold the edge.

Jamie Moyer started and gave up seven hits and five runs in 3 1-3 innings. Hudson was charged with three runs and got only one out in the seventh.

"This is the worst thing that can happen, to come into a game with a lead and give up a home run," Hudson said. "The hitters did a good job. It was my fault today."

Boston manager Kevin Kennedy's frustration with the poor pitching was clear.

Relief pitching "is a job that needs to be done," Kennedy said. "This is at least the sixth time we've lost a game from the seventh inning on, and we've only played 20. There'll be a couple of changes tomorrow."

The Red Sox trailed 5-4 heading into the fifth, when Alex Cole singled, stole second and scored. He broke for third and was about to be tagged out by Hollins when the ball squirted away and rolled into foul territory.

Minnesota took its first lead in the fourth, 5-4, on an RBI single by pinch-hitter Greg Myers.

Twins starter LaTroy Hawkins lasted 1 1-3 innings and gave up four runs. Hansell relieved Hawkins and retired 11 of 12 before O'Leary's homer.

Cordova, who bounced back from a three-strikeout performance Monday, said the Twins' 14 hits — eight for extra bases — were a welcome sign.

"I think everybody on our team feels we can score runs," he said. "Sometimes you just don't get the hits."

Notes: Five of Naulty's six appearances have been at the Metrodome, where he has allowed one run in 10 1-3 innings... Cole, who spent 1994 and '95 in Minnesota, led off the game with a double in his first start since Monday's callup from Triple-A Pawtucket. He finished the day 3-for-4 with his first stolen base of the season... Mike Greenwell came into the two-game series with the Twins in a 1-for-21 slump. He did not start, but pinch-hit in the ninth and grounded into a double play... The Red Sox did not make an error for the second straight game. Boston entered the game with a league-leading 24 errors.

White Sox 6, Rangers 5

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Harold Baines homered for the second straight game and James Baldwin won for the first time in the majors as the Chicago White Sox beat the Texas Rangers 6-5 yesterday. Tony Phillips went 3-for-5, scored two runs and drove in two for Chicago. The White Sox went 6-2 on their road trip to Kansas City, Oakland and Texas.

Baldwin (1-0), called up from the minors to make the start, allowed one hit in the first four innings. Given a 6-0 lead, he stayed in during a five-run fifth — his error made two runs unearned — and left after the inning ended.

Roberto Hernandez worked around two walks in the ninth for his fifth save. The White Sox closer has not allowed a run in 11 2-3 innings in nine appearances this year.

Hernandez walked Ivan Rodriguez and Will Clark to start the ninth, but Juan Gonzalez grounded into a double play on the first pitch. Mickey Tettleton grounded out to end the game.

Baines, who hit a three-run homer in Monday's 12-4 win, connected in the first inning. His fifth homer came after Phillips led off with a double.

Chicago scored four times in the fourth against Ken Hill (3-2). Phillips had a two-run single and Frank Thomas and Ozzie Guillen hit RBI doubles.

Eastover Resort
P.O. Box 2160, Lenox, MA 01240 Phone (413) 637-0625
Social Director Summer Position Available
Summary Of Position:
Under the direction of the General Manager, this position is responsible for implementing new guest activities, directing the old and new activities, and maintaining guest relations through the recreational aspect of the resort. The Social director is also responsible for the training of the other members of the Recreation staff, as a team leader.
Every member of the Social staff will assist in any type of work for the proper operation of the Resort.
Benefits: • Room and board • Full use of facility • Salary
Specifications: • High school diploma and one year of college • Strong verbal and communication skills • Drivers license
Dates: June 1 to September 2 (flexible)
Interviews at UMass
Please call Rob McNinch for application, and more information:
1-800-VACA-FUN • 1-800-822-2386

SELF-STORAGE
One Rate, One Payment, One Carefree Summer.

SKI WORLD PROBE
It all adds up to one great summer break, our carefree one-rate-one-payment self storage plan.
We've really packaged our rates in a specially tailored program to accommodate your school's summer schedule. That way, with one easy payment, you can take off without a worry.
FREE LOCK WITH STUDENT ID
And, by showing us your student ID, we'll even give you a free lock. How's that for easy living?
Call now to reserve a room, or if you have any questions. Better yet, stop by today.
HOLYOKE 539-9261
Chicopee 535-3037
SAVE UP TO $29.95
U-HAUL

Minuteman Volkswagen
Ask For First Time College Program!
Patricia Dolan
Sales Representative
TEL. 617-275-8000
39 North Road
Bedford, Mass. 01730

STUDENT TRAVEL
The world's largest student travel organization.
800-777-0112
STA TRAVEL

Hot, Hot, Hot.
Mia sandals

ZAMA
Downtown Amherst

JOSEPH CURRAN ASSOCIATES
IMMIGRATION LAW OFFICES
- H-1B Specialty Occupations
- Labor Certification/Special Handling
- 212(e) J-1 Waivers
- Outstanding Professor/Researcher
- Relative Petitions

Free Consultation for Five-College Students/Faculty
1163 Main Street - 2nd Floor, Springfield, MA 01103, 781-6370
13 Old South Street, Northampton, MA 01060, 584-3232
Specializing in IMMIGRATION LAW for over 10 years

Getting High on Getting Thin:
The Second of Two Workshops on Eating and Body Issues
A New Focus: LIFE NOT FOOD
Understanding the obstacles andlearning the tools to change your relationship with food.
Date: Thursday, April 25, 1996
Time: 3:30 pm to 5:00 pm
Place: Campus Center, Rm 811-15
Drop-in workshops are sponsored by University Health Services. Free and open to UMass students.
CONFIDENTIALITY ASSURED
For more info, call 549-2671 ext. 233 or 545-2337

■ Sox

continued from page 12

Atlanta manager Bobby Cox sent every relief arm he had against the Padre attack that collected 14 hits in the game, but it came down to rookie hurler Tom Thobe.

Thobe pitched fairly well, but committed two costly errors in the 15th to allow the Padres to score the go-ahead run. What's worse is that Thobe came to bat in the bottom of the inning with two on and two out. Mark Lemke lashed a one- out single to center and McGriff was intentionally walked to bring the youngster to the plate.

Cox sent the 'take' sign to Thobe, hoping to get the pitcher to draw the walk to load the bases for Javy Lopez. Thobe missed the sign and swung at a weak curve out of the strike zone for strike one. He weakly tapped the next pitch to Jody Reed who got the force out and ended the best game of the season so far.

Forty-one players were used, including 13 pitchers by both clubs. Even though only three runs were scored in 15 innings, this game was exciting for baseball fans and may have provided a preview of a possible N.L. playoff series.

• Brain Buster Answers: 1. Tony Armas (43), 1984; Tommy Harper (54), 1973; 2. Everett Scott, 1307 games.

Fred Hurlbrink, Jr. is a Collegian columnist.

■ Bruins

continued from page 12

it used to be.

Baseball had the same problem in the late 1980s when Toronto's Skydome was a typical example of the kind of new stadiums that were being built.

But they learned and the trend was reversed. When Oriole Park at Camden Yards was built, its architects took some of the best things from the classic old parks and combined them with the best of the new. That model is now revered throughout professional sports.

It's time for the NHL to follow that lead.

When the next team decides that it needs a new stadium, it should look at Boston Garden and Chicago Stadium, and determine what it was structurally that made those buildings special and just do it on a larger scale.

If things remain on their current course, it will just be the old-timers who remember what it was like to be a fan in those special old buildings.

"In my day it used to be loud and the fans would get into it..."

Was that back in the days when teams were allowed to have colors other than black, purple and teal in their uniforms?

Matt Vautour is a Collegian columnist.

■ softball

continued from page 12

her 16th straight win, extending her school record streak. Before allowing three to her antagonists from Storrs, Henderson had allowed just one earned run in her last 74.1 innings of work.

After a ceremony between the games honoring coach Elaine Sortino's milestone 500th career softball win, the two teams picked up right where they had left off offensively.

UConn picked up three in the first off of Wagner, two of which were unearned due to a pair of errors.

In the home half of the inning, Cardenas ripped UConn pitcher Jill Cameron's first pitch for a double, coming in on a fielder's choice on a Kim Gutridge grounder to second.

UMass closed the deficit to 3-2 in the second as Cardenas brought in Galas with a solid single.

UConn extended its lead to 4-2 on an unearned run in the third, but the pitchers would take over from there as neither team had a runner advance past second base for the duration of the game.

The Minutewomen will return to action on Friday in rustic Olean, N.Y. for a doubleheader with Atlantic 10 opponent St Bonaventure. UMass is 12-0 in the conference and a win in either game will claim its 10th regular season title in 11 years. The Lady Bonnies are 4-6 in the A-10 this season, after going a dreadful 0-10 last year.

Financial aid you don't have to WAIT in line for.

Save $400 on a new Pontiac Sunfire
(actually, any new Pontiac) if you just graduated or are about to graduate.*
Call 1-800-643-6733 for more information.

Fold-down rear seats – means you can go places and take lots of stuff with ya
100,000-mile spark plugs† – we're talking a long-term relationship here
5-speed transmission and tubular rear axle with spring-over shock sport suspension and progressive ride tuning – is this a real set of wheels or what?
PONTIAC CARES – call an 800 number, get free Roadside Assistance – for flat tires, dead battery, even if you run out of gas or lock yourself out (Pontiac® wants to see you and your Sunfire® out driving)
Oh, Courtesy Transportation – that's part of PONTIAC CARES too (see? we really do care)
Your choice of a great-looking coupe (shown), sporty four-door sedan (not shown) or a hot, new convertible (hey, we told ya this was a cool car)
Dual air bags and anti-lock brakes – two things you don't need until you really need 'em (and always wear those safety belts, even with air bags)
PASSLock™ theft-deterrent system – means you might save some $$$ on insurance (!!!)
Daytime running lamps in '96 – they're a safety feature, but hey, they look good too
AM/FM stereo radio – standard? heck yeah! (what's driving without a little driving music?) For a little more, you can get a CD player with equalizer
Single-key locking – one key locks & unlocks doors, trunk and all the fun of Sunfire
Clearcoat paint – paint you can't see keeps the paint you can see looking good (see?)
High-revving, 120-horse-power, fuel-injected engine (hey, this car's for driving, not just looking at)
A HUGE glove box – some glove boxes are merely mouse-sized; this one holds a whole laptop computer
Available remote keyless entry – press a button, doors unlock; it's like having a third hand when your other two are full
PONTIAC SUNFIRE
WE ARE DRIVING EXCITEMENT
Driving excitement for around $13,200:*
* From a two- or four-year college. Must finance through GMAC. Offer subject to change. See your participating dealer for qualification details.
† Based on normal maintenance. See Owner's Manual for limitations. ©1996 GM Corp. All rights reserved.
 $13,220 MSRP including dealer prep and destination charge. Price includes 5-speed transmission, air conditioning and rear spoiler. Tax, license and other optional equipment extra. Prices higher in CA, MA and NY. Price as of 4/5/96, subject to change.
USA 000
Call 1-800-643-6733, or check out our site on the World Wide Web at http://www.pontiac.com.

Developing Nations Needs Writers!
If you're interested in writing call Syed Mohammed at 545-3500

THE BLACK SHEEP
79 MAIN ST AMHERST, MA 253-3442
We Are Now On OCMP!
10% DISCOUNT TO STUDENTS ALL YEAR WITH UMASS ID.

MOVING?
DOMESTIC OR INTERNATIONAL
For Rates & Services
Toll Free
800-752-6773
http://www.trade-exhibit.com

YOUR MOMMA TAKES TUBS AT EAST HEAVEN HOT TUBS
RENTALS
586-6843

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK
One Way / Roundtrip
LONDON $175 $339
PARIS $224 $427
SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA $235 $446
Roundtrip
TOKYO $851
Scheduled flights. Fares to worldwide destinations. Eurailpasses Available.
Weekend surcharges may apply. Customs-immigration taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l student I.D. cards may be required.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave NY NY 10173
212-986-8420*
800-272-9676
in NYC

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ACTIVITES

SOFTBALL
Females needed for coed softball team. Must live in the area this summer. Chris 660-9019

ANIMALS FOR SALE

Now offering Reptiles, Exotic Small Mammals & Large Birds. Prices better than pet stores. Call/ian for info. Pagerr 761-1184

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Babysitting for Panhellenic Scholarship Fund. Sat. 4/27 12-6 at Sigma Delta Tau, 6-12 at Sigma Kappa and Sun. 4/28 11-5 at Alpha Chi Omega. Please bring necessities to accomodate your child's needs. Toys etc. $4.50/hr. For more information Call 546-1253.

RUSH IGU
All University Women are invited to attend Open Rush on April 25, 26, 28 and 30th at 6pm. For info. or rides call 549-9114

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Two bedroom Presidential Apt. Take over our lease. 1 1/2 mile away. Available 6/1. $575/month 549-6675

3 Bdrm Puffton Apt. Ideal location near bus stop and yard. Heat and hot water incl. Call 549-8279

Best Summer House in Amherst. 2nd floor with private deck. 3 bedroom, lots of room, partially furnished. Convenient Main Street location. Summer sublet & Fall option. Call 256-0682

Great location uptown! 3 bedrooms, 1 bath. Take over lease. June 1. 549-9113

Spacious two bedroom apartment for rent on bus line. $700/month. Available 6/1/96. Call 253-1969

Sublet or take over lease. Share 2 bdrm with grad student. One bus line. 256-2746 4774

3 Bedroom Puffton avail. June 1. $825 Heat/hot water included. Call 549-8614

Spacious, newly renovated 2 bedroom apartment for rent. June 1st to Aug 31st on bus route. Call 253-1640 for more info.

441 Main Street 2 BDR heat incl $750 253-9930

2 Bedroom Apt First Floor $535 + gas heat. On site laundry. 5 min to UMass Available 6/1 549-8140

3 Bedroom renovated Puffton 2 bath heat and hot water incl. Take for Summer, option for Fall. Call 549-8744

Two Bedroom Apartment on bus route heat, hot water included $600 or B.O. 549-9179

2 Bedroom Brandywine apartment pool side including heat, water start June 1. 549-8914

4 Bedroom 2 bath On bus route Available June with option to take over lease. Utilities included $1025/month Call 256-1969

Take Over Lease /Bdrm Brandywine Apts. June 1st. Newly renovated. 549-1668

Best Selection of 1, 2 and 3 bedroom apartments in the center of town. Gas heat and hardwood floors. Lincoln Real Estate 253-3079

Take over our lease 6/1! Two bed room/two bath Puffton Apt. $680 per month includes heat, hot water. Avoid the waiting list! 549-1375

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Apartments available for June and September. Summer sublets, too! Call for details! Square Village 665-2703

Three bedroom condominiums, with gas heat and hardwood floors. Lincoln Real Estate 253-7879

AUTO FOR SALE

1994 Geo Prizm, black, 73,000 miles. Asking $8700. Call 256-8862.

1987 Plymouth Colt 5 speed. 95k. $1,000 or best offer. Leave message at 253-5311

1980 Beretta GT
5 speed. V-6
New clutch & brakes
Well maintained!
Asking $3999
Call 256-6022

1987 Chevy Nova (Toyota clone) 109k 75 mpg. $1800. Reliable. 253-4101

87 Nissan Sentra 123k 5 speed, good engine but rusty body. $1100. Call Thomas 549-9294

90 Mitsubishi Mirage, 76k Manual, good condition. $2,750. Call Eric 548-6675

1986 Chevy Nova - 207,000 miles. Well maintained. In good condition. $1,000. Call Nancy up until 11pm. 549-3702

Chevrolet Caprice Classic 1985, with stats inspected $1500 or best offer call Andreas 549-0739

Jeep Cherokee 4X4 5 speed 1986 Green in the snow 4Dr on the beach. Give me a call so you can come look at this monster. Great deal. Call Paul at 549-5766.

EMPLOYMENT

Start Your Own Career in a fast growing business. Sales experience or training NOT necessary. Contact MATT at 413-827-4163 e-mail matthewb@student.umass.edu

ALASKA EMPLOYMENT - Fisheries, Parks, Resorts hiring for Summer! Earn to $3,000 $6,000+/Mo! Airfare, Room/Board! No exp. required. Ask about our VIDEO! Call (919) 932-1488 ext. A126.

LEADERS NEEDED: Summer Teenage Bicycling Trips. US, Canada, Europe. Minimum 4 wk time commitment. Salary plus expenses paid. STUDENT HOSTELING PROGRAM, Ashfield Rd, Conway, MA 01341. 800 343-6132

Get paid while you learn. WMUA, 91.1 FM student radio at UMass is looking to hire 12 motivated undergrads for the 1996-97 academic year. Gain experience at one of the most dynamic media organizations in Western Mass. Applications are available at WMUA, 105 Campus Center. Deadline 4/26. Interviews 4/27. Call 545-2876 for more information.

Now Hiring. Are you staying around Amherst for the summer? If so, TASP Inc is seeking part-time afternoon & evening telemarketers. Hours available Sun - Thurs. 2-5pm & 6-9pm. Earn $6.58/hr plus bonuses. Enjoy the Summer while earning cash. Call Ms. Miranda 800 829-4777

5 Cruise Ships Hiring! Students needed! $$$ & Free Travel - Carribean, Europe, Hawaii. Seasonal/Permanent. No Exper. Necessary. GDE 919-929-4398 ext. C1040

Make $3-5,000 this summer. Paint exterior of homes with college students. Wellesley, Natick, Weston area. Please page Ed Porto at 617 456-6031

EMPLOYMENT

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT
Looking for a few energetic people to help run our office. Must have good phone skills. Full-Time, when school ends. Great resume material. $7-7.50/HR call 1-800-501-5043 Natick Area.

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT
Truck drivers wanted for summer work. Approx. 11 days in mid June & additional 11 days in mid-August. Work 1 or both sessions. Must drive standard and have experience with 18 or larger truck. $105-115/day call 1-800-501-5043

Windows Software Tester Graphic Software Co. Seeks part-time quality assurance tester. Applicants must have experience using Software Windows 3.1 and Windows 95 on a variety of hardware configurations. Macintosh 2D and 3D Graphic Experience preferred but not required. Send Cover letter and Resume to Personel Director Sonicsite International 7 Pomeroy Lane Amherst MA 01002 No phone calls or walk-ins please.

Summer Printing Jobs. College Pro Painters up to $9/hr. In Amherst-Northampton. Make $$ in the sun !! Call Kerry 546-2423 or Charlie 549-3957

National Parks Hiring - Positions are now available at National Parks, Forests & Wildlife Preserves. Excellent benefits & bonuses! Call 1 206 971-3620 ext N50014

SMALL, COED, OVERNIGHT CAMP

Looking for outgoing male counselors who enjoy working with children ages 7-13 yrs. Incredible experience. Call Michelle at 546-6677 or Ken at 413 528-2729

Summer Painters hiring for Boston and Hartford. Will train completely. Earn $6-$10/hr. Call NE Collegiate Painters at 800-569-9929

Eastern Europe Jobs - Teach basic conversational English in Prague, Budapest or Krakow. No teaching certificate or European Languages required. Inexpensive room and board and other benefits. For info call 206-971-3680 ext K50011

Tropical Resorts Hiring Students needed! Entry level career positions available worldwide. Call Resort Employment Services (206) 971-3600 ext R50011

International Employment - Earn up to $25-$45/hour teaching basic conversational English in Japan, Taiwan, or S. Korea. No teaching background or Asian languages required. For info call: (206) 971-3570 ext. J50014

Attention All Students! Over $1 Billion in public and private sector grants & scholarship is now available. All students are eligible. Let us help. For more info call 1 800 263-6495 ext. F50013

FOR RENT

Take over my Lease for spacious 2 bedroom. $650. Call 549-7587

3 Bedroom Puffton - Renovated, near bus and laundry, available June 1. Call 549-5858

Spacious, Bright 3Bdr/2bath Mill Valley Apt June 1 lease, washer/dryer hookup. Patio call soon! 253-0388

1 Bdrm Apt Available 6/1 to take over lease. Hot Water incl. On bus line call 253-1689

FOR RENT

2 Bedroom Apt. in Colonial Village. Pay $250 for one bedroom. Have the other one free Lucky 13 Aug 31! 256-8947.

3 Bedroom Apt in Puffton Village start ing June 1. Gas heat, AC, water incl Option to lease. Call 549-8871 for more info.

FOR SALE

486 DX66 Computer
540MB Hard Drive
8 meg Ram/fax modem
14" monitor $1,100 or B.O.
Call 253-0362 Leave Message

"House Sale" Everything must go! Call Christine 253-1569. Couches, rugs, tables, desk, etc.

Shoei Motorcycle Helmets One black one red. Brand New. $125.00 each. Call Sara 549-9205.

2 Full Mattresses and Boxsprings with Frames. $50 each or B.O. Call 253-9099

Bike For Sale 10 gear, almost new. $70. Call 549-7587

Powermac 6/60/6S (6/250 Ram Doubler installed) syr. 7.5.1 w/acos updater 4 K of graphic softwares 244 fonts, tons of control panels, extentions, games no keyboard or monitor $1 cd rom $1.150 call/Delivery @ 6-0429

Mountain Bike for sale Mongoose threshold Shimano parts Trek system 2 with gel seat only 1 yr old $200 or B.O. Megan 549-4198

P100 32 megs RAM 17-inch digital monitor 28k modem 850m hard drive loaded with software $340.00/BO Call Fred 549-8969

Laptop Computer Cheap. Great WP all under 100. Call 6-0540.

FOUND

Found a Watch Monday night 4/15 in Reading Room, Campus Center. 546-1799.

MUSCIANS

Bassist Wanted to form band. Influences: Rage, Nirvana, Alice etc. Call Rich 256-1751

MISCELLANEOUS

The Gathering
HTTP://www.takeme.com Scholarships, academic & career resources. Internships, sports, news, entertainment, travel, music, debates and 1,000's of links.

Good home needed for six year old spayed female Bassett Hound. Please call Robin 323-8582.

PERSONALS

"Jimmy, I can't stop thinking about you. You're on my every thought. I don't want to even imagine life without you. Please reconsider and give me another chance. I'll be at the Lorenz Olympic Gold Medal Challenge at the UMass pond on Thursday, April 25th and truly hope to see you there!"

PERSONALS

The road to victory, they say, is tough and merely getting there should be enough. But why stop there? You can't just give in, you are there for a reason, you came here to win. That's just what we other 4 chance to be proud to play games, win prizes and hang with a crowd. At the pond you will find us with music and fun. On April 25th come play in the sun. We'll be waiting for you and saving your place. The Lorenz Olympic Gold Medal Challenge is what you will face.

BCG R.A.S. You are the best!

TODAY SUE, A NEW CONTESTANT TO HEAD, SEE JUST CAN'T GET BEHIND SHAH THIS ONE.
THE SAME AGAIN.
AGAIN, IT'S ENCOURAGING TO SEE PEOPLE TRYING.

ROOM FOR RENT

One Bdrm to 2 Bdrm fully furnished apt. in house. Nice, clean, close to campus & bus. Great yard & parking. $300/mnth + 1/2 utilities. Available now 253-7533.

Montague Rooms For Rent. $325 - $375 includes heat & hot water. On-site W/D. No smoke, no pets. Call John 367-9018.

Nice Rooms in new house $175 + on Puffers Pond. Call Sara 549-9205.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Puffton - 2 females seeking 2 females/males to share a room in our 3 bedroom renovated apt. Available June 1, 549-8014.

Bicycling to Coop ? Two UMass Alums looking for M-F to share luxury 3 bedroom, 2 bath apt. on Enfield. 20 min to Hartford, 10 min to Springfield. $360, including heat, water & AC. Health Club, pool & tennis. (860) 741-8189.

Looking for 2 people to share a room in 3 bdr. townehouse. 1 yr. lease starting June 1st. I have a cat and a dog. If interested call Becky 549-6398.

Great House on Sunset, 2 bedrooms left. Room with 4 others. Laundry, 3 bathrooms, parking, walking distance to campus and center of Amherst. Call 546-1079 for more info.

Looking for Housing. Roommate wanted in the New York area this Summer/beyond, reliable. Call soon. Jennifer 546-3511.

Looking for 1 or 2 females to share 3BR apartment in Alpine Commons for Summer only. On bus route. Price negotiable. Heat included. For more info call Becky at 546-4181.

3 BDR in 4 BDR Apt. on bus Rt. Sublet with option to rent in Fall. Call 253-7741.

SERVICES

Pregnant? Need Help? Call Birthright of Amherst Area for free tasting and caring assistance 549-1906.

LANDSCAPING

Spring cleanup shrub trimming, pruning, planting, debris removal. Call 589-1997 for a free estimate.

SPECIAL

SICK OF THE DORMS?
University approved off campus housing available for all University women including freshmen and sophomores! Close to campus, free laundry, cable. Optional meal plan. For more info call 549-1945.

SUMMER SUBLET

1 Room 1 minute to Campus. Air-conditioning, sunny, share with 1 person. Call 549-1744.

One bedroom in three bedroom Mill Valley apartment. Partially furnished. Option to take over lease in Fall. Kathy 253-1734.

2 Bedroom Apt. Crestview. Before Hobart Lane. Only $575. Call 549-0868.

Looking for 1-4 people to Summer sublet our Mill Valley apartment. $715/Mo. Call 253-7157.

Sublet with option to take over lease. Practically on campus. 2 minutes from Amherst Ctr. Cheap double room in big house. Call 549-8017.

South Amherst 2 BR apt. avail. June 1-Aug 31. $550/mo. Call 256-4788.

2 Women Needed to share room in 3 bdr. apt. Great place, price, location 549-4807.

Spacious 2 bedroom avail 6/1. Must see. Cheap!!! 253-1532.

Amherst - Live w/Graduate Students. Cheap! $728/month (includes heat & cable). 1 BR/3BR apartment. Call Gabe at 253-0217.

Female Wanted to share bedroom w/other female starting June1. 188/month. 7/1-9/1 room to yourself. 256-6108 Jason.

4 Bedroom Apt. on Meadow St. 3 bedrooms available for June 1st sublet. Very cheap on bus routes, 1 mile from campus. Furnished. Call Sarah, Mary, Laura 548-9297.

Summer Sublet w/Fall option. Beginning 6/1. 3 Br, 2 full bath, Mill Valley Apt. 3.5 people. Reasonable Call 256-4781.

$150 Reward! 2 Bdrm Apt. Free AC, Hot Water, Pool. Available June 1st. Call 549-8552.

2 Bedroom Apt. on Amity St. Heat, hot water included, sleeps four people. $750/mo. call 549-8202.

Condos Behind BayBank two minute walk to campus or uptown. 2 bath, skylights, dishwasher, wall to wall carpeting, nicest place in area. Price negotiable call Jason 549-4178.

2 Rooms available in 4 bedroom house in N. Amherst. $720/mo. including water. call 549-5992, anytime between 11 to 11.

Broadyview Apts. 2 Bedrooms, take over our lease with Fall option. Call 549-5747.

Boulders summer sublet two bedrooms furnished on bus line avail. June 1st call 253-7682.

1 Room in 2 bedroom Apt. Avail 6/1 with possible fall option. $725/mo. On bus line. 10 minutes to UMass. Call 665-0092.

2 Bedroom Apt at Brandywine. Available 6/1. Price negotiable. Call 549-8652.

One room Puffton apt. for Summer sublet. Call Fred 549-8969.

2 Bdrm Brandywine Apt. Heat/hot water incl. Call 549-0530.

Bedroom in Presidential Apts. Walking distance. Call 549-4042.

Looking for 1-4 people to summer sublet our Mill Valley apartment $215/Month. Call 253-7157.

TO SUBLET

Puffton Sublet 1 room in a 3 bdr apt for summer $250/month partially furnished call Bernie 549-8969.

TRAVEL

EUROPE $169 O/W
Camb-Mex $189 R/T
If you can beat these prices start your own airline!
Air-Tech, LTD
413-587-0031

Come Join In The Adventure!! Come White Water Rafting with UMSC & UMDC! May 31 - June 2. Only $199! Call us 5-3437.

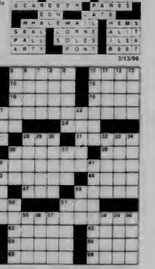
DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

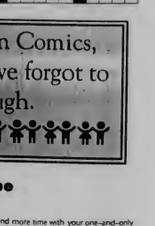
Edited by Trade Michel Jatte

ACROSS
1 Buddy
5 Said something
10 Hideaways
14 Stravinsky
15 Place over the —
16 Desert
17 Today's Siamese
18 — or Pete
19 Colorado town
20 Weaselmusher
22 Actress Cadwell
24 Even so
25 — talk: session
28 TV act
31 Lions, Tigers, and Bears
36 The finest
38 Song that
39 Powerful sound
40 Very, to Verdi
41 Names on the slate
46 Hollywood producer Howard
48 — generis
50 Flambeau
51 Proprietor
52 Aesop's god
57 Pumpkin-eater of rhyme
58 Former Premier
59 Elasticity physicist Robert
60 Guardian —
61 Cheesehead
62 Of daily garb
63 Unit of capacity
64 Sold substitute
65 Dough
66 Submarine detector
67 Allusive solution
68 Witness

DOWN
1 Actor Brad
2 Turkish title
3 Wind sound
4 Rained lightly
5 Play part
6 Emily or Marie
7 Pledge
8 Swiss painter Paul
9 Endeavor
10 Espionage
11 Midterm
12 Singer Simone
13 Laurel
21 Greasr
22 Pumpkin-eater of rhyme
25 West Pointer
26 Elasticity physicist Robert
27 Guardian —
29 Cheesehead
30 Of daily garb
31 Unit of capacity
32 Sold substitute
33 Dough
34 Submarine detector
36 Allusive solution
37 Witness

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:





Collegian Comics, so funny we forgot to laugh.

Your Horoscope
By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21 - April 19) — A loved one may be acting irrational. Do not be too quick to judge. News about a current relationship is only partially correct. A good- humored approach will catch the opposition off guard.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20) — Use honey, not criticism, if you want someone to change their ways. If wayward children return home, be forgiving. A romantic partner could give you a job lead.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20) — A sudden surge of energy allows you to complete work while others play. A diet you have been struggling with begins to pay off. Romance finds you when you travel.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22) — Overanalyzing problems may only delay their solution. Take direct action. Keeping up with current events will help you spot a job or investment opportunity before anyone else does.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22) — A recent loss must be faced. Joining a support group may help. Discussing a problem with good friends helps dissipate stress. However, avoid becoming a bore on the subject.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22) — Revise your plans at the last minute in order to take advantage of an unexpected invitation. Be like a ray of sunshine to a romantic partner. You and your mate reach a new understanding.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22) — Your devotion to a group of friends or a sport may irritate that special someone. Spend more time with your one-and-only. Seek diversions you can enjoy together.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21) — You are right to question someone's intentions. This person could have ulterior motives that involve your contacts and resources. Strengthen your business position by expanding your operations. Romantic interludes may cause poor health.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21) — You may feel strongly attracted to an older person. You decide to come out of your shell and socialized more. Extend the hand of friendship. Realize that others may be afraid of rejection, too.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19) — Others may say you are too choosy in romance, but your discrimination will be rewarded. Friends and family will applaud your eventual choice! Do not let personal ambition interfere with a happy family life.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18) — The future looks brighter than ever. Seek professional advice before making any new financial commitments. Children will enjoy getting their hands dirty in the garden.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20) — Depending too heavily on others for emotional or financial support is foolish. Assertive moves in business will pay big dividends. Buying a computer could ease your life considerably.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

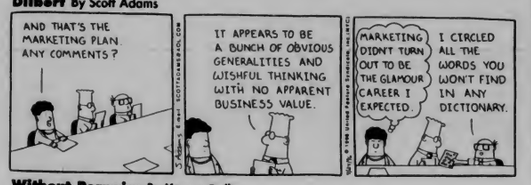
The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

WHY WOULD GOODIE RETIRE? HE'S TOO YOUNG TO HAVE SAVED ENOUGH AS A HANDYMAN!
MAYBE HE HAD ANOTHER SOURCE OF INCOME!
BOB GOODIE--ROBIN THE BOOD! WHAT F--?
NO WAY! THEY DON'T EVEN LOOK ALIKE!
BUT MAKEUP COULD FIX THAT!

Jim's Journal By Jim

Ruth wanted to know if I think she'd look better as a blonde.
I said I didn't know.
she didn't seem very happy with that.
"I wish you'd take this seriously!" she said.

Dilbert By Scott Adams



AND THAT'S THE MARKETING PLAN. ANY COMMENTS?
IT APPEARS TO BE A BUNCH OF OBVIOUS GENERALITIES AND WISHFUL THINKING WITH NO APPARENT BUSINESS VALUE.
MARKETING DIDN'T TURN OUT TO BE THE GLAMOUR CAREER I EXPECTED.
I CIRCLED ALL THE WORDS YOU WON'T FIND IN ANY DICTIONARY.

Without Porpoise By Kennet Dall

WELL, GO SEE IF OLIVER IS UP YET, HE'S A LITTLE SHY AND NERVOUS MOST OF THE TIME, BUT HEY, A NICE GAZA
HEY OLIVER, COME ON OUT!
SURE THING! SURE THING!
LOOK OLIVER, THE COMIC STRIP STARTED A LITTLE EARLIER THAN WE EXPECTED. WE HAVE AN AUDIENCE NOW.
THERE SURE ARE MORE THAN WE THOUGHT. COME ON OLIVER, INTRODUCE YOURSELF... OLIVER?
OLIVER?
OLIVER'S GONE!
I SWEAR!

Life in General By Meredith

BUT CAPS, I AM AS SURE!
BUT LOOK, DEFINITELY ON AS A DOCTOR--I'M ONE, I WASH MY HANDS BUT-- OK, WHATEVA SAYS!
YOU SAID, I DON'T NEED A DOCTOR, I'M FINE, I'M GETTING AN A!
YOU SAID, I DON'T NEED A DOCTOR, I'M FINE, I'M GETTING AN A!
COME CRADDOCK! COME LOOK AT THE GREAT SHAPE I'M IN!

Small Potatoes By Jon Art

Kippel By Barry Deutsch

HI, CASS. I'M BACK!
I WAS FORGET IT!
FORGET WHAT?
BAH! NEVER MIND!
NEVER MIND WHAT?
THANKS, SIR. YOU EVER WALK THROUGH THE PANELS THE OTHER WAY? IT'S PRETTY COOL.
WHAT ARE YOU BABBLING ABOUT?
ZACK! YOU'RE BACK!
GOD YOU'RE STRANGE.

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

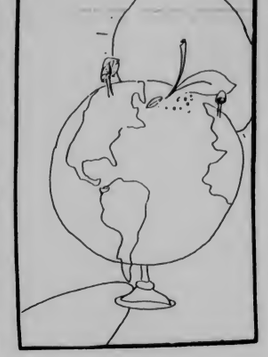
Everybody knows that things are not always what they seem.

Did you ever leave an orange out for a long time? Green mold starts to grow in little spots at first, but eventually, it completely covers the orange.

Basically the orange disappears. The living mold is the only thing that remains.....but the mold has nothing left to eat so it dies.

We think the earth was created for us, but what if....we are only a growth on the earth. We eat the earth, ... then the earth lets us die.

Sometimes the mold-orange-earth thing reminds me of my girlfriend and me...except I'm not sure which one of us is the mold.



Close to Home By John McPherson

THE FIRST STEP IS TO IDENTIFY THE INJURY. CAN ANYONE TELL ME WHETHER THIS IS A HAIRLINE FRACTURE OR A COMPOUND FRACTURE?
M. PETERSON 4-24

With the school nurse out of the building, Todd's broken arm was cared for by the third period health class.

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Jacob W. Michaels
Copy Editor.....Lisa M. Oliveri
Photo Technician.....Shane Keenan
Production Supervisor.....Marc Dionne
Production.....Marianne Haner
Brian Inocencio

Dining Commons Menu

Menu unavailable.
Please refer to this guide to help you decide where to eat.

1 First, go get some dice (6 sided, preferably).

2 Find one you like, and roll it.

If you roll:

- Go to Franklin D.C. for dinner.
- Go to Berkshire D.C. for dinner.
- Go to Hampshire D.C. for dinner.
- Go to Worcester D.C. for dinner.
- Get Pizza for dinner!
- Roll again.

Company Choose By Kevin Tracy

It's hard to pass off a keg of Beer as furniture.

Quote of the Day

"You took her to the movies, while I sat home and whacked off. You'll get no sympathy from me.

–Overheard"

Sports

UMass edges NU for Beanpot championship

By Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

BOSTON — When the final out of this year's baseball Beanpot Tournament was made, there was not a fingernail left in Fenway Park.

In its first trip to the Beanpot, the Massachusetts baseball team not only showed well in the tournament, but came away with the title, beating two-time defending champion Northeastern in the final, 1-0.

The finals of the two-game competition was the textbook definition of a nailbiter. The winning run came down to a star at the plate with one out and the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth.

Massachusetts	1
Northeastern	0

After three innings of three-up, three-down ball, the stage was set for ninth-inning heroics. Husky lead-off man Jason Lewis grounded out to first base. Second baseman Kevin Kim followed with another force at first.

With the two outs on the board, centerfielder Matt Valentino readied to give Northeastern its most powerful hit of the afternoon. After taking two balls, Valentino connected and sent the ball to the wall in lefifield.

Playing the Green Monster like a seasoned veteran, UMass leftfielder Ryan Jette caught the ball after it hit the wall and gunned it to second, in time to nab a sliding Valentino.

"I knew that any ball off the wall, your best bet is to stand back and play it off the wall, not go after it," Jette said. "I figured if I stayed back and saw where the ball was, I'd get a better shot at it."

"That sparked us, that got people fired up," UMass coach Mike Stone said. "You never know what kind of bounce you're going to get."

Translating his defensive surge into offensive output, Jette led off the Minuteman half of the ninth with a fly to left. NU leftfielder Bob McLaughlin lost the ball in the sun, giving Jette plenty of time to advance to second.

Shortstop Brad Gorrie was intentionally walked, and Muchie Dagliere laid down a sacrifice bunt to advance the baserunners. First baseman Justin Kelly was intentionally walked to load the bases for centerfielder Nate Murphy.

With one out on the board, the only Minuteman offense needed was a sacrifice fly. Murphy delivered.

CASEY KANE COLLEGIAN

Ryan Jette, Andy Kiah, Justin Kelly and David Dart, the seniors on the Minuteman squad, accept the Beanpot Championship trophy at Fenway Park yesterday.

"Nate did a great job getting us that fly ball," Jette said. "I knew I could tag up."

"At the end we got a man on and found a way to make things happen," Stone said. "It was a real solid game."

Starting UMass pitcher Scott Barnsby earned the win in this pitcher's duel, giving up only four hits. The sophomore right-hander

Turn to BASEBALL, page 9

Amherst proves it belongs in Boston-based tourney

By Chris Stamm
Collegian Staff

BOSTON — The Massachusetts Minutemen victorious over the Northeastern Huskies in the Beanpot Championship?

While the seventh annual baseball Beanpot Tournament may not claim the rich Bostonian history of its hockey counterpart, winning this tournament is a great accomplishment for the Minutemen.

UMass found its way back to Fenway for the championships via a 13-1 savage beating of a weak Harvard squad in the first round.

For the Huskies, this was their seventh consecutive tournament, boasting back-to-back Beanpot wins in '94 and '95. Northeastern qualified for the finals after beating Boston College in the first round, 7-3. In fact, a win yesterday would have tied the Huskies with the Eagles for Beanpot Championship Titles. The Minutemen put an end to that streak in a hurry.

More interesting than the nine-inning shelling of the Crimson is how the Minutemen made their Beanpot debut.

Massachusetts earned a tournament invite as Beanpot veteran Boston University dropped its baseball

Turn to BEANPOT, page 9

Softball splits twin-bill vs. UConn

By Leigh Tarbin
Collegian Staff

After cruising through many of the games in its 23 game unbeaten streak, which fell one short of the school record, the Massachusetts softball team finally met its match yesterday as it scratched for a 8-7 win in a barnburner, and fell 4-2 to New England rival Connecticut at Totman Field.

Defense proved to be UMass' Achilles heel as seven errors in the twin-bill cost the Minutewomen (31-11-1) a sweep of the Huskies (26-17).

UConn entered the game on a hot streak of its own though, winning nine of its last 11, broken up by only two losses to No. 24 Notre Dame, and

Massachusetts	8
Connecticut	7

ranked as the second best team in New England, behind only UMass.

Potent Husky bats neutralized the generally strong Minutewoman pitching in both games of the double-dip as the Minutewomen faced an offense tougher than any it had seen since falling to then No. 9 Florida State in the quarterfinals of the Lady Seminole Invitational on March 16. UConn made solid contact throughout both games as UMass hurlers Danielle Henderson and Liz Wagner combined for an uncharacteristicly low four strikeouts yesterday.

The Huskies also neutralized another valuable asset, as UMass, which averages 2.07 stolen bases per game, did not swipe a single bag in the doubleheader.

UConn jumped out on the board early in a marathon first game that took two and a half hours to complete, longer than some of UMass' double mercy rule twin-bills.

The Huskies pushed across two unearned runs in the first, and another run in the second to take a quick 3-0 lead.

UMass retaliated with a six run rally in the third, forcing shell-shocked UConn ace Bridgett McCaffery from the game prematurely.

Sam Cardenas scored on a fielder's choice, cutting the lead to 3-1 and bringing Ashlie Hayes to the plate. The freshman atoned for an earlier miscue at short that led to UConn's first two runs, by crushing a McCaffery offering to the gap in right for a two-RBI stand-up triple, tying the game. Senior Amy Powell followed

Connecticut	4
Massachusetts	2

Hayes' lead by lacing an RBI double to right and taking third on a fielding error, putting UMass on top, 4-3.

UConn went to the bullpen for Cheryl Glassman who got Mandy Galas to ground out, but couldn't stop Becky George from plating Powell with a two-bagger. UMass' third extra- base hit in the frame. A Cardenas RBI single capped the scoring.

The Huskies added a pair of runs in the fourth, keyed by a Karin Muller triple to cut the lead to 6-5, but UMass added an insurance run in the fifth as Galas scored on a single by Tracey Osier. Osier was 4-for-6 on the day and is hitting at a .556 clip in her last six games.

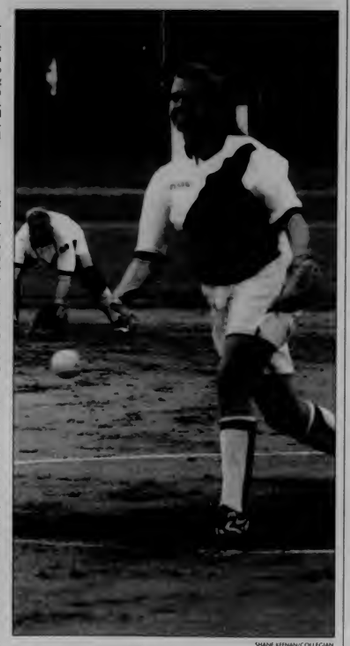
The UMass defense would unravel in the sixth though, as the Huskies tied the game at seven apiece on a two-out throwing error by Hayes, that allowed two runs to score.

Although the possibility was real, the game would not head to the nentherworld of extra innings, as the Minutewomen pushed across the game-winner in the bottom of the seventh.

George, who has hit in seven of her last eight, raising her batting average 106 points, ripped a double with one out. Freshman Katie Kenderski, who doubles as a field hockey goaltender, ran for the designated player, and advanced to third on a well laid bunt by Osier. Glassman's first offering to Cardenas sailed just a bit outside, allowing Kenderski to score the winning run in thrilling fashion.

Henderson labored, but picked up

Turn to SOFTBALL, page 11



SHANE KEENAN/COLLEGIAN

Freshman hurler Danielle Henderson struggled but picked up her 16th victory in a row, extending her school record.

Things just aren't the way they used to be

Matt Vatour

Down 2-0 in their playoff series with the Florida Panthers, the Boston Bruins will head home in hopes of reviving their playoff existence.

Unlike several years ago, the Bruins coming home for the playoffs doesn't have the luster that it once did.

Culprit No. 1 is the relatively new playoff format. Now it does make sense to have the top eight teams in the conference go to the postseason instead of the top four from each division, but...

It used to be that you could almost count on a first-round series with either Buffalo or Hartford, and if the B's took care of business, a much anticipated second-round battle with Montreal. It was as good as a rivalry gets in the NHL and the fans loved it.

You'd buy your "Canadiens Suck" T-shirt one year and you'd know that it would be good for many Aprils to come.

There's no hate with Florida. Aside from its rat-flinging fans, how can you hate a team that has palm tree patches on its shoulders.

Even the casual fans would know hated Canadiens like Chris Nilan or Patrick Roy, but most passive fans could only name "The Beezer" from the Panthers' roster.

The FleetCenter doesn't help it any either.

Home is where the heart is, as the old saying goes, but the problem with home for the Bruins is that the FleetCenter has no heart.

The beauty of the Garden was the fact that the building was another player on the side of the home team. The saying that it felt like the fans were right on top of you has become almost cliched, but it was true.

The Bruins had good luck rats of their own, and if you sat in the back rows, watch out for your fingers and make sure you've had your shots.

Buildings like the FleetCenter are a disturbing trend in sports. There is nothing unique about the place. The perfect ovals, with the clean floors, the marble tiles on the bathroom floors, etc... It's really nice there isn't a lick of personality in the corporate edifice.

What is even more appalling is the crowd noise factor. Despite the fact that the place holds thousands more than the Garden, there is barely any noise, even at exciting points, just because of the buildings acoustics.

This trend isn't happening only in Boston either. The famed Chicago Stadium has also been replaced by a pristine structure, that is perfect everywhere except for it's lack of heart.

It's a vicious circle. The players desire for more money forces owners to move into bigger buildings that can produce more revenue, but then the players complain because the home ice/court advantage isn't what

Turn to BRUINS, page 11

Women's track improves unbeaten record to 4–0

By Stephen Clements
Collegian Correspondent

The Massachusetts women's track and field team came away with a victory this past weekend by outdistancing itself from the rest of the competition.

The Minutewomen scored 133 points, followed by New Hampshire with 103 while Dartmouth rounded out the pack with 95 points.

By winning the tri-meet the Minutewomen remained undefeated, improving their perfect record to 4-0.

Shana Mitchell, a North Easton resident, won the hammer with a throw of 152 feet. This throw was not only the third best throw in school history, but also qualified her for the NCAA outdoor track and field championships.

She will be joined by Heather Brown, who qualified for the NCAA's earlier in the season in the javelin.

Another top performer for the Minutewomen was Melanie Bell, who won two events. She won the long jump with a jump of 17 feet, 8 1/2 inches, which tied her for third on the all-time list. She also won the 100-meter, clocking a time of 12.8 seconds.

Rosie Bryan took the first place ribbon in the 100-meter high hurdles with a clocking of 15.2. She also captured the 200 sprinting across the finish line with a time of 26.4 seconds. In addition to winning both these events, she also ran a leg on the victorious 4x100-meter relay team, which tied for third on the all-time list.

Christie Martin, from Scituate, won the shot put with a throw of 41 feet, seven inches, which put her second on the all-time list.

Many of the times this past weekend were some of

Turn to TRACK, page 9

Don't worry yet, Sox fans there's still a long season

FRED HURLBRINK on Baseball

Worried yet?

Don't bother getting all in a tizzy about the Red Sox so soon. We all know that they've been off to better starts with worse teams and had really horrible, boring seasons.

This season will definitely be anything, everything but boring.

How seriously can you possibly take these early season results when Montreal is in first place in the National League East, and Detroit and Pittsburgh are getting relatively good pitching?

Stop whining and complaining! The Red Sox are a better than-average offensive ball club, and the bats can't help but come around eventually — hopefully sooner than later.

There's no real good reason for the Boston lumber to be slumping, and you can't expect Jose Canseco and Mo Vaughn to have combined single-digit home run totals for long. Wil Cordero is taking his sweet time "adjusting" to the American (less artificial turf) League, as he is fighting himself at the plate and in the field.

We aren't even going to talk about the "fielding."

Roger Clemens has pitched well enough to be 3-1 but he stands at 0-3, having received negative run support and has been forced to throw an inordinate amount of pitches — not to mention getting no help from the bullpen. The relief corps hasn't been particularly encouraging, but they haven't been in very many critical situations yet. Tim (Time Bomb) Wakefield, after an encouraging outing against Cleveland, will get maybe three more starts to prove he's not a fluke before Jeff Suppan is recalled — the flutter-baller has been dreadful; a dead fish moves more than his April knuckler.

If you are a true, devoted Red Sox fan — not one of those people that complain and curse every time the Sox lose, but the second they get into the post-season become the biggest Sox fan since Tom Yawkey — then you are patient, and you know that the Red Sox of '96 are too talented to continue on this streak of bad fielding, cold hitting and uninspired pitching. You know in your heart that the Red Sox can contend, and if they don't, there's always next year.

• Brain Busters: 1. Who is the last Boston Red Sox player to lead the American League in home runs? Stolen bases? 2. Who is third to Cal Ripken and Lou Gehrig on the all-time consecutive games played list?

Answers later in this column.

• Look who's the best team in baseball — the Texas Rangers. Led by a resurgent Juan Gonzalez and Dean Palmer, the Rangers are putting a ton of runs on the board and are pitching and fielding well enough to make those runs hold up.

That philosophy sounds familiar.

There's no doubt the Texas club has the potential to contest California and Seattle for the American League West flag, but there pitching staff is thin and that will show up as the summer goes along. The core of their offense is definitely explosive though. Ivan Rodriguez, Will Clark, Gonzalez, Palmer and the Rangers, even if they fade, should be fun to watch this season.

• You know what, guys and gals? The San Diego Padres are a pretty darn good ball club. The Padres battled defending World Series Champion Atlanta for 15 innings on Sunday afternoon, beating the Braves 2-1 in a classic pitcher's duel.

Steve Avery and Fernando Valenzuela started the game on the hill, matching each other for six innings until Valenzuela tired and was relieved by Tom Florie in the seventh. Fernando gave up two hits and struck out seven in a vintage performance, lowering his ERA to 2.04. Avery was nearly as brilliant, scattering eight hits and striking out five in eight strong innings.

Steve Finley drove in the first run of the game in the top of the ninth to put the Padres ahead, but Atlanta's Fred McGriff answered right back to reward the Atlanta fans with a free baseball.

Turn to SOX, page 11

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN
Volume CV Issue 121 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Thursday, April 25, 1996

Looking for a real deal

Music enthusiasts may need a hand at finding the best music buys. See what the music staff has to say about Valley music stores (see Arts & Living, page 5).

Vaughn leads Sox to rare victory

Mo Vaughn went 3-for-3 at the plate, helping the Red Sox rally from a 7-0 deficit to beat the Rangers 11-9 last night at Fenway Park (See Sports, page 18).

WORLD

Miranda states birth control alright for mentally handicapped

VATICAN CITY (AP) — It is morally acceptable to give birth control pills to mentally handicapped women who could be "induced or forced" into sex, a Roman Catholic theologian said Wednesday.

But use of the pill should be kept to a minimum in such cases because "it would be administered without their consent," said the Rev. Gonzalo Miranda, who teaches at the Vatican's Pontifical Academy "Regina Apostolorum."

Some Church figures in the past have said exceptions could be made to the Vatican's total ban on artificial contraception. They have cited nuns working in dangerous areas or women who are subject to a high risk of rape, such as those who lived through Bosnia's ethnic terror and mass rapes three years ago.

Miranda's comments appeared to extend the exceptions for the first time to mentally handicapped women.

"If there is a serious and imminent risk of violence, it is permitted to administer the pill to women with mental handicaps," said Miranda, who also is secretary of Catholic University's Bioethics Institute.

NATION

Fireman kills wife, three collegues in Miss. shootout

JACKSON, Miss. — A firefighter killed his wife at home, then went to a firehouse and opened fire on his supervisors, killing three department officials before being critically wounded in a shootout, police said.

Kenneth Tornes, a nine-year veteran of the department, had apparently made threatening statements long before the shootings, another firefighter said.

"He was a perfect gentlemen except when you got him talking about the chiefs," 14-year firefighter Tim Dukes said. "Apparently he was upset about his wife and he came here and did this. But he's been talking about this for years."

Tornes led police on a high speed chase from the downtown fire department to the parking lot of a busy suburban shopping center, causing several wrecks, one involving an ambulance.

At the North Park Mall in Ridgeland, a suburban community that borders Jackson, Tornes wounded one officer before being shot in the left eye.

Tornes was in critical condition Wednesday after surgery. Police Chief Robert Johnson said the shootings began on the station's second floor, where the senior officers were apparently meeting, and the gunman moved to different offices while firing.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Friday	Saturday
HIGH: 65 LOW: 50	HIGH: 75 LOW: 55	HIGH: 70 LOW:50

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 16
Comics.....page 17
Crossword .....page 16
Editorial.....page 4
FYI.....page 2
News.....page 13
Sports .....page 18

Fire causes Campus Center evacuation

By Amy H. Paradysz
Collegian Staff

The Campus Center and Student Union were evacuated at 10:25 last night after a bulletin board in a corridor between the two buildings was set on fire.

The sprinkler sprayed 10 to 15 gallons of water per minute, according to Amherst's Assistant Fire Chief George Bowler, who was the acting fire chief while the chief is out of town. This put the fire out quickly, but caused flooding.

"Evidently someone lit the bulletin board on fire," Bowler said. "It created quite a bit of water."

Bowler characterized the incident as a "malicious burn."

"I assumed it was a drill," said Dax Allred, one of several students from Forsyth Country Day School. The students were visiting New England area colleges, and were eating dinner when the alarm went off.

"We paid for our dinner before we left," said John Gianmmarco, another visiting student, commenting on the casual reaction to the alarm.

Ironically, about 65 representatives from Massachusetts fire departments were staying in the Campus Center Hotel for a three-day Fire Prevention Association of Massachusetts seminar. The firemen stood in the entrance by the University Store and speculated as to how much water was coming out and how fast.

"We'd like to thank Amherst for giving us a little thrill," said Bill Greene, fire chief of the Town of Yarmouth Fire Department.

University Building Services employees expected to work into the morning repairing the damage, including removing the burnt paper from the bulletin board and sweeping the water into drains. The corridor was to remain closed until the pressurized sprinkler system had time to re-pressurize.

"We'd like to thank Amherst for giving us a little thrill."
— Bill Greene

"My computer's in there," said senior exercise science major Miguel Rodriguez, pointing to lockers in the corridor directly under the sprinkler.

By 10:40, maintenance workers were allowed to walk through the hall. A few minutes later, two maintenance workers propped the door by video arcade open with a trash can.

By 11:15, people were allowed back into the two buildings.

University Police Department would not comment because they said the incident was still under investigation.

Collegian staff members Michael Elliott, Matt Audette, and Chris Conner contributed to this article.

DAILY REILY / COLLEGIAN

Firefighters work to remove the water from the corridor between the Campus Center Concourse and the Student Union last night after a bulletin board caught on fire.

Senate debates RSO budgets

By Michael Elliott
Collegian Staff

The fiscal year 1997 student activities budget was brought before the Student Government Association (SGA) Senate at their meeting Wednesday night, in preparation for its final approval next week.

The budget, which allocates funds through the student activities trust fund (SATF) to all Registered Student Organizations (RSOs), student businesses, student related agencies and Area Governments, was complied by the Senate Ways and Mean Committee over the course of the spring semester.

"This is a budget without SATF relief," said committee Chair Jeff Coker. "We can't work with that money so we can't put it into the budget."

The SATF 'Free our Fee' coalition and administration officials had reached a settlement after a semester of student organizing to protest over $400,000 in mandated costs imposed upon the fund. If implemented, over $500,000 would be injected into the SATF over four years, including $113,000 in the first fiscal year alone.

However, Chancellor David K. Scott failed to officially respond on the matter to SGA by Monday, April 22, as he had indicated. Hence, the Senate was unable to incorporate new funds

Turn to SGA, page 13

Judiciary moves on ALANA case

By Michael Elliott
Collegian Staff

Delaying a final decision on the fate of the ALANA caucus for a entire semester, the Student Government Association (SGA) Student Judiciary has officially handed down their ruling in the matter of Kittredge and Luongo vs. Castellano, ALANA Caucus and Area Governments.

The decision mandates that the Dan Kittredge and Pete Luongo, both SGA Senators, enter into negotiations with officials from Area Governments, the ALANA caucus and the SGA to draft a proposal on the future of the caucus which is satisfactory to all sides involved.

The discussion will be over-seen by Legal Services and the student-lead Campus Mediation and Negotiation Team.

"This issue is not confined to our University. Throughout the nation, these same conflicts are fiercely debated. We feel that today we have created a forum in which meaningful dialogue on this divisive issue can occur," SGA Chief Justice Chris Lang said.

The petitioners had argued that the ALANA caucus violates the SGA

Turn to ALANA, page 13

Amherst to host community service effort

By Daniel E. Levenson
Collegian Staff

Approximately 300 volunteers are expected to engage in various community service projects in the fourth annual Into Amherst Day on Saturday, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The massive community service effort will involve several on-campus groups who will be coordinating their efforts with local community service agencies in the town. VIVA, MASSPIRG, SHARE, The Student Nursing Association, Sigma Kappa Sorority, Alpha Sigma Phi Fraternity and The Bolwood Project will be sending teams of student volunteers to help out on various projects.

Chancellor David K. Scott will be speaking at the opening meeting.

Into Amherst Day was started in 1993 by Professor David Schimmer and Director of the Mather Career Center Joan Stoia.

Schimmer, who is on sabbatical this semester, has coordinated the effort in the past with John Clobridge, Community Service Director for the town of Amherst. This year, VIVA coordinator Peter Blain has worked with Clobridge on organizing the project. Blain expressed the desire that by bringing students into the town to do productive work, it would foster better relations between the students and the residents.

"I think that sometimes there's a bit of a barrier between students and town organizations," said Blain, adding that he hoped that this year's event would "create some energy for long-term commitment to these issues."

SHARE, an organization that engages in community service projects that affect the community, will be working on projects around Amherst. They will be involved with a playground cleanup, a girl scout camp, and a Habitat for Humanity Project. SHARE's main function is to coordinate community service efforts involving UMass students and local groups.

MASSPIRG will also be sending a good number of students to the event.

Jay Rasku, a MASSPIRG staff person at UMass, said volunteers get people to pledge money for the number of hours that they work. A local, a national, and an international charity will receive the funds the group raises.

"The object of the day is to go into the community and help out. Give back to the community," Rasku said.

Many local businesses have contributed to the community service project. Bruno's, Pepsi, Bertucci's and Stop and Shop have given their support to the effort thus far.

Greek members set to sponsor charity auction

By Daniel E. Levenson
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts chapters Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity and Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority will hold a charity auction at the Newman Center from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. today.

Both Greek organizations will contribute approximately 30 members of their organizations to be auctioned off. The auction is open to all students of the University, not just members of the Greek system.

Sigma Alpha Mu brother Jason Hill said that students will be able to bid on and "buy" a date for a party to be held Sunday night at The Pub.

Both The Pub and the Newman Center have donated the use of their facilities for the event.

Minimum bids will start at $5, and cash and checks will be accepted.

Funds raised will go to two charities. The National Pediatric AIDS foundation, which is the national philanthropy of Sigma Alpha Mu, will receive a portion of the money.

"The money we raise helps to pay for kids' medical bills, and for the study of AIDS research," Hill said.

The remainder of the money will go to a soup kitchen in Northampton with which Kappa Kappa Gamma has worked in the past.

Jessica Pogni, Kappa Kappa Sigma sister, said that if this event goes well, they may use a similar approach in the future to raise money for charity.

"It could be an annual thing if it's very successful," she said.

Hill said the event was a good way to raise money, as well as being a good way to have fun.

"It's not supposed to be condescending to males or females, it's just a fun way to raise money for a good cause," he said.

Both Hill and Pogni also noted that the event was also an excellent way of letting the rest of the UMass community see some of the good work that the Greek community does.

Student interns to bring "Challenge" to campus

By Melanie B. Arruda
Collegian Staff

Today's pond-side "Gold Medal Challenge" is being held from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. by 26 marketing students who want to educate collegiate audiences about GMC vehicles.

These students, all of whom are part of the General Motors Marketing Internship Program, have been working in conjunction with GMC and Dan Lorenz, Inc. of Greenfield throughout the semester, senior marketing student Nikki Ahrenholz said. It is a plan to promote the dealership and GMC vehicles, she said.

As part of the event, there will be a food drive where the Sonoma vehicle will be filled with canned foods, according to Ahrenholz. The cans will be taken to the Western Massachusetts Food Bank after being collected from three area high schools, the entire Greek area, and donations made at the event, she said.

"We've tripled the value of our $2,500 budget by soliciting donations," Ahrenholz said.

"We encourage people to bring in cans or non-perishable food items," Taghavi said.

"We want to involve people in the local area," Ahrenholz said.

Various games and events will include a baseball throw, basketball shoot-out, free food, skydivers arriving at 4 p.m., tie-dye stations, and the opportunity to win free t-shirts in various games.

Prizes include a weekend get-away to Montreal with paid travel and accommodations, CDs, water bottles, and gift certificates, Taghavi said.

WHMP will be broadcasting live for most of the event, according to Ahrenholz.

"We've worked very hard and we are very excited about the event," Ahrenholz said. "It should be a lot of fun."

The event is part of a nationwide competition among 106 colleges and universities, Taghavi said.

EMILY REILY / COLLEGIAN

"America's Youth In Crisis"

Richard Lerner, MD, the director of the Institute for Children, Youth and Families at Michigan State University, lectured on "America's Youth In Crisis: Challenges and Options for Programs and Policies. The lecture was held Wednesday afternoon in the School of Business Administration.

Campus Police Log

Accident
April 21
There was a two vehicle accident on Commonwealth Avenue. No one was injured.
On Massachusetts Avenue, two vehicle were in an accident. No one was reported to be injured.
April 22
There was a four vehicle accident at an intersection on University Drive.

Animal complaint
April 21
There was a report of a dog living in a room in James Residence Hall. The dog was removed.

Burglary/ breaking & entering
April 21
A stereo was stolen from a vehicle in Parking Lot 12.
April 22
An individual returned from the weekend and discovered his stereo system had been stolen from is room in John Q. Adams Residence Hall.

Family domestics
April 21
A domestic dispute in Prince Residence Hall was resolved by an officer intervention.

Disturbance
April 22
Police were called to a fight on the 17th floor of Washington Residence Hall. One individual was placed into protective custody.

Health / safety hazard
April 19
There was a large amount of glass in the Butterfield Circle roadway.
Candles were burning in a window of a room in Coolidge Residence Hall.

Intoxicated person
April 20
Two individuals were issued trespass notices for pounding on residents' doors in Emerson Residence Hall.
An individual passed out in the bathroom of John Adams Residence Hall. He was returned to his room and placed in care of his roommate

Larceny
April 19
An individual reported they paid too much at a parking booth at the Campus Center Garage. The matter was referred to Parking Services.
An individual in Dwight Resident Hall reported a large number of CDs stolen.
An individual reported his laptop computer stolen from the Silvio O. Conte National Polymer Science Center.
April 20
An individual in Cashin Residence Hall reported identification cards were being used by someone else to open charge accounts.
April 21
An individual in Pierpont Residence Hall reported a wallet stolen.

Medical emergency
April 19
An individual, who was having a seizure outside Herter Hall, was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.
An individual with chest pain was taken from John Adams Residence Hall to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.
April 20
An individual complaining of shoulder pain refused transport to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.
An individual in Totman Gym, with abdominal pain, was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.
An individual, with a respiratory problem, was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.
An individual in Patterson Residence Hall who reportedly kicked out a window, suffered a serious leg laceration and was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.
April 21
An individual in Parking Lot 32 had an injured knee. The individual was treated at the scene

Suspicious person / activity
April 20
Paul J. Viveiros, 24, of 48 Laurel Ave., Swansea, was arrested for trespassing on the Southwest Mall area
April 21
Fireworks were being set off from the fourth floor of Kennedy Residence Hall

Vandalism
April 19
A window was pried open on a vehicle in Parking Lot 11.
A convertible top was cut on a vehicle in Parking Lot 22.
A paint ball was shot at a vehicle in Parking Lot 47.
A window was smashed on a vehicle in Parking Lot 47.
Derogatory graffiti that was written on a women's bathroom was removed by staff of McNamara Residence Hall Staff.
April 20
Lounge furniture was thrown from the seventh floor of Field Residence Hall.
An "M-80" firecracker was thrown into a toilet bowl in Cance Residence Hall. It completely destroyed the fixture.
An individual in Parking Lot 32 attempted to remove a parking sign.
A van, stuck in the mud on the athletic field on Mullins Way, damaged the lawn.
Paint ball was fired at a vehicle in Parking Lot 47.
There was damage to a vehicle in Parking Lot 46.
An individual in the North Village Apartments reported a baby stroller was destroyed sometime during the night.
April 21
Bottles were being thrown through a Washington Residence Hall window. Housing was notified.
Back windows open and a screen was damaged in Baker Residence Hall.
There was damage to a vending machine in James Residence Hall.
Two bathrooms in the Campus Center were reported to be damaged and had graffiti.
There was a large dent on a vehicle in Parking Lot 32.
A tail light was smashed on a vehicle in Parking Lot 11.
There was damage to a vehicle in Parking Lot 49

Warrant service
April 20
Mark G. Canon, 36, of 27 Hatchery Rd., Montague was arrested for larceny over $250

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Thursday, April 25

Sale — The Granby High Sweat Shirt Sale will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. at Granby High School, Route 202 in Granby. Benefits the Granby High Sports Programs and other functioning clubs.

Job interviews — TransQuest Information Solutions, located in Atlanta, Georgia, is a joint venture of AT&T and Delta Air Lines, Inc. TransQuest provides open client/server systems in the travel and transportation industry. TransQuest is actively seeking 200 entry level systems professionals for various positions. For an interview today or tomorrow, contact the Mather Building, University Career Center. Contract recruiter: Andy Hanson.

Workshop — A Resume and Cover Letter Writing Workshop will be held from 3:30-4:30 p.m. in Machmer E- 14, open to anyone interested. For more information, call Andrew at 586-2462.

Meeting — There will be an important meeting for all members and peopel interested in the Animal Rights Coalition at 7 p.m. in Room 306 of the Student Union. Call 545-1925 for more information.

Lecture — The Wildlife Society presents: "Manatees: Biology and Conservation," a lecture given by Cathy Langtimm, a research biologist with the National Biologist Survey, at 6 p.m. in Holdsworth 203. Elections for next year's Wildlife Society officers will take place directly after the meeting.

Skydiving — A skydiving demonstration will take place at 4 p.m. on the field next to the Campus Pond. If you want to make your first jump, call us at 545-0005.

Friday, April 26

Film — The Third Annual Five College Student Film Festival will take place at 7 p.m. in Stirn Auditorium at Amherst College. Free admission. For more information call Mike Bowes at 584-3717.

Store opening — I Used To Be A Tree, a new store in Amherst, will have a grand opening party on Arbor Day at 6 p.m., followed by a slide show by author Ellen Everett Hopman at 7:30 p.m. The store is located at 191 North Pleasant St.

Meeting — The Five College Campaign to End Sexual Violence will hold their first ever planning meeting from 3-5 p.m. in the Campus Center, Room 804-808. If you are committed to creating a community in which sexual violence is neither tolerated nor accepted and in which survivors are supported and validated, please come and share your ideas.

Meeting — The Alliance Christian Fellowship will hold a meeting at 7 p.m. at the Campus Center (room number posted by the elevators). Come learn about the campaign for the Urbana '96 Student Mission Conference, held Dec. 27- 31 at the University of Illinois, and enjoy singing and sharing. For more information, call Julia at 253-7206.

Fundraising — In an effort to help in the fight against children's cancer, more than 20 members of the UMass chapter of Delta Upsilon fraternity will pull a chariot from Boston to Amherst today and tomorrow, to raise money for the Jimmy Fund. As they pull the chariot 110 miles on Route 9, the "brothers" will be soliciting funds and selling raffle tickets for various prizes.

Saturday, April 27

Film — The Science Fiction Movie Marathon, sponsored by the UMass Science Fiction Society, will take place in the Campus Center, Room 163 from 1 p.m.– midnight. Free admission. Scheduled movies include: The Secret of NIMH, Twilight Zone — The Movie, Fahrenheit 451, Outland and Dune. All films are followed by a short break. For more information, call 545-1924.

Special event — The 5th Annual Extravaganja, Marijuana Legalization Rally, sponsored by the UMass Cannabis Reform Coalition, will take place on the Amherst Town Common from noon until dark. Music featured by ycP!, Synaesthesia, Project Flatboy, Colonel Mustard Trio, the Black Rebels and Jaia the Cat. Speakers include Professors George Phillies and Terry Franklin. For information call 545-1222 or 665-2922.

Storytelling — The "Keepers of the World" Storytelling Festival will take place from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. in the Amherst College Campus Center Frontroom. Advance tickets are available for each ensemble performance on the first floor of the Campus Center Office. For ticket prices call 542-5773 or for general information call 542-8207.

Sunday, April 28

Meeting — The UMass Ski Club will be sponsoring a Montreal whitewater rafting trip from May 31 to June 2, and will discuss and take sign-ups for the trip at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center. For more information call Arik at 545-3437.

Religious — Hillel's Community Service Group is visiting Amherst Nursing Home to celebrate "Hannukah in April" We will make latkes at Hillel House at noon to bring over to the nursing home by 2 p.m. Driedel games and singing and other Hannukah festivities! Everyone is welcome!

Religious — The Muslime Student Association of UMass invites all the muslims in the Amherst area to an Eid ul Hajj picnic at the North Village Playground, beginning at 4 p.m. For more information, call Utama at 256-8482, or Laili at 253-0874.

Monday, April 29

Discussion — "One by One: Descendants of the Third Reich and the Holocaust in Dialogue," a discussion with personal stories of Germans whose parents were in the S.S. and Jewish and Gentile children of Holocaust survivors, shows us how we can begin to heal from the emotional scars of genocide. 7 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. Free. For more information, call 545-9642.

Dance — There will be an LGBA dance held at Club Metro in Northampton. Admission is $2, after 10 p.m. and the dance will end at 1 a.m.

Correction

The "Top Five Anti-Multicultural UMass Administrators" in yesterday's Multicultural Affairs page was based solely on the opinion of the writers: Lisa Chiu, Sunanda Ghosh, Hussein Ibish, Shyamala Ivatury and Christine Soh. The Collegian regrets the error.

WMUA

DIRECTORS NEEDED

The student-run radio station at UMass is looking for 12 motivated undergrads for the 1996-97 academic year. If you have graphic design skills, fundraising or sales experience, or a knowledge of sports or news, we want to speak with you.

PAID POSITIONS!

These are Paid Positions. For a complete job description and an application, stop by WMUA downstairs in the Campus Center 105 or call 545-2876 for more information.

Completed applications due by: Fri. April 26
Interviews will take place on: Sat. April 27.

91.1FM

ATTENTION!!!

THE UMASS CAREER CENTER
Where the Present Meets the Future

The Results Are In:
Success Linked To Field Experience!!!

"My Co-op's and Internships gave me valuable real life experience that can't be taught in the classroom."
-- Susan Gordon, Class of 96

"Field Experience was a very useful resource to me. The Co-op's that I had assisted me in finding a great permanent job."
-- Eric Chiu, Class of 96

"Field Experience is a great way to get ahead of the competition and launch your career prior to graduation."
- Erik Kamila, Class of 97

SUMMER CO-OP & INTERNSHIP POSITIONS ARE STILL AVAILABLE!

Apply Now!!
&
Apply Often!!

The University Career Center
Field Experience Program
"Test Drive A Career"
For further information call:
545-6265

Funding approved for Harbor clean-up

By Melissa B. Robinson
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Congressional Republicans and the White House agreed to provide $50 million in federal funds for the Boston Harbor cleanup — twice the level previously approved, Massachusetts lawmakers said Wednesday.

"It's $50 million," said Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., who had lobbied White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta to push for an increase for the harbor during negotiations with congressional Republican leaders.

Massachusetts Republican Reps. Peter Blute and Peter Torkildsen also worked the issue at the behest of Gov. William Weld. Earlier Wednesday, they announced that a key House leader, Appropriations Chairman Robert Livingston, R-La., had signed off on the $50 million.

"To get the full $50 million took a lot of legwork," Torkildsen said.

The funds are part of the massive, overdue 1996 spending bill that contains money for some of the government's biggest agencies, including the departments of Health and Human Services, Housing and Urban Development, and seven other Cabinet-level departments, plus the Environmental Protection Agency.

Congress was expected to approve the bill Thursday and send it onto President Clinton to be signed into law.

Earlier, House and Senate negotiators agreed on $25 million for the cleanup. The amount represented a compromise between the $50 million originally recommended by the House and the Senate, which approved no funding for the project.

When the project became part of the larger spending bill, Massachusetts lawmakers worked negotiators to try and secure an increase.

The issue of federal aid is important because the cleanup, which involves building a $3.3 billion sewage treatment plant, has drastically pushed up sewer and water bills in the 43 towns and cities of the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority. Ratepayers' bills now average $612.

Despite the fact that lawmakers of both parties welcomed the funding, the issue also took a sharp political turn.

Kerry, who is running for re-election against Weld, credited the Clinton administration and Democrats for securing an increase over $25 million, the level approved by a GOP-controlled Congress. "It's not $100 million, and I think we have to say there's a big gap between the priorities of the parties," said Kerry. Clinton supported $100 million for the cleanup, the level originally sought by federal lawmakers, Weld and local officials. But Blute and Torkildsen argued that securing $50 million was a substantial accomplishment, given the climate for reduced federal spending and the fact that lawmakers were prepared to commit just half that amount to the harbor.

"That is a significant achievement," said Blute, who worked to secure harbor funding through the Transportation and Infrastructure Commitee, on which he sits.

Since the court-ordered harbor cleanup began, Congress has approved $630 million in federal aid, or about 18 percent of the total cost.

The bill also includes $3 million for Fall River and $1.5 million for New Bedford, two cities that have struggled with the high cost of meeting federally mandated clean water standards.

RYAN TEZZI / COLLEGIAN

UMass baseball coach Mike Stone [left] was interviewed by a WMUA radio announcer Monday afternoon about the Fanfest which will be held Saturday.

Countdown to the '96 Presidential Primaries

ELECTION '96

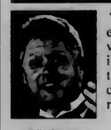
Editor's Note: As part of an effort to improve our coverage of the presidential primaries, the Collegian is running this feature everyday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — And then there were two.

Breaking clear in a contest once crowded and tangled, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole has secured the Republican presidential nomination and won the right to engage President Clinton in the fall.

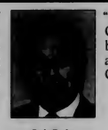
Neither man at this point has a comprehensive platform. But what they do have, after Clinton's three years in the White House and Dole's 27 years in the Senate, are records. And since January they've answered questions on a variety of subjects put to them by The Associated Press.

After the inauguration ceremony, what would be your first action as president?



Bill Clinton

"To continue our policies of economic growth consistent with our values, and investing in our future, ensuring that America will meet the challenges of the 21st century."



Bob Dole

"I will call upon Congress to pass a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution."

Scientists to discuss Chernobyl

Documentary highlights symposium at Harvard University

By Jon Marcus
Associated Press

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Volodymyr Kuznetsov, a Ukrainian filmmaker, knows his countrymen would just as soon forget about the accident at a nuclear power station that left the land for 18 miles in each direction uninhabitable.

But he thinks the world has not yet learned enough about its worst-ever nuclear crisis a decade ago at Chernobyl.

"I would like to forget also, but unfortunately I know that science and physics don't know 10 years later about what happened," he said.

With the figurative fallout from Chernobyl still hanging in the air, Ukrainian and American scientists will meet at Harvard University beginning Thursday to consider its lessons.

Even before the symposium begins, there is disagreement over whether Chernobyl has added much to scientific understanding about the mishap.

"We understand exactly what happened. There's uncertainty only in the details," said Richard Wilson, a Harvard physics professor who will speak about the causes of the meltdown.

But Kuznetsov, who will show a documentary he made about the building of the structure that entombs the failed nuclear reactor, said, "Nobody knows exactly what happened, even now. Science know nothing about the real situation inside Chernobyl."

For example, the exact amount of nuclear fuel remaining inside the sarcophagus that covers the reactor is unknown, he said.

Fears of radiation were renewed this week when fire raced through the deserted villages near Chernobyl. Authorities said only a slight radiation increase was monitored in the 18-mile exclusion zone around the plant.

Ukraine has offered to close the remaining reactors at Chernobyl by 2000 with the help of $3.1 billion pledged by seven Western nations. But there is no timetable for delivering the money, despite an appeal from Ukrainian President Leonid Kuchma at last weekend's nuclear safety summit.

Wilson said it now appears unlikely that the plant will be closed for 15 or 20 years, its expected normal life. But he said the faulty components at Chernobyl and similar plants have been corrected since the accident.

Still, said Wilson, "almost everybody feels a little nervous about this type of reactor and there are 13 of them left and I'd like to see them all shut down."

He said the sarcophagus over the burned-out reactor also ought to last for 15 to 20 years. Even if it doesn't, it would not affect the remaining Chernobyl reactors, But Kuznetsov, who watched it built, is skeptical.

"I'm not an expert about closing the plant, but I think the sarcophagus is dangerous," he said. "It was built quickly and without any special understanding."

The accident caused at least 32 deaths and exposed an estimated 5 million people to radiation, mostly in Ukraine, Belarus and Russia

TransQuest

An AT&T and Delta Air Lines Joint Venture

SIGNING BONUS & RELOCATION

TransQuest Information Solutions, located in Atlanta, Georgia, is a joint venture of AT&T and Delta Air Lines, Inc. TransQuest provides open client/server systems in the travel and transportation industry.

TransQuest is actively seeking 200 entry level systems professionals for the following positions:

* Programmers/Analysts
* Systems Analysts/Programmers
* DBA's
* Test Engineers
* Data Network Control Operations
* LAN/WAN Administrators
* Network Engineers
* 4th Generation SW Engineers
* Quality Assurance Analysts
* PC/HW Technicians

TransQuest offers a competitive compensation plan with a complete benefits package including:

* $35,000.00 Starting Salary (Bachelors)
* $38,000.00 Starting Salary (Masters)
* Contributing Savings Plan (401 K)
* $3000.00-5000.00 Signing Bonus
* Dental
* Paid Holidays/Vacation
* Life and AD&D Insurance
* Flight Benefits
* Medical (HMO or PPO)
* Full Relocation Package

TransQuest is an Equal Opportunity Employer (Must be a US Citizen or must meet criteria for Permanent Residency/Green Card)

Contact your placement office or call 1-404-714-4633 to schedule an on campus interview. Job offers may be extended at the time of an interview.

For Interview on April 25th & 26th:
Mather Building
University Career Center
Contact Recruiter: Andy Hanson

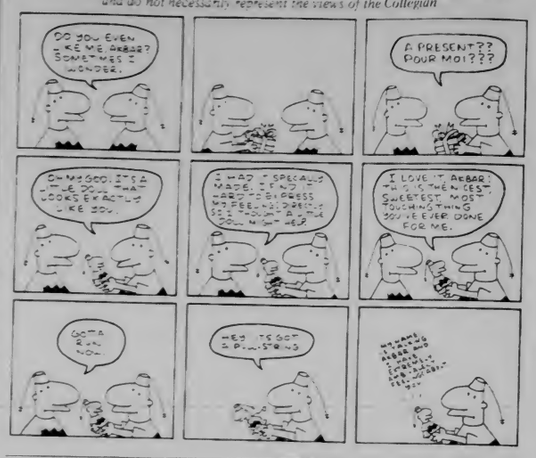
TransQuest

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Opinion/Editorial

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian



Dream a little dream

W[illegible] ... [illegible] ... [illegible] ... [

SHORT CUTS

Edited by Tara MK Connelly

Quotes of Note

Conan O'Brien

"Hugh Hefner turned 70 today. You can tell because next month's Playmate is Angela Landsbury."
— Conan O'Brien on "Late Night"

"I'll tell ya the most naked thing I could say in an interview: I'm damaged. And I recognize that."
— Sean Penn

"I'm not going to be modest anymore. I'm a movie star and it's lovely."
—Anthony Hopkins

People and Pop Culture in the News

For all of those who are mean spirited and cruel, you'll be happy to know that Alicia Silverstone has gained 20 lbs and looks more pleasantly plump than adorably Clueless. She plans to lose it for the next Batman movie which will have her in a skimpy Batsuit complete with plastic nipples. If she can't do it, then there's still that opening for a stunt double in the next Free Willy film.

Madonna is six months pregnant via personal trainer, Carlos Leon. Maybe her kid will become best friends with Courtney Love's Frances Bean and they can go to therapy together.

Tonya Harding just divorced her husband of three and a half months to try to get back into figure skating. He said he feels used. Maybe he'll write a book about it and ABC can turn it into another cheesy Monday Night movie.

Christian Slater is wicked cool. The actor recently escaped a fire at a friend's house, then climbed up two stories to rescue her two dogs.

Here's cause for alarm. Bon Jovi will be touring Europe, sponsored by Volkswagen. The company plans to create three "Bon Jovi" Golf models to be sold only in Europe for about $40,000 (hair spray and perm not included). Apparently in Europe Bon Jovi is being named MTV Europe's best band, and is quite the rage. Hey, if they were going to pick something so cheesy, why don't they create a "David Hasselhoff" Rabbit or a "Michael Bolton" Jetta?

Bono isn't the only person hoping off the U2 bandwagon to do cool things like sing with Frank Sinatra. Larry Mullen Jr. and Adam Clayton broke free to do the theme song to Tom Cruise's eagerly awaited film, Mission Impossible. It screams Zoo Station, but they're trying.

Elle MacPherson, no longer content with Sports Illustrated and the Fashion Cafe, has decided to launch an acting career and has managed to snag some sweet parts. Her resume includes Sirens, If Lucy Fell, The Mirror Has Two Faces (Streisand's latest) and Jane Eyre.

Also branching out is Miss Piggy. She has a new cook book out called, In the Kitchen With Miss Piggy. Here you get to create culinary delights from the likes of Mel Gibson, Paul Newman and Melanie Griffith.

And you though things sucked enough already? Vanilla Ice has a greatest hits album called The Best of Vanilla Ice. What's on it? Twelve re-mixes of "Ice Ice Baby?"

And to top off the day with news no one cares about, Rob Pilatus, one-half of the lip-syncing travesty known as Milli Vanilli, received 90 days in jail for assault. Who exactly sang those songs anyway?? Material in this column has been compiled from various news and wire services by Tara MK Connelly.

Editors' Cuts

Video — Cutthroat Island

There is something truly cool about a woman in power. The type that knows what she wants and grabs it. That is exactly what Geena Davis does in Cutthroat Island which has just been released on video for your viewing pleasure. Watch Davis scalp her dead father for the treasure map tattooed to his head. See her battle her evil uncle on blood-soaked decks amidst cannon smoke and general chaos. Rejoice when you realize hunky Matthew Modine (Gross Anatomy) is just along for the ride as an inept and untrustworthy slave.

Filmed in Singapore, the movie has gorgeous detail and a great set. It also feature lots of good pirate scenes that Disney's "Pirates Of the Caribbean" ride misses. You get excited, you want to learn to fence, you have the sudden urge to sail a ship and swill grog while crude songs about women, wine and storms swirl through your mind. No, it's not an acid trip — it's a video, rent it!

— Tara MK Connelly

Film — Madison County

Last summer's definitive film The Bridges of Madison County has finally come to video. Released on Tuesday, the hit adaptation of Robert James Waller's romantic tale will be sure to stir tears among its first time and re-viewers.

Clint Eastwood stars in, but more notably directs, this drama about whirlwind romance between two strangers. Eastwood's burly yet sensitive character, a National Geographic photographer, spies Francesca Johnson (Meryl Streep) sitting on her front porch, sipping iced tea during a hot and dusty summer in Madison County, Iowa.

The affair that ensues between these two emotionally lonely, middle-aged romantics is as passionate as it is stirring. Streep's Oscar-nominated performance (sadly, the only nomination Bridges garnered) is marvelous; accentuated with a perfect Italian accent. For those of you who have always wanted to see Eastwood cry, take a bubble bath or pick wildflowers, this film's for you.

— Laura Stock

Art — Herter Gallery

Herter Gallery will host an exhibition of mixed media paintings by Macedonian artist, Gorazd Poposki until tomorrow.

The artist was born and raised in Macedoni and received his MFA from the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville. Currently living in New York City, Poposki uses materials such as oil paint, wood, fabric, metal and other found objects to create works that speak about his experiences in a country scarred by war and devastation.

Poposki's works form the thin line between real and abstract. He tries to combine figurative images and symbols to convey a visual story that communicates his attempt to "piece together things that don't fit."

In a statement, Poposki says, "It is by living in the circumstances that surround us that one selects from things, from event and from ideas to create his own and unique attitude to life and to his work."

— Seema Gangatirkar

■ Northampton

continued from page 5

to spend at least a few hours if you want to sift through half the records. If you've got the cash and the curiosity, it's a perfect fix'd trip on a rainy day.

A CD and tape section do exist — however the selection is very limited. There is also an interesting array of used books and magazines.

DYNAMITE RECORDS

Located in the basement of the Thornes Market complex, Dynamite is the king of used vinyl in Northampton. Despite serious contention from Discoveries, Dynamite appears to have retained its crown. Bargain bins of notable "cheapo" albums greet you outside the main entrance. If you look often enough, you'll find something worth taking home for under a buck such as an old memorial tribute album for John F. Kennedy. If it's a more obscure or valuable record you're in search of, the shelves inside are bound to contain it.

Average vinyl prices (new Meet the Beatles for $16!) are on the high side, due to the many rare and out-of-print titles in stock. While this may excuse the high price of vinyl, there can be no similar argument made for the horrendous prices of new CDs. With prices reaching close to $17 for new typical domestic releases such as the Fugees' The Score — it is hard to believe that anyone would be willing to pay such a ghastly fee for a "regular" CD. In recent months much of the used CD section has diminished into a second rate cut-out bin containing little more than worthless '80s leftovers.

To its credit, Dynamite has strong blues, rock and jazz sections divided into respective rows. At the right of the front counter is a large new/used tape section that offers some sanctuary to die-hard tape fans yet to make the CD switch. In addition, a wide array of box sets are also available. A nice variety of genre specific magazines and blank tapes adorn the left of the front counter. Compared to its Northampton neighbors, Dynamite dominates two distinct categories: it offers the best variety of blank tapes and vinyl around.

MAIN ST. RECORDS

This two level store monopolized the local music scene before the opening of Newbury Comics and Media Play. Regardless of the new competition, it has remained a strong force that offers nearly everything a customer needs.

The upper level features the CD and tape sections and the downstairs houses the vinyl, video and miscellaneous items. Although the CDs are often grossly overpriced, there is a large variety of new mainstream and obscure independent releases. Many imported CD singles are in stock as well as a few scattered full length CDs from overseas. The used CDs are unusually expensive (avg. $9), but the selection is of a notable high caliber. Also available on the upper level is an eclectic array of magazines, which include several hard-to- find titles like Mojo and Goldmine — something true music aficionados will appreciate.

The lower level stocks the best selection of new vinyl anywhere in the Valley. They have virtually everything, from the latest Madonna 12-inch dance single to the new Go Sailor 7-inch. Rare and out-of-print videos are another reason to venture downstairs at Main St. Vinyl prices vary, but remain competitive with local standards.

TURN IT UP!

Chandra Hancock, co-owner of Turn It Up!, began the store with her partner at the end of last year. The duo began with only their sizeable personal collections and donations from friends as a base for their stock but since then it has expanded into the area's most popular used CD store, according to a recent poll in The Advocate. The six-month- old store is unique because it was the first local store to feature listening stations which allow customers to listen to any CD before they buy it. Used CDs are the store's specialty, offering an excellent selection and low prices — nearly all the used CDs are $7.99.

Turn-It Up! also features several unique customer special services including a frequent buyer club that gives regular customers a discount. In addition to this discount card, there is a free mailing list. Below their name and address, customers are given space to write a brief "want list" of titles. Turn It Up! continues to cater to its patrons on a personal level by mailing flyers to customers on its mailing list that detail sales and include coupons.

Besides the used CDs, Turn It Up! has boxes of old Rolling Stone back issues for mere pennies, plus decent amount of imports from artists like Tori Amos and Neil Young. The tape section is constantly improving in quality and quantity, but the record selection is very weak.

Mike Burke and Michael McCloskey are Collegian Staff members.

B-Side Records
Maplewood Shops
4 Conz Street
Northampton, MA 01060
413-586-9556
We have the lowest prices anywhere in town!
Special orders no problem!
New & used compact discs • New & used cassettes
Huge selection of vinyl LP's & 45's • Accessories & blank tapes
Buying CDs, LPs or tapes

TURN IT UP!
The Valley's Best Place To Buy Used Music •
Optimist Readers' Choice
Bring This Ad In For 20% OFF Your Entire Purchase*
CD's for $7.99!
Listen Before You Buy!
Cash or Trade for Your CD's!
5 Pleasant St. • Northampton, MA
(413) 582-1885 • turnitup@javanet.com
*Discount Off Regular Price. Expires 5/15/96

Massachusetts International Festival of the Arts
Try Opera!
"The Coronation of Poppea"
by Claudio Monteverdi

Two Performances Only!
Wed., May 1 & Fri., May 3
Fine Arts Center, UMass, Amherst, 7pm.
Wed., May 1 special "get-to-know-opera" price $15
Students $5
Senior Citizens $13.50
Fri., May 3 tickets $23.50 / $45
Country Bank for Savings
We'd love to show you around MASSACHUSETTS
Purchase your tickets today! Call 413-545-2511

Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN: Mon.-Sat. 9a.m.-11 p.m. Tel: 549-2692
The Savings Have Sprung at Scott's!
Thank You For Your Patronage
Busch & Busch Light 30 packs $11.79 +dep.
Moosehead 12 pack bottles $6.99 +dep.
J.W. Dundee Honey Brown 12 pack bottles $7.39 +dep.
Red Dog & Ice House 12pack bottles $6.99 +dep.
Check Out Our Other In Store Specials!
Boones Wines 5 for $9.99
Andre Champagnes 3 for $8.99
T.G.I.F. Pre-Mixed Cocktails 750mls $3.99
Peachtree Schnapps 750ml $6.49
Jim Beam 1.75 liter $14.99
Sun-Net Prepaid Discount Phone Cards Sold Here!!!
Also Check for your personal check
Check Out Our Other Great In Store Specials
6 University Drive at Newmarket Center, Amherst
Refers, Alumni Online, University Drive, SCOTTS, Victory Market, Alumni Online

Busta Rhymes' back in action; Stereolab pleases

Busta Rhymes still has what it takes to interesting hip-hop.

COURTESY DEAN KARR

BUSTA RHYMES
The Coming
Elektra Records

"WOO-HAH!! (Got You All In Check)" the first single from Busta Rhymes new album sums it all up. Busta proves once again he's out there bringing a style of hip-hop that only he can provide as he keeps all the sucker MCs and wanna-be gangsters in check on his new album, The Coming.

"I don't want to hear about this issue of keeping it real no more," he raps. "It's all hype. It's time we all saw through it. Everybody's talking about keeping their shit real, for who? Their hood? You are living a reality that someone else has set the tune for. You want to be real? You want to be true? Start with being true to yourself, and then come talk to me."

Think about that next time you try to front like you're hard.

Songs like "Everything Remains Raw" and "Do My Thing" are two songs that show Busta in rare form. While there may be better MCs out there, few have the flavor that Busta kicks. His Caribbean influences hit you faster than Carl Lewis, and his delivery will keep your head banging all night. This album is also highlighted by guest appearances as members of his Flip Mode Squad appear all over this album, with The Last Boy Scout showing the most skills.

Three of the best tracks feature members of other hip-hop groups. The rest of Leaders Of The New School, Busta's old group, show up on "Keep It Movin'." There is also an eight minute squad featuring Busta and the Flip Mode Squad versus the Def Squad made up of such hip-hop masters like Keith Murray and Redman. Q-Tip shows up on "Ill Vibe" and his mellow, softer-than-butter delivery compliments Busta perfectly. So what are you waiting for? Peep this album or stop fronting like you like hip-hop. A– (Adam Dlugacz)

STEREOLAB
Emperor Tomato Ketchup
Elektra

It is hard to describe Stereolab's sound because they are a band that is forever changing and getting progressively better with each new release. In fact this album is so good, it rivals their last album, Mars Audiac Quintet, which had many fans wondering where they could possibly go from there — they had hit the roof.

Well, Emperor Tomato Ketchup put them on the roof with jazz inspired sounds and fantastic lyrics. Mix these new sounds with the standard plethora of vox organs, analogue synthesizers and farfisa organs, and you might be able to pin point some of their songs, but not necessarily their incredible style.

The opening track, "Metronomic Underground" puts vocals in the background while highlighting their collective musical genius. French born singer/ lyricist Laetitia Sadier injects a smattering of French phrases to enhance the music. It doesn't matter if you can't parle le français — the music needs no translation, it's simply good.

The entire album inspires feel good vibes. Many of the instruments used on this fifth album date from the '60s and '70s giving it an authentic sound that compliment songs like "Spark Plug" and the title track. "Percolator," the third song on the album, begins with keyboardist Morgane Lhote tapping out a few notes which truly do conjure up images of a percolator à la "Jetson" style, trickling over a filter of soft violin strings in slow motion — a pace that the entire album seems to have adapted.

"Les Yper-Sound" (sung in English) has a new wave reggae beat backing it up, and "Anonymous Message" warns against the hazards of the economic structure that permeates our society. "Olv 26" is definitely a highlight of the album. It begins with a synthesizer, pours on some guitar chords and tops it off with quiet lyrics and beautiful backing vocals. Everything is introduced to create a layered cake effect.

Pop perfect yet slightly askew with stark individuality, Emperor Tomato Ketchup will make you spin and whirl as Stereolab takes you on a refreshing ride. A (Tara MK Connelly)

Trax On Trax Off

VARIOUS ARTISTS
Schoolhouse Rock! Rocks
Lava/Atlantic

What's next? West coast rappers covering songs from the "Brady Bunch"? Can't you see Ice-T screaming, "Here's a story about a lovely bitch named..." Well to whet your appetite, Schoolhouse Rock! Rocks is a collection of many favorite alternative rock stars and rappers taking on tunes from the ABC Saturday Morning Special, "Schoolhouse Rock."

Most of the covers are funny and enjoyable for the songs themselves, not the artists covering them. How can anyone listen to Blind Melon's version of "Three is a Magic Number" after hearing De La Soul's brilliant take-off on their debut 3 Feet High and Rising?

Better than Ezra, who are already on the road for "Where Are They Now" status, contribute "Conjunction Junction," leaving the listener questioning the function of covers like these.

There are a few true highlights here most notably the Deluxx Folk Implosion's "I'm Just A Bill" and Man Or-Astro-Man's "Interplanet Janet." Somehow Pavement's version of "No More Kings" sounds exactly like a tune of their own.

The Lemonheads make an appearance with an all-new line-up, featuring the rhythm section from Hole. Their cover of "My Hero, Zero" leaves much to be desired in true Evan Dando fashion.

Ex-local heroes Buffalo Tom turn up their amps on the extremely catchy on "Lolly, Lolly, Lolly Get Your Adverbs Here," while low-fi legend Daniel Johnston adds his unique charm to "Unpack Your Adjectives."

To close the album, Skee "I wish I was taller" Lo reinvents "The Tale of Mr. Morton" for the hip-hop world, and surprisingly it works quite well.

Unfortunately this album as a whole drags and drags, due to the fact that there are too many Better Than Ezra's here for this album. As with nearly every tribute record, the listeners are left trying to unpack their negative adjectives in attempt to describe these lame covers in comparison with their originals. Don't worry though — Rhino plans to releases a four-CD box set of all the original "Schoolhouse Rock" tunes. C (Mike Burke)

HOLDSTRONG
Nothing In Return
Pin Drop Records

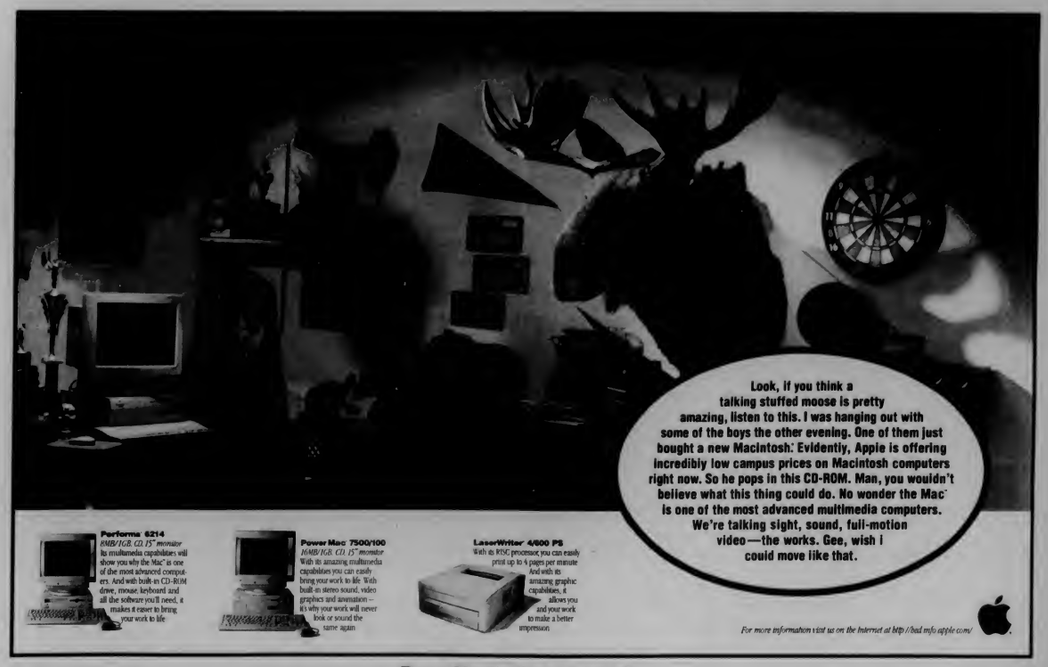
Holdstrong play heavy, pissed off, angst-filled hardcore. While it isn't the same kind of hardcore bands as Minor Threat or Youth Of Today play, there is a definite metal influence, making it powerful music. Holdstrong play metal inspired, breakdown filled, danceable hardcore that is sure to have the pit moving. The simple fact that lead singer Chris Berthiaume actually sings, and doesn't sound like he's choking on glass, sets this band apart from Earth Crisis and their ilk.

The lyrics are all emotional and deal with personal prob-

turn to TRAX, Page 8

Stereolab just keeps getting better with Emperor Tomato Ketchup.

COURTESY RALPH PERCU



Look, if you think a talking stuffed moose is pretty amazing, listen to this. I was hanging out with some of the boys the other evening. One of them just bought a new Macintosh. Evidently, Appie is offering incredibly low campus prices on Macintosh computers right now. So he pops in this CD-ROM. Man, you wouldn't believe what this thing could do. No wonder the Mac is one of the most advanced multimedia computers. We're talking sight, sound, full-motion video—the works. Gee, wish I could move like that.
Performa 6214
8MB/1GB, CD, 15" monitor
Its multimedia capabilities will show you why the Mac is one of the most advanced computers. And with built-in CD-ROM drive, mouse, keyboard and all the software you'll need, it makes it easier to bring your work to life
Power Mac 7500/100
16MB/1GB, CD, 15" monitor
With its multimedia capabilities you can easily bring your work to life. With built-in stereo sound, video graphics and animation – it's why your work will never look or sound the same again
LaserWriter 4/600 PS
With its RISC processor you can easily print up to 4 pages per minute. And with its amazing graphic capabilities, it allows you and your work to make a better impression
For more information visit us on the Internet at http://bad.info.apple.com/

Buy a Mac before you pack.

UNIVERSITY STORE
Campus Center
545-2619
Monday-Friday 9-5
Saturday 11-3

Offer above offers expires May 15, 1996. See your campus store for details about the Apple Computer Loan. ©1996 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the Apple logo, LaserWriter, Macintosh, Performa, PowerBook and StyleWriter are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. Mac and Power Mac are trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. PowerPC is a trademark of International Business Machines Corporation, used under license therefrom. All Macintosh computers are designed to be accessible to individuals with disability. To learn more (U.S. only), call 800-600-7808 or TTY 800-755-0601.

COURTESY BRUCE MACAULAY

Ricki Lake returns to the big screen in Mrs. Winterbourne

Formulaic fairy tale film falls flat

Ricki Lake, Brendan Fraser star in sappy Mrs. Winterbourne

By Laura Stock
Collegian Staff

MRS. WINTERBOURNE
Directed by Richard Benjamin with Ricki Lake, Brendan Fraser, Shirley MacLaine
Playing at Hampshire Six

Once upon a time there was an ignorant 18-year-old girl from New Jersey who ran away to New York City, wound up pregnant and homeless, and by climbing aboard the wrong train, landed in a lavish, loving world where all of her dreams came true.

The tale, called Mrs. Winterbourne, is a sluggish Cinderella story starring Ricki Lake as the glass-slippered girl herself, Connie Doyle. Connie is swindled by one of the city's vermin, a vile man named Steve DeCunzo, who gets her pregnant and then denies the baby is his. Connie winds up penniless on the streets, gazing at the photo of her late mother in her golden locket, wishing for a miracle.

Connie's miracle, while not quite of Forrest Gump proportions, is practically as unrealistic. She is accidentally shoved onto a passenger train to Boston, instead of the subway. A kind young man named Hugh Winterbourne (played by Brendan Fraser) and his expecting young bride, Patricia, are journeying home to meet his family and they give the stranded Connie an extra ticket.

Fate intervenes again as the train crashes, killing the young couple. Connie and her baby survive; however, according to the coroner and the hospital, Connie is dead, and she is Mrs. Winterbourne.

Every time Connie (or "Patricia" as she is now called) tries to explain the truth, someone interrupts her. Eventually the lie has snowballed so much, she has to live it. Her supposed mother-in-law, Grace Winterbourne (played by Shirley MacLaine) welcomes her with open arms to the Winterbourne's wealthy Massachusetts estate, substituting grief for the loss of her son with the joy of having a daughter-in-law and a baby grandson (which they name Hugh).

The one person who threatens to unravel Connie's facade, Hugh's twin brother Bill (also played by Fraser), actually winds up falling in love with her. The whirlwind change of emotion this stoic businessman undergoes is about the only fast-paced sequence in the film.

Initially, Bill looks at Connie's lower-class demeanor with eyebrows arched in skepticism, wondering how his brother could have married her. One chic make-over later, Bill is strolling hand-in-hand with her on the Freedom Trail in Boston and shopping at Shreve, Crump & Lowe.

The Sabrina rip-off twist to the story does little to improve it. The film simply smacks of "happily ever after," leaving little room for suspense or entertaining irony.

Lake, however, fares decently back on the silver screen. In her first film since Serial Mom, the popular talk show host exhibits a far greater talent than on television, even in this formulaic role. Fraser doesn't go to any great lengths in his nearly insignificant role. Playing the mother-in-law with sweet sophistication, MacLaine provides the most solid acting in the film.

Inevitably, with such a hackneyed plot, this dramedy is disposable. Mrs. Winterbourne is far more delirious than it is delightful. C

COURTESY BRUCE MACAULAY

Brendan Fraser plays Lake's snobby love interest in Mrs. Winterbourne.

■ Trax

continued from page 7

lems, mostly about being held back or stabbed in the back. Some of the songs tend to be quite reactionary. "Provider" gets things off and lets the listener know what is in store for them from the get go. "The Times Have Changed" is one of the best songs on the album, featuring the insightful line, "It's the same old story but this time the story has a different ending / The conclusion that you've come to expect are not the same that you choose to regret."

While both this album and band shows a great deal of potential, there are still some problems. First of all, Holdstrong is an example of the new heavier style of hardcore and after repeated listens the songs bog down and begin to sound the same. Also, while the band is full of rage it would have been helpful if they offered solutions or at least presented a positive message. Despite these glitches, Holdstrong is still better than most of the newer more metal influence hardcore bands of today.

Holdstrong is also an excellent live band and put on shows that are sure to have you dancing. Check them out on Saturday night in the basement of Van Meter as they play with 25 Ta' Life. B+ (A.D.)

TRACY BONHAM
The Burdens of Being Upright
Island Records

This recent recording on Island Records contains some of the angriest and most bittersweet harmonies of a woman with stones to tell. Tracy Bonham is the newest voice to infest the airwaves complete with wailing, angst-ridden lyrics and a bluntness that few other seem to possess.

Bonham is a 28-year-old Boston native who had played the clubs of the city for years before being discovered by a slew of major labels. Before signing to Island after a fierce bidding war, Bonham completed the Liverpool Sessions. Although the album built her reputation build with hits such as "Dandelion," Bonham didn't see the album as "highly cohesive."

The Burdens of Being Upright, her latest project, is not only cohesive, but addictive as well.

Bonham, who has recently been compared to the female rock icon Liz Phair, also falls in-line with fellow contemporaries Alanis Morisette and Belly's Tanya Donnelly. Yet, few other compare with the mastermind behind such songs as "Mother, Mother" and "Kisses."

"Mother, Mother" may sound like a song from the disturbing mind of a disgruntled college student, but according to Bonham the song was not produced to be a melodic rebellion against her mother, but rather against adults in general. "Kisses," on the other hand, is a tune that "symbolizes a character who's a performer who tries really hard to be a spectacle."

Upright aggregates all of Bonham's talents (singing, songwriting, guitar and violin playing), and explodes them into a sort of autobiographical novella. Bonham may be just beginning to delve into the ever changing music world, but she's a strong talent that should easily withstand the pressure. B+ (Christina Poletto)

VERUCA SALT
Blow It Out Your Ass It's Veruca Salt
Geffen

Congratulations are in order for this quartet of feasty twenty-somethings who have managed to produce a four-song EP that sounds nothing like their debut album, but still manages to fall flat on its face even with Steve Albini pushing it along.

Trying to be hip and cool with a nonchalant attitude, Veruca Salt's Blow It Out Your Ass, ironically describes what you want to say to them after hearing this musical farce.

"Shimmer Like A Girl" opens up like an ill-produced Nirvana rip-off (Silverchair does a better job!). With bad girls Louise Post and Nina Gordon crooning "shimmer, shimmer like a girl should," you have to wonder what they ate for breakfast to produce such nauseous lyrics.

"I'm Taking Europe With Me" improves slightly with a nice "oh oh oh" chorus, soft vocal and presentable harmonies. It's mellow, it's nice and it sounds exactly like a Tanya Donnelly song complete with little girl vocals. But other than that it is the "best" song on the EP — and the shortest.

"New York Mining Disaster 1996" has one of those arty titles that have nothing to do (as far as a listener can tell) with the song. However if you close your eyes you could swear that the Breeders threw this one to them out of pity, since it sounds exactly like a reject from Last Splash, right down to the grating guitars and plinking chords. Personally, if something says Veruca Salt, one does not expect to hear Kim Deal.

The final coup de grace, "Disinherit," clocks in at a whopping six minutes and 45 seconds. And if you can stand the song for that long, you deserve to be first in line at Strawberries when their next full-length album comes out next fall. But for all of those hoping for great things from a band that brought us the can't-get-away-from-it -no-matter- how-hard-you-try song "Seether," you're bound to be disappointed. D (T.M.K.C.)

You know Bobby, copying these answers from our family encyclopedia for your science project reminds me of my college days. Ahh... those were the good ole' days, cheat sheets on the inside of my Ivy league muffler, paying off the students at the state school to take my exams. Summa Cum Laude! God bless those enrolling states! I did love them so!

DAILY COLLEGIAN
State school intelligence free every weekday

THE MASSACHUSETTS
DAILY COLLEGIAN
NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY
HELP WANTED:
For the Fall 1996 semester in the Collegian Graphics Dept. We are currently accepting applications for Computer Graphic Artists for both
Day Graphics (Advertising/Editorial & www. and Night Graphics (Editorial & Prepress)
AGGIE LIFE
Collegian Graphics Since 1890
Applicants should have a good working knowledge of the Macintosh/IBM operating systems, good design and layout skills utilizing the following software: Microsoft Word, QuarkXPress, Adobe Illustrator & Adobe Photoshop.
Stop by the Graphics Dept. and fill out and Application. We are located at: 113 Campus Center, (the basement) Amherst, MA 01003

~ REVIEWS ~ PREVIEWS ~

Jazz quintet to play at Hampden

Gary Bartz

COURTESY ENID FARBER

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

The Magic Triangle Concert series concludes its seventh season with a performance by The Gary Bartz Quintet tonight at Hampden Theater. The 8 p.m. concert features Bartz on alto saxophone, Tom Williams on trumpet and George Colligan on piano, with bassist James King and drummer Greg Bandy rounding out the ensemble.

The 55 year-old Bartz is a Baltimore native, and has been involved in music his entire life. His parents owned and operated a popular Baltimore jazz club, North End Lounge. In an interview, Bartz said that his parents bought the club in 1950, and he remembers bringing bands down to play there on the weekends.

Bartz's interest in music began at an early age through the influence of a relative.

"My uncle was a big jazz fan and he used to come up to New York all the time and hang out with the musicians, so when they came through town, they would hang out," Bartz said. "And he was especially good friends with Dinah Washington and Dizzy Gillespie and certain people.

"So he always had the records and he would tell the stories and the music had already intrigued me, so when I heard the stories, that just about cinched it. So I knew from the age of six that I wanted to play the alto, because that's when I first heard Charlie Parker," he said.

Bartz got plenty of practice playing in his parents' nightclub.

"I have acted in the capacity of a bartender, manager, maitre'd. I did everything involved with the club, so I'm very familiar with the workings of a night club. I won't even say jazz club, but night club," he said.

Bartz studied at Julliard and the Peabody Conservatory before moving to New York City in the mid '60s.

Following in the footsteps of jazz legend Cannonball Adderly, Bartz quickly established himself as one of the most promising new voices on the alto sax and continued to build up an impressive resume. He worked first with the Max Roach/Abbey Lincoln group. Bartz, who initially met the band leader at the age of 14, described Roach as "a man of very high character. I really learned a lot from Max." Roach is currently a visiting professor at the University of Massachusetts.

After leaving Roach's band, Bartz joined Art Blakely's Jazz Messengers. In 1968, he played with McCoy Tyner's ensemble. The association with Tyner was influential on Bartz's musical development, partly because of Tyner's connection with John Coltrane, another legendary saxophone player. In Bartz's words, Coltrane was "a profound influence."

He adds that, "when I started working with McCoy, it was the first time I felt I were in the master's place."

1970 saw Bartz joining Miles Davis' electric/fusion band. Bartz recalled that working with Davis "was pivotal, because it was the first time I was playing electric music. With Miles, there was also that connection to 'Trane."

In additions to these laurels, Bartz has been recording under his own name since 1968, and has released albums on a variety of labels including Milestone and Prestige. Some of his more recent works include What I Say, Vol. 1 with Davis and The Red And Orange Poets, recorded in 1995. He plans on releasing a new album titled The Blues Chronicles: Tales of Life in July.

Bartz's playing has been described by Gary Giddins as "a gritty, swinging lucidity that could make you soar." The New Yorker praises Bartz saying, "A real ace from the glory days of the late '60s."

The Magic Triangle Jazz Series, which has brought many great jazz figures to UMass, is sponsored by WMUA and the Residential Arts.

Tickets for tonight's performance are $6 for students and $9 general public. Advance tickets are available through the Fine Arts Center Box Office at (413) 545-2511 or may be purchased on the night of the performance. Hampden Theater is located in the Hampden Dining Commons in the Southwest Residential area.

Mead Museum presents modern art; paintings depict post–WWII culture

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

A painting recently acquired by Amherst College's Mead Art Museum depicts one modernist artist's response to the destruction and devastation caused by World War II. Nacelles Under Construction was created in 1946 by American precisionist Ralston Crawford (1906–1978). The painting was more recently featured in a 1993 exhibition, "Ralston Crawford, Images of War" at Hirschl and Adler Galleries in New York.

The addition of this modernist painting enhances an already strong collection of American art and especially Precisionist works already in the Museum's possession. Crawford's painting joins watercolors by Charles Demuth and Preston Dickinson, as well as John Marin's modernist graphics.

Nacelles Under Construction was commissioned by the Miller Lighting Company in 1945. The picture shows the architecture and machinery of the Curtiss–Wright aircraft plant in Buffalo, New York. The painting is characterized by abstract composition and intensely colored geometric shapes.

A "nacelle" is where the engine of an airplane is housed. Crawford used a preparatory photograph and a drawing as his inspiration. The photograph and drawing were also acquired by the Museum from the artist's son, sculptor John Crawford.

Crawford first exhibited his work in 1946 at Edith Halpert's Downtown Gallery in New York City. At that time, a review described the work as "striking in its color patterns and dynamic in its volume tensions."

In 1985, the Whitney Museum of American Art organized a major retrospective on Crawford's career. Nacelles was shown as well as Lights in an Aircraft Plant, another painting in the same series. Lights in an Aircraft Plant is now in the collection of the National Gallery of Art in Washington D.C.

The Mead Art Museum has been adding Crawford's art to its collection of 20th-century American paintings over the last two years. The collection include Precisionist compositions of freight cars, elevated train track and boats. In addition, there is also a color serigraph of the U.S.S. Nevada. A more serious work captures the scene of destruction at the atomic test site at the Bikini Atoll, which Crawford witnessed firsthand in 1949. Along with Nacelles, this print shows Crawford's growing social concerns related to modern industry.

Amherst College is located at the intersection of Routes 9 and 116 in Amherst. The Mead Art Museum is located off the east side of the college quadrangle. Admission is free. Hours are weekdays from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and weekends from 1 to 5 p.m. Summer hours begin May 28. For further information on other exhibitions, please call the museum at (413) 542-2335.

■ Online

continued from page 5

Unlike the Newbury Comics on-line store, Music Boulevard includes audio samples, so a customer can hear the album before blindly buying it. The page also includes the Billboard charts, daily articles about bands and albums including biographies.

Unlike Newbury Comics and The Wall which are primarily dedicated to popular forms of contemporary music, this page also includes Country, Jazz and Classical. Unlike the other two pages, this one also includes a text version for users who only have access to a text browser.

CDnow at http://cdnow.com/

CDnow, another on-line record store, claims to have the most comprehensive selection of music on the Web with over 165,000 albums to choose.

Unlike the other on-line stores, they do not beat around the bush. Sitting at the top of their page is a welcome message specifically for college students that reads "hey you, the college kid behind the screen; do you want to save money?" Click on the image, and CD now carries you off to its sales area.

The page is very similar to Music Boulevard, as both offer the same basic features including a text and graphic version. The best feature of this page is the Internet Jukebox which allows users to listen to any track of an album before purchasing it. However, this feature requires the RealAudio plug in for Netscape Navigator 2.0.

Matt Wurtzel is a Collegian columnist.

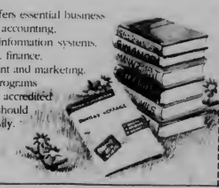
The University of Massachusetts at Amherst
Every Thursday Night Jams
Acapella/Acoustic
Sabrinans, Smith Notables, DC Doo Wop Shop, Stairwell
Free Admission | Thursday April 25th 9:30pm-1:00am | At The Hatch
This performance is made possible by:
DAILY COLLEGIAN Classifieds
SEF, a grant from the Cultural Enrichment Fund, Food Services, and a grant from Greek Affairs.

How does the world begin to heal from a genocide?
One by One
Descendants of the Third Reich and the Holocaust in Dialogue
Monday, April 29, 7:00pm
Student Union Ballroom
University of Massachusetts
Free and open to the public. This event is made possible in part through the generous support of the Five College Lecture Fund, the Office of Jewish Affairs, the Student Affairs Cultural Enrichment Fund, Campus Activities, Hillel, and the Commuter Area Government. For more information call 545-9642.

Get the credits you need fast this summer...

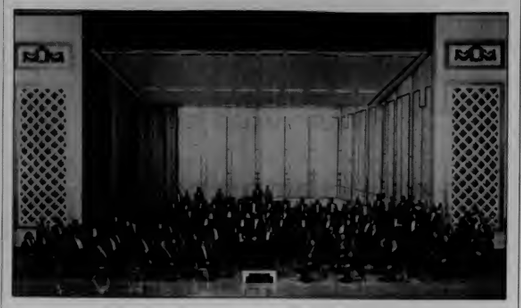
...without disrupting your usual activities.
One week courses are just one of the advantages of coming to Bentley this summer.
- More scheduling flexibility than any other Boston area college:
  -One, two, five, six or eight week options
  -Day or evening classes
  -Courses that meet on five consecutive Fridays
- Bentley offers essential business courses in accounting, computer information systems, economics, finance, management and marketing.
- Business programs are AACSB accredited so credits should transfer easily.
- Better quality learning experience due to smaller class sizes
- An excellent value compared to similar offerings at Boston College, Boston University, Northeastern and Suffolk

To learn more e-mail cenfo@bentley.edu, call 1-800/5-BENTLEY, fax 1-617-891-2729 or return the coupon.



BENTLEY
WALTHAM, MASSACHUSETTS
Please send me your 1996 Summer Sessions Course Schedule.
NAME
ADDRESS
CITY STATE
ZIP PHONE
Mail to: Bentley College, 175 Forest St., Waltham, MA 02254-4705
E-mail: cenfo@bentley.edu Phone: 1-800-BENTLEY
Fax: 617-891-2729

Symphony to delight UMass tonight



COURTESY FINE ARTS CENTER

The Cincinnati Symphony will play the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall tonight.

By Matt Sinclair
Collegian Staff

Tonight, the Fine Arts Center's successful 1995-96 season draws to a close as a performance by the Cincinnati Symphony marks the final event in the series.

Under the direction of Jesus Lopez-Cobos, the orchestra's program will include the Overture to Oberon (1825-6) by Carl Maria von Weber, Symphonic Metamorphosis of Themes by Weber (1940-3) by Paul Hindemith, and Symphony No. 5 in D minor, Op. 47 (1937) by Dmitri Shostakovich.

Founded in 1895, the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra is the fifth oldest and ninth largest in the United States, and has an endowment of $47 million. The CSO employs 97 musicians and resides at Cincinnati's Music Hall.

The conductor, Jesus Lopez-Cobos, a native of Spain, has studied at the Universities of Granada and Madrid, earning a doctorate in philosophy. He received no formal musical training when he first began conducting the university choir, but his obvious talent soon enabled him to study under Franco Ferrara in Italy and Hans Swarowsky in Vienna.

In 1972 Lopez-Cobos made his operatic debut in North America with the San Francisco Opera; in 1978 the conductor made his orchestral debut with the Los Angeles Philharmonic.

In 1981 Lopez-Cobos was the first ever recipient of the Prince of the Asturias Award, presented by the Spanish government and the Royal House for outstanding contribution to the arts. He also received the Distinguished Service Medal First Class from the German government for his contributions to that country's musical culture.

Tickets for the Cincinnati Symphony are $30, $23 and $18. Tickets for those aged 17 and under are $10, and tickets for Five College Students are $5. For tickets or for more information call (413) 545-2511 or 1-800-999-UMAS.

FAC opens doors to community

Celebration includes treasure hunt, concerts, plays & exhibits

By Seema Gangatirkar
Collegian Staff

The Fine Arts Center will thank the community for 20 years of support Saturday afternoon in what Director of Audience Development Peggy Melozzi believes what will be the biggest event held by the FAC yet.

The celebration, titled "Magical Mystery Tour," is a free festival of the arts and begins at 1 p.m. Melozzi said the goal for Saturday's events is to "bring people who haven't been to the FAC and to thank the community for their support." This is the first year that the FAC has attempted an event of this size, and Melozzi is anticipating a crowd of about 1000.

The event kicks off at the Concert Hall Plaza with jugglers from the University of Massachusetts and the Big Nazo Puppets, who hail from Providence, RI. Big Nazo is the perfect performance for young children, and features a creative variety of foam rubber creatures in configurations which include reptiles, beasts, vegetation with legs, one-eyed monsters and a giant praying mantis. The interactive presentation will continue all afternoon.

Melozzi urges students to come down and check out the concerts which begin at 1:30 p.m. Once Blue, a cross-genre ragout band, will play on the plaza. The band owes their diverse sounds to the influences of Bill Frisell, Bob Dylan and Duke Ellington. Following Once Blue, UMass alums yeP! take the stage. The group owes its originality to a an unusual fusion of soul and jazz with bluegrass, rock and Cajun sounds.

The remainder of the afternoon, the plaza will play host to artists from the Fine Arts Center's performing Arts Division, including Indian folk dancers, the Morris dancers and a reggae band.

The musical fraternity and sorority, Kappa Kappa Psi and Beta Tau Sigma, have volunteered their services for the afternoon. Some of the members will be on hand inside the Concert Hall for the Pioneer Valley Orchestra's Petting Zoo. This is a special event for anyone who's ever wanted to try out different musical instruments and musicians will be on hand to help out first-timers.

Melozzi describes Axis Mime Theatre Company's hilarious sketch The Number 14 as "things that happen and people you meet." The group comes all the way from Vancouver and combine masks, dialogue, music and puppetry. According to Melozzi, the six members of the troupe portray at least 60 characters. Axis Mime Theatre is entering its 19th season, and is one of British Columbia leading physical theater companies and has performed across Canada, United States, England and Hong Kong.

For the adventurous and young at heart, a treasure hunt gets underway at 1 p.m. on a journey that winds throughout the FAC galleries,

Turn to FINE ARTS CENTER, Page 11

COURTESY JOSHUA KRANZ AND LISA POLLACK

Local favorites, yeP! will help the Fine Arts Center thank the Valley.

RUN FOR NEWMAN
APRIL 27, 1996

WHERE?: Boyden side of the UMass Alumni Stadium track
WHEN?: Saturday, April 27, 1996
9:30 a.m. (walkers); 10 a.m. (runners)
WHY?: To benefit the Newman center. Sponsors are appreciated.
REGISTRATION: At the Campus Center Concourse and the Newman Center Cafeteria 10 a.m. - 1 p.m., April 24-26 and at the Newman Center Office April 1-26
PRIZES: Free T-shirts for the first 300 to register. $100 first prizes to first man and first woman . . . plus other valuable prizes.
For more information call the Newman Main Office at 549-0300.

Lorens Olympic
Gold Medal Challenge
Drive To Victory
Thursday
April 25th
11:00am-5:00pm
Umass-Pond
Sponsored by Dan Lorenz, Inc. of Greenfield
Food
Games
Fun
Tie-Dyes
(bring a T-shirt)
Prizes
Win a Weekend Getaway to Montreal
Co-sponsored by The Collegian, WHMP, Flex Gym, Sugarloaf Estates, Taylor Rental, Stuwell, Copy Cat Print Shop, Cancona Pizza, Vista Photo, Nick's Westview, Mill Valley Estates, Java Hut, Friendly's, The University Bernie, Atkins Farm, Food Fair, Connecticut Valley Brewing, Snack Bar, Herman Bacon, The Shoe Hot Mamas, V-J Supermarket, Enchanted Florist Shop, All Weave Weaving & Tans

Spirit Haus
Specialty Beverage Center

Specials . . .		For the Connoisseur . . .
Bud 16oz. cans	$4.99/six	Shipyard Ale, Blue Fin Stout, Moose Brown Ale	$4.99/six
Rolling Rock 12 pack cans	$6.99	Oregon Ales (I.P.A., Nut Brown, Honey Red, Rasberry Wheat)	$4.99/six
Ice House & Red Dog 16oz. bottles	$15.99/case	J.W. Dundee Honey Brown	$7.99 12 pack bottles
Popov Vodka 1.75 liters	$9.99	Malibu Coconut Rum	$8.99 750 ml
Half Keg Special Harpoon I.P.A.	$85.00	Montezuma Gold Tequila	$8.99 750ml

Micro-Brewed Beer Kegs in Stock
Wine Coolers • Ice • Mixers • Mini Kegs • Beer Glasses
FULL REDEMPTION CENTER
Rt. 9 East College Street • 253-5384
one mile east of Amherst Center on Rt. 9E
VISA – MASTERCARD – DISCOVER Accepted
Attention Grad Students: Take 10% off Regularly Priced Fine Wines

COLLEGE MOVES
Hertz PENSKE Truck Rental
• Low Rates
• Rent It Here-Leave It Here
• 24 Hr. Emergency Road Service
• Easy to Drive Trucks
• Packing Materials Available
• Air-Conditioned Trucks Featured
• Many Trucks with Auto. Trans., and Loading Ramps
• Unlimited Mileage on One-Way Rentals
AMHERST 256-8224 NORTHAMPTON 586-8391
HADLEY 549-1644 CHICOPEE 594-5186
RESERVATIONS 1-800-222-0277
COLLEGE STUDENTS
$10 OFF LOCAL TRUCK RENTAL
$20 OFF ONE-WAY TRUCK RENTAL
20% OFF MOVING SUPPLIES (Boxes, Tapes, Ropes, Etc.)
College ID Required • With this coupon • NOT VALID WITH ANY OTHER OFFER • One per truck rental • Subject to availability

■ Fine Arts Center

continued from page 10

COURTESY FINE ARTS CENTER

Big Nazo will entertain children at the Fine Arts Center this afternoon.

and ends at the Clark Memorial Art site. Patrons will be provided with maps and clues, and will also have the options of either walking to each art site or taking the bus. Each gallery will have a different exhibit on view, offering answers to the clues. Patrons need only visit two out of the five sites to be eligible for the prize drawing.

Melozzi described the day's event as "great fun." She said that the events should be "interesting for all students." A lot of students haven't had the opportunity to look at the art galleries and Melozzi stressed that this is the perfect chance for students who haven't seen the galleries to come on down.

The event, which has been two years in the planning, is the biggest community event ever sponsored by the FAC, and Melozzi said that all doors are open to everyone.

"This is a family event," she said.

The Magical Mystery Tour is the grand finale to the FAC's 20th Anniversary Celebration and promises to be fun for both young and old.

All events are free and no tickets are required. Ample parking is available in lots 71, 32, 34 and 62 near the FAC. For more information about this event, please call (413) 545-3671.

■ Amherst

continued from page 5

more obscure performers such as Terry Allen and Jimmie Dale Gilmore. The jazz section, too, was a strong mix of classics and less well-known works. The classical section left much to be desired, but it is rare to find much used classical anywhere on CD — classical fans tend to be far less likely to dispose of their CDs. The turnover rate at Mystery Train, however, facilitates a stronger collection of "other" music, with new CDs coming in every day.

If the great CD collection wasn't enough check out the used vinyl for an impressive collection of classic releases and rare collectibles, all at decent prices. The 7-inch single section is a bit weak but contains some worthwhile releases.

On a final note, the staff is extremely nice and helpful. They are well informed and are genuinely interested in making your ride on the Mystery Train fun for all.

FOR THE RECORD

Th. final survivor of the old Amherst record stores, For the Record is still plugging away and keeping stride with their hip and young competition from Newbury Comics and Mystery Train.

Just down the street from Mystery Train, For the Record covers the "other" music bases with a large collection of new CDs. Jazz and classical are especially well-represented, and the knowledgeable staff seems as well-versed in the far corners of the store as they are in the rock and rap sections. For the Record also does a good job of maintaining artist's catalogs — both the latest releases and the back catalog are usually available. The diversity of artists in the classical and jazz sections is a refreshing change from the usual Beethoven/ Kenny G/ "Classical for Morons — Volume One" fare, and there is a nice balance between premier and bargain labels. Special ordering, too, is a characteristic of For The Record that makes it a friend to music lovers.

The rock section is filled with deep back catalogs of established artists, and a surprisingly quality selection of new releases. Prices are a bit steep but there are many titles here you just won't find anywhere else. Rap fans, beware! The selection is dreadful — no Run D.M.C. recordings! The used CD selection is decent, but the store's policies on buying/ trading used CDs is far worse than Mystery Train's.

For the Record is the only Amherst store with a true local record collection stocked with all of the recent area recordings from the Scud Mountain Boys to Tizzy. In the back of the store is the terribly weak selection of vinyl records filled with trash from the '80s.

Mike Burke and Bradley Skaught are Collegian Staff members. Collegian Staff member, Adam Dlugacz, also contributed to this article.

Hampshire Mall offers corporate stores

Although Amherst and Northampton may be the "hip" places to shop, it is impossible to keep mall rats away from their local breeding ground, the Hampshire Mall. Here is a quick look at the mall's two record stores, Media Play and NRM, and their neighbor, Strawberries.

MEDIA PLAY

Media Play is easily the biggest record store in the area and the most corporate. It's wide selection caters to all kinds of musical genres from jazz to rap to mainstream rock. Hot new releases such as the latest from Hootie and the Blowfish or Stone Temple Pilots are stocked in abundance and are usually on sale. Monday night, the store stayed open until midnight for all the Hootie fans in the area to be the first to buy the new Blowfish.

Their back catalog for established artists is unrivalled in the Valley plus they have a surprising amount of releases from larger independent labels. If you're looking for Rancid, Guided By Voices or even The Dead Kennedys, you will be in luck. However don't expect to find acts such as Doc Hopper or The Queers anywhere besides Newbury Comics or Main Street Records — independent releases tend to be on the expensive side.

The staff was friendly, but their knowledge of music extended barely into the top 40. Vinyl in not stocked in the store, but their cassette selection is as large as their CD section. There also stock a large variety singles.

At the same time the store can be overwhelming and things tend to be out of order. The rap section is a mockery. Nothing is filed correctly and the selection is meager. For instance, they'll have Snoop Doggy Dog and The Fugees, but try finding Group Home or The Artifacts and you're out of luck.

NRM

Imagine walking into a store, looking around aimlessly due to an inane set-up, and nearly getting hit on the head a CD with which the store employees were playing catch. Sounds like a fun visit, huh?

But if you are looking for a used copy of that cherished Bon Jovi CD you loved in seventh grade, this is the place to find it.

Possibly the only positive part of this inadequate store is their impressive rap catalog, but even there everything is overpriced.

STRAWBERRIES

Just across the street from Media Play is the other large store, Strawberries. Although many believed Strawberries was going to suffer with the addition of Media Play and Newbury Comics, the Massachusetts-based chain has kept right up with the competition. Floor manager Scott Snyder mentioned that college students are regular customers largely because of their extensive alternative rock selection.

Like Media Play they'll have Rage Against The Machine, Pavement or Liz Phair but not bands like The Griffters, Built To Spill or Weston. Even more surprising is that the store suffers behind Media Play for back catalog for classic rock acts. The rap section is also lacking, as it doesn't extend far past Coolio and Dr. Dre.

Prices on newly released CD's and cassettes are reasonable and quite affordable. However the rest of the CD's are in the upper levels around $15.99 — fortunately they often hold store-wide sales.

One important plus is the store's used CD policy buy. Their trade-in deal is comparable to most stores, and they have a surprisingly good used selection at very competitive prices.

Finally, the staff in the store really does make a difference as they are extraordinarily friendly and helpful. They will go the extra mile to help the customer.

Adam Dlugacz is a Collegian Staff member Collegian Staff member Mike Burke also contributed to this article.

The UMASS Daily Collegian
A wealth of information at your finger tips everyday.

Summer at Brandeis University
Session I — June 3-July 5
Session II — July 8-August 9
• Small classes taught by Brandeis faculty
• Competitive tuition
• Courses for high school, undergraduate and graduate students
• Easy access from Rtes. 128/95/90
• Free Parking
Liberal Arts
Near Eastern and Judaic Studies
Premedical Sciences
Chamber Music Workshop
Internship Program in Law, Medicine and Health Policy
Intensive Hebrew Language Institute
Spanish Immersion Program
Save over $500 on summer classes, by enrolling before April 30.
Information, catalog and application:
Summer Program Office
Rabb School of Summer, Special, and Continuing Studies
Brandeis University, MS 084
P.O. Box 9110
Waltham, MA 02254-9110
(617) 736-3434
FAX: (617) 736-3420
E-mail: summerschool@lagoe.cc.brandeis.edu

Mike's Westview Cafe
Would Like to Thank the Senior Class of 1996
Every Saturday Night Until Graduation is . . .
Seniors Nite
Free T-shirts
Free Snacks
Great Drink Specials
& Mike's Mad Money
Come In and Check It Out!

Textbook Buyback
Campus Center
1st Floor - Room 162
Wed. 5/15-Fri. 5/17 9 AM-5 PM
Sat. 5/18 11 AM-5 PM
Mon. 5/20-Tues. 5/21 9 AM-5 PM
Wed. 5/22-Thurs. 5/23 9 AM-6 PM
Fri. 5/24 9 AM-5 PM
Textbook Annex
Wed. 5/15-Fri. 5/17 9 AM-4 PM
Mon. 5/20-Fri. 5/24 9 AM-4 PM
Tues. 5/28-Wed. 5/29 9 AM-4 PM
Hampden in southwest
Wed. 5/22-Thurs. 5/23 10 AM-6 PM
Fri. 5/24 10 AM-5 PM
UNIVERSITY STORE'S Textbook Annex UMASS AMHERST REDUCE REUSE RECYCLE

Anthony's
ALWAYS THE BEST IN ADULT FEATURE ENTERTAINMENT
April 23rd ~ 27th
NATION'S #1 DUO ACT
HOT!!!
SCANDALOUS...
ENOUGH SAID
CALL OUR HOT LINE FOR SHOWTIMES 538-6969
Special Seating for 18+ with proper I.D.
500 New Ludlow Road
South Hadley ~ 532-3621
Hours: M-W • 4 p.m. - 2 a.m. Th.-Sat. • Noon - 2 a.m.

■ NBA

continued from page 18

Spurs vs. Jazz

Look familiar? Both these teams have struggled to get past the second round recently, so this series proves to be one worth more than a trip to the next round. Neither team is very deep and Robinson's dominance should be the X- factor. Utah just hasn't played like it really cares. Bottom line — San Antonio in six as the Spurs prove the importance of winning on the road.

Western Conference Final: Spurs vs. Lakers

Two weeks ago, the Lakers proved to themselves they could beat San Antonio in big games. These Lakers now know what it feels like to win, as their task is a tough one. This is what Magic came back for, and he will have his teammates ready. Even the Admiral cannot control imminent destiny. Pick: Lakers in seven.

NBA Finals: Bulls vs. Lakers

A dream matchup could turn into a horrible nightmare. Magic vs. Michael would be a fun series to watch but remember, this is the Bulls and the Lakers. Simply put, the Bulls are a better team than the Lakers, or any team from the Western conference. Chicago's accomplishments this season are simply to spectacular too ignore, even for a Knicks fan.

— and the new NBA champions of the world are the Chicago Bulls, like it or not.

Darren Cohen is a Collegian columnist.

Shaquille O'Neal

Rangers back home, but can they win there?

By Ken Rappoport
Associated Press

NEW YORK — The New York Rangers regained the home-ice advantage in their playoff series with the Montreal Canadiens. Now all they have to do is figure out how to win at home.

The Rangers have lost four straight playoff games at Madison Square Garden, including the first two of this Eastern Conference series, to tie a club record set in 1956-57.

Ironically, the Rangers were knocked out in the first round that season by the Canadiens — longtime rivals and members with New York in the NHL's "Original Six." The Canadiens and Rangers have met in 13 previous playoff series, with Montreal winning seven and holding a 33-24-2 edge in games.

The hallmark of their current series has been the competitiveness of the first four games, including Tuesday night's 4-3 victory by the Rangers in Montreal to tie the best-of-7 series at 2-2.

That completed a two-game sweep in Montreal for the Rangers, who have two of the next three games scheduled for the Garden beginning with Game 5 on Friday night.

The Canadiens hope to return to the fast-skating type of game in their first two appearances in the Garden that got them off to a quick 2-0 lead in the series.

"We weren't as opportunistic as we've been," said Montreal center Vincent Damphousse of the Canadiens' two losses at home. "There's not much to change. We outplayed them, but that second period killed us. But whether we play better or not, we still have to bother Richter more."

Goalie Mike Richter, who gave up four goals to Damphousse in the first two games, had his best outing of the series so far as the Canadiens outshot New York 35-19 in Game 4.

"Sometimes, they had pressure in our end, but we have a pretty good defense," Richter said. "They didn't give up a lot of rebound shots. You need to make the save every now and then and I'm glad I was able to help out tonight."

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK

One Way	Roundtrip
LONDON
$175	$339
PARIS
$224	$427
SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA
$235	$446
TOKYO	$851

Scheduled flights.
Fares to worldwide destinations.
Eurailpasses Available.
Weekend surcharges may apply. Customs-immigration taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l student I.D. cards may be required.

PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave., NY, NY 10173
212-986-8420*
800-272-9676
*in NYC

IT'S FOR SPECIAL OCCASIONS.

Like when you clean out your refrigerator and find some behind the peaches.

Or are they meatballs?

CIDER JACK HARD CIDER

Pearl Street
Nightclub

THURSDAY APR 25
The Area's Biggest HI ENERGY DANCE PARTY
Hosted by Adam Wright of Today 99
$100 DRAFTS ALL NIGHT
FREE ADMISSION B4 10PM 10PM
Pizza from HOT HARRY
Regular wave bass by...
BIG CITY DYNAMIC of Southampton

FRIDAY APR 26
RETRO NIGHT
With DJ Bob D
ADMISSION TO RETRO NIGHT WITH THIS AD
Downstairs 8:00 pm
SOUL CAFE

SATURDAY APR 27
SATURDAY IS GAY NIGHT AT PEARL STREET
Second Dancing Gayle
LES BAINS
Downstairs 8:30 pm
POPA CHUBBY

SUN APR 28 5:00 PM
Energy International Bands
Line Of Fire
Knuckle Sandwich
Accidental Birth
Mad Happy
Wasted Time

TUES APR 30 7:30 PM
CIV
HFC

WEDNESDAY MAY 1
NORTHAMPTON'S FIRST & FINEST
GAY NIGHT
With Hartford's DJ DAVE RUSSELL

THURSDAY MAY 2
HI ENERGY DANCE PARTY
(18 & Over Welcome)
Downstairs 9:00 pm
DONNA THE BUFFALO
Walk Balk

FRIDAY MAY 3
RETRO NIGHT
Downstairs 8:30 pm
JAMES COTTON

SATURDAY MAY 4
LES BAINS
Downstairs 9:00 pm
ZOO STATION
(U2 Tribute)

COMING TO PEARL STREET...
5/11 THE SIGNS
The Maggies
5/17 MAX CREEK 18
5/18 WICKED GARDEN
5/24 PETER WOLF
5/25 QUETZAL
5/26 MADBALL 18
5/28 FISHBONE 18
5/31 THE ROLLING BAND 18

Tickets for all shows available at Northampton Box office 586-8686, 1-800-THE-TICK. All memberships. For The Record in Amherst About Music in Greenfield The Unlimited at U Mass
10 Pearl Street, Northampton 413-586 7771

■ SGA

continued from page 1

to be made available to student groups for the next fiscal year.

The Ways and Means committee is required by the SGA Constitution to present to budget to the Senate one week before the actual budget hearing. Coker said that the figures produced are subject to change before the package is finalized.

Thus far, the biggest winners in the proposal include the Asian American Student Association, the Black Student Union, University Productions and Concerts, Northeast Area Government and the Center for Student Business.

AHORA, New WORLD Theatre, the Radical Student Union, the Distinguished Visitor's Program (DVP) and the Student Union Art Gallery are all faced with significant cuts. The DVP and the Gallery are expected to cease operations next year due to an extreme shortage in funds.

Coker said the cuts are unavoidable due to administrative constraints imposed upon the SATF, and demanded that Scott respond to student concerns as to avoid future RSO shut-downs.

In other matters, the Senate approved a motion which would advise the Higher Education Coordinating Council (HECC) to apply the planned five percent tuition decrease for in-state students to out-of-state students.

The motion was authored by Sen. Nathan Peyton.

Currently, HECC, who maintains authority over University of Massachusetts tuition levels, has mandated that out-of- state tuition will rise by approximately three percent for academic year 1996-97.

"The burden of paying tuition should not shift from the backs of in-state students to out-of state students," said SGA President Maurice Caston.

"The state should pick up the tab," to supplement lost revenue from tuition cuts, added Secretary of Finance Sean Carter.

In other matters, the Senate passed a motion to restructure the guidelines for caucus formation within the body.

Brought forth in the wake of Student Judiciary decision regarding the constitutionality of the ALANA Caucus, the Select–Committee on caucus formation intends to avoid future controversy on the issue, with this motion.

"We see a real need for groups that might be under–represented in the future," said Sen. Jennifer Casasanto, who co-chaired the committee.

Under the new law, a caucus that gathers 20 signatures will be afforded one ex-officio Senate seat, to speak on their behalf at all Senate proceedings. However, no voting power will be extended to such a caucus.

For a caucus to achieve full voting privileges, 1000 signatures must be obtained from students representing at least four residential areas.

Additionally, the Senate must approve a voting caucus by a two-thirds majority vote.

Most significantly, the ALANA caucus charter was "grandfathered," into SGA by-laws, meaning that it would retain its nine appointed seats and not be required to re- approve itself through the newly prescribed process.

■ ALANA

continued from page 1

constitution because they are granted nine appointed seats within the Senate — all retaining full voting power.

The constitution states that all Senators must be elected from specific districts. Provisions for the caucus are incorporated in the by–laws, which is the point of contention, as the by–laws are required to be consistent with the constitution.

The caucus was created in attempt to rectify historically disproportionate ALANA representation within the Senate. Outside of the caucus, currently, only six ALANA students have been elected to the Senate, far below the level needed for equal representation.

"Traditionally, students of color have been marginalized on this campus," SGA Speaker Dan Castellano said.

However, Kittredge and Luongo said that the caucus itself distorts representation of ALANA students to a unjust degree, and that no group or community of students should be given special privileges within the Senate.

"I think its definitely clear–cut issue," Kittredge said. "It's the people's choice of who they elect. No racism exists in the electoral process."

All sides involved expressed frustration over the Judiciary decision, which shyed away from a more concrete, constitutionally–based ruling.

"I don't think they fulfilled their obligation," said Kittredge.

"I don't care if it's a controversial issue," Luongo said. "They should make a decision."

Supporters of the caucus were concerned that the Judiciary did not exhibit a more pro-ALANA stance.

"It disturbs me that the Student Judiciary was not willing to make a stand," SGA President and former ALANA caucus chair Maurice Caston said.

"I'm a little concerned that the judiciary did not come here and make a statement of support of the ALANA caucus," Castellano added. "I'm concerned what the final outcome will be."

The judiciary mandated that discussion on the matter will continue up until the week of the last SGA Senate meeting of the fall, 1996 semester. At that time, if a settlement is not presented by the appropriate participants, the judiciary will make one independently.

Methodists uphold church policy

Homosexuality declared incompatible with Christian teaching

By David Briggs
Associated Press

DENVER — United Methodists voted Wednesday to uphold church policy declaring homosexuality incompatible with Christian teaching.

Delegates to the quadrennial General Conference voted 577 to 378 to turn down a proposal that would have eliminated language critical of homosexuality from the church's Social Principles.

Some supporters of gay rights walked away somberly after the vote.

"I would just say it's disappointing, and we'll be back," said Jeanne Knepper, a spokeswoman for Affirmation, the unofficial gay and lesbian caucus of the United Methodist Church.

Also Wednesday, first lady Hillary Clinton addressed the conference, quoting Scripture in encouraging church leaders to put children first in their work.

The issue of homosexuality has dominated the church-wide meeting of the 8.6 million-member denomination.

Last week, 15 bishops, saying it was time to "break the silence," announced they personally opposed church policy on homosexuality. On Tuesday, the full Council of Bishops said they were committed to upholding church law by banning the ordination of gays and declaring that homosexual practices violate church teaching.

"I think there is an ethical Continental Divide," the Rev. David A. Seamands of Nokomis, Fla., said Wednesday, supporting the anti-gay church policy as "our basic, bottom-line biblical and theological standard on sexual practices."

Luis Travino, a delegate from Mexico, asked the conference to remember the church in Mexico and Latin America, where homosexuality is not accepted.

"Methodism is not only yours. Don't make us ashamed to be United Methodists."

Others argued for dropping the church's censure of homosexual practices.

"The church must be careful not to condemn when it doesn't have a really clear basis," said the Rev. Philip Wogaman, the Clinton's pastor at Foundry United Methodist Church in Washington. "My friends, we need one another. We need healing on this issue."

A woman who identified herself as a lesbian also appealed to the conference, "to recognize that all of us are members of the church."

The Board of Church and Society had recommended dropping the condemnation of homosexuality and replacing it with the statement that the church "has been unable to arrive at a common mind on the compatibility of homosexual practice with Christian faith."

The current language was first voted in 1972, and every four years since has been reaffirmed. In 1992, delegates voted 710 to 258 to retain the church's stand.

The Rev. Merlin J. Ackerson of Mason City, Iowa, who spoke in favor of dropping the condemnation of homosexuality, said winning 40 percent of the vote to change church policy indicates the mood of the church is changing.

However, the Rev. James V. Heidinger, president of the conservative Good News movement, said his group was pleased with the vote.

"In light of the full-court press that's been on us this week, we're delighted with a 60 percent vote," he said.

The United Church of Christ is the only major Protestant denomination to permit the ordination of homosexuals.

The first lady, who like presumptive Republican presidential nominee Bob Dole is a Methodist, received a standing ovation earlier Wednesday as she called on churches to open their doors to youth, and provide them with a place to develop spiritually and perform acts of humanity.

"We are called both for personal salvation, but also for the work we must do in this world," Mrs. Clinton said.

In particular, she asked business leaders to take steps as simple as allowing parents to attend teacher conferences and for entertainment executives to ask themselves whether they would want their own kids to watch what they put on the air.

R&P Liquors
• Largest Selection of Micro-Brews in S. Amherst
• Fridge Rentals
253-9742
305 West St. • South Amherst
Minutes from Mill Valley, The Brook, & The Boulders

SOME THINGS ARE MEANT TO BE CLOSED
YOUR MIND ISN'T ONE OF THEM.

MDA has shown how valuable people with disabilities are to society. Talent, ability and desire are more important than strength of a person's muscles. The barrier these people can't overcome is a closed mind. Keep yours open.
1-800-572-1717
MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY ASSOCIATION

Getting High on Getting Thin:
The Second of Two Workshops on Eating and Body Issues

A New Focus:
LIFE NOT FOOD
Understanding the obstacles and learning the tools to change your relationship with food.

Date: Thursday, April 25, 1996
Time: 3:30 pm to 5:00 pm
Place: Campus Center, Rm 811-15

Drop-in workshops are sponsored by University Health Services. Free and open to UMass students.
CONFIDENTIALITY ASSURED
For more info, call 549-2671 ext. 233 or 545-2337

ASIAN ACTIVITIES AT THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS PRESENTS
A WEEKLY PROGRAM SERIES: SOMETHING EVERY FRIDAY
Ventriloquist Lynn Trefzger

Bluewall Cafe • April 26th 1996 • 8pm • FREE
The Movie "Toy Story" Immediately Following Performance
"Corn Pops", "Trident" Gum, & Punch available
This series is made possible by a grant from Auxiliary Services and the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs

Position Available at the
Collegian
Circulation Manager Needed
Make good money and get good experience

4 SEASONS
RTE. 9 HADLEY 584-8174
Monday- Saturday 9:00am-11:00pm
Not Responsible for typos • Visa, Mastercard & Discover accepted

DISCOUNT LIQUORS
BEER • WINE • KEGS • ICE • CIGARS

BLUE MOON BREWING 24-12 oz. Bott. $18.99 + dep.	CATAMOUNT 24-12 oz. Bott. $17.99 + dep.	KILLIANS RED 24-12 oz. Bott. $15.99 + dep.	LABATTS 24-12 oz. Bott. $15.99 + dep.	COORS 24-12 oz. Bott. $12.99 + dep.	BEERBALLS! BUD, BUD LT., & KILLIANS $22.99 + dep	KEGS Natural Lt. $34.99 + Dep.
BUSH & LT. 30-12 oz. Cons $11.99 + dep.	RED DOG 24-16 oz. Bott. $13.99 + dep.	M.G.D. & LT. 24-12 oz. Bor Bott. $9.99 + dep.	BUD DRY 24-12 oz. Bor Bott. $9.99 + dep.	NATURAL LT/ICE 24-12 oz. Cons $8.99 + dep.		KEG OF THE WEEK! Michelob & Lt. $38.99 + Dep
MALIBU RUM $8.99 750 ml	PEACHTREE SCHNAPPS $6.99 750 ml	SOUTHERN COMFORT $8.99 750 ml	T.G.I.F. FROZEN DRINKS $10.49 1.75L	4 SEASONS VODKA $8.99 1.75L	ICE! 10 Lbs. .....$1.29 50 Lbs. .....$5.99 100 Lbs. ....$9.99 WE DELIVER! SALE THRU 5-1-96	BUD, BUT LT., BUD ICE, RED DOG, LITE, LOWENBRAU DK., MICHELOB DK. & ICE HOUSE $39.99 + Dep.
NIGHT HARVEST R.H. PHILLIPS $6.99 1.5L	LOUIS LATOUR MACON UGNY $6.99 750 ml	PAUL JABOULET RINE "PARALELLE 45" $5.99 750 ml	LETS GO! UMASS BASEBALL	CARLO ROSSI $6.99 4.0L		J.W. Dundee ..... $6.99 Saranac ..... $6.99 Sam Adams ..... $8.99 Killians Red $6.99

UMASS BASKETBALL! THANKS FOR A GREAT SEASON, AND ALL THE GREAT MEMORIES ... SOME OF OUR SIGNS 95-96!

4 SEASONS LIQUORS THAT'S RIGHT BABY! UMASS 92 KENTUCKY 82	4 SEASONS LIQUORS TURTLESOUP! UMASS 50 MARYLAND 47	4 SEASONS LIQUORS MINUTEMEN 60 EXORCISE DEMON DEACONS 46	4 SEASONS LIQUORS UMASS MINUTEMEN 65 BOSTON LOSERS 57	4 SEASONS LIQUORS MINUTEMENT HUNT OWLS AT MULLINS TONIGHT!	4 SEASONS LIQUORS MINUTEMEN 86 WALK THE DOGS HOYAS 62

Go to Israel. The ticket's on us.

Attention New Yorkers:
Israelbreak is once again providing 300* free round-trip plane tickets for students who participate in one of over 30 accredited Israel programs.
Eligible candidates are Jewish undergraduate college students:
1. Who have never before been to Israel.
2. Whose hometown is in one of New York City's five boroughs, Long Island or Westchester.
Simply stated: You pick the program you like, and we will pay for your ticket to go to Israel.
For an application and a listing of accredited programs, call Michael Schram at The Israel Department at Hillel of New York 212/496-0248 or send an e-mail at Israel.Hillel@nyu.edu
The Israel Department of Hillel at New York
*Availability is limited. Limited NEED BASED scholarships are also available. Israelbreak is under the auspices of Hillel of New York and is supported by the Israel Department of Hillel of New York and the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of New York and UJA-Federation of New York and UJA.

EMILY BEST/COLLEGIAN

I'm right behind ya'!

The women's lacrosse team drilled Vermont yesterday 11- 5, improving its record to 3-7 on the season. See tomorrow's Collegian for a complete wrap-up.

Kevin Appier says he only wants to win

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Kevin Appier says it's nothing personal. He just wants to win, and isn't sure the Kansas City front office is going about it the right way.

"I love it here. I want to play here. I just want it better here," Appier said Tuesday, after cooling off from a postgame fury the night before.

Appier's 6-2 loss to the New York Yankees Monday night was the Royals' sixth straight setback, and the righthanded ace of the staff took it out on the water cooler in an angry rage in the dugout. He was still fuming when reporters circled him after the game, in which he gave up nine hits and five runs in seven innings. Mostly, Appier was upset that the Royals, to cut their payroll, had unloaded such veterans as Greg Gagne, Gary Gaetti and Wally Joyner. The purge began last year in spring training when outfielder Brian McRae and pitcher David Cone — and their huge contracts — were virtually given away.

Cone, ironically, was the winning pitcher for the Yankees Monday night.

"The way they sold the farm, I don't think it's the best atmosphere for developing players because the guys that are developing aren't protected (in the lineup)," Appier said. "It doesn't teach them how to win, and it tears down their confidence."

The Royals, committed to developing such young players as Michael Tucker and Johnny Damon, snapped their losing skid at six games Tuesday night with a 5-2 victory over the Yankees. But, that still left them eight games under .500.

Appier made it clear he was not putting down the young players. "These guys are busting their rears," he said. "This is a great bunch of guys. I'm not getting on them at all. I love these guys. I just don't agree with the approach the front office has taken."

Manager Bob Boone said he could not fault Appier for being angry, and no doubt would have preferred keeping Cone and the other veterans to bring the young players along more gradually.

"But it's not my job to point fingers and it's not Kevin Appier's job to point fingers," he said.

Appier can be a free agent after this season.

"If they have no plans on winning, well, then I'm not interested in staying here but, hopefully, the situation is not that way and I can stay here."

Fans will love new ballpark

PHOENIX (AP) — Fans will be bringing their bikinis along with their gloves to games at the Arizona Diamondbacks new baseball stadium.

Team executives have signed a deal to put a swimming pool and heated spa into Bank One Ballpark, just beyond the outfield wall in deep right field.

The pool and spa will be leased to businesses and groups on a game-by-game basis, but fees to rent the facility have not been decided.

"It will be really, really popular with everybody for companies, it will be great for team-building and get-out-of-the-office types of things," said Scott Brubaker, the team's vice president of sales and marketing.

The pool and spa area will accommodate about 35 people. The team released the first conceptual drawing of the swimming area Tuesday. The suite will include a pool with a swim-up bar, a heated spa, five waterfalls, a catered barbecue area, a tanning deck and lounge chairs.

The area near it will be landscaped with a lawn, flowers and palm trees.

Plans also call for an "exploding" water fountain that will shoot water 25 feet in the air whenever a Diamondbacks player knocks a home run ball into the drink.

Home plate will be about 405 feet away, and the swimming area will take the place of about 240 seats.

The pool will be the only one in the major leagues when the ballpark opens in time for the 1998 season. The $300 million retractable-dome stadium is under construction in downtown Phoenix. Joe Garagiola Jr., the Diamondbacks' general manager, was not enthusiastic about the idea at first.

Bulls hopes may hinge on Rodman's attitude

By Rick Gano
Associated Press

CHICAGO — The hair colors, the tattoos, the body piercing. They're all part of the Dennis Rodman image, one he's marketed heavily and cultivated greatly since joining the Chicago Bulls. But there's the other side to the NBA's best rebounder and that's what the Bulls don't want to see in this, the most emotional time of the season.

No head-butting please, no outbursts against officials, no technical fouls or ejections, and especially no suspensions as the Bulls try to top off the NBA's best-ever regular season with another title.

As a team, the Bulls are perhaps the best-paid support group ever assembled. And they'll need to stay that way to help Rodman, whose postseason antics a year ago — arguing with his coach and refusing to join team huddles — hurt San Antonio's chances for a championship.

"I think they understand as a team that we have to provide support for themselves and for each other," Bulls coach Phil Jackson said Wednesday after a long practice for Friday's playoff opener against Miami.

"And Dennis, of course, needs that and they need to rely on Dennis staying away from the officials first and not trying to bait them secondly. If there is a confrontation and situation, Luc (Longley) and the centers are supposed to step in front of him and keep him at bay."

Rodman, who drew a six-game suspension this season for head-butting an official during a game in New Jersey, wasn't talking Wednesday except for a TV show he was taping.

Earlier, he said he expected the Heat and coach Pat Riley to try and rile him up.

"Pat Riley's going to do all he can to send someone purposely out there to beat me up and to get me to blow up. But it's not going to happen," Rodman promised after the season finale against Washington.

Riley insists that's not part of his plan, even though when the Heat dealt the Bulls one of their 10 losses, Rodman became frustrated by Miami's tough efforts in blocking him off under the basket and also with the officiating.

"They're assuming something that's simply not true," said Riley. "We're working very hard to keep him off the boards, very hard. He's a very physical player. He shouldn't be talking about that stuff as much as he pushes and shoves and leans."

The Heat's effort against Rodman in that earlier game was one of the featured areas of a lengthy film session Wednesday. When Rodman got frustrated during that loss, Jackson pulled him early and he managed only 11 rebounds.

"Physically face-guarding him, wrapping him up and just basically attacking him on the weak side of the boards... putting pressure on him," Jackson said.

"He's going to have to fight his way through it and we talked about it."

Heat center-forward Chris Gatling said Miami just wants to make sure it knows where Rodman is when a shot goes up.

"We do have a plus because he's not in good eyes with the refs, so we might be able to pick up calls, but we can't rely on that," Gatling said.

Since returning to the Bulls on April 2 after his suspension for headbutting, Rodman, who's claimed that some officials are picking on him, has been well-behaved.

"He realized it was a no-win situation," said Bulls backup center James Edwards. Rodman's teammate from championship years in Detroit.

"He finally realized that the refs are going to have the final say. People think he's dumb, but he's a smart guy."

NBA governors OK sale

NEW YORK (AP) — The NBA Board of Governors on Wednesday officially approved the sale of the Philadelphia 76ers by Harold Katz to telecommunications giant Comcast Corp., a month after the papers were signed.

New president Pat Croce, whose team just completed its NBA record sixth-straight season on the decline, promised to resurrect the franchise.

"Everyone who really knows me knows I don't go into this to lose," he said. "I want everybody in the city of Philadelphia and the suburbs to be proud of our Sixers."do now," he laughed.

Patriots release rights to Nebraska player charged in assault, rape

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — The New England Patriots Wednesday released their rights to fifth-round draft pick Christian Peter, saying his off-the-field behavior was unacceptable.

Peter, a defensive tackle from Nebraska, faces charges that he grabbed a woman by the throat in a bar following a team banquet. Another woman claims in a sex discrimination suit that Peter raped her in 1991.

"Unfortunately, we did not have information regarding Christian Peter's record at the time we made our draft selection," said Bobby Grier, the Patriots' player personnel director.

Grier said the team "concluded this behavior is incompatible with our organization's standards of acceptable conduct." He said Peter had allegedly "showed conduct which our organization found to be unacceptable, specifically criminal violence against women."

The criminal record of the 6-foot-3, 304-pound Peter was the subject of a story in Sports Illustrated of March 18.

He pleaded guilty in 1994 to third-degree assault of Natalie Kuijvenhoven, a former Miss Nebraska, and served 18 months' probation. He also has been arrested for disturbing the peace, trespassing, urinating in public, refusing to comply with the order of a policeman and third-degree assault for threatening to kill a parking attendant.

Peter also will be tried for third-degree assault in the bar incident, which allegedly occurred March 6. If convicted, he faces three months in jail and a $500 fine. Peter also is named, along with the university, in a federal sex discrimination suit filed by a woman who claims he raped her in 1991.

The woman, Katherine Redmond, says Peter raped her twice. She did not report the incident for two years. Another woman has alleged that Peter sexually assaulted her in 1993, although no charges were brought.

Minnesota beats Tigers in record–setting slugfest

DETROIT (AP) — Minnesota's Tom Kelly was apologizing for a record-setting slugfest Wednesday in Tiger Stadium. And he was the winning manager.

Greg Myers and Paul Molitor each had five RBIs Wednesday as the Twins set a team record for runs and routed the Detroit Tigers 24-11.

It was the most runs against the Tigers in 84 years, matching the mark set in a 24-2 loss to the Philadelphia Athletics on May 18, 1912, when Detroit's regular players, angered that Ty Cobb had been suspended, went on strike, forcing the team to use players from semipro teams and St. Joseph's College.

Minnesota, which outhit Detroit 19-14, blew a 7-2 lead, falling behind 10-7 in the fourth before rallying. The Twins' previous high for runs was in a 21-7 win over Detroit on June 4, 1994.

But Kelly wasn't very happy about it.

"That wasn't very pretty, and all I can do is apologize to the fans in the stands who sat through that so-called exhibition of major league baseball," he said. "The only thing good about that game was that we won."

The teams scored the most runs in a major league game since Philadelphia beat the Chicago Cubs 23-22 on May 17, 1979.

It was the most runs scored in an American League game since Chicago beat Boston 22-13 on May 31, 1970.

The total also set a record in Detroit, topping the 31 scored in the Tigers' 16-15 win over Chicago on June 2, 1925.

Tigers manager Buddy Bell, ejected for the first time this season, said his team's seventh straight loss was an embarrassment.

"I think that's a pretty good word, and I have as much to do with this as anyone," Bell said. "It's my job to find the right buttons and push them."

Myers set a career high for RBIs with a run-scoring single in the first, an RBI-double in the sixth, a sacrifice fly in the seventh and a two-run single in the eighth.

"It was just one of those days when everything fell in for us," Myers said. "In the gaps, down the line, everything." Molitor had an RBI-groundout in the first, a three-run homer in the third and an RBI-triple in the eighth. It was the fourth five-RBI game of his career but first since 1981.

"I know I did it my second game in the big leagues," Molitor said. "I don't remember after that."

Chip Hale hit a three-run homer in the eighth and Dave Hollins hit a solo homer for the Twins.

Mark Lewis homered twice and drove in four runs for Detroit. Eddie Williams also homered for the Tigers.

"We have to stay positive; we have to keep going," Williams said. "We're big-league ballplayers and a lot of us have been kicked in the face before."

Bell was ejected by plate umpire Mark Johnson after arguing a called strike against Lewis in the sixth. Johnson came over to the Tiger dugout before giving Bell the thumb.

"I think he came over with the idea of ejecting somebody," Bell said. "That's only the second time I've been on the field this year."

Erick Bennett (1-0), the third Twins pitcher, gave up two runs and three hits in 1 1-3 innings.

Randy Veres (0-2) was the third of Detroit's seven pitchers and gave up three runs in 1 1-3 innings.

With Detroit leading 10-7 in the fifth, Scott Stahoviak drove in three runs with a bases loaded double, and Stahoviak scored when catcher John Flaherty's attempt to throw him out at third sailed into left field for an error.

Minnesota increased its lead to 14-10 in the sixth on run-scoring singles by Marty Cordova and Pat Meares, and Myers' RBI-double.

Molitor tripled in a run and scored on Myers' sacrifice fly in the seventh. Myers' two-run single highlighted a five-run eighth and Hale homered in the ninth.

"It was just one of those games where you sit back and shake your head," Molitor said. "This park's conducive to hitting with the short porches and the wind blowing out, but you never expect something like that."

After Minnesota took a 7-2 lead, the first six Tigers got hits in the bottom of third and all six scored.

Bobby Higginson doubled in a run, Williams hit a three-run homer, Flaherty hit an RBI double and Tim Hyers hit a sacrifice fly. Lewis homered in the fourth for a 10-7 lead.

Notes: Tigers starter Clint Sodowsky failed to get out of the second inning for his second straight start, allowing five runs in 1 1-3 innings. His ERA rose to 9.78. In his previous start at Seattle on April 18, Sodowsky was knocked out without retiring a batter in a six-run second... Chuck Knoblauch left in the third with a bruised right upper back after being hit with a pitch by Sodowsky. His status is day-to-day... The homers by Hollins and Hale's homer gave the Twins 16 left-handed home runs this season, surpassing the 15 they hit in all of 1995.

Pirates 6, Marlins 3

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Denny Neagle, off to his second straight strong start, limited Florida to two runs in 7 2-3 innings and Jeff King hit a two-run double to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates past the Marlins 6-3 Wednesday night.

Neagle (2-1) gave up six hits and got all but four of his outs on either ground balls (13) or strikeouts (8) while lowering his ERA to 1.97 ERA in two starts against Florida. The Marlins are an NL-worst 8-14 and have lost three of four to Pittsburgh.

The left-handed Neagle, who started 9-4 last season before finishing 13-8, is 2-0 with a 1.14 ERA over his last three starts. He beat Montreal 5-2 with a complete game April 14 before shutting out the Expos over seven innings last Friday.

Neagle, 7-1 in 15 starts at Three Rivers Stadium over the last two seasons, helped himself by starting the Pirates' three-run third inning with a single off Pat Rapp (0-3). Rapp gave up four runs and seven hits in 5 1-3 innings.

Mike Kingery and Al Martin singled to make it 1-0, and King followed with a two-run double. King went 2-for-4 and is hitting .356 in his last 15 games after starting the season 2-for-20. Jay Bell chased Rapp with a run-scoring double in the sixth that made it 4-1. Bell, who doubled to start a two-run eighth, went 3-for-5 with two doubles after starting the game in a 1-for-20 slump.

Neagle didn't allow a hit until Kyle Abbott tripled with one out in the fourth and scored on Gary Sheffield's groundout. Chuck Johnson singled and Jesus Tavarez doubled to open the eighth. But Neagle got pinch-hitter Andre Dawson to pop up and Quilvio Veras on a run-scoring grounder, and Jon Lieber came on to retire Kyle Abbott on a routine fly.

Gary Sheffield was 1-for-15 against Pittsburgh this year before leading off the ninth with his 10th homer off Dan Miceli.

The Marlins have lost their last seven in Pittsburgh and are 1-15 in Three Rivers Stadium since joining the NL in 1993. Notes: Now that John Ericks (0-3) has been designated for assignment, every Pittsburgh starter has an ERA of 3.18 or less... The Pirates are 4-0 when their opponent does not homer... Pittsburgh is 10-11 compared to 8-13 a season ago... Second baseman Carlos Garcia missed his seventh consecutive game with tightness in his right hamstring... King is batting .400 (6-15) with runners in scoring position.

Angels 4, Brewers 3

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Jim Edmonds homered and collected his eighth multiple-hit game as the California Angels won their seventh straight, 4-3 over the Milwaukee Brewers Wednesday night.

Angels starter Scott Sanderson, who gave up two earned runs on seven hits, left the game in the fourth inning after straining his right groin while making a pitch.

California reliever Shawn Boskie (1-0), who gave up one run and three hits in 3 1-3 innings, took a line drive off his left forearm in the seventh and one batter later was replaced by Mike Eichhorn, who walked Greg Vaughn to load the bases.

John Jaha hit into a fielder's choice, scoring one run to make it 4-3, but Eichhorn got Jose Valentin on a grounder to second base to end the inning.

Troy Percival pitched the ninth for his major-league leading eighth save.

Milwaukee stranded 10 runners, four of them at third.

Brewers right-hander Ben McDonald (3-1), who was cleared to start after a medical examination on his tight right shoulder, surrendered four earned runs and five hits in five innings. He left after giving up three straight hits in the sixth. All three runners scored to put California ahead 4-2.

Rands Velarde ran into third base coach Rick Burleson rounding the bag on Edmonds' double in the sixth. He then scored on Tim Salmon's single to tie it at 2 and chase McDonald.

Chili Davis greeted Kevin Wickander with an RBI double and Garret Anderson added a sacrifice fly to make it 4-2.

Until the sixth, the Angels were victims of sensational Milwaukee defense.

Center fielder David Hulse made two spectacular plays in the third. After robbing Jorge Fabregas with a diving catch, Hulse made a running grab of Salmon's bases-loaded flyball and threw out Gary Disarcina on a one-hopper to the plate.

Edmonds' solo homer in the first inning put California ahead 1-0. Vaughn's RBI single tied it in the bottom of the first, and Jeff Cirillo's RBI groundout in the second made it 2-1.

Sanderson hurt himself on a pitch that Matt Mieske hit into the right field corner for a leadoff double.

Notes: Five of the Brewers' first eight batters singled off Sanderson, but he stranded three of them. The Angels didn't know how long Sanderson will be sidelined. He was activated on April 13 after beginning the season on the DL with an inflamed joint in his throwing shoulder. Edmond's homer was the first one off McDonald since July 19, 1995, a span of 37 innings.

White Sox 2, Mariners 1

CHICAGO (AP) — Wilson Alvarez allowed just two hits — both singles — over eight innings Wednesday night to lead the Chicago White Sox a 2-1 win over the Seattle Mariners.

Darrren Lewis singled home the go ahead run in the seventh inning for the White Sox, who won their third straight.

Seattle managed only singles by Edgar Martinez and Andy Sheets in the fifth off Alvarez (1-2), who struck out six and walked four in his 117-pitch outing.

Roberto Hernandez pitched the ninth for his sixth save. Chris Bosio (2-1) allowed two runs and five hits in seven innings.

POP QUIZ
Q: What Can 99¢ Buy?
A:
A Baked Potato with butter & sour cream
the hatch

The Top Ten Reasons to Use the UHS Eye Care Program and Contact Lens Service
1 We have a comprehensive contact lens program
2 Emergency eye care delivered at UHS, or a covered benefit if you are a student plan member.
3 Savings on eyeglasses from participating opticians are available if you are a student and have a complete optometry examination at UHS.
4 We can obtain almost any contact lens in the U.S.A.
5 On-site contact lens specialist.
6 Free sample start-up contact lens solutions
7 Contact lenses can be mailed directly to you, free postage for normal delivery.
8 Same day replacement of contact lenses, in many cases, due to our large in-house inventory.
9 We take great pride in being able to fit many people who have had difficulty in the past wearing contact lenses.
10 Convenient hours and location.
Patient feedback of those who have used the UHS Eye Program over 20 years has been consistently excellent.
"I invite you to use the Eye Services at UHS."
University Health Services • 549-2671 X244

Come Enjoy our all new delicious BUFFET
Over 20 Different Items To Choose
Served 7 Days A Week Lunch & Dinner
Lunch Buffet • $5.95
Dinner Buffet • $8.95
Soups • Entrees • Appetizers
Regular Lunch and Dinner Menus Always Available • Full Liquor License
Start Planning for Graduation Day
CHINA DYNASTY
RESTAURANT AND LOUNGE
Delivery, Pay Delivery Express 549-0077
Route 9 & University Drive in Amherst
256-8800
OPEN DAILY: 11:30 AM-10 PM - FRI. & SAT. TILL 11 PM - SUN 12-10 PM

GRADUATION VIDEO

Only $30.00!!
Orders being taken now!!
Call 545-1283 • UVC-TV 19

When Appearance Counts, Count on Jonathan Reid
for a great selection of men's suits and knowledgeable, professional service
Suit Sale, 40% Off or More!
Jonathan Reid
The Men's Store
Hampshire Mall
Hadley, MA
586-5302

Lincoln Real Estate
Has the best selection of 1, 2, & 3 bedroom Apartments In The Center Of Town
with gas heat
Gilreath Manor Condos
on Hobart Lane
• 3 Bedroom
• 1 1/2 Baths
• Heated Basement
• New Gas Heat & Hot water
• 1/2 mile to campus
• On Bus Route
Showings Start in April
for June or September Occupancy!
Lincoln Real Estate • 25 N. Pleasant St. • 253-7879

We Deliver
Kai Chi
To UMass
Chinese-American Cuisine Restaurant & Bar
Mt. Farms Mall, Rt. 9 Hadley • 586-2774
Open Sun-Thurs 12-11 pm
Fri-Sat 12-3 am
Enjoy HALF PRICE APPETIZERS
9 pm - Close • 7 Days a Week
31 Selections!
Ex. Pu Pu (for 2) Reg. $11.99 Now $5.99
No other promos apply • EAT IN ONLY

RELAX?
FORGET IT!
PLAY HARD TO STAY HARD
JOIN THE BEST
HAMPSHIRE FITNESS
90 GATEHOUSE ROAD
256-6446

Amherst Sunshine Car Wash
Automatic Wash/Wax
Open Daily
Self-Service Bays
Open 24 Hours
Soap/Rinse/Wash
Bubble Brush
Engine De-Greaser
VACUUM CLEANERS
HILL'S HANGERS
381 College Street (Rt. 9 East) Amherst

Tons of Records!
• Used CD's & Tapes Buy & Trade
• Top Titles - Your Favorite Artists and Obscure & Hard to Find Recordings
Discoveries

Our sales will keep you feeding your "piggy" with more than just pennies
LIQUORS 44
Don't Drink and Drive
BEERS WINES LIQUORS
GENUINE DRAFT REGULAR & LIGHT CASE OF 24-12 OZ. BAR BOTTLES $9.99 + DEP.
HEINEKEN & AMSTEL LIGHT 12 PK. CAN $9.99 + DEP.
HARPOON I.P.A. 12 PK. BOTTLE $8.99 + DEP.
NATURAL LIGHT & ICE CASE OF 2-12 PK. CANS $8.99 + DEP.
MICHELOB ULTRA REGULAR & LIGHT 18-12 OZ. CANS $9.49 + DEP.
1/2 KEGS BUD, BUD LIGHT, BUD ICE, MICHELOB, MICHELOB LIGHT, MICHELOB DARK, LITE, MILLER BEER, RED DOG, ICEHOUSE $39.99 + DEP.
WINE OF THE MONTH
C.K. MONDAVI CHARDONNAY & CABERNET SAUVIGNON 750 ML $4.99
ALMADEN 5 LT BAG-IN-A-BOX CHABLIS, RHINE, BURGUNDY, GOLDEN, BLUSH, WHT GRENACHE SALE $7.99 MAIL IN REBATE -$1.50 FINAL COST $6.49
CORBETT CANYON CHARDONNAY, MERLOT, CABERNET SAUVIGNON 1.5L $6.99
KENDALL-JACKSON VINTNER CHARDONNAY 750 ML $8.99
SUTTER HOME WHITE ZINFANDEL 1.5L $6.49
ABSOLUT VODKA 750 ML $10.99
CANADIAN CLUB 1.75L SALE $16.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$5.00 FINAL COST $11.49
SOUTHERN COMFORT 1.75 L SALE $15.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$3.00 FINAL COST $12.49
COSSACK VODKA 1.75L SALE $9.49 MAIL IN REBATE -$2.00 FINAL COST $7.49
GORDON'S GIN 1.75L SALE $12.99 MAIL IN REBATE -$3.00 FINAL COST $9.99
We Accept Cans and Bottles for Redemption
AT THE STOP & SHOP PLAZA
HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
NORTHAMPTON 238 King Street 586-3007
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln Street 534-4555
SALE PRICES THURS. 4/25/96 THRU WEDS. 5/1/96
NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

Chicken Combos
2 or 3 pieces of broasted chicken, ranch potatoes, cole slaw & a roll starting at $3.50
the hatch

Puffton Village – Your First Choice
1, 2 and 3 bedroom apartments.
Featuring:
Newly renovated units that include:
• New appliances
• New Carpeting
• New kitchen cabinets & counter tops
• Central air conditioners
Rents starting at $590 per month
or
Traditional units that are:
• Fully applianced
• Freshly painted
• Carpeted/Tiled Floors
• Central Air conditioned
Rents starting at $525 per month
All rents include Heat, Hot Water & Cooking Gas and use of an olympic size pool, 5 tennis courts, basketball court, laundry rooms and on-site parking.
Now accepting rental applications for summer and fall. Call today 549-0145

Puffton Village Apartments • 1040 North Pleasant St., Amherst, Mass

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
Discount Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441
Featuring, "Icehouse" $13.99 cse. (bots or cans)
S.S.P. VODKA $8.99 1.75 liter
ABSOLUT 80° $11.49 750 ml
Lionhead "Pilsner" $8.99 cse bots
"The 6/PK. Bonanza "Continues
Sam Adams- Lager, Ale, Scotch, Porter, Lightship & "Winter"!
Shipyard- Blue Fin Stout, Moose Brown, Expert Ale & "Thumper"!
Brooklyn- The Hearty Lager and the "infamous" Brown Ale
Brewery Hill- Raspberry, Honey Amber, & Hearty Black & Tan!
Saranac- Amber, Chocolate, Pale Ale, & Black & Tan!
Mix/Match "two" 6/Pks . . . $9.95
Ritter "First" Pilsner (German) $3.99 /ea.
J. Lohr Chardonnay $7.99 750 ml
All Beers Plus Deposit OPEN 9:00AM - 11:00PM VISA/MASTERCARD •Delivery Available•

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals, this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or mistepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ACTIVITIES

SOFTBALL
Fomatoa needed for coed softball team. Must live in the area this summer. Chris 665-0119

ANIMALS FOR SALE

Now offering Reptiles, Exotic Small Mammals & Large Birds. Prices better than pet stores. Call/an for info. Pagent 367-7164

ANNOUNCEMENTS

KAI CHI
Daliveering Sunday thru Thursday 12 noon and every Friday and Saturday 10 am. 549-1133

Babysitting for Panhellenic Scholarship Fund. Sat. 4/27 12-6 at Sigma Delta Tau. $7 at Sigma Kappa, and Sun. 4/28 11-5 at Alpha Gam Omega. Please bring neces. clothes to accomodate your child's needs (diapers etc.). $4.00/hr. For more information call 546-3056.

RUSH IGU
All University Women are invited to attend open Rush on April 25, 26, 29 and 30th at 8pm. For info or rides call 549-1114

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Great location uptown! 3 bedrooms + room. Available after June 1. 549-9113

Spacious two bedroom apartment for rent. Available June 1st. $700/month (negotiable) 549-6196. Call 253-1369

Sublet or take over lease. Share 2 bdrm with grad student. One bus line. 256-4014

3 Bedroom Puffton avail June 1. $825 +util/water included. Call 549-9814

Spacious, newly renovated 2 bedroom apartment for rent. June 1st to Aug. 31st. Call 549-7436 for more info

441 Main Street - 1 BDR heat incl. 1 bath. Call

2 Bedroom Apt. First Floor. $535 + gas heat. Private laundry. 5 min to UMass. Available 5/1. 549-4740

3 Bedroom renovated Puffton. 2 bath. Video and hot water incl. Take for summer, given for Fall. Call 549-8144

Two Bedroom Apartment on bus route. Heat and water included $660/ m. Bill not incl.

2 Bedroom Brandywine apartment available including heat, water, start June or August

4 Bedroom flats. On bus route. Available June 1 with option to take over lease. Heat, Water incl. On bus line. call 253-1689.

Make $3-5,000 this summer. Paint exterior of homes with college students. Wellesley, Natick, Weston area. Please page Ed Pontz at 617 456 6031.

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT

Looking for a few energetic people to help in our office. Must have good phone skills. Full time, when school ends. Great resume material. $7.50/HR. call 1 800 501 5043. Natick Area.

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT

Truck drivers wanted for summer work. Approx. 11 days in mid June & additional 11 days in mid August. Work 1 or both sessions. Must drive automatic & have experience with 18 or larger truck. $105-115/day. call 1 800 501 4243

AUTO FOR SALE

Subaru GL Hatchback 1989 4WD, recently imported, new clutch, all main. repairs done, Only $1,800, includes emissions, 367-2499 evenings

1987 Chevy Nova Hatchback, 109k, 25 mpg, $1800. Reliable. 253-4181

87 Nissan Sentra 109k 5 speed good engine but rusty body. $1100. Call Thomas 549-8764

90 Mitsubishi Mirage. 76k Manual, good condition. $2,550. Call Eric 549-8675

1988 Chevy Nova - 100,000 miles. Well maintained. In good condition. $1,000. Call Nancy up until 11pm. 549-1755

Chevrolet Caprice Classic 1985 with state inspection. $1500 or best offer call Andreas 549-1758

Jeep Cherokee 4X4. 5 speed 1986. Great in the snow or on the beach. Has one a call so you can come look at the monster. Great deal. Call Paul at 549-5766

EMPLOYMENT

Kitchen Manager/Head Cook for Hillel Kosher Kitchen beginning September 1996. Apply now! Contact Hillel office at 549-1160.

LEADERS NEEDED Summer Teenage Bicycling Trips to Canada, Europe, Mexico, & USA. Ages 15-18. Minimum 4 wk. time commitment. Salary plus expenses paid. STUDENT HOSTELING PROGRAM Ashfield, MA (413) 628-3341 800-343-6131

If you could redo your own early education, how would it be? Solar wanted for Learning 3 year program now forming enroll on early learning. Materials and guidance with emphasis on team. Enthusiasm and involvement in learning are required. Expenses plus stipend apartment. Interested candidates please send letter with pertinent thoughts and qualifications to: P.O. Box 162, Laurel, MD 20725

Get paid while you learn WMUA 91.1 FM student radio at UMass is looking to hire 12 motivated undergrads for the 1996-97 academic year. Learn experience at one of the most dynamic media organizations in Western Mass. Applications are available at WMUA 105 Campus Center. Deadline 4/26. Interviews 4/27. Call 545-2876 for more information.

Now Hiring. Are you starving around Amherst for the summer? If so, TACO! inc is looking part time afternoon & evening telemarketers. Hours available: Sun-Thurs 2-5pm & 5-9pm. Earn $6.88/hr plus bonuses. Enjoy the Summer while earning cash. Call Ms. Miranda 800-879-4777

5 Cruise Ships Hiring! Students needed! $$$ & Free Travel! (Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii - Seasonal/Permanent. No Exper. Necessary. GDE 919-929-4398 ext. F1098

Make $3-5,000 this summer. Paint exterior of homes with college students. Wellesley, Natick, Weston area. Please page Ed Pontz at 617 456 6031.

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT

Looking for a few energetic people to help in our office. Must have good phone skills. Full time, when school ends. Great resume material. $7.50/HR. call 1 800 501 5043. Natick Area.

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT

Truck drivers wanted for summer work. Approx. 11 days in mid June & additional 11 days in mid August. Work 1 or both sessions. Must drive automatic & have experience with 18 or larger truck. $105-115/day. call 1 800 501 4243

EMPLOYMENT

Windows Software Taxtar Graphic Software Co. Seeks part-time quality assurance tester. Applicants must have experience using Software, Windows 3.1 and Windows 95 on a variety of hardware configurations. Macintosh 2D and 3D Graphic Experience preferred but not required. Send Cover letter and Resume to: Personal Director, Specialized International 7 Pomasky Lane, Amherst, MA 01002. No phone calls or walk ins please.

Summer Painting Jobs. College Pro Painters up to $9/hr. In Amherst-Northampton. Make $$ in the sun! Call Kerry 546-7425 or Charlie 549-2680

National Parks Hiring. Positions are now available at National Parks, Forests & Wildlife Preserves. Excellent benefits & bonuses! Call 1 206 971 3620 ext. N9401 4

Summer Painters hiring for Boston and Hartford. Will train completely. Earn $6-$10/hr. Call N.E. Collegiate Painters at 800-569-9899

Eastern Europe Jobs - Teach basic conversational English in Prague, Budapest or Krakow. No teaching certificate or Eastern European Languages required. Inexpensive room and board and other benefits for info call 206-971-3680 ext. K5077

Tropical Resorts Hiring Students needed for Caribbean / Lease positions available on daily cleaning. Materials and guidance with emphasis on team. Enthusiasm and involvement in learning are required. Expenses plus stipend apartment. Interested candidates please send letter with pertinent thoughts and qualifications to: P.O. Box 162, Laurel, MD 20725

International Employment - Earn up to $25-$45/hour teaching basic conversational English in Japan, Taiwan, or S. Korea. No teaching background or Asian languages required. For info call (206) 971-3570 ext. J60014

American All Students! Over $6 Billion in public and private sector grants & scholarships now available. All students are eligible. Let us help. For more info call 1 800 263 6495 ext F9703

FOR RENT

Summer Room Rentals available in Hillel House. Further information from Hillel House Office 388 N. Pleasant Street, 549-7110

Take over my Lease for spacious 2 bed room. $550. Call 549-7581

3 Bedroom Puffton - Renovated, near bus and laundry, available June 1. Call 549-5896

Spacious, Bright 3Bdr/2bath Mill Valley Apt June 1 lease, washer/dryer hookup, Patio call soon! 253-0380

1 Bdrm Apt Available 6/1 to take over lease. Hot Water incl. On bus line call 253-1689.

2 Bedroom Apt. on Colonial Village. Pay $750 for one bedroom. Have the other one free (July 15-Aug 31). 256-8941.

FOR SALE

Great Deal!
Ibanez 540s w/ fast action neck
Marshall 80 watt combo amp
Rockman chorus delay machine
Headphone pocket rocket
Cables and patch cords
Will sell separate
$750 or BO. Call Erik 256-3569

FOR SALE

Sega Saturn for sale. Includes one core system / controllers, Virtua Fighter, Virtua Cop, NHL All Star Hockey, Pebble Beach Golf, Panzer Dragon, and Myst. If interested call Dave with best offer at 549-9975.

"House Sale" Everything must go! Call Christina 253-1569. Couches, rugs, tables, desk etc.

Shoei Motorcycle Helmets. One black one red. Brand New. $175.00 each. Call Sara 549-9205.

2 Full Mattresses and Boxsprings with frames. $50 each or B.O. Call 253-4499

Bike For Sale 10 gear, almost new. $70. Call 549-7961

Pawarmac 6700/66 6/250 Ram Doubler installed sys / 5.1 macos updater 4 x cd graphic softwares 244 fonts, tons of control panels/ extensions, games, no key board or monitor 4 sale. cd rom $1,150 call Dewey @ 6-0429.

Mountain Bike for sale. Mongoose threshold Shimano parts. Trek system 2 with gel seat only 1 yr old $200 or B/O Megan 549-4198

P100 32-mega RAM 17 inch digital monitor 28k modem 850m hard drive loaded with software. $1400.00 Call Fred 549-8969

Laptop Computers Cheap. Great WP all under 100. Call 6-0540

MUSCIANS

Bassist Wanted to form band. Influences: Rage, Nirvana, Alice etc. Call Rich 256-1751

MISCELLANEOUS

The Gathering
HTTP://www.takeme.com Scholarships, academic & career resources, internships, sports news, entertainment, travel, music, debates and 1,000's of links!

Good hama needed for six year old spayed female Bassett Hound. Please call Robin 323-8582

PERSONALS

SHAUN & MICHELLE - Break a leg on your last dancing recital here at UMass! Good luck & we'll all be there Saturday night! We love you guys. Love your 6 other roommates - Lori, Terri, Heather, Jill, Carolyn & Kristen & Honeine!

The road to victory, they say is rough, and merely getting there should be enough. But why stop there? You can't just give in, you're there for a reason, you came here to win. That's just what we offer: a chance to be proud to play games, win prizes, and hang with a crowd. At the pond you will find us with music and fun. On April 25th come play in the sun. We'll be waiting for you and saving your place. The Iorero Olympic Grid Medal Challenge is what you will face.

RCG R.A.S You are the best!

ROOM FOR RENT

One Bdrm in 2 Bdrm fully furnished apt in house. Nice, clean, close to campus & bus. Great yard & parking. $300/month + 1/2 utilities. Available now. 253-2523

Mamogua Rooms For Rent. $375. $325 includes heat & hot water. On bus/w/D. No smoke, no pets. Call John/ 367-9608

ROOM FOR RENT

Nice Rooms in new house. $275 + on Putters Pond. Call Sara 549-9205.

ROOMMATE WANTED

Looking for 2 people to share a room in 7 bdr. townhouse. 1 yr lease starting June 1st. I have a cat and a dog. If interested call Becky 549-6398.

Seeking 1 male to share 2 BR apt. by Putter's Pond. 11 month lease starts 6/1. $750/mo. Call 549-1708.

Great House on Sunset. 2 bedrooms left. Room with 4 others. Laundry. 3 bathrooms, parking, walking distance to campus and center of Amherst. Call 546-1078 for more info.

Looking for Housing. Roommate wanted in the New York area this Summer. Easygoing, lovable. Call soon. Jennifer 546-3511.

Looking for 1 or 2 females to share 3BR apartment on Alpine Commons for Summer only. On bus route. Price negotiable. Heat included. For more info call Becky at 546-4181.

3 BDR in 4 BDR Apt. on bus Rt. Sublet with option to rent in Fall. Call 253-7741.

SERVICES

Pregnant? Need Help? Call Birthright of Amherst Area for free testing and caring assistance. 549-1906.

SPECIAL

SICK OF THE DORMS?
University approved off campus housing available for all University women including freshmen and sophomores. Close to campus, free laundry, cable. Optional meal plan. For more info call 549-7845.

SUMMER SUBLET

Looking for one to four people to sublease Mill Valley apartment. May 15 or June 1 to August 31. Call Jess A.S.A.P. 253-1792.

CRESTVIEW APT. 1 furnished room in 2 bedroom apt. 5 minute walk to campus. $350/mon. neg. Call 549-2598.

Sublet with option to take over lease. Practically on campus. 2 minutes from Amherst Ctr. Cheap double room in big house. Call 549-8017.

South Amherst 2 BR apt. avail. June 1-Aug 31. $540/mo. Call 256-4788.

2 Woman Needed to share room in 3 bdr. apt. Great place, price, location 549-6017.

Spacious 2 bedroom avail. 6/1. Must see. Cheap!!! 253-1532.

Amherst - Live in Graduate Students Cheap! $220/month (includes heat & cable) 1 BR/3BR apartment. Call Gabe at 253-0217.

Female Wanted to share bedroom w/other female starting June1 $88/month 7/1-9/1 room to yourself 256-6179 Jason

1 Room in 2 bedroom Apt. Avail 6/1 with possible fall option. $725/mo. On bus line. 10 minutes to UMass. Call 665-0092.

2 Bedroom Apt. at Brandywine Available 6/1. Price negotiable. Call 549-8857.

One room Puffton apt. for Summer sublet. Call Fred 549-8969.

2 BdRm Brandywine Apt. Heat/hot water incl. Call 549-0528.

Bedroom in Presidential Apts. Walking distance. Call 549-4042.

TO SUBLET

Puffton Sublet 1 room in a 3 bdr apt for summer. $250/month, partially furnished call Bernie 549-8969.

TRAVEL

Looking for Caravan type companion for cross-country trip this Summer. My Car, Mine. Trip, P.O. Box 2688, Amherst, MA 01004.

Language Courses International Total Immersion Courses in Mexico, Ecuador, Costa Rica, Spain, France, Italy, Germany, Austria, and Quebec. World renowned schools. Homestays. Short and long term programs. Call 800-597-3773. Or visit UMass Representative Elinor at 546-2082.

EUROPE $169 O/W
Cando Mex $189 R/T
If you can beat these prices start your own airline!
Aer Tech. LTD
413-567-0001

Come Join In The Adventure!! Come White Water Rafting with UMSC & UMGC! May 31 - June 7. Only $199! Call us @ 5-3437

SUMMER SUBLET

$150 Reward! 2 BdRm Apt. Free AC Hot Water. Pool. Available June 1st. Call 549-8557.

2 Bedroom Apt. on Amity St. Heat, hot water included, sleeps four people. $750/mo. Call 549-8202.

Condos Behind BayBank - two minute walk to campus or uptown. 2 5 bath, skylights, dishwasher, wall to wall carpeting, nicest place in area. Price negotiable call Jason 549-4178.

2 Rooms available in 4 bedroom house in N. Amherst. $270/mo. including water. call 549-5995, anytime between 11 to 11.

Brandywine Apts - 2 Bedrooms, take over our lease with Fall option. Call 549-5747.

Boulders summer sublet two bedrooms furnished on bus line avail. June 1st call 253-7682.

1 Room in 2 bedroom Apt. Avail 6/1 with possible fall option. $725/mo. On bus line. 10 minutes to UMass. Call 665-0092.

2 Bedroom Apt. at Brandywine Available 6/1. Price negotiable. Call 549-8857.

One room Puffton apt. for Summer sublet. Call Fred 549-8969.

2 BdRm Brandywine Apt. Heat/hot water incl. Call 549-0528.

Bedroom in Presidential Apts. Walking distance. Call 549-4042.

TO SUBLET

Puffton Sublet 1 room in a 3 bdr apt for summer. $250/month, partially furnished call Bernie 549-8969.

TRAVEL

Looking for Caravan type companion for cross-country trip this Summer. My Car, Mine. Trip, P.O. Box 2688, Amherst, MA 01004.

Language Courses International Total Immersion Courses in Mexico, Ecuador, Costa Rica, Spain, France, Italy, Germany, Austria, and Quebec. World renowned schools. Homestays. Short and long term programs. Call 800-597-3773. Or visit UMass Representative Elinor at 546-2082.

EUROPE $169 O/W
Cando Mex $189 R/T
If you can beat these prices start your own airline!
Aer Tech. LTD
413-567-0001

Come Join In The Adventure!! Come White Water Rafting with UMSC & UMGC! May 31 - June 7. Only $199! Call us @ 5-3437

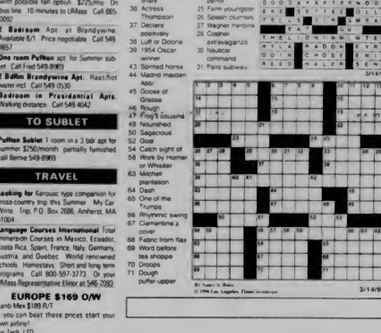
DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trade Michel Lutz

ACROSS
1 Trains in the ring
6 Samoa
10 Fold remakes
14 Henny — Lodge
15 Vex
16 Endura
17 Possess composition
18 Bye-bye
19 Never ending
20 Popular picnic fare
22 Gore, e.g.
23 — culpa
29 Appendectomy rate
26 MVE opposite
29 Upstart
33 Way to buy a share
36 Actress Thompson
37 Declare positively
38 Luft or Odone
39 1954 Oscar winner
43 Spirited horse
44 Masond macdon Abbr.
45 Goose of Grease
46 Rough
47 Flag's Gaulard
49 Nourished
50 Sagacious
52 Deer
54 Catch sight of
56 Work by Homer or Wheeler
63 Mitchell plantation
64 Dash
65 One of the Trumps
66 Rhythmic swing
67 Clamantine's lover
68 Fabric from flax
69 Word before tea shoppe
70 Droops
71 Dough buffer-supper

DOWN
1 Flat-bottomed boat
2 Daddy
3 Assess retroactivity
4 Muscle: Neol
5 Gazes
6 Comic Johnson
7 Coin of Iran
8 Choir voice
9 Legumes
10 Skyscraper transport
11 What Washingtons should be
12 Wife-bundling lately
13 Flight segment
21 Long-haired parrot
25 Farm youngster
26 Speech courtesy
27 Wagner heroine
28 Cosmer extravaganza
30 Nautical command
31 Pans subway
34 Dreams Puts
35 Grazed
40 Pause
41 Del Ellgort entertainment
42 Sobeder presence
48 Cesare Borgia
51 Wide-mouthed pitchers
53 Pick
54 Normandy town
55 Jack and Jill's burden
57 Her —
58 Sigm trace
59 Means justifiers?
60 Hollywood Turner
61 Small bets
62 Rave partner

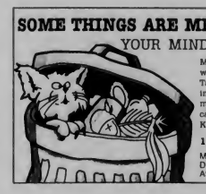
ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:



3/14/96

SOME THINGS ARE MEANT TO BE CLOSED

YOUR MIND ISN'T ONE OF THEM.



MDA has shown how valuable people with disabilities are to society. Talent, ability and desire are more important than strength of a person's muscles. The barrier these people can't overcome is a closed mind. Keep yours open.

1-800-572-1717

MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY ASSOCIATION

Your Daily Horoscope

ARIES (March 21 – April 19) — Meetings, messages and business trips bring good luck. Domestic harmony begins with saying or doing the right thing. A chance encounter could lead to a financial bonanza.

TAURUS (April 20 – May 20) — A willingness to compromise helps you deal with difficult business associates. Real estate should be appraised by a professional before purchasing.

GEMINI (May 21 – June 20) — A personal relationship becomes more complicated. Get better organized. An all-out effort to promote your creative efforts will produce great results.

CANCER (June 21 – July 22) — Others benefit from your leadership. Follow your conscience. Family members will let you know if you are on the wrong track. You feel in control by may not know your next move.

LEO (July 23 – Aug. 22) — Refuse to let peer pressure tempt you into abandoning your position. Others respect you for upholding your ideals. Put your thoughts on paper; they deserved to be preserved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 – Sept. 22) — Make certain the bank rectifies a mistake. An old friend wants to help you get back on your feet. A romantic attachment is upsetting a teenager. Do not make light of this person's feelings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 – Oct. 22) — Think big when it comes to launching new projects. Funds are available from overseas clients. However, they may wish to exert considerable control. Think twice before signing a multi-year contract; conditions could change over time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 – Nov. 21) — Adopt a conservative attitude toward new financial or emotional commitments. Others will be concerned if you act out of character. Singles enjoy new romantic encounters. Be discreet. Do not reveal too much too soon.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 – Dec. 21) — Envious relatives or friends can be difficult to deal with. A well-intentioned mate or partner only complicates things. Focusing on a favorite hobby or sport relieves tension. Concentrate on new pursuits involving the arts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 – Jan. 19) — Want ads may sound too good to be true. Who you know counts big in landing new employment. Be prepared to move out of state if necessary. Your spouse or partner will be supportive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 – Feb. 18) — Get caught up on routine assignments before committing yourself to a new project. Reducing everyday expenditures will help you accumulate savings. Walking to work will heighten your senses. Your charm works wonders this evening.

PISCES (Feb. 19 – March 20) — Unexpected financial developments work in your favor. Keep your good news under wraps. A surprise announcement will catch competitors off guard. Bring paperwork up-to-date or a golden opportunity could be lost. Review accounts.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

Kippil By Barry Deutsch

HOLD ON A SEC- AREN'T YOU SUPPOSED TO BE A FROG?
WELL, I WAS...
BUT THEN A CAT SWALLOWED ME, AND A DOG SWALLOWED THE CAT...
UH-HUH
THEN THE DOG WAS ADOPTED BY THIS PRINCESS AND ONE DAY SHE KISSED ITS HEAD. YOU SEE, AND FROM INSIDE I, UH...
WOW! THAT MUST HAVE BEEN REALLY DISGUSTING!
TELL ME ABOUT IF THE PRINCESS IS IN THERAPY NOW.

Small Potatoes By Jon Art

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

ALL ROBIN GOOD'S ROBBERIES WERE COMMITTED BY SOMEONE CLEVER WITH GHOSTS!
AND BOB GOODE WAS A BRILLIANT REPAIRMAN!
THERE'S HIS WORKSHOP!
GOODE
EMPTY! BUT I'LL JUST LOOK AROUND!

Jim's Journal By Jim

I woke up today and didn't know if it was today or not.
I thought may-be it was tomorrow already.
Then I remembered that I had only taken a nap.
Also, I was fully dressed, so I figured that it must be today.

Dilbert By Scott Adams

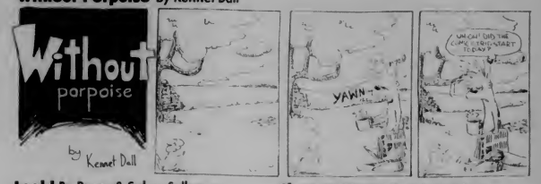
EXPERIMENT #1: I AM EXPOSING A RAT TO MY COMPANY'S MARKETING PLAN.
HE SEEMS TO HAVE NO ADVERSE RESPONSE TO THE INTRODUCTION AND BACKGROUND.
THIS IS ALREADY FAR MORE EXPOSURE THAN HUMANS COULD TOLERATE.
SALES PROJECTIONS... BRAIN TUMOR... GET THE HOL...

Life in General By Meredith

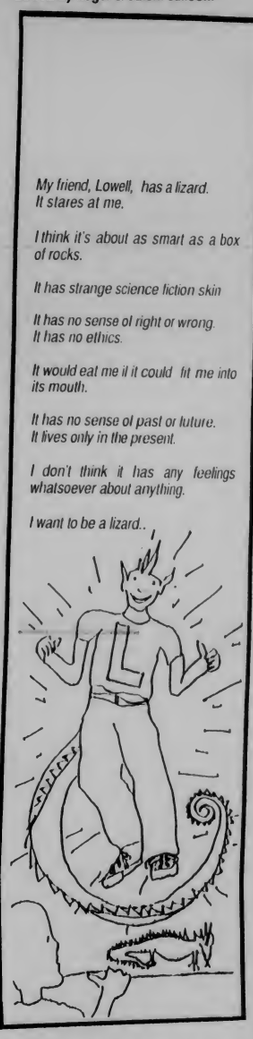
...YEAH, AND I'M DRUNK 28 WHEN DADDY'S SUPPOSED BE ARRESTED...
SIAH-RIAN
YUH HUH, BABY, YUH
HEY!! IT YOU'RE SO HOT MARY, WHY DIDN'T YOU PUT YOUR COMICS IN THE COLLEGIAN?
WELL, US IN THE COMIC BOOK COMMUNITY ARE A MINORITY AGAINST NEWSPAPER STRIPS.
OH, YOU MEAN KINDA LIKE HOW THE FEMALE COMMUNITY HAS A MOVEMENT AGAINST PMS?

Just for Fun By Sean Cahoon

Without Porpoise By Kennet Dall



Loold By Roger & Salem Salloom



My friend, Lowell, has a lizard. It stares at me.
I think it's about as smart as a box of rocks.
It has strange science fiction skin
It has no sense of right or wrong. It has no ethics.
It would eat me if it could fit me into its mouth.
It has no sense of past or future. It lives only in the present.
I don't think it has any feelings whatsoever about anything.
I want to be a lizard..

Close to Home By John McPherson

Company Cheese By Kevin Tracy

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Matt Audette
Copy Editor ..... Chris Conner
Photo Technician ..... Emily Reily
Production Supervisor ..... Tony "Xot" Morse
Production ..... Mike "Svenyip" Troupe, Mike Krozzy, Kevin C. Farrar

Dining Commons Menu

Menu unavailable. Please refer to this guide to help you decide where to eat.

1 First, go get some dice (6 sided, preferably).
2 Find one you like, and roll it.

If you roll:

- Go to Franklin D.C. for dinner.
- Go to Berkshire D.C. for dinner.
- Go to Hampshire D.C. for dinner.
- Go to Worcester D.C. for dinner.
- Get Pizza for dinner!
- Roll again.

Quote of the Day

"Dying is often hard... it's comparable to going off to college."

–Prof. Albey M. Reiner

Cartoonists!!

Want some recognition? Fame, fortune and power await you!
But until then, why not submit a cartoon for the Collegian comix page?!
Comics should be 2" x 6.25" and inked in black felt tip or flair tip pens (NO ball point ink!)
Submit your strips to Marni E. Helfner
113 Campus Center • 545-3500

Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Give us a break, we're trying!!

Sports Notice
Intramural Men's Basketball Championship played in the Curry Hicks Cage on your cable network — Housing Services Cable Network — Today through Saturday, April 27 at 11 p.m.; Sunday, April 28 at 9 p.m.

Sports

Sports notice
There will be a mandatory sports meeting Thursday at 6 p.m. in the Collegian Offices. Contact Justin Smith at 545-0719 if unable to attend.

Bruins lose again as playoff struggles continue

By Howard Ulman
Associated Press

BOSTON — The Florida Panthers moved within a victory of sweeping the first playoff series in their three-year history as John Vanbiesbrouck shut down the Boston Bruins 4-2 Wednesday night.

Jody Hull scored twice, and the Panthers rolled to a 3-0 lead in the first 13 minutes against goalie Bill Ranford, who had missed the second game with a sore right ankle.

The Panthers, leading the best-of-7 series 3-0, can advance to the Eastern Conference semifinals with another win Thursday night in Boston.

Boston is in the playoffs for an NHL record 29th straight year but is just 1-11 and has been outscored 46-21 in its last 12 playoff games.

Vanbiesbrouck entered his first playoff series in four years with a 13-20 postseason record but was outstanding as he turned aside 40 of 41 shots before Rick Tocchet scored a meaningless power-play goal with 58 seconds left.

Florida	4
Boston	2

The Bruins outshot Florida for the third straight game, 42-26. But, for the third straight game, they fell behind early as Hull scored 30 seconds into the game and Scott Mellanby and Mike Hough gave Florida a 3-0 lead after one period.

In Game 1, the Panthers led 3-0 after nine minutes and won 6-3. In Game 2, they took a 2-0 lead at 4:15 of the second period and won 6-2.

On Tuesday, Boston coach Steve Kasper said the Bruins had to finish off their opportunities, but the message apparently didn't get across. In the first period, they were scoreless on 14 shots while the Panthers scored on three of their 11.

Hull gave Florida a 4-0 lead at 15:16 of the second period, but Shawn McEachern ended Vanbiesbrouck's shutout bid at 18:40 of the period when he tipped in a rebound of Sandy Moger's shot.

Hull started the scoring when he took a pass from Tom Fitzgerald and put it over Ranford's stick from five feet.

Mellanby made the score 2-0 on a power play with a slapshot from the left faceoff circle at 10:29. Hough scored an unassisted goal at 12:19 after picking up a loose puck in front of the net. Only 14,922 fans were in the 17,565-seat FleetCenter — and most of them left before the final buzzer — as the Bruins moved one step closer to another disappointing end to a season.

Boston lost 4-1 to New Jersey in the first round last season. One year earlier, they beat Montreal 4-3 in the first round, then won the first two games against New Jersey. But the Devils eliminated Boston by winning the next four. And the year before that, they were swept 4-0 by Buffalo in the opening round.

Lemieux tossed for fighting

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Pittsburgh Penguins star Mario Lemieux, the NHL's leading scorer, was ejected in the second period of Wednesday night's playoff game against the Washington Capitals for fighting. Lemieux was called for slashing, instigating and fighting in connection with his brawl with Capitals center Pat Peake.

New season begins, NBA playoffs set to commence

The winner, and new NBA champion of the world, the one, the only... Wait a minute, before we decide who is going to win this thing, let's see just what road your team must take to the Finals.

Eastern Conference

First Round: No. 1 Chicago Bulls vs. No. 8 Miami Heat

Even after completing their record setting 72-win season, if one asked the Bulls their opinion on playing the Heat, the answer would be somewhat familiar. "Hate playing that guy." Of course that guy is Pat Riley, coach of the Heat. However, the Heat are not the Knicks (of old) and Chicago is destined to return to the Finals. Bottom line — Miami makes it interesting but Bulls roll in three.

No. 2 Orlando Magic vs. No. 7 Detroit Pistons

Detroit is back. Doug Collins

Phil Jackson

has done an outstanding job in shaping the Pistons into a fiery, competitive team. That's nice, but it still won't be enough to stop the Magic. With Horace Grant now comfortable shooting the 10-footer, Orlando might have the most diverse offense around. Detroit might be able to sneak in a game, but not much more. Pick: Orlando in four, even without Tree Rollins active.

No. 3 Indiana Pacers vs. No. 6 Atlanta Hawks

A week ago, Detroit was in the six slot and could have upset the struggling Pacers. Now the Hawks, thankful not to be playing the Magic, plan to do the same. Sad to say, the acquisition of Christian Laettner has actually helped Atlanta. The Hawks should be able to shutdown a Pacer offense grossly inept without Reggie Miller. Pick: Atlanta and its awful uniforms over Indiana in four.

No. 4 Cleveland Cavaliers vs. No. 5 New York Knicks

Enjoy those 82-73 type games? Hope so, because here is a whole series of them. Until Cleveland smacked my Knicks a week ago, picking the Knicks wasn't that difficult. Now, it's a toss up. The Knicks have the best player on the floor in Patrick Ewing and know what it takes. The only question is, can they produce? Pick: Knicks in four, as the respect of entire city is riding on this series.

Second Round: Bulls vs. Knicks

Just the matchup Bulls fans want. The "old" Knicks were never able to stop Michael, so it is unlikely these Knicks can. The Bulls are not unbeatable, even so it is going to take more than Patrick & Co. can give. Give Jeff Van Gundy credit as he packs his bags and heads to Miami to join the Ambassador of Armani and former mentor Riley. Bottom line — Knicks don't roll over but Chicago makes 'em play dead. Pick: Chicago in five.

Magic vs. Hawks

Jon Koncak returns to face his old team as the Omni sells out in appreciation. Hawks don't have a prayer against Shaq's crew. Atlanta gets to prepare for the Olympics a bit early. Pick: Orlando sweeps, plain and simple.

Conference Finals: Bulls vs. Magic

How many times can you hack-a-Shaq? Chicago, in preparation for its destined foul-a-thon, added experienced hackers James Edwards and John Salley to its playoff roster. Nick Anderson must control Jordan to stay in this. If Scottie Pippen's health is a question, Orlando will give Chicago all it can handle. With Pippen ready and the Bulls in sync, Chicago should win in a tough 6-7 game series. Pick: Chicago in seven.

Darren Cohen on the NBA

Western Conference

First Round: No. 1 Seattle Supersonics vs. No. 8 Sacramento Kings

This could be the year the Sonics just might get past the first round. Although, they will have to start their playoff run without currently-suspended Shawn Kemp. Even without Kemp for a game or two, Seattle should silence the critics. If the Kings even win a game here, Sonic fans will call for George Karl's head. Pick: Sonics in three.

No. 2 San Antonio Spurs vs. No. 7 Phoenix Suns

The feature match-up of this series could be Will Purdue against Joe Kleine. No really, it is going to take someone other than Robinson or Barkley to win this series for their respective team. The Spurs have great balance and renewed confidence, which gives them the edge. The Suns, on the other hand, are more concerned with paying medical bills. Pick: San Antonio in four.

No. 3 Utah Jazz vs. No. 6 Portland Trailblazers

Playing its best ball of the year coming into the playoffs, Portland feels it has nothing to lose. That could be trouble for the Jazz, who crawled to the end of the regular season. This will be a fun one, as the experience of Malone and Stockton will battle a potential Rookie of the Year in Sabonis. This one will come down to the wire. Bottom line — Utah creeps into the next round, 3-2.

No. 4 L.A. Lakers vs. No. 5 Houston Rockets

Probably the best matchup of the entire playoffs, picking a winner here is difficult. The suspensions of Magic Johnson and Nick Van Exel have hurt L.A. as it fights to stay focused. Houston, plagued by injuries the entire year, is starting to regain its championship form. Elden Campbell's emergence as a go-to-guy will help L.A. tame Hakeem, but Magic's presence on the court will determine the winner here. Pick: In a series to remember, L.A. wins in five before a sold-out Forum.

Second Round: Supersonics vs. Lakers

OK, the Sonics get past the first round. Isn't that enough? L.A. matches up well with Seattle, shifting the pending outcome of this one to other intangibles like leadership and experience. Can you say Magic Johnson? The Laker bench will have to prove their worth in order for the Lake Show to keep rolling. Pick L.A in six.

Turn to NBA, page 12

The Boston Bruins are one game away from elimination after falling to the Florida Panthers last night 4-2.

MARION SMITH/COLLEGIAN

Sox come from behind to win

By Jimmy Golen
Associated Press

BOSTON — The Boston Red Sox took their 4-16 record into Wednesday night's game against Texas and promptly spotted the Rangers a 7-0 lead. Then they decided to try something different. The Red Sox rallied to tie it in the sixth and took the lead in the seventh on Reggie Jefferson's third double, beating Texas 11-9 to keep their winning percentage above the Mendoza (.200) line.

Boston	11
Texas	9

"It would have been easy for us, the way things have been going, to say 'Let's get them tomorrow,'" Jefferson said. "But you could see it on the bench. Guys were taking their backs like it was 0-0."

Jefferson will likely inherit the designated hitter job now that Jose Canseco is on the disabled list with a strained right hip flexor and Kevin Mitchell is also ailing. That's the role Jefferson served last year, hitting .304 with a .519 slugging percentage while Canseco recovered from a groin strain.

"It's part of my role here to be ready," Jefferson said. "(Manager Kevin Kennedy) talked to me and said before it's over everyone will get a chance. I'm in the big leagues and I want to stay, so I've got to produce."

Kevin Elster hit a three-run homer in the Rangers' seven-run second inning and added a two-run shot in the third for a career high five RBIs. But Rich Garces and Mike Stanton (1-1) shut Texas down.

"We stopped scoring runs after that," Rangers starter Roger Pavlik said. "Things can turn. Like tonight."

Garces, who was called up from Pawtucket earlier in the day, pitched 2 2-3 scoreless innings and Stanton retired the Rangers in order in the seventh. Stan Belinda pitched a perfect eighth and Heath Cliff Slocumb struck out the side in the ninth for his fourth save.

"We've been in that situation a few times this year," first baseman Mo Vaughn said of the Red Sox, who still have the worst record in baseball.

"We scratched out a few runs and we were right back in it," he said. "We were looking for a game like that, where we show some spark, show some fight."

Pavlik gave up five runs before leaving with none out in the second and Dennis Cook gave up four more, including Jefferson's RBI double in the sixth to make it 9-8.

Gil Heredia (0-2) walked Mike Stanley to load the bases and then got Troy O'Leary to pop up too shallow to score the run. But Mike Greenwell hit a grounder to force Stanley at second and outran the relay, preventing a double-play and allowing Vaughn to score the tying run.

John Valentin led off the seventh with a double and Vaughn was walked intentionally before Jefferson doubled into the right-field corner to score them both.

Vaughn was 3-for-3 with three runs and two walks and Valentin had a pair of doubles to snap an 0-for-17 slump. O'Leary homered for Boston and Mickey Tettleton hit a three-run shot for Texas. Elster's five RBIs matched the career high he set Friday in a 26-7 victory over Baltimore. Pavlik also started that game and also couldn't take advantage of the run support.

Since winning his first three starts, Pavlik has gotten a pair of no-decisions, allowing 11 runs in 5 2-3 innings. Pavlik walked five — four of them after taking a 7-0 lead.

"I know he's not trying to do it," manager Johnny Oates said. "But with a seven-run lead he should (throw strikes)."

Notes: The seven runs scored by Texas in the second were the most allowed by Boston in one inning all season... Pavlik threw 42 pitches in the second inning... Umpire Ed Hickox worked first base in place of Don Denkinger... The Red Sox had lost five straight at Fenway since winning their home opener.

Minutemen sweep Maine Black Bears

Fresh off its first-ever Beanpot championship, the Massachusetts baseball team continued to impress, sweeping a doubleheader against Maine yesterday (10-3 and 3-2), improving its record to 26-9.

UMass fell behind 1-0 after the second inning but erupted for five runs in the top of the third to take a 5-1 lead. The Black Bears struck back for two runs in the bottom half of the second to get to within two runs, but the Minutemen pulled away for the victory on the strength of a complete game performance by Chad Paronto. The junior righthander gave up six hits, struck out seven and retired the last 14 batters he faced.

Freshman southpaw Bill Cooke backed up Paronto's performance with an outstanding showing of his own, striking out six without allowing a walk for the complete game victory, running his record to 3-0. UMass struck first with a run in the top of the first and then added to its lead in the top of the sixth on a Nate Murphy solo homer. After a third UMass run in the top of the seventh made it 3-0, Maine attempted a comeback in the last half of the seventh, scoring two runs before coming up short.

With his 21st stolen base of the season, and the 73rd of his career, senior Ryan Jette broke the all-time UMass career record. Junior shortstop Brad Gorrie was solid for the Minutemen all day, as he went 5-for-8 (4-for-4 in the first game) at the plate with a double, banged in two RBI and stole three bases.

— Candice Flemming

SHANE KEENAN/COLLEGIAN

Minuteman hurlers helped the baseball team sweep a doubleheader with Maine yesterday in Orono, ME. UMass hosts Central Connecticut today at 3 p.m. at Earl Lorden Field.

Belle investigators meet about incident

By Ronald Blum
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Albert Belle met on Wednesday with baseball investigators who are looking into an April 6 incident in which the Cleveland Indians outfielder threw a ball that hit a photographer. The meeting at the offices of management's Player Relations Committee lasted about 90 minutes, according to one baseball official who spoke on the condition he not be identified.

Belle was joined by Cleveland general manager John Hart, agent Arn Tellem and Gene Orza, the No. 2 official of the players association.

Attending the meeting for management was baseball security head Kevin Hallinan, American League lawyer Bill Schwetzer, PRC lawyer Lou Melendez and investigator Jim Murphy.

None of the people involved in the session would comment or even acknowledge that it took place.

"I really can't comment," said Hallinan, at Yankee Stadium for Cleveland's game against New York.

Two hours before the game, Indians manager Mike Hargrove was asking reporters whether they knew if the meeting had occurred.

"There are things Albert does that no one likes, but he's one of our own. He's part of the team," Hargrove said.

"I didn't see what happened. If he did it on purpose, it's very wrong. I've had 10 people tell me he did it on purpose, and 10 people tell me he didn't. That's what the people investigating this will try to find out."

Sports Illustrated photographer Tony Tomsic said Belle threw a ball from the outfield and hit him during pregame warmups at Jacobs Field. The outfielder contends he was trying to throw to Manny Ramirez but the ball sailed past his teammate.

Tomsic has refused to file a complaint, and baseball officials say they may attempt to find other witnesses.

Several baseball officials are worried Belle is not undergoing counseling as frequently as he is supposed to under the terms of their agreement with him in February, and the baseball officials fear more incidents may occur.

Belle told Cleveland television station WUAB that reporters are pressuring Tomsic to press charges, although the outfielder did not identify them.

Belle called the whole matter with the photographer an accident. "This guy was standing almost behind Manny Ramirez, and naturally over the course of a season a ball is going to get away from me or anyone else," Belle said.

The Massachusetts

DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CV Issue 122 | New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 | Friday, April 26, 1996

Madder than a Hatter

The "Mad Professor" will bring his eclectic and sassy tunes to the Iron Horse stage tonight (See Arts & Living, page 5).

Going, going... Gone

Centerfielder Nate Murphy knocked out a home run in yesterday's 9-2 win over the Central Connecticut Blue Devils (See Sports, page 10).

WORLD

Chernobyl anniversary brings questions

KIEV, Ukraine — The Chernobyl nuclear accident spewed radiation across Europe and affected millions of lives. Ten years later, a host of vital questions remain about precisely how the world's worst commercial nuclear disaster happened.

Most experts agree that several factors, from flaws in the design of nuclear reactors to the Soviet system itself, contributed to the catastrophe. But even leading nuclear physicists remain uncertain of the technical process that led the plant's reactor No. 4 to combust on April 26, 1986.

Such lingering questions are precisely why many environmental activists and scientists insist that the still-operating Chernobyl plant and the world's other graphite-cooled nuclear reactors should be shut down — immediately.

Some 5,000 people run the plant, shuffling daily past the looming, badly cracked concrete and steel "sarcophagus" built to contain the ruined unit. Wind whistles through the contaminated, deserted homes that dot the surrounding pine forests.

"If it hadn't happened in 1986, it would have happened in 1987, or 1989, or 1991," said Oleksandr Smyshlayev, a Ukrainian nuclear physicist and first deputy environment minister.

NATION

Study reveals HIV connections

WASHINGTON — Just how long a patient infected with the AIDS virus can stay healthy may depend upon how well his immune system juggles the many different strains of HIV that develop constantly, researchers say in a new report.

A study of six men infected with HIV, the virus that causes AIDS, showed that those with the most diverse number of HIV viral strains remained healthy the longest, while those with the least variety got sicker more quickly.

This is contrary to a theory that HIV infection tips over into AIDS because the virus simply exhausts the immune system by developing so many different genetic forms.

"That's not what we see," said Steven M. Wolinsky, lead author of a study appearing Friday in the journal Science.

HIV constantly makes genetic changes as it reproduces. The result is development of many different strains within a patient. To combat the slightly altered viruses, the immune system has to constantly develop new types of antibodies.

Wolinsky, a genetic expert at Northwestern University Medical School in Chicago, said an old theory compared HIV and its fight with the immune system with a juggler who is trying to keep an increasing number of balls in the air.

WEEKEND FORECAST

Today	Saturday	Sunday
HIGH: 75	HIGH: 70	HIGH: 65
LOW: 55	LOW: 50	LOW: 50

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 5
Classifieds .....page 8
Comics.....page 9
Crossword .....page 8
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 2
News.....page 3
Sports .....page 10

UHS cautions pot users; laced marijuana harmful

By Melanie B. Arruda
Collegian Staff

Because University Health Services (UHS) has had several cases of students with severe reactions from laced marijuana, flyers have been posted in residence halls as a warning to pot users.

This month, UHS has documented four or five on-campus cases of students who consumed marijuana laced with PCP or cocaine, according to staff Health Educator Sally Damon. Marijuana laced with cocaine is called "chronic," she added.

Other cases have been documented in the Amherst area, Damon added.

"We're aware that people on campus smoke marijuana and we're trying to raise awareness that there has been pot on campus laced with other, more dangerous drugs," she said.

She advises frequent users who experience something different to get checked out at UHS or talk to someone about it, she said.

"Unless you grow your own pot, you don't know what's in there," she said.

"We advise users to know their grower and know their seller," Secretary of the Cannabis Reform Coalition John Lanzerotta said.

The user must also be aware how the marijuana is grown, Lanzerotta said. The grower may use dangerous chemicals when growing the marijuana agriculturally or hydroponically, he said.

Some growers or dealers look for developing "that extra high" by adding dangerous drugs to the batch of marijuana in the hopes of passing it on as "kind bud," Lanzerotta said. "Kind bud" is a type of high grade and high potency marijuana, he explained.

"It is a way to distinguish your product, so people think it is better," Damon said.

"Chronic" produces symptoms of heart palpitations, panic reactions, extreme sweating and thirst, Damon said. Unlaced pot can also yield these symptoms, she added.

Marijuana laced with the hallucinogen PCP produces symptoms of negative out of body experience, not feeling pain, possible nausea and vomiting, disorientation and forgetfulness and panic reactions, Damon said.

People who consume marijuana laced with PCP are more likely to hurt themselves since they can't feel pain, she added. "You have to keep an eye on them so they don't get hurt."

Some people may characterize consuming marijuana laced with PCP as being a "really drunk" experience, Damon added.

"The main problem with PCP is that it is unpredictable," Damon said.

Damon advises that students should not be concerned with being turned into the authorities, Damon said. "If a person comes in for medical care, it is a medical issue."

"The only time the police is involved is when the person is involved in other illegal activity," Damon said.

Decriminalization or full legalization of marijuana would "ensure marketplace quality," Lanzerotta said.

Cooley Dickinson Hospital had no comment on cases involving laced marijuana.

Israeli cease fire dispute unsettled

Secretary of State Christopher conferences with prime ministers

By Barry Schweid
Associated Press

DAMASCUS, Syria — A somber Secretary of State Warren Christopher urged Syria and Israel today to settle their "important differences" over a proposed cease-fire in Israeli-Hezbollah guerrilla violence in southern Lebanon.

While awaiting their responses, Christopher met in Damascus with Lebanon's prime minister and parliament speaker. Rafik Hariri and Nabih Berri. Extremist Muslim guerrillas launch rocket attacks on Israeli towns from bases in Lebanon.

Continuing his shuttle diplomacy, Christopher had a working breakfast in Jerusalem with Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres, then flew to Damascus for what were likely to be long and critical meetings with Syrian President Hafez Assad. They met this morning and set another session for later today.

His interim meetings with Hariri and Berri were his second in two days. They conferred Wednesday in Lebanon's Bekaa Valley under protection of hundreds of armed guards.

Christopher seeks to end both the rocket attacks Hezbollah began raining on northern Israel two weeks ago from bases in south Lebanon, as well as Israel's response, a fearsome bombing campaign in Lebanon. More than 160 civilians on both sides have been killed, the great majority Lebanese civilians.

Christopher also kept in touch with Peres by telephone today through Martin Indyk, the U.S. ambassador to Israel.

In another twist of the complicated diplomacy, Hariri drove to Syria after meeting in Beirut with Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati. Speaking of the guerrilla group Tehran finances, Velayati said afterward: "Hezbollah's views will not be ignored." Christopher sounded suddenly downbeat at the start of the sixth day of his shuttle, prompting speculation his effort could end without restoring calm to the region.

"These are differences that can be resolved only by the parties," he said before joining a motorcade to take him to Ben Gurion Airport for the one-hour flight to Damascus where Assad awaited him. "We will see where we go from there," Christopher said.

"The remaining issues are very serious," Peres said, adding a cease-fire was not "a foregone conclusion."

Foreign Minister Herve de Charette of France, carrying on a simultaneous shuttle mission to sell his own peace plan, sounded somewhat more upbeat.

As Christopher and Assad met, a French spokesman said de Charette and Peres had a long telephone conversation. The Israeli prime minister has said he accepts only the United States as a peace broker, but France traditionally has had stronger influence with the Arabs.

"The French minister insists... upon the necessity to reach a conclusion quickly," the spokesman, Yves Dourtiaux, said. "The two sides share the political will to find an agreement very soon."

Syrian and Lebanese leaders told Christopher they wanted changes in the U.S. cease-fire proposal. But Peres today rejected some of the changes after American and Israeli negotiating teams reviewed them.

"Some they could live with and some obviously they could not," Nicholas Burns, the State Department spokesman, said.

Evidently, Christopher has persuaded Syria and Lebanon to accept a cease-fire that would end Hezbollah's shelling of northern Israel and Israel's fierce retaliatory bombing of south Lebanon. Over two weeks, 152 people on both sides have been killed.

But Christopher also is trying to strengthen a 1993 agreement to also rule out Hezbollah attacks on Israeli soldiers who are inside Lebanon to intercept terrorist infiltrators. Winning the Arabs' approval complicates his task.

Before leaving Israel, Christopher telephoned Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk al-Sharaa and had Israel's latest position on the cease-fire proposal faxed to Damascus so Assad could have it before his meeting with Christopher.

"We are getting a sense from the dynamics this is very hard," Burns said.

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Putt, putt...
Chad Morin a sophomore, sport management major tries out his putting skills at yesterday Gold Medal Challenge.

GOP gentler in budget cuts; education hit

By Alan Fram
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Environmental Protection Agency will get 10 percent less money, and job safety spending will be down a bit. Schools with many low-income children will get about the same as a year ago.

In a gauge of how the federal budget climate has changed, Democrats considered those winners in the huge compromise spending bill for fiscal 1996 that Congress prepared for President Clinton's promised signature Thursday. The House approved the legislation 394-25, and Senate passage was expected quickly.

The $159 billion measure, covering nine Cabinet-level departments and dozens of agencies for the remaining five months of the fiscal year, will provide additional services for some Americans and less for others. There is $1.4 billion to help hire 100,000 local police officers. The $278 million — about a third less than last year — for the Legal Services Corp., which provides lawyers for the poor.

The bill was the product of grueling talks between the White House and Congress. In the end, the administration had won $5 billion more than the House had approved months ago — still leaving spending for all federal agencies a whopping $20 billion below 1995 levels, according to the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office. "The world has changed and we're headed in the right direction."

Turn to GOP, page 2

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Smooth landing!
Tim Calamine lands on the field by the pond as part of the skydiving demonstration put on by the UMass Parachute Club yesterday afternoon.

Students challenge Scott's forthcoming SATF plan

By Michael Elliott
Collegian Staff

The Student Government Association (SGA) expects Chancellor David K. Scott to deliver his decision today on financial relief for the Student Activities Trust Fund (SATF) for academic year 1996-97.

"He's offered a guarantee of $71,000 [in new funds] for the first year," said SGA Speaker Dan Castellano. "Beyond that, he has made no commitments."

The student organized "Free our Fee" coalition expected to receive an infusion of $113,000 into the SATF for next year.

The figure was arrived upon in agreement with administration officials whom Scott had assigned the task of mediating the dispute, including Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs Tom Robinson and Vice-Chancellor for Administration and Finance Paul Page.

Over a period of four years, approximately $500,000 in new funds was intended to expand the SATF, accomplished by removing the financial burden of the PVTA from the fund.

In addition, the administration had promised to assume a greater financial responsibility for student activities by incorporating the salaries of professional staff positions at, for example, WMUA and UVC-TV19, into their expense accounts.

These funds were intended to replenish the depleted budgets of various Registered Student Organizations (RSOs), such as the Distinguished Visitors Program and the Student Art Gallery. Both groups are anticipating a total shut-down next year due to lack of funds.

Scott, however, has not demonstrated full support of the plan. In a Monday meeting with SGA officials, he committed verbally to the reduced amount of relief, according to Castellano.

"We felt the Vice Chancellors were negotiating on behalf of the Chancellor. That clearly has not been the case," Castellano said.

"I would have expected the Chancellor to have more confidence in his people," Sen. Jeff Coker said, chair of the ways and means committee.

By May 9, Scott is expected to present his four-year plan for SATF relief plan to students, according to Michael Hass, student coordinator of the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy.

Turn to SATF, page 2

UMass Fan Fest fundraiser benefits local Little Leagues

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

Despite the fact the event is only in its second year, the University of Massachusetts Fan Fest appears set to become a rite of spring.

Following in the footsteps of the widely successful Haigis Hoopla, the Advanced Sports Marketing class in the Sport Management department taught by Dr. William Sutton, launched UMass Fan Fest last year at a home to promote baseball at both the UMass and the surrounding communities. The event, which is free, will be held on Saturday at noon during the UMass baseball team's doubleheader with Atlantic 10 rival St. Joseph's.

"We want to try to promote UMass baseball, because they play in a place where they don't get a lot of attention," Sutton said.

All proceeds from the event will go to the Little Leagues in several surrounding towns. After success in its first season, Fan Fest returns this year for a second showing, this time with higher goals. The inaugural event raised approximately $500, but according to senior sport management major Tracey Pimpare, the event organizers set their goals at $2,000. Despite the fact that the event has not even happened yet, they have already surpassed that mark with $2,500 amassed in proceeds.

In addition to more money, there will also be more activities. The skills competition will be enhanced and will be separated into age groups. Kids involved can compete for prizes for themselves, as well as for their respective Little Leagues.

One new event this year will be the "Mascot Olympics." Four different mascots, including Boomer of the Pittsfield Mets, the Springfield Falcon, Media Man from Media Play and the Minuteman will compete in a variety of events. Spectators will pick who they think will win, and if they are correct, they will win prizes.

With a considerable amount of work going into the project, Sutton gives students all the credit for the project's success.

"The students do everything, the sponsor sales, the promotion...," said Sutton, who added that the involvement could help the careers of the volunteer participants.

"Those that are interested in minor league baseball and college athletics, this is great, because they're doing the same kind of things they'll need to do."

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Friday, April 26

Film — The Third Annual Five College Student Film Festival will take place at 7 p.m. in Stirn Auditorium at Amherst College. Free admission. For more information call Mike Bowes at 584-3717.

Store opening — I Used To Be A Tree, a new store in Amherst, will have a grand opening party on Arbor Day at 6 p.m., followed by a slide show by author Ellen Everett Hopman at 7:30 p.m. The store is located at 191 North Pleasant St.

Meeting — The Five College Campaign to End Sexual Violence will hold their first ever planning meeting from 3–5 p.m. in the Campus Center, Room 804–808. If you are committed to creating a community in which sexual violence is neither tolerated nor accepted and in which survivors are supported and validated, please come and share your ideas.

Meeting — The Alliance Christian Fellowship will hold a meeting at 7 p.m. at the Campus Center. Come learn about the campaign for the Urbana '96 Student Mission Conference, held Dec. 27–31 at the University of Illinois, and enjoy singing and sharing. For more information, call Julia at 253-7206.

Fundraising — In an effort to help in the fight against children's cancer, more than 20 members of the UMass chapter of Delta Upsilon fraternity will pull a chariot from Boston to Amherst today and tomorrow, to raise money for the Jimmy Fund. As they pull the chariot 110 miles on Route 9, the "brothers" will be soliciting funds and selling raffle tickets for various prizes.

Performance — "Color in the Cage," the UMass Marching Band Color Guard exposition show, will be held at 7 p.m. in the Curry Hicks Cage.

Lecture — In place of the Campus Crusade for Christ's weekly Breakaway meeting, there will be a special guest speaker at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center. The assistant coach of the UMass basketball team will be sharing his thoughts about his faith. The room number will be posted on a sign in the concourse. For more info, contact Adam at 546-1286.

Trivia Contest — Channel 14 of HSCN will be conducting a Trivia Contest run by the Foreign Language Resource Center. The contest begins today, and there will be a new trivia question every Friday throughout the remainder of the semester. The questions will be aired at 9 a.m., noon, 5 and 9 p.m. daily. Please call in your responses to the FLRC at 545-4950. Winners will be chosen by drawing from the correct responses and contacted the following week. Prizes will be announced on the air.

Saturday, April 27

Film — The Science Fiction Movie Marathon, sponsored by the UMass Science Fiction Society, will take place in the Campus Center, Room 163 from 1 p.m. – midnight. Free admission. Scheduled movies include: The Secret of NIMH, Twilight Zone — The Movie, Fahrenheit 451, Outland and Dune. All films are followed by a short break. For more information, call 545-1924.

Special event — The 5th Annual Extravaganja, Marijuana Legalization Rally, sponsored by the UMass Cannabis Reform Coalition, will take place on the Amherst Town Common from noon until dark. Music featured by vePI, Synaesthesia, Project Flatbox, Colonel Mustard Trio, the Black Rebels and Iaia the Cat. Speakers include Professors George Phillies and Terry Franklin. For information call 545-1122 or 665-7622.

Storytelling — The "Keepers of the World" Storytelling Festival will take place from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. in the Amherst College Campus Center Frontroom. Advance tickets are available for each ensemble performance on the first floor of the Campus Center Office. For ticket prices call 542-5775 or for general information call 542-8207.

Sunday, April 28

Meeting — The UMass Ski Club will be sponsoring a Montreal whitewater rafting trip from May 31 to June 2, and will discuss and take sign-ups for the trip at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center. For more information call Ark at 545-5437.

Religious — Hillel's Community Service Group is visiting Amherst Nursing Home to celebrate "Hannukah in April" We will make latkes at Hillel House at noon to bring over to the nursing home by 2 p.m. Dreidel games and singing and other Hannukah festivities! Everyone is welcome!

Religious — The Muslim Student Association of UMass invites all the muslims in the Amherst area to an Eid ul Hajj picnic at the North Village Playground, beginning at 4 p.m. For more information, call Utama at 256-8482, or Laili at 253-0874.

Monday, April 29

Discussion — "One by One: Descendants of the Third Reich and the Holocaust in Dialogue," a discussion with personal stories of Germans whose parents were in the S.S. and Jewish and Gentile children of Holocaust survivors, shows us how we can begin to heal from the emotional scars of genocide. 7 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. Free. For more information, call 545-9642.

Dance — There will be an LGBA dance held at Club Metro in Northampton. Admission is $2, after 10 p.m. and the dance will end at 1 a.m.

Notices

Nominations — Nominations for the GEO steering committee are open until May 1. The GEO steering committee consists of four officers, president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, which are paid FTE's and three members at large (unpaid).

Poetry — The UMass Poetry Society will be holding its weekly meeting every Wednesday at 7 p.m. in room 325 Baker Residence Hall. Feel free to bring and read your own poems or that of your favorite poet, or just come to listen and guzzle coffee. New members are always welcome. For more information, call Tim at 546-2792.

Theater — The UMass Theatre Guild presents A Winter's Tale by William Shakespeare. The showdates are May 2–5 at 4 p.m. and May 4–5 at 2 p.m. It will be performed in the Rhododendron Garden behind Health Services. Admission is $3.

Theater — "Still Walks," a collection of dance works choreographed by Chantelle Lucier and Sarah Manva Hertzberg will be performed May 2 – 3. There will be an open dress rehearsal on May 1. Presented in the Studio Theater Kendall Hall on the Mount Holyoke College Campus. General admission $3, students and seniors $2. Reservations are recommended, call (413) 538-2848.

Internship — The office of U.S. Rep. Joseph Kennedy II will be accepting student applications for summer internships in his Charlestown and Roxbury offices. These unpaid internships are available at full or part-time hours. All interns must work a minimum of 15 hours a week. For more information call Brian O'Connor at (617) 242-0200, or to arrange an interview, send him a cover letter and resume at: U.S. Rep. Joseph P. Kennedy II, The Schrafft Center, Suite 605, 529 Main St., Boston, MA 02129.

Internship — State Sen. Stan Rosenberg will be accepting applications for student internships in his Boston office. Interested students should send a resume and cover letter to: Senator Rosenberg's Office, ATTN: Catherine Cecil, room 212, State House, Boston, MA 01223-1053.

Ground treatment — The Physical Plant Grounds Department will have licensed personnel applying a spring treatment of Pro-Lawn fertilizer, a weed control product, on April 27 and 28. Treated areas will be posted for 72 hours. The material is applied in a granular form which precludes anyone or any animal from coming in contact with the herbicide portion of the formulation. The herbicide is classified as Category III, merely requiring caution in its use. A materials data sheet will be available upon request. Please call Albert Potter at 545-0200 with questions.

Scholarship — Application for the University of Massachusetts Amherst Alumni Association Scholarship are now available at the Alumni Relations Office. Applications must be completed and returned as directed to the Alumni Association c/o Anne McDowell, Memorial Hall, UMass, Amherst. Preference will be given to qualified African American, Hispanic American, Native American and Asian American students. For more information about the criteria for application, call Anne McDowell at 545-2317.

Intramurals — Intramural Men's Basketball Championship played in the Curry Hicks Cage on Housing Services Cable Network until Saturday, April 27 at 11 p.m. and Sunday, April 28 at 9 p.m.

Book donation — The Amherst League of Women Voters will be accepting donations of used books until April 28, in preparation for the 49th Annual Book Sale. Trunks and boxes for donations will be placed outside Stop & Shop in Hadley and inside Victory Market in Amherst, as well as the Jones Library and North and South Amherst Libraries. Books may also be brought to the sorting and pricing site at the corner of Main and High Streets in Amherst. Books should be free from mildew, magazines are not wanted. For more information, call Harriet Shapiro at 549-5459.

Study Group — Spring Miracles: Join an ongoing study group focusing on the text of A Course in Miracles, every Tuesday from 7:30 – 9 p.m. Group continues until June 25. Free of charge. Call 252-2902 for more information.

SATF

continued from page 1

Hass said that if the Scott fails to come up with a response acceptable to students, the administration can expect a more direct approach to express their anxieties.

"We played by their rules and we got strung along," Hass said.

"We choose to work with the process and it didn't work," Castellano added. "What kind of message does this send?"

Students will gather Monday to decide what action should be taken after the Chancellor makes his proposal official. Hass said students may reject the $71,000 altogether in attempts of sending Scott a message that more resources are required.

"Students are really upset about the state of funding on this campus," Hass said.

"We felt that Chancellor Scott did not take us seriously," Castellano said.

The SGA will vote on the budget allocations for all RSOs, student agencies and businesses next week. Several programs, said Coker, are slated for severe cuts if new funds are not appropriated.

Further, the SGA was critical of Scott's timing in releasing his decision for the complete four-year SATF relief plan, which is expected days before the last week of classes.

"It seems very convenient that he is waiting all this time," Coker said, emphasizing that Scott has had since mid-March to consider the plan.

"We can organize in May," Castellano said, who will work with the student coalition to mobilize the campus around the issue, as was done previously.

GOP

continued from page 1

said House Appropriations Committee Chairman Bob Livingston, R-La., a leader in the GOP drive to slice federal spending and shrink government.

Democrats preferred to focus instead on the money they restored. That included $350 million for Clinton's prized Goals 2000 education reform program, down $22 million from last year but originally targeted for elimination by the House. And the Occupational Safety and Health Administration would get $305 million — a 2 percent cut from last year instead of the 11 percent reduction the House initially approved.

"We not only know the value of the tax dollar, but we also understand the value of human beings," said Rep. David Obey, D-Wis.

Democrats pointed to the $7.2 billion that would be spent for education for school districts with large numbers of poor children. That would be the same as last year, but $1.2 billion more than the original House figure, a cut Democrats had warned could cost the jobs of 40,000 teachers.

But there were big programs, too, that will swallow large reductions.

Grants to states for social services will be $2.4 billion, or $419 million less than a year ago. Pell grants for college students will be $4.8 billion, about a one-fifth cut from last year. The Department of Housing and Urban Development will see a $5.5 billion reduction in its budget to $19 billion.

Correction:

In yesterday's Collegian Marc Vandermeer was misidentified as a DJ for WMUA. Vandermeer is part of WHMP. The Collegian regrets the error.

The News Department needs writers.

Any students interested in writing for the news section should contact Amy Paradysz at 545–1762 or come down to the office in the Campus Center Basement.

Campus fertilizer treatment set

Officials ask students to avoid applied areas; exercise caution

No quacking from this duck about the fertilization of the campus lawn. The fertilizer will not harm ducks or any other animals.

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

By Daniel Sullivan
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts campus lawn will have a Pro–Lawn fertilizer, with a weed control product, applied on April 27 and 28, weather permitting.

"The core of the campus will be fertilized," Albert Potter said, the assistant director of the physical plant grounds department. "It will start at Whitmore Administration Building and go up to the engineering buildings."

The Pro–Lawn fertilizer gives a balance supply of plant nutrients and controls a broad spectrum of weeds in turf grass. The herbicide portion of the fertilizer is classified in Category III, merely requiring caution in its use.

"The category III classification means that it can be bought in any lawn store. It can be used at home," Potter said.

It will be applied in dry powder and pellets. Since it is applied in a granular form, instead of being sprayed on, it will prevent people or animals from contact with the herbicide portion of the formula.

Treated areas of the campus will be marked off with signs informing about the caution, said Potter.

"People can look at the signs to find the instructions," he said.

The campus is being treated now because this is the time the grass needs it. The initial scheduling of fertilizer distribution was planned for earlier in the month.

"[Now] is the proper time to enhance turf area," Potter said. "We do it [throughout the seasons] to keep the turf looking good."

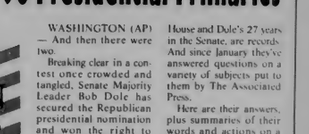
Potter said people will be asked to move off the treated areas during the process. Treated areas will be posted for a 72-hour period.

"Actually, we would like for people not to be on the lawn at all," Potter said, referring to the numerous dirt paths created because of short cuts.

The Pro–Lawn fertilizer is done in accordance with the guidelines published by the UMass Extension Turfgrass Management and the 1996 New England Guide to Weed control in Turfgrass.

The fertilizer will be applied by licensed personnel. Potter declined to name the company who is applying it.

Countdown to the '96 Presidential Primaries



WASHINGTON (AP) — And then there were two.

Breaking clear in a contest once crowded and tangled, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole has secured the Republican presidential nomination and won the right to engage President Clinton in the fall.

Neither man at this point has a comprehensive platform. But what they do have, after Clinton's three years in the White House and Dole's 27 years in the Senate, are records. And since January they've answered questions on a variety of subjects put to them by The Associated Press.

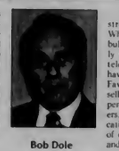
Here are their answers, plus summaries of their words and actions on a variety of issues. Positions may change, and Ross Perot may yet jump in again to mix everything up.

But as of now, this is where they stand and what they've said.

Drugs:

Bill Clinton

"While the overall drug use rate is going down, drug use among our children is still going up. When we lose these children we suffer terrible individual losses and more." Ordered cuts in aid to Colombia after concluding it was not doing enough to stop drugs. Giving public housing authorities power to evict any tenant found with drugs or involved in trafficking. Cites economic sanctions on leaders and associates of Colombia's largest cocaine cartel and cooperation with Mexico in tracking down a billionaire trafficker among U.S. advances.



Bob Dole

"The bottom line is you need strong moral leadership in the White House, somebody in the bully pulpit speaking about family values and Hollywood and television, all the violence we have and all the drugs we have" Favors mandatory sentences for selling drugs near schools, death penalty for international traffickers, more spending on drug education and treatment. Co-sponsor of congressional study on drugs and youth.

Labor acknowledges Palestinian state

By Dan Perry
Associated Press

TEL AVIV, Israel — Swiftly answering the PLO's decision to end its call for Israel's destruction, the governing Labor Party on Thursday abandoned its long-standing opposition to a Palestinian state.

With its landmark vote, Labor discarded what was once a bedrock tenet and became the first major party in Israel to at least tacitly accept the idea of an independent Palestinian state, once unthinkable for most Israelis.

The move came a day after the Palestine National Council annulled clauses in the PLO charter that called for Israel's destruction.

The momentous exchange of gestures is expected to bolster the Israeli-Palestinian peace process, frozen since a series of suicide bombings by Islamic militants in February and March killed 59 victims in Israel.

Yet Israel still faces the threat of attack from Muslim extremist groups such as Hezbollah, Islamic Jihad and Hamas. Prime Minister Shimon Peres told about 1,000 Labor Party delegates who had assembled in Tel Aviv to vote on the new platform that it would help him "achieve a comprehensive peace in the Middle East" if he is re-elected in May 29 balloting.

The new platform also abandons another major Labor Party position: that the Golan Heights, captured from Syria in 1967 and annexed in 1981, are essential to Israel's security. It says only that the strategic plateau, which Syria wants in exchange for peace, "has political importance."

Israel-Syria peace talks have been snagged for years over the Golan Heights issue.

Peres said the new platform "gives the government a free hand to negotiate."

While Peres did not explicitly say he now accepted the Palestinians' goal of statehood, he stressed that the current autonomy arrangement in the West Bank and Gaza "cannot remain." "With the Palestinians, we wish to arrive not at yet another interim settlement but a permanent settlement, a fundamental solution... total elimination of the conflict between us and the Palestinian people," he said emphatically.

The University of Massachusetts at Amherst
Every Thursday Night Jams
Acapella/Acoustics
Sabrinans, Smith Notables, DC Doo Wop Shop, Stairwell
Free Admission — Thursday April 25th 9:30pm-1:00am — At The Hatch
This performance is made possible by:
DAILY COLLEGIAN Classifieds
SEF, a grant from the Cultural Enrichment Fund, Food Services, and a grant from Greek Affairs.

Write for Arts Living, hey it's a living.

Pruddy's On-line
Visit us at http://pruddys.shorebreak.com

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN
NEW ENGLAND'S LARGEST COLLEGE DAILY

HELP WANTED:
For the Fall 1996 semester in the Collegian Graphics Dept. We are currently accepting applications for Computer Graphic Artists for both
Day Graphics (Advertising/Editorial & www. and Night Graphics (Editorial & Prepress)

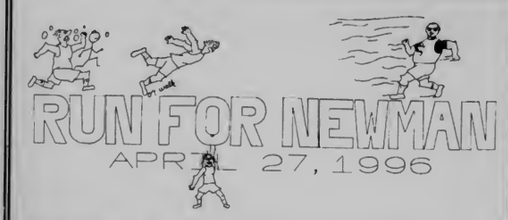
Collegian Graphics Since 1890

Applicants should have a good working knowledge of the Macintosh/IBM operating systems, good design and layout skills utilizing the following software: Microsoft Word, QuarkXPress, Adobe Illustrator & Adobe Photoshop.

Stop by the Graphics Dept. and fill out and Application. We are located at: 113 Campus Center, (the basement) Amherst, MA 01003



WHERE?: Boyden side of the UMass Alumni Stadium track

WHEN?: Saturday, April 27, 1996
9:30 a.m. (walkers);
10 a.m. (runners)

WHY?: To benefit the Newman center. Sponsors are appreciated.

REGISTRATION: At the Campus Center Concourse and the Newman Center Cafeteria 10 a.m. - 1 p.m., April 24-26 and at the Newman Center Office April 1-26.

PRIZES: Free T-shirts for the first 300 to register. $100 first prizes to first man and first woman . . . plus other valuable prizes.

For more information call the Newman Main Office at 549-0300.

EID-UL ADHA
Sunday, 28 April 1996

University of Massachusetts msa Muslim Students Association

Prayers
Will leave Haigis Mall at 7.30 AM for West Springfield Mosque

Picnic
4.00 PM at the North Village Apartments playground. Snacks would be welcomed.
Rain venue : Campus Center Room 805

For Further Information
Contact Utama at (413) 256-8482

THE UMASS SCIENCE FICTION SOCIETY PRESENTS OUR BI-ANNUAL MOVIE MARATHON
APRIL 27, 1996
CAMPUS CENTER • ROOM 163 • UMASS, AMHERST
PLEASE JOIN US FOR THE FOLLOWING MOVIES
1:00 – The Secret of NIMH (PG)
3:00 – Twilight Zone–The Movie (PG)
5:00 – Fahrenheit 451 (PG)
7:30 – Outland (R)
9:30 – Dune (PG13)
ALL FILMS ARE FREE

Position Available at the
Collegian
Circulation Manager Needed
Make good money and get good experience

DAILY COLLEGIAN
New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967
113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Marni F. Helfner Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gunley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Lisa Chiu Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor Sean Gibson Staff Artist
Gregory Cosmie Co-Black Affairs Editor Anna Lotto Co-Women's Issues Editor
Humphries brown III Co-Black Affairs Editor Hannah Thorne Co-Women's Issues Editor
Sunanda Ghosh Co-Developing Nations Editor Tony Morse Editorial Production Manager
Ibrahim Ali Co-Developing Nations Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Bob Dunn Editorial/Opinion Editor Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Lisa M. Olivera Guy Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor Lee Weiner Distribution Manager
Anna Feder Jewish Affairs Editor Position Vacant Classifieds Manager
Lisa Chiu Multicultural Affairs Editor Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Amy Paradyse News Editor Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Emily Reh Photographic Editor Marty Pappo Classified Advertising
Candice Hemming Sports Editor Thomas F. Sweenie, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1907, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Notes from the Campus Center Basement

Dave Copeland

As graduation draws near, we'll soon be hearing about commencement speakers and honorary degree recipients. That brings to mind a 1989 incident where our esteemed President, William "Where the hell is Route 2?" Bulger became the center of a minor controversy over an honorary degree he was slated to receive.

Believe it or not, the controversy was not played out on the steps of the Student Union, but instead on Beacon Hill. In fact, there was little mention of the stir in western Massachusetts.

In presenting the degree to Bulger, the University of Massachusetts broke an unspoken policy that discouraged the bestowing of such honors on sitting politicians. Bulger, who was known to believe that the borders of Massachusetts started and ended in South Boston, had been nominated for the degree by Gerard Burke, a UMass alumnus who also happened to be on Bulger's legal payroll for the tune of $55,000 per year.

To make matters worse, Bulger was selected over then House Speaker George Keverkian, who over the years had built himself a reputation as one of the University's biggest supporters. After several years of trying, Keverkian finally got the state legislature to set aside bond funds for the Mullins Center in 1988. The sports complex may long be known as the "House That Cal Built," but it was people like Keverkian who got the state to foot some of the bill.

In the wake of the controversy, sources told The Boston Globe it would be difficult for the trustees to overturn their recommendation for the honorary degree in fear of a Bulger "retaliation."

The question is, if Bulger doesn't get his way as UMass President, do we have a retaliation to fear?

*****

UMass now has a motor sports club. I don't feel I have to write much more than that to make you chuckle.

*****

The University of New Hampshire faced a rape crisis similar to the one we're experiencing now not too long ago. UNH's problems started in 1987 with a violent gang rape, and reached a peak in the fall of 1992, when 14 rapes were reported in the first two and half months of the school year. Of the 14 rapes in Durham, 10 were on campus and 13 were so-called "date rapes." Many of the rapes occurred within the UNH Greek system, and student leaders soon began to criticize the administration for fostering a "rape culture."

To label any guy who has worn Greek letters here at UMass as a potential rapist is ignorant and leads to the mentality where we all walk around fearing each other. But it is fair to criticize the leaders of the Greek area for not implementing or re-articulating a clear-cut policy to quell the problem that has swelled up within their ranks. So far, their response has been a lot of talk and symbolic gestures, but no one has stepped forward and said, "This is what we have to do and this is how we're going to do it."

UNH quelled it's problem by increasing awareness programs, which were particularly directed at freshmen, student athletes and members of fraternities and sororities. In addition, the Greek area made a sincere effort to increase security measures at their social functions that involved alcohol.

As for the perpetrators of these crimes at UMass, whether they are Greek or not, their only redeeming quality is they will indeed someday die, and with a bit of luck it might be a cruel and painful end to a cruel and miserable life.

*****

Finally today, we take a look at the mighty Amherst Police Department. Early Sunday morning a colleague and I were driving on North Pleasant Street when we stopped to pick up some hitch hikers who had missed the last bus by about four hours.

As my friend cleared his record collection out of the back seat to make room for the trio of hitch hikers, two officers stopped and asked what he was doing.

"I'm moving my records."

"Oh," they said, as if this was a perfectly normal thing to be doing at 3 a.m. in the morning in the middle of a major avenue.

Then they came to me. I was chewing tobacco at the time, which is admittedly a nasty habit, but what the hell — we all have our vices.

"What are you drinking?" I was asked.

"Spit."

"Hey," the cop called to his partner, "This guy's drinking spit!"

"Yuck! Yuck! Haw! Haw! I bet that tastes good!"

And with that, they were gone. If they had even bothered to go through the most routine checks they would have learned that my colleague was driving without a license in his possession. I guess there were some vigilante jay-walkers to arrest.

In any case, I still feel thoroughly protected by the Amherst P.D. The fact that I live in Northampton has a lot to do with that sense of security.

Dave Copeland is a Collegian columnist.

Who are you really?

Liana Melinnis

I was so afraid that when my older sister went away to school, she would become a completely different person. My final words to her were "whatever you do, don't change." Each time we'd speak, I made sure to notice any slight differences in her tone of voice, her expressions, even her laugh. To me, the worst thing she could do, was change.

Three years later, when it was my turn to go away, I promised my mother I would always be her "little girl" and I would never change. Even my friends and I made a pact with one another we wouldn't change — we'd always be best friends. I just assumed I'd go to school, party hard, study harder, meet tons of people and earn my degree. It wasn't until late last semester when I was hit with a huge realization: I have changed. I'm not the person I was a year ago, or even six months ago — that person is a stranger to me.

When I look in the mirror I come face to face with a person I am still becoming acquainted with — myself. Going away to school is not what I had it figured out to be. If I learn anything in the years I am here, it is who I am.

Change is an essential part of life, yet it is something we back away from so quickly. I'll be honest, I am petrified of change, because for as long as I can remember, it always meant something bad was happening. My mother would simply say, "things are changing again, we have but another transition to go through." She didn't have to say any more. She said this when my sister left, when she divorced my father and when I journeyed to UMass. Each time she said this I was filled with fear, but somehow, I always knew what to do. I always knew things would work out. After a while, I learned that these changes weren't as horrible as I believed them to be, in fact, they helped to mold me into the person I am today.

So when I say I've changed, I don't mean completely. I'm not unrecognizable. I don't look any different. Physically I'm exactly the same, it's inside that I'm referring to. I've realized more and more each day what truly matters in life, who the important people are and just what things take priority over others. Leaving home has only made me appreciate it more; sacrificing all that was familiar to me has only made me realize that I can make it on my own. It has taken hundreds of dollars in phone bills to know that my best friends are still my best friends. And as much as I've changed, and as much as they've changed, when we are all together, it's as though we never even left. I guess in life there are some things that will never change.

Discovering oneself is, perhaps, the greatest discovery there is to find. When you finally realize what is important in life, when you know where you belong, when you find peace, it is obvious you have embarked on this discovery. I know — I've come to realize that family is the most valued thing in my life, that being loved is the most fulfilling feeling there might possibly be in the world and that home really is the sweetest place. When you come to this realization, you'll smile on the outside, you'll be really proud of yourself, maybe, for some of you, it will be the first time. I really like the person I have become at UMass, and I'm not one to give myself too much credit. But I have seen the change in myself, and it's a really great change, and I'm not afraid of it.

From being here, on my own, I have gained incredible strength. I have taken responsibility for my own actions. I have decided to live my life the way I want to live it, not the way I'm supposed to live it. And there will always be things, that as Liana Melinnis, I will never change, like twirling my hair, sleeping with my woobie and talking with my Long Island accent. These are things I've done all my life, these are things that will never change, because they are stable and they represent who I am. I'm finally to the point in life where I believe in myself, where I know my limits and my potentials, where I look at others, and only see their best qualities. Everyone will reach this point in their years at UMass, many already have. When you get there, don't forget to take the time to appreciate this change, it's a really amazing thing.

When my mother talks about me, I am still referred to as "the baby" of the family, and when I sit on her lap, she calls me that. And she knows that I am an adult now. She knows I am independent and she respects my decisions, but, somehow, I am still her baby.

There comes a time in life when you become an adult, when you consider your parents to be friends; when you drink a beer with your dad for the first time, when you don't mind holding your mom's hand in public anymore. This is a time when you decide to learn from your past, instead of holding it responsible for your fate, this is when you forgive those who have hurt you and just move on, knowing you are a stronger person. For me, each day is a new discovery, and on some of those days, I can actually feel myself changing inside.

Let it happen, but don't make it happen, when you're ready it'll just come, and until then don't let go of the hope that tomorrow will be a beautiful day.

Liana Melinnis is a UMass student.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

BASE, THIS IS THREE. THE LINE SEEMS TO BE MOVING WELL. NO ANOMALIES TO REPORT.
HEY MAN, ARE YOU ZONK'S SECURITY GUY?
YES, BUT I CAN'T TALK TO YOU, SIR — I'M ON DUTY
4.27
THE Z-MANS REALLY SOMETHING, ISN'T HE? BIG STAR LIKE THAT, AND HE'S GRACIOUS TO EVERYONE!
I CAN'T TALK, SIR.
I WANT YOUR BABY
YOU CAN HAVE HER. THE NANNY THINGS HAS REALLY GOT TEN OLD LATELY

Opinion/Editorial

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian.

The return of Michael Jackson

Martin F. Jones

During this past semester, I've written about a number of notable public figures, and in the process generated some interesting dialogue on the likes of Bill Weld, W.E.B. Du Bois, and Louis Farrakhan. And I must say, it's been quite a ride. However, my journey would be incomplete without an honest and frank critique on perhaps the most notorious public personality in HIStory. Yes, I'm talking about the King of Pop himself, Michael Jackson.

Before you rush to the bathroom to regurgitate, I must warn you: the words that lie ahead are not for the tenderhearted. In fact, you may find them to be downright blasphemous, but nevertheless, the truth must be told.

Michael is no longer "the greatest entertainer in the world" (yeah, you ain't kidding!). Ah, to the contrary, Michael has transcended the world of trivial entertainment many, many years ago. Now, in 1996, 15 years after his album Thriller skyrocketed into music history, Michael has, in fact evolved to become a global icon of epic proportions. It could even be argued that he has become, in all actuality, the most powerful and the most important personality in the history of the world!

Michael Jackson? The child molester? I've got to be joking! I must be completely mad, right? Wrong!

First, let's look at all the facts. For starters, Michael Jackson is the only man in the world who can travel to any corner of the globe and fill 90,000 seat stadiums for days at a time with throngs of delirious, devoted mobs of people screaming, sobbing and weeping at his feet. (Michael calls them his fans). There is even a cult of Michael Jackson fans called "The Moonies" who believe that Michael is the Messiah.

In 1984, at the height of his popularity, Michael was invited to the White House by President Ronald Reagan in an historic photo-op which was essential to Reagan's reelection. Yes, he was so big that year that the public nearly forgot all about the Gipper and his charming grin. Without Michael's visit and unspoken endorsement, he would have otherwise completely upstaged the popular incumbent president. Since then Michael has also met with President Bush at the White House, sang along Bill, Hillary and Chelsea Clinton on the steps of Lincoln Memorial, and performed for the Queen of England in a Royal Command Performance at Buckingham Palace.

Michael Jackson's wide-reaching appeal has transcended all racial, gender, age, national and religious barriers, making him accessible to more people than anyone else in history. Add to the equation, a growing global multimedia revolution that will connect more and more people to the "World of Michael Jackson."

When Michael appears on television for an interview, or to premiere one of his new videos, no less than 500 million people tune in simultaneously from around the world. MTV, the music television through which he pioneered his videos, has now gone worldwide and has expanded its programming to encompass a complete range and assortment of American popular culture.

Michael Jackson is the single most awarded entertainer in history, and still holds the world record for the biggest selling album of all time, Thriller at 48 million and counting.

His career spans over 25 years during which the world has watched him grow from a cute, chubby-cheeked little bundle of pure energy, to an international cultural sensation. Yes, Michael Jackson is more than just a man, he is an institution.

And an expanding one at that. A one-man multi-media empire, Michael has recently combined his artistic talent and business savvy to launch his newly established Kingdom Entertainment, an international multi-media conglomerate set to expand his empire to include television, film, animation, hotels, books, toys and theme parks. Footing the start up costs for this mega-enterprise is none other than Prince Wahleed, the multi-billionaire nephew of King Fahd, ruler of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia and guardian of half of the world's oil reserves.

Make no mistakes, Michael is on a mission. A big mission. You see, when Michael says he's going to "Heal the World," he means it! His new humanitarian Heal the World Foundation has raised nearly $100 million to help sick and needy children around the world. Mr. Jackson has even secured the assistance of former President Jimmy Carter to work in tandem with the foundation.

And take note of his Earthsong Video. The message here is clear. Michael, portrayed as the spokesperson for the entire planet, confronts God Almighty himself on the world's suffering and receives a dazzling, stormy, and life- affirming response. Endangered animals rise from the dead, butchered trees in the rain forest return to their roots, and even a slain man in a war zone opens his eyes and stands up again.

Whew! Pretty heavy stuff! This scenario pales in comparison to Michael's HIStory short film, which depicts the pop singer marching through the streets of Budapest with crowds of people calling out his name and thousands of digitally enhanced soldiers marching behind him in tandem. The climax features a gargantuan statue of Michael himself unveiled in the city's central square, with more mobs of screaming patrons abound. Critics have called the scene, "the most vain-glorious act of self-deification a pop singer ever undertook with a straight face."

Yes, Michael is taking no shorts. He is determined to make his comeback, this time bigger and badder than ever before. But before I go on, no doubt you are still troubled by the child molestation scandal that rocked the entertainer's world three years ago. What the hell happened? Why is this guy out roaming the streets of Budapest, Paris and Rio de Janeiro when he should be rotting in a jail cell somewhere with other like-minded perverts?

The answer is simple. Michael Jackson is 100 percent innocent.

How do I know? I just do.

Trust me, I've never been wrong before, and I'm definitely not wrong now. Mark my words, within the next twelve months Michael will be completely exonerated of his alleged misconduct, redeemed beyond belief and resurrected to new heights that will defy all imagination. Yes, the King of Pop is going to make the biggest comeback in the history of modern civilization! And you ask how such a miraculous turnabout will take place for Michael's career? Well, unfortunately, due to space constraints, you'll have to read about Michael's resurrection in my next column of the Friday edition of the Collegian.

Martin F. Jones is a columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Camera supporters insult students

To the editor:

I am writing to clear up some misconceptions about the action referenda question that dealt with the installation of video surveillance in the dormitories. Student Trustee Dan Rivera and I co-authored the question which appeared on the ballot of the Spring SGA elections. We developed a non-biased question that read, "Do you support or oppose installing video surveillance cameras in the lobbies of residence halls to increase public safety?"

The installation of video cameras in residence halls raises the issue of what privacy rights should residents of dormitories have and does the installation of video cameras in dormitories violate a student's right to privacy. Trustee Rivera and I felt that this controversial issue should be decided in a referenda question by the entire student body in the Spring SGA elections.

The SGA had spring elections a few weeks ago and by almost 300 votes students across campus said that they do not want video surveillance cameras in the dormitories. In the official vote 1042 students were opposed to installing video cameras in the dormitories and 749 students supported the installation of video cameras in dormitories.

The proponents of installing video cameras in dormitories will not accept the fact that they lost in a fair democratic process in which students across campus said they do not want video cameras in the dormitories. The pro video camera people are elitist whom think that they are smarter than the average UMass student. These elitist pro video camera people are playing the role of big brother to the student body by trying to force video cameras down the throats of students. The pro video camera people keep preaching that students made the wrong choice when they voted against the installation of video cameras in dormitories. They say that students were uneducated and misinformed about the ballot question.

The students at UMass are not stupid and the pro video camera people are insulting the intelligence on the student body by claiming students were misinformed about the ballot question. Students understood the ballot question and they knew what they voted for. The students decided that the protection of their civil liberties and their right to privacy in their residence halls is extremely important and must not be infringed upon by the installation of video surveillance cameras.

Peter Luongo
Senator
Student Government Association

Arts & Living

It's gonna be a mad, mad show

By Mike Burke
Collegian Staff

The Iron Horse Music Hall will be a mad house tonight as the famed British dub producer, Neil Fraser (a.k.a. Mad Professor) takes the stage in an ultra live rare performance as he displays his legendary producing skills.

Over the past two decades, the Mad Professor has released over 100 albums (that's right 100) many of them on his own Ariwa Records! He has split his time recording his own material and remixing other artists' works.

His moniker came from his childhood because he always played with wires and electronics. This love of technology led the Mad Professor to begin producing records. In the late 1970s, the Mad Professor nearly single-handedly reinvented the genre of dub reggae as he used his Ariwa Studio to twist artists' sounds with samples and overdubs. Reggae and dub artists from both England and Jamaica hailed him as the premier remixer as he 'chopped, diced and sliced' their tunes. The mad man used crazy samples from classical music to cut-and-paste sound effects — experimentation was his key to success.

Over the past 20 years, the Mad Professor has kept up at a frantic pace producing album after album of his own work and others. In recent years, the Mad Professor has connected with several of England's hottest dance acts and trip hop acts including Massive Attack who he has worked with extensively. He has also produced Dub DJ, U-Roy, Lee "Scratch" Perry and Ruis D.C.

Tonight's show will be a unique live performance featuring two vocalists and a group of live musicians. On the sidelines, the Mad Professor will be off fooling around with his electronic toys from DAT machines to tape loops.

The Mad Professor performs at the Iron Horse tonight at 10 p.m. The show is all ages. Please call the club at 584- 0610 for more information.

The Mad Professor will be spinning the black circle tonight.

Ani DiFranco

COURTESY FLEMING-TAMULEVICH

Mechanics fails to do DiFranco justice

By Marni E. Helfner
Collegian Staff

ANI DIFRANCO
Mechanics Hall
April 24

WORCESTER — Ani DiFranco deserved a better venue than Mechanics Hall; she was "on" and unfortunately, gave a great show in a bad hall.

DiFranco played Wednesday night at Worcester's Mechanics Hall which was less then half full. Mechanics Hall, a restored historical building used primarily for plays, proms and social events, was not an ideal location for a rock concert. From the portraits of Lincoln and other politicians which lined the walls to the organ which seemed to overshadow DiFranco, Mechanics Hall left the audience feeling like they were watching Twisted Sister in Carnegie Hall.

DiFranco greeted the crowd and talked about the location in which she was playing. "The people here are really nice... they said the last time they had a rock and roll band play here was 15 years ago — Riders of the Purple Sage," she said.

DiFranco then launched into several tunes from her seven self-produced albums, singing mostly from the last two, Out of Range and Not a Pretty Girl.

One of the more humorous moments during the concert was when DiFranco pointed to a portrait of George Washington. "Isn't that ironic? Old George there has his hand on the horse's ass. Founding father, horse's ass, Founding Father, horse's ass," she said.

While she is currently working on a new album, DiFranco only sang one new unnamed song, about a man who rides a motorcycle and is two-timing her — but she doesn't have a problem with it. DiFranco commented on this lack of new music. "I'm sorry, I've been 'doing' more than 'documenting.'"

Five College Film Fest awards local talent

By Laura Stock
Collegian Staff

Amherst College's Stirn Auditorium will be host to a screening of some of the most outstanding student-made films in the Valley tonight at the third annual Five College Film Festival.

Sponsored by the Five College Film Council, the Festival will showcase eight award-winning films, as well as several be norable mentions.

According to Michael Bowes, a University of Massachusetts student and head organizer of the Festival, the third festival will be very different from the first two.

"We've hit a bit of a plateau with submissions," Bowes said.

The Five College Council received only 25 submissions at the first festival, three years ago. Last year, the total nearly doubled with 46 student films entering the race. This year, 53 hopeful filmmakers submitted their crafts for the competition.

Originally, the Festival divided entries into four categories: animation, documentary, experimental and narrative. An award was given to the "best" film in each category, as well as a "Best of Festival" award for the most outstanding film.

This year, after a long and arduous judging process, the Council decided to keep the Best of Festival prize and award eight other exemplary films, not being bound to specific categories.

The change was made "because a lot of the films were cross-categoried and could fit into different realms," Bowes said.

According to Joanna Champagne, a Smith College submissions coordinator and judge, the film entries are more evenly distributed between the five colleges this year.

The Five College Film Festival will begin tonight at 7 p.m. in Stirn Auditorium. Admission is free and refreshments will be served. The program is expected to run about four hours.

Summer at Brandeis University
Liberal Arts
Near Eastern and Judaic Studies
Premedical Sciences
Chamber Music Workshop
Internship Program in Law, Medicine and Health Policy
Intensive Hebrew Language Institute
Spanish Immersion Program
Session I — June 3-July 5
Session II — July 8-August 9
• Small classes taught by Brandeis faculty
• Competitive tuition
• Courses for high school, undergraduate and graduate students
• Easy access from Rtes. 128/95/90
• Free Parking
Save over $500 on summer classes, by enrolling before April 30.
Information, catalog and application:
Summer Program Office
Rabb School of Summer, Special, and Continuing Studies
Brandeis University, MS 004
P.O. Box 9110
Waltham, MA 02254-9110
(617) 736-3424
FAX: (617) 736-3420
email: summer@brandeis.edu
© heller.ec.brandeis.edu

Write for Arts & Living
Contact Tara MK Connelly
545-1361

Cotton Affordable Rayon
Cards Rings Incense Candles
T-Shirts Dresses
Shorts Earrings
Sale
20 to 50% off selected Clothing
The GreatGifts Mercantile
Th.-Fri. 9PM Sun 12-5 Daily 10-6
Northampton-18 Center St. Amherst-Carriage Shops

Editorial/ Opinion
Needs Writers!
If you're interested in writing call Bob Dunn at 545-3500

Collegian Graphics, up all night, and for that matter we're up all day, in fact we never sleep.

IF
IF you would like the use of a new car.
IF you believe in honesty and integrity.
IF you are hardworking and ambitious.
IF you want security and opportunity.
HURRY!!
Come to Toyota/Lincoln Mercury of Northampton Monday thru Friday from 10-4 p.m. without obligation and inquire regarding this very interesting sales position. Anyone may apply. No experience necessary. See Mr. Richard or Mr. Raff for application and interview.
OUR LOT IS OPEN FOR BROWSING SUNDAYS 10AM-5PM
NORTHAMPTON TOYOTA LINCOLN MERCURY
280 King St, (Rte. 5) Northampton E.O.E.

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
STARTS SUN.-5 DAYS ONLY/No Film This Fri. & Sat.
at 7:00 Apr.28-May 2 at 9:00 Apr. 28-May 2
"A STUNNING WORK OF SPECULATIVE FICTION" JAMES CAMERON
"JAPAN'S FIRST WORLD CLASS ANIMATED MOVIE" POLITYOOD ONLINE
Mamoru Oshii's Animated Thriller
GHOST IN THE SHELL
IT FOUND A HOST... NOW IT NEEDS A BODY.
"THERE WON'T BE A BETTER FILM THAN THIS ALL YEAR" "TWO THUMBS UP, WAY UP!" ★★★★ A DAZZLING MIX OF MIRTH AND MALICE. TERRIFIC TWISTED COMEDY Gene Siskel's Best Films and Videos
FARGO
a homespun murder story
From the team that gave you Blood Simple and Raising Arizona
ACADEMY of MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Cinema Treasures 584-8435

DANCE at CLUB METRO
492 Pleasant St. Northampton 582-9898 with Wednesday Night D.J. Steve sponsored by the UMass LBGA
Monday, April 29th
18+ $2.00 at the door
Get in free before 10:00!!!!
Everyone Welcome Call 545-0154 for info

$500 X-treme Fun College Incentive
Plus, 2 Year Free-Ride Toyota Auto Care
Available to all College Students!
If you're a college student with the ambition to pursue X-treme fun you can receive a $500 Certificate good toward the purchase or lease of any new 1996 or 1997 Toyota.
Plus 2 Year Free-Ride Toyota Auto Care which includes 24 hour Roadside Assistance, Oil Changes & Inspections. Eligible college graduates also get added incentives including No Money Down financing or a Lease with No Security Deposit required.
But don't wait... this limited offer ends September 30, 1996!
Call our toll-free number or visit our web site today to obtain your free $500 X-treme Fun College Incentive Certificate. Choose from a wide selection of any new 1996 or 1997 Toyota models including...
COROLLA CAMRY TERCEL
Beyond the elementary in Toyota quality. Sporty yet pragmatic performance. Doesn't Last for youthful function & styling.
TOYOTA
RAV4
1-800-GO-TOYOTA ask for "College"
OUR LOT IS OPEN FOR BROWSING SUNDAYS 10AM-5PM
NORTHAMPTON TOYOTA LINCOLN MERCURY

SELF-STORAGE
One Rate, One Payment, One Carefree Summer.
It all adds up to one great summer break: our carefree one-easy-payment self storage plan.
We've neatly packaged our rates in a specially tailored program to accommodate your school's summer schedule. That way, with one easy payment, you can take off without a worry.
FREE LOCK WITH STUDENT ID
And, by showing us your student ID, we'll even give you a free lock. How's that for easy living?
Call now to reserve a room, or if you have any questions. Better yet, stop by today.
HOLYOKE 539-9261 Chicopee 535-3037
$29.95
U-HAUL

GRADUATING THIS SPRING?
Do you have a mind to travel to China Poland Namibia
Thailand Costa Rica
Ecuador Lithuania Mexico
South Africa Vietnam?
Something you already know can change a life. Volunteer with WorldTeach
1-800-4-TEACH-0
worldteach@hiild.harvard.edu

Gardner finds niche; blanks Braves

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A month ago, Mark Gardner was headed to the minor leagues for the Florida Marlins. Now he's the best starting pitcher for the San Francisco Giants.

Gardner pitched a four-hitter and tied his career high with 11 strikeouts, as the Giants broke a three-game losing streak with an 8-0 win Thursday over the Atlanta Braves.

Gardner (2-0), a journeyman who also has pitched for Montreal and Kansas City, was offered a choice by the Marlins in late March — accept a demotion to the minors, or get released and sign with another club as a free agent.

Gardner allowed only a double by Rafael Belliard, a pair of singles by Mark Lemke and a single by David Justice in getting his fifth career shutout.

Gardner threw San Francisco's first shutout since last June 4. Chipper Jones, who had four hits against the Giants in an 8-3 win Wednesday night, struck out twice and went 0-for-4 against Gardner.

"That's one of the best curve balls I've ever seen," Jones said. "He was down in the strike zone. You can't pitch much better than that."

Lampkin hit a three-run homer, while Barry Bonds, Robby Thompson and Steve Scarsone added solo homers for the Giants.

Bonds' homer, his seventh of the season, was the 298th of his career. His next homer will make him the fourth major leaguer with 300 homers and 300 stolen bases, joining Willie Mays, Andre Dawson and his father, Bobby Bonds.

Bonds also walked three times and had two stolen bases. Matt Williams singled in the sixth for San Francisco, his 999th career hit. Glenallen Hill added an RBI single for the Giants.

Jason Schmidt (2-1) lasted 3 2-3 innings for Atlanta, allowing six runs on just three hits. He struck out five and walked four, and his throwing error in the second gave the Giants their first run.

Schmidt, who came into the game having not allowed any homers in 17 1-3 innings this season, allowed two of the San Francisco homers.

Marlins 4, Pirates 1

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Al Leiter had a huge advantage against Pittsburgh even before he threw a pitch, and it had nothing to do with career records or lifetime batting averages. It had everything to do with being left-handed.

Quilvio Veras' three-run homer backed Leiter's shutout pitching for 7 2-3 innings, and the Florida Marlins ended a seven-game losing streak in Pittsburgh by beating the Pirates 4-1 Thursday.

Leiter (4-1) defeated Pittsburgh for the second time in as many starts to join Atlanta's John Smoltz and San Diego's Joey Hamilton as the NL's only four-game winners.

Florida is 4-15 in Three Rivers Stadium and hadn't won there since last May 23. The seven-game streak matched Florida's longest in any opposing ballpark.

"People told me we don't play well here, but I don't know that," said Leiter, who has four of the Marlins' NL-low nine victories. "I walked too many, but I still maintained an aggressive attitude. I told myself, 'OK, what can I do now to get some outs?'"

Leiter shook off seven walks, gave up four hits and struck out five to drop Pittsburgh's record against left-handed starters to 2-8. The Pirates were only 13-28 against left-handers last season. "I don't think left-handers have any magic over us or anything," said Al Martin, who had an RBI double in the ninth off Robb Nen, who got his third save.

"We've had our chances against left-handers, and had leads late in the game against them. But it seems the days we get good pitching, we don't score."

Still, manager Jim Leyland won't stack his lineup with right-handed hitters or make any radical changes in the batting order to shake his team out of its left-handed lethargy.

"We didn't have some good at-bats... we got seven walks, but we didn't score until the ninth inning," Leyland said. "They should never get out of it without any scoring when they give you seven walks."

The Marlins, hitting a league-low .220, managed six hits off John Hope (0-1) and two relievers. But Florida turned Hope's first-inning wildness into a run without needing a hit.

Hope, making his first major league start since Oct. 3, 1993, walked Veras and Joe Orsulak and threw nine consecutive balls at one point, prompting an early visit from Leyland. Hope also made an errant pickoff throw that did not result in any scoring.

Veras, whose 56 steals led the majors last season, then stole third and scored on Jeff Conine's sacrifice fly. Conine was moved from cleanup into the No. 3 spot by manager Rene Lachemann in an effort to generate more offense and protect the streaking Gary Sheffield.

After right fielder Orlando Merced threw out Orsulak as he tried to score on Sheffield's fly ball, Hope settled down until Veras hit his second homer of the season in the fifth. The drive came after Alex Arias singled and Leiter reached on a force play.

"The leadoff hitter is probably the last guy you expect to go deep on you," Hope said. "I wish I could have that pitch back. I wanted to go right at him because he's been swinging hard at first-pitch fastballs. I threw him a sinker, but it didn't move enough and he hit it out."

Leiter, signed away from Toronto last winter as a free agent, limited Pittsburgh to a run over seven innings in his first NL start April 4.

Phillies 7, Rockies 1

DENVER (AP) — Kevin Stocker, showing surprising power, homered twice and drove in five runs Thursday, leading the Philadelphia Phillies past the Colorado Rockies 7-1.

Stocker, batting eighth in the lineup, set career highs for home runs and RBIs in a game. He began the day with only one homer — it came Wednesday at Coors Field — and six RBIs this year.

Stocker hit a three-run homer in the second inning and a two-run shot in the ninth. Stocker, who also walked twice, had only one homer in 412 at-bats last season.

Mark Whiten also homered as the Phillies completed a two-game sweep and won their third in a row. Philadelphia is 4-1 against the Rockies this year.

Sid Fernandez (2-2) scattered five hits in six innings. He struck out six and walked two, and escaped a bases-loaded ham in the sixth by retiring Vinny Castilla on a fly ball and fanning Jayhawk Owens.

Ken Ryan tied a career high with five strikeouts, allowing only one hit in three innings for his second save.

The Rockies' run came in the first when Eric Young walked, stole second and third base and scored as catcher Benito Santiago's throw sailed into left field.

Stocker gave Philadelphia a 3-1 lead with a two-out homer in the second. Todd Zeile and Santiago walked ahead of Stocker.

Mark Thompson (0-1) walked five in the second inning. He finished with eight walks, gave up five hits and four runs in five innings.

Whiten homered just inside the right-field foul pole leading off the fifth inning, his third of the year. Santiago's two-out single in the sixth scored Whiten and made it 5-1.

■ tennis

continued from page 10

ranked opponents in the A- 10 Tournament, defeating the No. 4 seeded Duquesne for the fifth place. The Minutemen lost to the No. 3 seed, Temple.

Adding to the difficulties is the presence of Providence and Hartford in the tournament, both of which the Minutemen lost to.

"Maybe we'll end up in second place," Dixon said. "It's hard to say. There's nothing to say that it can't happen."

Hartford is favored to finish at least second, but few can argue that such a position is very secure with the talented young Minutemen. Cheney was the bright spot in the team's last two losses, not losing a singles match in both, leaving Dixon confident and optimistic.

"We are among the top four teams in all of New England, and we are one of the teams to beat in this tournament," said Dixon.

The tournament features single elimination singles matches held in the morning, and doubles matches in the afternoon. Final tournament rankings will be determined by the accumulation of points gained by each school.

■ women's lax

continued from page 10

up. She is an underrated player, no one really knows about her.

"However, she always seems to be contributing a goal, or two. Without her, we do not have that person to keep the offense settled," she said.

Another strong position for UMass was goaltending. The duo of senior Trish DiBenedetto, and freshman Melissa Borodinsky, both kept Vermont out of the net with some outstanding saves.

"Our goalies complement each other. Trish has been solid, and Melissa seems to be stepping it up as of late. It's been a tough year for them, but they are showing signs of consistency," McClellan said.

The Vermont game was a huge positive for the team. Not only did the Minutewomen control the game, but they saw some things in themselves that they had been lacking.

"This was definitely a return to form for us," McClellan said.

It could not of come at a better time for Massachusetts, as it faces Boston College on Friday.

"The BC game is an important game for us. I think that we can expect a close, well played game. If we go out there and just have some fun, I think that we will be successful," McClellan said.

■ polo

continued from page 10

shut-out in team history last weekend by blanking Wesleyan 13-0... against the five ranked schools they have played this year, the Minutewomen are 3-2... last season the team finished sixth at the Eastern Championships... Bamond broke the UMass season record for assists with two last weekend against Wesleyan. She now stands with 19 on the year... Bamond is also seven goals short of her own single season record for goals and five points short of her season point tally record... the team has already improved on last season's totals for goals, assists, and points. They now stand at 219 goals, 124 assists and 343 points.

1996 SUMMER SESSION

Division of Continuing Education

Direction for Your Life.

Call 413-545-0107 for a free course catalog. E-mail: contined@admin.umass.edu

University of Massachusetts at Amherst

CAMPUS ACTIVITIES AT THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS PRESENTS

A WEEKLY PROGRAM SERIES: SOMETHING EVERY FRIDAY

Ventriloquist Lynn Trefzger

Bluewall Cafe • April 26th 1996 • 8pm • FREE

The Movie "Toy Story" Immediately Following Performance

"Corn Pops", "Trident" Gum, & Punch available

This series is made possible by a grant from Auxiliary Services and the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs

WMSA Western Massachusetts Software Association

Job Fair '96

Monday, April 29, 11:00am to 7:30pm

Springfield Sheraton Hotel - Grand Ballroom
Springfield, MA

- Software Engineers
- Systems Analysts
- MIS Professionals
- Quality Assurance
- Software Managers
- Technical Writers
- Network Specialists
- Technical Publications
- System Administrators
- and many more!!

OVER 25 COMPANIES ATTENDING!

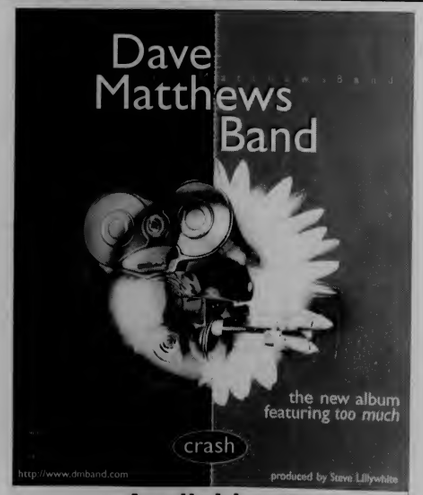
Free Validated Parking

Workshops In Resumes & Interviewing
1:00pm • 2:00pm • 3:00pm

Directions:
North: Take I-91S to Exit 7 Springfield Center, Columbus Ave. Take 1st Left onto Boland Way. Hotel Entrance on Right.
South: Take I-91N to Exit 6 Columbus Ave., 3rd set of lights. Take Right onto Boland Way. Hotel Entrance on Right.
West: Take Mass Pike East to Exit 4 onto I-91S. Take Exit 7 Springfield Center, Columbus Ave. Take 1st Left onto Boland Way. Hotel Entrance on Right.
East: Take Mass Pike West to Exit 6, to I-291W onto I-91S, to Exit 7 Springfield Center, Columbus Ave. Take 1st Left onto Boland Way. Hotel Entrance on Right.
Parking in 3 locations. Within the Sheraton itself, across the street at Bayside West Shopping Center, or directly beneath Route 91 in front of the hotel.

Sponsors:

Amerinex Applied Imaging · WRNX 100.9 FM · Doherty, Wallace, Pillsbury and Murphy, P.C. Attorneys at Law · JavaNet · CSDG, inc. · CBS Group 3 Systems Incorporated · DataViews



Available at Newbury Comics

■ men's lax

continued from page 10

points), Rob Kavovit (28-23-51) and Casey Powell (23-22-45).

Jason Gebhardt will get the starting nod in net for Syracuse coach Roy Simmons Jr. On the year, the Orangeman goaltender has a .598 save percentage, allowing 11.54 goals per game.

"I hope this is going to be an 8–5 [UMass win] game like Notre Dame last week," Cannella said. "I hope we can keep the scoring down, if we can we have a good shot to win."

Controlling the ball is a factor Cannella feels is key to the Minutemen's success, and his midfielder Jay Robbins has done a terrific job of late winning face-offs. In the past three Minuteman contests, Robbins has won 46 of 65 draws, for a .708 winning percentage.

"Syracuse is explosive and we need to slow them down," Cannella said. "They score well on transition and we haven't done a great job at that this year at times. But we're going to have to possess the ball on offense and slow them down.

"We're going to have to limit our mistakes. They force you into a lot of mistakes but we have to limit them and we're going to have to go out there and play with a lot of heart."

Broadcast Notes: The UMass/Syracuse game will be broadcast live on WMUA 91.1 FM from the Carrier Dome with "The Walrus" Dan Welch on play-by-play and Justin C. Smith on color.

■ horn

continued from page 10

Instead of passing, running and tackling, the issue of domestic violence came to the forefront at the NFL draft. It came about, of course, because of Nebraska running back Lawrence Phillips.

Despite the fact that Phillips attacked his former girlfriend in the fall, the St. Louis Rams decided that he was still worth it to select him No. 6 in the draft.

While Phillips made headlines, his Nebraska teammate Christian Peter's frightening past slipped through the cracks, and the Patriots drafted him in the third round.

Peter, who has been charged with a variety of sex-related crimes, as well as urinating in public and disturbing the peace, has basically been a complete jackass in his career as a Cornhusker.

What was even more frightening, was that unlike Phillips, Peter didn't even fake remorse, saying something like, "I'm from a big city." The things that get big news here wouldn't get that news in a big city.

So with these facts the Patriots did the right thing. They dumped him on the same part of his body that he has acted like for four years at Nebraska.

Football-wise the Patriots needed Christian Peter, to help improve their football team, but morally the New England area certainly didn't.

The Patriot organization could have pulled a smoke and mirrors routine by setting up counseling for him and making him do community service and donate money to a women's shelter to make him appear like the good citizen.

Instead Bob Kraft decided that he wasn't worth the trouble.

Hopefully this will strike fear into the hearts of other athletes who think it's okay to abuse women. The NFL should use Peter as an example to keep sex offenders out of the league.

The other thing being brought to life here is that Nebraska may not be the Shangri-La under Tom Osbourne that people once thought it to be.

Instead it appears as a branch campus of the University of Miami. Maybe if Osbourne had more of a spine and booted these miscreants sooner, then the cycle wouldn't continue.

* * *

After attending the Greg Menton memorial ceremony a few weeks back, I can't help but wish I had known him...

* * *

I have to give credit to the Collegian Haigis Hoopla team (of which my uncoordinated self was not a part) that finished second in the media division, despite the fact that one player played the final game with a broken arm.

Who says journalists write about sports because they can't play them anymore?

Matt Vautour is Collegian columnist.

They shelled it out for your orthodontist bills.

Coughed it up for your car insurance.

And forked it over for that fish tank accident.

Yet they still insist you call collect.

Touched by their undying love, you spare them further expense.

You dial 1 800 CALL ATT.

1 800 CALL ATT always costs less than 1-800-COLLECT.®
And always gets you the reliable AT&T Network.
Use it whenever you're off campus.

Know the Code. 1 800 CALL ATT. That's Your True Choice.™

AT&T
Your True Choice

® Reg. service mark of Telecom, exhibit
1800 CALL ATT is a registered trademark of AT&T
© 1996 AT&T

MOVING?
DOMESTIC OR INTERNATIONAL
For Rates & Services
Toll Free
800-752-6773
http://www.trade-exhibit.com

Hot, Hot, Hot!

Birkenstock

It's Simple.

Downtown Amherst

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals, this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students
20¢ per word/day

All others
40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ACTIVITIES

BEER DIE TOURNAMENT Saturday May 11. Match your game against the best... Call 253-0258 for details

SKYDIVE! Make your first jump this weekend! Call the UMSP Office at 545-1559

SOFTBALL
Females needed for co-ed softball team. Must live in the area this summer. Chris 665-3019

ANNOUNCEMENTS

KAI CHI
Delivering Sunday thru Thursday 12-1:30pm and every Friday and Saturday 10-1am 586-7114

Babysitting for Panhellenic Scholarship and Sat 4/27 12-6 at Sigma Delta Tau. 6-12 at Sigma Kappa and Sun 4/28 11-6 at Alpha Chi Omega. Please bring necessities to accomodate your child's needs (toys etc.) $4.00/hr. For more information call 546-7053

RUSH IGU
All University Women are invited to attend Open Rush on April 25, 26, 29 and 30th at 8pm. For info. or rides call 549-5114

Spring Concert ... The show must go on!... event! Celebrating security, hospitality, and entertainment... come to our meetings every Tuesday at 6:30 in the Campus Center Rm. ... or call us at 5-7862 in the Student Union Off... Office

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Apt. For Rent Hot Water included. I am moving to leave some of my furniture. ... $775/...

PLEASE Take Over Lease 6/1 One ... apt in Hadley $545/month includes ... and electricity. Call 665-7983

Are You Interested? Furnished 2BR ... Summer! Earn $400 $350 a week com... ...paigning for strong antipoverty laws and environmental candidates. Learn organizing and election skills, work with great people, sleep late every day. CLEAN WATER ACTION 584-9030 EOE

Take over our lease. Option to renew 8/1. Hutton Village. New fridge, dishwasher, blinds. $780/mo heat H/W incl. Avail 6/1. 549-8145

Take Over Lease Begins June 1. 2 BR apt in Hutton. $696/month includes heat and hot water. For more info call 549-1364

1 Bedroom Hot water included. I am moving to leave some of my furniture. $...6140

Spacious three bedroom apt. for rent. Great location on top of Fearing St. Contact 549-6840

Great location uptown! 3 bedrooms, 1 bath. Take over lease June 1. 549-9113

Spacious two bedroom apartment for rent. ... $780 per mo. + ... Available 6-1-96. Call 253-7419

Sublet or take over lease. Share 2 bdrm with grad student. One bus line. ... 6/1 or 8/1.

3 Bedroom Putfton avail June 1. $825 heat/hot water included. Call 549-8614

441 Main Street 2 BDR heat incl. ... 549-4682

2 Bedroom Apt. First Floor. $525 + gas ... Private laundry. 5 min to UMass. ... June 6-1. 549-4747.

3 Bedroom renovated Putfton. 2 bath. ... and hot water incl. Take for summer option for Fall. Call 549-8744

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Two Bedroom Apartment on bus route heat /hot water included $600 or B.O. 549-9179

2 Bedroom Brandywine apartment pontoosuc including heat, water start June 1. 549-8918

Best Selection of 1, 2 and 3 bedroom apartments in the center of town. Gas heat and hardwood floors. Lincoln Real Estate 253-7879

Apartments available for June and September. Summer sublets too! Call for details! Squire Village 665-7203

Three bedroom condominiums, with gas heat and hardwood floors. Lincoln Real Estate 253-7879

AUTO FOR SALE

'86 Jetta GL Excellent shape. $2900 OBO Call 253-8062

'74 Orange VW Beetle Rebuilt body/runs well. 4600 km. 253-3780 Ben

'90 Mitsubishi Mirage 70k Manual, good condition. $2,750. Call Eric 549-6615

1988 Chevy Nova - 207,000 miles. Well maintained. In good condition. $1,000. Call Nancy at until 11pm. 549-3192

Chevrolet Caprice Classic 1985 with state inspection $1600 or best offer call Andreas 549-0739

Jeep Cherokee 4X4 5 speed 1986. Great in the snow or on the beach! Give me a call so you can come see it at this monster. Great deal. Call Paul at 549-5766

EMPLOYMENT

Full Time/Part Time Tupperware. The most fun you'll have making serious money!! Call Danielle at 256-8883 or Wendy at 584-5319

Be an Environmental Activist this Summer! Earn $400-$350 a week campaigning for strong antipollution laws and environmental candidates. Learn organizing and election skills, work with great people, sleep late every day. CLEAN WATER ACTION 584-9030 EOE

Campus Representative for Skip Barber Racing School. Call Lori 860-824-5000

If you could redo your own early education, how would you do it? Tutor wanted for 7 year old. 3 year commitment to project on early learning. Materials and guidance, with emphasis on math. Enthusiasm and enjoyment in learning are required. Expenses plus stipend experiment. Interested candidates please send letter with pertinent thoughts and qualifications to P.O. Box 1627 Laurel MD 20725

Get paid while you learn WMUA, 91.1 FM student radio at UMass is looking to hire 12 motivated undergrads for the 1996-97 academic year. Gain experience at one of the most dynamic media organizations in Western Mass. Applications are available at WMUA 105 Campus Center. Deadline 4/26. Interviews 4/27. Call 545-2876 for more information

Now Hiring. Are you staying around Amherst for the summer? If so, HOP Inc. is seeking part-time afternoon & evening telemarketers. Hours available Sun-Thurs 2-5pm & 6-9pm. Earn $6.88/hr plus bonuses. Enjoy the Summer while earning cash. Call Ms. Miranda 800-829-4777

National Parks Hiring - Positions are now available at National Parks, Forests & Wildlife Preserves. Excellent benefits & bonuses! Call 1-206-971-3620 ext. NW0114

Summer Painters hiring for Boston and Hartford. Will train completely. Earn $6-$10/hr. Call N.E. Collegiate Painters at 800-569-9609

Tropical Resorts Hiring Students needed! Entry level career positions available worldwide. Call Resort Employment Services (206)971-3600 ext RS0011

International Employment. Earn up to $75-$45/hour teaching basic conversational English in Japan, Taiwan or S. Korea. No teaching background or Asian languages required. For info call (206) 971-3570 ext. J50014

American All Students! Over $6 Billion in public and private sector grants & scholarships is now available. All students are eligible. Let us help. For more info call 1-800-263-6495 ext FS0013

FOR RENT

SPACIOUS 4-5 BDR house. 2 full baths. Good condition. Big yard. Pelham Rd. Starts June 1st. 256-8918

Main St. Apart. 1 Bdrm and two person loft. $750 inc. heat. Take over lease June 1st. Call 253-1591

Take over my lease for spacious 2 bed room. $850. Call 549-7587

3 Bedroom Puffton - Renovated, near bus and laundry, available June 1. Call 549-5858

Spacious, Bright 3Bdr/2bath Mill Valley Apt. June 1 lease, washer/dryer hookup. Patio call soon! 253-0386

1 Bdrm Apt Available 6/1 to take over lease. Heat Water incl. On bus line call 253-1669

FOR SALE

Sega Genesis - 10 Games including NBA Jams TE, NHL 95, + 1 as but non controller. $275 fo 256-1992

Sega Saturn for sale. Includes one core system, 2 controllers, Virtue Fighter, Virtua Cop, NHL All Star Hockey, Pebble Beach Golf, Panzer Dragon, and Myst. If interested call Dave with best offer at 549-1975

"House Sale" Everything must go! Call Christine 253-1569. Couches, rugs, tables, desk etc.

Shoei Mesurcycle Helmets One black one red. Brand New. $125.00 each. Call Sara 549-9299

2 Full Mattresses and Boxsprings with Frames. $50 each or B.O. Call 253-9099

Bike For Sale 10 gear, almost new. $70. Call 549-7567

Powermac 6100/66 16/250 Ram Doubler installed dys 7.5.1 macos updater 4.4, of graphic softwares 244 fonts, tons of control panels, extentions, games no key board or monitor 4xi cd rom $1,150 call Downey @ 6-0429

Mountain Bike for sale Mongoose threshold Shimano parts Trek system 2 with gel seat only 1 yr old $200 or B.O. Megan 549-4198

P100 32 megs RAM 17 inch digital monitor 2Gb modem 810m hard drive, loaded with software $1400/80 Call Fred 549-9861

Laptop Computers Cheap. Great WP all under 100. Call 6-0540

LOST

Pair of Sunglasses. Brown tortoise shell frames, dark lenses prescription $50 reward. NOA Call 6-2608

MISCELLANEOUS

The Gathering
HTTP://www.talkema.com. Scholarships, academic & career resources, internships, sports news, entertainment, travel music, debates and 1,000's of links!

PERSONALS

MUNCHIE. Spin it hard you silkworm! Bernie is God! Ester

BCG RAS You are the best!

ROOM FOR RENT

One Bdrm in 2 BdRm fully furnished apt. on house. Nice quiet area close to campus & bus. Great yard & parking. $700/mnth + 1/2 utilities. Available now. 253-2530

Nice Rooms in new house. $275 + on Putters Pond. Call Sara 549-9205

ROOM WANTED

Female seeking room starting September. $250 max. Call Joanna 546-7044

ROOMMATE WANTED

Seeking 1 male to share 2-BR apt by Puffer's Pond. 15 month lease starts 6/1. $263/mo. Call 549-1708

Great House on Sunset, 7 bedrooms left. Room with 4 others. Laundry, 3 bathrooms, parking, walking distance to campus and center of Amherst. Call 546-1079 for more info

ROOMMATE WANTED

Looking for Housing. Roommate wanted in the New York area this Summer. Easygoing, reliable. Call soon. Jennifer 546-7511

Looking for 1 or 2 females to share 3BR apartment in Alpine Commons for Summer only. Oh bus route. Price negotiable. Heat included. For more info call Becky at 546-4181

3 BDR in 4 BDR Apt. on bus Rt. Sublet with option to rent in fall. Call 253-7741

SERVICES

Pregnant? Need Help? Call Birthright of Amherst Area for free testing and caring assistance. 549-1906

SPECIAL

SICK OF THE DORMS?
University approved off campus housing available for all University women. Including freshmen and sophomores. Close to campus, free laundry, cable. Optional meal plan. For more info call 549-7845

SUMMER SUBLET

Great Condo for Summer available! 1/2 mile to campus. On bus route. 3Bdr 2 bath, room for 5+! Good price! Will help with utilities. 549-0261

Summer Sublet with option to take over lease. Mill Valley 3 bedroom apt. Call 253-4996

2 Bdrm Apt. on Southeast St. 1 mile from town, on bus route, sleeps four, private deck. Fall option. 253-1647

2 Bedroom near Puffer's Pond. Very quiet & well maintained! Option to lease. Call 549-0686

2 Bedroom Apt. on Southpoint. June 1-Aug. 31, with Fall option. Heat/Hot water included. Call 256-6829

Summer Sublet with Fall Option. 2Bdr Brandywine Apt. A/C. Pool close to campus. Call 549-5382

2 Bedroom Apt. Brandywine. Very cheap. On bus route, heat and hot water inc. Call 549-6117

3 Bedroom townhouse On bus route near campus. Price negotiable. Call 546-3334

Large 2BR Apt. Main Street. 2 min walk to town, on bus route. Furnished! Call 256-8514

Brandywine 2 bedroom 2 bus routes, option to lease, partly furnished. June 1 549-7325. CLEAN!

One large furnished room with double bed in Puffton. Greg at 549-8969

Looking for one to four people to sublease Mill Valley apartment. May 15 or June 1 to August 31. Call Jess A.S.A.P. 253-3797

CRESTVIEW APT 1 furnished room in 2 bedroom apt. 5 minute walk to campus. $250/mon. reg. Call 549-9598

Sublet with option to take over lease. Practically on campus. 2 minutes from Amherst Ctr. Cheap double room in big house. Call 549-6017

South Amherst 2 BR apt. avail. June 1 Aug 31. $556/mo. Call 256-4788

2 Women Needed to share room on 3 bdr. apt. Great place, price, location 549-4827

Amherst - Live in/Graduate Students Cheap! $726/month (includes heat & cable) 1 BR/ORR apartment. Call Gabe at 253-0717

2 Bedroom Apt. on Amity St. Heat, hot water included, sleeps four people. $750/mo. call 549-8702

2 Rooms available in 4 bedroom house in N Amherst. $720/mo including water. Call 549-5899 anytime between 11 to 11.

Brandywine Apts. 2 Bedrooms, take over our lease with Fall option. Call 549-5787

Roulders summer sublet two bedrooms furnished on bus line avail. June 1st call 253-7687

2 Bedroom Apt. at Brandywine. Available 6/1. Price negotiable. Call 549-8857

One room Puffton apt for Summer sublet. Call Fred 549-8969

2 Bdrm Brandywine Apt. Heat/hot water incl. Call 549-0530

Bedroom in Presidential Apts Walking distance. Call 549-8042

TO SUBLET

Puffton Sublet 1 room in a 3 bdr apt for summer $740/month partially furnished call Bernie 549-8969

TRAVEL

Looking for Kerouac-type companion for cross-country trip this Summer. My Car. Write Trip, P.O. Box 2686, Amherst, MA 01004

Come Join In The Adventure!! Come White Water Rafting with UMSC & UMDC! May 31 - June 2. Only $195! Call us 5-3437

SUMMER SUBLET

Female Wanted to share bedroom w/other female starting June1. 168/month. 7/1-9/1 room to yourself 256-6169 Jason

4 Bedroom Apt on Meadow St. 3 bedrooms available for June 1st sublet. Very cheap on bus route. 1 mile from campus. Furnished. Call Sarah, Mary, Laura 548-9797

Summer Sublet w/Fall option. Beginning 6/1. 3 Br. 2 full bath. Mill Valley Apt. 3 people. Reasonable. Call 256-4761

$150 Reward! 2 Bdrm Apt. free AC/hot Water. Pool. Available June 1st. Call 549-8552

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

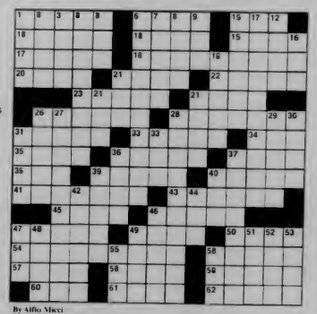
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Stock unit
6 Fresh-water fish
10 Certain wgts
13 Dud
14 Workplace watchdog: Abbr.
15 Word for Yonck
17 Greet the dawn
18 Headwear for Vanna?
20 Portend
21 Soon
22 Ticket, as to a show
23 "The Red — of Courage"
25 Nictate
26 Addict
28 Ran
31 Hitchcock's "The —"
32 Scene of the action
34 Manipulate
35 Israeli novelist Oz
36 — a dozen
37 Box office receipts
38 Baste
39 Belief
40 Went astray
41 Used hair dye
43 Ebb
45 Marsh bird
46 Birchbark
47 — dish
49 Put up pictures
50 Deaden
54 Goatee for baseball's Vida?
56 Rose essence
57 Staff member
58 Aleutian isle
59 Davis of films
60 Ant.'s opp.
61 Paper quantity
62 Let up

DOWN
1 Large slice
2 Deli buy
3 In the center of
4 Flowers for Pete?
5 Ethyl ender
6 Lowered
7 "... who lived in —"
8 Talk idly
9 Nosh
10 Hiatus
11 Protector for actress Karen?
12 Grape juice syrup
16 Concorde, briefly
19 Minneapolis suburb
21 Summer cooler
24 Fool
25 See 43 Across
26 Evangelist McPherson
27 Studio for Helen Gurley?
28 Brief note
29 Cosmetician Lauder
30 Legal paper
31 Big party
33 Free of
36 Sector
37 Beverage for composer Adolph?
39 Certain West Indies resident
40 Author Umberto
42 Actress Corcoran of "Bachelor Father"
44 Part of the U.K.
46 Magna —
47 Bowlers' org.
48 New Haven group
49 Abhor
51 Western Native Americans
52 Lion's pride
53 Nail
55 Musical aptitude
56 Ripen

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

S	P	A	R	S		A	R	A	B		E	W	E	S
C	A	B	O	T		R	I	L	E		L	A	S	T
O	P	E	R	A		T	A	T	E		E	T	T	E
W	A	T	E	R	M	E	L	O	N		V	E	E	P
			M	E	A			S	C	A	R
S	S	W		S	C	A	M	P		A	T	P	A	R
L	E	A		A	V	E	R			L	O	R	N	A
O	N	T	H	E	W	A	T	E	R	F	R	O	N	T
S	T	E	E	D		S	R	T	A		O	I	L	E
H	A	R	S	H		T	O	A	D	S		F	E	D
		W	I	S	E			A	I	M
S	P	O	T		W	A	T	E	R	C	O	L	O	R
T	A	R	A		E	L	A	N		I	V	A	N	A
L	I	L	T		R	I	N	D		L	I	N	E	N
O	L	D	E		S	A	G	S		Y	E	A	S	T



By Alfio Micci
© 1996 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

SOME THINGS ARE MEANT TO BE CLOSED
YOUR MIND ISN'T ONE OF THEM.

For decades, MDA has shown how valuable people with disabilities are to society. We believe talent, ability and desire are more important than strength of a person's muscles. The one barrier these people can't overcome is a closed mind. Keep yours open.

MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY ASSOCIATION
1-800-572-1717

Dilbert By Scott Adams

HERE'S MY TIME SHEET, INCLUDING GUESSES FOR THE NEXT TWO DAYS SO I CAN MEET YOUR ARBITRARY CLERICAL DEADLINE.
IF ANYTHING IMPORTANT COMES UP, I'LL IGNORE IT TO PRESERVE THE INTEGRITY OF THE TIME-REPORTING SYSTEM.
ARE YOU FINISHED ANNOYING ME YET?
ACCORDING TO MY TIME SHEET I'LL BE HERE FOR ANOTHER 14 MINUTES

Kippil By Barry Deutsch

SORRY I HAVEN'T CALLED IN A WHILE, MOM. I WAS TURNED INTO A FROG BUT I'M BETTER NOW. NO, I'M NOT ON DRUGS.
NOT MUCH ELSE IS UP. MY CLASSES ARE - REALLY, MOM, I'M NOT ON DRUGS- NO, DON'T- MOM?
MOM?
DAD! HI. HOW ARE- NO, I'M NOT ON DRUGS.

Jim's Journal By Jim

I ran into Tony today.
He was eating an apple.
"I'm so healthy, Jim. Vegitarian eating is a snap" he said.
"This is, like, the twentieth apple I've eaten today," he said.

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

I WAS RIGHT! GOODE HAS BLUE-PRINTS AND LAYOUTS FOR JEWELRY STORES AND BANKS ALL OVER TOWN!
AND HERE ARE HIS WIGS AND FAKE MUSTACHES!
NOW ALL I'VE GOTTA DO IS CATCH HIM RED-HANDED!

Small Potatoes By Jon Art

Without Porpoise By Kennet Dall

WELL, THIS IS A BIT UNDERWATER, OUR ANTICIPATED HEADCOUNTS HAVE BEEN OFF THE CHARTS!
WHAT'S WRONG WITH THE ELECTRIC CHAIR?
IT'S GETTING THE JOB DONE, I MEAN, I'D RATHER BE ELECTROCUTED THAN DROWN!
SURE, I'LL FOLLOW MY BY THE WAY, MY NAME IS SARA, SEAN MCCOTTER'S CAME HERE BETTER BELIEVED EXCLUSIVELY FROM MY ALWAYS AN HOME BY THE BROOK SPILL BAKE IN PA.
I MISS HOME BUT LET'S FAKE IT, TAKE OUT FOOD AND CALL ANY MUCH BETTER THAN RAW OYSTERS. MAYBE BURNING IN THE SAHARA.

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

When I drop into my bed, no one tells me how to fix my pillows or my covers. I fix them exactly the way I like ... perfect mountains and valleys of blankets. I feel calm. I am tired but safe.....

perfect and peaceful at home.

I make little baby grunt noises .....
I put my legs and arms exactly the way I want them, ... then I close my eyes... sometimes....
I dream.... about my last sweetheart...
in slow motion.....
my sweetheart moves around me.....exquisitely dancing.

....

I feel a deep need.....

to buy a lot more bed linen.

Close to Home By John McPherson

"Good news, Mr. Duffman! You're not crazy after all. You have been hearing voices coming from your abdomen. We discovered that Dr. Gremley's pager accidentally got sutured inside you during surgery!"

Company Cheese By Kevin Tracy

Why Frosty quit smoking.

Collegian Graphics, riding the galactic bus with a tapped keg in the back and endless miles of publishing on the road ahead.

The Daily Collegian News Department is looking for Writers.

Any students interested in writing for the news section sould contact Amy Paradysz at 545-1762

or

Come down to the Collegian office located at 113 Campus Center, located in the basement.

Your Daily Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21 - April 19) — Keep your impatience in check if your love is not exactly to your liking. You can strengthen family unity by showing how much you care. Buying something on impulse would be a mistake.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20) — The variety you seek in romance may be more than you can handle. Consistency was never more of a virtue than now. Face financial realities head-on.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20) — Family and career require attention at the same time. Romantic partner can be helpful. Use your powers of persuasion to sway higher-ups. A raise or promotion is possible if your information pans out.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22) — You are delighted at being asked to join an influential group or organization. Be honest if you cannot afford the dues. An older person may bail you out.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22) — Partnerships make your life full and satisfying. Your contact with the public is increasing. Dress for success by buying traditional clothes on sales. Give yourself more time before deciding whether to accept a marriage proposal.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22) — Your relations with your co-workers tend to fluctuate. Look for ways to develop greater rapport. Protecting your health should be a top priority now. If thinking about making new investments, consult financial experts only.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22) — Return to a shelved creative project; it may be worth salvaging. People from different walks of life find you fascinating. You have extra incentive to complete an assignment on time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21) — Short business trips are necessary to submit a contract or strengthen an alliance. A personal relationship could cause frustration. A temporary estrangement will pass.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21) — Family life is both demanding and rewarding. Give your home a facelift by rearranging the furniture or applying a new coat of paint. A job in the health care field may soon open up.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19) — Conflicts with relatives may be hard to avoid. Do everything you can to keep the peace. There may be a new computer in your future. Employment and educational pursuits are favored.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18) — Small- scale financial ventures require extra attention. A return to a former job is possible. Watch your p's and q's if placed in a supervisory position.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20) — Call in an IOU. Streamlining a business will put it in a better position to compete. Co-workers are willing to take on extra duties. Profit sharing improves management-labor relations.

NO MENU TODAY
CALL 545-2626

JACK AND JILL WENT UP THE HILL TO FETCH A DAILY COLLEGIAN. JACK FELL DOWN AND BROKE HIS CROWN, JILL STAYED UP ON THE HILL AND READ THE COMICS.

Quote of the Day

"You can break my body, but you can't break my mind."

–from the movie Closet Land

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Marni "15 issues left" Helfner
Copy Editor.....Laura "Wood" Stock
Photo Technician.....It's your Thang Vo
Production Supervisor.....David "Day" Voldan
Production......"Legendary" Leon Latino
"Just plain Bill" William M. Darby

Sports

Baseball overpowers Blue Devils

By Chris Stamm
Collegian Staff

With four wins in three days, the Massachusetts baseball team (27–9 overall, 11–5 in the Atlantic 10) returned to Earl E. Lorden Field yesterday to knock off Central Connecticut (12–18–1 overall, 3–9 in the Mid–Continent) 9–2.

"I was concerned," said UMass coach Mike Stone. "Last night we got in at 2 o'clock [a.m.] and I was concerned that we would be tired, and wouldn't be ready to play, but we came to play."

The Minutemen entered the contest on the heels of an 11–game winning streak, its best since sweeping 13 straight last season. The Blue Devils, on the other hand, picked up its first win on Wednesday against Hartford, after dropping its last 10 in a row.

Massachusetts	9
Central Conn.	2

"We played pretty well," Stone said. "We hit the ball pretty well, we were down two–nothing and came back, it didn't seem to phase us."

Surprisingly, it was Central Connecticut that came out swinging in the first. The Blue Devils' Jason Maule led off, doubling to right, followed by Tom Coccomo's single to left.

After freshman right–hander Adam Robinson walked a batter to load the bases, Ken Pruchnicki singled to left, good for a run. Robinson walked another batter, scoring a run to give Central Connecticut an early 2–0 lead.

"I was loose, but it was a struggle to throw strikes," Robinson said. "This was the first time I pitched off the mound all year, and it's something to get used to. My arm felt good. Other than that, it was just me, hanks."

The Minutemen countered in the bottom half of the inning, earning a run of their own. Leftfielder Ryan Ielte led off with a double to deep left field. After shortstop Brad Gorrie flied out, designated hitter Muchie Dagliere notched a double of his own to drive in Ielte, putting UMass on the board 2–1.

KARENJUNG/ COLLEGIAN

Dennis Kelly and the Massachusetts men's lacrosse team head to upstate New York for a battle with rival Syracuse, tomorrow at the Carrier Dome.

Massachusetts came alive in the bottom of the third, scoring seven runs on six hits and one error, giving the team an 8–2 lead. Jette led off the inning with a single, setting up a Gorrie bomb over the 370–foot sign on the centerfield fence, tallying his fourth home run of the season. Gorrie's dinger gave UMass a 3–1 lead it would not relinquish.

Dagliere got on base with a bunt down the third base line. After first baseman Justin Kelly was hit by a pitch, Nate Murphy singled, driving in Dagliere as Kelly took third. Murphy stole second before Doug Clark singled to score Kelly. A sacrifice fly by catcher Andy Kiah scored Murphy for the sixth run. Junior Ryan Thistle earned a trip to third off some big Blue Devil errors to score Clark.

UMass got solid pitching out of Robinson and freshman right hander Ryan Cameron, who entered the game in the sixth, and big–man reliever Steve Levy who came in for Cameron for the final half inning.

"As a freshman he [Robinson] has pitched pretty well, as Billy Cook has, and Ryan Cameron did a great job today," Stone said. "It was also good to give Steve Levy an inning before the weekend."

With one out in the bottom of the seventh, one voice could be heard above all others in the bleachers behind home plate. Although the basketball season and his athletic career at UMass has ended, senior hoop star Rigoberto Nuñez rooted for the Minutemen with his trademark enthusiasm, which sparked many a Mullins Center crowd.

As Murphy stepped to the plate, Nuñez heckled Central Connecticut pitcher Joe Schuberth with, "You can't handle the truth," in his best Jack Nicholson imitation.

Nuñez was right, as Murphy was too much to handle, belting one off the roof of the Mullins Center practice rink, earning the ninth and final run of the evening.

The Minutemen return to Earl E. Lorden field this weekend for two double–dips with St. Joseph's on Saturday and Sunday. First pitch is set for noon.

Softball heads into two–game road trip

By Fred Hurlbrink, Jr.
Collegian Staff

That was quick!

Just hours after the Massachusetts softball team lost their first game since March 19 (a 23–game streak that spanned from coach Elaine Sortino's 500th career victory, to a one–run win over UConn in the first of a twin bill on Tuesday, and included a tie against Hartford) the Minutewomen found themselves ranked as the No. 25 team in the country.

Unfortunately, the poll didn't take into account the streak– breaking, night–cap loss to the Huskies. So, UMass's stint on the Top 25 was short lived.

Such is life, and the Minutewomen will strive to get back on that list of the 25 best softball teams in the nation, starting with a doubleheader today against conference foe St. Bonaventure in New York.

The Bonnies come into the contest with a woeful 8–26 record, but have won four out of 10 in the Atlantic 10 after losing all of their conference games last season. Head coach Todd Randall has his work cut out, as only three of the 16 women on his roster have more than one previous year of collegiate experience.

One of those inexperienced players, freshman Jen Bovee happens to be the team's leading hitter, batting .311 with a team–high six doubles and four triples.

The team as a whole is hitting a nauseating .231, having scored 100 runs compared to the Minutewomen's 238. Three regulars and seven Bonnies who have plate appearances are currently batting at a clip that puts them below the Mendoza line.

Their only real offensive weapons besides Bovee are freshman outfielder Jessica Gauby and junior first sacker Tanya Sears. Gauby is among the A–10 leaders in stolen bases with 15, while batting .284 with a squad–topping 17 runs scored. Sears has hammered the team's only two home runs and has driven in 15 runs, batting .208.

Jessica Ivett, a sophomore right–hander is St. Bonaventure's best pitcher. She has compiled a record of 6–10 this season with a decent 3.02 ERA. Youngster Amy Ingham has started nine games, losing all of them, but showing promise striking out 44 in 54 innings.

After the Minutewomen tangle with the Bonnies, they will travel to Dayton to take on the Lady Flyers. This Sunday's doubleheader will close out Massachusetts' A–10 slate.

About the only similarity you can find between the Flyers and the Minutewomen this season, is that both teams have incurred a tie. UMass (31–11–1) was knotted at four with Hartford before darkness cloaked Toman, while Dayton (15–20–1) fought to a draw at Wright State.

After that game the Flyers went on to lose six in a row, including two 4–3 losses to Temple. The Lady Flyers sport a 4–6 record in the conference as opposed to UMass's immaculate 12–0 mark.

Megan Gue, one of the best all–around players in the A– 10, is the Flyers top offensive threat. She is batting at a .326 clip with three dingers and 21 RBI in just 29 of Dayton's 36 games. Gue also leads the team with 21 runs and 15 base thefts on the spring. Jennifer Payne is having a fine season in her own right, batting .282 with 16 RBI.

The Dayton pitching has been fairly solid, recording a collective ERA under 3.00. Amy Scheiderer and Heather McClincy have split time on the hill. Scheiderer brings an 8– 9 record into the weekend while getting a bulk of the Flyers' run support. McClincy is 7–10 with a 2.30 ERA, having struck out 69 in 115–2/3 innings.

The Minutewomen have suffered their first loss in over a month — to rival UConn, no less — so, they'll be playing with a vengeance this weekend as they look for momentum going into the A–10 tournament.

Tentative schedule features ACC; Patriots drop Peter

Marcus Camby is expected to announce his intentions this week and the rumor is that the National Player of the Year will leave the Happy Valley for more money and more losses.

The remaining Minutemen appear to have a daunting schedule once again littered with neutral–site games.

Keep in mind that this schedule is still subject to change, but here is a peek at some non conference possibilities:

Around the Horn
with Matt Vautour

• For the second straight season, Coach John Calipari will get a trip to the Aloha State, as the Minutemen will compete in the Maui Classic.

• While UMass has not received an official invite to the Atlantic Coast Conference, it didn't stop Calipari from setting up games against half of its members.

The Minutemen will take on Georgia Tech at the William D. Mullins, North Carolina at the Meadowlands in the Jimmy V. Classic, Wake Forest in Winston–Salem and Maryland at the Worcester Centrum.

• To create a home game for Minutemen guards Carmello Travieso and Edgar Padilla, who were both born in Puerto Rico, UMass will take on Manhattan in San Juan.

• You've asked for it, you've begged for it, and now it looks like you might finally get it. Word from the rumor mill is that the UMass–UConn game is just a few details away from being set up. That, coupled with the second Commonwealth Classic against Boston College, will keep college basketball hot in New England.

• John Calipari has enough frequent flicr miles to get him to Saturn.

* * *

With the Bruins essentially finished, and the Red Sox stinking worse than skunk dung, it's going to be a while before there is something to cheer about in New England — and don't give me that Major League Soccer crap.

* * *

It's always refreshing when someone does the right thing.

Turn to HORN, page 7

'Cuse–UMass rivalry on tap for men's lax

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

For the Massachusetts men's lacrosse team and all Minutemen lacrosse fans, this is the game of the season that always seems to mean the most. The heart races and the adrenaline pumps faster.

UMass heads for upstate New York this weekend to battle archrival and sixth–ranked Syracuse (8–3) in the annual meeting between the two schools. Sunday at 1 p.m. in the Carrier Dome. The Minutemen have been the proverbial understudy to the Orangemen, who have won six national titles, and coach Greg Cannella knows he won't need a catchy speech to let his team know what they're up against.

"When we look at the schedule and set the schedule up, Syracuse is always a game that you circle in red," Cannella said, who will coach against the Orangemen for the second time, and also experienced UMass/Syracuse twice as a player.

"You want to be the first team since 1981 here at UMass to beat Syracuse," he said. "What it means to me is that we have the ability to prove to ourselves and everyone in lacrosse that we can compete with Syracuse, and we can beat Syracuse. I think we need to, as a program, model ourselves after Syracuse; their success is unprecedented.

"If we do win the game its the biggest win here in 15 years," Cannella said.

In the overall series, Syracuse has won 17 of the 21 meetings, including the last 15. The regional rivalry, as well as the ongoing success of the Orangemen, has made this a game of high intensity.

"Your emotions do step up a little bit, but we try to treat it as another game," senior tri–captain Buddy Hoffman said. "Beating Syracuse would be a lifelong dream. With all the great players they have had there and they have now [winning] would be the most unbelievable thing."

The Orangemen have a highly potent offensive attack led by the trio of Jim Morrissey (team high 31 goals and 20 assists for 51

Turn to MEN'S LAX page 7

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS

UMass shortstop Brad Gorrie went yard with authority, when he knocked a two–run dinger out of the park in the Minutemen's 9–2 win over Central Connecticut yesterday.

Freshmen lead tennis to tourney

By Michael J. Nom
Collegian Correspondent

The Massachusetts men's tennis team heads to Providence College tomorrow to begin the weekend–long New England Tournament.

The Minutemen enter the tournament with a record of 14– 7, including an inspired fifth place finish in the Atlantic 10 tournament. Both achievements are the best since the program was reinstated; however, UMass lost two matches in a row after the tournament.

"We were pumped after the A–10's and we've been playing well," UMass coach Judy Dixon said. "But we lost to Hartford, the defending tournament champions, and Providence, No. 3 in the Big East.

"It was hard after the tournament with the rain. We never even made up our game with Holy Cross."

UMass ended up fourth among the 24 teams in the New England Tournament last year.

"We're expected to be in the top three teams in the tournament this year. We'd like to improve on that," Dixon said.

The Minutemen will be led by their youth in the tournament. The team will feature freshman Todd Cheney in the No. 4 singles spot with a probable top seed. Freshman Mark Huckins will be a probable second seed in the No. 6 singles division.

Cheney will also most likely be third seeded in his respective doubles division along with partner, freshman Ryan Ginley.

The No.'s 4,5 and 6 singles players were among the most consistent players all year.

"Being freshmen, they really played well, showing our future's going to be strong," said assistant coach Doug Knuth of his youthful players' performance this year.

Freshman Jason Blind, a native of Lindenhurst NY, will not be playing in the tournament and will have his place in the singles matches taken by Ginley. Blind is not playing due to what was deemed as "team infractions."

Mike Skeels, who has rarely played this season, will also be added to the roster, partnered with Mark.

"We'd like to get past the Northeastern, whom we beat earlier this year, and capture at least the third spot," Dixon said. "It's been an eventful couple of weeks, but I'm very confident."

UMass was 1–1 against higher

Turn to TENNIS, page 7

Women's lax crushes UVM; BC next

By Jason Rubin
Collegian Staff

After a tough two–game road trip, the Massachusetts women's lacrosse team needed to return to the basics. That is exactly what it did, as the Minutewomen defeated Vermont 11–5 on Wednesday.

"It seemed like we've been getting tight," UMass coach Francesca McClellan said. "We just needed to go out and enjoy playing with each other, something that we had not done during the last four games," she added.

The team looked sharper than it has in weeks, dominating Vermont throughout the entire game. Massachusetts had its way with the Catamounts, at both ends of the field.

The defense was especially solid, holding Vermont scoreless for 15 minutes at the beginning of the second half.

"Our defense was great. In particular, Amy Leder and Erica Bryan have been outstanding," McClellan said.

"The key to our defensive scheme is to play as patiently as possible. When we do, we win," she added.

The patient style of defense is only effective when there is efficient leadership at the points of attack. This vital aspect has been provided by seniors Elaine Burke and Diane MacNeil.

The offense also played extremely well. Junior Michelle Warrington stepped up to contribute three goals, and freshman Laura Korutz added two of her own. Continuing her goal scoring streak, sophomore Jen Bowen netted a goal.

"Our offense has been playing real well, and the key to our attack is Jen," McClellan said. "She is definitely the quarterback of our offense, and she has been tremendous. This season she has been given a lot of responsibility, and she has stepped

Turn to WOMEN'S LAX, page 7

Women's water polo seeks Eastern title

By Jen Ryder
Collegian Correspondent

The No. 15 Massachusetts women's water polo team (14– 5, 9–2 EWPA) hits the road again as it heads to the Eastern Championships this weekend in Princeton, N.J. The Minutewomen are coming off their third place finish last weekend at the EWPA New England Championships.

To determine its seeding for the championship, Massachusetts must play three round–robin games. The Minutewomen are scheduled to start with No. 7 Maryland tonight at 6 p.m. Saturday morning does not get any easier with No. 11 Brown at 9:10 a.m. Villanova will be rounding out the competition with a 12:40 p.m. match Saturday afternoon.

Tournament seedings will be announced following the final round–robin game at 4:10 p.m. Tournament play will begin Saturday at 6:10 p.m. The championship game is set for Sunday at 11:30 a.m.

The Minutewomen will be playing Brown for the second weekend in a row. Last weekend, they lost to the Bears, 7–6, at the New England Championship. It will be the first time this season that the Minutewomen will face both Maryland and Villanova.

Massachusetts will again be looking for the stellar offensive play of juniors Vicky Bamond and Cathy Leeburg to lead the team to the championship game. Bamond and Leeburg lead the team in four offensive categories: shot attempts (89 and 56 respectively), goals (52, 36), shooting percentage (58 percent, 64 percent) and points (71, 52).

"Vicky and Cathy have played great for us on both the offensive and defensive end," coach Bob Newcomb commented last week.

Senior goaltender Jessica Griffith must continue her solid play in the net for the team to continue its winning ways. If she continues her 83 saves and goals against average of 6.52, it might be good enough to take the Minutewomen to the championship on Sunday.

The winner of this weekend's championship game will go on to play in the Water Polo Collegiate Nationals, May 10– 12 at Davis, Calif.

Minutewomen Notes: The team recorded its first ever

Turn to POLO, page 6

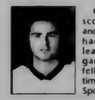
DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CV Issue 123 New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 Monday, April 29, 1996

Dancing to a different beat

Alive With Dance highlighted some of the Dance Department's senior choreographers. (see Arts & Living, page 6).

UMass, Costello edged in OT



Casey Costello scored two goals andthe Minutemen had a three goal lead late in the game but UMass fell 10–9 in overtime yesterday. (see Sports, page 12).

WORLD

Official says Hebron pullout imminent

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel is preparing to pull its troops out of most of Hebron, the last West Bank town still under occupation, a Cabinet minister said Sunday.

The withdrawal will "most likely" take place before the May 29 general elections, Health Minister Ephraim Sneh, a former West Bank military governor, told Israeli radio.

Israeli media have reported the pullout could come within a week. It was initially scheduled for late March but was delayed after a series of suicide bombings by Islamic militants that killed 63 people between Feb. 25 and March 4.

Israel on Sunday also eased a closure imposed on the West Bank and Gaza Strip in response to the attacks, said Shlomo Dror, spokesman for Israel's top liaison with the Palestinians.

Israel radio said 10,000 Palestinians would be allowed to travel to jobs in Israel and border crossings would be reopened for trade.

Palestinian trucks will be escorted to destinations inside Israel. Dror said only several dozen Palestinians took advantage of the relaxed restrictions Sunday due to Eid al-Adha, or the Feast of Sacrifice, the most holy day of the year for Muslims.

NATION

Chilling crime by 6-year-old leaves shock

RICHMOND, Calif. (AP) — He's a poster boy for three strikes laws — burglary, theft, assault, and finally the murderous beating of a tiny infant, prosecutors say.

But he's only 6 years old, his legs too short to reach the floor from a chair in a juvenile courtroom.

The youngest child in the nation ever charged with attempted murder has confounded juvenile authorities debating whether to punish or help the boy — and how.

He listened impassively Friday to a prosecutor's chilling account of how he beat a neighbor's month-old baby with his fists, feet and an inch-thick stick.

The attack left tiny Ignacio Bermudez Jr.'s skull fractured in two places, his brain damaged, his survival chances slim.

Prosecutors say the boy recruited two 8-year-old boys to break into the house days after he went to the Bermudez house and was thrown out.

"He entered the house with the idea of doing something," says Ignacio Bermudez Sr. "He had a large stick. I threw him out. I'd never seen him before then."

The 6-year-old, a first-grade special education student, already had a reputation as a bully and a thief who liked to hit other kids with sticks. He would roam the "Iron Triangle" neighborhood in this San Francisco suburb while his mother worked — ironically, in a day care center.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Tues	Wed
HIGH: 50 LOW: 40	HIGH: 60 LOW:40	HIGH: 60 LOW: 40

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 6
Classifieds .....page 10
Comics.....page 11
Crossword .....page 10
Editorial .....page 4
News .....page 3
Sports .....page 12
Women's Issues ....page 5

Australian gunman captured; after killing 32

By Rick Rycroft
Associated Press

PORT ARTHUR, Australia — A gunman who slaughtered 32 people at a popular tourist site and nearby pub was captured Monday by police, after he set fire to a guest cottage where he held three hostages.

The gunman, whom police identified as a 29 year old with a history of psychological problems, had opened fire with an semiautomatic rifle Sunday afternoon on tourists at an colonial prison site on the island of Tasmania.

It was the worse shooting massacre in Australia this century.

"Various massacres would pale into insignificance when you look at what has happened in Tasmania," said Tasmanian Police Commissioner John Johnson.

The arrest ended a 12-hour standoff at the bed and breakfast, where the gunman had barricaded himself with the cottage's two owners and a guest. The hostages' fate was not immediately known, but police said the gunman was the only person they saw inside the house after it was set ablaze.

Among those killed at the Port Arthur historic prison complex were two Canadian tourists and 30 Australians, including several children and a baby, witnesses and police said. One American was among 18 people injured; police said only that the man, from Washington state, was not badly hurt.

Witnesses said the man, a blond surfer-type, had mingled casually in the crowd at the prison complex before pulling a rifle from a tennis bag and shooting methodically at visitors.

Volunteers clean up Amherst

By Daniel E. Levenson
Collegian Staff

On Saturday, April 27, hundreds of University of Massachusetts students in collaboration with local people, participated in the fourth annual Into Amherst Day.

Student volunteers met with their team leaders at 9 a.m. at Sweetser Park. Before departing for their individual work sites, the volunteers registered and listened to several people speak.

"It's great to be giving back to the community," said Amanprit Kandola, one of many freshman volunteers from the University.

John Clobridge, community service director for the town of Amherst, welcomed everyone to the event. "We're going to have very little talk, so we can have very much action," Clobridge said.

Barry Del Castilho spoke next, encouraging the volunteers to work hard, and have fun.

"Have a good day, and enjoy yourselves, and enjoy the food," Del Castilho said.

Chancellor David K. Scott mentioned the importance of the event on a local and national scale.

"This is National Citizenship Day, and it seems to me that there is no better way to celebrate this," he said. "We now have 50 organizations in the University involved in community service efforts."

Nate Jones, a first year environmental sciences major, led a team of volunteers to a road in Mill Valley where they did a comprehensive cleanup of the area. His group was from the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (MASSPIRG).

"We, as a student community of the Amherst area, have to take the responsibility upon ourselves of improving the lives of everyone around us," Jones said.

The group that cleaned up the Mill Valley road found a wide variety of obscure trash. The items ranged from pieces of automobiles, to a large plastic bag containing mildewed copies of Bizarre Erotic Fantasies. The item which caused the most commotion of the day was a soiled diaper that was lying by the side of the road. "I don't know what to say about the diaper," Jones said.

Volunteers also interacted with a couple of non–human members of the community. Two young kittens appeared suddenly in the road and were picked up by volunteers. Arrangements were made for the felines to be taken to an animal shelter.

Another group of volunteers, led by team leader Sally Carter, cleaned up a Girl Scout camp and cabin. The group was composed mainly of volunteers from SHARE, a community service group composed of student volunteers.

Despite some minor confusion regarding transportation, the day was judged successful by most of those involved.

Peter Blain, director of Vitally Involved in Voluntary Action (VIVA), and one of several key people who coordinated Into Amherst Day this year, seemed satisfied with the day's events. "Overall it went really well," Blain said. "We got a lot of quality work done."

"One of the best things is getting to know what is out there, getting to know the needs," Blain said. He noted that the experience was valuable because it allowed students to gain a better understanding of the surrounding community, outside the university.

Saturday's event marks the fourth year that UMass students have participated in Into Amherst Day. The community service activity was developed by Professor David Schimmer and Joan Sioia from the Mather Career center. Some student volunteers had individuals pledge money for the work they did. The funds raised will go to charity.

Lee Williams an Amherst resident, helps clean up the streets on Saturday as Amherst a Into Amherst Day

Camby to declare future plans today

By Candice Flemming
Collegian Staff

Some published reports from various media sources have stated that Massachusetts junior center Marcus Camby will make himself eligible for the NBA draft, while others have stated he won't — but today all of the uncertainty will end at 3 p.m. when Camby announces his decision at a press conference in the VIP room of the William D. Mullins Center.

Since the Minutemen's season–ending loss to Kentucky in the Final Four, the hot topic surrounding the Minutemen has been whether or not Camby will turn pro. According to numerous reports on Saturday, Camby still had not made up his mind.

COURTESY MEDIA RELATIONS
Marcus Camby

A Boston Globe story on Friday reported that Camby was going to make himself eligible for the draft but keep his options open. However, when interviewed by New England Cable News later on the same day, Camby said he hadn't made a decision.

"I haven't made up my mind yet. I don't know if I'm ready to live the NBA lifestyle. I don't know if I'm ready to compete in an 82–game schedule," he said. "There's no question in my mind that I can play at the next level. I just have to feel comfortable with it."

Camby has until May 12 to declare himself eligible for the June 26 draft, and then he can revoke his eligibility up to the day before the draft. If drafted, he then has 30 days to return to school, and must declare his intentions in writing to Athletic Director Bob Marcum.

If Camby declares, and then is drafted but chooses not to sign after being chosen, his rights would be retained through the end of the 1997–98 NBA season. If he isn't signed by the end of that period, he would go back into the draft pool. If he is drafted and goes back to school within 30 days, he can still leave UMass at any time and sign with the team that holds his rights.

If Camby chooses to leave UMass, he could be one of the top three picks, possibly the No. 1 selection. However, if he decides to stay at UMass, the Minutemen would probably be national championship contenders once again, and possibly the preseason No. 1.

Material from the Boston Globe was used in this report.

Five–College SGA discuss issues

Agenda highlighted by concern for lack of diversity & safety

By Michael Elliott
Collegian Staff

SOUTH HADLEY — Citing a common interest and concern for issues within the five–college area, representatives from the Student Government Associations (SGA) of Mount Holyoke College, Amherst College, Smith College and the University of Massachusetts met Friday to discuss how their efforts can be better coordinated.

Hosted by the Mt. Holyoke College SGA, the event marked the first time in recent history that student government officials from the five–colleges had been brought together. Both of the Hampshire College student government bodies were not in attendance.

Preventing violence against women, listening to the concerns of students of color and organizing locally around national issues highlighted the agenda.

Jessica Dial, chair of the Mt. Holyoke Senate and Amanda Gilman, president of the Smith College student body, voiced concerns they had for the safety of students who attend parties at the University, specifically within the Greek area.

Dial said that she was especially concerned about the availability of alcohol to students under the age of 21 at Greek events and its implications on the safety of women.

Tami Gouveia, Mt. Holyoke College SGA president, expressed worries that violence were at times specifically aimed at lesbian and bisexual women.

Dan Castellano, speaker of the UMass SGA senate, cited the work of the Greeks for the Mature Management of Alcohol (GAMMA) Committee, as a start to reach a solution. The committee is considering plans to strengthen measures which are intended to prevent alcohol from being served to minors and members outside the Greek community.

"The GAMMA committee could be seen as a model program for the entire community," Castellano said. However, he emphasized that safety is not just an issue with fraternities.

Because of its relatively small size and strong sense of community, Castellano said that the Greek area provides a very accessible testing ground for programs aimed at reducing violence before they are implemented throughout the campus.

"A lot of stuff is being done at the community level. It's just got to spread out to the University level," added University SGA Sen. Neil Collins.

The five–colleges, additionally, discussed the need to be more inclusive of students of color.

"The voice of women of color has been marginalized on this campus," Gouveia said.

Currently, students of color compose 12 percent of the total population at Mt. Holyoke while according to SGA President Maurice Caston, minority enrollment is approximately 15 percent at the University.

Allocations of space within residential halls for cultural organizations was a source of tension voiced by all of the colleges, specifically the University and Mt. Holyoke.

"We need to do a better job at opening the lines of communication," Castellano said. "Especially amongst white students who do not see the ALANA perspective."

Tapping into the Valley's potential for student activism resulted in the participants agreeing that more coordination is needed amongst student governments.

Issues such as financial aid, the Pioneer Valley Transit Authority (PVTA) and enhancing campus diversity were all seen as issues which students from the five–colleges could organize around.

"Our efforts are much stronger if they are done in unison," Castellano said.

"Acting locally on national issues, produces results, such as the 1992 ALANA agreements," said Castellano. After the riots in Los Angeles in the wake of the first Rodney King verdict, University students identified a concern for issues of racism and diversity on campus, forcing the UMass administration to change its admissions programs to accommodate more students of color.

A five college approach, Castellano said, would make such efforts all the more effective.

"We need to connect now," Gouveia said.

The next five–college student government meeting is scheduled for the fall at Smith College.

Atlanta quiet after frenzy of bomb plot reports; no link to Olympics

By Larry Siddons
Associated Press

ATLANTA — The Olympic symbol is five interlocking circles.

Right now, this Olympic city might feel as if there's a bullseye in every one.

On the day after federal agents arrested two Georgia militia members in an alleged pipe-bomb plot and sparked several hours of frenzy amid reports that the Summer Games were the target, Atlanta went about its business as usual Saturday.

There was no sense of urgency or feeling of panic evident on Peachtree Street. Tourists and local residents strolled in bright sunshine, buying newspapers and T-shirts with the Olympic rings and other symbols. A green-and-white blimp promoting a film company hovered in a cloudless blue sky.

A check at several Olympic venues — the swimming stadium, the Omni arena and the main stadium — found no apparent increase in security. Top officials of the city and the Atlanta Committee for the Olympic Games (ACOG) said they were satisfied with security plans and would not step things up.

"I have spoken with Atlanta chief of police Beverly Harvard, who has assured me that this incident will not affect our plans for providing a safe and secure environment for local residents, athletes and spectators this summer during the Centennial Olympic Games in Atlanta," Mayor Bill Campbell said.

Indeed, the focus of the organizers was 2,500 miles to the west, in Los Angeles, where the Olympic flame was to arrive from Greece to start a 15,000-mile, cross-country journey to the opening ceremonies here July 19.

ACOG's hierarchy was there, and authorities stressed that the games were unrelated to the arrests Friday of Robert Edward Starr III and William James McCranie Jr., of Crawford County, Ga., on bomb conspiracy charges.

"There are no Olympic connections whatsoever," said Buddy Nix, director of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation, one of the departments that will try to make sure the games are safe.

Still, the upheaval of Friday's mid day news was hard to ignore and left some feeling that every bit of unusual activity in the area from now until mid-July will somehow find a way to attach itself to the Olympics.

At ACOG offices, several staffers said there was a drop in morale after the news hit. Even when federal, state ar.d games officials said repeatedly that there was no Olympic connection, some workers took that as a false hope, a line fed just to clear the air and calm frayed nerves, according to one staffer who, like all others, spoke only on the condition of anonymity.

"You just don't know," the staffer said. "We trust the authorities, but we also know we're the Big Game. We have to be careful and keep our heads up."

Certainly, the timing of the events could not have been more perfect to produce ominous news. Almost 500 reporters from around the nation were in town for a series of interviews with Olympic athletes, and they all jumped on the first reports and continued after the denials.

"It may not be as big a story, but it still brings up the issue of security and the Olympics," Bonnie Kaye, a CBS Radio reporter, said.

Since the attack by Palestinian terrorists on the 1972 Olympics in Munich, security has been a focal point of the games, to the extent that it is probably the biggest single piece of the operation.

Campus Police Log

Accident
April 25
Heavy wind caused a metal gate to close, striking a vehicle that was leaving a facility on Tillson Farm Road.
There was a two vehicle accident on Infirmary Way. No one was injured.
An individual reported his vehicle was struck by a truck that left the scene of Moore Road. The victim obtained the registration of the truck.

Alarm — fire
April 24
A trash can fire at a bus stop on North Pleasant Street was extinguished.
A bulletin board near the Barber Shop in the Campus Center was an fire, causing heavy smoke. Amherst Fire Department responded. It is under investigation.
April 25
Butterfield Residence Hall had a malicious activation of a pull station.

Animal complaint
April 25
There was a report of a deceased duck by Morrill Science Building. Environment, Health and Safety responded.

Annoying behavior
April 25
An individual reported his vehicle in Parking Lot 22 was vandalized on two separate occasions.
A dispute between two individuals in Thatcher Residence Hall was resolved.
April 24
An individual in Cashin Residence Hall reported receiving a threatening letter.
Washington Residence Hall reported a large party with alcohol violations.
April 25
There was a report of intoxicated individuals in John Adams Residence Hall who trashed a room and then "pennied" the lock on another room.

Assault
April 25
An individual in Prince Residence Hall reported a threatening incident which occurred previously.

Burglary / breaking & entering
April 24
An individual reported items stolen from his Hamlin Residence Hall.
The interiors of two vehicles were damaged when they were broken into. The break-ins occurred in Parking Lot 44.
A vehicle in Parking Lot 49 was broken into. A stereo was stolen.
April 25
A window was smashed on a vehicle in Parking Lot 49. A radar detector was stolen.
A vehicle in Parking Lot 49 was broken into. Approximately 40 tapes were stolen.
A window was smashed on vehicle in Parking Lot 44. A radar detector was stolen.
Both door locks were damaged on a vehicle in Parking Lot 11.

Civil complaint
April 25
An individual on Governors Drive reported a contract dispute with the PVTA.

Disturbance
April 25
A bottle that was thrown from a window in Brown Residence Hall resulted in a verbal confrontation between two individuals. The issue was resolved.
April 24
There was an individual confrontation in John Q. Adams Residence Hall after a fight that occurred off campus. It was referred to Amherst police.
April 25
There was a report of an argument in the Game Room of Hampden Dining Hall.

Larceny
April 23
An individual in Lederle Research Building reported a CD player stolen.
A tire was stolen from a bicycle from a individual in John Adams Residence Hall.
A tire was stolen from a bicycle in Worcester Dining Hall.
An individual in Cance Residence Hall reported her credit card stolen.
An individual in Hills House reported her wallet stolen.
A bicycle was stolen from Webster Residence Hall.
An individual reported to University police his license plate was stolen.
April 24
An individual in John Adams Residence Hall reported charges made on a credit card that he never received from the company.
Charges were made on a John Adams Residence Hall individual's credit card that she never received.
A vacuum cleaner was stolen from the Physical Plant.
April 25
Officers took possession of a bicycle in Moore Residence Hall that had been reported stolen.
Equipment was stolen from a Whitmore Administration Building office. A report will be filed.
Two individuals reported money stolen from their Van Meter Residence Hall mailbox.
An individual reported a CB stolen from his vehicle in the North Village Apartments.

Medical emergency
April 23
An individual in Dickinson Residence Hall, with a head laceration, was taken to University Health Services.
April 24
An individual in Washington Residence Hall, with abdominal pains, was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.
April 25
An individual in the Mullins Center, who fainted, was taken to Cooley Dickinson Hospital.
An individual in Thatcher Residence Hall fell in a stairwell. He was checked by medical personnel and returned to his room.

Noise complaint
April 25
There was loud music and people yelling in Emerson Residence Hall.
Individuals playing bongos in Clark Memorial Garden were being loud.

Traffic stop
April 24
David M. Waite, 21, of 66 Parmalee Hill Rd., Newtown, Conn., was arrested for operating a motor vehicle with a suspended license, failure to have a license in possession, and for following to closely.

Vandalism
April 24
A vehicle in Parking Lot 49 was damaged.
A front light was smashed on a vehicle in Parking Lot 11.
There was damage to a vehicle in Parking Lot 43.
April 25
The fourth floor bathroom of Patterson Residence Hall was damaged.
A vending machine in Lewis Residence Hall was broken into.
A trash can was put into two Washington Residence Hall elevators.

Warrant service
April 24
Jason H. Flanzbaum, 23, of 11 Salem Pl., Amherst, was arrested for a warrant.

For Your Information

PYIs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an PYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, excluding the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous day.

Monday, April 29

Discussion — "One by One: Descendants of the Third Reich and the Holocaust in Dialogue," a discussion with personal stories of Germans whose parents were in the S.S. and Jewish and Gentile children of Holocaust survivors, shows us how we can begin to heal from the emotional scars of genocide. 7 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. Free. For more information, call 545-9642.

Dance — There will be an LGBA dance held at Club Metro in Northampton. Admission is $2, after 10 p.m. and the dance will end at 1 a.m.

Tuesday, April 30

Conference — The University will hold its second annual system-wide "Conference on Undergraduate Research, Scholarly and Public Service Activities" from 9 a.m. – 4:30 p.m. in the Campus Center. For more information call the Honors Program at 545-2483.

Dance — The Drum and Dance Collective will be sponsoring a free West African Dance classes from 8 p.m. – 9:30 p.m. There is a 25-person limit per class. For more information and registration call Aimee at 527-1443.

Meeting — There will be an informational meeting for the Salamanca, Spain program for summer 1996 at 6 p.m. in Herter Hall Room 601. The program runs from July 2 to July 30. For more information and applications visit the Salamanca Program in the Department of Spanish and Portuguese or call the office at 545-4790 or 545-2887.

Panel discussion — STPEC will be sponsoring a four-faculty member panel discussion titled "Moral Trespass and Social Action" at 7 p.m. in Bartlett Hall Room 61. For more information call Michael at 584-1022.

Wednesday, May 1

Film — The Multicultural Film Festival will be showing two short films from the United Kingdom. I'm British But... is a documentary presented from the first-hand view of second generation Asians in Britain, and Bound is a fictional work about a young Chinese-British woman's journey of self-discovery. The films will be shown as a double feature at 7 p.m. in Herter Auditorium Room 231.

Study — The Bolshevik Tendency Spring Study Group will continue their readings from the Max Schactman book "The Fight For Socialism" at 7:30 p.m. in the Cape Cod Lounge in the Student Union. This week's forum is titled "A Worker's Government and Socialism and the Need for a Revolutionary Party."

Notices

Scholarship — Applications for the Eunice R. Konieczny Student Leadership Award are available in the Campus Activities Office. Two criteria must be met to apply: The student must be current officer in either an RSO or SGA and must have had one academic year of experience as an officer prior to this time; and the student must have a cumulative GPA of 3.0 or above. Completed applications must be received in 416 Student Union by 4:30 p.m. on May 10.

Nominations — Nominations for the GEO steering committee are open until May 1. The GEO steering committee consists of four officers, president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, which are paid FTE's and three members at large (unpaid).

Poetry — The UMass Poetry Society will be holding its weekly meeting every Wednesday at 7 p.m. in room 325 Baker Residence Hall. Feel free to bring and read your own poetry or that of your favorite poet, or just come to listen and guzzle coffee. New members are always welcome. For more information, call Tim at 546-2792.

Theater — The UMass Theatre Guild presents A Winter's Tale by William Shakespeare. The showdates are May 2-3 at 4 p.m. and May 4-5 at 2 p.m. It will be performed in the Rhododendron Garden behind Health Services. Admission is $3.

Theater — "Still Walks," a collection of dance works choreographed by Chantelle Lucier and Sarah Manya Hertzberg will be performed May 2 – 3. There will be an open dress rehearsal on May 1. Presented in the Studio Theater Kendall Hall on the Mount Holyoke College Campus. General admission $3, students and seniors $2. Reservations are recommended, call (413) 538-2848.

Internship — The office of U.S. Rep. Joseph Kennedy II will be accepting student applications for summer internships in his Charlestown and Roxbury offices. These unpaid internships are available at full or part-time hours. All interns must work a minimum of 15 hours a week. For more information call Brian O'Connor at (617) 242-0200, or to arrange an interview, send him a cover letter and resume at: U.S. Rep. Joseph P. Kennedy II, The Schrafft Center, Suite 605, 529 Main St., Boston, MA 02129.

Internship — State Sen. Stan Rosenberg will be accepting applications for student internships in his Boston office. Interested students should send a resume and cover letter to: Senator Rosenberg's Office, ATTN: Catherine Cecil, room 212, State House, Boston, MA 01223-1053.

Ground treatment — The Physical Plant Grounds Department will have licensed personnel applying a spring treatment of Pro-lawn fertilizer, a weed control product, on April 27 and 28. Treated areas will be posted for 72 hours. The material is applied in a granular form which precludes anyone or any animal from coming in contact with the herbicide portion of the formulation. The herbicide is classified as Category III, merely requiring caution in its use. A materials data sheet will be available upon request. Please call Albert Potter at 545-0200 with questions.

Scholarship — Application for the University of Massachusetts Amherst Alumni Association Scholarship are now available at the Alumni Relations Office. Applications must be completed and returned as directed to the Alumni Association c/o Anne McDowell, Memorial Hall, UMass, Amherst. Preference will be given to qualified African American, Hispanic American, Native American and Asian American students. For more information about the criteria for application, call Anne McDowell at 545-2317.

Intramurals — Intramural Men's Basketball Championship played in the Curry Hicks Cage on Housing Services Cable Network from Monday, April 22 to Saturday, April 27 at 11 p.m.; Sunday, April 28 at 9 p.m.

COLLEGE MOVES
Hertz
PENSKE
Truck Rental
• Low Rates
• Rent It Here-Leave It Here
• 24 Hr. Emergency Road Service
• Easy to Drive Trucks
• Packing Materials Available
• Air-Conditioned Trucks Featured
• Many Trucks with Auto. Trans., and Loading Ramps
• Unlimited Mileage on One-Way Rentals
AMHERST 256-8224
HADLEY 549-1644
NORTHAMPTON 586-8391
CHICOPEE 594-5186
RESERVATIONS 1-800-222-0277
COLLEGE STUDENTS
$10 OFF LOCAL TRUCK RENTAL
$20 OFF ONE-WAY TRUCK RENTAL
20% OFF MOVING SUPPLIES (Boxes, Tape, Rope, Etc.)
College ID Required • With this coupon • NOT VALID WITH ANY OTHER OFFER • One per truck rental • Subject to availability

Attention Graduate Students!

Graduate Student Senate Candidates Night

7:15PM, Tuesday, April 30
At Campus Center 804-8

Nominations Close 5PM, April 30, 1996

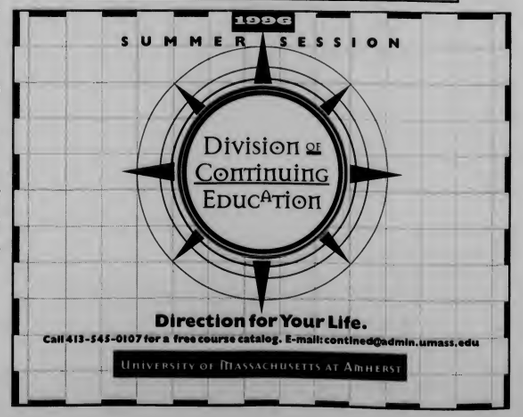
Only graduate students who have paid the Graduate Student Senate Tax and with a valid, signed, and dated receipt (obtainable at the Bursar's Office) shall be permitted as candidates. Balloted candidates must submit such receipt before the Closing of Nominations. Write-in candidates must submit such receipt before the Close of Balloting.

All candidates and the Elections Committee are granted full access to information pertaining to the Graduate Student Senate elections that would/may normally be available to the Graduate Student Senate (incumbent) Executive Committee and the GSS Office Manager.

Come meet the candidates for 1996-97 GSS Officers
Candidates' statements, questions & answers

Balloting Begins Tuesday, May 7 at GSS General Meeting (7:15 pm) and Continues Wednesday, May 8 & Thursday, May 9, 10AM- 6PM at Campus Center Concourse, outside the Graduate Lounge

 For more information, contact the GSS at 919 Campus Center or Call 545-2896



1996
SUMMER SESSION
Division of Continuing Education
Direction for Your Life.
Call 413-545-0107 for a free course catalog. E-mail: contined@admin.umass.edu
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Fanfest a grand slam, over 450 fans attend sport's class festival

By Matt Vautour
Collegian Staff

The second annual baseball fan carnival, UMass Fanfest, took place this weekend as fans of all ages from the surrounding communities came and supported baseball, both at the University of Massachusetts and at the surrounding communities.

The event is a product of the "Advanced Sports Marketing" class in the sports management department, taught by Dr. William Sutton. All the money raised will go to area Little Leagues.

After making approximately $400 in 1995, UMass Fanfest pulled in over $2,000 this year.

The crowd of 471 was the most to witness a UMass home game this season. Senior leftfielder, Ryan Jette, was pleased with the fans support and hoped the Minutemen's play might entice some of them to return.

"I think it's a good thing that the sport management program does," Jette said. "It brings attention not only to the sport management program, but to the baseball program as well. It's good to have this many fans supporting us. I wish we could have it every game.

"It encourages us to play a little harder, thinking that maybe if we play hard enough, it will attract more fans to come down."

The actual event held plenty to do and watch. There was a skills competition early in the day and several races throughout. Between the two games, there was a "Mascot Olympics," in which the UMass Minutemen edged out Boomer of the Pittsfield Mets, Screech of the Springfield Falcons and Media Play's Media Man.

Sutton called the event a success.

"We had a lot of people out here today," he said. "We raised some money for the Little Leagues. We got some great exposures for our team. It's been a great day. I'm real happy with it."

Sutton was also glad to help the UMass team gain some exposure.

"They're really a good team and a nice bunch of kids," he said. "This is really one of the better kept secrets."

Lecture discusses possible athlete eating disorders

By Melanie B. Arruda
Collegian Staff

Athletes facing eating disorders was the theme of Friday's eating disorders conference held in the Campus Center.

"When to Intervene and What to Do" was the focus of Dr. Anne McKinnon, a team physician for Smith College Department of Athletics, lecture.

"These are the athletes in quest of performance," McKinnon said. They are trying to get that extra edge in their competition, she added.

"You have to be thin to win' is a myth among athletes and coaches," McKinnon said.

Athletes can exhibit two types of disordered eating, according to McKinnon. These two types of disordered eating include rigid or restricted eating and external control eating.

Rigid or restricted eating usually occurs when an athlete does not consume enough protein, McKinnon said. Athletes who don't allow themselves to eat for pleasure and are preoccupied with counting calories and fat grams exhibit external control disordered eating.

Some of the signs of an athlete with eating disorders include taking diuretics or fiber pills, and vomiting in stalls, McKinnon said.

Athletes with eating disorders also exhibit behaviors including secretive eating, social isolation, excessive exercise, food preoccupation, feeling fat when thin, wearing concealing clothes to warm weather workouts and experiencing decreased performance, McKinnon said.

Coaches should be aware of their athlete losing more than two pounds per week, being 10 percent below their normal weight, or having body fat below 12 percent for men and five percent for women, she said.

Some of the physical consequences of disordered eating includes women missing their menstrual periods which leads to osteoporosis because of estrogen loss, McKinnon said.

Seventeen and 18-year-old girls without menstrual periods have bones like a 65-year-old woman by the age of 20, McKinnon said.

Periods are a sign of your body's happiness with the foods you are eating, she added.

The consequence of muscle loss in athletes causes weakness and atrophy, McKinnon said. "The heart is a muscle."

Other consequences of disordered eating include decreased metabolism where the athlete has a low heart rate and feels cold and tired, fluid loss causing loss of endurance and vitamin and mineral deficiencies causing poor healing of injuries, she said. Athletes can also suffer from impaired cognitive ability causing decreased concentration, judgement accompanied by an irritable mood, she added.

According to the doctor, the term "light-weight brain" is used to describe an athlete's effected cognitive ability from disordered eating.

There is an range from 20 to 50 percent among various sports where athletes have eating disorders, McKinnon said.

Some of the more popular sports having athletes with eating disorders include crew, judo, wrestling, cheerleading and figure skating, according to McKinnon.

Coaches must offer support by strengthening their athlete's sense of humor, control and confidence, McKinnon said.

The athletes' safety should be the bottom line for coaches and the athletes entire health care team, she said.

And they're off! Runners gathered on Saturday at the stadium track to race for 6.2 miles for the Run for Newman event.

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Fraternity holds event to help inner-city kids

By Gregory Casimir
Collegian Staff

On Saturday, The Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity sponsored a reach out program for inner-city high school teenagers.

At 7:30 a.m., the Alphas boarded a bus to Springfield and brought back certain students to the University of Massachusetts to participate in leadership activities and fun.

Alpha Treasurer Cordell Bagley, a junior, explained that this program had a specific group of individuals in mind.

"The kids we picked weren't kids having problems in school," Bagley said, "but kids who pulled A's and B's, yet had disciplinary problems. The purpose of our program was to give them some direction."

The program was coordinated by the president of the Alpha Phi Alpha chapter on UMass, Taft Bailey and Vice President Kola Olusande. Alpha Steve Richards organized the workshops.

The first part of the program started off with a Civil Rights workshop. The purpose of this workshop was to show how Civil Rights can be useful tool for the enhancement of the black man.

Next, there was an important workshop titled, "The Anthropology of the Black Man." Richards commented on how important this workshop was for the youth participants.

"This workshop is important because it shows where the black man is from, where he is now and what direction he should be going. Because right now, the future doesn't look to bright for us," he said.

Later, the Alphas took their charges to participate in an intra-fraternity basketball tournament, that also included Gorman and The Black Mass Communications Project (BMCP). The Alphas subbed the kids in the game.

"The point of letting the kids play," Richards said, "was to show them that participation and team play is more important than the individual. It shows them that the community is not for 'me,' but for everyone."

The game was a precursor for the next workshop dealing with leadership and teamwork in life.

The last workshop was about sexual responsibility, and respecting the black woman.

"The point of this whole program is to give them tools not for today, but for life," said Richards.

MOVING?
DOMESTIC OR INTERNATIONAL
For Rates & Services
Toll Free
800-752-6773
http://www.trade-exhibit.com

How does the world begin to heal from a genocide?

One by One

Descendants of the Third Reich and the Holocaust in Dialogue

Monday, April 29, 7:00pm
Student Union Ballroom
University of Massachusetts

Free and open to the public. This event is made possible in part through the generous support of the Five College Lecture Fund, the Office of Jewish Affairs, the Student Affairs Cultural Enrichment Fund, Campus Activities, Hillel, and the Commuter Area Government. For more information call 545-9642.

Puffton Village – Your First Choice
1, 2 and 3 bedroom apartments.

Featuring:
Newly renovated units that include:
• New appliances
• New Carpeting
• New kitchen cabinets & counter tops
• Central air conditioners
Rents starting at $590 per month

or

Traditional units that are:
• Fully applianced
• Freshly painted
• Carpeted/Tiled Floors
• Central Air conditioned
Rents starting at $525 per month

All rents include Heat, Hot Water & Cooking Gas and use of an olympic size pool, 5 tennis courts, basketball court, laundry rooms and on-site parking.

Now accepting rental applications for summer and fall. Call today 549-0145

Puffton Village Apartments • 1040 North Pleasant St., Amherst, Mass

Position Available at the
Collegian
Circulation Manager Needed
Make good money and get good experience

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vautour Editor-in-Chief Marni E. Heffner Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gurley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Lisa Chiu Senior Diversity Editor

Tara MK Connelly Arts & Living Editor Anna Lotto Co-Women's Issues Editor
Gregory Cassimr Co-Black Affairs Editor Hannah Thorne Co-Women's Issues Editor
Humphrey Brown III Co-Black Affairs Editor Tony Morse Editorial Production Manager
Position Vacant Developing Nations Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Bob Dunn Editorial/Opinion Editor Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Lisa M. Oliveri Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor Lee Weiner Distribution Manager
Anna Feder Jewish Affairs Editor Position Vacant Classifieds Manager
Lisa Chiu Multicultural Affairs Editor Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Sam Paradise News Editor Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Emily Reily Photography Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Candice Flemming Sports Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor
Sean Calvert Staff Artist Casey Kane Librarian

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life, became the College Signal in 1901, the Weekly Collegian in 1914 and then the Tri-Weekly Collegian in 1936. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967, and has been a broadsheet publication since January 1994. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Talky, talky, talky, Mr. Penguin

Dan Levenson

There are many truly disturbing things on the idiot-box we call a "television," these days.

We have talk shows that celebrate and encourage stupidity on a grossly enormous scale. Even the people at home can get sucked in.

O.K. I'll admit it, even I, on occasion, can be heard loudly cursing at the television set.

But it's rare that I find something so absolutely annoying that I feel a need to let the rest of the world know.

And what, may you ask is the source of my discontent? Well, since you asked, I'll tell you.

A certain talk show host, who shall here remain nameless had several different people on a recent episode of his show. Among them a Family Court Judge who advocated a national youth curfew and severe penalties for under-age offenders; several teenage criminals and parents whose kids are "out of control."

The basic premise wasn't a bad idea — Talk about how to fix problems with youth related crime, and help people get their lives back together. I have no problem with this and I think it's a really great idea.

I do, however, have a quite a big problem with anyone who wants to tell me that because some people commit criminal acts that I can't walk down my street past midnight.

I suppose that if you follow the line of thinking that criminals are going to follow rules that the government sets up, then that's fine. However, I would like to raise the point that if everyone followed the rules, then there wouldn't be any crimes in the first place.

I think that there needs to be a clear distinction drawn between a person who's running around the streets all night shooting people and setting buildings on fire and a person who goes outside to walk their dog.

At one point in this laughable circus of humanity the talk show host spewed forth the distorted concept that people who are under 18 years of age have nothing to contribute to the world. He expressed the idea that if your parents are paying for your education that you should sit there, shut up and listen to what they have to tell you.

I was so pissed off by that point that I wanted to take one of those nasty chicken pucks from the Dining Commons and launch it at the screen.

Once again, let me state my position that if morons come to school and are disrespectful to the teacher, assault your fellow students, or engage in any other sort of criminal activities, then fine, let's find a way to get those people more interested in learning and less interested in being disruptive.

But by telling someone that they should just sit there and listen to what they are told without question, is ludicrous. It only serves to provide the world with the next generation of mindless morons who shuffle lackadaisically through this existence without a purpose or a mind of their own.

In other words, the perfect talk show viewers.

I mean honestly, have you ever really stopped to consider what you're watching. I did once, and it scared the crap out of me.

The next time you flip on a show titled: "I want to divorce you and marry your uncle's widow, and your best friend's mother" stop and consider what's actually happening in front of you.

Those people crying, are really crying.

They are not actors. (I actually have my own little theory about the validity of some of these people's credentials, but that's another story entirely).

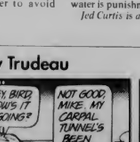
When you turn off the TV they have to go home and live with the fact that someone dragged them onto a show in front of millions of viewers, either out of fear, or some sick perversion, to embarrass them. I don't care what someone has to tell me, I don't want to hear something that could possibly change the course of my life in front of eight trillion other people.

Sure it's entertaining, we have it easy, we can turn off the television. These people have to live with themselves.

Think about that.

Daniel Levenson is a Collegian columnist.

Par for the course



Jed Curtis

We need to get rid of toilets. I used to think that we needed an alternative to toilet paper but I now realize that blaming toilet paper for our social ills was wrong. We certainly need to wean ourselves off toilet paper. But the real problem is the toilets themselves. I am told that flushing a toilet uses 18 gallons of water. Needless to say, I now abstain from flushing toilets altogether. Moreover, by flushing toilets we cause our groundwater supply to get contaminated with our by-products. I had always wondered why the water in Amherst tastes so funny, and now I know why.

If we ever expect to drink clean water again we will have to take action. The first step is boycotting toilets. Instead we should defecate in our gardens. What's that you say? You don't have a garden? Well, your neighbor probably does and s/he would probably be honored and pleased to have you defecate in it. You see, fecal matter is excellent compost. I am not suggesting that you defecate in your lettuce patch. Rather, defecate in a fallow area of your garden where the feces can compost until it is ready to be spread around as fertilizer.

If you do not have a fallow area in your garden, you can relieve yourself in a small area of your backyard which you have designated as a compost pile.

Why should we do this? Because our water supply is growing contaminated. Many people walk around these days with bottled water. This is a mistake. By buying bottled water you are sending a message to the government that it is okay that your public water supply is undrinkable. Furthermore, you are supporting the plastics companies which manufacture the bottles that the water comes in. It is very likely that these bottling companies are in conspiracy with the government. They probably pay a small fee to the government to persuade them to not take action towards clean water. This makes the government's job easier, and also earns them some pocket money. Meanwhile, citizens are forced to buy bottled water in order to avoid Montezuma's Revenge.

Golf courses are another major source of our water problem. They use preposterous amounts of water to keep their grass green, and the greenbucks flowing. A close examination of golf reveals its intrinsically evil nature. If the letters in the word golf are reversed they spell flog. This suggests that everybody connected with golf should be flogged for their complicity in exploiting our water supplies.

Golf leads to decadence, immorality, gluttony, sloth and all the deadly sins. I suspect that when golfers die they spend many seasons in a nine or 18 leveled hell, depending on how many holes they usually played. The more vehement golfers surely become acquainted with an infernal sandtrap where they are forced to perpetually attempt to free a wayward golf ball. Needless to say, their efforts are always in vain. If they chance to grow thirsty they must swallow handfuls of sand.

The worst fate of all is reserved for the owners of golf courses, who must spend an agonizing number of seasons floating around in a water hole. Their fingers and toes grow so wrinkled as to become useless, and eventually fall off as though they belonged to a leper. These people must perpetually dive to the bottom of the water hole to try to rescue lost balls. But they are unable to grasp the balls because their fingers and toes have fallen off. Thus, they are left with no choice but to try to rescue the balls in their mouth.

But when they try this the water rushes down their throat, and they start to choke. They are forced to rise to the surface of the pond for air. Needless to say they fail to retrieve the golf ball. It is no coincidence that the punishment of these golf course owners is related to water. These people mercilessly abuse the water when they are alive and must pay the price in the after-world. There is not enough space in this column to detail other karmic fates connected with the abuse of water. But we do not even need to consider punishment in the afterworld because our current polluted water is punishment enough.

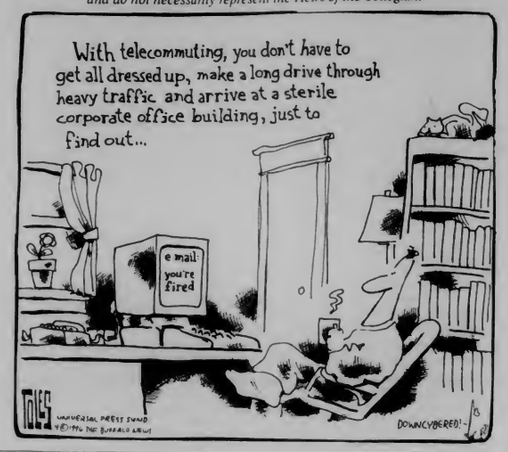
Jed Curtis is a Collegian staff member.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

WELL, I CAN'T PUT THIS OFF ANY LONGER..
GOD, I HATE MY SELF!
HEY, BIRD! HOW'S IT GOING?
NOT GOOD, MIKE. MY CARPAL TUNNEL'S BEEN STRESSING ME...
I KNOW WHAT YOU'RE THINKING - I SHOULD EASE UP. BUT I CAN'T, MIKE! I DON'T WANT TO MISS THE SHIP DATE! I CAN'T LET YOU AND BERNIE DOWN!
HE KNOWS..
WELL, BACK TO WORK!
ROVIDER
4-29
©B Trudeau

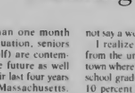
Opinion/Editorial

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian.



With telecommuting, you don't have to get all dressed up, make a long drive through heavy traffic, and arrive at a sterile corporate office building, just to find out...
e-mail: you're fired
DOWNSIZED!
UNIVERSAL PRESS SYND
©1996 THE BUFFALO NEWS

Healing the wounds



Alan Weinfeld

With less than one month until graduation, seniors (like myself) are contemplating the future as well as reflecting on their last four years at University of Massachusetts. Throughout my four years, I have been a student activist on mostly Jewish issues and I write today to show another side of myself which most people don't know about. I feel I have been extremely misunderstood by some people in the last few years.

While some have perceived me as a great Jewish leader who moved the Chancellor to initiate the Chancellor's Task Force on Jewish Awareness and Anti-Semitism and form the Office of Jewish Affairs, others have perceived me as a racist who has oppressed black people, holding the black man down and trying to put black people back into slavery.

Many events in my childhood have influenced the way I have been involved at UMass. I come from Union, N.J., a town with a less than five percent Jewish population where Jews are castigated for being Jewish. I have had swastikas spray painted on my sidewalk, telephone poles and driveway along with the word "NAZI" in big letters.

No matter how many times I paint over these horrible symbols and words on my driveway, they will never go away. My house has had rocks thrown through its windows and it has been barraged by eggs. In high school, I would sit at my desk and watch hateful students hurl pennies at me and call me horrible names because I was Jewish. During these activities, the teacher would sit and watch and not say a word.

I realize this ignorance stems from the uneducated nature of my town where only 33 percent of high school graduates go to college and 10 percent of parents are college educated. Union is a poor blue collar town with an average family income of $39,000. I was severely oppressed because I was Jewish and know this had to shape me in some way before I came to UMass.

I came to UMass to get away from the severe hatred to finally be at peace with my Jewishness and I get here and in some ways, the anti-Semitism is fiercer than it was at home. I was always faced with people telling me the Jews killed Christ and Jews were really cheap and controlled all the money, but at UMass I was told that Judaism is a gutter religion and that there is a Jewish conspiracy to oppress black students on college campuses.

At UMass, most people will remember me for my vociferous stand against the anti-Semitism spewed by Louis Farrakhan. I didn't stand up to Farrakhan because I hate black people or are trying to control black people. I stood up to Farrakhan because as a Jew who has seen my ancestors slaughtered in mass numbers (only most recently in the Holocaust), I could not sit silent in the face of bigotry. I spoke loudly that it was wrong for the University to spend $39,000 for Farrakhan to speak when most students are barely capable of paying their tuition bills. Imagine if that kind of money was made available for financial aid or a real useful cause? I spoke out against Farrakhan, Tony Martin and Helen Cullen because I believed it was the right thing to do and will continue to speak out after I graduate in May.

People who know me realize that I really do want peaceful coexistence and a strong relationship between groups on this campus. I have participated in numerous Black-Jewish dialogues and the Black-Jewish-Other Video Project, planned multicultural Seders, worked on a Hanukkah-Kwanzaa party and helped out with the Black Jewish Rap Concert. I have spoken out against racism in such instances as the racist Franklin Dining Commons worker. My hope is that students will get along but I will not sit silent in the face of any intolerance, no matter what group is targeted.

I hope that the people who have hated and viciously condemned me for supposedly racist activities will read this column and try to understand why I have partaken in many pro-Jewish activities. This semester, one letter to the editor accused me of "having a character of bigotry." I just really wish that whoever wrote that would take a minute to get to know me instead of stereotyping me and writing that kind of slander.

In conclusion, I know I have made a difference in improving the situation for Jewish students at UMass and I hope when I leave the administration will continue to be receptive to Jewish issues. I hope students on this campus can come together so the new students will not have to suffer the hate that my classmates and I have faced. I share Martin Luther King's dream of a totally integrated society where we can all live in peace.

Alan Weinfeld is a Collegian staff member.

Letters to the Editor

Brier needs to check his facts

To the editor:

We at Earthfoods have been inaccurately and unfairly portrayed in a recent article by Henry J. Brier. Brier's unprofessional reporting or lack of reporting, led to several statements that were, quite simply, false and several judgements that did not include all the facts.

First, Brier referred to a "high ranking Earthfoods' official." With a minimum of investigating, Brier would have discovered that Earthfoods is a collective where rank and hierarchy are nonexistent. Second, Brier insinuates that the overwhelming waste on "hippie beach" is the responsibility of Earthfoods as we "reap the profits" from our customers.

As a non-profit registered student organization, what profits are generated are reinvested into improving Earthfoods, for example, purchasing metal forks (which are reusable, replacing existing plastic forks). Brier also fails to mention that the responsibility of waste collection lies with Building Services. Earthfoods, however, together with the People's Market have recognized this problem and (prior to Brier's article) have actively engaged in recycling and composting programs. Additionally, Earthfoods has long offered discounts to people who bring their own containers just as the People's Market offers discounts to people who bring mugs.

Most damaging of all is Brier's implication that we at Earthfoods disapprove of our customers. This is simply not true.

We hope that the Collegian will use this opportunity to examine its reporting practices so as not to damage other organizations through misrepresentation.

Siobhan Cunningham and the 28 members of Earthfoods

Adelman article inaccurate

To the editor:

The reporter [Jacob Adelman] who wrote your recent story on campus food services, "Privatization threat angers University union" (4/9/96), needs a lot more training and education if he has any hope of making it as a journalist.

He failed to grasp the distinction between two very different scenarios. Having the University bring in brand name food products to be served by our members is not the same thing as privatization. Privatization, or "contracting out," typically means hiring an outside vendor and replacing current employees. That's something we obviously oppose.

My other beef with your reporter is that he presented himself to me as a journalism student doing a class paper, not as a reporter for the Daily Collegian. He should take a course in the ethics of journalism. Otherwise he'll find that his only employment opportunities will be with a grocery store tabloid.

David Williams
Director of Communication and Education

Letters to the Editor and Columns

Attention all columnists: If you haven't yet, please come down this week to get your picture taken. Questions? Call Bob.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please type your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words. We would much rather print several concise letters in this limited space available on the page.

Women's Issues

Monday, April 29, 1996

Daughters visit campus, look at job possibilities

By Hannah Thorne
Collegian Staff

Wednesday, April 25 celebrates National Take Our Daughters to Work Day. At the University of Massachusetts the Faculty Senate Council on the Status of Women and the Chancellors office sponsored a continental breakfast and departmental informational tables at the Mullins Center concourse.

Upwards of twenty departments were represented on the concourse and few organizations including the Every Woman's Center, the W.E.B. Dubois Library and Health Services. Tables were set up with brochures, literature and a representative from the department.

Following the continental breakfast and informational tables busses were available for tours of several different departments. For example, the Art department gave a demonstration of ceramics, interior design, computer arts, print-making and sculpture. The Phonetics lab showed tourists the properties of their voices by displaying pictures of it on a color computer screen.

The departments represented were enthusiastic about their involvement. The Geoscience department set up a folding display of photographs from the Geology, Geography and Earth Sciences departments. The English writing program was showing a video of Toni Morrison speaking, they also had a large piece of paper where young women could contribute to a poem about Take Our Daughters to Work Day. The poem began, "Sis, Boom, Bah. Hurray. We celebrate daughters today!" Contributions included, "It's our day to do what we want!" and "Girls rule and boys drool!"

One participant of the event, Bianca Humphries, was walking on crutches with her mother Wilhemina Humphries an employee of Student Legal Services. Bianca explained that she broke her leg playing a pick up game of soccer. Despite the broken leg Bianca scored three home-runs in a baseball game while a pinch runner ran the bases for her.

The future career interests of the girls participating were varied. Tracy Provencal, a fourth grader at Holy Trinity in Greenfield, has aspirations of becoming a professional dancer. She already participates in tap and jazz lessons. Natasha Wright, an eighth grader at Amherst Middle School, wants to be a pediatrician, and Jamie Rice, a fourth grader at Shutesbury Elementary School, would like to work with horses. Rice was disappointed because there was no tour of the Hadley Farm like the previous year.

There was also an extremely long line for autographs from the Women's Basketball team. Members of the team were on hand to sign posters, and chat with participating daughters.

Community forum held on violence

By Jamie Sinsheimer
Collegian Staff

On Friday afternoon in the Campus Center, a Community Action Forum was held. The forum was a meeting to plan for the Five-College Campaign Against Sexual Violence. The meeting consisted of conversations on such topics as sexual violence, education about sexual violence and making the community aware that the problem exists.

The forum was coordinated by Patricia Mota Guedes from the Everywoman's Center, Grant Ingle Director of Human Relations at University of Massachusetts, Andrew Susen, a junior anthropology major and Phillip Copeland, a junior legal studies major.

The issues that were discussed at the forum included: how each campus needs to address sexual violence, how each campus can become involved and to create a periodic forum for sharing information, resources and support regarding male sexual violence. Each school represented was asked to list the organizations on their campuses that exist to help women deal with problems of sexual violence.

Smith College was the first out of the five attending schools to share with the group their available resources for women on campus. These organizations include a Rape Awareness Program, an education program that deals with child sexual abuse and incest and STAAR (Students Together Against Abusive Relationships).

"We have not received a lot of institutional support regarding sexual violence on campus and we have also met some resistance from the office of the Dean," said Dia Sokol, one of the women representing Smith and also the head of Third Wave, a feminist organization.

Sokol also spoke of how Health Services at Smith is lacking necessary evidence kits that are used in the event of a rape.

Hampshire College, represented by one woman, spoke of their Counselor Advocate Program and their Civil Liberties and Public Policy program. The Counselor Advocate program provides support for women who have been the victims of sexual violence. This support comes in the form of peer and group counseling.

The next school to present their organizations was Mount Holyoke. At Mt. Holyoke the women are met with no resistance from the bureaucracy. The main program for helping women is a counseling peer advocate educative program that deals specifically with sexual violence. This program is supported by the Dean of Students, Health Services, the Student Government Association and Public Health Services.

UMass was the last school to present their organizations. The most influential organization on campus is the Everywoman's Center which helps counsel and educate women about the topic of sexual violence. This fall at UMass a Men's Resource Center will open to all men who wish to educate themselves. Health Services and the Dean of Students office on campus give limited support to victims of sexual violence.

The focus of the forum was to stop sexual violence and to create a safe environment for people to live in. The forum consisting of four men and twelve women will continue to meet throughout the summer and into the fall, when they will start their campaign throughout the five colleges.

If anyone is interested in joining the Community Action Forum contact Andrew at 586-2462.

Professor speaks on weight loss

Volpe researched chromium, exercise on overweight women

By Maureen Rozanski
Collegian Staff

On Wednesday, April 24, Stella Volpe, assistant professor in the department of nutrition at University of Massachusetts, spoke about "Nutritional Research in Women: Chromium and Exercise in Overweight Women."

Volpe's presentation was based on a research project she conducted two years ago, in areas of mineral metabolism in exercise, body composition and energy expenditure in women who were moderately overweight. Volpe's study consisted of 40 local women who participated as the subjects for her experiment.

Volpe's forty subjects followed a consistent exercise and diet regimen over a 12 week period. During the 12 weeks, the forty women were separated into two groups. The "A" group was given a placebo supplement and the "B" group was given a chromium supplement in addition to their diet and exercise program.

The experiment was a matched pair of experiments, in which all of the women were treated under similar conditions, given the same diet and exercise program.

Professor Volpe wanted to determine if the amounts of chromium in the "B" group actually increased lean body mass and metabolic rate, in order to generate weight loss.

Volpe's interest in the study was primarily triggered by the advertised usage of chromium by body builders, as a method of increasing overall lean muscle mass.

By monitoring glucose and triglyceride levels in the blood, Volpe hoped to discover if chromium supplements had an effect on cholesterol and an increase in metabolism.

The subjects of the experiment were not told whether or not they were given placebo or chromium, and thusly had to follow their program consistently, including journaling their daily intake of food on a regular basis.

Volpe made clear to her subjects that the 12 week experiment may not effect their weight at all. She stressed that "studies are not always perfect," and later reflected that, "it wasn't perfect all the time, but we tried our best to make a comraderie."

Two participants in the study gave their feedback on the experiment, expressing a deep admiration for Volpe's motivating attitude and "overall energy." They also talked about the strong sense of togetherness and comraderie as they were all "in it together."

One former subject said, "regardless of what the outcome [of the experiment] was, I felt positive that I was doing something good for my health... we weren't in it just to lose weight– we were taking responsibility for the way we had been before."

After the twelve weeks of experimentation, Volpe found that there is no "magic pill" that triggers weight loss; although over time the Chromium group experienced a greater increase in lean body mass than the placebo group, it wasn't a significant enough to promote overall weight loss.

Volpe's advice to overweight women is a healthy diet and exercise program. She stressed the fact that, in doing her research, she was interested in "improving the health of overweight women," and wasn't concerned with "restructuring their bodily image." Volpe justified this by claiming that the country's obsession with weight loss "is disgusting."

In the future, Volpe would like to continue such research, but due to lack of funding, may find herself waiting for the next available opportunity.

Volpe's experiment served as her thesis for her post–doctoral fellowship at the University of California, Berkeley.

Volpe's discussion was sponsored by the Women Studies Program, as part of their "Lunch Time Lecture Series."

NO! examines complicated racial, gender problems

By Anna Lotto
Collegian Staff

Issues of gender and racial discrimination often raise difficult questions. When the two aspects are combined, the problem becomes even more complex. On Monday, April 14, two African American women took this challenge and sought to discuss the nature of sexual assault within the black community through their art.

About 35 people gathered in the lounge to watch Aishah Shahidah Simmons and Tamara L. Xavier's a 15 minute portion of their 75 minute documentary film, NO!, followed by discussion. The focus of the talk both before and after the movie was on the role of women of color in the "white feminist" movement as well as sexual violence in the black community.

Simmons began by introducing herself and Xavier as black feminists committed to both "projecting holistic visions of women of African descent" and the struggle to end violence against women. The two women are producing NO! as a unique and artistic exploration of the "collective silence in the black community when black women and girls are raped or sexually assaulted by black men."

The history of black men being lynched plays a large part in the role of black women confronting sexual violence, according to Simmons. Black women carry a "collective memory" of violence against the men of their race, she said, and the result is often silence.

Black women "need a space to talk about these issues without feeling we're betraying our race or our gender," she said.

At the same time, Simmons said, white feminists have a responsibility to name sexual perpetrators in their own community and not just highlight the acts of black men which promotes the stereotype of the "black male rapist."

The 15 minute sample of the video opened with a woman's account of date rape in a poem-form. A lesbian African-American woman, Queen, gave her account of being harassed by black men because of her homosexuality since it was considered "sleeping with the enemy." The last speaker in the video was a black man's dramatic reading of a poem about violence against black women. "We are loving black women the way America loves us," he said, "Slaves don't need slaves."

After, discussion continued Simmons reiterated the need to refer to "black on black crime" to include assaults against women. "If black men succeed and we don't," she asked, "What will happen to the race?"

The event was organized by Patricia Mota Guedes, educator advocate for the Everywoman's Center.

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Strong girl

A young member of the Spirit of the Heart Kungfu and Empowerment Center participates in a demonstration at the Take Back Our Rights rally on April 18th.

THANG VO / COLLEGIAN

Light in the darkness...

Marchers carry candles in the Take Back Our Rights rally.

Childhood book revives painful truths

Anna Lotto

I distinctly remember a day, two years ago, when I walked into my living room and found my 13-year-old sister curled up with a thick, glossy-covered book, crying silently into the pages. She looked up at me with pain-stricken eyes and said, "Anna, this book is so sad. Its the truest thing I've ever read."

The book she was reading was Reviving Ophelia and every girl or women I know who has read it, including me, has reacted to its accuracy in a similar way. Published in 1994 and written by clinical psychologist Mary Pipher, Reviving Ophelia is a documentation of the traumatic experience of encountering adolescence as a female in America.

In this tremendously important book, Pipher uses a combination of her own personal and professional experience along with actual accounts of dozens of adolescent girls to illustrate the effects of our "girl poisoning" culture.

The essence of her focus is the phenomenon of girls' loss of self when they enter adolescence, roughly around age twelve. Reviving Ophelia chronicles the destruction of confidence and ambition that is so wonderfully alive in young girls and so deadened by the journey into "womanhood."

Pipher explains how girls entering puberty are damaged when they become aware of their inequality and objectification in the world. She likens the experience to that of the character Ophelia in Shakespeare's Hamlet. Ophelia is a happy and free girl who becomes depressed and lost during adolescence. Distraught by her love for Hamlet, she lives only for his approval and eventually kills herself.

Many girls lose their sense of purpose in the world just as Ophelia does. This loss of female character in adolescence is well documented.

Pipher notes in the book that, "Something dramatic happens to girl in early adolescence. Just as planes and ships disappear mysteriously in the Bermuda Triangle, so do the selves of girls go down in droves. They crash and burn in a social and developmental Bermuda Triangle. In early adolescence, studies show that girls' IQ scores drop and their math and science scores plummet. They lose their resiliency and optimism and become less curious and inclined to take risks."

The testimony from the girls themselves is both disturbing and heart-breaking. One girl says flatly that, "everything good in me died in junior high." Another states the cultural pressures she feels in a metaphor: "I'm a perfectly good carrot that everyone is trying to turn into a rose. As a carrot, I have good color and a nice leafy top. When I'm carved into a rose, I turn brown and wither."

There are stories of girls from loving, supportive families with excellent grades and many talents who suffer just as much as homeless girls with brutal histories of sexual assault. All the girls are showing signs of their unhappiness within our culture. They are addicted to drugs or pregnant; they cut themselves or struggle with anorexia or compulsive eating. Their problems are serious and illustrate the girls' awareness of their degradation in our society. Pipher places emphasis on the fact that a large part of the inner sadness adolescent girls feel is rooted in body image.

She explains that although both boys and girls experience drastic body changes during puberty, girls are also faced with an intense attention surrounding their awkward physical appearance.

"With early adolescence, girls surrender their relaxed attitudes about their bodies and take up the burden of self- criticism. Just at the point their hips are becoming rounder and they are gaining fat cells, they see magazines and movies or hear remarks by peers that suggest to them that their bodies are all wrong. Many girls scorn their true bodies and work for a false body. They allow the culture to define who they should be," writes Pipher.

The conversations I have with my friends about this book inevitably include all of our reminiscing about how much we have lost since childhood. Someone described the process as "the change between wanting to be a doctor when I grew up and then aspiring to be a doctor's pretty wife."

Pipher's book is an attempt to explore the collective female "problem with no name." Girls need to be assimilated into our society as more than future wives and mothers. "Adolescent girls need a more public place in our culture, not as sex objects but as interesting and complicated human beings." Pipher says in the last chapter. Today, with more exploitation than ever before, the environment is a dangerous place for young girls to develop into strong women. Reviving Ophelia is a book all women should read to discover if there is a little girl inside them worth retrieving.

Anna Lotto is a Collegian Staff member.

Arts & Living

Professor–produces "mad" dubbed music

By Mike Burke
Collegian Staff

MAD PROFESSOR
Iron Horse
April 26

NORTHAMPTON — Throughout history there have been eventful persons and event-making persons. The eventful are common individuals who often appear at the right place and time. On the other hand, the event making person is a rare individual who single handedly reshapes the future.

On Friday night, at the Iron Horse, over a hundred "students" came out to learn from an event–maker himself, Mad Professor. Hailed by many as the premier dub producer in the world, the mad man, with the help of an assistant, a dance-hall like MC, taught the intense crowd a thing or two about dub and the future of dub music.

Stationed behind a large collection of electronic equipment, Mad Professor wasn't at all flashy as he pushed buttons and pressed keys. All he said to the crowd was a brief, "hello" at the beginning of the set while he left the talking to his Nike-clad frontman who continually hyped up the Professor by screaming, "this is a dub exclusive" and "this is the dub studio of the century."

Throughout the set, Mad Professor played with the dub sounds like he was playing with the audiences minds. From far–out samples to voice reproduction, the dub producer knew what he was doing, though most of the crowd was left in awe as they danced along. By mixing up older, more traditional, dance hall reggae tunes, with "dub exclusives" and even a jungle tune, "for all the junglists out there," Mad Professor kept the music rolling, never faltering.

Among the highlights included "Father of Creation," "Asylum of Dub" and "Good Vibrations." "Asylum of Dub" was a special treat for longtime Professor fans as it dated from the early days of his Anwa label and studio.

After an hour of "duh exclusives" and a two song encore, Mad Professor left the stage to an overwhelming applause from a crowd who knew they just saw a true legend in the music world.

Let's Go Bowling superior in SUB show

By Christina Poletto
Collegian Correspondent

THE TOASTERS/ LET'S GO BOWLING
Student Union Ballroom
April 25

The Toasters gave a ska–lovers performance at the SUB Thursday night.

COURTESY MOON RECORDS

You couldn't have asked for a better crowd on Thursday night. It was the perfect combination of people who came to see a great lineup of the best ska bands on the modern music scene. The Toasters and Let's Go Bowling headlined a show that was deemed to dispatch one of the best performances that the University of Massachusetts has seen this semester.

The most admirable part about Let's Go Bowling was certainly their stage presence. Not once did they stop their chaotic dancing — leading the crowd to skank faster and harder. Yet, with all the regal songs performed off of their latest release Mr. Twist, Let's Go Bowling didn't stop providing other renowned ska favorites such as "Pin Stripe Suit."

The Toasters, on the other hand, gave a less than-stellar performance last Thursday night. After it was revealed that frontman vocalist Coolie wasn't slated to appear, expectations were lowered but the show went beyond anyone's anticipation. Roguish Armament, a hardcore rap based group were introduced as the evening's special guests. Yet, what started out as an interesting mix of ska and rap, turned into more of a Cypress Hill concert.

Roguish Armament pathetically tried to fuse the two music cultures, but failed miserably. Once they started yelling such phrases as: "The Toasters are in the haaauuuusssee…" that things began looking bleak. The rest of the time the group was jumping about the stage, as if "Jump Around" was playing and not the songs of the Toasters.

Bucket and Sledge, the guitarist/vocalist and trumpet player respectively can be credited with saving the show. On songs where Bucket took the lead vocals away from the special guests, the show soared. Songs such as "East Side Beat" and "History Book" molded the crowd into a chaotic mass–drowning them in the better moments of the concert. Sledge amazed the crowd with his trumpet playing as well with his vocals on "Mona." Although the prominent source of their set list came from one of their earlier and not well known releases Skaboom, the Toasters didn't neglect fan favorites such as "Shebeen" and "Secret Agent Man."

Last Thursday night at the Student Union Ballroom provided a concert that any ska fan would have been proud to add to their repertoire. Yet, it was Let's Go Bowling that stole the show with their astounding live performance, and it was they who provided the more positive moments of the evening.

Undergrad acting group premiers play

By Mark McGrath
Collegian Staff

ROSENCRANTZ AND GUILDENSTERN ARE DEAD
Bartlett Hall
April 26

What do you do when you want to act, but there does not seem to be any options open to you? What do you do if you want to direct plays here on campus? Confronted with questions like these, a group of students decided to form their own acting group, the Loose Cannon Players.

This school year, the University of Massachusetts has seen the formation of a new and inspired acting troupe, the Loose Cannon Players. Unlike many theater groups, the all undergraduate Loose Cannons have received no University funding, but this has not limited the group. Although their task has never been an easy one, the students' resourcefulness has more than made up for what they lack in stature and money.

The Loose Cannon players drifted into the spotlight for the first time as they performed Tom Stoppard's classic play Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead in Bartlett Hall this past weekend. The event marked the high point in the life of the group, which has had a long hard journey and defied all odds just to get to the point they have.

The play is a twisted take on Shakespeare's Hamlet told from the perspective of the seemingly useless characters Rosencrantz and Guildenstern. Aaron Morse and Deepak Anamhapadmanabha led the cast as the dubious duo, who throughout the course of the play realize the only thing they are sure of is death, but is that even certain?

Although they still lack official Registered Student Organization (RSO) status, The Loose Cannon Players are growing in numbers and in prestige. Soon, they will be an official RSO.

If there was a moment of conception for the group, it occurred when the two founders, first year students Timothy Matos and Morse met at an audition for another University production. Although neither got parts, the pair was not dismayed — they simply formed their own group.

Director Matos said he choose Rosencranz and Guildenstern Are Dead because it is a popular play that is rarely performed on stage. Since the Loose Cannons are an entirely student run organization, they have complete freedom in their choice of plays.

Morse, the other co–founder, who put up almost all of the money for the production, was excited about the prospects for next year. By then, they will work with Resident Arts in Southwest and should receive RSO status, which allows them to use University funds. They have scheduled Samuel Beckett's Waiting for Godot as their fall play, and at their current growth rate and with the added experience this play has given them, it will surely be a sight to behold.

Gary Bartz Quintet entertains Hampden

By Ian Simons
Collegian Staff

GARY BARTZ QUINTET
Hampden Theater
April 25

The Hampden Theater had a shadowed and intimate feel, like a night-club or small restaurant, on Thursday night. In fact, jazz music was the restaurant with a menu that would ensure the guests left feeling full. The recipe was cooked up by the Gary Bartz Quintet and the essential ingredients were Tom Williams, trumpet, George Colligan, piano, Greg Bandy, drums and James King on bass.

But enough of the gastronomic metaphor. Bartz seemed to be a musician who explored himself through the music and his expressive demeanor, what he played only seemed to reinforce this feeling. It was an evening of "hard bop" music, if it has to be categorized, though much of his playing seemed to transcend that genre. Indeed, his whole performance was a curious amalgam of diverse influences which were hard to pinpoint.

Bartz had an unusual ability to blow with raw power, yet show musical restraint at the same time, on both the alto and soprano saxophone. In a similar way, many of the pieces, which he smoothly rolled from one into another, seemed to bond a tune that had a standard feel to it with an almost "free" playing style as the solos superseded any delineations of time or meter

The rhythm section which accompanied Bartz was a stable unit. For much of the night the harmonic underpinning of the quintet was firm and solid like the trunk of a tree, yet the force of the soloists were like its branches and leaves and were allowed to take the music beyond the rhythmic base. Williams soloed on trumpet with lyrical hardness, though most impressive was Colligan's skillful piano improvisations (giving a nod to Schubert or Ellington). The group often dipped into some driven grooves with a soul jazz twist when Bartz's playing was similar to another alto brother, Cannonball Adderley.

Turn to QUINTET page7

Eating Disorder Programs
Spring 1996
Sponsored by University Health Services

Eating Disorder Assessment Program
For individuals - with Nutritionists, Mental Health Clinician, Physician and/or Nurse Practitioner. Mondays or Wednesdays Confidentiality Assured. Call 549-2671 x233, Clinic 4.

Friends and Family Group
Single sessions for those concerned about somebody with an eating disorder. Call 549-2671 x233, Clinic 4.

Peer Support Group
For those struggling with anorexia, bulimia, or compulsive overeating. Mondays 4:30 - 6 pm, (except holidays) at the Campus Center. Room number posted by elevator. Confidentiality Assured. Call 549-2671 x233, Clinic 4.

Peer Health Connections
A confidential phone line for help around eating disorders, yourself or someone you know. Call 549-2671, ext. 168.

WE'RE HERE!
Come To Amherst Barbers and See Jim and Terri, Formerly of University Barbers!
Amherst Barbers
Now Open
Unisex Hair Stylist
Tel. 253-1722
$8 and up
Hours: Mon - Wed 8am-5:30pm
Thurs & Fri 8am-8pm, Sat 8am-3pm
Proprietors: Jim Reed and Terri Lonerini
Formerly Of University Barbers
Jim Terri

AT THE OATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
Now Thru Thurs. only/Separate Ticks.
Daily 7:00: "A STUNNING WORK OF SPECULATIVE FICTION" – JAMES CAMERON. Mamoru Oshii's Animated Thriller GHOST IN THE SHELL. IT FOUND A VOICE... AND IT NEEDS A GUN. A BRAWLING ACTION CYBERPUNK EPIC. 35mm. FEATURING "ONE MINUTE MORNING" BY PIXAR ANIMATION STUDIOS (END & LIT).
Daily 9:00: "THERE WON'T BE A BETTER FILM THAN THIS ALL YEAR!" – Gene Siskel. "TWO THUMBS UP. WAY UP!" – Siskel & Ebert. ★★★★ A DAZZLING MIX OF MIRTH AND MALICE – Rex Reed. A TERRIFIC TWISTED COMEDY – Peter Travers, ROLLING STONE. FARGO. From the team that gave you Blood Simple and Raising Arizona
ACADEMY OF MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Cinema House 584-8435

$20 OFF ANY MOTOROLA PAGER IN STOCK WITH THIS COUPON
PIONEER VALLEY Knife & Tool
Pager prices starting @ $49.00 with NewEngland service as low as $7.95 monthly. For more information on sales/service/reactivations
Please call 549-7331 or stop by the shop located in the Amherst Carriage Shops (Next to the Pub.)
MOTOROLA Pagers
20

Don't Let The Marshall Catch You Going Anywhere Else!
Marshall
STEINBECK
COLLISION REPAIR & AUTO BODY
53 S. Prospect St. Amherst Center
• Imports and other unibody vehicles are our speciality.
• Users of Sikkens paint products
• Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass repair.
256-8157 256-1385
Shop Reg # RS1212

Summer at Brandeis University
Session I — June 3-July 5
Session II — July 8-August 9
• Small classes taught by Brandeis faculty
• Competitive tuition
• Courses for high school, undergraduate and graduate students
• Easy access from Rtes.128/95/90
• Free Parking
Liberal Arts
Near Eastern and Judaic Studies
Premedical Sciences
Chamber Music Workshop
Internship Program in Law, Medicine and Health Policy
Intensive Hebrew Language Institute
Spanish Immersion Program
Save over $500 on summer classes, by enrolling before April 30.
Information, catalog and application:
Summer Program Office
Rabb School of Summer, Special, and Continuing Studies
Brandeis University, MS 004
P.O. Box 9110
Waltham, MA 02254-9110
(617) 736-3424
FAX: (617) 736-3420
E-mail: summer@brandeis.edu
@ logos.cc.brandeis.edu

Minuteman Volkswagen
Ask For First Time College Program!
Patricia Dolan
Sales Representative
TEL. 617-275-8000
39 North Road
Bedford, Mass. 01730

UMASS, AMHERST
Earn 9 credits in Spanish !!
Complete your Language Requirement !!
Earn credits towards a minor or a major in Spanish !!
1996 Summer Program Salamanca, Spain
July 3- July 30
INFORMATION MEETING
April 30, 6:00 p.m.
Herter 601
For more Information and Application :
Director, Salamanca Program
Spanish and Portuguese 418 Herter Tel. (413) 545-4790/2887
Salamanca@Spanport.umass.edu

UM Fine Arts Center thanks Amherst for 20 yrs. of patronism

KAREM ALI / COLLEGIAN STAFF

On–lookers gathered at the 20th anniversary of the Fine Arts Center to examine the art from the Wheeler Gallery on Saturday afternoon.

KAREM ALI / COLLEGIAN STAFF

Art from the Wheeler Gallery was displayed for the 20th anniversary of the Fine Arts Center on Saturday.

KAREM ALI / COLLEGIAN STAFF

Parents and children collect at the "petting zoo" to try out their talents in playing instruments on Saturday at the anniversary of the Fine Arts Center.

KAREM ALI / COLLEGIAN STAFF

The Morris Dancers performed as part of the day's celebration.

FAC closes season in style

By Matt Sinclair
Collegian Staff

CINCINNATI SYMPHONY
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
April 25

The performance by the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra last Thursday marked the end of a series in the Fine Arts Center's 1995–6 season. The program included the "Overture to Oberon" (1825–6) by Carl Maria von Weber; "Symphonic Metamorphosis of Themes by Weber" (1940–3), by Paul Hindemith; and "Symphony No. 5 in D minor, Op. 47" (1937), by Dmitri Shostakovich.

The orchestra, led by acclaimed Spanish conductor Jesús López–Cobos, opened with the "Overture to Oberon," a passionate and exciting composition, the orchestra was especially good at eliciting the vibrant and intense mood which is inherent in this piece. While complex and extremely fast–moving at times, the audience remained effectively riveted, seduced by the sheer mastery with which the musicians translated the composer's work.

"The Symphonic Metamorphosis of Themes by Weber" was a less fervent, more intricate expression of musical grandeur — it was as absorbing as the former piece, liberating the audience with its rich and sonorous themes.

The final piece, "Shostakovich's Symphony No. 5 in D minor," was both a mysterious and invigorating performance which truly illustrated the talent of this, America's fifth oldest and ninth largest orchestra.

The Cincinnati Symphony was rewarded for its efforts with a rapturous applause from the capacity–audience which filled the Concert Hall. The performance marked a high–note of the 1995–6 Center Series, initiating an air of anticipation for the next Fine Arts Center Series starting at the beginning of the next semester.

Greek Week setting a new tone

By Anastasia Kudrez
Collegian Staff

The Greek Area's annual Greek Week at the University of Massachusetts begins today.

Greek Week events start this morning and close Sunday night with an awards night and talent show. This year, the event's theme is raising awareness and stopping violence against women. Coordinators Josh Endler and Merri Slovin said the money raised will be donated to the Everywoman's Center.

Unlike past years, this event will be alcohol–free in an effort to shift Greek priorities away from alcohol and to support the pending risk management policy.

"We need an awesome Greek Week to boost everyone's morale," Endler said.

At last week's Greek Council meeting, Endler and Slovin presented this week's itinerary. The events include a car wash at Sigma Alpha Mu, volleyball and basketball tournaments, a guest speaker, "either Ted Kennedy, Alec Baldwin or Dr. Abel," a barbecue and a closing ceremony.

On Monday and Tuesday, Greeks will sponsor a table in the Campus Center concourse distributing white ribbons symbolizing commitment to stopping violence against women.

Endler warned the council to remind their chapters the event is dry, even if participants are over 21. The Greek Week memo had two warnings about this year's policy.

"Suck it up. It's not that bad. I'm sure we've all had fun without alcohol at some point in our life," it said.

The Greeks are working to implement a risk management policy to prevent alcohol–related incidents. Interfraternity Council President Jason Rose said the policy is now being reviewed by Dean of Students Jo–Anne Vanin and the national chapters.

"There are still concerns with ambiguities," he said. "Hopefully we'll make quite a bit of progress in the next few weeks."

Greek leaders hope this year's Greek Week will unite a community surrounded by conflict and controversy. They are trying to dispel the negative publicity of recent incidents, including a lawsuit filed by a woman alleging she was raped at a Sigma Phi Epsilon party on Feb. 29. The Greek Week memo called the upcoming event "a great chance to do a lot of good, to get some much needed positive publicity and have tons of fun at the same time."

Students give life to dance world

COURTESY FINE ARTS CENTER

Bowker featured student–choreographed performance by Alive with Dance on Thursday night.

By Lorraine Urbanski
Collegian Correspondent

ALIVE WITH DANCE
Bowker Auditorium
April 25

Alive with Dance put on an extraordinary show Thursday night in front of an enthusiastic audience, performing diverse dances set to a variety of music and lighting that stirred a mixed bag of emotions.

Each of the 10 pieces performed were choreographed by the senior members of the group, placing them in the spotlight to show off their talents and unique visions of dance.

The bone–chilling "Broken Innocence," choreographed by Shaun Curtin, was set to the music by Enigma and the song "Icicle" by Tori Amos. The tone was somewhat spooky and spiritual, yet at the same time, the dance gave off a very whimsical atmosphere; it almost seemed as if the performers were like little pop–up ballerinas in a children's jewelry box.

Finishing off the first act with a bang was "Oh Mother Be Quick" choreographed by Gretel Life Schatz. The dance started off rather slow and tiresome, but soon little beads began to pop out at the audience from both sides of the stage in a peculiar manner. The heads turned into bodies sliding their way onto the stage to dance and jump around the other two dancers who were already present. Their costumes were quite lively as well — two of them were dressed as crazy housewives. This piece brought out cheers from the crowd.

Following the intermission, the program began with Michelle Dubois' "Nature's Scream" which dealt with the advancement of technology, with quirky sound effects depicting society's obsession with computers and robotics. Midway through, the piece switched tempos as it leaned more toward a sedate mood, with the dancers pretending to watch cars zoom by on an open highway. The dance ended with a scene taken from a hip–hop party.

On a more nostalgic note, "Broadway Melodies," choreographed by Jennifer Scanlon, was an entertaining page taken out of the golden years of Hollywood, or even more so, Broadway in the 40's.

"Imprints" hit close to home, surely for most people in the audience. The dance was choreographed by Katherine Leighton Hooper and was set to an Audre Lorde poem read by Sharon Hart. The music was composed by student Jonathan Slate and was performed by a quartet from the Department of Music. Emotional and very humanistic, the dance flowed with the breaths of the speaker and the fluidity of the string music. The dancers symbolized a unity of intertwining souls and lives, and at the same time, following the dictates of the poem — learn to hate, yet learn to love yourself and one another.

The final performance of the evening, choreographed by Alyssa Cohen and Katherine Magyar, could be called "the dance formerly known as the symbol for female." The program listed the dance simply as the universal symbol for females. The spirit of the dance was captured sensually, with lots of funk, soul and seductiveness blended together. Aretha Franklin's powerful voice flooded the auditorium making the bold statement — the spirit of woman is going strong. It was a fantastic way to finish off the night.

As the group's name suggests, the performance brought dance vividly alive, much to the delight of the audience. Together with music, lighting and technique, the dancers brought a unique spirit to Bowker Auditorium and proved that dance is much more than movement; it's an expressive form of art that can carry messages that sometimes words can not accomplish.

Clinton's aid discusses today's economy

By Ashley E. Vondrasek
Collegian Correspondent

AMHERST — Joseph Stiglitz, a Amherst College alumnus and chairman of President Clinton's Council of Economic Advisers, lectured Friday at 4 p.m. in the Converse Assembly Room at Amherst College on "Economic Growth and Workers' Anxiety: Policies for Today and the 21st Century." The lecture was sponsored by the Friends of the Amherst College Library.

Stiglitz said that eight and a half million jobs are being created in the service sector, better known as the "rumor hamburger flippers." The service sector includes, for instance, the financial service sector and the computer service sector, Stiglitz said.

Ninety percent of the service sector jobs are higher wage, such as managerial, Stiglitz said.

"Two–thirds of all net job creations are above medium wage," he said.

According to Stiglitz the economy is "expanding in areas of relative strength." In the last three years, expansion in exports has increased by 31 percent, Stiglitz said.

"Some jobs will be destroyed as the economy grows", Stiglitz said.

"In the last 10 to 15 years Fortune 500 companies have been playing a smaller role in employment," said Stiglitz. This is due to down–sizing of managerial positions and an increase in manufacturing positions, Stiglitz said.

Stiglitz said that surveys have estimated that one–fourth of the people who lose their jobs have not been able to find a new job within two to three years.

Individuals who are better educated move from one job to another much more easily than those who are less educated, he said.

The Council of Economic Advisers' five policies for today and the 21st century are "good macroeconomic policies," he said. In other words recognizing that if the unemployment rate is five percent, it will be easier for those unemployed to find a new job than if the unemployment rate is 10 percent, Stiglitz said.

Both educational and training programs need to be created to enable workers to move more easily from job to job, Stiglitz explained.

Labor markets need to be made more effective by focusing more on "re–employment" instead of money, which is more efficient, he said.

Both insurance and pensions for workers who are unemployed need to be protected. "Nowadays most people do not work for one company throughout their career, rather they move from company to company," he said.

Stiglitz is a 1964 graduate of Amherst College. He earned a Ph. D. from M. I. T. and was a Fulbright scholar at Cambridge University. A former professor at Princeton University and Yale University, he is currently on leave from Stanford University where he has taught economics since 1988. An expert on how incentives affect economic behavior, Stiglitz was appointed to the Council in 1993 and became chairman in 1995.

■ quintet

continued from page 6

The solos of Bartz were most impressive. Often he would start warmly, the sounds of the saxophone like a smiling girl, then he would heat up into an explosive radiance as the girl giggled and laughed almost uncontrollably. His solos were dynamic improvisations filled with growls and shrieks which encompassed a large range of notes. At times, Bartz seemed to be blowing so hard, and pushing for such a large sound, that he was playing for his life, literally. It was a quintet that were traversing the edge of the hard bop storm applying technical ability and gritty force to ensure a safe return.

KABIEM AU/COLLEGIAN

Try to stop me!

Shaun Woods (30) drives by defenders in the annual UMass Spring football game on Saturday, which the Maroon squad won, defeating the White team 14-6.

Red Sox blow lead, swept by Royals

By Jimmy Golen
Associated Press

BOSTON — The Boston Red Sox have the worst record in baseball. And any doubt as to whether they have earned that distinction was erased Sunday when they were swept by their closest competitor.

Pinch-hitter Bob Hamelin hit a two-run homer and the Kansas City Royals, who blew a three-run lead in the eighth inning, scored three in the ninth to beat the Red Sox 9-7 and complete a three-game sweep.

"I've never seen anything like this in my life," Boston manager Kevin Kennedy said glumly. "Not this long. Not when you plug one hole and another one opens up. It's awfully hard to believe."

The sinking ship metaphor was especially appropriate for the Red Sox, who dropped to 6-19 after being swept by what had been baseball's second-worst team. After never falling more than two games out of first place in winning the AL East last year, Boston is now farther than that from fourth.

"We've been going through the same thing as the Red Sox. You either have to fight your way out of it or die," Royals manager Bob Boone said. "If you keep playing right every day you will win more than you lose."

The Red Sox trailed 5-1 before getting RBI singles from Mike Stanley and Troy O'Leary in the seventh inning. It was 6-3 in the eighth when Mo Vaughn's seventh homer tied it.

Ken Robinson (1-0) relieved Mike Magnante and walked Stanley. Pinch-runner Bill Haselman stole second and scored on Wil Cordero's fourth hit of the game when he crashed into catcher Mike Macfarlane to knock the ball loose and make it 7-6 Boston.

But Heathcliff Slocumb (0-1) blew the save opportunity in the ninth.

"Emotions get so high," Kennedy said. "To have your heart torn out... I think [everybody] feels it. It's pretty disheartening."

David Howard and Keith Lockhart singled to lead off the ninth before Bip Roberts' sacrifice fly tied it 7-all. Hamelin, batting for Les Norman, hit a 3-2 pitch into the right-field seats to make it 9-7.

Robinson allowed one run in one-third of an inning and was headed for a loss before the rally. Jeff Montgomery pitched the ninth for his sixth save.

For the second consecutive day, the Royals scored in the first inning, getting two singles with two outs before Macfarlane, who was let go by Boston in the off-season, homered into the left-field screen to make it 3-0.

Mark Gubicza scattered 10 hits in five and two and thirds innings as the Red Sox stranded 10 runners in the first six innings.

Stanley and Reggie Jefferson had three hits apiece for the Red Sox.

Yankees 6, Twins 3

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul O'Neill saved a potential home run with a leaping grab against the right-field wall, then homered to break a seventh-inning tie yesterday and lead the New York Yankees over the Minnesota Twins 6-3.

O'Neill jumped to the top of the fence in the fourth to grab Paul Molitor's bid for a homer, a drive off Frank Rodriguez (2-2). O'Neill then broke a 3-3 tie in the seventh with his second homer of the season. O'Neill also singled, raising his league-leading average .398.

Mariano Duncan and Gerald Williams added RBI singles in the eighth off Pat Mahomes.

Mariano Rivera (2-0) who started the sixth in relief of Jimmy Key, pitched three hitless innings and struck out five. He is hitless in nine innings.

John Wetteland pitched the ninth for his fourth save in four chances, completing the eight-hitter.

Rodriguez (2-2) allowed four runs and nine hits in six and two-thirds innings, walking four and striking out four.

Tino Martinez and Bernie Williams had RBI singles in the first inning as the Yankees took a 2-0 lead, but the Twins went ahead in the fourth on a two-run homer by Dave Hollins, his sixth, and an RBI double by Pat Meares.

Joe Girardi tied the score in the sixth with an RBI single. Key gave up three runs and seven hits in five innings, struck out four and walked two.

Athletics 6, Tigers 3

DETROIT (AP) — Scott Brosius had his third two-homer game of the season and Mark McGwire nearly cleared Tiger Stadium's left field roof as the Oakland Athletics hit five homers Sunday and beat Detroit 6-3.

Brosius, who had two-homer games April 4 against Detroit in Las Vegas and Tuesday at Milwaukee, hit solo homers in the second and seventh innings. Five of his eight homers this season have come against the Tigers.

McGwire's two-run homer, his second in as many days and the 20th of his career in Detroit, was almost the fourth to go over Tiger Stadium's left field roof.

The drive, estimated at 462 feet, landed midway up the roof and took a couple of small bounces forward before rolling back on the field. It gave Oakland a 5-2 lead.

Jason Giambi and Pedro Munoz also hit solo homers for the A's, who have won seven of eight and finished a 4-1 road trip.

Cecil Fielder hit his 10th homer, tying Baltimore's Brady Anderson for the AL lead, and Eddie Williams also homered for the Tigers. Detroit finished a 1-4 homestand with its 10th loss in 11 games.

Steve Wojeiechowski (2-0) won his second straight start, allowing two runs and six hits in a career-high seven innings. He won consecutive starts for the first time in his career.

Greg Gohr (1-3) gave up five runs and seven hits — including four homers — in four and two-thirds innings.

Fielder hit his 10th homer of the season but first since April 16 with Travis Fryman aboard in the first.

But the A's answered with solo home runs by Brosius in the second, Giambi in the third and Munoz in the fourth . McGwire connected with Geronimo Berroa aboard the fifth.

Giambi's home run, also his second in as many days, extended his hitting streak to 18 games, tops in the majors this season. Brosius homered again in the seventh off Richie Lewis.

Bill Taylor got the final out for his second save in two days.

Mets 7, Pirates 5

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bobby Jones finally gave New York a well-pitched start, shaking off three home runs to lead the Mets past the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-5 Sunday.

Rico Brogna's two-run single finished off a three-run sixth inning as the Mets, down 2-0 in the third, rallied against Pittsburgh for the second consecutive game. New York won 7-4 Saturday on Kevin Roberson's three-run homer in the ninth after trailing 3-1.

Jones (1-1), who had a 9.24 ERA while pitching past the fourth inning only once in his first four starts, gave up seven hits in 8 1-3 innings. He fell behind when Charlie Hayes and Carlos Garcia hit solo homers in the second.

But Jones, who had allowed 13 earned runs in 12 2-3 innings prior to Sunday, settled down to surrender only three singles over the final five innings before Jay Bell hit a two-run homer in the ninth. He struck out five and walked two while lowering his ERA to 7.71.

Jones gave up a one-out single to Charlie Hayes in the ninth and was pulled for Doug Henry, who walked the only hitter he faced. John Franco came on and gave up a two-out RBI single to Garcia before striking out Al Martin for his fourth save.

Paul Wagner (3-2), who had permitted only seven earned runs in his first five starts, retired the first nine hitters and struck out nine over six and one-third innings.

But Jeff Kent, only 1-for-14 previously against Pittsburgh this season, hit his third homer of the season in the fifth to make it 2-1. Wagner then couldn't escape the sixth despite striking out Jones and Jose Vizcaino around Lance Johnson's one-out double. Wagner's wild pitch sent Johnson to third and Bernard Gilkey walked. Roberson, making his second consecutive start, tied it with a run-scoring single ahead of Brogna's two-run single.

Kent doubled and scored on Johnson's groundout in the seventh and Todd Hundley had an RBI single in the eighth, both off reliever Lee Hancock. Joe Boever, making his first appearance for Pittsburgh, threw a run-scoring wild pitch in the ninth.

What's New At T.J.'s This Week?

SWIMSUIT SPECTACULAR

A SPECIAL COLLECTION OF FAMOUS NAME SWIMSUITS JUST

$16.99 Sold elsewhere for $34 & up.

- Hundreds of swimsuits for misses and juniors in sensational solids and prints
- Hurry in for best selection – at this price, you'll want more than one!

Going On Now

T.J.maxx®

Call 1-800-2TJ-MAXX for nearest store.

VISIT OUR NEWEST STORE IN WESTFIELD AT WESTGATE PLAZA.

THOUSANDS OF NEW FASHIONS COME IN EVERY WEEK. AND SO SHOULD YOU.

Hot, Hot, Hot!
Mia sandals

Birkenstock
Need we say more

It's Simple
The sneaker

Downtown Amherst

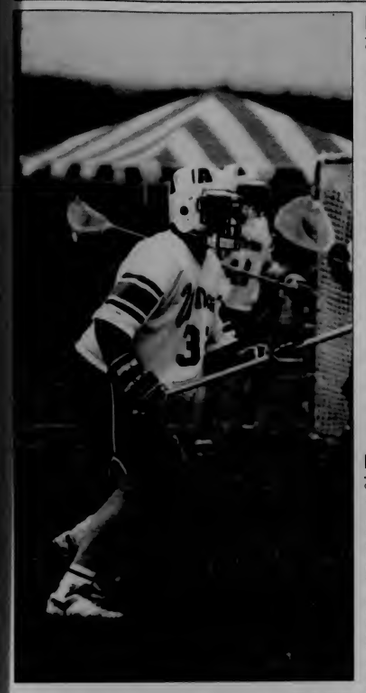
Cammies®

Man's tries a la camouflage, for hiding behind a potted palm or standing out in a crowd of convention.

(203)246-7958*

(after 5PM, 7days)

*Sorry, the wrong phone number was printed on April 3, 5 & 8.



KABIEM AU/COLLEGIAN

The men's lacrosse team squandered a three-goal lead with under nine minutes to go in yesterday's overtime loss at the hands of No. 6 Syracuse.

■ Vautour

continued from page 12

The Carrier Dome may be toughest place to play in the country as well. The unique atmosphere of the dome, coupled with the intensity of the crowd presence has taken even good teams out of their games en route to a loss against the mighty Orange.

But yesterday afternoon, in that menacing building, Massachusetts ran with those legends step for step the entire game. They almost sent the 5,443 fans home disappointed, before succumbing in overtime, when superstar Rob Kavovit's dagger found it's mark and finished off the Minutemen's upset dreams.

For 59:54 (until Casey Powell scored the tying goal) it didn't matter that Syracuse coach Roy Simmons Jr. led Cannella in the career win department 265-13, because the younger sideline boss outcoached his legendary counterpart. But aided by some questionable calls late in the contest, Simmons escaped, with the win.

"Coach's game plan was unbelievable," Glass said. "I fell bad for the coaches. They had us well prepared."

To attend their second consecutive tournament, the Minutemen need to upend No. 7 Brown next Saturday and hope that their strength of schedule and the minuscule margins of defeat in their losses are enough to convince the tournament committee of their worth.

"This will make us work that much harder [against Brown]," said sophomore goalie John Kasselakis. "That's the kind of team we are. That's what coach expects from us. If you have a bad day, there's no taking the next day off to feel sorry for yourself. It's right back to hard work where we started from."

UMass can take solace in one thing as they prepare for the showdown. Brown is scared. When Peter Lasagna watches the game tape of the Minutemen and Orangemen, a family size container of Tums will likely accompany him. If the Minutemen can turn in another performance on Saturday like they did yesterday, then Brown is in trouble.

It is also not impossible, nor unlikely, that if the Minutemen do get an invite to the tournament that Syracuse might be a possible opponent in the first round.

And after yesterday, if the two teams do meet again, Simmons might hit the drugstore for some Tums of his own.

Matt Vautour is Collegian columnist.

■ lacrosse

continued from page 12

age.

"Syracuse is explosive and we need to slow them down." Cannella said. "They score well on transition and we haven't done a great job at that this year at times. But we're going to have to possess the ball on offense and slow them down.

"We're going to have to limit our mistakes. They force you into a lot of mistakes but we have to limit them and we're going to have to go out there and play with a lot of heart."

Broadcast Notes: The UMass/Syracuse game will be broadcast live on WMUA 91.1 FM from the Carrier Dome with "The Wall's" Dan Welch on play-by-play and Justin C. Smith on color.

■ baseball

continued from page 12

was out of action today due to health reasons. Dave Giglio got the start at short and Bryan Mazzaferro played the hot corner, DH Clark went to right and Brian Samela filled in at DH.

The Minutemen started slowly in the first of a pair of games which would both be decided in the final half inning. Right hander Jeff Puleri (3.74 ERA) got the start for UMass, letting up two runs in the first inning.

In the second, leftfielder Jette led off, getting hit by a pitch before stealing second then Mazzaferro singled to right. Dagliere hit into a double play, yet Jette made his way home to put the Minutemen down 2-1.

The Hawks would score a run in the second and third innings while keeping the Minutemen at bay behind the plate.

In the bottom of the third, Puleri pitched himself into a jam allowing two singles and a walk to load the bases, and another walk to score a run that put St. Joe's up 3-1. Freshman Ryan Camerun stepped to the mound for Puleri with a 3-0 count on the Hawks' Brian Kenny, throwing three strikes in a row to close the inning.

Mazzaferro made his way around the diamond in the third, to earn the second UMass run, as centerfielder Nate Murphy led off the inning going yard to centerfield to bring the Minutemen within one.

After the Hawks scored a run in the sixth, UMass dug in and assured the win. With Clark singling to short and a base on balls by Samela, St. Joe's erupted. It was a war of attrition as umpires tossed coach Chris Lovchiavo, shortstop Bill Black and a player from the bench for arguing. A rip by the Minutemen's Kiah would score Clark chopping the Hawk's lead by a run.

The UMass defense held off the Hawks in the seventh and managed to squeak home the win with two runs. Leading off, Dagliere ran out a bunt down the first base line, but in doing so, pulled his hamstring, which brought Ryan Hodgson out to pinch run. This kept the second base slugger out of the second game.

Kelly, Murphy and Clark were good for a single apiece, driving Hodgson home. The final run was scored by Kelly on a Samela sac fly to right.

UMass 6, St. Joseph's 5

The pressure was on the Hawks who needed a win for a shot at an A-10 Tourney berth. However, it was the Minutemen who came out of the gate swinging, earning three runs in the third.

Rightfielder Pete Gautreau got on base via a base on balls, setting up a Jette triple to bring him home. Mazzaferro walked and Murphy singled to score Jette then Kelly singled scoring Mazzaferro.

The Hawks exploded in the fifth, scoring all five of their runs off senior hurler Dave Dart (2.45 ERA). Jette made his way around again in the bottom of the inning to knot the score at five, yet the game would not be decided until the final half inning.

In the bottom of the seventh, Mazzaferro led off with a double to left. After the Hawks intentionally walked Murphy, Kelly singled off a bunt to load the bases. With one out, Samela hit one out notching his first collegiate home run scoring Mazzaferro and Murphy to win the game.

Stone was also pleased with the way his team adjusted, filling key spots in the infield at short and second.

Syracuse 10, Massachusetts 9 (OT)

At the Carrier Dome, Syracuse, NY

UMass (8—9)	3	2	2	2	0	0
Syracuse (9—3)	2	2	2	0	1	1	0	1	10

Goals – UM: Jim Kennedy 2, Casey Costello 2, Buddy Hoffman, Eric Bailey, Brendan Glass. SU: Rob Kavovit 3, Jim Morissey 2, Paul Carcaterra 1, Ryan Cummings, Matt Cutia, Casey Powell, Ira Vanterpool. Assists – UM: Hoffman 2, Bailey, Kennedy, P.G. Massey. SU: Morrissey 2, Powell.

Saves – UM: John Kasselakis 9, SU: Jason Gebhardt 11. Shots UM – 28, SU – 36. Faceoffs UM – 5, SU – 17. Ground balls UM – 35, SU – 28. EMO – UM 1-for-4, SU – 0-for-3. Penalties – UM – 3-for-2:00, SU – 4-for-3:30.

Player of the Game

Dennis Kelly

Highlights...

UMass defensive midfielder Dennis Kelly put the clamps on All American Casey Powell, holding him to just one goal and one assist on the day ... Junior attackman Brendan Glass scored his 98th career goal yesterday to move him past Lee Vosburgh into seventh place alone on the all time UMass goal scoring charts... Syracuse has won the last 16 meetings with the Minutemen dating back to 1982... The 5,443 in attendance at the Carrier Dome was the largest crowd the Minutemen played in front of this year.

STUDENTS

SAVE MONEY BY PUTTING YOUR ACCOUNT ON HOLD THIS SUMMER!

If you're a student 19 or older and won't be using your BayBank account this summer, simply put it on hold. We'll waive normal monthly service charges all summer, as long as you're not using your account.

SAVE TIME.

Reactivate your account simply by using your BayBank Card for any banking transaction or purchase, writing a check, using Telephone Banking or HomeLink, or visiting any BayBank office.

SIGN UP TODAY!

It's easy. Just call 788-5000 from anywhere in Massachusetts (or 1-800-788-5000 from outside Massachusetts) or stop by any BayBank office.

http://www.BayBank.com

BayBank®

Member FDIC

Coolest store in town!

I Used To Be A Tree

"The tree-mendous store"

191 North Pleasant Street
Amherst, MA 01002
413-253-7777

IF

IF you would like the use of a new car.
IF you believe in honesty and integrity.
IF you are hardworking and ambitious.
IF you want security and opportunity.

HURRY!!

Come to Toyota/Lincoln Mercury of Northampton Monday thru Friday from 10-4 p.m. without obligation and inquire regarding this very interesting sales position. Anyone may apply. No experience necessary. See Mr. Richard or Mr. Raff for application and interview.

OUR LOT IS OPEN FOR BROWSING SUNDAYS 10AM-5PM

NORTHAMPTON TOYOTA LINCOLN MERCURY

280 King St, (Rte. 5)
Northampton
E.O.E.

SELF-STORAGE
One Rate, One Payment, One Carefree Summer.

It all adds up to one great summer break: our carefree one-rate/one-payment self storage plan.

We've neatly packaged our rates in a specially tailored program to accommodate your school's summer schedule. That way, with one easy payment, you can take off without a worry.

FREE LOCK WITH STUDENT ID

And, by showing us your student ID, we'll even give you a free lock. How's that for easy living?

Call now to reserve a room, or if you have any questions. Better yet, stop by today.

HOLYOKE 539-9261
Chicopee 535-3037

Starting at $20.95

U-HAUL

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc.
8. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalities under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students

20¢ per word/day

All others

40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

Activities
Announcements
Apartment For Rent
Auto For Sale
Employment
Entertainment
For Sale
Found (2 days Free)
Happy Birthday
Houses For Rent
Instruction
Lost
Musicians
Miscellaneous
Motorcycles
Personals
Room For Rent
Room Wanted
Roommate Wanted
Services
Summer Sublet
To Sublet
Travel
Transportation
Wanted to Rent
Wanted

ACTIVITIES

BEER DIE TOURNAMENT Saturday May [illegible] Match your game against the rest! Call 253-0259 for details

ANNOUNCEMENTS

SPRING CONCERT...THE SHOW MUST GO ON BUT IT WON'T WITHOUT YOU! We need volunteers for security hospitality and stage crew. Come to our meeting every Tuesday at 6:00 in Campus Center Rm. 162-75 or call us at 5-2892 Alb Student Union...UPC Office

RUSH IGU

All University Woman are invited to attend Open Rush on April 25 26 28 and 29th at 6pm. For info or rides call 549-4114

APARTMENT FOR RENT

4 bedroom apartment, sunny walk to UMASS, (center $1,180 includes heat + h. 549-4146

1 bedroom/efficiency apartments, walk to UMASS center $375 to $475 includes heat, H/W 586-0746

Apt For Rent. Hot Water included. I am willing to leave some of my furniture for 6/40.

PLEASE! Take Over Lease 6/1 One option at Cliffside $545/month includes heat H/W and electricity. Call 665-1983

Are You Interested? Furnished 2BR Brandywine Sublet w option to lease Will RENT CHEAP!!!!!! AC Pool Call 549-8114

Take over our lease Option to renew 6/96 apt. Puffton Village New fridge dishwasher, blinds $780/mo heat H/W incl. Avail 6/1. 549-8745

Take Over Lease. Begins June 1. 2 BR apt. in Puffton. $680/month includes heat and hot water. For more info call 549-4164

1 Bedroom Hot water included. I am willing to leave some of my furniture for 6/40.

Spacious three bedroom apt. for rent Main location top of Fearing St. Contact 549-6641

Great location uptown! 3 bedrooms, 1 bath Take over lease June 1. 549-9113

Specious two bedroom apartment for rent On bus line $700/month Available 6/1 or 7/96. Call 253-1949

3 Bedroom Puffton avail June 1 $825/month water included Call 549-8614

641 Main Street 2 BDR heat incl Avail 6/1 549-3087

3 Bedroom renovated Puffton 2 bath heat and hot water incl Take for summer option for fall Call 549-8744

Real Selection of 1-2 and 3 bedroom apartments in the center of town Gas heat and hardwood floors Lincoln Real Estate 253-7679

Apartments available for June and September Summer sublets too! Call Bernard Realty Village 665-2703

Three bedroom condominiums, with gas heat and hardwood floors Lincoln Realtytown 253-7679

AUTO FOR SALE

'86 Jetta GL Excellent shape $2800 OBO [illegible] 6764

'74 Orange VW Beetle Rebuilt motor as well 1600 cc/4 spd 253-3780 [illegible]

EMPLOYMENT

LEADERS NEEDED! Summer teenage bicycling trips. US Canada, Europe Minimum 4 wk time commitment. Salary plus expenses paid. STUDENT HOSTELING PROGRAM Ashfield Rd. Conway MA 01341 800-343-6132

$40,000/yr Income potential Home typists/PC users toll free 800-898-9778 Ext 11732 for listings

Full Time/Part Time Tupperware The most fun you'll have making serious money!! Call Danielle at 256-8883 or Wendy at 584-5319

Be an Environmental Activist this Summer! Earn $300-$350 a week campaigning for strong amendment laws and environmental candidates. Learn organizing and election skills, work with great people, sleep late every day. CLEAN WATER ACTION 584-9830 EOE

Campus Representative for Saxy Barber Nursing School Call Lori 860-924-9300

Now Hiring. Are you staying around Amherst for the summer? If so, TASP Inc is seeking part-time afternoon & evening telemarketers. Hours available Sun-Thurs 7-9pm & 6-9pm. Earn $6.38/hr plus bonuses. Enjoy the Summer while earning cash. Call Ms. Miranda 800-829-4777

$ Crave Ships Hiring! Students need us!! $$$ & Free Travel - Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii+. Seasonal/Permanent. No Exper. Necessary. GDE 919-929-4398 ext. C7696

Make $3-5,000 this summer. Paint interior of homes with college students. Wallesley, Natick, Weston area. Please page Ed Porto at 617-456-8021

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT

Looking for a few energetic people to help run our office. Must have good phone skills. Full Time when school ends. Great resume material. $7-7.50/HR call 1-800-501-5043 Natick Area.

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT

Truck drivers wanted for summer work. Approx 11 days in mid June & additional 11 days in mid August. Work 1 on both sessions. Must drive standard and have experience with 18 or larger truck. $105-115/day. call 1-800-501-5043

Summer Painting Jobs. College Pro Painters up to $9/hr in Amherst-Northampton. Make $$ in the sun!! Call Kerry 546-2423 or Charlie 549-3962

National Parks Hiring. Positions are now available at National Parks, Forests & Wildlife Preserves. Excellent benefits & bonuses! Call 1-206-971-3620 ext. N50014

Summer Painters hiring for Boston and Hartford. Will train completely. Earn $8-$10/hr. Call N.E. Collegiate Painters at 800-969-9899

Tropical Resorts Hiring Students needed! Entry-level career positions available worldwide. Call Resort Employment Services (206) 971-3600 ext. R50011

International Employment- Earn up to $25-$45/hour teaching basic conversational English in Japan, Taiwan or S. Korea. No teaching background or Asian languages required. For info call (206) 971-3570 ext. J50014

Attention All Students! Over $6 Billion in public and private sector grants & scholarship is now available. All students are eligible. Let us help. For more info call 1-800-263-8495 ext. F50013

FOR RENT

Room For Rent: Summer (if all option) Private home, kitchen privileges (Kosher) vegetarian laundry, parking furnished $300 negotiable 549-4053

3 Bedroom Puffton June 1 549-5696

SPACIOUS 4-5 BDR house 2 full baths Good condition. Big yard. Pelham Rd Starts June 1st. 256-4978

Main St. Apart. 1 Bdrm and two person loft. $750/mo. heat. Take over lease June 1st. Call 253-1581

Take over my Lease for spacious 2 bed room. $860. Call 549-7567

3 Bedroom Puffton - Renovated, near bus and laundry available June 1. Call 549-5858

1 Bdrm Apt Available 6/1 to take over lease. Hot Water incl. On bus line call 253-1689

FOR SALE

Sega Genesis - 10 Games including NBA Jams TE, NHLPA, NFL '95 + 1 sx but ton controller $275/b.o. 256-1982

Sega Saturn for sale. Includes one cola system 2 controllers Virtua Fighter, Virtua Cop, NHL All Star Hockey, Pebble Beach Golf, Panzer Dragon, and Myst. If interested call Dave with best offer at 549-9575

"Nuova Sala" Everything must go! Call Christina 253-1569. Couches, rugs, tables, desk etc.

Bike For Sale 10 gear almost new. $70 Call 549-7567

Mountain Bike for sale Mongoose threshold Shimano parts Trek system 2 with gel seat only 1 yr old $200 or B/O Megan 549-4188

PIII@ 32 megs RAM 17 inch digital monitor 28k modem 850m hard drive loaded with software $1400/BO Call Fred 549-8969

LOST

Pair of Sunglasses. Brown tortoise shell frames, dark lenses, prescription $50 reward NOA Carl 6-2608

ROOM FOR RENT

One B.dm in 2 B.dm. fully furnished apt. in house. Nice, clean, close to campus & bus. Great yard & parking. $300/mnth + 1/2 utilities. Available now. 253-7533

ROOM WANTED

Famola seeking room starting September. $250 max. Call Joanne 546-7044

ROOMMATE WANTED

2 Roommates wanted for summer maybe longer house behind visitor's center call Diane 546-0134

Seeking 1 mate to share 2 BR apt. by Puffer's Pond. 15 month lease starts 6/1 $263/mo. Call 549-1708

3 BDR in 4 BDR Apt. on bus Rt. Sublet with option to rent in Fall. Call 253-7741

SERVICES

Pregnant? Need Help? Call Birthright of Amherst. Free hot testing and caring assistance. 549-1906

SPECIAL

SICK OF THE DORMS?

University approved off campus house avg available for all University women (including freshmen and sophomores). Close to campus, free laundry, cable. Optional meal plan. For more info call 549-7845.

SUMMER SUBLET

Condos behind BayBank two minute walk to campus or uptown, 2 and a half bathrooms, skylight, wall to wall carpets, dishwasher, backyard, nicest place in area call Jason 549-4178

2 bedroom apartment furnished spacious On bus route Heat/hot water included Fall option possible Available 6/1 call 253-4786

2 bedroom Brandywine apt Hot water/cable included 6/1 to 8/31 Price negotiable Call 549-8549

2/3 bedroom on N. Amherst, 5 minute walk to bus, $725/room, pets ok, on golf course, near Puffer's pond. Summer Sublet/fall option 549-9991 Leave Message

2 bedroom apt Boulders Spacious On bus route dishwasher Available June 1 with option for Fall Call 256-0968

Great Condo for Summer available! 1/2 mile to campus On bus route 3Bdrm, 2 bath room for 5+! Good price! Will help with utilities! 549-0761

Summer Sublet with option to take over lease Mill Valley 3 bedroom apt Call 253-4956

2 B.dm Apt. on Southeast St 1 mile from town, on bus route, sleeps four, private deck Fall option 253-1647

2 Bedroom near Puffer's Pond Very quiet & well maintained! Option to lease Call 549-0686

2 Bedroom Apt. in Southpoint June 1 Aug 31 with fall option Heat/hot water included Call 256-6829

Summer Sublet with Fall Option 2Bdr Brandywine Apt A/C, Pool, close to campus Call 549-5382

2 Bedroom Apt. Brandywine Very cheap On bus route, heat and hot water inc Call 549-6117

3 Bedroom townhouse On bus route near campus Price negotiable Call 546-3334

Brandywine 2 bedroom 2 bathrooms, option to lease, partly furnished June 1 549-7325 CLEAN!!

One large furnished room with double bed in Puffton Grad at 549-8969

Looking for one to four people to sublease Mill Valley apartment May 15 or June 1 to August 31. Call Jess A.S.A.P. 253-1792

CRESTVIEW APT 1 furnished room in 2 bedroom apt 5 minute walk to campus $250/mon neg. Call 549-0599

Sublet with option to take over lease Practically on campus 2 minutes from Amherst Ctr. Cheap double room in big house. Call 549-8017

2 Woman Needed to share room in 3 bdr apt. Great place, price, location 549-4827

Amherst - Live w/Graduate Students Cheap! $276/month (includes heat & cable) 1 BR/BR apartment Call Gabe at 253-0217

Female Wanted to share bedroom w/other female starting June1 168/month 7/1-9/1 room to yourself 256-6109 Jason

SUMMER SUBLET

4 Bedroom Apt. on Meadow St 3 bedrooms available for June 1st sublet! Very cheap, on bus route 1 mile from campus Furnished Call Sarah, Mary, Laura 548-9297

Summer Sublet w/Fall option Beginning 6/1 3 Br, 2 full bath Mill Valley Apt 3 5 people Reasonable Call 256-4761

$150 Reward! 2 BdRm Apt Free Ac/Hot Water Pool Available June 1st Call 549-8552

Brandywine Apts. 2 Bedrooms, take over our lease with Fall option. Call 549-5747

Boulders summer sublet two bedrooms furnished on bus line avail June 1st call 253-7682

1 Room in 2 bedroom Apt. Avail 6/1 with possible fall option. $725/mo. On bus line 10 minutes to UMass. Call 885-0892

2 Bedroom Apt. at Brandywine Available 6/1 Price negotiable. Call 549-8657

One room Puffton apt for Summer sublet. Call Fred 549-8969

Bedroom in Presidential Apts. Walking distance. Call 549-4042

TRAVEL

Looking for Kerouac type companion for cross country trip this Summer. My Car, Wine Trip, P.O. Box 2686, Amherst, MA 01004

Come Join In The Adventure!! Come White Water Rafting with UMSC & UMOC! May 31 - June 2. Only $139!! Call us 5-3437

Every American is entitled to the same basic rights and freedoms. And MDA makes these rights more valuable to people with neuromuscular diseases.

The medical care and assistance equipment the MDA offers guarantees the most basic rights & freedoms: me to stay alive. YOUR assistance makes these rights the freedom to work and follow my interests. And it makes me happy.

Thanks to MDA, I can make use of all my rights and abilities.

MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY ASSOCIATION
1-800-572-1717

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

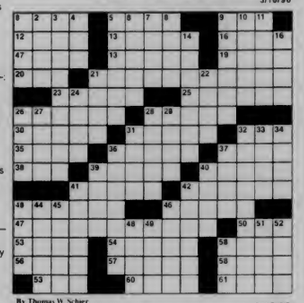
ACROSS
1 Landed
5 Initials of urgency
9 Actress Dawber
12 Get on
13 Himself of March 17th
15 General Bradley
17 Etcher's need
18 Cute creature from Down Under
19 Minute interstice
20 Musical notes
21 Irish sprites
23 Listens to
25 Castle feature
26 "The — yet to be..."
28 Circuitously avoid
30 Pops singer John
31 "— We Dance?" Astaire movie
32 Day or air starter
35 Gov. agents
36 US Chief Justice, 1874-1888
37 Moon goddess
38 "— Sweet It Is!" Garner movie
39 One of the Dolly sisters
40 Leave in the —, abandon
41 Al of "Married with Children"
42 Long-distance letter writer
43 President Ulysses
46 Below, to bards
47 Slogan for the 17th
50 Deviate, nautically
53 Jeans maker — Strauss
54 Hurled violently
55 Lover of an Irish Rose
56 Honoranums
57 Yard barrer
58 Comedian Foxx
59 Ultimate degree
60 Garden intruder
61 March 15th, to one

DOWN
1 Out there somewhere
2 Product of Ireland
3 Fare for the 17th
4 Danson or Koppel
5 Question tossers
6 Checks
7 On — with
8 Feeble
9 Warhol specialty
10 Love affair
11 Swine tributary
14 Perceptible by touch
16 What's left
21 "...snow has —"
22 Emulate Roger Clemens
24 English public school
26 One of the "Little Women"
27 Opinion-taker Roper
28 Lustrous
29 Actress Jurado
31 Hourglass grain
32 Sleeper for the 17th
33 Peruvian Indian
34 Actress Arlene
36 Exploded, as a firecracker
37 Fontaine's husband
39 Freud contemporary
40 Jacob's wife
41 Send to Elba
42 Threw a ball
43 Person's character
44 Color for the 17th
45 Metal pin
46 John — Garner
48 Overloaded a circuit
49 Old Norse poem
51 Teacher's helper
52 Says "I do"
55 Actress Meyers

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

S	H	A	R	E		D	A	C	E		L	B	S
L	E	M	O	N		O	S	H	A		A	L	A	S
A	R	I	S	E		W	H	I	T	E	C	A	P	S
B	O	D	E		A	N	O	N		D	U	C	A	T
			B	A	D	G	E		W	I	N	K
	A	B	U	S	E	R		M	A	N	A	G	E	D
B	I	R	D	S		A	R	E	N	A		U	S	E
A	M	O	S		A	D	I	M	E		G	A	T	E
S	E	W		C	R	E	D	O		E	R	R	E	D
H	E	N	N	A	E	D		R	E	C	E	D	E
		S	O	R	A		C	A	N	O	E
P	E	T	R	I		H	A	N	G		N	U	M	B
B	L	U	E	B	E	A	R	D		A	T	T	A	R
A	I	D	E		A	T	T	U		G	E	E	N	A
S	Y	N		R	E	A	M		E	A	S	E	D

3/16/96



By Thomas W. Scherr
© 1996 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

3/16/96

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21 - April 19) — Learn from your mistakes without dwelling on them. A secret love affair may be difficult to resist. Double-check directions if driving to a business appointment.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20) — Banish that green-eyed monster known as jealousy. A confident approach will attract admirers. Showcasing your special talents will help you find new financial backing.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20) — Although good luck flows in your direction, you may need to help it along. Constraints surrounding a relationship cause you to think twice about continuing it.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22) — You need more room more than people. An attractive member of the opposite sex could have you dreaming about settling down in a vine-covered cottage. Are you really ready for a permanent commitment?

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22) — Money is tight. You may have to spend some cash in order to prime the pump. The best business partner may be right under your nose. The less you compromise your principles, the better!

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22) — You have energy to burn. Use it judiciously. Setting priorities will help keep you from spinning your wheels. A self-employment opportunity could present itself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22) — Good deeds create good will. Expressing your positive feelings in a letter or phone call could work wonders. Stylish professional attire boosts your image.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21) — Your drive and desire will make exciting things happen both at work and in romance. Take the express train to success by acting on your convictions. Give your loved ones the benefit of the doubt.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21) — Love and luck bloom today. A friend encourages you to become more competitive. Resist peer pressure. A clever idea or dramatic move will produce the results you seek. Strike while the iron is hot.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19) — The rapport you want can be established now. Making your views known in a calm way will help you take charge of a situation. Hold off on making new purchases. A flirtation could prove unwise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18) — You are highly creative and expressive. Take steps to protect your ideas and projects. Put the finishing touches on a current assignment before starting a new one. Your partner is more supportive than in recent days.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20) — You voice your views very convincingly today. A caring approach captivates a loved one. Share your secret ambitions with that special someone. The nesting instinct is stronger than in the past. Scrutinize real estate ads.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

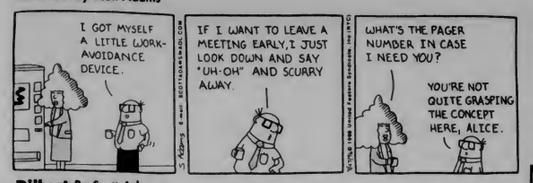
Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box - use capital letters where they apply - Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

Dilbert By Scott Adams



I GOT MYSELF A LITTLE WORK-AVOIDANCE DEVICE.
IF I WANT TO LEAVE A MEETING EARLY, I JUST LOOK DOWN AND SAY "UH-OH" AND SCURRY AWAY.
WHAT'S THE PAGER NUMBER IN CASE I NEED YOU?
YOU'RE NOT QUITE GRASPING THE CONCEPT HERE, ALICE.

Dilbert By Scott Adams

CATBERT, H.R. DIRECTOR
I'VE COME TO GIVE YOU "EMPLOYEE ORIENTATION," WALLY.
BUT I'VE WORKED HERE FOR YEARS
YOU STILL HAVE A GLIMMER OF HOPE. YOU'LL HAVE TO WATCH THIS MANDATORY TRAINING VIDEO.
SO, YOU STILL HAVE HOPE...
RELAX... LET IT GO.

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

I HAVEN'T ROBBED A BANK LATELY! HOW VERY NEGLECTFUL OF ME!
BUT SOMEHOW THE FUN IS GONE! IT'S BECOMING TOO EASY!
I KNOW ROBIN WILL STRIKE AGAIN! BUT WHERE? WHEN?

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

TODAY IS A DAY LIKE ANY OTHER DAY AT THE BANK.
WELL, ALMOST!
THIS SHOULDN'T TAKE TOO LONG!
BIG APPLE BANK
THOSE PLANS IN GOODE'S WORKSHOP! THE FIRST BIG APPLE BANK WAS ON TOP OF THE FILE!

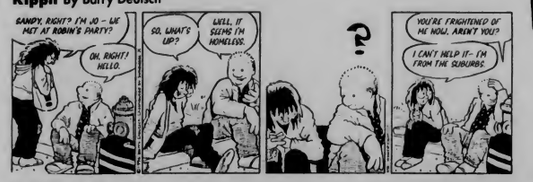
Jim's Journal By Jim

Today someone came in looking for bok choy.
I said I didn't think we had any.
She said, "well, I'll have to go somewhere else then, won't I?"
I couldn't think of anything to say to that.

Generation X By Chris Lehman

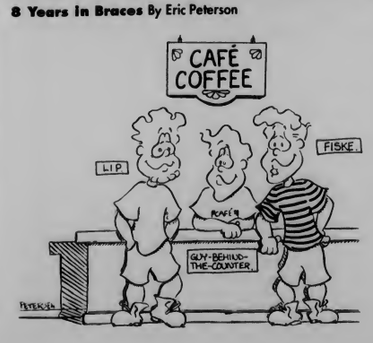
NO OFFENSE, BUT I'M NOT REALLY INTO INTERRACIAL DATING.
BLACK... WHITE... WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE, I MEAN... AREN'T WE ALL THE SAME INSIDE?
BESIDES, I'M NO STRANGER TO THE "JUNGLE FLU" THING.
THAT'S "JUNGLE FEVER."
WHATEVER...

Kippli By Barry Deutsch



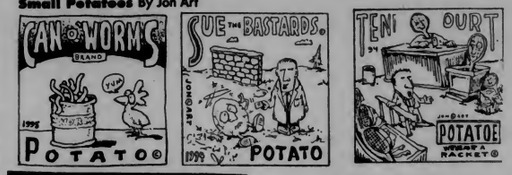
SANDY, RIGHT? I'M JO - WE MET AT ROBIN'S PARTY?
OH, RIGHT! HELLO.
SO, WHAT'S UP?
WELL, IT SEEMS I'M HOMELESS.
?
YOU'RE FRIGHTENED OF ME NOW, AREN'T YOU?
I CAN'T HELP IT - I'M FROM THE SUBURBS.

8 Years in Braces By Eric Peterson



SOME THINGS ARE MEANT TO BE CLOSED
YOUR MIND ISN'T ONE OF THEM.
For decades, MDA has shown how valuable people with disabilities are to society. We believe talents, ability and desire are more important than strength of a person's muscles. The one barrier these people can't overcome is a closed mind. Keep yours open.
MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY ASSOCIATION
1-800-572-1717

Small Potatoes By Jon Art



Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

My dad woke me up this morning at 3 a.m. in the middle of the night phone calling from the other side of the country. I could barely find the phone in the dark..

He started telling me how we should always be close. He asked if I'd like to go out to dinner with him when he returns home.

I told him I wasn't hungry, but I really liked it when he cried.

I told him I didn't like the way he dressed and, I thought he was fat.

I asked him if he could give me some money.

He's sending money.

I think I'm growing up, but I don't know about him.

Close to Home By John McPherson

"Sorry, folks, but at the request of other patrons, we're going to have to lower the dome of solitude."

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Tara MK Connelly
Copy Editor ..... Mike Burke
Photo Technician ..... Elizabeth Brown
Production Supervisor ..... Kathryn Gracia
Production ..... Matt Audette
Ray Keenan

Today's D.C. Menu

Berkshire

LUNCH
Pizza
Chick. Cutlet Sand.
Ziti & Sauce
Macaroni

DINNER
Chicken Fijita
Tofu Fijita
Pastabilities
Stuffed Shells

Franklin

LUNCH
Misquete Chicken Sand.
Italian Sausage Grinder
Pizza

DINNER
Chicken Fijita
Beef Stroganoff
Tofu Fijita
Chicken Hoagie

Hampshire

LUNCH
Hamburger
Chicken Cutlet Sand.
Italian Sausage Grinder
Pizza

DINNER
Chicken Fijita
Beef Stroganoff
Pizza
Subs

Worcester

LUNCH
Chicken Cutlet Sand.
Ziti & Sauce
Macaroni, Lentil and Tomato

DINNER
Chicken Fijita
Tofu Fijita
Pastabilities
Stuffed Shells

DAILY COLLEGIAN
The New England Newspaper Association's Daily College Newspaper of the Year, 1994
Free Every Day

Close to Home By John McPherson

"I need to have you just relax and trust me on this, Mrs. Hostrander."

Quote of the Day

"Suck it up. It's not that bad. I'm sure we've all had fun without alcohol at some point in our lives."

– Greek Week memo

SportsWeekend

Collegian Sports • Monday, April 29, 1996

Inside tomorrow's Collegian:

• The women's crew won the inaugural Atlantic 10 women's rowing championship regatta on Saturday with 47 points. For complete results, see tomorrow's Collegian.

• The men's and women's track teams competed at the Penn Relays this weekend. See tomorrow's Collegian for the complete story.

• The women's water polo team finished sixth at the Eastern Championships this weekend. See tomorrow's Collegian for the story.

• The women's lacrosse team lost to No. 12 Dartmouth 21–8 on Saturday. See tomorrow's Collegian for the story.

Syracuse–UMass rivalry on tap for men's lacrosse

KAREN ALT/COLLEGIAN

Dennis Kelly [2] was the best player on the field for the Minutemen yesterday holding Syracuse' leading scorer, Casey Powell, to just one goal.

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

For the Massachusetts men's lacrosse team and all Minutemen lacrosse fans, this is the game of the season that always seems to mean the most. The heart races and the adrenaline pumps faster.

UMass heads for upstate New York this weekend to battle archrival and sixth-ranked Syracuse (8-3) in the annual meeting between the two schools, Sunday at 1 p.m. in the Carrier Dome. The Minutemen have been the proverbial understudy to the Orangemen, who have won six national titles, and coach Greg Cannella knows he won't need a catchy speech to let his team know what they're up against.

"When we look at the schedule and set the schedule up, Syracuse is always a game that you circle in red," Cannella said, who will coach against the Orangemen for the second time, and also experienced UMass/Syracuse twice as a player.

"You want to be the first team since 1981 here at UMass to beat Syracuse," he said. "What it means to me is that we have the ability to prove to ourselves and everyone in lacrosse that we can compete with Syracuse, and we can beat Syracuse. I think we need to, as a program, model ourselves after Syracuse; their success is unprecedented.

"If we do win the game its the biggest win here in 15 years," Cannella said.

In the overall series, Syracuse has won 17 of the 21 meetings, including the last 15. The regional rivalry, as well as the ongoing success of the Orangemen, has made this a game of high intensity.

"Your emotions do step up a little bit, but we try to treat it as another game," senior tri-captain Buddy Hoffman said. "Beating Syracuse would be a lifelong dream. With all the great players they have had there and they have now [winning] would be the most unbelievable thing."

The Orangemen have a highly potent offensive attack led by the trio of Jim Morrissey (team high 31 goals and 20 assists for 51 points), Rob Kavovit (28-23-51) and Casey Powell (25-22-45).

Jason Gebhardt will get the starting nod in net for Syracuse coach Roy Simmons Jr. On the year, the Orangeman goaltender has a .598 save percentage, allowing 11.54 goals per game.

"I hope this is going to be an 8–5 [UMass win] game like Notre Dame last week," Cannella said. "I hope we can keep the scoring down, if we can we have a good shot to win."

Controlling the ball is a factor Cannella feels is key to the Minutemen's success, and his midfielder Jay Robbins has done a terrific job of late winning face-offs. In the past three Minuteman contests, Robbins has won 46 of 65 draws, for a .708 winning percent-

Turn to LACROSSE, page 9

Despite finish, Minutemen can hold their heads high

Matt Vautour

SYRACUSE — After seeing how well the Massachusetts lacrosse team played yesterday, it's hard to feel bad about its 10-9 overtime loss to defending National Champion and current No. 6 Syracuse...

Unfortunately the fact that the Minutemen were within seconds of beating Syracuse for the first time in 15 years, only to have their hearts broken, made it difficult to feel good about the loss either.

As they walked off the field the players looked dejected, as several of them forced back tears while headed to the locker room.

The loss will sit heavy in their hearts for some time, and the Minutemen will likely still taste the game's bitter flavor until they step onto the field this Saturday against Brown, but this performance was not one to hang their heads over.

While UMass coach Greg Cannella was as dejected as anyone following the contest, he knew his team had played well.

"I'm real proud of our guys," he said. "We're not happy that we lost the game, but I'm real proud of the guys."

Saying Syracuse is good is as understated as you can get in collegiate lacrosse. The last 13 Final Fours all had an Orange flavor to them and six of those 13 squads returned to upstate New York with a National Championship trophy, including last year's squad.

Turn to VAUTOUR page 9

Baseball sweep clinches spot in A–10s

By Chris Stamm
and Casey Kane
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts baseball team (31-9 overall, 15-5 in the Atlantic 10) swept four weekend games with St. Joseph's (19-29 overall, 8-11 in the A-10) and reached a few milestones along the way.

With the four wins, the Minutemen tied the school record for most consecutive wins, cinching their last 16 straight. In addition to cementing the No. 1 spot in the A-10 East and an A-10 Tournament berth, University of Massachusetts coach Mike Stone earned his 302nd career win.

UMass 6, St. Joseph's 1

While the fans at Earl E. Lorden Field were enjoying the afternoon's Fanfest, the Minutemen were enjoying their own hit fest.

Sophomore second baseman Muchie Dagliere wasted no time in putting UMass on the board, knocking a two-out solo home run over the right field fence in the bottom of the first.

In the bottom of the second, freshman designated hitter Doug Clark looped the ball to deep right-center for a stand- up double. A single from catcher Andy Kiah brought Clark home to give UMass a 2-0 lead.

Shortstop Brad Gorrie led off the bottom of the third, and lined a single to center. He then stole second, and scored on a Dagliere single.

Not to be outdone by Dagliere's first inning power surge, first baseman Justin Kelly led off the home half of the fifth with a show of his own. After going ahead in the count 2-1, Kelly connected with St. Joe's pitcher Jed Johnson's throw and nailed the ball over the left field fence for a solo home run.

The Hawks plated their only run of the game in the top of the sixth, when leftfielder Matt Malek drove a single to shallow left to bring home Mike Sharkey. Sharkey, the centerfielder, got on base courtesy of a Chad Sullivan walk, and advanced to scoring position on a single by DH Mike Collins.

The Minutemen would add two more runs in the bottom of the sixth, as Dagliere brought home Ryan Jette and Gorrie on a single to left-center.

In the effort UMass tallied 10 hits off Johnson, the A-10 Pitcher of the Week, who took the loss.

Sullivan (4.63 ERA), who only had to toss seven pitches in the final inning, threw a complete game to earn the win for UMass.

UMass 3, St. Joseph's 2 (8 innings)

For the Hawks, it was a serious case of dé jà vu.

Dagliere stepped to the plate in the bottom of the first, this time with one out and a man on, and knocked a dinger over the right field fence, giving the Minutemen an early 2-0 advantage.

St. Joe's brought the game within one when Sharkey knocked a stand-up double to right, and scored on catcher Kevin McCaffery's double to right.

In the top of the seventh, St. Joe's put the pressure on UMass, as McCaffery again came up big with a home run to left.

In the bottom of the eighth, St. Joe's hurler Jack Marcellus faced Dagliere. With a full count, Dagliere knocked the ball into what appeared to be a force at first, but he slid to beat the throw, starting a UMass rally. Kelly was hit by a pitch to advance Dagliere, and Murphy walked to load the bases.

The pressure was all on the sophomore pitcher as Clark stepped to the plate. Clark walked sending home the winning run.

UMass starter Jason Bennett (4.60 ERA) pitched a complete game to earn the win.

UMass 6, St. Joseph's 5

UMass had to rearrange its infield, as the shortstop Gorrie

Turn to BASEBALL page 9

Hayes powers No. 25 softball

By Leigh Torbin
Collegian Staff

What has thus far been an up-and down season for freshman Ashlie Hayes, reached an unprecedented high this weekend as the No. 25 Massachusetts softball team hit the road to down Atlantic 10 foes St. Bonaventure and Dayton.

With Friday's 3-0 decision over the Bonnies and yesterday's 5-4 win over Dayton (an abbreviated five inning game) the Minutewomen (33-11-1 overall) finish their A-10 campaign at a perfect 14-0 and will be the top seed in the conference tournament, starting Friday at Totman Field.

Hayes left her mark on the Bonnies, Friday amid a rain- storm in Olean, NY, tying an NCAA and school record by belting three doubles. Hayes enters into a 27-way tie for this record at a national level, and a four way tie at the UMass level Holly Aprile, Sherri Kuchinskas and Barb Mareau, all former All-Americans, hit three in a game for the Minutewomen.

Yesterday's rain-halted 5-4 UMass win over Dayton was fueled by a two run Hayes homer in the first, the second later of the freshman's career. Hayes also went downtown in a win over Western Illinois on March 15. The dinger against Dayton was just part of a 3-for-3 effort for the freshman, who also chipped in three RBIs and scored a run, while committing no errors at short.

In addition to Hayes, Friday's game against St. Bonaventure also saw the best performance of Danielle Henderson's stellar freshman season. Henderson threw a complete-game, one-hit shutout of the Bonnies, striking out a career-high 11. Henderson already had four two-hitters to her credit and had twice struck out seven. Henderson's work lowered her team and conference low ERA to 1.09.

Yet another freshman, Mandy Galas, chipped in two hits and an RBI to help the Minutewomen win the opening game of the scheduled doubleheader. The second game was called off, with UMass on top 3-0 in the fourth, due to rain.

The Minutewomen found themselves in Dayton, Ohio yesterday, and

SHANE KEENAN/COLLEGIAN

Freshman Ashlie Hayes belted three doubles against the Bonnies on Saturday and then smacked her second homer of the season against Dayton yesterday.

in an unexpected set of circumstances, found themselves in a ball-game as well. After Hayes bomb and an RBI single by Kim Guttridge made it 3-0 in the top of the first, Dayton struck back with a trio in the second off of Henderson.

UMass posted a deuce in the fifth as the rains started to pick up. Dayton could only push across one in the bottom of the inning, and the game was called off at that point.

Guttridge went a solid 2-for-3 on the day with a pair of RBIs and runs scored, while Sam Cardenas contributed a double and scored twice for UMass.

Henderson allowed four runs, three earned, in five innings on the mound. The three runs become particularly glaring considering that prior to yesterday, Henderson had allowed just one earned run to an A-10 foe in 44 innings pitched in conference games, making for a microscopic 0.16 ERA.

Although the fireballing righty's conference ERA shot up to 0.57, Henderson did pick up her eighth win against no losses in the A-10, and overall, extended her school-record consecutive win streak to 18. This moves her into a tie for the 11th longest streak in NCAA history.

UMass takes on Boston College tomorrow afternoon at 5 p.m. in a twin-bill at the Heights.

SHANE KEENAN/COLLEGIAN

Doug Clark [17] smacked went 2-for–3 in Saturday's first game against St. Joe's and then belted two more hits in yesterday's doubleheader against the Hawks.

The Massachusetts
DAILY COLLEGIAN

Volume CV Issue 124 • New England's Largest College Daily • Founded in 1890 • Daily Since 1967 • Tuesday, April 30, 1996

And all that jazz

Internationally acclaimed jazz pianist Matthew Shipp will perform at the Augusta Savage Gallery (See Arts&Living, page 6).

Eagle hunting

Freshman pitcher Danielle Henderson and the UMass softball team travel to Chestnut Hill today to compete with the Boston College Eagles (See Sports, page 12).

WORLD

Malaria vaccination considered worldwide

(AP) — What if SP166 proves to be 30 percent effective with a few years' duration? Would that justify a worldwide vaccination campaign?
Engers says it would, that a WHO analysis found such a vaccine would cost just $10 to $20 per life saved.
Others disagree. "30 percent is not adequate," Indian malaria specialist G.P. Singh Dhillon said in New Delhi. "It'll last only a few years and it's against falciparum, which is only 40 percent of India's problem."
Many malariologists say looking for a "silver bullet" is futile. The disease is too complex, the parasites too variable. Pataroyo agrees - to a point.
"From the beginning it was clear SP166 was a partial solution, but it was the way to get to the final solution," he said. "... It is amazing how they criticize me. ... Where is their work? I want to see another vaccine candidate with 30 percent results."

Here in Papua New Guinea, researchers do have another vaccine, developed with Australian help, one of a half-dozen on WHO's "candidate" list. Trials are beginning in the thatch-and-bamboo villages near Maprik, where half the children have at least low levels of the parasite in their blood. An unprotected person can get 400 mosquito bites in a night here.

NATION

Murder trial in faked abduction case begins

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A 7-year-old girl was abused for three months until she was finally suffocated by a stepfather who tried to mask the killing with a story of abduction, a prosecutor said yesterday as the man's trial began.

Prosecutors are seeking the death penalty for John Zile, who is charged with beating Christina Holt to death in September 1994. "This is a case not about corporal punishment, this is a case — as it regards to Christina Holt — about capital punishment," said prosecutor Scott Cupp.

The prosecutor said that at the time of her death, the girl's lips were swollen and bloody, her buttocks and face bruised. Zile, who turns 34 this week, and his wife, Pauline, claimed that Christina disappeared from a Fort Lauderdale flea market. Later, it was learned the girl had been beaten to death at the family's Riviera Beach apartment and buried behind a discount store.

In his statement, defense lawyer Craig Wilson said a confession Zile made, leading police to the body, was coerced. Zile had been kept awake 60 hours before he made the admission, Wilson said. Prosecutors had sought the death penalty for Mrs. Zile, saying she failed to protect her daughter from John Zile and also abused her. Mrs. Zile, who was convicted of murder, was sentenced to life in prison without parole last June.

At the time, the judge said that Mrs. Zile did not kill her daughter but was there when Christina died and then helped cover up the crime.

EXTENDED FORECAST

Today	Wed.	Thur.
HIGH: 60 LOW: 40	HIGH: 60 LOW: 40	HIGH: 55 LOW: 45

INSIDE

Arts & Living.....page 6
Classifieds .....page 10
Comics.....page 11
Devel. Nations .....page 5
Editorial .....page 4
FYI.....page 2
News .....page 3
Sports .....page 12

Spring Concert gets cancelled

By Mike Burke
Collegian Staff

In a meeting Sunday night, the 12 member staff of University Productions and Concerts (UPC) voted unanimously to cancel the 18th annual Spring Concert, scheduled for Sunday, May 12.

A release issued yesterday said, "In light of the high expectations that we have for ourselves and the obligation that is owed to the campus, we feel that it would be a disservice to the undergraduate student community to put forth a Spring Concert at this time."

UPC Business Manager, Andrew Miller mentioned several main factors that led to the difficult decision, including: decrease in funding, competition for acts from other local schools, rising costs for top musical acts, the organization's high artistic standards and lack of student volunteers.

According to Miller last year's Spring Concert budget was $70,000, allowing UPC to bring well known acts such as Blues Traveller and KRS-ONE to the University of Massachusetts. Problems arose this year when the budget was cut. Miller did not comment on the size of this year's budget. To make matters worse UPC was competing with other colleges in bidding for acts.

"Within one month every college tries to book their spring weekends creating a lot of competition," Miller said. "Our budget was cut — limiting our options."

The price of talent has also increased over the past year. Miller mentioned an act such as the Dave Matthews Band now costs $100,000 per show. Besides the price of the musical acts, Miller added that UPC needs to cover other costs including: $12,000 for the stage and $4,000 for the sound system. He did not include the expense for the stage crew, hospitality and security.

Besides the lack of funding, Miller stated that UPC has suffered from lack of general support from the University's student body. The University Police requires that UPC provide 150 students to work for security at Spring Concert. As of Sunday, when the final decision was made, UPC had very few volunteers set to work.

Miller said, "One of our biggest problems this year was getting student volunteer security. It is always difficult but this year it was far worse."

The final main reason for the cancellation of Spring Concert was the organization felt that this year's concert could not live up to past expectations.

"We want to do a real good spring concert," Miller said. "We try to please as many students at the University as possible."

Over the past four years Spring Concert has featured top acts such as Beastie Boys, Phish, Naughty By Nature, Dinosaur Jr, Violent Femmes and Buffalo Tom.

Turn to TRAVESTY page 3

Camby opts for NBA draft

All–American announces intentions at press conference

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

Joined by his mother Janice, the Massachusetts men's basketball team and coaching staff, junior center Marcus Camby announced his intentions of entering the NBA Draft and forgoing his final year of college eligibility.

Camby said that he had made the decision on whether to declare or not a about a week ago.

"I have decided to declare my eligibility for the 1996 NBA draft." The first team All America selection said in a prepared statement issued yesterday. "This decision has been very hard but I feel I am ready to pursue my life long dream of playing in the NBA."

The Hartford native seemed relaxed for the announcement as he joked early and often during his speech saying that he was actually announcing a different place to play next year.

"I have decided to transfer to UConn," Camby joked.

Camby averaged 20.5 points, 8.2 rebounds and 3.9 blocks a game during the 1995-96 season and won most every National Player of the Year award in existence. Both he and his coach feel he is ready to make the jump to the next level.

"I have spent the last three years at UMass preparing to for the opportunity to play at the next level," Camby stated. "I feel I am ready for the challenge."

"When he came into me I asked him why he wanted to stay," Calipari added. "I tried to paint both pictures for him but what's been great about it is that he has made this decision on his own. I told him he has to play those games and be that guy on that team and if you can do that you have no decision to make. You should go. And if you don't think so then I'll think about taking you back.

"For Marcus Camby, he is making the right decision."

EMILY RILEY / COLLEGIAN

Marcus Camby announced Monday afternoon in the William D. Mullins Center that he would make himself eligible for the NBA draft.

Camby confirmed he had not signed with an agent, and was leaving the door open in his mind to return for his senior season.

"It's very realistic. [I change my mind and decide to stay in school]," Camby said. "I have made the decision right now but a few weeks from now I might decide I want to come back to

Turn to CAMBY page 3

EMILY RILEY / COLLEGIAN

From left, Coach John Calipari, Janice Camby (Marcus' mother), Charlton Clarke, Andy Maclay, and Ted Cotrell look on as Camby reads from a prepared statement Monday afternoon at the Mullins Center.

SU art gallery, DVP could be among cuts

By Lynn Budde
Collegian Correspondent

Students will no longer be able to browse through the Student Union Art Gallery or participate in programs sponsored by the Distinguished Visitor's Program (DVP) if current Student Government Association (SGA) plans for budget cuts are passed on the May 1 Senate budget meeting.

Chancellor David K. Scott agreed yesterday to grant $93,000 to the Student Activity Trust Fund (SATF) of the $113,000 the SGA had proposed. This money will be dispersed to Registered Student Organizations (RSO's) under SGA discretion.

"We are dependent on the SGA for funding," said Karen Gustafson, Director of the Student Union Art Gallery. "Without their support, we won't have enough money to stay open."

Although the gallery receives funding from two other sources, the Arts Council and the Graduate Student Senate, the SGA provides funding for the wages of the gallery employees.

The Student Union Art Gallery is the only one of five galleries on campus that exhibits student art work. It is also the busiest, according to Gustafson.

"Being shown in the gallery gives students a foot in the door," said Tim Fisk, junior Anthropology and Art History double-major and Publicity Director for the student gallery. "It helps students to show professionally. They are responsible for hanging their work, adjusting the lighting and designing posters to publicize their show."

Over 500 students, according to Gustafson, visit the gallery each week. Art students and those University wide, she said, will be missing out if the gallery is forced to close.

Although they have checked into other sources for funding, said Gustafson, they have not had any luck. In the past, the Fine Arts Center (FAC) has taken over responsibility for galleries, but the FAC turned them into non-student run galleries, "and being student run," she said, "is the whole point."

The DVP, which has been present on campus for over 30 years, has brought many speakers from around the country such as Kurt Vonegut, Arthur Spiegelman, Angela Davis and Alan Ginsberg.

Student volunteers of the DVP are responsible for coordinating the entire program, said Levy, which includes everything from designing posters to making hotel reservations for the visitors. At recent lectures sponsored by the DVP, the volunteers have acquired over 500 signatures on a petition to continue SGA funding. That won't be decided, however, until May 1.

Unless the entire amount of SATF relief requested by the SGA is granted by Scott, said Jeff Coker, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, there will be no money for either of the programs.

"Unfortunately," said Gustafson, "students aren't going to miss [the programs] until they're gone."

Free our Fee discusses Scott's response

By Jonathan Liberty
Collegian Staff

The $525,000 Student Activities Trust Fund (SATF) proposal was discussed at an emergency Free Our Fee Coalition meeting last night in order to respond to Chancellor David K. Scott's answer to the proposal.

The SATF proposal requests $113,000 in relief in the first year of the four year proposal. Scott has agreed to fund $93,000 for the first year and has not commented on dollar amounts for the other three years.

"My belief is that we have been shortchanged by the Chancellor by $20,000," Student Government Association (SGA) President Maurice Caston said. "I do not think that this is acceptable."

Caston added, "We have gone through the entire process and played by the Chancellor's rules; without the $113,000, there is unfair bargaining."

The SATF proposal is a four-year plan which transfers funds to the SATF by having the University pay for non-advocacy members of student businesses. The SATF proposal replaces the student funding of salaries for educational positions with University funds.

"Basically, we feel that the people who are educating students through their business, like the Craft Center or the Center for Student Business, should be paid for by the University," said Mike Hass, the student coordinator of the Student Center for Education and Research Advocacy (SCERA).

Hass said that the issue is not about $20,000, it is actually about $80,000 because Scott will use year one of the proposal as a precedent for the other three years.

Hass said that $93,000 out of $113,000 is approximately 83 percent; 83 percent of the $525,000 proposal over the four-year period will lead to a difference of at least $80,000.

"We have gone through this whole process. When we started we had serious discussions about civil disobedience, but we chose to negotiate instead," Hass said. "For Scott to turn around on the deal is disgusting to me."

The SGA deals with their registered student organization (RSO) budget proposals on Wednesday night. Much of the RSO proposals depend upon the amount of money the chancellor has agreed to by the time of the meeting.

Because the Free Our Fee Coalition says that the present offer of $93,000 is unacceptable, none of the money can be given out in this budget cycle. However, if Scott does respond by the Wednesday night SGA meeting, the new money may be allocated. If Scott does not respond the money will still be able to be allocated over the sum-

Turn to FUND page 3

UM police officer hit with bottle thrown from Southwest balcony

By Daniel Sullivan
Collegian Staff

A University of Massachusetts police officer was struck in the back of the head by a bottle on Saturday morning.

The officer's identity has not been released, according to Associate Director of University Police Phillip Cavanaugh.

Two police officers responded to a call from Pierpont Residence Hall staff who wanted to quell a noise problem. Yelling from a second floor room started to cause a disturbance with people outside of the building, said Cavanaugh.

Upon entering the room, officers found underage individuals drinking alcohol. Since no one in the room was over 21 years old, the officer went to pour the alcohol out the window, said Cavanaugh.

While the officer was standing next to a Pierpont Residence Hall window sill, an individual from the balcony of Cance Residence Hall threw a bottle that hit him. Police were unable to determine if the assailant was purposely aimed for the officer.

The bottle went through the window and hit the officer. He received a minor contusion on his head from the shattered window glass and bottle.

Police officers reported that the bottle came from a room directly across from the Pierpont Residence Hall room that the officers were in. The other police officer immediately went to Cance Residence Hall to find the assailant. The officer was unable to find the perpetrator, since there weren't any lights on in any of the

Turn to CANCE, page 3

For Your Information

PIFs are public service announcements printed daily. To submit an PIF, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the Managing Editor by noon the previous

Tuesday, April 30

Conference — The University will hold its second annual system-wide "Conference on Undergraduate Research, Scholarly and Public Service Activities" from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the Campus Center. For more information call the Honors Program at 545-2483.

Dance — The Drum and Dance Collective will be sponsoring a free West African Dance classes from 8 to 9:30 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. Marilyn Middleton and the Bamidere Drummers will present the classes. There is a 25-person limit per class. For more information and registration call Aimee at 527-1443.

Meeting — There will be an informational meeting for the Salamanca, Spain program for summer 1996 at 6 p.m. in Herter Hall Room 601. The program runs from July 2 to July 30. For more information and applications visit the Salamanca Program in the Department of Spanish and Portuguese or call the office at 545-4790 or 545-2887.

Panel discussion — STPEC will be sponsoring a four- faculty member panel discussion titled "Moral Treespass and Social Action" at 7 p.m. in Bartlett Hall Room 61. For more information call Michael at 584-1022.

Wednesday, May 1

Film — The Multicultural Film Festival will be showing two short films from the United Kingdom. I'm British But... is a documentary presented from the first-hand view of second generation Asians in Britain, and Bound is a fictional work about a young Chinese-British woman's journey of self-discovery. The films will be shown as a double feature at 7 p.m. in Herter Auditorium Room 231.

Study — The Bolshevik Tendency Spring Study Group will continue their readings from the Max Schactman book "The Fight For Socialism" at 7:30 p.m. in the Cape Cod Lounge in the Student Union. This week's forum is titled "A Worker's Government and Socialism and the Need for a Revolutionary Party."

Thursday, May 2

Lecture — The GLBT Studies Lecture Studies will feature Geeta Patel, assistant professor of women's studies at Wellesley College, speaking on the topic "Desiring Women: South Asia" at noon in Campus Center Room 903. For more information call the Stonewall Center at 545-4824.

Religious — Chabad House at Amherst will host a "Second Chance Seder" in commemoration of the second Passover at 6 p.m. in Chabad House. Everyone is welcome to attend, but are requested to make reservations. Charge for this special meal is $4 for adults and $2 for children. For more information and reservation call Chabad at either 549- 7855 or 549-4094.

Special event — The students of Plant & Soil Sciences 280 will be hosting their annual "Herb Fest" in the Student Union Ballroom from 11-2 p.m., free admission. This class has been studying herbs, spices, and medicinal plants and will be holding demonstrations regarding these subjects throughout the day. There will be free samples of foods, teas and products made from these plants.

Notices

Student Loans — Associates (Stockbridge), Bachelors, Masters and Doctoral Degree candidates for 1996 who have had Federal Direct Loans (subsidized and unsubsidized), Stafford Loans and/or Supplemental Loans for Students (SLS) are required to attend one of the sessions, scheduled on May 6, Campus Center 163C, May 8, Campus Center 168C and May 9, Campus Center 174-76 at 9, 10, 11 a.m. and 1, 2, 3, 4 p.m. (and 6 p.m. on May 8). You will get information on loan repayment, your rights and responsibilities. For more information, contact Financial Aid Services at 545-0801.

Scholarship — Applications for the Eunice R. Konieczny Student Leadership Award are available in the Campus Activities Office. Two criteria must be met to apply: The student must be current officer in either an RSO or SGA and must have had one academic year of experience as an officer prior to this time; and the student must have a cumulative GPA of 3.0 or above. Completed applications must be received in 416 Student Union by 4:30 p.m. on May 10.

Nominations — Nominations for the GEO steering committee are open until May 1. The GEO steering committee consists of four officers, president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, which are paid FTE's and three members at large (unpaid).

Poetry — The UMass Poetry Society will be holding its weekly meeting every Wednesday at 7 p.m. in room 325 Baker Residence Hall. Feel free to bring and read your own poetry or that of your favorite poet, or just come to listen and guzzle coffee. New members are always welcome. For more information, call Tim at 546-2792.

Theater —The UMass Theatre Guild presents The Winter's Tale by William Shakespeare. The showdates are May 2-3 at 4 p.m. and May 4-5 at 2 p.m. It will be performed in the Rhododendron Garden behind Health Services. Admission is $3.

Theater —"Still Walks," a collection of dance works choreographed by Chantelle Lucier and Sarah Manya Hertzberg will be performed May 2 -3. There will be an open dress rehearsal on May 1. Presented in the Studio Theater Kendall Hall on the Mount Holyoke College Campus. General admission $3, students and seniors $2. Reservations are recommended, call (413) 538-2848.

Internship — The office of U.S. Rep. Joseph Kennedy II will be accepting student applications for summer internships in his Charlestown and Roxbury offices. These unpaid internships are available at full or part-time hours. All interns must work a minimum of 15 hours a week. For more information call Brian O'Connor at (617) 242-0200, or to arrange an interview, send him a cover letter and resume at: U.S. Rep. Joseph P. Kennedy II, The Schrafft Center, Suite 605, 529 Main St., Boston, MA 02129.

Internship — State Sen. Stan Rosenberg will be accepting applications for student internships in his Boston office. Interested students should send a resume and cover letter to: Senator Rosenberg's Office, ATTN: Catherine Cecil, room 212, State House, Boston, MA 01223-1053.

Scholarship — Application for the University of Massachusetts Amherst Alumni Association Scholarship are now available at the Alumni Relations Office. Applicatuons must be completed and returned as directed to the Alumni Association c/o Anne McDowell, Memorial Hall, UMass, Amherst. Preference will be given to qualified African American, Hispanic American, Native American and Asian American students. For more information about the criteria for application, call Anne McDowell at 545-2317.

Study Group — Spring Miracles: Join an ongoing study group focusing on the text of A Course in Miracles, every Tuesday from 7:30 - 9 p.m. Group continues until June 25. Free of charge. Call 252-2902 for more information.

Course selection — The Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures would like to inform the student body that despite the Provost's ongoing Academic Program Review, courses previously offered to both majors and non-majors will still be available for the foreseeable future. All courses will be taught in English; no Russian required. For further information call the Slavic Department at 545-2052 or visit the office at 438 Herter.

Blood Drives — The American Red Cross will be holding blood drives in Hampshire County at the following location on the date and time listed: Cape Cod Lounge at UMass (April 30 — 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.)

Running — Registration for "Run for Newman" will be available everyday in the Newman Center front office, from Tuesday through Thursday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Newman Center cafeteria and from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Campus Center. The cost is $5 for pre-registration. Free t- shirts will be awarded. For more information, call the Newman Center at 549-0300.

Charity — A food and clothes drive is going on now. Boxes are located in Hobbsworth, Whitmore, New Africa House, Chenoweth and Goodman. For more information, call the Hunger and Homelessness campaign at MASSPIRG at 545-0199.

Volunteers — STARS, Student Alumni Relations Society needs students who are graduating in 1996, who want to plan events for the Senior Class and/or work on the Senior Campaign. If you are interested please contact Ann Thompson in Memorial Hall at 545-2317.

Dance — New beginner classes in Cajun dancing and Appalachian clogging are offered Sunday evenings from 6-7 p.m. Cajun is a style of dance from Louisiana with arm movements similar to those used in the Texas two-step. Clog dancing is a traditional American folk dance that originated in the 1800's in the Appalachian Mountains. Partners are not needed and all ages are welcome. No prior dance experience is necessary. Classes are instructed by Maple Run, a non- profit dance group that performs at fairs and community functions. The classes are held at Betty Champion's Dance Studio, 132 Elm Street, Westfield. For more information, contact Jo Sarnelli at (413) 746-9067.

Mail Service — During the summer magazine subscriptions will not be forwarded due to the high volume of first class mail and the large amount of magazine subscriptions Mail Services receives. Now is the time to contact magazine companies to change addresses for the summer, June through August. September magazines are held in Mail services and will be delivered when school opens in September.

Religious — Classes in a variety of stimulating topics are held each week at Chabad House, 30 North Hadley Road in Amherst by Rabbi Chaim or Yocheved Adelman. Monday evenings at 7 p.m. is Parshat Hasavua, the weekly Torah portion, as illuminated by the mystical teachings of Kabbalah — for women only. Tuesday evenings at 8 p.m. is Talmud, the wisdom of our sages, tractate Berachot. Wednesday evenings at 8 p.m. is Tanya, the classical work of Chassidic philosophy.

fund

continued from page 1

mer for the new fiscal year.

Dan Castellano, speaker of the house of the SGA, said, "This is Scott's fault. We have dealt with him and now he has pushed us to a length where we need to take extreme action."

A letter will be presented to the Chancellor's office today expressing the Free Our Fee Coalition's dissatisfaction with the Chancellor's $93,000 answer to the proposal.

The coalition will be meeting with Scott at the Chancellor's Office in Whitmore at 9 a.m. Wednesday.

"We need to organize students and Scott needs to hear us," Caston said. "We have 48 hours to pressure the chancellor to get us the $113,000."

Student Trustee Sean Carter said that students needed to continue to fight for the money that they have been promised. "We need a long term commitment to the longevity of the SATF proposal," Carter said. "We need to be committed to long term solvency."

"We are so close that we can not stop now," Caston said.

The Free Our Fee Coalition meeting took place yesterday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. The chancellor was unavailable for comment.

Cance

continued from page 1

rooms across from Pierpont Residence Hall.

"The officer did not require medical treatment," Cavanaugh said. "There are no suspects at this time. Unless something is reported to Housing or someone comes forward, then we will resume the investigation."

Louise Casa, office manager of Housing Services Southwest South, was unable to determine if that window was reported and/or repaired.

"We have someone on call 24 hours a day to repair broken windows," Casa said. "We have nothing reported for 2:21 a.m. in the logbook, but a window was reported for 10:10 a.m. Monday. That window was repaired."

GOOD, CLEAN, WHOLESOME FUN FOR THE ENTIRE FAMILY.
WHY NOT BUY A CAN TODAY!

Collegian Graphics

Where it pays to play!

Located somewhere deep in the Campus Center basement.
WARNING: may not be suitable for young children.

DAILY COLLEGIAN
The New England Newspaper Association's Daily College Newspaper of the Year, 1994
Free Every Day

University Productions & Concerts
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

UPC

University Productions and Concerts would like to thank everyone for participating in an extremely successful year. It was a pleasure organizing and assisting in providing programming such as:

DJ Craig G, DJ Clue, Aquarium Rescue Unit, Belizbeha, 311, Shootyz Groove, HASA CASA, Faith Evans, Smoothe Da Hustler, BMCP Music Conference, Puerto Rican Cultural Night, Kinito Mendez, a National Battle of the Bands Showcase, Boricuas Heritage Night, The Toasters, and Let's Go Bowling.

University Productions and Concerts(UPC) is embarking on a journey that will lead the UMass Community to a land of increased and improved programming. In order to accomplish this we need somewhat of an ideal environment. This environment includes many different factors. Two of the main components are UPC and You the campus community. Without either of these ingredients our purpose cannot be met. As an organization we are beginning to look towards the future. We would like to bring the most enjoyable programming to you, and we would like for you to have the utmost input in this decision-making process.

In light of the high expectations that we have for ourselves and the obligation that is owed to the campus, we feel that it would be a disservice to the undergraduate student community to putforth a Spring Concert at this time. Instead we are focusing our attention on being able to provide a service that you deserve and have come to expect. Please understand that this was an extremely difficult decision. We would appreciate your future support for University Productions and Concerts. If you have any questions please contact us at the address or phone number below.

On behalf of the UPC staff:

Andrew Miller, Business Manager
Aren Lee Kong, Multi-cultural Talent Coordinator
Stacey Peck, Production Manager
Dana Salmon, Promotions Director

406 Student Union Box 150 University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003
VOX 413.545.2892 FAX 413.545.4751

Attention Grad Students!
GSS Candidates Night
Tuesday, April 30
(Nominations close at 5 PM, April 19)
Vote next week at
GSS General Meeting for
1994-95 Officer Elections
Tuesday, May 7, 7:15 PM
(Other times below)
Grad Senate Taxpayers are eligible to vote
(Bring valid ID and/or Bursar's receipt)

WHEN: Tues., April 30
WHERE: CC 163C

Wed., May 7 CC Concourse
Thurs., May 8 Outside the 10 am-6 pm Grad Lounge

For more information
Contact the GSS at 545-2896

Camby

continued from page 1

school. That's why I haven't signed with an agent right now."

According to Calipari though, the chances of that happening aren't all that good.

"Don't take from him that there's a chance that he's coming back" Calipari said. "It's one-in-a-million. If something happens that he has to come back he's leaving it open. That says a lot about him and who he is."

The NBA draft is scheduled for June 26 and no matter which team selects the 6-foot-11 Minuteman superstar, in the mind of his coach, Camby will always be a special human being.

"We're talking about a young man who will be a positive role model for youngsters," Calipari said. "A young man who will get his college degree because he is on line to graduate."

"The biggest thing is that he became our best player but was still down to earth and a nice person."

Camby's official announcement

"Thank you all for coming to Amherst today. I appreciate everyone's concern and attention regarding this difficult decision. After discussing the positives and negatives of turning professional this year with my family, coaches and friends, I have decided to declare my eligibility for the 1996 NBA Draft.

"This decision has been very hard, but I feel that I am ready to pursue my lifelong dream — to play in the NBA. I have spent the last three years at UMass preparing for the opportunity to play at the next level and I feel that I am ready for the challenge. Nothing about this decision has been easy. I am torn between my love for the UMass family — my teammates, coaches and incredible fans — and my desire to provide for my loved ones.

"My experience at UMass has been the best three years of my life. This family has supported me through the good times and the bad. They have seen me at my best, and the times I was down. The UMass basketball program really is a family and I had to choose a school all over again, it would be UMass without any doubt. This past season was incredible, but it was not about winning games and going to the Final Four that made it special, it was the fun we had together. I will never leave UMass in my heart. A big part of me will always be here. I will never leave this team. They will always be with me and I will always be with them. That is why everyone is up here with me today.

Thank you for all your love and support."

-Marcus Camby

travesty

continued from page 1

Miller added that the UPC staff was against putting on a sub-standard production compared. "UPC is growing and changing, constantly trying to better ourselves and learning how to please this campus the best we can."

With the decision behind them, UPC is now looking ahead to next year with high expectations. Since the group already spent their Student Activities Trust Fund (SATF), all of the money saved from cancelling Spring Concert will be put towards producing next year's concerts.

Miller, optimistic about future events for UPC, said "The Spring Concert for next year should be really good."

Looking back on UPC's past year, Miler said, "This year was a very successful year as we assisted other student organizations bringing diversity and multi-culturalism to the campus."

Besides bringing musical acts such as Faith Evans, 311 and the Toasters, UPC worked on Puerto Rican Cultural Night and Boricuas Heritage Night.

Tonight there UPC is holding a general meeting for anyone interested in discussing the concert at 6 p.m. in room 904 in the Campus Center.

It's that time of year again...

and your Daily Collegian is here for YOU!

Editorial/ Opinion Needs Writers!

If you're interested in writing call Bob Dunn at 545-3500

Breyer to address class of '96

By Daniel E. Levenson
Collegian staff

COURTESY MASS OFFICE

Supreme Court Justice Stephen Breyer will speak at this year's undergraduate commencement ceremonies.

On May 26, Supreme Court Justice Stephen G. Breyer will deliver the main address at the 120th Commencement of the University of Massachusetts.

Breyer, who was nominated to the Supreme Court by President Bill Clinton in 1994, served as a University trustee from 1974 to 1981. Breyer is a graduate of Harvard Law School. During the ceremony he will receive an honorary doctor of laws degree from the University.

Appointed Judge of the U.S. First Circuit Court of Appeals in Boston in 1980, Breyer was chief judge from 1990-1994.

Additionally, he taught at the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University.

Kay Scanlan from the University News Office commented on the commencement speaker for the class of 1996.

Scanlan said that a committee set up to review possible commencement speakers chose Breyer from among an undisclosed number of possible candidates. Each year the committee chooses a commencement speaker, open to nominations from students, faculty and alumni. The panel then looks at the resumes of the suggested speakers and make a selection. She said that she thought that Breyer was going to give a memorable speech. "We feel that he's first class speaker," Scanlan said.

At last year's commencement, Anthony Lake, National Security Advisor to Clinton, spoke to the graduating class. Other past speakers have included John Updike, former Democratic Presidential candidate Hubert Humphrey and Senator Edward M. Kennedy.

Close to 4,000 students are Bachelor degree candidates.

In separate ceremonies on May 25, approximately 1000 students will receive their Master's degrees from the University, and roughly 100 will receive their Associate of Science Degrees form the Stockbridge School of Agriculture.

Bulger welcomed at library fundraiser

By Andrew Shogan and Daniel E. Levenson
Collegian Staff

A fund raising luncheon for the W.E.B. Du Bois Library, introducing University of Massachusetts President William M. Bulger to the recently renamed building, was held Monday at the Campus Center.

The event included speeches by Marios Phillippides, professor of classics at the University, Bulger and men's basketball coach John Calipari.

The buffet luncheon was attended by University faculty and staff. The event was orchestrated by the Friends of the Library and the Faculty Senate Research Library council.

Bulger, along with others who attended the luncheon, were given a tour of the library afterwards.

"We're looking forward to President Bulger coming and being a strong supporter of the library, as well as the University," said David Mulcahy, a member of the Library Research Committee.

Master of ceremonies Julie Brigham-Grette, welcomed everyone to the fund raiser and introduced the day's first speaker, Phillippides. He spoke on the connection between scholarship and athletics, as well as the breakdown of civilization in relation to the degradation of these two formerly great institutions.

His speech was entitled "From the gymnasium to the library."

"Athletes were seen as heroes in the ancient world," Phillippedes said. He went on to give the example of a hero in the ancient world who focused only on his physical strength. When he grew old and his body failed he had nothing left, because he mind was empty, Phillippedes said that when the two most important institutions of the ancient world were ruined, "the concept of the ideal Greco-Roman citizen was destroyed."

Calipari spoke next, expressing the idea that the library was the most important monument on the campus to education.

Calipari also mentioned that having a good library helped recruiting, because students who came here to play basketball are also here to get a good education. "It limits our recruiting when a kid says I can get a better education at so-and-so," he said.

"Our library should be in the top 20 research libraries in the country," Calipari said. He remarked on how the University's library is currently ranked No.78 in the country, which is better then last year's ranking which was in the 90s. He, along with his wife Ellen, have donated to the library in past years. He then surprised the crowd by announcing that he would like to do a major fundraiser for the University. "I'm not talking like $15,000, I'm talking a major fundraiser," Calipari said.

He then asked Bulger if he would be willing to contribute a similar amount of funds that his effort would raise, possibly matching it. He also compared the high goals and achievements of the basketball team to the University's growth as a place of higher learning.

"My support for the library is un-ending," Calipari said.

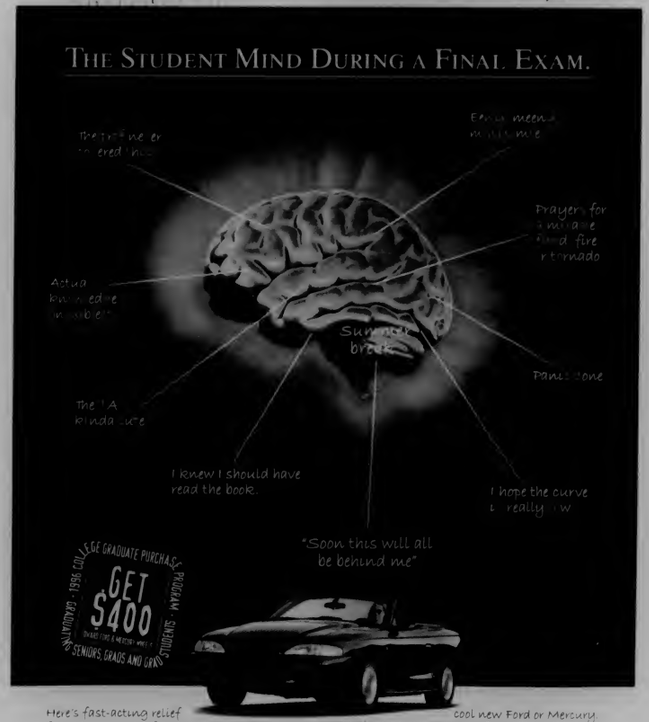
Bulger spoke next, commenting on his past experiences with Boston libraries and the media.

He spoke candidly to the crowd about his involvement with The Boston Public Library (B.P.L.), of which he has been a strong supporter. He jokingly referred to the Boston Globe, which offered to donate a collection of past issues to the B.P.L., as "the Herald... with verbs," Bulger said.

He remarked on how the University is an under appreciated aspect of the Massachusetts community. He also said that he would like to see the University get the respect that it deserves.

Towards the end, Bulger agreed to consider Calipari's offer regarding the contribution of money towards a major University fundraiser for the library.

THE STUDENT MIND DURING A FINAL EXAM.



Prayers for a miracle and fire tornado
Summer break
Panic zone
I knew I should have read the book.
I hope the curve is really low
"Soon this will all be behind me"
GET $400
COLLEGE GRADUATE PURCHASE PROGRAM
SENIORS, GRADS AND GRAD STUDENTS

Here's fast-acting relief from the pressure of school! Graduating seniors and grad students can get $400 cash back* on the purchase or lease of any cool new Ford or Mercury. This includes the high-performance Mustang! Call 1-800-321-1536 or visit our Web site at http://www.ford.com for the full story.

Ford BECAUSE YOUR BRAIN DOESN'T HAVE WHEELS.

STUDENT TRAVEL
The world's largest student travel organization.
800-777-0112
STI STA TRAVEL

STILL LOOKING?
SO ARE WE.

Mid-terms • Spring Break • Finals

They've all cut into to your already busy schedule, haven't they?

Don't worry, there's still time to find the job opportunity of a lifetime!

That's because Raytheon Electronic Systems is now hiring Engineering and Computer Science graduates for immediate positions in these exciting technical areas:

Systems Engineering
Software Engineering
Computer Design
Signal Processing
Image Processing
Electro-Optics

If you're still looking...STOP NOW. And send your resume to us.

Raytheon Electronic Systems
M/S T25L2
50 Apple Hill Drive
Tewksbury, MA 01876-9901
Fax: (508) 858-1163
E-mail: staffing@res.ray.com

We are an equal opportunity employer. U.S. Citizenship may be required for these positions.

Raytheon Electronic Systems

DAILY COLLEGIAN

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts Amherst, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • Fax (413) 545-1592

Matt Vantour Editor-in-Chief Marni E. Helfner Managing Editor
Earl T. Martin Business Manager James P. Gurley Production Manager Ethan Bloomfield Advertising Manager
Natasha Kahn Advertising Production Manager Lisa Chiu Senior Diversity Editor

Tara Mc Connelly Arts & Living Editor Sean Cahoon Staff Artist
Gregory Gaskins Co-Black Affairs Editor Anna Lotto Co-Women' Issues Editor
Humphrey Bowen III Co-Black Affairs Editor Hannah Thorne Co-Women's Issues Editor
Sunanda Ghosh Co-Developing Nations Editor Tony Morse Editorial Production Manager
Ibrahim Ali Co-Developing Nations Editor Adam Chace Systems Manager
Bob Davis Editorial/Opinion Editor Eric R. Remillard IV Finance Manager
Lisa M. Olivieri-Gay Lesbian, Bisexual & Gay Issues Editor Lee Werner Distribution Manager
Anna Isdor Jewish Affairs Editor Position Vacant Classifieds Manager
Lisa Chiu Multicultural Affairs Editor Lyle A. Henry Operations Manager
Ami Paradiso News Editor Maureen Majerowski Assistant Operations Manager
Emily Reis Photography Editor Marty Pappas Classified Advertising
Caroline Flemming Sports Editor Thomas F. Sweeney, Jr. Graphics Advisor/Instructor

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday through Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. The Collegian is financially independent from the University. It receives no state funds and derives its revenues generated by advertising sales. The paper was founded in 1890 as Aggie Life. It became the Collegian in 1908 and then the Fri Bycicle Collegian in 1956. The Collegian has been published daily since 1967. It has been a broadsheet publication since January 1984. Advertising rates and information: call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Fords, ferets and fun

I did a lot if driving this weekend — I became one with my car, or my butt did anyway. I actually enjoy driving long distances by myself. it gives me a chance to clean out my nasal cavity without anyone seeing

The trip didn't didn't start out so well, though. Thursday night, driving some friends to a bar (I got the long straw and had to be designated driver), I was pulled over by the Amherst P.D. He inspected the entire car with a flashlight "looking for the cheeba."

I told my buddy to show off his "Rhode Island State Police" sweatshirt and not the big cigarette butt hanging from his mouth. I kissed up a little bit and had my license and registration ready, and was really polite to the guy. No, he wasn't interested in a pair of Yankees tickets.

Three and a half years later, he came back to the car with a slip of paper. At first I was thinking I had to dish $110 for going 46 mph in a 30 zone. Instead he handed me the paper and said, "here's a warning for you, and Timothy, please slow it down for me all right?"

You bet officer, and would it be too embarrassing if I stepped out of my vehicle and kissed you full on the lips?"

After that though, things went pretty smoothly. Well, kind of smoothly considering I don't have shocks in my car.

I drove to Rhode Island to do some business and visit my Grandma — hey, ask Adam Sandler, visiting Grandma is the cool thing to do.

Have you ever noticed that when you're driving long distances, you make friends with all the other cars around you? It's kind of a commuter flotilla. You play the "leap-frog" game or try to keep at the head of the pack to feel like the admiral of the fleet. Or, maybe that's just me.

I love watching the other people pick their nose or talk to themselves. And when they get caught, they try to pretend like they are scratching their face or singing to the radio. I just keep on picking. hey what are the chances they'll ever see me again?

Tim White

Music is key when driving long distances. I love it when you have the radio on and it seems like the DJ is playing songs just for you. I've noticed that people like music that they can sing to. For instance, I like the Black Crowes because Chris Robinson doesn't do anything amazing with his voice, and I can keep up. My father, for example, likes Bob Dylan because he's tone-deaf.

Column intermission — a ferret tried to get into my room last night. My girlfriend and I where lying in bed watching TV, and we heard something at the window, which was open.

All of a sudden, a shadowy object appeared on the sill. Immediately I thought it was a rat and it was going to jump on my face and rip out my eyes.

We jumped up, the ran to the door and I clicked on a light to reveal this whitish-gray furry ferret with red eyes trying to jump down on my bed. I started swinging a pillow at it to "shoo" it out the window again, but it just looked at me like, "Hey man, back off. I'm just trying to get some food."

He (or she) kept avoiding my pillow — it was not afraid of me at all. Eventually it just got plain tired of the battle and took off. If my girlfriend wasn't there, the story would have gone like this:

"So this rubber tried to get in my room with a gun, all I had was a pillow and a kitchen knife...."

If anyone in South Amherst is missing a white ferret with red eyes and foam around it's mouth, it's at my apartment complex. Just kidding about the foam.

Back to the regular program — you know your car is a piece of junk if you don't want to fill it with gas because you're afraid it will break down and you're out 10 bucks.

"Um. $1.50 on pump 12 please. thank you."

Don't worry, the car made it. It's making this grinding noise now, so I just turn up the radio because if I can't hear the problem, it doesn't exist.

Eventually I'll have to go to a mechanic though. I just can't get myself to trust them because I'm afraid that when they go in there to fix the problem, they'll create another one so I have to come back again.

I wonder if doctors do that. You go in for a routine appendix removal and return two weeks later only to learn that "somehow" you got a bleeding ulcer and it has to be operated on.

I hope the problem with my car is nothing serious. I'm a poor college student. Hopefully it's just something like there's a dead ferret in my drive shaft.

Tim White is a Collegian columnist.

Writes of passage

How many of you have a half written letter sitting on your bed-side table at home? Be honest. You've been meaning to write to someone for months and each time you attempt it something comes up about half way through the first page. By the time you get back to writing it, you realize it's all old news and you have to start all over again. It's a never ending process.

Dawn Jennings

Have you ever laid in bed, late at night, right before you're about to fall asleep, and remembered that once again you've forgotten to call so and so. It's now got ten to be too late and you make a mental note that you will definitely call tomorrow. Yeah, right.

It's easy to get so caught up in our present lives that we neglect some of those people that mean the most to us. Some important thing is always coming up. It's not because we don't want to call, write or visit this person, because we really do. However the next thing you know, it's been years and the two of you have no idea what is going on in each other's lives. It makes you sad, but by this point you have a whole new set of friends that need you to call, write and visit.

This weekend I was happy to go out with a friend I haven't hung out with in awhile. We had been planning to get together all semester and of course, some important thing was always standing in the way. Each time we'd promise one another that we'd definitely go out the next weekend, but you know how that is. However, this past Saturday we finally found ourselves sitting at the same table at El Acuna, conversing.

Upon returning home that night I felt really happy. Throughout my four years here I've met dozens of people. Unfortunately, many of them I've lost touch with. It felt really nice to finally catch up with one of them.

It seems like every year when you change classes and move to a different dorm or apartment you also lose some friends that were in your classes or lived in your building. When you leave for summer break you promise not to lose contact. Upon returning to school in the fall you start out by visiting these people but soon you both get caught up in your own separate lives.

It makes me really sad to run into someone I used to be really good friends with and then not really have anything to say to one another.

"Oh, how are you! I haven't seen you in ages. What's new?"

"Nothing much. I'm really glad I ran into you!"

Awkward silence.

"Well, it was great to see you. I guess I'll talk to you later."

"Yeah, you too. Definitely keep in touch."

"Of course. See ya."

Change is a natural part of life. If we were still living in the same place, playing with the same kids, and participating in the same activities that we were 20 years ago, we'd be pretty limited people. You need to have new experiences and go different places. That is one reason I went to an out of state school. It's not because I didn't like my friends at home or my life there, I just wanted to experience something different. That's also probably why I'm thinking of moving across the country next year. To try something different.

As graduation grows near I find myself wondering which people I'll remain in touch with next year. It's unrealistic to think it would be possible and at all probable to keep in contact with all the friends I've made. However, it also saddens me to think how it's so easy to be extremely close to someone one minute and not even know what they are doing the next.

While change is good and a natural part of life, we shouldn't forget those that are important to us. So as you leave this school in May, whether you are graduating or planning on returning in the fall, don't forget your friends. It takes some effort to remain in touch, but you know what, the efforts worth it.

Dawn Jennings is a Collegian columnist.

Opinion/Editorial

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily represent the views of the Collegian.

DIDN'T WE JUST PASS AN ANTI-TERRORISM BILL?
TICK TICK TICK
MIN. WAGE BILL
TOLES
©1996, THE BUFFALO NEWS
DEPENDS ON — WHAT SCARES YOU

Baby boom to elderly explosion

We, as the future workers of America have a huge problem on our hands. While it doesn't appear on the front page of the newspapers or on after noon and evening talk shows, it will affect each and every one of us. Worse yet the problem involves those who we hold dearest to our hearts, our parents. In fact they are the problem.

Before you jump to any conclusions about me hating the older folk, let me explain. Our parents (or nine at least) are part of the Baby Boom Generation. During the baby boom, the number of children per family and in society grew at an incredible pace. The result was a bulge in the American population that is now reaching ages between 40 and 50 years old. What, you ask, is the problem with that? The problem is that in 15 years, the first wave of the Baby Boom generation will be at the age of retirement, and we're going to have to find a way to pay for them.

Mark McGrath

Social Security takes care of the needs of the elderly of today, but it will never be able to do so for the elderly of tomorrow because there will simply be too many of them. The way the current system works, it could never succeed in the future, for the baby boomers are paying for an elderly generation much smaller than their own. In 15 years, the group of retirees will be much larger when compared with today's, and the work force much smaller. Something has to give.

Another problem involves the greater life expectancy that Americans now have. More and more people are living past 80 and with that comes obvious costs, such as those brought on by chronic illnesses and extending benefits over a longer period of time. Not only are the oldest Americans growing in number, they are also costing more and more.

Change in this matter is going to be very difficult. First, since the largest groups of voting Americans are the elderly and others who are getting up there in age, politicians will be hesitant to make any changes effecting the current system. Secondly, those who will be getting benefits will feel that they are entitled to all of the same old-age benefits that they provided the generation before them.

In a perfect world, that would all be fine. But this is not a perfect world. Therefore certain problems in the system are going to have to be dealt with. Otherwise, we have yet another reason to believe that our system will come crashing down within the next 50 years.

How are we to combat problems like the above mentioned? There are a number of possibilities, but none seems really feasible at this point in time. The first and most obvious is to raise taxes significantly. To meet the projected demands, federal taxes would have to be raised to about 20 percent, which all economists will tell you would in itself destroy the economy.

Another suggestion would be to cut the benefits that are provided to the elderly. While we would like to provide them with whatever they need, that simply cannot be done. The most costly benefits provided are those which are medical in nature. Are we to leave our parents sickly and dying? While that prospect seems heartless, that may be the only solution.

It has been suggested that Social Security only be given to those who really need it. In such a scenario, people who are well off would never see a penny for all of they contributed over their working years. Fair. No. Necessary. Maybe.

Another suggestion being discussed would have the retirement age raised by five or more years to insure that fewer and fewer people receive the benefits of programs like Social Security, but that solution comes with problems of its own. The American economy only has room for a certain number of workers. Keeping workers in their positions will bring a lower turnover rate, and less jobs for our generation, another danger for the economy.

What then are we going to do? Perhaps everyone involved will have to make some sort of concession to end the looming crisis. In a recent survey, only 14 percent of Americans reported that they would be in favor of cutting Social Security, but a smaller number than that foresee actually receiving any benefits. Most want to keep a system that pumps their money into a fund that they will never see. Americans have to learn that hoping they will be taken care of is not enough. They have to start saving or they may have no money at all.

In any case, there is little doubt about the fact that our generation is going to have to pay in one way or another. I'd hate to see this issue become a clash between generations, because that may well end up happening.

Even worse, the clash could involve another generation, our children, the future of America. Most of us agree that money ought to go into schools to insure that the next generation has the tools they need to succeed, but with the elderly boom looming, it is hard to predict what resources we will have to offer them. Fund the old or fund the young, the debate could divide America.

Remember, we will at some point be old. How does that change the way we'll look at the matter? The elderly are one of our greatest resources due to their wisdom and experience, but they could end up ripping our world apart. What are we going to do? The situation is 15 years away ...and counting.

Mark McGrath is a Collegian columnist.

The new Tasmanian devil

I'm sure by know you've heard at least a word or two about that little devil in the Australian outback, a madman, a semiautomatic rifle, and a lot of dead and injured people. Well in case you haven't, you may now consider yourself informed.

Anyway this crazy nut-case killed 32 people, injured 18 more, held three people hostage, and set fire to a guest cottage. So it has to make you wonder why when police caught this guy they didn't just shoot him right then and there. Seriously, does this guy have much of a chance in court, considering that the reason he stopped shooting people was probably that he ran out of people to shoot?

Andrew Trodden

I can see it now, "Sir, how do you plead", "Not guilty. I uh... ran out of bullets... yeah I was actually aiming to kill 100."

If you shoot one person and they're that sure you did it, you're going up the river for a long time. But 32 people?

Execute that freak of nature right now.

I've got to wonder though, does someone like that wake up in the morning and go "Hmm... ya know I think I'll go shoot the blazes out of a bunch of tourists today." If they do I can only imagine what they might try to do tomorrow to top their performance of the previous day.

Keep in mind that police in this case say that the gunman has a history of "psychological problems." Now I don't know about you but I figure if someone has a "history" of psychological problems they ought to have a history of treatment as well. Apparently Dr. Downunder didn't do such a good job. The stupid part is that in today's world that poor sap will be the one that gets sued.

Actually going back to the part about this guy's chances in court, there probably not too bad. Now that I think more about how "bass ackwards" this world can be, his chances have improved. He'll probably be deemed insane and get to spend the rest of his time in a loony bin... alive! While the 32 he killed are... dead! Not to mention the pain their families suffer.

This man killed and he should therefore in turn suffer the same fate which he gave to those he shot. Stand that man in an open field, give a high-powered rifle to the parents of the people he killed, count to three and pump that bastard so full of lead he'll die from lead poisoning before anything else.

This man does not deserve even the teeny-weeniest bit of mercy, nor do any others psychos who go around killing people. Make the punishment fit the crime, as these crazies will maybe think twice before going berserk on innocent people. If, in the back of their head, they know that if they follow-up on their diabolical plots the system will, shall we say, "get medieval on them" they might not be so gung-ho about crime.

For instance we'll take the alleged Unabomber and the two nuts accused of the Oklahoma bombing. We're not totally sure that we've got the right guys, so give them their fair trial. What's that verdict..., guilty? Okay boys time to die. Let's strap these guys to a gazillion pounds of explosives and send them into orbit. I'm willing to wager that there virtually isn't a soul on this planet that wouldn't pay to see that Fourth of July celebration. Heck let's put that show on live television.

Either way you slice it criminals must be made to pay for their actions. Otherwise we, the good people of the world, will still become victims of their madness and then continue to pay for it for the rest of our tax paying lives. Doesn't sound fair to me, how about you?

Andrew Trodden is a Collegian columnist.

Developing Nations

Tuesday, April 30, 1996

The Israel Lobby: How they get your money

"Before Israel existed as a state, it existed as a lobby first in the capitals of Europe and then in Washington." Edward Tivnan, The Lobby.

Ordinary Americans are increasingly alienated from their government, feeling that Washington is dominated by powerful and well-funded corporate and "special interest" lobbyists, as opposed to middle and working class people.

Easily the strongest and most feared special interest lobbying group is the pro–Israel lobby, led by the American Israel Public Affairs Committee (AIPAC).

Known on Capitol Hill simply as "The Lobby," AIPAC and company have demonstrated their unrivaled political clout by the size and scope of U.S. foreign aid to Israel, and the subordination of U.S. foreign policy to Israeli interest

Getting your money

Channelling United States taxpayer dollars to Israel has always held pride of place for the Pro-Israel Lobby.

Its unparalled success in this project is attested to by the astonishing $77.7 billion that has been given by the U.S. government to Israel since 1948. In 1996, U.S. aid to Israel will be at least $5.5 billion, more than one fourth of the total worldwide aid given by the United States. Given that the aid is being granted to a nation of about 5 million people, the $5.5 billion distributed over the population of Israel comes to more than $1,000 per Israeli every year.

This fantastic sum is all the more amazing given that Israel's GDP per capita exceeded $14,000 in 1995, larger than Spain's and approaching England's. But the relative wealth of Israel has certainly been based on the extent of aid received from the United States and other Western nations.

AIPAC's success is also codified in the 1984 Cranston Amendment, which guarantees that U.S. annual aid to Israel "... shall not be less than the annual debt repayment (interest and principle) from Israel to the U.S government ..." This means that the United States will never give Israel less than the amount Israel owes the United States for loans, including interest.

Twenty years ago the U.S. government borrowed money to give aid to Israel. Ironically even today, it is the United States taxpayers dollars that is paying the interest on this loan. In addition, the Cranston Amendment ensures that the United States will in effect, pay the interest on loans taken by Israel from the United States. Naturally these dubious financial arrangements are kept hidden from the public.

In 1992, after a tremendous lobbying effort by AIPAC, Congress passed a bill committing the United States to underwrite $10 billion in loans to Israel from private financial institutions. Israel's high international credit rating is thus achieved by the U.S. taxpayer guaranteeing its loans and by the Congressional compulsion of giving them new grants to cover repayment and interest on old loans.

Hussein Ibish & Shyamala Ivatury

Another unique and unprecedented aspect of U.S. aid to Israel is that the annual aid package is given as a lump sum all at once, not in four quarterly installments as is the case for all other foreign aid recipients. This allows Israel to pocket the interest on these funds, rather than the United States, increasing the burden on the American taxpayer.

These are but a few examples of the extraordinary size, scope, and preferential nature of U.S. aid to Israel, a relationship that bewilders and confounds almost all foreign observers. This unique relationship, defying all rational explanation, is the handiwork of AIPAC and its 40 years of high-powered and ruthless lobbying in Washington.

AIPAC claims that it is not an "agent of a foreign power" acting on behalf of Israel, on the grounds that its funds all originate in the United States. Israeli government documents leaked to the Hebrew press suggest the contrary.

The Israeli Foreign Ministry issued confidential guidelines following the Republican sweep of the 1994 Congressional elections, stating that The Lobby "will have to re-examine its working methods in the Congress. AIPAC currently consists of personages identified with the Democrats, and it is now vital to draw back into its ranks persons identified with the Republicans."

Working on behalf of the Israeli national interest, The Lobby has pushed to keep confidential the details of Israel's attack on a U.S. Navy ship, the USS Liberty, in the 1967 war, tried to arrange for the pardon and release of Jonathan Pollard who spied against the United States for Israel.

Currently, AIPAC's focus is to push the United States to maximum confrontation with Iran, which Israel regards as its next big target in the Middle East. When President Clinton, wearing a yarmulke and addressing the World Jewish Congress, announced the imposition of a Cuba–style total U.S. trade embargo of Iran, the New York Times observed, "Mr. Clinton's new announcement brings United States policy on Iran more into line with Israel's."

Purchasing your congressman

The AIPAC approach to Congress is classic "carrot and stick" politics. The carrot is massive amounts of campaign financing for American politicians increasingly dependent on large contributions to run for office.

AIPAC itself is not a Political Action Committee, but is rather an umbrella organization overseeing and often illegally directing the funding of Washington politicians by over 70 pro–Israel PACs. It guides the PACs in their contributions, issues sacred edicts to legislators on how to vote through "recommendations," and relentlessly propagandizes Capitol Hill on behalf of Israel.

All but six of AIPAC's pro–Israel PACs have been specifically named to avoid all references to Israel, the Middle East, or Zionism, with names such as National PAC, Hudson Valley PAC, Metro PAC, Pacific PAC, City PAC, etc., leading some observers to dub them "stealth PACs."

Under AIPAC's direction, these PACs provide funding to political campaigns to influence all federal U.S. Congressional elections. By coordinating the contributions of these smaller PACs, AIPAC sidesteps federal limits on campaign financing. For example in 1988, 78 pro–Israel PACs under AIPAC's guidance donated more than $5.4 million to congressional candidates, more than any other lobby.

The AIPAC strategy includes an emphasis on early donations to campaigns made when funds are relatively scarce, thereby garnering more influence in the long run.

This influence is such that, according to senior Foreign Service Officer and former U.S. Ambassador Don Bergus, "At the State Department we used to predict that if Israel's Prime Minister should announce that the world is flat, within 24 hours Congress would pass a resolution congratulating him on the discovery."

Disciplining your legislator

While the funding carrots ensure the unquestioned loyalty of most members of Congress to the pro–Israel lobby, the stick in AIPAC's arsenal consists of engineering the defeat of candidates whom they dislike by massive funding of the opponents. Any legislator even suspected of a less than passionate support for Israel's agenda is ruthlessly targeted and either defeated or forced to recant.

Among the most prominent scalps gathered by The Lobby over the years include Senators J. William Fulbright, Charles Percy and James Abourezk, and Representatives Paul Findely and Pete McCloskey.

In 1979, California Representative McCloskey's sin was to question U.S. funding of Israel's settlements in the occupied territories, deemed "illegal" by the U.S. government.

As McCloskey explains, "When I ran for re-election, in 1980, I was asked a question about peace in the Middle East, and I said if we were going to have peace in the Middle East we members of Congress were going to have to stand up to our Jewish constituents and respectfully disagree with them on Israel. Well, the next day the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith accused me of fomenting anti-Semitism, saying that my remarks were patently anti-Semitic," McCloskey was defeated by Pete Wilson.

Perhaps the most distinguished American politician whose career was destroyed by AIPAC was the Chair of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Charles Percy. In 1981 Percy, along with a majority of other Senators, defied the AIPAC "recommendation" and voted in favor of Reagan's sale of the early warning AWACS aircraft to Saudi Arabia.

Furthermore, Percy had dared to allow a variety of view points on Middle East affairs to be aired in Foreign Relations Committee hearings and called for respecting both Palestinian rights as well as Israeli security concerns.

Clearly, he had to be destroyed. In the 1984 election, AIPAC's PACs gave his opponent Paul Simon over $500,000, but Percy continued to maintain a slight lead in the polls. At this point AIPAC Board member Michael Goland contributed $1,200,000 of private funds to a campaign of negative attack commercials against Percy.

Goland's commercials were cynically aimed at convincing Black voters not to vote for Percy. Obviously, they did not mention the Middle East or Israel. Paul Simon won.

Four years later, Goland was convicted of violating election laws by hiding the fact that he bought the ads.

Goland was also involved in bizarre schemes to ensure the 1986 re–election of Alan Cranston, author of the Cranston Amendment. Goland vowed to Zschau that "I'm going to get you just like I got Percy." The AIPAC PACs gave Cranston $241,232, but still Zschau led in the polls.

After first being rebuffed by the Libertarian candidate, Goland's staffers poured $120,000 to a far right wing fringe candidate in order to draw conservative voter away longer reads as calling for an Israeli withdrawal from occupied territories, and the applicability of the fourth Geneva Convention and its ban on expulsion of civilians from occupied territories, which Clinton no longer applies to Palestinians. Under their guidance, Clinton now also accepts the Israeli view that the occupied territories are merely "disputed territories."

The subordination of U.S. policy to Israeli interests has been ignored in the American media, but not in Israel, where in the Tel Aviv Hebrew language daily Ma'ariv, Avinoam Bar–Yosef explained it all in an article called "The Jews who Ruin Clinton's Court." While failing to acknowledge the distinction between Jewish people and political Zionists like AIPAC, this article does seem to sum up the Israeli impression of the Clinton Administration.

In regard to Middle East at least, the concerns of ordinary Americans that they cannot influence their government, whose policies are dictated by well-funded and highly organized lobby organizations, appear solidly rooted in fact.

As former Assistant Secretary of State, George Ball, said in 1988, "Practically every congressman and senators says he has prayers to the AIPAC lobby. They've done an enormous job of corrupting the American democratic process. It's the most effective lobby in the United States today... I think it is a caricature of the American way."

Shyamala Ivatury and Hussein Ibish are Collegian columnists.–

Israel in Lebanon: How they spend your money

"Qana – It was a massacre. Not since Sabra and Chatila had I seen the innocent slaughtered like this. The Lebanese refugee women and children and men lay in heaps, their hand or arms or legs missing, beheaded or disembowelled. There were well over a hundred of them. A baby lay without a head. The Israeli shells had scythed through them as they lay in the United Nations shelter, believing that they were safe under the world's protection. Like the Muslims of Srebrenica, the Muslims of Qana were wrong.

In front of a burning building of the UN's Fijian battalion headquarters, a girl held a corpse in her arms, the body of a grey–haired man whose eyes were staring at her, and she rocked the corpse back and forth in her arms, keening and weeping and crying the same words over and over: 'My father, my father.' A Fijian UN soldier stood amid the bodies and, without saying a word, held aloft the body of a headless child.

'The Israelis have just told us they'll stop shelling the area,' a UN soldier said, shaking with anger. 'Are we supposed to thank them?' In the remains of a burning building – the conference room of the Fijian UN headquarters – a pile of corpses was burning. The roof had crashed in flames onto their bodies, cremating them in front of my eyes. When I walked towards them, I slipped on a human hand...

Israel's slaughter of civilians in this terrible 10–day offensive – 206 by last night – has been so cavalier, so ferocious, that not a Lebanese will forgive this massacre. There have had been the ambulance attack on Saturday, the sisters killed in Yohmor the day before, the two–year–old girl decapitated by an Isreali missile four days ago. And earlier yesterday, the Israelis had slaughtered a family of 12 – the youngest was a four–day–old baby – when Isreali helicopter pilots fired missiles into their home."

— Robert Fisk

This eyewitness account of the massacre of refugees by Israel at the Qana UN Peacekeeping base was reported by the distinguished foreign correspondent Robert Fisk of London daily, The Independent.

Lisa Chiu & Sunanda Ghosh

The Israeli bombardment of Southern Lebanon has been front page news in most nations, but the American media has been virtually silent about the massacre of hundreds of innocent civilians in Lebanon over the past two weeks.

Israel claims the reason for the bombings have been retaliation against Hizballah rocket attacks into northern Israel. But, according to Reuters News Agency, Israel was the first to attack civilians on March 30 and April 8.

Their onslaught is directed specifically towards unarmed civilians in Lebanon. The pattern of Israel's brutal attacks on the Lebanese in 1978, 1982, 1993 and now in 1996, demonstrates that their aim is to make southern Lebanon completely uninhabitable. Why would Israel want this?

Because the true reason for Israel's occupation is to obtain the land and water in southern Lebanon, a goal of Zionists dating long before the creation of Israel. The precious waters of the Litani river in south Lebanon are coveted by Israel.

Chaim Weizmann, who became Israel's first president in 1948, said as early as 1917, "We... thought we could include the whole of that area [including Lebanon and Syria] in the Jewish National Home."

In 1918, Ben Zvi, who later became Israel's second president, and David Ben Gurion, Israel's first Prime Minister, declared that the borders of the Jewish State should extend to 15 kilometers south of Beirut [i.e. southern Lebanon], the Syrian desert to the East, the Sinai Peninsula to the south [in Egypt] and the Mediterranean to the west.

When Israel was created in 1948 by war, Israeli forces occupied southern Lebanon and the coveted Litani River, but were forced to withdraw under international pressure. Again in 1954, Israel threatened force against Lebanon if it continued to use its own waters from the Litani.

In 1955, in a secret cabinet meeting, Israeli Chief of Staff Moshe Dayan stated, "only military necessary is to find an officer, even just a major. We should either win his heart, or buy him with money, to make him agree to declare himself the savior of the Maronite population. Then the Israeli army will enter Lebanon, occupy the necessary territory, and will create a Christian regime which will ally itself with Israel. The territory from the Litani southward will be totally annexed to Israel, and everything will be all right."

This exact plan was carried out during the first full scale Israeli Invasion of Lebanon In 1978. Revealingly named "Operation Litani," this invasion was supposedly in response to Palestinian guerrilla activity. Israel bribed Lebanese Major Saad Haddad to declare a phoney "Maronite State" in Southern Lebanon in 1979, a cover for the Israeli occupation which continues until today. Haddad is long gone but the Israelis remain. Israel finally had its illegal and illegitimate access to the Litani waters. In response to this the UN Security Council passed Resolution 425, calling for Israeli withdrawal from Lebanon, still ignored by Israel.

Even today Israel continues to siphon off water from the Litani river. According to the UN Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia, Israel is using Litani waters, by means of an 11 mile tunnel it has drilled as well as taking water from Lebanon's Wassani springs.

Unlike what the U.S. media would have you believe, the war is not between Hizballah and Israel. As a result of the illegal Israeli occupation and its 1982 killing of 20,000 Lebanese civilians, a group of south Lebanese freedom fighters founded the resistance movement Hizballah. They continue to resist Israeli brutality in Lebanon, provide a wide variety of social and charitable services to the beleaguered people of Lebanon. Despite U.S. media lies, this is no terrorist group but a national liberation movement.

As a result of the recent bombings, more than 500,000 Lebanese fled north to escape Israeli attacks in southern Lebanon. They will return to over 200 murdered, and 339 wounded friends and family, all harmed in a mere 16 days.

Their towns and villages are piles of smoldering rubble, power and water lines destroyed, schools and hospitals in ruins, all signs of human habitation blown apart by Israel.

Unlike what the U.S. media claims, Hizballah has reached new heights of popularity throughout Lebanon.

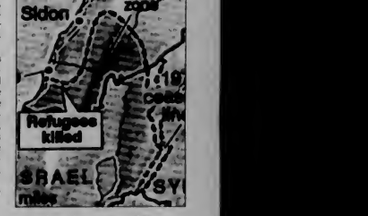
For example, in a major Christian Lebanese newspaper, Al–Anwar, Fuad Da'abul wrote, "All Lebanese found themselves adhering to the right of the resistance to confront the occupation. Today, the Lebanese are united as they have never been before. What kind of peace will Peres find with Lebanon? Has he kept the door open for peace? He has chosen the peace of massacre."

Robert Fisk observed, "To understand how the Lebanese felt, you only had to watch the car which drove down Baalbek Street yesterday with four large yellow and green Hizballah flags — complete with the word 'Allah' and a hand holding a Kalashnikov rifle — flapping above it from makeshift flagpoles. On the bonnet and boot, there were two equally large glass boxes half filled with paper currency. 'Give for the Islamic Resistance' was hand–written on the side. And out of shops and houses, men and women — well–dressed, many of them unsmiling, to put money in the boxes. Never before have such scenes been witnessed in Beirut. Previously despised by many Lebanese — especially those who are not of the Shia Muslim faith — the Hizballah has, thanks to Israel, suddenly come of age. The Israeli offensive against civilians, which continued yesterday ... has united Muslims and Christians in almost unprecedented fury."

In contrast, President Clinton, speaking with Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres at the annual banquet of the American Israel Public Affairs Committee (AIPAC), on Sunday, April 28, sought to please the audience by blaming Hizballah for Israel's massacre of Lebanese civilians.

No one in developing nations is fooled, however. As the distinguished Filipino diplomat and author J. V. Cruz wrote in the Manila Chronicle, concerning the bombings, "the world was understandably outraged by the carnage, with the exception of the Israelis themselves, and of course, the Americans, Israel's protector guarantor, armorer, patron, financier, and nanny."

Lisa Chiu and Sunanda Ghosh are Collegian staff members.



Celebrating Idul–Adha

By Ibrahim Ali
Collegian Staff

This past Sunday Muslims around the world celebrated Idul–Adha (Day of Sacrifice), and the pilgrimage of some two million Muslims to Mecca to perform the Hajj.

Hajj, one of the five pillars of Islam, is an incumbent duty upon all Muslims to be performed at least once in their lifetime, and is the continuation of a practice that began with the Prophet Abraham some 4,000 years ago.

The pilgrims of the Hajj represent and transcend all classifications of race, gender and social status.

One physical aspect of this is found in the dress (called Kafan) that is required for all those performing Hajj. Since clothes can often symbolize pattern, preference, or status, the dress of the Hajj consists of a plain, seamless garment that demonstrates the pilgrims readiness to make do with the bare necessities of life and concentrate on the after life that lies before them.

The Hajj itself begins after the completion of the Umrah, or lesser Hajj, and involves three stages, these are:

- Arafat meaning "knowledge" and "science"
- Mashar meaning "Consciousness" and "understanding"
- Mina meaning "love" and "faith"

Each of these stages, and the performance of the lesser Hajj, is preceded by the participants declaration of Niyat, or intention.

The assemblence at Mecca requires the pilgrim to leave all worldly problems and responsibilities behind them, as the focus becomes the worship of Allah (God). This is the foremost and greatest advantage of the Hajj to Muslims, yet the congregation at Hajj is also used as an opportunity for the discussion and exchange of problems, as a way to devise the means to lend a helping hand to one another, and to refresh the determination for the greater glory of the Islamic faith.

Hajj is essentially a repetition of the Prophet Abraham's experience. By symbolically recapitulating various stages in Abraham's mission of da'wah, the invitation to the belief in one God, the pilgrims of Hajj make a covenant to devote their life to the same mission, and thus forsake home and country for faith.

For Muslims, Hajj is a totality that encourages togetherness and unity. It is a heterogenous assembly formed by various nationalities, races, languages and systems, yet at the same time it is a group, homogenous in faith, culture, purpose and love. What follows Hajj, is the Eid celebration and the emphasis on the importance of unity.

Doonesbury By Garry Trudeau

HELLO?
OH, MAN... HEAR THAT?
4:30
HEAR WHAT?
WAILING! THERE'S A GHASTLY WAILING IN THE HALLS!
AND LISTEN – THE RENDING OF GAPWEAR! WHAT'S GOING ON? SOME TERRIBLE SHADOW OF DOOM IS SWEEPING OVER THE COMPANY!
©Trudeau
WELL, I THINK I CAN EXPLAIN THAT... TIM. IT'S TIM, ISN'T IT?
MY GOD! PEOPLE ARE NUKING THEIR FILES! THE HORROR!

As-salaamu-alekum, namaste:

As the new editors of the Developing Nations Page, it is of great concern to us that the voices of the developing world be heard. With the extreme imbalance of news flow coming in and out of the developing nations, it is important to make our University aware of the issues concerning the developing world, in order to provide a better understanding we kindly request that students of this University contribute to this page with both criticism and contribution so such an agenda can change the misconceptions regarding the nations and peoples of the "Third World." Ibrahim Ali and Sunanda Ghosh, Editors

Arts & Living

Term paper help?

Term papers are due soon, and Microsoft has a new word processor for Windows 95 users that can help students write an A paper.

Word 7.0 incorporates all the features of Word 6.0, so old users will have no problem making the conversion. It even includes help files for WordPerfect users.

Some of those features that make Word so great are the mini-help labels, a tool bar, and grammar and spell checkers.

Word was one of the first Windows application to provide helpful help labels. The labels appear on the screen when the cursor rests on a tool bar icon. The labels give a short description of what the icon does.

Microsoft has dramatically improved the spell checker. Now when a word is misspelled, a wavy red line appears under it like Lotus Word Pro '96. When a user clicks the right mouse button on the misspelled word, the program provides potential alternatives. The traditional method of spell checking the entire document is still possible.

A feature that the competition lacks is a powerful built-in grammar checker. The grammar check points out such problems as passive voice, gender specific terms, sexist terms and informal speech. The grammar checker works in conjunction with the spell checker. When the grammar checker finishes scanning a document, it provides statistics such as the percent of passive tense, and approximate grade level.

Users can customize the grammar checker. It includes pre-established criteria such as business English and formal English, as well as allowing for user settings.

Another nice feature that some of the competition lacks is auto correct. It instantly fixes common typographical errors such as two capitals at the beginning of a word, or a simple mistyped word.

The most noticeable change between Word 7.0 and 6.0 is the support of long file names. No longer do users have to use cryptic eight letter file names. Instead the system automatically names the file based on the first two words, if the user does not give it a name.

Although it's a powerful word processor, it has a few problems. It crashed four times while using the grammar and spell checkers during testing. Each time it crashed it lost the changes that had been made to the document. However, this is a slight improvement over operating Word 6.0 in Windows 95 which occasionally crashed the entire operating system.

It also had a few minor problems that were more of an annoyance then a problem. Although Word 7.0 reads WordPerfect 6.0 files, it will not write them in that format. Unlike Lotus Word Pro 96, Word 7.0 lacks a converter for HTML, but the manual says a user can download one from Microsoft's web site.

The most annoying problem with the application was during installation. When choosing standard setup, it did not install such important features as the grammar checker. Updating it took me an extra 20 minutes.

If you buy Word 7.0 for Windows 95, you should definitely get the CD-ROM version even if you only have a double speed drive because installation will be easier.

Although it still has a few bugs, Word 7.0 is a dramatic step above earlier word processors for the old Windows 3.11. If you want a stable application, then wait for the next version. However, if you are looking for long file name support and a full 32-bit application, then seriously think about Word 7.0.

Word 7.0 only operates on a Windows 95 compatible computer with at least eight megabytes of memory, and about 20 megabytes of free hard drive space. The academic price is $99, and the academic price of the entire Microsoft Office is $149. B

Matt Wurtzel is a Collegian columnist.

Pianist brings unique style to gallery tonight

By Seema Gangatirkar & Mike MacLean
Collegian Staff

Fans of the alternative jazz scene will have the opportunity to see one of the most influential musicians of the genre tonight.

Internationally acclaimed pianist and composer, Matthew Shipp, will appear at the Augusta Savage Gallery along with bassist William Parker as part of the Gallery's 25th anniversary celebration. The concert begins at 7 p.m.

As a musician, Shipp is in a class of his own. He began playing the piano at the age of five. His musical talent was apparent when he won all-star high school band honors on the bass clarinet. However, it wasn't the clarinet that stayed with Shipp, but rather the harmonic, rhythmic and melodic potentials involved in playing jazz piano. Shipp created his own unique style, influenced by such diverse genres as French impressionists and Cecile Taylor to Duke Ellington and Gershwin.

Shipp attended the University of Delaware for a couple years and then studied with John Coltrane's teacher, Denis Sanokle and Robert Lowery, who had taught trumpeter Clifford Brown. It was during this period that Shipp met Ron Brown, an alto saxophonist.

Shipp's musical development was private, but it is immediately recognizable that Shipp's music contains a certain spirituality as well as noticeable comfort in change. Coupled with intense versatility, Shipp plays with a ferocity that easily captivates an audience.

Rolling Stone called Shipp "A Daredevil" and Cadence added its praise with, "He is considered an heir to the piano legacies of Andrew Hill, Cecile Taylor and Paul Bley."

Shipp made an impressive debut in 1988 on Sonic Explorations with Brown. In 1990, Shipp released a quartet album, Points. The quartet, which consisted of Parker, drummer Whit Dickey and Brown as well as Shipp, performed pieces all composed by Shipp.

More recently, Shipp has been turning heads with his work in two other groups, David Ware and Roscoe Mitchell have been two bandleaders who have placed Shipp's piano stylings in the spotlight, prompting Cadence magazine to call Shipp's emergence "One of the most exciting developments in jazz/improvised music of the '90s."

COURTESY AUGUSTA SAVAGE GALLERY

Pianist Matthew Shipp and bassist William Parker will perform tonight at the Augusta Savage Gallery.

Several recordings showcasing Shipp's work have been recently released and some have been backed by ex-Black Flag frontman and well known jazz enthusiast Henry Rollins. Shipp's new effort, Critical Mass, is on Rollins' 2.13 label and the reissue of his '92 release Circular Temple is being carried by Rollins and producer Rick Rubin's Infinite Zero/American Recordings label.

This event is free and open to the general public. Augusta Savage Gallery is located in the New Africa House in the Central residential area near the University Health Services at UMass. The gallery is wheel-chair accessible with an entrance in the rear of the building. For more information, please call the Augusta Savage Gallery at (413) 545-5177.

Band sets goals on unity

By Adam Dlugacz
Collegian Staff

The hardcore event of the year is finally here. Prepare yourself for a night full of sing-a-longs, finger pointing, stage diving, dancing fun.

This show is not about tough guy attitudes, alterna punks, or poseurs — it's about unity and having a good time. CIV has set its goals and all in attendance will watch their accomplishments tonight. If that wasn't enough, H2O is getting things started with that old school flavor that too many of today's bands have forgotten about.

Forming from the ashes of Gorilla Biscuits, with Charlie from Outface replacing Walter, CIV plays straight up posi- core that the New York hardcore scene of the late '80s was famous for. Rather then just re-hashing old songs, CIV has added poppier elements that only add to each tune.

For those of you who strictly go by the old school, songs like "Et Tu Brute," Do Something" and "Blessed" come complete with bomb drops and breakdowns. The members of CIV also comes from the loud-and-fast-rules school as all their songs clock in at under two minutes. They even cover Kraut's "All Twisted," that will bring a smile to the face of anyone that's been into hardcore for along time.

While CIV is on Atlantic Records instead of Revelation few things have changed since their Gorilla Biscuits days. Creeper clad Civ is still one of the best frontmen in hardcore as his dance moves would put even Michael Jackson to shame. The rest of the band back him up by jumping all over the stage and playing their instruments with an intensity that could be considered ferocious.

So don't worry, despite the change in labels, CIV has not sold out. They still play all-ages shows that are quite affordable. Furthermore they're still doing it for the kids, a fact proven by songs like "Kids United." So does the fact that the members of the band are easily approachable and can always be found with a smile on their faces. Their positive outlook should be inspiration to all.

The same is true for H20. When

Turn to H20, page7

COURTESY OF DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC & DANCE

Making Beautiful Music
Percussionist Christopher Constantine rehearses for the 27th Annual Concert of Music for Percussion Instruments. The concert will begin at 7 p.m. tonight in Bowker Auditorium.

Massachusetts International Festival of the Arts

Try Opera!

"The Coronation of Poppea"

by Claudio Monteverdi

Fine Arts Center
UMass Amherst

Wed., May 1, 7pm
special
"get-to-know-opera"
price $15

Students $5
Senior Citizens $13.50

Fri., May 3, 7pm
tickets $23.50 / $45

Two Performances Only

We'd love to show you around.
MASSACHUSETTS

Massachusetts Cultural Council

Greater Springfield Massachusetts Convention & Visitors Bureau

Purchase your tickets today! Call 413-586-8686

$20 OFF ANY MOTOROLA PAGER IN STOCK WITH THIS COUPON

Pioneer Valley Knife & Tool
Pager prices starting @ $49.00 with NewEngland service as low as $7.95 monthly. For more information on sales/service/reactivations
Please call 549-7331 or stop by the shop located in the Amherst Carriage Shops (Next to the Pub.)

Motorola Pagers

CAREERS
In The Fast Lane

At PCs Compleat, we don't just wait for things to happen, we make them happen. As the acknowledged leader in super direct marketing of brand name personal computer products, we are in the midst of dynamic expansion. A major acquisition of new business has accelerated our growth, opening up exciting opportunities for ambitious professionals who want to plan their future with a company that's really going places...fast. Join our talented team of associates and put your career on the fast track to success.

With your skills and our vision, there's no limit to what we can accomplish...at PCs Compleat. We recognize top-notch performers and reward you with a competitive salary and benefits package.

Account Representatives
Soaring customer demand has created outstanding career and earning opportunities for TOP PERFORMERS.

Using your superior skills, you'll handle inbound/outbound sales opportunities to develop an account base of business and individual customers. Top candidates will have successful account development experience, a strong desire to achieve success and knowledge of personal computers. Experience with Digital PCs is a plus.

Overnight shifts also available 11 pm - 7 am. Please specify overnight if you are interested in this shift. Dept. AROUM

Now you can to learn first hand about the exciting career opportunities available right now at PCs Compleat. Representatives from PCs Compleat will be on campus for a special information session, May 1, at the Campus Center, Room 903 from 7pm - 9pm.

Come see what makes PCs Compleat...the right choice for ambitious professionals on the move.

Please send your resume, referencing the department, to: PCs Compleat, 34 St. Martin Drive, Marlborough, MA 01752; Fax (508) 485-9528; E-mail: jfh@pcscompleat.com

No phone calls, please. We're an equal opportunity employer and we provide a smoke-free environment.

PCs COMPLEAT

■ crew

continued from page12

Minutewomen left for Philadelphia Friday morning in order to practice a day before the race. Much to the dismay the crew, thunderstorms kept them off the water again.

"We knew it would be a tough race, after not being able to practice on the water," said Wendy Wilbur. "I think we did a really good job pulling it together."

The determination of this crew was extraordinary, dominating as it did, even in adverse circumstances. UMass has proven itself as one of the best in the country, but the journey does not end here.

UMass will focus on the National Championships next week where it has a chance to win it all. With the crew's success in the A-10's, the Minutewomen can not be counted out.

■ H20

continued from page6

H2O heard 7 Seconds sing "It's in my head, it's in my heart" they were listening carefully. H2O has exploded onto the scene recently and are known for putting their hearts and everything else into every show they perform.

Although H2O has only been around for a short time and despite the fact that they only have a 7-inch and a demo out, their constant touring has brought them into the hardcore spotlight. Songs like "Here Today, Gone Tomorrow," "Scene Report" and "Roots" show their dedication to the scene that spawned them. If you thought CIV was fun H2O certainly rivals them.

CIV and H20 perform at Pearl Street tonight at 7:30 p.m. The show is all ages. Tickets are $8 in advance and $10 at the door. Call the club at 584-7771 for more information.

MDA Educates For Life

When your child has a neuromuscular disease you have a million questions. MDA answers them all through special videos and brochures and all by being there. It will change your life.
call 1-800-572-1717

MDA 1-800-572-1717

MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY ASSOCIATION

Hollins' home run helps Minnesota

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Dave Hollins hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning as the Minnesota Twins rallied from a five-run deficit to beat the Kansas City Royals 11-6 Monday night.

Hollins, who also hit a game-winning two-run homer in Minnesota's previous home game, drove in four runs as the Twins stopped Kansas City's three-game winning streak.

Minnesota added four more runs in the eighth. Paul Molitor had his third RBI single, Roberto Kelly was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded and Pat Meares drove in the final two runs with a single.

Kansas City, which swept Boston last weekend, took a 5-0 lead in the third on Craig Paquette's two-run homer.

Minnesota tied it with four in the bottom half and another run in the fourth, but David Howard gave the Royals a 6-5 lead in the sixth with a two-out double.

Marty Cordova had a bunt single in the seventh off Terry Clark (1-1) and Hollins followed with his seventh homer, an opposite-field drive to left. Hollins, whose two-run homer beat Boston last Tuesday, leads the Twins with 22 RBIs.

Greg Hansell (2-0) gave up one run in two innings after relieving Jose Parra to start the sixth.

Sloppy play by the Twins helped Kansas City take a 2-0 lead in the second.

Jose Offerman hit a two-out bloop double, moved to third on a wild pitch and scored when catcher Mike Durant's throw on a steal attempt bounced off Parra's leg for a throwing error. Sal Fasano's soft single to center made it 2-0.

Michael Tucker's RBI single and Paquette's homer, a two-run drive to right-center for his first RBIs this season, made it 5-0 in the third, but Minnesota rallied with four in the bottom half. Molitor and Cordova had run-scoring hits, and Hollins drove in two with a single that made it 5-4. Molitor's two-out single off Clark tied it in the fourth.

Notes: Kansas City's string of errorless games ended at six when catcher Sal Fasano misplayed a throw from center in the third... After hitting six homers in their first 22 games, the Royals have five in their last four games... Kansas City second baseman Bip Roberts left in the sixth with a sprained left ankle...

Cordova entered the game leading the AL in on-base percentage (.493) and was second in batting (.379). He was 2-for-4 with a walk... The Twins had 15 hits; they've had 10 or more in six of their last seven... Eddie Guardado relieved Hansell in the eighth and has appeared in 13 of the Twins' last 15 games.

Orioles 8, Rangers 7

BALTIMORE (AP) — B.J. Surhoff hit a go-ahead homer as the Baltimore Orioles rallied from a five-run deficit to beat Texas 8-7 Monday night, their first win against the Rangers in seven games this season.

Mike Devereaux also homered and Roberto Alomar had three hits for the Orioles, who had lost nine of their previous 11.

Juan Gonzalez homered for the Rangers, vying for their first four-game sweep in Baltimore since 1972.

Baltimore trailed 5-0 in the third inning, but chipped away and finally took the lead in the seventh. Alomar doubled off Rick Helling (0-1), stole third and scored the tying run on Rafael Palmeiro's sacrifice fly. Two batters later, Surhoff hit his sixth homer.

Jimmy Haynes (1-3) pitched 5 1-3 innings of three-hit relief, Jesse Orosco retired Rusty Greer in the eighth with the tying run on third and Randy Myers got three outs for his sixth save. Baltimore began its comeback by scoring three in the third. Devereaux singled in a run, Alomar hit a run-scoring groundout and Palmeiro hit a two-out RBI single.

Texas scored two runs in the fifth off Haynes when Greer tripled in a run and scored on a sacrifice fly by Mark Mclemore.

Baltimore closed to 7-6 in the bottom of the inning and chased starter Roger Pavlik. Devereaux led off with a solo homer and Surhoff hit a two-run double.

Gonzalez opened the scoring with his fifth homer, a two-run drive in the first off Kent Mercker. That gave him 25 RBIs, a Rangers record for April.

Surhoff let a ball go through his legs at third base in the third. Two batters later, center fielder Brady Anderson threw wildly to the plate. The two errors led to three uncarned runs and a 5-0 lead.

Notes: Gonzalez broke the RBI mark in April previously held by Julio Franco, who drove in 23 runs in 1989... Baltimore's Bobby Bonilla went 0-for-4, and his 7-for-54 slump has dropped his batting average .196... Pavlik is 3-0 with a 7.14 ERA; Mercker (2-1) allowed two earned runs in 2 1-3 innings to lower his ERA to 9.27.

White Sox 4, Angels 3

CHICAGO (AP) — Wilson Alvarez pitched seven strong innings and the Chicago White Sox, off to their best start in 14 years, beat the California Angels 4-3 Monday night for their seventh straight win.

Chicago is 15-9, its best since the '82 White Sox had the same record.

Alvarez (2-2) won his second straight game, allowing three runs and nine hits. Roberto Hernandez struck out the side in the ninth for his ninth save in 10 chances.

The damp and cold conditions following an all-day rain were worse than Friday, when the White Sox postponed the series opener, citing the threat of cold weather. The announced crowd was 12,949 but there were only a couple thousand in the stands braving a chilling mist and a 42-degree temperature.

Chicago broke a fifth-inning tie when Tony Phillips singled and later scored on Don Slaught's passed ball. Robin Ventura followed with an RBI double.

Ray Durham had an RBI single in the sixth as the White Sox chanced Jason Grimsley (1-1), who allowed four runs and eight hits in 5 2-3 innings with six walks and four strikeouts.

Randy Velarde hit a two-out, two-run triple off Darren Lewis' glove in center to bring the Angels within one in the seventh. Ozzie Guillen's RBI single put Chicago ahead in the second but Gary DiSarcina hit a run-scoring groundout in the bottom half. It could have been a big inning but Phillips picked up a single to left and threw out Red Hudler at third.

Notes: Although last Friday's game was postponed, it was sunny and in the 40s at what would have been game-time, prompting criticism of the team. The Bulls had their playoff opener the same night. The postponement will be made up as part of a June 24 doubleheader... White Sox pitcher James Baldwin, hit on his right forearm by a Jorge Fabregas line drive Sunday, said he was fine Monday... The Angels are in a spot they were never in last season — last place in the AL West... The winning streak is Chicago's longest since they won eight straight last Aug. 30 to Sept. 6... The White Sox announced that because of the bad weather, all unused tickets and ticket stubs would be good for another Monday night game this season other than Labor Day.

Hawks beat Pacers

By Paul Newberry
Associated Press

ATLANTA — Steve Smith scored 26 points, including a critical 3-pointer with 1:31 remaining, and the Atlanta Hawks took command of their Eastern Conference series with Indiana, beating the Pacers 90-83 Monday night.

Christian Laettner, appearing in his first NBA playoff series, added 24 points and Mookie Blaylock tied a playoff record with eight steals, including two in the closing seconds.

Atlanta, which now has a 2-1 edge in the best-of-5 series, is trying to advance to the second round for only the second time in eight years.

Atlanta went nearly four minutes without scoring until Laettner put the Hawks ahead for good, backing in against three defenders and putting in a shot that made it 81-80 with 3:06 remaining. Then, after Indiana missed two straight 3-pointers, Smith fired in a shot from at least 5 feet behind the stripe as the 24-second clock expired to push Atlanta's lead to 84-80.

Haywoode Workman hit a 3-pointer for Indiana with 57 seconds to go, but that was the last basket for the Pacers, who eliminated Atlanta from the playoffs the last two years and went on to reach the Eastern Conference finals both times.

Indiana had a chance to take the lead with 12 seconds left, but Mark Jackson missed a jumper.

After Smith made one of two free throws with 10.8 seconds remaining to put Atlanta up 85-83, Blaylock stole a pass from Indiana's Ricky Pierce and was fouled. Blaylock made two free throws for an 87-83 lead, then stole Indiana's inbounds pass and hit a 3-pointer at the buzzer for the final margin.

Pierce started in place of All-Star Reggie Miller, who underwent eye surgery before the playoffs. With Miller watching from the bench in a suit and sunglasses, the Pacers searched for a go-to shooter but never found him.

Position Available at the
Collegian
Circulation Manager
Needed
Make good money and get good experience

Auto Glass Center
American & Foreign
•Same Day Service
•Billed Directly To Insurance Company
•Windshields Replaced
North Amherst Motors
Collision Repair Center
78 Sunderland Road, North Amherst, MA
549-2880
(One Mile from UMass bus route)

Collegian Graphics
Some people were born to do great things... We just work here.

The Provost of the University of Massachusetts, Dr. Patricia Crosson, and the Phi Kappa Phi Chapter of this University are proud to announce the following new members invited from the Junior and Senior classes as well as the Graduate School and approved by the Chapter in accordance with the bylaws of the National Society.

Phi Kappa Phi was founded in 1897 at the University of Maine and was originally named The Morrill Society, in honor of the sponsor of the Congressional Act which provided for land-grant colleges and universities. In 1900 it was transformed into a national society by the Presidents of the University of Maine, the University of Tennessee, and Pennsylvania State University. The next chapter to join was the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, which remains the fourth-oldest chapter in the United States. The society was renamed Phi Kappa Phi in 1900, from the initial letters of the Greek words forming its adopted motto: Philosophia Drateito Photon, "Let the Love of Learning Rule Mankind."

To be eligible for membership, Juniors must have a GPA of 3.70 and Seniors a GPA of 3.80. Only two Graduate students per program are nominated by their Graduate Directors.

The Phi Kappa Phi Initiation Ceremony will be held in the University Rhododendron Garden, below the Chancellor's Residence, at 11:00 a.m. on Sunday, May 19, 1996. Initiates are invited to bring family members and friends. (In case of rain the ceremony will be held in Bartlett Auditorium.)

The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi

Graduates 1996

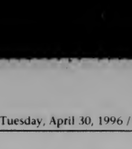
	Degree/Area
Laurie J. Anastasia	MS, HRTA
Carlos X. Ardavin	Ph.D., Spanish & Portuguese
Bethany K. Barnes	MS, HTRTA
Gretchen L. W. Bukowick	MA, Education
Stephanie Bullock	MS, Environmental Engineering
Jose B. Cibelli	Ph.D., Vet & Animal Science
Edgardo Eszter	Ph.D., Math & Statistics
Peter Richard Griffith	MA, Art History
Michael Hannahan	Ph.D., Political Science
Karl P. Hayes	MAT, Latin
Shandy Shea Kelsey	MS, Public Health
Erin E. Leahey	MA/Ph.D. Sociology
Kathleen LeBesco	Ph.D., Communication
Charles R. Long	Ph.D., Vet & Animal Science
Mark A. Mierswa	Ph.D., Communication
Peter F. Orio III	MS, Public Health/Environ Health Sci
Jill A. Roberts	MA/Ph.D., English
Stacy J. Rodenberger	MA, Art History
Mircea R. Stan	MS/Ph.D., ECE
Mercedes Valle	Ph.D., Spanish & Portuguese
Deborah E. Zacarian	Ed.D., School of Education
Jeanne Sheehan Zanio	Ph.D., Political Science

Seniors

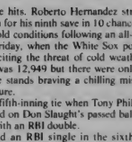
Sarah A. Adams	BA, English
Joshua D. Altwerger	BS, Biology
Amy Elizabeth Athey	BA, Journalism
Lisa Rose Becker	BA, Psychology
Daniel A. Blumenthal	BA, Theater & Political Science
Jonathan Chalfant	BA, BDIC
Chia-Yuan Chiang	BA, Management-Marketing
Marie T. Cohen	BS, Animal Science
Nancy B. Couper	BS, Plant & Soil Sci
Rebecca Ann Crasper	BBA, School of Management
Pamela L. Deryck	BA, Psychology
Michelle M. Dubois	BFA, Dance
Martha A. Duddy	BA, English
Catherine Anne Flynn	BA, Sociology
Gail P. Foster	BA, Human Res Mgmt
Mark E. Godfrey	BS, Engineering
Carrie R. Hildreth	BA, Psychology
Christine Ann Hirvonen	BS, Biochemistry
Lori Ann Hrdlicka	BS, Biology
Alison Emlen Hussey	BA, Psychology
Jody L. Lasky	BFA, Fine Arts-Photography
David William Kostecki	BFA, Fine Arts-Painting
John R. Lentz, Jr.	BS, UWW
Maria T. Lynch	BS, Animal Science
Andrew J. Marcantonio	BS, Exercise Science
Tanya Joan Martin	BS, Psychology
Amy Tena Nelson	BS, Chemical Engineering
Deirdre B. Palermino	BA, English
Erica J. Pellegrini	BA, Psychology
Jennifer Maris Raitt	BA, BDIC/Urban Studies
Eric D. Saber	BBA, Operations Management
Eunice Ann Schmidt	BBA, School of Management
David . Sellers, Jr.	BS, Management
Wei Shen	BS, Electrical Engineering
Gina Marie Vizzari	BA, German/Spanish
Patrick Theodore Wayman	BA, History
Rebekay H. Wetmore	BFA, Fine Arts
Jennifer A. Wiggins	BBA, Management
Joseph Wyman	BA, History & Philosophy
Serenna Zehnder	BS, HRTA

Juniors

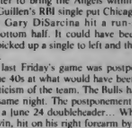
Beth A. Archibald	BA, Psychology
Edward W. Arsenault	BS, Chemistry
Norman E. Beique	BS, Sociology
Christine Elizabeth Burns	BA, Spanish
David F. Cachat	BA, Communications
Brian Richard Campbell	BS, Chemistry
Spencer Robert Chapman	BA, Political Science
Kristin E. Curro	BBA, Accounting
Jeffrey T. Emig	BBA, Finance
Keith P. Enright	BA, Poli Sci/Philosophy
Bryan J. Fede	BA, Anthropology
Yvonne M. Font	BS, Pre-Med
Jean Ann Foster	BA, Psych & Early Childhd Ed
Pamela J. Gauthier	BA, Sociology
JeriLynn Glaszcz	BS, Biology &Environ Sci
Emmie C. Green	BA, Psychology & Sociology
Joshua P. Grey	BA, History
Ian Price Hamby	BS, Vet & Animal Science
Christine G. Haskins	BA, Sociology
Lillian R. Horwitz	BS, Biology
Kendra Odelia Hutchins	BA, English
Trevor Curtis Johnson	BBA with honors, Economics
Karen Lee Lavernway	BA, French
Ha Van Le	BS, Computer Science
Andrew Leonard	BA, Landscape Architecture
Sandra S. liu	BA, English
Marguerite R. Lombardo	BA, Sociology
Tara Lynn Lozito	BA, Psychology/Education
Mr. Shawn R. Maillet	BS, Exercise Science
Elaine Mallary	BS, Forestry
Julie Josephine McCarthy	BA, Management/Psychology
Mark DeSaussure Mitchell	BA, Art History, DH
Jennifer Frances Plisko	BS, Exercise Science
Matt Quesenberry	BA, English
Rajeev K. Rohatgi	BA, UWW
Lisa M. Saski	BS, HRTA
Jodi Lea Schmidt	BFA, Art Education
Lars W. Schuster	BBA, Marketing
Louisa Ellen Shein	BA, BDIC/IH
Leslie Steiman	BS, Plant & Soil Sci/Nat'l Res/German
Sharon Ting Sing Dee	BA, Japanese Lang & Lit
Catherine A. Walencis	BA, Communication Disorders
Katherine A. Watras	BA, Legal Studies
Jared Seth Wiener	BBA, Operation Management



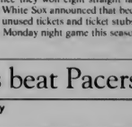
Hot, Hot, Hot!
Ma ravi-ah.



Birkenstock
Need we say more



It's Simple
The weather



Downtown Amherst

Changes loom for Boston Bruins, fall in playoffs again

By Howard Ulman
Associated Press

BOSTON — The Boston Bruins were counting on key players to burn up the ice in a successful season. But from start to finish, they fell short.

After Blaine Lacher, Kevin Stevens, Cam Neely and Al Iafrate dropped out of sight, remaining stars Ray Bourque, Bill Ranford and Adam Oates didn't get enough help from their teammates.

On the decisive play of their final game, Bourque and Ranford couldn't stop Bill Lindsay from scoring the winning goal in Saturday's 4-3 loss at Florida.

So for the third time in four years, Boston took a first-round exit from the NHL playoffs and, once again, talk turned to future changes. The Bruins hope those changes will work out better than this season's.

Lacher fell off sharply from a strong rookie season in goal and played only 12 games. Stevens was a flop in his first - and only - season with Boston. Neely played just 49 games before hip problems ended his season. Iafrate, hobbled for years by knee injuries, never played despite recurring hints he might be ready to shore up the defense.

General manager Harry Sinden said, apparently sarcastically, that management should have been aware of some of those pitfalls. "I'm not joking," he said. "We're supposed to know better. The problem is, we'll probably make the same mistakes. I've been making them for 25 years, who wouldn't bet I would make them next year?"

The Bruins last won the Stanley Cup in 1971-72. They have had 12 coaches since. The one constant has been Sinden, who became general manager before the 1972-73 season.

Last August, he obtained high-scoring Stevens from Pittsburgh, but Stevens managed only 10 goals in 41 games before being traded. In March 1994, Sinden obtained Iafrate from Washington. Iafrate played 12 games for Boston that season, but missed the last two with knee injuries.

Sinden did get something out of Stevens when he traded the wing for Rick Tocchet, who was one of Boston's top players in the second half of the season.

And when Lacher failed, Sinden made a deal for Ranford, who was probably the main reason Boston went 13-3-3 in its last 19 games and made the playoffs in the last week of the regular season. The Bruins may have underestimated the three-year-old Panthers as Boston never led in the first three games of the series.

"We have to add some more grit, some more guys that will go out there and play hard, game in and game out," said Bourque, still without a Stanley Cup championship after 17 seasons as one of the NHL's top defensemen.

Tocchet says personnel changes are needed.

"Look at Ray Bourque," he said. "He had to play about 35 minutes every night. Other guys have to help out."

The fact that too few did is obvious: Neely scored more goals for the Bruins than any other player and he missed nearly half the season.

Oates and Tocchet had good offensive seasons, but the Bruins didn't have enough consistent forwards. So they were constantly battling from behind in the playoffs.

They did overcome 2-0 and 3-2 deficits Saturday in Florida. But a hustling effort by Bourque failed as Lindsay, on a partial breakaway, barely eluded him and beat Ranford with 4:57 left in Boston's season.

"Ray Bourque led this team through tough times and good times," rookie coach Steve Kasper said. "He just played phenomenal."

And Ranford played with a weak right ankle that forced him to miss the second game of the series. He and Bourque just didn't get enough help.

The strong regular-season finish should help Kasper's chances of keeping his job. But there's no guarantee.

"We have to draft better. We have to get maybe better coaching," Sinden said. "We have to get better efforts out of some of our players and we have to make better decisions on who plays and who doesn't."

Sinden saw something positive in the season. After Lacher and Stevens didn't pan out, the team at least improved enough to reach the playoffs against the Panthers.

"We recovered from a miserable 35-40 games," he said, "but not good enough to beat this team."

The Worm fined $5,000

By Mike Nadel
Associated Press

DEERFIELD, Ill. — Once again, the Worm is turning into a playoff distraction.

Dennis Rodman, whose erratic behavior, selfishness and bickering with referees contributed to the San Antonio Spurs' postseason failure last year, was fined $5,000 by the NBA on Monday for making an obscene gesture at a referee in the Chicago Bulls' playoff game the night before.

Rodman was ejected from the 106-75 victory over the Miami Heat, and Bulls coach Phil Jackson is concerned about his moody, mercurial forward.

"Dennis and I had a little talk," Jackson said Monday. "I'm not comfortable with Dennis' mental standpoint. He felt like he was picked out and made an example of. It was a physical game, but Dennis carried it too far.

"We tried to tell him that after the whistle blows, contact stops. I think Dennis understands. How he's going to play is another statement."

The Bulls will try to complete a three-game sweep of their opening-round series Wednesday at Miami.

Rodman declined comment Monday. But on his television show the previous night, the "Worm" repeated what has been his standard line of defense all season: NBA referees are out to get him. Rodman was assessed his second technical foul - and the automatic ejection that goes with it - for slapping at the ball but hitting Miami's Alonzo Mourning with 3:01 left in the third quarter. The whistle had blown several seconds earlier because of a foul on Chicago's Ron Harper.

Rodman stormed off the court, took off his shirt to give to a fan (as is his custom) and crossed his arms in an obscene gesture toward referee Bill Oakes.

It was just the latest in a series of incidents involving Rodman, who tied for the NBA lead with 29 technical fouls this season and served a six-game suspension for head-butting a referee during a March 16 game.

Despite his problems, Rodman won his fifth consecutive rebounding title, averaging 14.9 a game, and helped the Bulls to an NBA-record 72 wins. He has been popular with the fans - partly for his colorful hair and tattoos, partly for his high-energy work ethic.

In two playoff games, however, Rodman hasn't helped the Bulls at all. He has three technicals and is averaging only 7.5 rebounds. And he hasn't started in the postseason because Jackson fears Rodman will be baited into confrontations.

San Antonio had the league's best record last year but lost to Houston in the playoffs. Rodman got much of the blame, causing distractions by missing practices, removing his shoes on the bench and refusing to join team huddles during timeouts.

Bryant enters NBA draft

By Wayne Wooley
Associated Press

ARDMORE, Pa. — Kobe Bryant, like Kevin Garnett last year, has decided to skip college and jump right to the NBA.

Bryant, a 6-foot-6 forward recognized as the national player of the year by several organizations, including USA Today and Parade magazine, announced Monday he will become the sixth high school player to enter the NBA draft.

"I know that I'll have to work extra hard and I know that it's a big step," he said at a news conference in the gym where he led Lower Merion High School to the state class AAAA championship. "I can do it."

Bryant, 17, is expected to be among the top 10 prospects in the June draft. Last year, Garnett went directly to the NBA from Farragut Academy in Chicago; he was picked fifth by the Minnesota Timberwolves. Garnett won a starting position midway through this season.

Other NBA players who did not play in college were Moses Malone, Shawn Kemp, Darryl Dawkins and Bill Willoughby. Bryant was the all-time leading scorer in southeastern Pennsylvania with 2,883 career points.

His senior year, Bryant averaged 31 points, 10 rebounds, five assists, five blocked shots and four steals a game to lead the Aces to a 31-3 record and 26 consecutive wins at the end of the season. In selecting the pros, Bryant decided against playing for La Salle, where his father, former Philadelphia 76er Joe Bryant, is an assistant basketball coach.

The Explorers, as well as national powers Kentucky, North Carolina, Arkansas, Duke, Michigan and Villanova, were among the college programs Bryant was considering.

"People say that I was under pressure. The real person who was under pressure was my father," Bryant said. "He was catching it from every angle."

LaSalle coach Speedy Morris told The Philadelphia Daily News in a story published Monday he first heard about the scheduled news conference on the radio Sunday night, and was "disappointed" with the way Bryant's father handled the situation.

"I wish Kobe well, but Joe owes us an explanation," Morris said. "La Salle has been good to Joe. More than good. It is America, so he can do what he wants. But he works for us." Morris did not immediately return a telephone call from the AP. The elder Bryant said he disagreed with Morris' claim that the family did not keep him informed.

"He's disappointed. This is a tough situation," Joe Bryant said, adding that he had not decided if he'll continue coaching at LaSalle.

SHANE KEENAN / COLLEGIAN

Atlantic 10 Tourney Hosts

UMass will host the A-10 Softball Championships this weekend at Totman Field.

Puffton Village – Your First Choice
1, 2 and 3 bedroom apartments.

Featuring:
Newly renovated units that include:
• New appliances
• New Carpeting
• New kitchen cabinets & counter tops
• Central air conditioners
Rents starting at $590 per month

or

Traditional units that are:
• Fully applianced
• Freshly painted
• Carpeted/Tiled Floors
• Central Air conditioned
Rents starting at $525 per month

All rents include Heat, Hot Water & Cooking Gas and use of an olympic size pool, 5 tennis courts, basketball court, laundry rooms and on-site parking.

Now accepting rental applications for summer and fall. Call today 549-0145

Puffton Village Apartments • 1040 North Pleasant St., Amherst, Mass

TRAVEL SMART! FROM NEW YORK
One Way / Roundtrip
LONDON $175 $339
PARIS $224 $427
SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA $235 $446
Roundtrip
TOKYO $851
Scheduled flights. Fares to worldwide destinations. Eurailpasses Available. Weekend surcharges may apply. Customs-immigration taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice. INT'L student I.D. cards may be required.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave NY, NY 10173
212-986-8420*
800-272-9676
*In NYC

U-SAVE AUTO & TRUCK RENTAL
North Amherst Motors
78 Old Sunderland Rd., North Amherst, MA
549-RENT (549-7368)
• Cars • Mini Vans • Trucks • Cargo Vans
• Low Daily/Weekly/Weekend Rates
• We Rent to All Qualified Drivers 21 years or Older
• Direct Billing To Insurance Companies

IF
If you would like the use of a new car.
If you believe in honesty and integrity.
If you are hardworking and ambitious.
If you want security and opportunity.
HURRY!!
Come to Toyota/Lincoln Mercury of Northampton Monday thru Friday from 10-4 p.m. without obligation and inquire regarding this very interesting sales position. Anyone may apply. No experience necessary. See Mr. Richard or Mr. Raff for application and interview.
OUR LOT IS OPEN FOR BROWSING SUNDAYS 10AM-5PM
NORTHAMPTON TOYOTA LINCOLN MERCURY
280 King St, (Rte. 5) Northampton
E.O.E.

Strawberry Chocolate Judie's Popovers
at the taste and side... dales of Amherst $2.50
Starting Thursday May 2nd 8-9
Friday 11-9
Saturday 11-9
Sunday 12-5
on the commons
51 N. Pleasant Street • Amherst • 253-3491

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE
Now Thru Thurs. only/Separate Ticks.
Daily 7:00: "A STUNNING WORK OF SPECULATIVE FICTION" JAMES CAMERON — GHOST IN THE SHELL — IT FOUND A VOICE... AN IT NEEDS A BODY
Daily 9:00: "THERE WON'T BE A BETTER FILM THAN THIS ALL YEAR!" "TWO THUMBS UP, WAY UP!" ★★★★ A DAZZLING MIX OF MIRTH AND MALICE. A TERRIFIC TWISTED COMEDY — FARGO — From the team that gave you Blood Simple and Raising Arizona
ACADEMY of MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Cinema Treats 584-8435

Lincoln Real Estate
Has the best selection of 1, 2, & 3 bedroom Apartments In The Center Of Town
with gas heat
Gilreath Manor Condos
on Hobart Lane
• 3 Bedroom
• 1 1/2 Baths
• Heated Basement
• New Gas Heat & Hot water
• 1/2 mile to campus
• On Bus Route
Showings Start in April
for June or September Occupancy!
Lincoln Real Estate • 25 N. Pleasant St. • 253-7879

■ softball

continued from page 12

son is freshman shortstop Ashlie Hayes. Hayes is one of the most dangerous hitters in the UMass lineup (.299–2–24), but at times she has been the most dangerous fielder in the UMass infield. Not that the Minutewomen (33-11-1) have suffered greatly from any of her 32 miscues, but an E–6 in the A-10 tournament could prove to be critical.

But, neither Hayes nor her teammates/coaches are losing confidence.

"She's as fine of a shortstop as you can ask for; she's a great young player," Sortino said.

"Right after I make an error, [my teammates] tell me 'It's going to be okay'," Hayes said. "They just tell me to shake it off, and it helps to have that support."

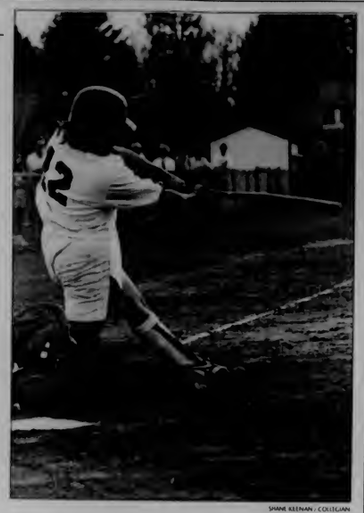
What will also help Hayes is some confidence at the plate to take with her on the field.

"She has had so many opportunities to hang her head, but she's played through it," Sortino said.

It appears that she is getting that confidence back as she almost single-handedly beat St. Bonaventure and Dayton last weekend.

Hayes went 6-for-10 with three RBI and two runs scored in the two UMass victories over the weekend playing flawless defense, preparing herself for the stretch run. Her performance raised her average from .260 to .299 after it had fallen steadily for three weeks.

"It's the perfect time for me to step it up. I've been practicing so hard lately," Hayes said.



SHANE KEENAN / COLLEGIAN

Outfielder Sam Cardenas and the Minutewomen travel to Boston College to face the Eagles.

■ water polo

continued from page 12

goals of the weekend netting three against Villanova. Other scorers included Hickey (2), junior Mirca Martinez-Cruz (1), Saunders (1), and sophomore Laura Zambersky (1). Griffith came close to tying her own saves record for the second time this weekend as she recorded eight.

In Saturday's finale UMass continued to dominate the game especially on offense as it pounded the host team, Princeton, 14-0.

The team recorded its second shutout of the season while Griffith set a new school record with 12 saves. O'Connor scored for the fourth straight game, this time leading the team with five goals.

The Minutewomen had their best offensive output in the fourth quarter as they tallied seven goals. Bamond and Leeburg also had three goals each.

The final game of the weekend and the season for Massachusetts came on Sunday as it faced Harvard for the third time this season.

UMass played another close one against the Crimson but could not pull through with the victory as they lost 6-5. Griffith closed her UMass career with another record-breaking performance recording 10 saves. O'Connor scored for the fifth straight game, this time scoring one goal. Hickey also scored two goals.

The Minutewomen finish the season with an overall record of 16-8, and 9-2 in the EWPA.

Ever Think of writing for Sports?
Stop by the Collegian Office at 113 Campus Center

■ NHL

continued from page 12

Wregget and Petr Nedved (both discarded by other franchises, Nedved most recently by the Blueshirts) is rolling with Lemieux's punches.

No one's happier than Nedved for Sakic's heroics. With the Canucks eliminated, Nedved doesn't have to worry about returning to the scene of his sex crimes. Apparently Nedved's inconsistent play on the ice has been mirrored by his waffling judgement off it. There's a warrant for his arrest in British Columbia on a rape charge, but I get this feeling the feel-goods of television will be replaying his game winner in the quadruple-OT marathon a little more often than any commentary on Nedved's philandering. Sounds a little like another sport, baseball, in which Albert Belle gets away with similar garbage. Congratulations NHL, you're getting closer to the mainstream.

• They don't make much to start with, but the trainers of Florida and Philadelphia will really earn their salaries as these two heavyweights get in the rink. You might think their comparable physical prowess will cancel each other out, but the Panthers will be locked on to Eric Lindros while the Sons of the Broad Street Bullies won't target anyone in particular since the Panthers are something of an headless tribe. John Vanbiesbrouck is good enough to push this thing the distance, but Philly didn't finish first for nothing and will demonstrate that if a Game 7 is needed.

• Wasn't it just a few weeks ago we were bubbling over with excitement about the scene in Boston sports? UMass basketball suffered its third loss of the season (Marcus Camby), the Red Sox are the worst team in baseball, and the Bruins are done. I never thought sports would become like the weather around here; if you don't like it, wait a minute and it will change. The Minutemen's future remains bright and the Red Sox have 137 games to get it right, but it only took five for the Bruins to remind us they had it all wrong.

Integral to playoff success is developing a strategy for your opponent, since you're going to be playing them again and again between four and seven times. The Bruins had no such strategy. They were chaotic, hasty, intimidated, clumsy, fearful, fatigued and phony, while the Panthers were controlled, patient, aggressive, adept, fearless, enduring and genuine. 'Nuff said. See you next year, hopefully with a draft pick who can play now, some real defensemen and a scorer to replace Cam Neely. Otherwise, look for empty seats to start cropping up in the regular season.

• Mike Keenan faces his toughest challenge as a coach in trying to formulate a plan to stop the Red Wings. It has to start with defense, perhaps involving a trap-like mechanism to slow the whip-quick Winged Wheels. And then, of course, there's Wayne Gretzky. It turned out that he and Brett Hull made a very nice pair, one which will have to continue producing if an upset is to be the final product.

The shocking story is that of Jon Casey, who couldn't hold down the job in Boston he held two years ago but is now starring in place of Grant Fuhr. Casey will be much busier against Detroit than Toronto, but that run in '91 again comes to mind. Does anyone remember John Druce?

• Personally, I will be gripped by the confrontation of the Blackhawks and the Avalanche. Each night the ice will be littered with special players — Jeremy Roenick, Patrick Roy, Chris Chelios, Peter Forsberg, Ed Belfour and Sakic. Not to mention Gary Suter, Valeri Kamensky, Eric Daze and reigning playoff MVP Claude Lemieux. These franchises have never faced off in the post season, and there are a myriad of possibilities for a series story line.

Roenick and Sakic have been brilliant leaders, Roy and Belfour have had great moments, but it's the role players who should tip the balance for Chicago. Guys like Joe Murphy and Keith Carney learned just a little more from last year's loss to Detroit in the conference finals than Colorado did when, as Quebec, if fell to the Rangers in round one. The Blackhawks managed the only sweep of this year's opening round, and the layoff should serve them well. I just wonder if some fans will turn out at the United Center for something other than a Bulls game.

Ted Kottler is a Collegian columnist.

■ Flemming

continued from page 12

But the interesting aspect of the entire situation is that Camby left his options open about changing his mind and returning to UMass. He said that he's not going to sign with an agent until after the draft, so he still has the option of returning. But as Calipari said, the chances of Camby returning are "one in a million."

Camby probably had his mind made up after the Minutemen had made it to the Final Four, as after UMass' season-ending loss to Kentucky in the semi-finals, a teary-eyed Camby took his jersey off as he left the court, perhaps symbolizing that it was his last game in a Minuteman uniform.

At the start of yesterday's conference, Camby hinted at putting on a different collegiate jersey next year.

"I've decided to transfer to UConn," joked the Hartford native.

Could you imagine that?

Candice Flemming is a Collegian columnist.

■ women's lax

continued from page 12

that seemed to be working, there were some positive results.

After giving up 10 extremely quick goals, UMass seemed to settle down.

There was even a stretch where the Minutewomen scored three unanswered goals, to cut into the lead. By the close of the first half, UMass had outscored Dartmouth 7–5 after the initial barrage.

Another bright spot for UMass was the continued offensive output of juniors Michelle Warrington, and Stephanie Walsh. Each netted two goals to spark UMass runs.

Sophomore Jen Bowen also scored a goal of her own, continuing her goal scoring streak.

"Aside from the 10-goal lead, we did some nice things. We were able to fight back by showing some aggressiveness on offense," McClellan said. "Basically, when we played, we did play well. We just need to have a more consistent effort."

SOME THINGS ARE MEANT TO BE CLOSED
YOUR MIND ISN'T ONE OF THEM.
For decades, MDA has shown how valuable people with disabilities are to society. We believe talent, ability and desire are more important than strength of a person's muscles. The one barrier those people can't overcome is a closed mind. Keep yours open.
1-800-572-1717 MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY ASSOCIATION

Write for Arts Living, hey it's a living.

"AT&T Wants to pay my airfare?"
YEAH, RIGHT!"
Announcing the AT&T "Ultimate ROAD TRIP" Sweepstakes.
Studying abroad this Fall? AT&T would like to help pay your way.
10 GRAND PRIZE WINNERS — Round-Trip Air Transportation from the U.S. to the country where you will study.
Plus thousands of other chances to win...
• Leather-bound passport folders
• High-quality currency converters
To enter, call
1 800 789-9947
Or see your Study Abroad Counselor for more details.
AT&T
No purchase necessary. Void where prohibited. Sweepstakes ends 5/31/96. Open to citizens of the U.S., 18 years or older, attending school abroad [illegible] semester through participating schools. See your Study Abroad Counselor for official rules and entry form.
© 1996 AT&T

"Absolutely fantastic!"
That's how one student describes her professors at UMass Boston. "Just wonderful!" says another. In fact, over 90% of the recent graduates we surveyed are satisfied with their experience here and would recommend us to family and friends.
What's more, three quarters are working full-time and a quarter are in graduate school. They also report satisfaction with their jobs, their preparation for graduate study, and the cost of their education. No wonder they appreciate the quality, convenience, and affordability they found at UMass Boston!
To apply for fall '96 call now!
617 287-3955
UMass Boston

Collegian Classifieds

113 Campus Center • University of Massachusetts • Phone: (413)545-3500 Fax: (413)545-1592

Personals Policy

1. All personals MUST be proofread by Collegian classified employees before payment and acceptance of the classified.
2. Last names MAY NOT be used in personals. ONLY first names and initials are allowed. The only exceptions are for birthday or congratulations personals, in which case the full name may be used.
3. Phone numbers are not allowed in personals. NO EXCEPTIONS
4. Addresses are not allowed in personals. this means dorm room numbers as well.
5. Personals of a threatening or derogatory nature are not acceptable. Personals of a vindictive or libelous nature are not acceptable. Personals may not be used for the purpose of harassment.
6. Profanity may not be used in personals.
7. The personals section is for personals only. The personals section may NOT be used to sell items, seek roommates, advertise meetings, etc. All personals must have the name, signature, and UMass I.D. number of the student placing the as filled in on the insertion order. Non-students must provide a valid driver's license and the license number must be recorded on the insertion order. Use of false identification or misrepresentation is subject to penalties under the law.
9. The Collegian reserves the right to refuse or to edit any personal that does not meet the Collegian's standards in accordance with the statutes of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Rates

$2.00 minimum/day

Students

20¢ per word/day

All others

40¢ per word/day

NO REFUNDS

Please write clearly and legibly. We are not responsible for errors resulting from illegible handwriting or type.

Standard Headings

- Activities
- Announcements
- Apartment For Rent
- Auto For Sale
- Employment
- Entertainment
- For Sale
- Found (2 days Free)
- Happy Birthday
- Houses For Rent
- Instruction
- Lost
- Musicians
- Miscellaneous
- Motorcycles
- Personals
- Room For Rent
- Room Wanted
- Roommate Wanted
- Services
- Summer Sublet
- To Sublet
- Travel
- Transportation
- Wanted to Rent
- Wanted

ANNOUNCEMENTS

ALL UNIVERSITY WOMEN Chi Omega ... to attend our Open ... Mixer from 5:30-7:30! ... what we're all about. For ... please call Heather at ...

SPRING CONCERT THE SHEVA MUSIT ... (ISRAEL) WITHOUT YOU! ... in preparation for yesterday, hospital ... come to our meet ... Campus ... Sunday at 5 in the Campus ... Office

RUSH IGU
All University Women are invited to ... Rush Week from April 25, 26, 28 and ... Invitations to rides call 549-...

APARTMENT FOR RENT

Mill Valley Large 2 Bedrooms 2 full ... living room. Hot water & ... air conditioners dish ... Minutes to UMass 253-3189

WE WILL PAY YOU $100 to live in the ... Rent $415/mo plus $625 ... Call Domago 546-7867

Take Our Lease 6/1 Two bedroom 2 ... Rent $700/month heat H/W water inc ... Call 549-1375

4 Bedroom Apartment June 1st. In ... Bus Route Incl. ... 1602 for more ...

4 bedroom apartment, sunny, walk to ... $1,180 includes heat ...

1 bedroom/efficiency apartments, ... $475 or $475 ... Call 549-...

Apt For Rent Water included ... some ... some of my furniture ...

PLEASE Take Our Lease 6/1 One ... $540/month includes ... call 665-7983

Are You Interested? Furnished 2BR ... Amherst. Short w option to lease ... AC, Pool. Call ...

Take over our lease option to renew ... Village. New fridge ... $760/mo. heat, H/W ... 549-1375

Take Over Lease begins June 1st ... 2BR ... $745/month includes heat ... No move in/o call 549-...

Spacious two bedroom apartment for ... Rent is $700/month ... Call 549-7549

3 Bedroom Pulpit rent June 1 $825 ... Amherst. Call 549-8614

Best Selection of 1, 2, and 3 bedroom ... Prime location in town. Gas ... Lincoln Real ...

Apartments available for June and ... September rentals 1001 Call ... Lincoln REALTY ...

Three bedroom condominiums, with ... and hardwood floors. Lincoln ...

AUTO FOR SALE

1988 Ford Escort ... Runs ... $875 ... Call Domago 546-...

86 Jetta GL ... Coupe $2800 OBO ...

AUTO FOR SALE

74 Orange VW Beetle Rebuilt body/runs well. 1600 trim. 253-3780 Ben

EMPLOYMENT

TRIP & GROUP LEADERS Qualified person with experience needed for coed Summer Camp in Adirondack Mts. of NY 1-888-ITS-FUNN

LACROSSE, BASEBALL AND GOLF INSTRUCTORS Coed Summer Camp in Adirondack Mts. of NY 1-888-ITS-FUNN

CERAMICS COUNSELOR Qualified person with experience needed for coed Summer Camp in Adirondack Mts 1-888-ITS-FUNN

WATERSKI OR SAILING INSTRUCTORS Coed Camp in Adirondack Mts. of NY 1-888-ITS-FUNN

MANAGER'S ASSISTANT. Seeking Manager's Assistant/Admin. Assistant. Should possess strong communication, multi-tasking and organizational skills. Prior office experience, attention to detail and familiarity with Windows are necessary. Please send resume to Microcal Software, Re: Manager's Asst., One Roundhouse Plaza, Northampton, MA 01060. No Phone Calls Please.

$40,000/yr income potential Home typists/PC users toll free 800-898-9778 Ext. T-1722 for listings

Full Time/Part Time Tupperware. The most fun you'll have making serious money!! Call Danielle at 256-8883 or Wendy at 584-5201

Be an Environmental Activist this Summer! Earn $300-$350 a week campaigning for strong antipollution laws and environmental candidates. Learn organizing and election skills, work with great people, sleep little every day. CLEAN WATER ACTION 584-9830 EOE

Campus Representative for Skip Barber Racing School. Call Carl 800-854-5000

Now Hiring. Are you staying around Amherst for the summer? If so, TASP Inc is seeking part-time afternoon & evening telemarketers. Hours available Sun-Thurs 2-5pm & 6-9pm. Earn $6.58/hr plus bonuses. Enjoy the Summer while earning cash. Call Ms. Miranda 800-829-4777

5 Cruise Ships Hiring! Students needed! $$$ & Free Travel! «Carribean, Europe, Hawaii» Seasonal/Permanent. No Exper. Necessary. GDE 919-929-4398 ext. C1340

Make $3-5,000 this summer. Paint exterior of homes with college students. Wellesley, Natick, Weston area. Please page Ed Potts at 617-656-9931.

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT

Looking for a low energetic people to help run our office. Must have good phone skills. Full Time when school ends. Great resume material $7-7.50/HR call 1-800-501-5043 Natick Area.

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT

Truck drivers wanted for summer work. Approx 11 days in mid-June & additional 11 days in mid-August. Work 1 or both sessions. Must drive standard and have experience with 18 or larger truck $105-115/day call 1-800-501-5043

Summer Painting Jobs College Pro Painters up to $9/hr In Amherst/Northampton. Make $$ in the sun!! Call Kerry 546-7423 or Charlie 549-3957

EMPLOYMENT

National Parks Hiring Positions are now available at National Parks, Forests & Wildlife Preserves. Excellent benefits & bonuses! Call 1-206-971-3620 ext. N50014

Summer Painters hiring for Boston and Hartford. Will train completely. Earn $6-$10/hr. Call N.E. Collegiate Painters at 800-569-9979

Tropical Resorts Hiring Students needed! Entry-level career positions available worldwide. Call Resort Employment Services (708)971-3600 ext P50011

International Employment- Earn up to $25-$45/hour teaching basic conversational English in Japan, Taiwan or S. Korea. No teaching background or Asian languages required. For info call: (708) 971-3570 ext. J50014

Attention All Students! Over $6 Billion in public and private sector grants & scholarships is now available. All students are eligible. Let us help. For more info call 1-800-263-6495 ext F50013

FOR RENT

Room For Rent-Summer (Fall option) Private home, kitchen privileges (Kosher) vegetarian, laundry, parking, furnished $300 negotiable 549-4853

3 Bedroom Pulpit June 1. 549-5696.

SPACIOUS 4-5 BDR house. 2 full baths. Good condition. Big yard. Pelham Rd. Starts June 1st. 256-4978

Main St. Apart. 1 Bdrm and two person loft. $750 inc. heat. Take over lease June 1st. Call 253-1581

1 Bdrm Apt Available 6/1 to take over lease. Hot Water incl. On bus line call 253-1689.

FOR SALE

Stairmaster for your home. $75 OBO. Good Condition. Leave message 549-6942.

MAC Multimedia CD ROM Kit. Double speed. CD ROM sound speakers. Software. Almost new. Call 585-8586.

Sega Genesis - 10 Games including NBA Jame, TE, MK2, NFL '95 + 1 ex but not controller. $275.b.o. 256-1982.

Sega Saturn for sale. Includes one core system, 2 controllers, Virtue Fighter, Virtue Cop, NHL All Star Hockey, Pebble Beach Golf, Panzer Dragon, and Myst. If interested call Dave with best offer at 549-9975.

"House Sale" Everything must go! Call Christina 253-1569. Couches, rugs, tables, desk etc.

Mountain Bike for sale Mongoose threshold. Shimano parts. Fork system 2 with gel seat only 1 yr old $200 or B/O. Megan 549-4798.

P100 32-mega RAM 17-inch digital monitor. 2Bx modem. 850m hard drive loaded with software. $1400/BO. Call Fred 549-8983.

HOUSE FOR RENT

Hadley, MA. Stockbridge, MA. 6 Bedroom - Of Heat. Call 549-4275.

LOST

Pair of Sunglasses. Brown tortoise shell frames, dark lenses, prescription. $50 reward. NGA. Call 6-2328.

LOST - GOLD BRACELET. If found please call Jessica at 586-5909. Reward.

ROOM FOR RENT

One Bdrm in 2 Bdrm fully furnished apt. in house. Nice, clean, close to campus & bus. Great yard & parking. $300/month + 1/2 utilities. Available now. 253-2533.

ROOM WANTED

Female seeking room starting September. $250 max. Call Joanna 549-7044.

ROOMMATE WANTED

CAPE COD ROOMMATES WANTED West Yarmouth House. Close to Beaches. Male or Female. Call MICHELLE 549-6699.

Female Student Wanted to share a room in 2 BR apartment. Rent includes heat. For info call Danielle 546-0430.

African American Grad Student looking for other Brothas and Sistas interested in sharing a house for the Summer and next year. Call 549-5579. Need at least 3 people.

2 Roommates wanted for summer, maybe longer. house behind visitor's center call Diane 546-9134.

SERVICES

Pregnant? Need Help? Call Birthright of Amherst Area for free testing and caring assistance. 549-1906.

SPECIAL

SICK OF THE DORMS?
University approved off campus housing available for all University women including freshmen and sophomores. Close to campus, free laundry, cable. Optional meal plan. For more info call 549-7845.

SUMMER SUBLET

2 woman needed to share room in 3bdr apt. Great place, price, location 549-4827.

WALK TO CAMPUS 1-3 Huge single rooms in a large house. $285. Call Sharon 549-0768.

Sublet For Summer Close to Campus. Phillips St. Scott 546-2516.

1 Bdr/2Bdr. 6/1 w/ full option. AC/Dishwasher. Hot Water/Heat incl. and Pool. On Bus Route. $308/Mo. Call 665-3099.

2 Bdrm Apt. Available 6/1. Boulders Apts. On bus route. Call 256-0176.

2 bedroom apartment furnished, spacious. On bus route. Heat/hot water included. Call 256-8829.

Summer Sublet with Fall Option. 2Bdr Brandywine Apt. A/C. Pool close to campus. Call 549-5382.

2 Bedroom Apt Brandywine. Very cheap. On bus route, heat and hot water inc. Call 549-6117.

3 Bedroom townhouse. On bus route near campus. Price negotiable. Call 546-3334.

Brandywine 2 bedroom 2 busroutes, option to lease, partly furnished. June 1 549-7325. CLEAN!!

One large furnished room with double bed in Puffton. Greg at 549-8969.

CRESTVIEW APT 1 furnished room in 2 bedroom apt. 5 minute walk to campus. $350/month negotiable. Call 549-7699.

Amherst - Live w/Graduate Students. Cheap! $226/month includes heat & cable! 1 BR/3BR apartment. Call Gabe at 253-0211.

Female Wanted to share bedroom w/other female starting June 1. 168/month. 7/1-9/1 room to yourself. 256-6109 Jason.

$150 Reward! 2 Bdrm Apt. Free AC/Hot Water. Pool. Available June 1st. Call 549-8552.

Brandywine Apts. 2 Bedrooms take over our lease with Fall option. Call 549-5747.

Boulders summer sublet two bedrooms furnished on bus line eval. June 1st call 253-7682.

1 Room in 2 bedroom Apt. Avail 6/1 with possible fall option. $275/mo. On bus line. 10 minutes to UMass. Call 665-0092.

2 Bedroom Apt in Brandywine. Available 6/1. Price negotiable. Call 549-8057.

One room Pulfton apt. for Summer sublet. Call Fred 549-8969.

TO SUBLET

Looking for someone to sublet single room for the Summer. I have a cat and dog. Call Becky at 549-6298.

2 Bdrm Apt. on High Street avail 6/1 w/full option. Heat included. Call 256-1895.

TRAVEL

EUROPE $169 O/W
CAREME'S $169 R/T
If you can beat these prices start your own airline.
Air Tech LTD 413-567-0001

Come Join In The Adventure!! Come White Water Rafting with UMSC & UMCC! May 31. June 2. Only $198! Call us 5-3437.

WANTED

2 Girls Going Abroad Fall semester. Looking for someone who will only need Fall housing and will split lease. Call Selen 253-0357 or Nikky 253-7110.

SUMMER SUBLET

2 Bedroom near Puffer's Pond. Very quiet & well maintained! Option to lease. Call 549-0686.

2 Bedroom Apt. on Southpoint. June 1-Aug 31 with Fall option. Heat/Hot water included. Call 256-8829.

Summer Sublet with Fall Option. 2Bdr Brandywine Apt. A/C. Pool close to campus. Call 549-5382.

2 Bedroom Apt Brandywine. Very cheap. On bus route, heat and hot water inc. Call 549-6117.

3 Bedroom townhouse. On bus route near campus. Price negotiable. Call 546-3334.

Brandywine 2 bedroom 2 busroutes, option to lease, partly furnished. June 1 549-7325. CLEAN!!

One large furnished room with double bed in Puffton. Greg at 549-8969.

CRESTVIEW APT 1 furnished room in 2 bedroom apt. 5 minute walk to campus. $350/month negotiable. Call 549-7699.

Amherst - Live w/Graduate Students. Cheap! $226/month includes heat & cable! 1 BR/3BR apartment. Call Gabe at 253-0211.

Female Wanted to share bedroom w/other female starting June 1. 168/month. 7/1-9/1 room to yourself. 256-6109 Jason.

$150 Reward! 2 Bdrm Apt. Free AC/Hot Water. Pool. Available June 1st. Call 549-8552.

Brandywine Apts. 2 Bedrooms take over our lease with Fall option. Call 549-5747.

Boulders summer sublet two bedrooms furnished on bus line eval. June 1st call 253-7682.

1 Room in 2 bedroom Apt. Avail 6/1 with possible fall option. $275/mo. On bus line. 10 minutes to UMass. Call 665-0092.

2 Bedroom Apt in Brandywine. Available 6/1. Price negotiable. Call 549-8057.

One room Pulfton apt. for Summer sublet. Call Fred 549-8969.

TO SUBLET

Looking for someone to sublet single room for the Summer. I have a cat and dog. Call Becky at 549-6298.

2 Bdrm Apt. on High Street avail 6/1 w/full option. Heat included. Call 256-1895.

TRAVEL

EUROPE $169 O/W
CAREME'S $169 R/T
If you can beat these prices start your own airline.
Air Tech LTD 413-567-0001

Come Join In The Adventure!! Come White Water Rafting with UMSC & UMCC! May 31. June 2. Only $198! Call us 5-3437.

WANTED

SABBATICAL HOUSING EXCHANGE
Sabbatical Housing Exchange in Santa Fe, NM! Physicians family w-5-BdRm "Adobe". All amenities. Exchanged home needs to be in Amherst School District. Call Collect (505) 984-0388. Starting 8.96 to 1.97.

Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Give us a break, we're trying!!

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Elephant of children's fiction
6 Automotive pioneer
10 Diplomacy
14 "All —," by the telephone
15 Half a blink
16 Brigham Young's destination
17 Blah 24 hours
19 Slack
20 Nosh
21 Respónsibility
22 Mickey's creator
24 Point in a procedure
25 Salsa specification
26 Turns into
29 Exposed
33 Mountain lakes
34 Go out with
35 New Haven campus
36 Formerly employed
37 Customer
38 — power
39 "I — man who wasn't there"
40 Pitcher
41 Dogma
42 Toddler enclosures
44 Poland's Lech
45 Verbal groaners
46 Affectionate
47 Paris' mother
50 Slam
51 — out a living
54 Panache
55 Pre-lib Administrative Assistant
58 Potpourri wd
59 Mrs. Ernie Kovacs
60 Combine
61 Hiking trail
62 Communicates
63 Wed

DOWN
1 Slugger Ruth
2 Italian menu word
3 Boxing match
4 Purchase from Vanna
5 TV controls
6 Confess
7 Pot covers
8 Genetic blueprint Abbr
9 Aeronautical daredevil
10 Dudley Moore's ex-wife
11 — impasse
12 Work for Perry Mason
13 Group's pronoun
18 Singles
23 — de France
24 George Foreman weapon
25 Measuring device
26 Hit the campaign trail
27 Artist's stand
28 Garbo
29 Gardening implements
30 "Mule Train" singer
31 Mademoiselles
32 Burke of "Designing Women"
34 Emerges
37 Adolescent
41 Sixt
43 Dublin watering hole
44 Newsman Blitzer
46 Arranges alphabetically
47 Rope source
48 Author Kazan
49 "Playbill" listing
50 Journey
51 Correct copy
52 Hepburn or Jackson
53 Ogled
56 Actress Lupino
57 Once — blue moon

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

S	T	L	O		S	A	P		M	A	M	E
L	E	M	A	R		E	L	I		A	G	A	V	E
S	P	E	C	T	A	C	L	E		T	O	N	E	S
O	A	R		S	T	U	B		P	A	R	E	N	T
S	L	A	M		A	R	E	C	A		A	S	S	E
			I	O	N		E	R	E
M	A	N	T	U	A		F	O	R	C	I	B	L	E
A	M	I	A	B	L	E		C	U	T	L	A	S	S
H	A	N	N	I	B	A	L		P	A	I	N	T	S
			A	E	R	I	E		D	A	D
T	H	A	T		S	I	N	E		D	O	M	O
R	A	R	E	S	T		S	H	A	W	L	E	W
A	L	I	N	E		C	A	R	N	E	L	I	A	N
P	O	S	S	E		U	N	O		E	E	R	S
	P	E	E	R		E	O	N		L	A	R	A

3/20/96

By Norma Steinberg
© 1996 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INSERTION ORDER

Client: Date: Taken By:

Date(s) to run: Headline:

Total Days: X Words: = X rate = Payment

Special heading ($2.50 extra): Authorized signature:

ADVERTISING COPY

1		1
2		2
3		3
4		4
5		5
6		6
7		7
8		8
9		9
10		10

Insert one character, space, or punctuation mark per box • use capital letters where they apply • Cost figured on each line of form used - see rate card

Your Daily Horoscope

ARIES (March 21 – April 19) — Your mind needs a fresh challenge. Research projects are favored. Consult a nutritionist regarding dietary changes. You need to tread lightly when around sensitive people.

TAURUS (April 20 – May 20) — Lucky breaks come through family or friends. A fresh start gets you off on the right foot. Your actions and words touch others deeply. A comprehensive strategy begins to pay off in the marketplace.

GEMINI (May 21 – June 20) — You have the energy to scale the highest mountain. Co-workers may try your patience. Curb your temper! Passion plays a big role in your secret fantasies.

CANCER (June 21 – July 22) — Refuse to let an associate's ineptitude slow you down. Concentrate on projects you can complete on your own. A careful examination of your options convinces you to get more education or acquire new technical skills.

LEO (July 23 – Aug. 22) — New gains accrue from past endeavors. A rush job may force you to work overtime. An all-out effort will produce a breakthrough. Reopen the channels of communication with your business associates.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 – Sept. 22) — Tactful words will help smooth ruffled feathers. Research, including long-distance inquiries, help you polish a plan. The financial news is promising.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 – Oct. 22) — Seek the high ground in your dealing with others. Self-reliance is favored; postpone asking higher-ups for advice. Talking candidly about your goals could draw you and family members closer together.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 – Nov. 21) — Avoid getting into a financial argument — you will end up exhausted! Potential tax problems can be averted if you keep receipts and detailed records.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 – Dec. 21) — Guard against putting your foot in your mouth. Verbal slip-ups could cost you. Devote more time to writing projects that will reveal your brilliance of thought.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 – Jan. 19) — Being too direct could land you in hot water. Take a roundabout way of getting the job done. Seeking a second marketing or investment opinion could help you double your income.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 – Feb. 18) — Feel free to diversify and experiment; an assignment is completed following delays. A former employer is again at your side. A romance with an older person is possible.

PISCES (Feb. 19 – March 20) — Defer to a loved one's wishes. Stay on top of your work while keeping a partner's feelings in mind. You handle a situation much better than expected.

Kippil By Barry Deutsch

DO YOU HAVE A PLACE TO STAY?
I CAN CRASH WITH MY FRIEND BUZZ. $5/wk.
WHAT'S WRONG WITH YOUR FRIEND BUZZ?
OH... NOTHING. NOTHING.
SURE, SANDY, C'MON OVER! YOU CAN HELP ME DE-WORM THE KITTIES.

Eight Years In Braces By Eric Petersen

SO, WHAT SEEMS TO BE THE PROBLEM.
WELL...
I FEEL LIKE PEOPLE ARE ALWAYS TAKING ADVANTAGE OF ME. I DON'T KNOW WHAT TO DO.
YOU'RE SUFFERING FROM A MILD PARANOIA. YOU MUST STOP TRYING TO FIND BLAME AND TAKE RESPONSIBILITY FOR YOUR OWN FORTUNES, GOOD OR BAD.
I GUESS YOU'RE RIGHT
SO HOW MUCH DO I OWE YOU?
HOW MUCH YA GOT?

Dilbert By Scott Adams

I'M PLEASED TO REPORT ANOTHER BANNER WEEK OF ACCOMPLISHMENTS!
I STREAMLINED MY BUSINESS PROCESSES WHILE HONING MY PARTICIPATORY STYLE AND MY PROACTIVE ATTITUDE, ALL WHILE VALUING DIVERSITY!
YOU WATCHED THE MANDATORY TRAINING VIDEOS?
AND I LOST MY FREE WILL!

Leold By Roger & Salem Salloom

I was at the check out counter at the supermarket yesterday. There was a guy who looked exactly like me. I was afraid to talk to him because I realized he might be me. I turned away for a minute and he vanished.

I couldn't believe there was another me.

I thought I was special. My parents lied. Now, finally,.... I know.

I wonder if they lied about anything else....or..... even exaggerated? I'll bet there's a couple of other things.

I knew I resented them for a reason.

I'm not going shopping anymore.

Close to Home By John McPherson

Thanks to Zach's new hydraulic pants, Linda no longer had to worry about whether a high chair was available.

The Amazing Spiderman By Stan Lee

THE BANK'S CROWDED! GOOD! I LOVE AN AUDIENCE!
LADIES AND GENTLEMEN, MAY I HAVE YOUR ATTENTION?
LOOK! IT'S ROBIN THE GOOD!
I'M HIS BIGGEST FAN!
IF ONLY I HAD MY CAMERA!

Jim's Journal By Jim

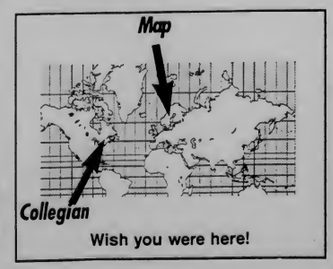
Tony and Ruth and Steve and I got together tonight.
Ruth said she was having a hard time deciding on a hair style.
Steve told her, "It's what's on the inside that counts, Ruth."
"Ha!" Tony said.

Generation X By Chris Lehman

DUDE, I'M INVITING YOU TO MY PARTY.
WHAT'S THE OCCASION?
AFTER FOUR YEARS AT THIS COLLEGE, I FINALLY MADE IT!
WOW! YOU'LL BE GRADUATING?
NO, MAN! I'M GONNA BE A SOPHOMORE!

Small Potatoes By Jon Art

Sparky's Safety Spot™
SECURITY BARS ON WINDOWS CAN TRAP YOU IN A FIRE
Use bars which have a quick-release mechanism that everyone in the family can operate.
NFPA National Fire Protection Association, Quincy, MA



RUSH ΒΘΒ
The only fraternity on campus that lets you haze yourself!
- Beta Theta Beta -
103 Campus Center

MDA Educates For Life
When your child has a neuromuscular disease you have a million questions. MDA answers them 24 hours through special videos and brochures, and just by being there to help in any way we can. So call 1-800-572-1717.
MDA 1-800-572-1717
MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY ASSOCIATION

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Matt Vautour
Copy Editor ..... Mike MacLean
Photo Technician ..... Emily Reily
Production Supervisor ..... Jeff Hodge
Production ..... Candice "O'Riordan" Flemming, Robert "Smith" Snow

Today's D.C. Menu

Berkshire

LUNCH: Hamburger; Spaghetti w/Sauce; Garden Burger
DINNER: Roast Tukey; Veg. Chow Mein; Pastabilities; Cheese Lasagna

Franklin

LUNCH: Hamburger; Grilled Sneeze; Chicken a la King
DINNER: Roast Turkey; Southern Fried Steak; Garden Chili; 1/4 lb. Burger

Hampshire

LUNCH: Hamburger; Chicken Sandwich; Chicken a la King; Pizza/Subs
DINNER: Roast Turkey; Southern Fried Steak; Stoned Willy's Pizza; Summit Subs

Worcester

LUNCH: Hamburger; Spaghetti w/Sauce; Garden Burger
DINNER: Roast Turkey; Veg. Chow Mein; Pastabilities; Cheese Lasagna

Write for Arts & Living
Contact Tara MK Connelly
545-1361

Quote of the Day

"I spent the last three years at UConn, I mean UMass, preparing for the opportunity to play at the next level..."

-Marcus Camby

Sports

Final Division I Top 20 – Men's Lacrosse

1. Princeton	6. Harvard	11. Notre Dame	16. Duke
2. North Carolina	7. Loyola, Md.	12. Hofstra	16. Yale
3. Virginia	7. Brown	12. UMass	18. Penn St.
3. Maryland	9. Bucknell	14. Towson St.	19. Georgetown
5. Syracuse	9. Johns Hopkins	15. Army	20. Rutgers

Decision not surprising

Was there ever really a doubt?

Marcus Camby made himself eligible for the June 26 NBA draft yesterday at the William D. Mullins Center, but did he really need a press conference to let the world know that he was leaving?

Not really.

Even last year when he decided that he was going to stay for his junior year, everyone knew that he would most likely leave after this year.

Then, after dominating the college basketball world all season long and taking home practically every Player of the Year award (Sports Illustrated, what in the world were you thinking picking Allen Iverson as your Player of the Year? Are you serious?) Camby had nothing left to prove.

Candice J. Flemming

His stock will probably never be as high as it is now as he will enter the draft as a probable No. 1 pick.

Sure he could come back for his senior year, win every award again, lead UMass to another Atlantic 10 title, and give the Minutemen a great chance at winning the National Championship, and still have the chance at being the No. 1 selection in the draft. But what about injury? Why risk it?

Camby said that fear of injury wasn't involved in his decision because he had injury insurance, but it had to come into his mind. A torn anterior cruciate here or torn meniscus there, could have been the difference between being a lottery pick [possibly No. 1] or a late second-round pick, or worse — career threatening.

By declaring himself now, Camby's stock can't go down. He'll enter the draft as the probable No. 1 selection, where he'll probably earn 9.1 million over three years — the most a rookie can make under the salary cap.

He'll go to a struggling NBA team where he can be the centerpiece, as Massachusetts coach John Calipari said about one of the visions he had for Camby, prior to his decision.

There are two visions I have for Marcus. One that he plays next year, is the player of the year, dominates college basketball, and wins the National Championship," he said. "The other is he's the first-round draft pick of some team, that he has a tremendous rookie season and he's Rookie of the Year in the NBA."

The NBA Rookie of the Year award might be out of the question, but he'll still probably have a decent rookie campaign.

The final factor in his decision was whether or not to stay in school. Does he stay and get his degree, or go to the NBA and get his degree later? According to Calipari, that won't be a problem.

"We are talking about a young man who will be a positive role model for youngsters. He's done that since he's been here," said Calipari before Camby announced his decision. "He's a young man that whether he comes back or not, he'll get his college degree because he's on-line. He can either do it next year or during the summer."

Turn to FLEMMING, page 9

Men's lax falls to 'Cuse

By Justin C. Smith
Collegian Staff

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — So close, yet so far away.

For the last 15 years the Syracuse men's lacrosse team had all but owned the Massachusetts side, and yesterday the No. 12 Minutemen played arguably their best 60-plus minutes of the year, but the mastery by the No. 6 Orangemen lives on as the defending national champions survived 10–9 in overtime.

Syracuse 10
Massachusetts 9

Syracuse junior Rob Kavovit put home his third goal of the game 44 seconds into sudden death overtime for the victory. It was the fourth straight goal scored by the Orangemen to close out the game. Until the game's conclusion, the Minutemen (6–5) had never trailed in the contest.

"You feel you're in control of the game and I guess you probably should never feel that was against Syracuse," UMass coach Greg Cannella said of his feelings coming down the stretch. "They have some great athletes that can do things like that, and they made it happen.

"We're not happy that we lost the game but I'm really proud of our guys."

UMass took its largest lead of the game 5:25 into the fourth quarter when Ken Sussi took a pass from Buddy Hoffman and beat Syracuse netminder Jason Gebhardt to make the score 9–6. Then the Orangemen attack finally got on track.

Kavovit started the comeback with just under four minutes remaining, then after UMass killed off a Syracuse extra man opportunity, the second-leading Orangeman scorer netted a second with 22 seconds left in regulation.

Toby Price won the ensuing face-off and called time out with 11 seconds left to set the Syracuse offense. All-American Casey Powell, who had been contained all day by Minutemen defensive midfielder Dennis Kelly, delivered his only goal of the game with six seconds remaining to send the game into the extra session.

"Dennis played great all day," John Kasselakis said. "He destroyed the kid. [Powell]'s one of the best players in the country and he treated him like a junior high school player today."

UMass' strategy was to play controlled offense and wait for its scoring opportunities, while limiting Syracuse's transition breaks. While Price won 17 of 22 face-offs, Kelly and the remainder of the Minutemen defense were spectacular in forcing Orangeman turnovers and stifled the Syracuse attack in front of Kasselakis.

The Minutemen offense was impressive as well as Casey Costello and Jim Kennedy tallied twice in the first half to lead UMass into the half with a 5–4 advantage.

"Coach's game plan was unbelievable," Brendan Glass, who notched the fifth first-half goal for the Minutemen with one of his patented behind-the-back goals, said. "I feel bad for the coaches because they sat down, scouted all week and had us really prepared. It's tough especially because we out- played [Syracuse]. It just seemed like something up in the sky... It just wasn't meant to be."

"We proved that we can play with one of the best teams around but we're disappointed," Kasselakis added. "That was one for the taking."

UMass finishes its regular season at home this coming Saturday against New England rival Brown. The Bears are in the same must–win situation as the Minutemen which should make for an intense season finale.

"They're not going to let both Brown and us into the tournament," Dennis Kelly said. "If we beat Brown we feel that we should get in. We have three overtime losses and this game we came up here in a game we really should have won. We just got to put this behind us and go for Brown next."

KAREM ALI / COLLEGIAN

Dennis Kelly and the men's lacrosse team fell to the No. 6 Orangemen on Sunday at Syracuse in overtimes.

Women's crew wins A–10's

By Stephen Reich
Collegian Correspondent

The Massachusetts women's crew captured the Atlantic 10 title winning four of seven races, including the varsity heavyweight, lightweight and second varsity races. This gave the Minutewomen an overwhelming victory in the overall point trophy. Along with the trophy, all gold medalists received an A-10 watch.

"I think the regatta was run very well," said rower Jennifer Strong. "I was proud of all our crews and we had great results."

UMass coach Jim Dietz took home the conference Coach of the Year award, as he has made UMass women's crew a national power in it's first year. Currently ranked No. 5 in the nation, the Minutewomen can only hope to move up in next week's rankings.

The varsity heavyweight won with a time of 6:31 with Temple at second, finishing at 6:36. The varsity lightweight won convincingly at 6:56, with LaSalle coming in eight seconds behind for second place. The novice crew bumped up to race second varsity, and flexed its muscles by winning its race.

"Novices raced in the second varsity event and won with great focus and a solid sprint," said novice coach Deanna Runciman. "The team presented itself well and I was proud to be representing UMass."

The third novice boat also took first place, winning by a 30 seconds over Dayton. The varsity four finished fourth, the second novice placed second, and the lightweight four took second as well.

The Minutewomen performance was second to none and they placed well without being able to practice at home. The Connecticut River was flooded the week prior to the event, so the crew wasn't able to practice in eights before the A-10 championships. Wanting to row in eights before the race, the

Turn to CREW page7

COURTESY OF UMASS WOMEN'S CREW

The UMass women's crew captured the first Atlantic 10 Crew Championships over the weekend in Philadelphia.

Dartmouth crushes women's lax

By Jason Rubin
Collegian Staff

The Dartmouth women's lacrosse team is a top notch program that is perennially ranked in the top 25 nationally. The Massachusetts women's lacrosse team is a young, inexperienced program. The difference was obvious during Dartmouth's 21–8 victory over the Minutewomen Sunday on Totman Field.

The Minutewomen will try to rebound from that loss this afternoon, when they take on Boston University at 4 p.m. at Totman Field.

The Minutewomen are in the middle of the roughest part of their schedule. UMass is scheduled to play games on almost every other day and the fatigue of the constant competition was evident in its play.

"We are really tired. I know that it is not an excuse, but you can see it," UMass coach Francesca McClellan said. "It's obvious that we have not recovered from a tough road trip."

UMass never seemed to get into the game. Dartmouth jumped out to a quick 10-0 lead to open the game. Starting goalie Melissa Borodinsky was bombarded with shots from the opening faceoff, and never got into a groove. After she was replaced, Trish DiBenedetto did not fare much better.

It was not all the goalies' fault, as the ball was kept in the UMass defensive zone for most of the first 15 minutes of the game.

The defense, which had been playing well, seemed to slip a little bit. It strayed away from the patient style that it has used throughout the season. The defense wasn't helping each other out, sliding over to pick up an attacker after they had been beaten. As a result, the Big Green had many open rushes towards the net. The Dartmouth offense attacked aggressively, frequently scoring on quick strikes.

To go along with their sloppy play on defense, the offense was not holding onto the ball. There were sloppy passes, that resulted in immediate counter–attacks the other way.

"Turnovers definitely killed us today," McClellan said.

Although there were not many facets of the Minutewomen's game

Turn to WOMEN'S LAX, page 9

Women's water polo takes sixth place in EWPA

By Jen Ryder
Collegian Staff

The No. 15 Massachusetts women's water polo team's dream of an Eastern Championship and a berth in the U.S. Water Polo Collegiate Nationals vanished this past weekend as it took sixth place in the Eastern Championships.

Senior goalie Jessica Griffith's record-tying nine saves on Friday night were not enough as UMass fell 9–4 to No. 7 Maryland. The Terripans came out strong with a 6–2 first quarter and never trailed as they went on for the win.

They had a chance to turn the tide on Maryland as they came into the fourth quarter only trailing 7–4, but Maryland again came out strong and scored two goals to erase any thought of a Minutewomen comeback. Junior Cathy Leeburg and senior Meghan O'Connor scored two goals apiece in the loss.

Saturday featured a tripleheader as Massachusetts played Brown University, Villanova, and Princeton. The team was facing No. 11 Brown for the second time in as many weeks. Last weekend Brown came away with a close 7–6 victory at the EWPA New England Playoffs. History repeated itself Saturday morning as the Bears came away in a double overtime 5–4 victory on a sudden death goal.

Both teams played close throughout the game, with UMass scoring the tying goal in the fourth quarter however, neither team scored in the two overtime periods. In the sudden death period, Brown scored the winning goal.

Although Massachusetts lost there were a few bright spots in Minutewomen play. Junior Barbara Hickey had 10 steals, setting a new school record. O'Connor scored two more goals while senior Heather Saunders also added two goals. Griffith had five saves in the loss.

After losing their first two games of the weekend, the Minutewomen were ready for a win, coming out strong and dominating Villanova 10–4. The Wildcats never had a chance in this game as they fell behind 5–1 after the first half. Massachusetts built a 9–3 lead in the fourth and the teams earned a goal each in the fourth.

For the third straight game O'Connor had two goals, while junior Vicky Bamond scored her first

Turn to WATER (POLO), page9

Softball hits the road to face Boston College Eagles

By Fred Hurlbrink, Jr.
Collegian Staff

The Minutewomen look to shoot down some fowl today in Chestnut Hill as the Massachusetts softball squad takes on the Boston College Eagles.

"We've always had close games when we go down there. I always look forward to this competition," coach Elaine Sortino said.

The Eagles (27–19) come into the game having lost six of their last 10 games including four-of-five to conference rival UConn. Overall, BC is a mediocre 9–11 in the Big East, 2–4 in their last six Big East contests.

A triumvirate of versatile players are the core of the BC club led by pitcher/3B Alexis Beckman. A junior from Santa Ana, Calif., Beckman has logged a 14–7 record for the Eagles in 146–2/3 innings of work spanning 21 starts. Control has been Beckman's forte this season. She has walked just 10 batters on the spring, notching a spectacular 1.53 ERA.

Beckman's batting has been just as superb as she is second on the BC list with a .385 mark. She has two triples, two home runs and 26 RBIs.

The team's leading hitter is senior Liz Walker (not the WBZ anchorperson) who doubles as BC's second starting pitcher. Walker is batting .391 with a team-leading 29 runs scored. She has knocked 10 doubles and three homers while driving in 26 runs.
